GEORGIA VOTE BRINGS TO END HOT CAMPAIGN

Balloting to Test the Strength of Governor Talmadge

MAJOR PARTIES LOOK TO MAINE

Mahon Wins South Carolina Congressional Seat; Johnson Gains Strength

A vehement campaign culminated today in a Georgia primary of national interest, while political observers followed the returns from five other state primaries and the travel plans of the Democratic and Republican presidential nominees.

The Georgia balloting was a test of strength between Governor Eugene Talmadge, emphatic critic of New Deal policies, and Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr., upholder of the Roosevelt administration. They fought for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

With both parties concentrating on the state election in Maine next Monday, Governor Alf M. Landon disclosed surprised plans for a dash to that state. He will speak in Portland Saturday night.

Mounting returns from yesterday's primaries included these results:

Washington state: Gov. Clarence D. Martin went into the lead over Johnson C. Stevenson, backed by a production for youth organization for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Former Governor Roland K. Hartley led in the Republican contest. Warren C. Magnuson, production for youth candidate, and Bert C. Ross led for the Democratic and Republican nominations, respectively, for the late Marion Zioncheck's seat in congress.

South Carolina: C. Heyward Mahon captured the Democratic nomination for the late Representative John J. McSwain's seat in congress, and Governor Olin D. Johnston gained strength in the legislature.

Half a dozen persons were injured and five men described as National Guardsmen were arrested last night when rioting broke out while Gov. Talmadge delivered the final address in one of the bitterest campaigns in Georgia history.

Preparing to stake his political future on the issue of New Deal enmity in today's Senatorial primary, Talmadge continued his speech after the miniature riot had been subdued.

None of those injured was hurt seriously, although two men described as National Guardsmen and two deputy sheriffs required first aid.

An elderly man who was not identified was knocked unconscious as fists and blackjacks flew after auditors had begun to heckle the Governor.

The riot marked the final stage of Talmadge's fight for nomination to the United States Senate, a fight which will be resumed today when some 350,000 Georgians go to the polls for a primary which in Democratic Georgia is equivalent to election.

Japanese Program on Naval Strength Said Be Violation

Secretary Swanson Asserts Plan to Retain 15,598 Tons of Over-Age Submarines Now Allowed

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Swanson asserted today that Japanese plans to retain 15,598 tons of over-age submarines would involve a "violation" of the London naval treaty.

In the first official comment on Japanese proposals to invoke the "escalator" clause for submarines, partly to compensate for destroyers to be retained by Great Britain, the navy chief said nothing would be done by the United States "until we know definitely that they are going to do it."

At the same time, Swanson announced that the fleet would hold its maneuvers in the north Pacific and Hawaiian waters during May and early June, 1937.

Swanson, who returned to his office yesterday after a long illness also said that plans for two proposed new battleships were ready and that construction could start "at a moment's notice."

Admiral William H. Stanley, chief of operations and acting secretary during Swanson's illness, joined in saying that if the Japanese did not agree to 14-inch guns by April 14, 1937, "the sky is the limit" for the warship heavy armaments.

Loyalists Prepare Attack on Toledo

Government Militiamen Reported to be Anticipating Charge on 1,700 Fascist Rebels Who Have Defied Attacks

(By Associated Press) Unofficial reports reached Madrid today declaring government militiamen had entered the Toledo Alcazar preparatory to an attack on 1,700 fascist rebels who have defied an eight-week siege of the ancient fortress.

The insurgent's artillery and snipers from within the crumbling walls were mute last night for the first time since July 20 and some advances which were not confirmed said the rebel defenders had surrendered.

Hundreds of fugitives from the impending bombardment of Northern cities arrived at Bayonne, France, as diplomats of Europe, forced out of Spain by civil war, sought to save beleaguered San Sebastian from becoming a city of ruins.

Temporarily stationed at the French border they studied a new appeal to government defenders and fascist rebels to spare the picturesque basque resort, site of many summer embassies.

The San Sebastian governor, who yesterday tried in vain to surrender the city in return for amnesty for the defenders, dispatched anarchists zealots to front line trenches to keep them from firing the city rather than see it fall in rebel hands.

In London representatives of two dozen European nations met privately to coordinate arms embargoes and other measures of Spanish non-intervention. The absence of Portugal, logical port of entry for aid to Spanish beleaguers, clouded the proceedings, however. Portugal has affirmed its neutrality, but Madrid socialists have accused it of helping the rebels.

The usual victory claims came from both camps.

ROOSEVELT ON TOUR THROUGH WESTERN N. C.

Chief Executive Will Speak in Charlotte Tomorrow

TO SPEND NIGHT AT ASHEVILLE

President Gets Great Ovation Along The Route on Way to the Green Pastures Rally.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arrived in Knoxville at 9 a. m. (CST) today and shortly afterward was on his way on a motor tour through the Great Smoky mountains.

He had breakfast on his private car before detouring in the midst of a large crowd of applauding Tennesseans.

He had worked late last night on the speech he will deliver at Charlotte, N. C. tomorrow at a Southern "Green Pastures" rally.

Democratic leaders were out in full force here to greet the chief executive and accompany him on his drive through the Smokies.

After parading through crowded downtown streets, the President's procession of automobiles and buses hit out for the Great Smoky ridge that divided North Carolina and Tennessee.

Mr. Roosevelt will arrive late today at Asheville, N. C., and spend the night there.

Brothers Ordered Held For Hearing Of Liquor Charge

W. K. and G. L. Stokes Arrested Early This Morning and Sign Confession to Transporting

W. K. and G. L. Stokes, brothers who live on the Washington highway, were arrested this morning about five o'clock and signed a confession to transporting 55 gallons of illicit whiskey.

The two white men were arrested by Police Officer J. R. Mobley and Patrolmen H. B. Smith and C. R. Williams as they were turning into the driveway at their home. Brought to the city jail, they signed a confession to their part in the illicit trade.

W. K. Stokes admitted that the whiskey was his and the automobile in which the contraband was being transported also belonged to him. G. L. Stokes signed an affidavit saying that he was riding in the car and had full knowledge of the whiskey, but declared that he owned no part of the liquor.

The two brothers appeared before County Clerk J. F. Harrington and posted bond for their appearance in county court next Tuesday to face charges of transporting illegal whiskey.

City of Greenville Gets Street Fund

Raleigh, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Vance Baise, chief highway engineer, announced allocation today of funds to various municipalities of the state for maintenance for state highways passing through them with Winston-Salem leading the list $22,800.

The allocation used up all but $31,923 of the $500,000 legislative appropriation with the balance being reserved for emergencies.

The funds were distributed on a basis of population, mileage of highways in limits and needs. Other allotments included: Goldsboro, $7,300; Kinston, $1,625; Wilson, $4,200; Greenville, $3,000; Washington, $700.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER BRAKES: Wall Street is better prepared to brace itself against the sudden shock of foreign wars than it realizes.

When the World War broke out, European nations ordered immediate sale of American securities so as to obtain working cash. Only the closing of the Exchange prevented a domestic crisis. The same thing might happen again if Europe were to dump the estimated $6,000,000,000 worth of American securities held by foreigners. Even though foreign holders preferred an orderly liquidation so as to obtain higher prices, quick sales might precipitate a general downward movement.

But the SEC has made a quiet study of foreign holdings. It knows the lines in which various nationals have dipped and the volume acquired. In the event of war and excessive sales, it could order a suspension in those particular securities rather than a halt of all activities. It could publicize the fact that the unusual selling was due entirely to Europe's war needs and influences, and not to basic domestic conditions affecting the stock itself. Thus Europe can't drag us into war or a stock panic by our financial tail.

ACTS DISMISS MOORE APPEAL

Atty. General Lodges Motion With Supreme Court

Raleigh, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The North Carolina supreme court took under advisement today a motion to deny and dismiss the appeal of Martin Moore, Asheville negro convicted of the murder of Helen Clevenger of New York.

Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell lodged the motion at the request of Solicitor Zev V. Nettles of Asheville, who prosecuted Moore. The negro was convicted August 22 and sentenced to die in the lethal gas chamber. Notice was given in open court of intention to appeal.

The attorney general's motion set forth that appeal for Moore had not been docketed properly under the rules of the court.

Seawell told the court that Sanford Brown of Asheville, a member of Moore's counsel had requested by telephone this morning that he postpone making the motion. The attorney general said he did not feel he could do so as proper notice had been served on Brown and other members of defense counsel last week that the motion would be made today.

The attorney general suggested, however, that the court might wish to hold his motion in abeyance until tomorrow in the event Brown should file some motions at that time.

Granting the motion, Seawell said, would probably end Moore's chances of getting a review by the supreme court unless some new angle should turn up in the case.

Rushes Burning Auto To Fire Department

It costs the city quite a pretty penny when the fire trucks are called out to extinguish a fire, but when curb service is rendered, the cost is very small.

Graham Flanagan last night took the fire to the station and thereby saved the city the cost of rushing its equipment to the fire. Mr. Flanagan's automobile caught fire and he rushed to the fire station and the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Reflector Offers Prizes In Letter Writing Contest

Tell Why it Pays To Sell Tobacco in Greenville

The Daily Reflector today announces a letter-writing contest which is open to every man, woman and child in this section. To our readers who will write a short letter telling why it pays to sell tobacco in Greenville and why it pays to trade with the different advertisers in today's paper will be awarded prizes to the value of over $60.

There is no entrance fee and no red tape of any kind. It is simply an effort on the part of The Reflector to get expressions from its readers as to just what they think of the different firms who are using advertising space in the next few issues.

Get your pencil and paper and write a letter of not over 100 words telling why it pays to trade with the firms whose ads appear on pages four and five of this issue. You may write as many letters as you desire, but they must be written about individual firms and not collectively.

You should have little trouble writing a nice letter about the business houses who have made this contest possible. They are the leaders in their respective lines and handle only the best. The only requirement is that you must answer the questions asked at the head of each advertisement.

These ads will appear again next week and you will be given until Saturday, Sept. 12 to get your letters to The Reflector office. The winners, together with the best letter about each advertiser, will be published in our issue of September 23.

Get busy today and win one of the valuable prizes offered for your efforts. Complete rules will be found on pages four and five of today's paper, together with a list of the prizes offered. Read all the ads carefully and be sure to answer the questions asked. If you desire, you may call the merchant for the answer to the questions asked. They will be glad to give any information desired.

In addition to the prizes offered for the best letters written 40 quarts of Carolina ice cream will be given for the first forty letters received. You do not have to write a "best letter" to win a quart of ice cream—you simply have to be one of the first forty turning in letters.

Turn to the center of today's paper and read carefully the ads appearing on the double page spread.

AUTO SUPPLANTS BURROS IN GOLD SEARCH TRAVELS

Tucson, Ariz. (AP)—The modern gold prospector, unlike the bearded "desert rat" of years gone by who followed his p'odding burros across the sands, now seeks ore by automobile.

The auto has the advantage that a complete outfit can be carried and trips can be made for supplies with relative ease and speed.

But in mountainous country, the sure-footed burro still is the stand-by of the prospector.

A burro can be packed with about 150 pounds, it can live off the country in which it finds itself, and can go almost any place a man can reach by foot.

ADOLF HITLER INAUGURATES NEW PROGRAM

Aggressive Colonial Demands Included in 4-Year Plan

MOVE INCLUDES BIGGER EXPORTS

Proclamation States Directness of Nazi Principles Repeatedly Been Set Out

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today proclaimed a four year program aggressive colonial demands aimed at the goal of making Germany economically independent of the rest of the world.

The proclamation, sounded suddenly before 800,000 Nazis assembled in fourth annual convention, disclosed Derfuehrer has signed decrees reorganizing the national economy and hiking the planned production of all industrial and agricultural products.

Their realization, he declared, "is only a question of our energy and determination."

"Our colonial demands," the proclamation went on, "are part and parcel of this program."

"We must build up our raw material forces."

The "raising by bootstraps" decrees also contained scheme for increasing German exports, but the details were not disclosed in the proclamation, which was read by Adolf Wagner, the Bavarian Nazi leader.

In the proclamation Hitler declared the directness of Nazi principles had been demonstrated by "our constantly recurring successes" in the midst of a troubled world.

Official Estimates Government Not Entirely Satisfied With Progress On Bombing

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Hull indicated today that new representations probably would be dispatched to both the Spanish government and rebel command insisting upon a satisfactory explanation of the identity and motives of an unidentified airplane which attempted to bomb the American destroyer Kane on August 30.

Although represented as convinced that the attack on the destroyer was a mistake, Hull plainly indicated at his press conference today that this government did not consider satisfactory the replies to its protests received from either Madrid or the rebel general Franco.

France informed the American consul at Seville yesterday there was a possibility that the Kane's aerial assailant was a rebel airplane although he had been unable to establish this definitely. The Madrid ministry of state on the other hand denied that any loyalist plane was involved.

Responsible quarters said this government's attitude as outlined by the Secretary of State did not reflect any official desire to inflict punishment on those responsible for the attack declaring authorities here have no doubt that it was an error without ulterior motives.

Negro Bound Over In Mayor's Court on Robbery Count

Opella Riddick, Charged With Highway Robbery, Held Under $250 Bond For Superior Court

Opella Riddick, negro, was bound over to Superior court under $250 bond at a preliminary hearing in Municipal court this morning on charges of highway robbery.

The defendants is alleged to have held up another negro and robbed him of a sum of money.

Arthur Anderson, negro, was fined $10 and costs for engaging in an assault.

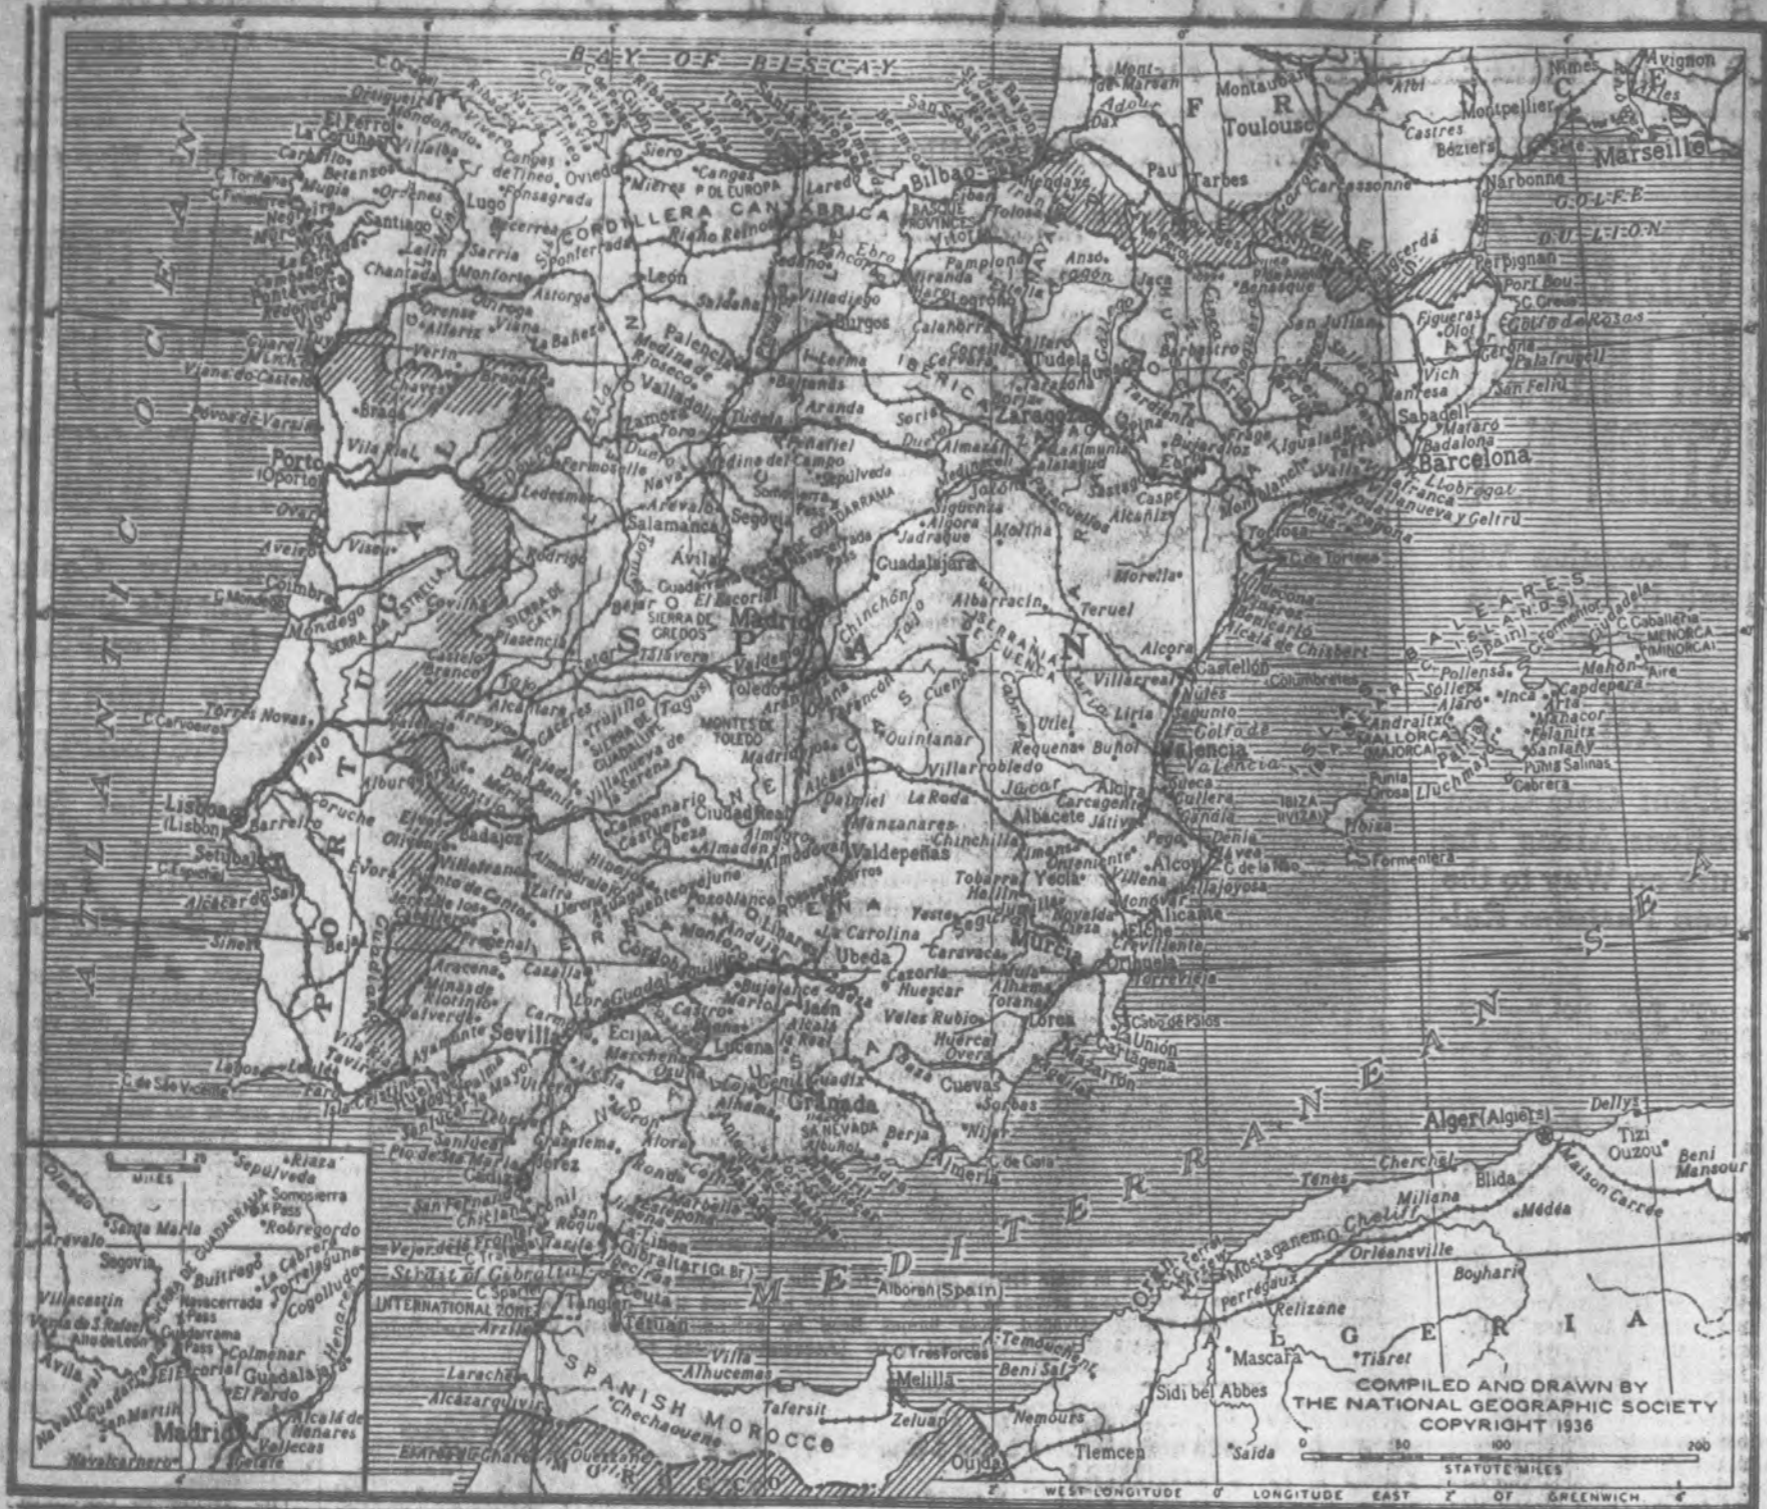

E. R. Jackson, negro, was sent to the roads for 30 days on a charge of drunkenness.

John Bryant, negro, was bound over to County court on a charge of larceny. He is alleged to have stolen 50 cents.

Joe Clinton, negro, was bound over to County court on charges of operating a motor vehicle in a careless and reckless manner.

Spain's War Theatre: Tragedy Hold Stage

To follow developments in the Spanish civil war, you may wish to cut out this map and paste it on cardboard. At the bottom is Spanish Morocco where the revolt burst into flame early in July under the leadership of General Francisco Franco. Simultaneously in cities throughout Spain, rebels against the leftist government appeared in force. Rebel armies from Morocco gained a foothold on the mainland and moved north. After conquering the city of Badajoz on the Portuguese border with bloody slaughter, the southern fascist army of foreign legionnaires and Moors made contact with northern troops. Then the insurgents turned most of their forces against Madrid. From rebel headquarters at Burgos columns advanced through the Guadarrama mountains. At Toledo, nearly 1,700 rebels held out in the Alcazar fortress, hoping for succor from their advancing brothers-in-arms before loyalist artillery battered down all their defenses. Irun, at the French border on the Bay of Biscay, fell after some of the most bitter fighting of the war, and victorious rebels pressed toward nearby San Sebastian. Catalan troops gained successes in the Balearic islands against the rebels, and threatened Huesca in the Zaragoza region.

CHANGE URGED IN BALLOTING

Says West to Go Republican Under Absentee Law

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL
Raleigh, Sept. 9.—Many of the counties in the western part of the state which have been staying in the Democratic column by narrow margins for several years, will swing over into the Republican column within the next year or so unless the 1937 general assembly repeals the absentee ballot and revises the state election laws. Dr. R. Sp. W. McDonald said here before returning to Winston-Salem following the state convention of Liberal Democrats.

These counties will stay in the Democratic fold this fall because a majority of the voters in them are for the reelection of President Roosevelt; and because they realize that nothing can be done about the present election laws until the 1937 general assembly meets. Dr. McDonald said. But if the 1937 general assembly does not repeal the absentee ballot law and make some of the changes being demanded in the election laws, it is going to be almost impossible to hold many of the western counties in for another two years, Dr. McDonald maintained.

"There is no danger of any of these counties going Republican in the election this fall, since those Democrats who want the election law changed realize that nothing can be done until the next general assembly meets," Dr. McDonald said. "They also want to see President Roosevelt reelected. So they are going to stick by the Democratic party this time and vote the straight ticket, county, state and national. For the Liberal Democrats are essentially Democrats.

"But if the coming general assembly disregards the wishes of the western Democrats and of the eastern Democrats who also want election law reform, the outlook may be considerably different two years hence, however. From what I have been able to gather, many of the western Democrats feel that if their views and wishes are disregarded by another general assembly, their only hope of gaining these desired reforms is to join with the Republicans in an effort to get an administration that will be interested in bringing about real election law revision."

"It is entirely likely that if the election law changes now desired are not made by the approaching general assembly that both Ashe and Alleghany counties will go Republican and join Wilkes and Avery counties which are already Republican, also that Caldwell, Burke and Catawba counties will go over into the Republican list, as well as several other far-western counties.

"But if the Democrats' eastern counties will cooperate with the western Democrats in bringing about the abolition of the absentee ballot, of election markers and make some of the other changes desired, I am convinced that the Democratic party in the west will be stronger than it has been in years, when means that the Democratic party in the entire state will also be stronger. It is going to get weaker instead of stronger, however, as long as it prides the present hope of election laws which invite discrepancy in election, to remain unpurged."

Why so many of the eastern counties seem to want to retain the absentee ballot law and other provisions of the election laws, when they are overwhelmingly Democratic and do not need these laws, Dr. McDonald cannot understand. But it has been the eastern rather than the western counties which have persisted in keeping these laws on the statute books, even though the State Board of Elections and the present administration urged their repeal or modification prior to the 1925 general assembly, the record shows. The State Board of Elections made virtually the same recommendations to the 1935 general assembly which the Liberal Democrats in their convention here Monday are going to make to the 1937 assembly.

The prevailing belief is that the eastern counties want to retain the absentee ballot and other provisions for use in Democratic primaries rather than in general elections. Indications now are, however, that there will be more sentiment for election law revision in the eastern counties during the coming general assembly than ever before.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS
By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood — The vicissitudes of movie "talent scouting" are illustrated nowhere better than in the experiences of John LeRoy Johnston.

"Johnny is a public relations counselor, otherwise known as a press agent. He is an artist besides, and something of a diplomat and ambassador extraordinary when occasion arises. So turning talent scout back in 1927, when the old First National company thought it would be nice to sign up the campus Adonises, was up his alley.

He went out and scoured the college world and made tests in quantity. The company's exhibitors selected the ten men they thought would do most for them in future box-office compilations.

The passing years disposed of the ten hopefuls, most of whom dropped out of pictures, and none of whom ever figured importantly in the whirl.

But the others—those who didn't make the grade—now make the story.

Johnston tested many youngsters who were not campus Adonises, and many girls besides. One of the girls tested at Dallas was Miss Alice Rice. Hollywood was not interested. Miss Rice went on the stage eventually, and recently she came to Hollywood with a Universal contract.

"Thirteenth in the exhibitor poll on the collegiate tests was a slender lad from Cornell, whom Johnston spotted in a crowded campus lunch room. The other day, engaged on special work for "The Gorgeous Hussy," he met the cast and met again the "slender lad from Cornell," whose name was Frank Hot Tone.

In 1928 the then talent scout visited Princeton and was told about a handsome youth who ought to be a movie bet. But the boy was not interested, not even enough to shave a two days' growth of beard for his test.

"One actor in the family is enough," he said. "My dad's an actor—Taylor Holmes. I'm going to stick to commerce."

But he changed his mind, apparently, for Hollywood today has Phillips Holmes.

On the same trip were tested a beautiful blond girl and a handsome curly haired youth named Joe Shovlin, both posing for commercial photographers in New Haven Conn. Hollywood was not sufficiently interested in either to bring them out, but the girl—Gwen Andre—subsequently had a fling at pictures.

Johnston tried to "sell" Shovlin to the studio for several years while the boy worked at odd jobs including ditch-digging. Joe came in one day and confided his new name—Michael Whalen.

League Advocates Receive new Hope from World Moves
Several Occurrences in World Affairs Give New Encouragement to Backers of League

By PRESTON GROVER
Washington—Several occurrences in world affairs, including one or two directly concerning the United States, have given encouragement to those American peace advocates who consider the best approach to peace is through machinery such as the League of Nations.

Among the first was the seemingly timid policy of Great Britain in dealing with the Italian-Ethiopian affair. As one senate foreign relations committee member phrased it: England "pulled in her neck and swallowed her pride" for the sake of peace. He suggested that in years past, England might not have yielded in her neck nor swallowed her pride.

Other reasons have been advanced for the British policy, that the country was not prepared for a war and was fearful some of her colonies, notably India, would get out of hand.

These other reasons are accepted as contributing factors by those peace-minded persons who favor an organized peace, but only as factors. They insist that an entirely new philosophy of avoidance of war is an increasingly important influence.

When the first efforts were made to bring Americans out of the danger zone, the State Department urged Americans to accept transportation out quickly, because the time might come when the United States could not assure a way out at any given moment.

To some it sounded like telling the Americans remaining in Spain that they were staying at their own risk, and could not expect protection that might involve conflict.

Reaction was prompt. Protests arose at such a policy, and the State Department followed it up with a warning that this government in no sense was relieving Spain of responsibility for safety of Americans in the revolt area.

But the gesture had been made.

The refusal of major nations to halt Japan's strides into China and Britain's calming and acquiescent hand in dealing with the German armament situation also were looked upon by these peace advocates as evidence that a new spirit was influencing world nations.

Then came the unconfirmed report that President Roosevelt was contemplating a conference of world rulers to preserve peace. When the President did not deny it at once, many suspected he had set up a "trial balloon" to test national and world sentiment.

Regardless of any further developments in the matter, it lent encouragement to these peace-hopeful minds that after 20 years something might yet be salvaged from the horror of the "war to end all wars."

to their communities as well as themselves or are being permitted to remain in school through the help of the national youth administration.

The nation's wage earners, staunch supporters of the social security program, did much by their interest and cooperation during the past year to bring about participation by the states in this great and humane program. All 48 states, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii and the District of Columbia are now cooperating with the social security board in one or more parts of its program which is in the interest of the American public at large.

The United States department of labor and its officials have been active in the past year in their efforts to "foster, promote and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment" as they are

LABOR FUTURE SEEMS BRIGHT
Secretary Perkins Asserts Working Man Better Off

By FRANCES PERKINS,
Secretary of Labor

The wage earners of the nation were able to observe the fortieth anniversary of Labor Day in the knowledge that employment, payrolls, working conditions and the status of those who work for a living with their hands has been improved in the last 12 months and that the sustained business recovery should bring them, as well as employers and investors, still further benefits.

Approximately 1,000,000 men and women have been added to the ranks of workers in private industry since a year ago, and the amount of money in pay envelopes has been increased nearly $42,000,000 in weekly wages. Nearly 5,500,000 more men had women are engaged today in 1936 or industrial employment than at the low point of the depression in March, 1933, and 3,433,000 others are working on useful emergency jobs provided by the government.

Building construction and the durable goods industries have registered healthy improvement in the last year. The value of permits for residential building shows a gain of 182 per cent with a 38 per cent rise for new non-residential buildings and an increase of more than 30 per cent for additions, alterations and repairs.

Employment in the durable goods industries is 14.9 per cent higher now than it was a year ago and weekly payrolls have increased by 32.1 per cent. These industries, which are the first to suffer in a depression and the slowest to recover, give every indication of continuing to rise through the increased purchasing power of wage earners and farmers and the increased profits of industry and investors.

The civilian conservation camps and the national youth administration have done much in the past year to help young Americans through a depression which was not of their making and about which they could do nothing.

More than half a million enrolled workers are in the camps today and an equal number of young people are working on projects of benefit

Net Makes Satin Gown 2-In-1

With this smart fall evening frock goes a net accessory which can be tied about the waist as a tunic or about the throat as a cape, giving two different silhouettes. The gown was created by an American designer, Kiviette, of antracite black satin with a slim mering finish and has a decollete edged in a fine net frill and finished with a rhinestone clasp.

Ehringhaus Joins Roosevelt on Tour Thru Mountains

Governor Accompanying Chief Executive Through Great Smoky Mountains National Park

Raleigh, Sept. 9.—Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus is travelling with President Franklin D. Roosevelt today through the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina, as the guest of the President. He will spend tonight in Asheville at the Grove Park Inn, where President Roosevelt will also stop, and then proceed on to Charlotte by motor with the President.

"BLACK-DRAUGHT IS PURELY VEGETABLE"

—What Does That Mean?

A great many things can cause constipation and there are many remedies to relieve it, but possibly none more popular than the "vegetable" laxatives.

Among these, Black-Draught is outstanding. In its manufacture, leaves of a certain plant are used, and the roots of certain others. These are dried so they will keep without preservatives...no other chemical change from the way they grew in "Mother Nature's medicine garden." By their being finely ground, the digestive system extracts the active medicine right where it is needed. Constipation is relieved.

Black-Draught is so economical that a 25-cent package averages upwards of 25 doses.—(Adv.)

Thursday morning Governor Ehringhaus will introduce the President in Charlotte where he will address the "Green Pastures" rally Thursday afternoon.

At first Governor Ehringhaus had expected to go to Asheville today and then go on to Charlotte with President Roosevelt tomorrow. But Monday night the Governor received a personal invitation from the President to join him in Knoxville Wednesday morning and as his guest on his trip through the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and on over to Asheville, as well as from Asheville to Charlotte. As a result, Governor Ehringhaus and his private secretary, Charles Powell, left here Tuesday morning for Knoxville, so they would be there when the President's special pulled in this morning.

Of the 33 "motors" brought to this country for a highway tour by English visitors, only one was of American make.

Clothes Of True Individuality

Forbes' store is continually referred to as a store for clothes of true individuality... This high reputation lies in the results of Forbes' many years of existence, and is based on a definite policy... Forbes' is not a department store, and has no desire to be... It is exclusively a store dedicated to Woman's Apparel... Here you see clothes that are different, dramatic, distinctive, and definitely expressive of the individual.

We are about to enter a new prosperity... A new season... A season that has all the alluring promise of luxury tempered with taste... Anticipating this new prosperity, our buyers have been busy for weeks interpreting new fall collections, and we are now ready with the most imaginative, and exhilarating fashions we have ever assembled... No matter what your mood or what your manner, you owe it to yourself to see our new fashions.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Very few participants in the Washington scrape—realize how feverishly government officials are trimming the American ship at State so that it can sail serenely through stormy seas within the next few years.

Secretary Morgenthau will replenish his working balance by $400,000,000 for fear government costs will go up when the big blow Secretary Hull has ordered a diplomatic mobilization of all forces at home and abroad. FDR has started a checkup on the means which various agencies, the Post Office, the Shipping Board, the Post Office, etc., can utilize to prevent our exporters and shippers, and manufacturers, from getting us into the conflict.

The State Department is studying all neutrality laws to determine whether any loopholes must be closed by legislation at the next session of Congress. The Commerce Department is canvassing exports to possible belligerents, including the problem of shipment of war materials by U. S. firms. It has found that Benito Mussolini got a large supply of rubber from the Dutch East Indies through reshipment from this country as a result of Holland's adherence to the League of Nations embargo against Italy. The net of the secret study amounts to this: America is taking all possible pains to avoid being dragged into war, but nobody has yet discovered a way to stay out.

EVIDENCE: Pat predictions that leaders of business and industry would curtail expansion and expenditures until after the November election so as to prejudice the payroll voter against the New Deal are not borne out even by New Dealers' inquiries.

Two great industries which wholly dislike Mr. Roosevelt are leading the recovery procession—and making no political halts along the road. Responding to demands, several steel corporations have not waited until after November 3 to announce plans for millions of dollars' worth of new plant construction. The public utilities weekly broadcast new records of production, and are trying with TVA and REA in reaching out for hitherto untapped markets. These industries' demands have awakened those two drowsy giants—construction and railroads.

This resumption of activity cuts two ways, politically. The Londonites argue that natural forces—the "American way of life"—could not be damned up even by the New Deal. But President Roosevelt's October speeches will hail all this progress as a direct result of New Deal policies which "we planned." The voter will have to take and make his choice.

MASSED: High-up leaders in business and industry have quietly started a campaign of propaganda to convince white collar and horny-handed workers that the New Deal spells their doom.

"Nation's Business," organ of the United States Chamber of Commerce, led off with a series of advertisements, supposedly boosting the magazine but actually degrading and denigrating Roosevelt's policies. A rival organization, the National Association of Manufacturers, soon followed, with a full page spread which will be underwritten by local industrialists and financiers. Though subtly written, they headline the accomplishments of the historic, capitalistic system as against hastily conceived changes supposed to destroy individual initiative and penalize the thrifty householder.

This anti-Roosevelt barrage comes at the time when the smarter leaders in the private field have decided to conduct a five-year defense program against Rooseveltian inroads. You will soon hear much more about this counter-attack by a massed and aroused army of so-called "economic royalists." They may accept present day profits but they won't abdicate yesterday's prerogatives in favor of federal domination.

NATION WHIRL

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN

ACE: New York political sharps figure that the Democratic high command turned on the steam as a dress rehearsal for November in the Arkansas, Mississippi and South Carolina primaries.

The advance hope on these primaries was very pessimistic about the chances of the New Deal Senators involved. It was figured that Byrnes of South Carolina would just about squeak through, that Robinson of Arkansas would probably have to be taken care of on the Supreme Court bench and Harrison of Mississippi as Comptroller General to succeed J. E. McCarl. Actually Robinson's opponent, were showed under by more than 3 to 1—failing to carry even their own county. Harrison triumphed over the Bilbo-Conner forces by more than 2 to 1 and Byrnes had a run-away.

The dress rehearsal certainly brought out the vote. Democratic leaders are confident they can repeat these performances throughout the country. Anti-New Deal chiefs in the financial sector agree that FDR's act-in-the-hole is the additional vote—above the 1932 total—which local Democratic organizations will marshal at the polls.

ATLANTIC CITY MECCA FOR NATION'S PRETTIEST

their influence in party affairs by Landon and Hamilton—are doing powerful work behind the lines on Landon's behalf. New York and Pennsylvania party veterans have rendered valiant service in keeping big time financial supporters cooperative—selling the Kansas to eastern business chiefs who have been very skeptical about his merits as either a candidate or a President. These old timers understand perfectly why they have been cold shouldered for publication, and it doesn't ruffle them in the least.

Then there is the matter of developing trade paper backing for Landon. Trade magazines played a very substantial part in the original 1928 build-up of Herbert Hoover. They had been cultivated for that purpose by Hoover as Secretary of Commerce. Now there are indications that many of these papers are as strong for Landon as they ever were for the "Great Engineer."

It would be hard to prove, but well-posted New Yorkers are convinced that this development is Mr. Hoover's personal contribution to the success of the Landon campaign—and a valuable one—made despite the fact that the ex-President is the real "forgotten man" as far as Landon headquarters is concerned.

CONTENT: First shots which might develop into a real battle were fired last week against the New York Curb Exchange in a sniping campaign by over-the-counter security dealers. The Securities Exchange Commission has the thankless job of umpire.

Two leading over-the-counter houses—Bristol and Willett, and Tweedy and Co.—led off by asking the SEC to remove two stocks in which these firms specialize from the unlisted trading privileges they now enjoy on the Curb.

The "de-listing" application in both cases is based on the argument that there isn't enough trading in the contested issues to warrant their retention on a regular exchange—and that it would therefore be in the public interest to limit the market for them exclusively to over-the-counter dealings.

SPOT: The Curb hasn't lifted a finger so far to oppose these applications.

Green Pastures Rally Leaves Raleigh Deserted Village

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Sept. 9.—Political activity here has gone into a nose dive and the Capital city has almost been reduced to a deserted village as a result of the big seven states "Green Pastures" rally which will be addressed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Most of the more prominent state officials and political leaders have already left for Charlotte or are departing this afternoon and almost the only political talk heard is concerning the Charlotte rally and the national political situation, with state politics being distinctly in the background for the first time in many months.

State Democratic Headquarters here are deserted but for the stenographers on duty, as Chairman J. Wallace Winborne, Secretary "Libby" Ward and Mrs. Spillman, vice chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, have all departed for Charlotte. Congressman Lindsey C. Warren of the First District passed through here today on his way to Charlotte, as did other members of Congress and politicians from eastern counties.

Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus left here yesterday morning for Knoxville to join President Roosevelt's party there and drive with him through the Great Smoky Mountains National Park to Asheville and then on to Charlotte with him Thursday morning. Senator Robert R. Reynolds also joined the Presidential party in Knoxville this morning, while Senator Josiah W. Bailey will join it this afternoon in Asheville and proceed from there to Charlotte Thursday morning.

Accordingly, talk of state politics

United States destroyer Kane, dropping bombs. The Kane whipped the covers off an anti-aircraft gun and fired nine rounds after the plane, spinning the shells at the craft as it approached, and after it left.

Reporting the incident, the State Department said officers on the Kane did not identify the plane, so warnings were sent both to the Madrid government and the rebels telling them to keep their bombers away from American ships.

It was scarcely to be wondered that rumors rippled about Washington that the State Department was exactly which side owned the plane that dropped bombs at the difficult situation was involved. State Department is striving to be not only neutrality in accordance with the two Spanish factors, but is equally anxious that American public sentiment remain neutral.

It was hard for Washington onlookers with even a smattering of knowledge to understand why officers of the Kane could have watched the plane on three separate visits, could train destroyers upon it, and yet be unable to identify it.

If the officers did not recognize the plane, then it seemed a lucky break for the State Department. If they did, and reported its identity to the State Department, department officials could perhaps be excused for overlooking the little matter of which side dropped the bombs.

State Department attaches with one eye trained on Spain had their attention recently drawn to a portentous development in another corner of the world—the Dutch East Indies, in the path of Japan's southward industrial expansion.

The Dutch Indies are rich in many resources, most notably hemp and oil. These island possessions of the tiny little European kingdom stretch over a zone as extensive as from Seattle to New York, with an enormous coast line to defend in case of attack.

In years past, American munitions makers have found no great market there. Even as late as last February orders amounted to $10. In the next three months it was a little over $40,000. But June brought orders for $146,703 in munitions, including planes, bombs, machine guns and mines. July orders slumped to $972.

But August, a period contemporary with troubled hours in Spain, brought a smashing demand for $1,288,027 in machine guns, war planes and ordinary planes, mostly war planes.

State Department officials declined any public explanation, letting the figures speak for themselves.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Fearfully, Carol Torrance has gone home from Atlanta to spend Christmas. Equally fearfully, Blake Thornton, her employer, has gone to Florida to try to persuade his neurotic and indifferent wife to divorce him. For he and Carol are deeply in love, and realize that come what may, they belong to each other. Blake has told Irma his mission, and she is being as difficult as she can. Blake holds his temper. But not easily.

Chapter 41 FUTILI HOPE

AND then Blake said aloud: "You haven't any conception of love, have you? You can't even imagine loving someone so much you'd die for them. And that's the way I love Carol. If I can't have her I don't want to touch another woman as long as I live!"

The passionate intensity of his voice shattered the glass about her once and for all. She really looked at him—for the first time. His face was white and stark and his eyes burned hotly. He means it, she thought dazedly; he's really mad about her...

She played her trump card—an appeal to his chivalry. He could be tender and generous; she remembered that from long ago. Surely he would be that now.

"Blake... you think I'm imagining my nervous condition. You think it's because I don't want to be a wife to you. That's not true; it's just that—for a while now—I'm going through a rather—trying time..."

His heart sank heavily. So he had been right in his guess... But he could not let her read so thin an excuse.

"A great many women manage to adjust their husbands and make them happy even then." "I know," she said placidly. "And so could I, probably. But I've always been so high-strung, and so I thought best to stay away."

He was moved to pity until he remembered the years before this, and he realized that her appeal did not deserve to be heeded. He said slowly:

"I'm very sorry—for your sake. But your excuse rather falls down, doesn't it? We've been living this hit-or-miss existence for years. You can't justify six years with something that's just happened."

She felt as if she were going mad—as if the walls were really closing in on her. She saw herself discarded, for a girl; a middle-aged woman who would become merely an object of humorous pity. She made one more bitter attempt.

"I understand, of course. You married me, knowing that I was older than you; that I was sure to lose my attraction before you lost yours. And now that it's happened you're being a beast, and trying to cast me aside like an old shoe."

Fury almost blinded him, so that he dared not answer her for a moment. At last he said with a creditable attempt at quietness:

"A boy twenty-two doesn't think, Irma; the poor fool just feels. You must have seen that possibility—better than I could. And since you've gone your way so completely there's only one answer: I don't matter to you any more than you do to me."

She said shrilly: "But you do matter! I—couldn't live without you!"

His mouth twisted bitterly. "You've made a pretty good stab at it so far."

"But I've had to. I'll come home with you even if it kills me!"

THE melodrama revolted him. The supreme sacrifice, she was no doubt thinking. He got up and walked to the door and back.

"I'm sorry, but it's too late now. I couldn't play up. Do we have to talk about it any more? I'm offering you a chance to get the divorce yourself, on the grounds of cruelty."

"Suppose I refuse?"

"Then I'll have to get it myself, on the same grounds."

"You can't do it," she almost screamed. "I can refute anything you try to say!" She made a supreme effort at control, and went on in an altered voice.

"Blake, wait a year and see. You got tired of me; how do you know you won't tire of her?"

want to fight it you're at liberty to do so."

Her body sagged. He was speaking the truth and she knew it. At the sight of her ravaged face pity stirred in him, and he said more gently:

"Wouldn't it be wiser to follow my suggestion, Irma, and get the divorce yourself? People will think you're fired of me, and God knows that's plausible enough..."

"And if I do, will you promise to wait a decent interval before you marry this woman? A year?"

So that people might possibly be deceived, he knew she meant.

"Of course I won't. I'm not a child, and neither is she. Our time is too precious."

"Then you'll have to make a cad of yourself and a joke of me. Because I won't do it."

She was bluffing him, of course; thinking he would not dare. And he knew she was bluffing. He stood up.

"I'm sorry you see it that way. I've already talked to a lawyer, and the papers will be filed Wednesday."

Irma sprang to her feet. "You'll never get it! They'll throw you out of court!"

He shrugged. "All I can do is try." He turned away, sick of the sordidness and of her presence. He wanted never to see her again.

"There's no use in prolonging this cheap wrangle. I'm taking the next train home, and the papers will be filed Wednesday. If you want to reconsider you can phone me in the next few hours."

He laid his hand on the door knob and looked steadily at her. "And I hope you have a very merry Christmas..."

He opened the door and went quickly out.

When he had gone Irma flung herself face down upon the bed.

She would be—from now on—of those homeless, undesired women who drift from place to place: widows and divorcees who migrate with the seasons. Whoever she went, whispers would echo in her ears.

And if she left the South she would hardly escape it: the migratory birds covered the face of the earth, and spread their gossip like pollen on the winds. She had no way of knowing that she was exaggerating her own importance; that what she did or where she went was of vital concern to no one but herself.

She thought wildly: I'll get back at him somehow for the way he's treating me. I've got to get back; I've got to make him suffer...

THE apartment seemed indifferent and empty after the warmth and life of the house in Meredith. Carol closed the door softly and went straight to the telephone without taking off her hat.

Blake answered the telephone himself with an eager "Yes?"

"Blake..." The sound of his voice shook her so that she could not go on.

He said quickly: "Carol, darling. Where are you?"

"At home. I've just gotten in."

"May I come right out?"

"Of course. You're not busy?"

"There's no one here but me. I've been sitting here cursing the hands of my watch."

She did not dare to ask if his news was good or bad; she knew too well that he would have told her if it had been what they hoped for. A porter rang and handed her a florist's box; tea roses and deiphinium with a card that said only: "With my heart..."

Blake rang just as she finished arranging the flowers and she almost ran to meet him. He came in quickly and took both her hands and they stood for a space looking hungrily at each other. Then he muttered, "Oh, Carol..." and took her in his arms.

She braced herself. "Was it—very bad, Blake?"

He winced. "You knew better than I did. Carol—how do women get like that?"

"I don't know." She laid her hand against his face and he caught it and kissed it. "They're blind from birth. I guess. You'd better—tell me about it."

He told her, dully and accurately, because every word and gesture was burned upon his mind with acid.

"I must have gone crazy at the end," he confessed bitterly. "I threatened her and browbeat her as if I'd been a savage. I—understood how civilized men commit murder; I could have strangled her—and laughed!"

She said quietly: "No, you couldn't. Not really."

"Yes I could have. I wanted to."

LEADING THE LEADERS

Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants returned to the firing line in the recent series with the Chicago Cubs because "some of the Giant players preferred it that way," and intends to remain in the lineup as long as his knee stands up or at least as long as the fellows feel better about having him in there. It proved a masterful move on the part of Terry. Not only did his potent bat help out materially in taking three out of four games from the Cubs, but his presence on the field bolstered the team's spirit.

Most of the Giants realize that their manager's knee is in no condition to stand the strain of hard-fought games at this stage of the race, but at the same time felt their chances of scoring over Chicago in the crucial series would be greatly enhanced as long as Bill was in there swinging with them.

They appreciate the risk of permanent injury Terry is inviting and are playing their heads off for him in return. Terry will get a lot more out of the Giants for the move.

Terry is undecided as to playing in the World Series, should the Giants head the National League parade. It all depends on how rapidly Sam Leslie recovers from the abdominal injury which has hampered his play around first base in recent games.

Terry feels that Leslie has earned the right to take part in the World Series and wants him to have the chance but once again he will let the members of the team decide and act accordingly.

After the success of the Giants in Chicago several writers in that city took the Cubs' management to task for gambling with the Cubs' chances of getting into the World Series by allowing the overflow crowd to join the outfield. For a few extra dollars, they point out, the Cubs' management invited scoring opportunities for the Giants when fly balls, which would have been easy outs on a clear field, were turned into two-base hits by landing among the several thousand spectators who were allowed to squat on the grass.

The fact that the Cubs had the same opportunity but failed to make as much of it as did the Giants is of no concern to the scribes. They are interested only in the fact that several ground-rule doubles helped the Giants win both games of the Sunday double-header—and that hurts.

As further evidence against the club's short-sightedness in seeking extra change at the gate the writers cite a parallel case in Chicago with the White Sox battling the New York Yankees in a double-header. The White Sox management refused to allow fans on the playing field even though it is well known that the White Sox could well use the money.

Of course, this is only second-guessing. And had the Cubs and not the Giants taken advantage of the existing conditions nothing would have been said of the matter.

The Giants settled their first-base problem for 1937 when they bought John McCarthy from the Newark Bears. The youngster is one of the flashiest fielders in the game and will fit in nicely at the Polo Grounds. Terry took time out to scout McCarthy personally and is satisfied that he will do.

The Newark club is a Yankee farm and had McCarthy in line to take over Lou Gehrig's job when the Iron Horse showed signs of weakening. But with Gehrig having one of the best seasons of his long career and showing no signs of being ready to "wear out," the Yankees figured there was no use keeping the youngster in town.

McCarthy has not been a sensation at the plate but that in a measure is due to the fact that he has been handily pummeled by a badly injured thumb. And then, too, there is plenty of classy pitching in the International loop this season. Terry is convinced that the youngster will hit after he has a chance to work on him and iron out a couple of faults he observed in his style at the plate.

McCarthy looked like a real prospect when the Brooklyn Dodgers had him two years ago. He became the property of the Yankees when he was released to Newark last February in the deal that sent Buddy Hassett to Brooklyn.

Enough excess of revenue piled up to begin paying off the old bills. How fast can debt be retired once the lag is taken up? The debt after the war was $25,478,592,000 on August 31, 1919. In a little more than ten years a bit more than ten billion dollars ($30,759,308,000) was knocked off, a billion a year average.

Heavy Tax-Paying Ahead Before Debt Is Retired

Washington—Eagerly as the general public may have accepted Secretary Morgenthau's statement that no new taxes would be necessary next year, treasury experts are not blind to the long pull ahead if the public debt is to be reduced.

Gross Debt on June 30 $33,778,543,000 for Nation

On June 30th this year the gross debt was $33,778,543,000, which scales down to $31,097,033,000 when cash on hand is deducted. This is swelling because expenditures continue to exceed revenues.

U. S. Drops Open Planes As Cold Hinders Pilots

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH (Associated Press Service Writer) Washington—(AP)—Fear and panic generated in military pilot by extreme cold when flying at high altitudes is forcing abandonment of the old open cockpit type of airplane.

Chapel Hill, N. C., (AP)—Sophomores are expected to grab off a big share of football honors in the Southern conference this year. More dependent, perhaps, than any other team on first-year men will be V. M. I. Coach Bill Rafferty is counting on twelve sophomores to bring a successful season.

Seeking More Federal Help

Liberalization of the Regulations Sought by Erwin Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Sept. 9.—The liberalization of rules and regulations governing the allotment of federal funds to states for use in providing more vocational education in city schools especially mechanical and commercial training, is being sought by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin, he said today.

He has recently been appointed as a member of a committee to study the new law enacted by the last Congress greatly increasing the amount of federal aid that will be provided for vocational education and under which North Carolina will be able to get as much as $500,000 a year in addition to the amounts already being received.

CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNORSHIP OF GEORGIA

Here are the three candidates seeking nomination for the governorship in Georgia's hot Democratic primary Sept. 9. E. D. Rivers (left), speaker of the state house of representatives, seeks the office as a staunch champion of the New Deal and a keen opponent of the political influence created by the anti-Roosevelt incumbent, Gov. Eugene Talmadge. Judge Blanton Fortson (center) of Athens is the candidate sponsored by a group known as the Welker Free Democrats. He is a New Deal advocate. Talmadge's chosen candidate for the governorship is Charles D. Redwine (right), president of the state senate. (Associated Press Photos)
