Good Weather in August... Of Increase

463,812,000 LBS. IS PREDICTION

Corn Crop, "Hopeless Two Months Ago," Said Be Making Good Yields

Raleigh, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Good weather in August, the crop reporting service said today, reflected itself in such marked improvement in conditions in North Carolina that outlook for tobacco, corn and other crop yields increased considerably during the month.

The indicated tobacco yield jumped to 463,812,000 pounds, from 450,549,000 estimated on August 1, as condition rose 8 per cent to 92 per cent of normal. Last year's yield was 577,435,000 pounds, but the 1929-32 average was only 469,135,000 pounds.

Corn "which looked hopeless two months ago, is now making extra good yields," the service said. The condition was 82 per cent of normal September 1, the same as a year ago, but indicated yield of 44,918,000 bushels is only about 95 per cent of last year's crop.

FASCIST ARMY SEEKS DEFEND CAPITAL CITY

Bloody Fighting Reported Southwest of Madrid

CHAOS REINS IN SAN SEBASTIAN

Defense Rejects Rebel Threat to Blow City to Pieces Unless Surrendered

(By Associated Press) Spanish fascist armies and zealous militiamen of the united left front government inaugurated the ninth week of civil war today, with bloody fighting south of the capital and in the streets of besieged San Sebastian.

Government forces, struggling to stem the advance on the capital in the Talavera de la Reina sector, declared their positions were "impregnable" following the strategic defeat of a fascist advance yesterday.

Refugees from the northern resort of San Sebastian, told of street fighting between Basque nationalists and anarchists, the dissenting defenders, while fascist big guns dropped shells in the city's outskirts.

The defense high command coldly rejected an insurgent threat to "blow San Sebastian to pieces" unless it surrendered quickly, but the trouble within the city grew out of Basque determination to prevent its destruction no matter what happens. The anarchists want to burn San Sebastian down rather than let it fall into fascist hands.

ADOLF HITLER ENVOIOUS OVER SOVIET RUSSIA

Declares Acquisition Would Cause German Prosperity

PAINTS PICTURE TO BOYS, GIRLS

Says Nazis Would Triumph "If Hour Ever Comes When There is War"

(Copyright by Associated Press) Nurnberg, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, with hundreds of Nazi war planes roaring overhead, declared today Germany would be overwhelmingly prosperous "if we had the rich agricultural lands and the ore-laden mountains of Soviet Russia."

Speaking before the labor front after he had told thousands of boys and girls that Germany would triumph over Russia "if the hour ever comes when there is war," Reichsfuehrer shouted:

"If I had the urals, if we possessed Siberia, if we had the Ukraine, National Socialist Germany would be swimming in prosperity."

In a few words he painted a picture of the plenty which such acquisition would bring in contrast with Germany's present difficult struggle against the raw material shortage.

Describing the Soviet surplus of land and materials, he declared:

"I am not in the fortunate position of the Soviet Jews. Nevertheless, Germany's problem must be solved."

"There is no such thing as getting it can not be done. It can be done because it must be done."

"Germany must live."

Mrs. Alex Viola, Pitt County member of the State Democratic Executive committee, has been advised by J. Wallace Winborne, chairman, to work for a large reorganization at the First District rally to be held in Ahoskie Friday, September 25th.

Mrs. Viola was especially urged to do so at the meeting as Chairman Winborne wrote that he wished to confer with her on the political situation in Pitt county, and to cooperate with her on the best results in the coming election.

"Come and bring your Democratic county officers, candidates and any others whom you wish," she was advised by the State chairman.

"I wish to see you and confer with you x x x with your congressmen and the chairman, vice chairman and secretaries of Democratic County Executive committee, the members of the state Congressional, Judicial and state Senatorial Executive committees, the presidents of Young Democratic clubs, the Democratic members of the County Board of Elections and all interested Democrats in your Congressional district," the letter read.

At a meeting of the County committee yesterday, Mrs. Yanna Perkins was named to succeed Mrs. J. B. Spilman as vice chairman. Mrs. Spilman resigned the county post to accept the vice chairmanship of the State committee. J. B. Galloway was selected secretary.

Maine Republicans Meet To Welcome Gov. Landon

LIBERALS FOR FDR ELECTION

Launch Campaign To Aid Roosevelt Re-Election

Chicago, Sept. 12.—(AP)—An organization of self-styled liberals from political, labor and agricultural fields today launched a campaign for the reelection of President Roosevelt.

A party of 116 conferees, meeting as the "national progressive conference," concluded last night with an agreement to back the chief executive and appeal for all "progressive minded" voters to join the drive and expressions of opposition to the Republican presidential candidacy of Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

A telegram was dispatched to Mr. Roosevelt notifying him of his endorsement.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin progressive, was named chairman of an executive committee of 18 to supervise the group's efforts to send speaker to the Hastings. It was decided to establish units in every state, each under the direction of an executive committee of men and women and to raise a campaign fund. LaFollette said several thousand dollars was contributed to the use at the session.

Londoner Sets Record For Motor Car Speed

Bonneville, Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 12.—(AP)—John Cobb, race-loving Londoner, set a new world 24-hour motor car speed record today—and shattered half a dozen minor marks along the way.

His unofficial average speed for the gruelling grind, aided by two relief drivers, was 150.162 miles an hour as contrasted with the former record of his countryman Capt. George E. T. Eyston, 149.09 miles per hour.

The 23-year-old San Francisco player, who was forced out of competition when she became ill during the 1934 French hard court championships in Paris turned in one of the cleverest performances in the history of the championship as she spiked Miss Jacob's ambition to become the first player to win the title five years in a row.

Lawyers At Work On Arguments For Hearing On TVA

Judge, in Surprise Move, Allows Less Than Two Weeks in Which to Submit Briefs to Court

Cookeville, Tenn., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Attorneys for the Tennessee Valley authority and 19 private electric utilities set to work at top speed today to prepare arguments on the disputed constitutionality of the vast government enterprise.

A surplus ruling of Judge John J. Core in United States district court here yesterday gave them less than two weeks in which to submit briefs to the court in the question of whether the high federal agency is considered sound.

The judge acted at the conclusion of a hearing on a motion of the TVA to dismiss a suit brought by the 19 power companies. The suit attacked the TVA act as unconstitutional.

Counsel for the authority claimed that under the act any such suit brought against it must be brought in the northern district of Alabama. Instead the court held the question of jurisdiction could not be decided until it is determined whether the act itself is constitutional.

He asked attorneys for the utilities' interest to submit briefs by next Wednesday or Thursday on their claim of unconstitutionality. TVA counsel was requested to offer briefs in answer a week later.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

QUERY: SEC. researchers are making a confidential survey to discover what business and industry are using for money in the current expansion, which may touch new skylines before many months have passed.

It has been obvious that the amount of new commercial loans and stock issues which appears on the record does not account for the huge sums supporting 1936 industrial improvement. Bank loans are almost $500,000,000 higher than they were a year ago, but would-be borrowers still report that stony stares are more readily forthcoming from bankers than credits. Security issues have totalled about six billion dollars since January 1, 1934, but only $450,000,000 went into "new" working capital and equipment; the balance consisted of refunding old debts at a lower interest rate. Moreover, these figures refer to "offerings" and not to the amount actually sold.

The SEC-ers' interest doesn't spring from idle curiosity. A more exact knowledge of the murky situation of industrial financing may disclose the nature and permanence of the present pickup. It may also reveal whether the President's pet peeves—the bankers—are keeping step in the forward march.

HIDDEN: Although the inquiry has not been completed, preliminary studies lead to the conclusion that available statistics do not reflect the situation accurately. The New Deal system of PWA, WPA and AAA expenditures is credited with introducing an undecipherable element into the financial scheme.

Under this arrangement the banks are partially short-circuited, to use an SEC expression, out of the lending picture. Recipients of federal money don't deposit their funds in banking accounts. They run to the butcher shop, the grocery store and clothing's. These merchants, with plenty of cash in hand, buy directly from the manufacturer or wholesaler. Whereas funds used to flow from the banks to the manufacturer and thence to the

FORGETS SELF IN FINAL PLEA

Former Seminary Student Dies Pleading for Convict

Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 12.—His last words in the death chamber a plea for another convict, Leo Hall, former seminary student, was hanged last night—and today the word "executed" on his prison record wrote the final chapter of the Erlands Point sextuple murder case.

The death, which his frantic mother speeding to the governor by plane had delayed for a day, was pronounced over the 34-year-old Hall's limp body at 11:16 Pacific standard time (2:16 a. m. est.).

In sight of the gallows, Hall had not a word to say about the brutal killing March 28, 1934, of four men and two women during a small robbery. Instead he brought up the case of Jack Justice, now serving life in Oregon on a charge of hiring Hall to kill Frank Akin in Portland, Oregon on November 20, 1933.

"I would like to say that the Justice, if convicted in the Akin case is an entirely innocent man. Jack Justice never hired me or, as far as I know, anybody else to kill Frank Akin. The charge they convicted him of was a bum charge."

MRS. HUMBER LAID TO REST

Final Rites Conducted From Memorial Baptist Church

Final rites for Mrs. Robert L. Humber were conducted from Memorial Baptist church this afternoon as hundreds of friends gathered to pay their last tribute to one of the city's most beloved women.

Following the procession, played by Mrs. J. L. Fleming, the choir sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd." Dr. Gilbert R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, then read several of Mrs. Humber's favorite scriptures. Rev. W. H. Moore, pastor of Wadesboro Baptist church and former pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, spoke in tribute to Mrs. Humber and led in prayer.

"One Sweetly, Solemn Thought" was sung by the choir, after which Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, pastor of the church, delivered the "message of comfort." The services were concluded with a song, "Saved By Grace."

At the graveside, in Cherry Hill cemetery, the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Fleischmann. A prayer and benediction was offered by Dr. Combs. During the interment services the choir sang the hymns "Abide With Me" and "Asleep in Jesus."

The members of the Women's missionary society of Memorial Baptist church, assisted by friends and neighbors of Mrs. Humber and members of the Methodist church, had charge of the floral tributes at the home, at the church and at the cemetery.

Mrs. Humber died at 8:00 o'clock Thursday morning, with her husband, two sons, daughter, brothers and sisters at her bedside.

Mrs. Humber, an active church worker since she moved here from Beaufort immediately following her marriage 42 years ago, was born in Beaufort on November 24, 1870, the daughter of the late John Dixon and Narcissa Webb Davis.

Brazil Promotes Manufacture

Rio De Janeiro (AP)—To encourage textile exports, President Getulio Vargas has instituted the customs drawback for Brazilian manufacture, capable of competing in foreign markets. It was hoped the drawback would encourage also other manufactured exports, like shoes, hats and truss. The drawback is a refund of the customs duties on imports used in processing.

FRIDAY SALES BROKE RECORD

Tobacco Offerings Here Yesterday 1,150,380 Pounds

Offerings on the Greenville tobacco market were by far the largest yesterday than on any day this season—even larger than on the opening day.

A total of 1,150,380 pounds of the golden weed was sold here yesterday, bringing to 5,513,386 the poundage sold this season, for a general average of $22.49. Farmers selling tobacco on the local market have been paid $1,229,994.90.

Farmers from all over Eastern North Carolina sold tobacco here yesterday, growers coming from as far as the Border belt towns. It was estimated that farmers from at least 35 counties offered the tobacco here yesterday.

They were well paid for coming to the Greenville market, too, as good quality sold as much as two to three dollars higher than on previous days, the reason being a new order on the market.

Tobacco of from far to good quality has continuously sold high here this year, and farmers who have sold their leaf in other markets as well as here declare prices here are above those for the same quality in other places.

Goldboro, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Market officials reported today 187,840 pounds of tobacco were sold here yesterday for $43,569.09, an average of $23.19 a hundred.

Yesterday sales brought the total for the first two weeks of the season to 955,396 pounds for $226,515.94, an average of $23.71.

Another theory is that corporations have dug deep into heavy cash balances because they draw no interest at the banks. Still another hinges on the belief that savings from refunding operations have led to the establishment of larger industrial credits with banks and purveyors of raw materials and equipment.

EARNEST: It's supposed to be a secret, but President Roosevelt had a personal hand in setting up the All Party Agricultural Committee for his reelection.

FDR intervened when he learned that the GOP had set out to capture William H. Settle of Indiana as an agricultural propagandist. Mr. Settle has been head of the Farm Bureau Federation of Indiana for many years, he is reputed to be able to sway 100,000 votes.

The Settle organization has been given carte blanche by Chairman Farley upon presidential orders. It has a separate office at Washington, where a smart ex-AAA official heads a staff engaged in grinding out speeches and propaganda.

REBEL: Although Arthur Mullen swears an open break by "resting" in Europe, White House aides blame the President's floor manager at Chicago for stirring animosities which may transfer Nebraska into a Landon state and defeat George Norris if the famous Senator goes through with his plan to run as an independent with presidential blessing.

The Mr. Men - Roosevelt split (though nobody acknowledges openly that it exists) reads like fiction. The Nebraskan headed up Candidate Roosevelt's forces in the West and gave day-and-night service at Chicago. He expected the Attorney Generalship but was offered only a judgeship.

Mr. Mullen fumed privately but eluded headlines. Nevertheless, White Housees hold against him Senator Burke's information that he can't stomach the New Deal, the primary nomination of Townsend-Terry Carpenter over a Democrat who agreed to retire in favor of Senator Norris; the disaffection of the Mullen organization; and the decision of the World-Herald to support Landon instead of Roosevelt. Under their breath they dub him the "Al Smith of the West."

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

Chapter 41 DOCTOR'S HELP

BLAKE entered the office on Saturday morning like a man who walks in his sleep. There was a quick lifting of heads as he entered the room; a wave of sympathy beat against him, and almost submerged him. If they knew, he thought, they'd despise me instead. . . . He smiled slightly in response to the welcome and let his eyes move swiftly from one face to the other.

The sight of Carol's face almost broke him. He went to his office and sat with his head in his hands, seeing her face and thinking, in spite of himself, of the last three days. But—not even pity or remorse could temper his love for Carol. Instead of loving her less, he felt as if their joint knowledge and responsibility had bound them together forever, and his hunger for her was intolerable.

But he could not force himself upon her yet; the memory of her horror was too fresh. He had the feeling that the very sight of him was unendurable to her, and his heart was racked by the thought of her, chained to her desk like a still, trapped animal.

On a sudden impulse he turned to the telephone and called Dr. Freeman.

"This is Blake Thornton," he said abruptly. "I wonder if I might talk to you a few minutes?"

"Yes, indeed," Dr. Freeman said promptly. "If you hadn't called me I intended to call you in a day or two."

"What time would suit you?"

"There was an interval during which Dr. Freeman consulted his appointment book.

"How soon could you get here?" "In ten or fifteen minutes."

"Good. I'll see you then. I'm operating at eleven."

Blake wandered, sitting in the luxurious waiting-room, what sort of man Freeman was, and how much he could expect in the way of understanding. He rose eagerly at the nurse's summons, and entered an immaculate consulting room.

Dr. Freeman shook hands, and Blake liked the firmness and sureness of his grasp. He was a big blonde man, with beautifully kept hands and a soothing manner that might hide a great deal of force.

"Sit down," he said gravely. "That was a tragic business."

"Blake looked squarely into his eyes. 'A lot more tragic than you know. That's what I wanted to talk about.'"

Freeman nodded and leaned back in his chair. "I know, of course, that there was something back of it. Her type usually clings to the last shred of life, no matter how much unshared it holds."

Freeman's quiet tone gave him hope. He said bluntly: "I had just filed suit for divorce; I managed to keep that out of the papers. I went down a week ago to ask her to divorce me."

DR. FREEMAN nodded. He could guess at a great deal more. He said unexpectedly: "You're to blame, but not in the way you think. Your fault goes back a great many years."

Blake said defensively: "You mean in marrying her at all?" "No. That needn't have been disastrous. Your mistake was in humoring her; in not demanding more of her."

Blake's mouth was thin. "I'm sorry I wasn't cut out for a tyrant."

"Oh, my God!" Freeman groaned. "There's a middle ground. And besides, a woman of her type needs a tyrant; she should have married a Frenchman—or a Spaniard. American husbands ruin her sort."

The interview, Blake felt, was becoming increasingly cold-blooded. They were dissecting Irma like a pair of medical students. And then reason overrode his reluctance. Wasn't this what he wanted; wasn't he fighting for his life?

Freeman went on, very gravely. "I can guess, of course, what you must be going through, and I'd like to help you. Your responsibility for the tragedy is not nearly so direct as you think. It lies mainly—you'll forgive me, I hope—in your wife's own character. As you probably know, she was at a time of life which sometimes does strange things to women—particularly where there is a tendency to neurosis. Their viewpoint becomes distorted, and they exaggerate every misfortune. A spoiled child who has been disciplined sometimes resorts to the same desperate means."

Blake's anger faded and he felt a quick liking for the man who was holding out a hand that might pull him from the depths in which he struggled. He said quietly:

"Thank you very much. I'll try to remember that."

Dr. Freeman was looking at his beautiful hands. "How does—the other girl feel?"

Blake's hard-won composure was threatened. "She's—stunned. I'm afraid she never wants to see me again."

"Do you think she loves you?"

"I think so." He remembered her parting words: "I'll be with you every minute—if that helps any." He said in a surer voice: "I know she does."

"Then hold on to her. In spite of everything. Don't give in this time. If you want me to talk to her, I will."

The offer was generous, but he doubted if Carol would accept it. He said: "Thank you a thousand times. If I fail I may ask you to help." But he could not imagine forcing or influencing her decision; Carol was not like Irma.

ON SUNDAY morning Cornelia telephoned Carol.

"Can't you come out for dinner tonight? Mother and Dad are in New York and I want to make whoopee. I'll run over and get you about seven."

Carol's heart stopped for a second, because she suspected Cornelia's intention. But when they entered Cornelia's beautiful living-room Carol saw that the room was empty. They had cocktails, and sat down to a table that was laid for two. She felt relieved, like a criminal who, knowing his execution to be inevitable, has been granted a brief reprieve.

When dinner was over Cornelia rose.

"Let's have coffee in the den. Go on in while I speak to James."

Carol's breath caught. I can't! she almost screamed, and instead turned silently away.

There was a log fire in the den, and Blake sat on a couch before the fire, smoking. He sprang up as the door opened and they stood motionless, looking at each other. She closed the door mechanically. He said awkwardly:

"Cornelia was good enough to ask me to come. I hope you don't mind. . . ."

She forced herself to speak steadily: "No. We had to see each other and talk it out." She smiled a little. "We always seem to be talking something out, don't we?"

She did not dare sit beside him on the couch, so she took a big chair that half faced the fireplace. He offered her a cigarette and she accepted it automatically, and noticed that his hands were shaking as he held the match for her.

"I've been anxious about you. Are you—all right?" "Yes. . . . Are you?"

"I suppose so. I wanted to tell you—not to work for a while if you didn't feel like it."

Emotion distorted her face for the first time. "I didn't think I had any choice. Unless of course you'd rather I wouldn't."

His voice broke. "Oh, Carol! Don't you know I want you there—even if I can't say a word to you? Just knowing you're in the next room helps me to get through a day."

She looked at the fire. "I wonder if it does? I wonder if it wouldn't be better for me to go away—for good." "Do you want to?" he asked finally.

"I—don't know. I suppose the courageous thing to do is to stay—if I can stand it."

He felt a quick anger against her because she seemed to misunderstand and to fall him so completely. "For God's sake don't make me feel like a jailer! If you want to go, you know I won't try to stop you."

The flare of anger burned out, and the longing that succeeded it broke down his restraint. "Please sit by me," he said gently. "I won't touch you unless you want me to. . . ."

He told her what Dr. Freeman had said, and watched her anxiously for a sign of relaxing tension. "He said—he'd be glad to talk to you if you cared to," he concluded. "No. I think I know already what he'd say."

part. The company will not relish having to give in to its employees in the matter, but it's the lesser of two evils.

New Yorkers in a position to know say that some of the top-flight leaders of the steel industry (Carnegie Illinois is a subsidiary of U. S. Steel) figure it is far wiser to maintain the prestige of the company unions—even at the cost of letting them have their own way in such a vital matter as wages—rather than risk driving them into John Lewis' arms by rebuffing their requests.

Defection of Carnegie Illinois' employee representatives to "outside organizers" would be a major catastrophe from the viewpoint of those who are determined to maintain the open shop. This outcome must be averted at all costs.

SOLIDARITY: A couple of weeks ago the steel chiefs—as reported in this column at the time—were just about set to tell employee representatives who might venture to ask for higher wages to go sit on a tack.

The point was that Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization had virtually called off its organizing efforts in the steel industry—in order to minimize labor relations friction that might hurt FDR's chances for reelection.—so it looked like an opportune time for managements to get tough and clamp down on the urge for higher pay.

How come the sudden change? Not—as you would naturally think—because of anything Lewis or his Committee did. It was rather the unexpected and alarming solidarity shown by company union representatives on their own initiative. They are acting together too independently for comfort.

FRICITION: The New York State Democratic machine continues to be a source of worry to those who are running it—notably Jim Farley. It jerks and creaks and rattles instead of purring smoothly along as a well-tuned machine should.

Here's the latest bit of evidence that it isn't adjusted properly. Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr. has opened headquarters for his reelection to that office despite the fact that he has yet to be renominated. This action conveys a very broad hint that Mr. Bennett doesn't care much for the idea sponsored by some of the Farley crowd to make him lieutenant governor in place of the incumbent William Bray and to sidetrack the latter.

ENCOURAGED: Bray remains a real problem. He is wholly out of sympathy with the New Deal and the Roosevelt-Lehman-Farley forces are anxious to eliminate him as a possible successor to Lehman. But Bray—who doesn't like Farley—knows that they can't summarily check him overboard without precipitating a real intra-party brawl.

So he sits tight and turns up his nose at offers of posts in the diplomatic service, judgeships, etc. No proposition has yet been attractive enough to induce him to retire from his present office voluntarily and gracefully.

There is excellent reason to believe that Bray is encouraged in his stubbornness behind the scenes by influential Tammany leaders.

FEWER JAILED WET COUNTIES

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Sept. 12.—There are fewer jail commitments for violation of the liquor laws in 18 "wet" counties than in 18 "dry" counties of about the same population. In proportion to population, a study of the county jail commitments in these two sets of counties made by the State Department of Public Welfare for the month of January, 1936, shows. This study was made at the request of Chairman Victor S. Bryant of the recently appointed liquor fact-finding commission by Director R. Eugene Brown of the division of institutions of the Department of Public Welfare. This study shows that 41.33 per cent of all the commitments to county jails in the 18 "wet" counties studied during the month of January were for liquor law violations and the only 35.1 per cent of the commitments in the 18 "dry" counties in January were for similar violations, which included those charged with driving while drunk and being drunk. The total number of commitments to county jails in the 18 "wet" counties in January amounted to 1,037 while the total commitments in the 18 similar "dry" counties of similar population selected for this study, was 934. But a larger percentage of the 934 commitments in the 18 "dry" counties was for violation of the liquor laws than in the 18 "wet" counties, the figures show. Of the 1,037 commitments to county jails in the 18 "wet" counties in January, 364 were for violations of the liquor laws, while of the 934 jailed in the 18 "dry" counties, 386 for violations of the liquor laws.

The 18 "wet" counties are Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Edgecombe, Franklin, Greene, Halifax, Lenoir, Martin, Moore, Nash, New Hanover, Onslow, Pasquotank, Pitt, Vance, Warren and Wilson and the total population of these counties 599,456. The 18 "dry" counties used in this comparative study have a population of 598,888 and are Brunswick, Columbus, Chowan, Durham, Gates, Granville, Hertford, Hoke, Johnston, Orange, Pender, Randolph, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Sampson, Stanly and Wayne.

The number of jail commitments used are for county jails only and do not include arrests and commitments to city and town jails.

WHY WE NEED A PUBLIC LIBRARY

Our youth should read, read, read. Science may facilitate the use of the senses in acquiring knowledge—through motion pictures and the radio. But I do not believe these will supplant the surest process of instruction—reading. While science may improve ease and pleasure in life, it can never replace the will to learn as an instrument of culture—Charles W. Eliot, late president of Harvard.

For seventeen years I was a teacher of college boys and girls from all over the middle west, and I estimated that a student who entered college from a home with a good bookcase in it had a head start of twenty years over the student who came from a home without books—Stuart Sherman, late of the New York Herald-Tribune.

"AS RELIGION SEES IT"

By Rev. Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert (General Secretary, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America)

Greetings Of Christians Extended To Jews On Eve of New Year—Religious Kinship Between Christians And Jews Stressed
By Dr. Cavert

The Jewish New Year which will be observed next week, offers an occasion, which Christians increasingly welcome, of expressing their friendship, respect and goodwill for their Jewish fellow-citizens. In 1936 there is special reason for an active manifestation of sympathy because of the persecution and suffering which so many Jews, particularly in Germany, are being compelled to undergo.

An unexpected and unintended result of Nazi thought has been to help us see more clearly how indebted we are historically to the Jewish people. For this even if for nothing else, we can be grateful to the Nazi extremists! We now have a fresh realization that no other people as numerically small as the Jews has been anywhere near so important from an ethical and spiritual standpoint. We are now in a better position to appreciate what the Jews have contributed to the world through their ancient prophets and also through distinguished leaders in the world of today.

Refugee Care
The Jewish New Year in 1936 affords us the further opportunity of sharing with our Jewish fellow-citizens the burden of caring for the refugees from Germany. Not all of these refugees are Jews; a considerable percentage of them are Christians, forced to leave because they could not conscientiously adopt the Nazi conceptions.

In Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, whose recent death is lamented by all men of religious faith, we had a conspicuous example of one who gave himself devotedly to making such restitution as he could for the wrong done to Jews in the part by helping to make their lot happier today. He had the discernment to see that the danger of anti-Semitism is not limited to Germany. Instead of spending his energy in denouncing the Nazi, he directed it constructively to overcoming tendencies toward anti-Semitism in our own country. His example calls for emulation. The Jewish New Year is an appropriate time for concerted action by all Christians toward the same end.

U. S. Criminals Said To Be Best Dressed

London. (AP)—Returning from a visit to the United States, former Lord Mayor Benito Pearlman, of Hull, said American criminals were the best dressed in the world.

Escorted through the Tombs prison in New York, through the courtesy of Mayor LaGuardia, Pearlman said he witnessed one of the police "shadow box" lineups in which he saw prisoners dressed in the height of fashion.

"Some of them looked as if they might have stepped out of an English university or a Savile-row tailor or shop in London," he said.

While inspecting the rogues' gallery, Pearlman said, he was particularly struck by the number of men who posed as clergymen in operation as confidence tricksters.

"The police prison in America has few equals anywhere," he said, "and I was pleased to note that it is based on the system at Scotland Yard."

The Nazis had yells for every event in which Germans competed in the Olympics. Translated, the one for the discus ran: "Take your discus in your hand and keep in mind the Fatherland."

State Hatcheries Produce 3,500,000 Fish During Year

Collections From Anglers' License Used Almost Exclusively For Restocking Fisheries

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 12—Every fisherman who purchases a state-wide angler's license in North Carolina provides the means for placing almost 300 new fish in the streams of the state, according to figures released today by the Department of Conservation and Development.

Since collections from anglers' licenses are used almost exclusively for the propagation of "young hopeful" at the various hatcheries, the payments for these permits go directly toward restocking the fishing waters of the state, J. D. Chaik, state game and inland fisheries commissioner, explained.

Figured on a prorata basis, it cost the state of North Carolina only about three-fourths of one cent each last fiscal year to hatch, rear and release a new crop of game fish. The output of the hatcheries last year was given at about 3,500,000 gamesters in preliminary estimates made by the commissioner.

Total cost of operation of the five major fish hatcheries in the state last year amounted to $24,303.96 in which is added $2,092.62 as an administrative cost, making a total of $26,396.58 spent on direct efforts to maintain good fishing in North Carolina. This total cost divided by the number of fish produced, estimated at about 3,500,000, gives an average expenditure of around three-fourths of a cent for each fish released in North Carolina waters.

Four of the five state hatcheries operated last year are in Western North Carolina and with the exception of one are engaged almost exclusively in the hatching of mountain trout. These hatcheries are located near Roaring Gap, Alleghany county; Boone, Watauga county; Marion, McDowell county; and Waynesville, Haywood county. The warm water hatchery is near Fayetteville, Cumberland county.

The federal government has a station near Edenton, Chowan county, for the propagation of warm water fish; and two new hatcheries are being constructed under the direction of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries near Hoffman, Richmond county; and Smoketown, Swain county.

The Spoke, Wash., wheat region produces one-ninth of the nation's wheat crop.

BRIDGE FIGHT FAR REACHING

May Result in East Losing Legislative Control

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE
Raleigh, Sept. 12—The dog fight between the Albemarle counties in the northeastern part of the state over the location of the proposed bridge across the Albemarle Sound and the inability of these counties to agree on any one site, may have a great deal more significance here than the people of the counties and over the state generally now realize, a good many here believe.

For not only may this inter-county squabble result in the loss of any bridge across the Albemarle Sound but also result in the disintegration of the long time cooperation between the representatives of the eastern counties in the general assembly and thus make it possible for the Piedmont and western counties to get control of the coming session of the general assembly. If this control should pass from the eastern counties, it would mean a redistricting of the state in which the eastern counties would lose at least three senators and five or six members of the house which in turn would virtually assure the Piedmont and western counties of continuous control in future sessions of the general assembly, it is pointed out.

If Tyrrell, Hyde and Dare counties continue to hold to their present contention that do not want any bridge across the Albemarle Sound at all unless it is built from the Tyrrell County location on the south to a point in Perquimans on the north, and if Bertie county persists in holding out for the Bertie location from Plymouth to Edenton, with Beaufort, Martin, Washington, Chowan, Perquimans and Pasquotank counties favoring the location selected by the State Highway and Public Works Commission the result may be no bridge at all, those familiar with the background of the entire Albemarle Sound bridge movement have reason to believe. For there are a great many who regard any bridge across the Albemarle Sound as being necessary and a waste of highway money collected from other portions of the state. There are others, even in these eastern counties, who believe the highway department could much better build more roads in these counties rather than spend from $1,250,000 to $2,800,000 in building a bridge.

Former Representative George E. Davis of Hyde county frankly admitted at the bridge hearing here Friday that he and most people in Hyde county would rather have more roads than a new bridge, even if they could get the bridge at the Tyrrell county location, although Davis was supposed to be speaking in support of the bridge location favored by C. W. Tatem and his Tyrrell county delegation.

If the bitter antagonism and intra-county factionalism continues half as bitter as that exhibited here Friday as a result of this bridge squabble and regardless if any bridge is built or not, this same antagonism is likely to extend over into the coming session of the general assembly, many observers believe. This in turn is likely to mean the senators and representatives from these various Albemarle counties will try to cut each other's political throats and seek revenge for whatever happens to the bridge by winning the proposals of the delegations from the opposing counties. It has already been openly hinted that Tatem and Tyrrell county now are deliberately trying to delay the building of any bridge except the one they want until the general assembly meets in order to make it an issue in the assembly. There has also been intimations that if the highway commission does not build the bridge where the different factions want it, they will seek to spank the commission, if not to strangle it, in the next session of the general assembly, in spite of the external claims that no politics is involved in the bridge matter.

The Piedmont and western counties, however, are sincerely hoping that all of these things will happen in the 1937 general assembly and the eastern counties get into such a scrap with each other over this and other bridges, that they can gain the balance of power and force to enactment a redistricting bill. If they can do this, the eastern counties will lose at least three state senators and five or six representatives, or enough to give Durham, Mecklenburg and Guilford county a senator each and Buncombe and several other western counties an additional representative. The First, Second, Fourth and Sixth Senatorial districts in the east would be the ones which would lose a senator, while a number of eastern counties which now have to represent voters get only one. If this should happen, the Piedmont and west would be assured of controlling future legislatures for years to come and would no longer have to take dictation from the east.

CONSTITUTION CLUB SUBJECT

W. J. (Dick) Bundy
Kiwanis Club
Speaker

William J. (Dick) Bundy speaking on the Constitution at last night's meeting of the local Kiwanis Club, declared that the document represented the work of the wisest group of men ever assembled.

The civic club observed "Constitution Week" as it has no meeting scheduled next week, set aside for observance of "Constitution Week." Asserting, in the words of the North Carolina Constitution, that "recourse to fundamental principles is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessings of liberty," the speaker opened his brief address on the document.

Mr. Bundy declared, in the words of Alexander Hamilton, that "nothing is more certain than the indispensable necessity for government and it is equally undeniable that whenever and however it is instituted, the people must cede to it some of their natural rights, in order to vest it with regular powers." Hence our Federal Constitution, by which the people ceded to the Federal Government the requisite powers to govern, which powers were enumerated in the constitution, and all powers not so delegated or prohibited, were retained by the states and by the people.

The purpose of the Constitution was described in the words of its preamble: "To form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

Mr. Bundy explained the dual nature of our government under federal government and state government, and explained the division of the government into three branches: the legislative, executive, and judicial, each separate and apart from the other, and each serving as a check and balance to the others.

The Constitution was likened to an architectural design for a building. "We continue to build this nation, as time changes, but always within the plan of the architect, the drafters of the Constitution. No change can be made in the building without a change in the design to permit it, which changes are amendments to the Constitution."

Mr. Bundy recalled that the liberties and privileges "such as religious liberty, freedom of the press and speech, the right of habeas corpus, speedy and public trial, trial by jury, security of person and property, are guaranteed to us in the Constitution, which we are apt to forget," and urged upon his listeners the duty to vote and take an interest in their government.

"The liberties guaranteed by the Constitution might be forever preserved," S. A. Whitehurst had charge of the program.

Delegates to the Carolina district meeting in Greensboro October 29, 30 and 31 were named as follows: President J. C. Galloway, Mr. Bundy and W. A. Davidson, with J. Hicks Corey, Dai Cox and J. P. Cary having been elected as alternates.

It was decided to return to the fall and winter schedule beginning with the next meeting and the sessions will begin at 8:30 instead of 7 o'clock.

James Smith entertained the club with a number of dances. He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Olympia Jones. Mrs. Charles Wheeler rendered two solo numbers, with Mrs. Ray Tyson, club pianist, accompanying her.

Guests at the club, other than those on the program, were Edwin Newton, Charles Whitehead and W. W. Aycock.

OTHERS BABIES BRING CASH TO JOBLESS TRIO

Graz, Austria (AP) — The marriages and births of other people are helping a group of Graz artists and writers to beat the depression. Two years ago three unemployed men—a painter, poet and journalist—formed the "Congratulation Club," a secret-strictly-business organization. To all persons about whom newspapers carried marriages, birth or promotion notices the trio sent a water-color picture, a verse and a letter saying this "symbol of happiness" produced by "men who have no jobs and therefore are not so happy as you." The scheme worked from the start, and a tidy business has been built up. "The most grateful are the English," said the "president." "They furnish 80 per cent of our income. One woman in Manchester, England, sent us ten pounds and ten handkerchiefs after we had congratulated her on the birth of a baby. 'This is my tenth child,' she wrote." Wilmer Allison had 75 spills during a Wimbledon match with Bundy Austin.

JENKINS SETS WORLD RECORDS

FRENCH AIR ACE WINS U. S. CUP

Lieut. Michael Detroyat, French ace, won the Charles E. Thompson trophy—emblematic of air speed supremacy in the United States—in the National Air Races at Los Angeles. He's seen with his plane just after winning the $20,000 race in the record time of 264.261 miles an hour for the 150 miles. He also won the Louis W. Greve 100-mile race. (Associated Press Photo)

Nazis Find Match In Irish Head Of Danzig

Free City of Danzig (AP) — Danzig nazis, who sometimes take to throwing mud from the streets as well as from the platform, have picked on a tough opponent in Sean Lester, the colorful, slim little Irishman who is the servant of the League of Nations in the Free City.

As league high commissioner, he is continually calling the dictatorial nazis government to order for overstepping the city's democratic constitution. It is Lester who two or three times a year hales the nazis before the Geneva bar so that the League council can administer scoldings.

Therefore, he is the nazi "Black Beast." But as a former Sinn Feiner he had won his "varsity letter" in political fighting long before the nazis picked on him—even to the extent of throwing mud at his automobile. For Jack, as he is known in Belfast where he was born on September 27, 1889, into a grocer's family, has been threatened with death, hounded and jailed in Irish struggles and is still very much alive in spite of it. Hence mud thrown at his automobile in Danzig is child's play to him.

Modest and quiet for a man who has lived a turbulent life, Lester sits behind the rather thick walls of the commodious house in the center of Danzig, where high commissioner's live, and lets the epithets come. When the league, on British and French proposals, sought to send him here in 1934, Poland objected. Then Lester promptly said he wouldn't have the job. The Polish relented and Lester accepted.

Immediately before coming here, he was the Free State's permanent envoy in Geneva and had a big hand in settling many ticklish disputes which were laid on Geneva's door step.

He joined the Free State department of external affairs in 1922. He had been a journalist and it was as such that his life was frequently endangered. As news editor of the
