MUCH GREATER DEFENSE FUND BEING SOUGHT

Budget Estimates Probably Call For Billion Dollars

AGENCIES RUSH FILE REQUESTS

Larger Appropriation Said to Be Necessary to Carry Out Expansion Plan

Washington, Sept. 15. (AP)—High government financial quarters disclosed today that budget estimates for the next fiscal year probably will call for national defense expenditures, topping the billion dollar mark.

This report, circulated as government departments engaged in a last minute rush to file estimates for the 1938 fiscal year with Daniel W. Bell, acting director of the budget bureau.

Deadline for filing estimates for the 13 months beginning next July 1 was set today with hearings opening September 21.

In a call for estimates to the heads of government departments and agencies, Bell urged that "every possible effort" be made to bring demands for 1938 below appropriations for the current fiscal period.

Officials said, however, that the national defense estimates would rise above the $2,000,000,000 outlay projected in the current year because more money will be necessary to carry on a program of expansion already underway.

Funeral Rites For Mrs. Anna Newton Held In Falkland

Charter Member of Falkland Presbyterian Church Claimed by Death After Declining Health

Mrs. Anna Mayo Newton, 75, died at her home in Falkland last night at 11:45, after having been an invalid for 12 years, during which period she was confined to her bed most of the time.

Funeral services were conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the home by her pastor, Rev. W. H. Wilson of Farmville and pastor of the Falkland Presbyterian church. Burial followed in the church yard cemetery.

Mrs. Newton was the widow of the late C. V. Newton of Falkland, who died in 1927. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Anna Alice Mayo, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Mayo of Falkland. She was a charter member of the Falkland Presbyterian church and at the time of her death was the oldest living member.

She is survived by one daughter, Miss Alice Newton of the home; five sons, H. H. Newton of the home, C. V. Newton of Conover; Clifton H. Newton of Edgecombe county, H. H. Newton of Norfolk Va.; and E. H. Newton of Raleigh; three brothers, C. H. and P. G. Mayo of Falkland, and C. B. Mayo of Greenville; three sisters, Mrs. C. C. Vines of Greenville, Mrs. W. H. Moore of Bruce and Mrs. Maude Warren of Falkland, and three grandchildren.

Active pallbearers were nephews of Mrs. Newton; Jennie Morrill, Brown Mayo, King Mayo, W. J. Moore, Milton Moore and Will Moore.

Wet Cables Cause Of Poor 'Phone Service

W. W. Aycock, acting manager of the local branch of the Carolina telephone company, said today impaired telephone service caused by wet underground cables probably would be remedied during the day.

The telephone official declared that recent rains caused the cables to get wet and impair service on the East side of Evans street and on down as far as the police station. Trouble also was encountered in the College View section of the city, but this, too, was expected to be remedied today.

Drought Helps Wildlife

Pratt, Kas. (AP)—The grasshoppers and the drought have helped the Kansas game supply, says Dan Ramey, state game supervisor. "Never," he says, "have I seen such an abundance of quail or the birds in healthier condition." This is due, Ramey opines, to the increased insect life and to the absence of rains during the nesting season.

RESCUE PLANE RUSHED TO AID

Two American Fliers Forced Down In Newfoundland

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Rescue was near at hand at noon today for the transatlantic fliers, Harry Richman and Dick Merrill, grounded in a Newfoundland bog at Musgrave Bay. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, veteran aviator, flying a plane with supplies and spare parts found the round-trip ocean fliers, was sighted over Bay Roberts, near Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 10:07 EST.

From Harbor Grace, officials of Floyd Bennett Airport at Brooklyn, said the distance is only 78 miles or so. Rickenbacker, they said, could probably land on the beach there.

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—A rescue plane carrying supplies to the round-trip Atlantic fliers Harry Richman and Dick Merrill, grounded in an isolated Newfoundland bog, landed at Sydney, Nova Scotia, this morning and took off an hour later for Harbor Grace.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, veteran aviator and president of Eastern Air Lines, who is piloting the plane, sent the following telegram from Sydney to his offices here: "Arrived here 7:10 a. m. Eastern Standard Time. Everything O.K. Taking on gas. Hope to arrive at Harbor Grace about 10:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time."

Word was received from Sydney later that the rescue ship had taken off at 8:33 a. m. (EST). They are carrying gasoline and spare parts for the fliers' damaged ship, "Lady Peace."

Richman, night club entertainer and Merrill, transport and airmail pilot, came to earth near Musgrave Harbor, Newfoundland, yesterday afternoon and spent the night at a private home nearby.

Reports from the lonely coast town were meagre as a solitary girl telegraph office sought unsuccessfully to keep abreast of the heavy influx of messages inquiring about the fliers.

J. Frank Harper Chosen As Pitt Fair Secretary

J. Frank Harper, member of the Farmville American Legion post, has been selected by directors of the Pitt County Fair Association to serve as secretary of the exposition, to be held here the week of October 26. Mr. Harper will serve as secretary and general manager of the exposition, which will be held on the Falkland highway near the city limits. Work on erecting a fence around the grounds and putting the plot in good shape will get underway shortly and by the time for the exposition to open—six weeks from yesterday—the grounds are expected to be in first class condition. Kaus United shows have been booked for the midway and will provide a number of rides, shows and concessions. Directors of the fair have expressed

REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS IN MAINE VOTING

State Election Featured by 5,000 Vote Victory

SENATOR WHITE DEFEATS BRANN

Democratic Candidate Given Lead In Municipalities, Only to Lose Rural Vote

(Copyright by Associated Press) Portland, Maine, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Republicans swept Maine offices today in a state election featured by a 5,000 vote victory of Senator Wallace H. White, Jr. for a second term over Governor Louis J. Brann.

The record balloting in the traditionally Republican state also saw the party's candidates for governor and three United States representatives win by much larger margins.

The Republican victory, which observers studied closely for possible portents in the nationwide November poll, ousted the Democrats from four years of state control.

Senator White, a Republican veteran of 20 year's service in Washington, piled up a sufficient lead in the rural districts and small towns to overturn Brann's margin in 12 of the state's municipalities.

The senatorial vote, with only 12 precincts missing: White 157,340; Brann, 152,412.

Aldermen Pass On Assessments For New Paving Work

Board Adopts Roll and Decides to Meet on Monday Night, September 28, to Hear Any Complaints

The City Board of Aldermen, at a called meeting last night, passed on assessments for the new paving project and persons owing the city for their part of the program will be advised as to what their proportionate share of the cost amounted to at an early date.

The board decided to meet Monday night, Sept. 28, for the purpose of considering any complaints that might be offered by citizens sharing in the paving program.

The board also reviewed work already completed and passed formally on a number of the projects and considered other petitions on hand for paving work in the city. A number of petitions which have not been finally approved or rejected have been placed in the hands of the street committee for consideration.

At the outset, the city borrowed $75,000 with which to carry out the program. Exactly how much of this money has been spent was not available, but it was indicated only a small amount remained to be expended. Only a few gutters and sidewalks, which have been approved, remain to be completed.

Local Legionnaires Urged Attend Meet

All members of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion are urged to attend the regular monthly meeting of the organization at the Third street school tonight. Officials declared some important business would be discussed and said it was urgent that as many members as possible would be on hand.

Nation Discusses Results In Maine

Immediate Political Attention Turns to Five Other States Holding Primaries Today; Party Nominees Also Active

(By Associated Press)

Studying the Republican victory in Maine, the nation prepared today for the usual "post mortem" — the furious argument that breaks out every four years as to how far the Pine Street state result can be considered a "weather vane" of nation-wide presidential sentiment. The voters of Maine chose a Republican governor to succeed a Democratic incumbent, re-elected a Republican senator after a close, thrilling race and gave all three of the state's seats in the house of representatives to Republicans. This is a gain of two congressional seats for the party.

While attention turned to five other states which are holding primaries today, the two major presidential candidates were being held today in Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, Wisconsin and New York.

President Roosevelt called a group of insurance company executives to a White House conference today. While there was no official explanation of the meeting some quarters indicated the executives were being asked for figures comparing economic conditions now with those in 1933.

The move follows Republican criticism that New Deal spending threatens to have adverse effect on insurance policy holders and bank depositors.

Gov. Alf M. Landon, meanwhile, was en route back to Kansas after his swing into Maine. In a speech at Springfield, Mass., he asserted that in the fields of soil and water conservation "lies a work in which the federal government should take a more active part."

CALL MEETING TALK COMPACT

Farmers Asked to Attend Session Here Thursday Night

A mass meeting of all farmers in Pitt county has been called for the court house at 8 o'clock Thursday night, at which time J. E. Winslow, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, will give a report on the tobacco compact bill being drafted in Washington for presentation to the legislatures of the various tobacco-growing states.

Mr. Winslow is attending a meeting in the national capital today of officials of other state bureaus heads of the national association and agricultural experts to work out the proposed legislation.

When President Winslow returns to this city he is expected to have a copy of the model compact bill and will explain it thoroughly at the meeting.

E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the North Carolina Bureau, who was kept from the meeting on account of illness, today declared every farmer in the county is urged to attend the meeting "as it will be the initial drive to put across compact legislation in North Carolina."

He added that if the farmers of the county really wanted control legislation, "they should show their interest by attending this meeting and learning for themselves, firsthand, just what type of control is proposed."

The executive secretary released for publication the following telegram from President Winslow: "Representatives of eight tobacco states working in accord in executive session on crop production control of tobacco by pounds and acres by federal and state experts. Think meeting will be successful."

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER LANGUAGE: Father Coughlin's stump speaking for Rep. Lemke and against President Roosevelt stand in no danger of ecclesiastical censorship if he watches his p's and q's. That is literally true and a complete summation of the controversy between the Vatican and himself.

A deep student of canon law who has high connections at Rome recently studied the Detroit priest's utterances to discover whether he had violated the church's rules and regulations and laid himself open to discipline. This fine-combing of the cleric's speeches revealed that except for his characterization of the President as a "traitor and betrayer," Father Coughlin has been preaching the very social doctrine enunciated in the two famous papal encyclicals.

The Vatican's official and unofficial statements, if read carefully, reflect concern only over utterances which may tend to weaken popular confidence in "established authority." Under this theory the reverend must modify his language but not his activities or ideas.

TECHNIQUE: Father Coughlin's own friends proffer a seemingly logical explanation for the linguistic violence which got him into trouble with Rome.

The priest has devoted several years to developing a radio personality and voice. Those who have observed him as he speaks over the air from his studio report that he actually wriggles his body to stir up the warmth of feeling and emotion of expression which he pours across the ether. STUDY METHOD FOR ENFORCING COMPACT LAW

Delegates From Tobacco States Continue Session

MODEL STATUTE IS NOT LIKELY

Leaders Feel It Better to Let Delegates Confer With Others Before Adopting Act

Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Methods of taxation and enforcement were discussed today by delegates from ten states as they sought to work out a basis for inter-state agreements on tobacco compact legislation.

As the conference progressed in executive session, leaders expressed the opinion no effort would be made to draft a model bill for controlling tobacco production. They predicted the delegates would return home for discussion with other producers and return here for another conference later in the fall.

Ben Kilgore, Louisville, Ky., secretary of the Farm Bureau Federation, and chairman of the tobacco conference, said Virginia's bill to regulate production by taxing the marketing of tobacco above a state quota had been discussed thoroughly and it probably would be used largely in discussion with growers back home.

Meetings of growers are planned for the near future, he said, and after their reaction is obtained he intends put forward here an effort would be made to draft a model bill for submission to legislatures of all interested states.

The states represented are Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

Goldensboro and Farmville Markets Had Blocked Sales Yesterday With Demand Generally Good

Raleigh, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Tobacco officially inspected and sold on the Goldensboro and Farmville markets yesterday sold higher than on Friday in practically every grade, the tobacco market news service reported today.

Sales were blocked, demand continued generally good and some lots of second quality lemon cutters sold up to $50 per hundred pounds.

Orange leaf grade B2F averaged $36.70 per hundred yesterday, compared with $35.50 Friday, and B4F averaged $21.20, compared with $19.60, but B6F averaged only $5.90, compared with $6.70.

Wilson, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Wilson tobacco market officials said today sales and receipts here yesterday were the heaviest of the season thus far. They said 1,295,072 pounds were sold for $283,830.72, an average of $22.68 a hundred.

Rocky Mount, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Officials said seasonal poundage and money records fell yesterday on the Rocky Mount tobacco market, with sale of 996,025 pounds, for $226,984.84, an average of $22.73

Northern Commander Serves Notice That Army will Run Spain 'When We Win'

(By Associated Press) With determined rebel vanguards stretching out toward Madrid, Spain's fascist commander-in-chief, General Francisco Franco, today was reported to have pledged 25,000 more men to the Talavera march on the capital.

This report, the Madrid government announced, came from a fascist deserter who said the insurgent chieftains with headquarters at Talavera had told Franco: "The militia is braver than we are."

The socialist government contended it was successfully checking advances both on Madrid and on Toledo and coined a new watchword: "They shall retreat."

In the north, the fascists drove toward Orto, 10 miles west of the fallen city of San Sebastian, in a general push on the seaport of Bilbao. The United States consulate was abandoned at Bilbao and foreigners were hastily evacuating the city.

At Burgos, seat of the fascist junta, General Emilio Mola, the insurgent northern commander, served notice the army will run Spain "when we win."

PLAN TO OPEN COUNTRY CLUB

Formal Opening To Be Held On Saturday Night

The new Greenville County Club house will be formally opened Saturday night, when members of the club and their families will participate in a gala event in the new building.

The opening will mark one of the outstanding events in the community life of the city. The building is well-planned and modern and up-to-date in every respect. Extensive plans have been made by officials of the club for a fall and winter program of entertainments and recreation.

The club houses one of the most attractive ballrooms in Eastern North Carolina. The room has been attractively decorated with comfortable furnishings in keeping with the architecture of the room. A huge fireplace at either end of the room helps to express a warm welcome to club members. In the west wing of the building is a well equipped kitchen and butler's pantry, a buffet room and the ladies' unit consisting of lounge and locker rooms. The old wing will remain as the men's golf quarters. With the customary cool breezes of the golf course, few places will be found more inviting and comfortable than the wide veranda with the comfortable porch furniture.

The opening party is scheduled for 9 o'clock and members will be welcomed by the entertainment committee. One of the new rules of the club will be put into effect at this time. This rule allows that a daughter of a club member's household may bring an escort, although the escort may not be a club member, and that a son of a club member's household may invite a lady guest.

In order that the club may be a usable building, a permanent social chairman has been appointed by the board of directors. Each month this chairman will appoint an entertainment committee who will have charge of all social functions for that month. It is planned that these committees will continue to plan parties and social functions at the club which will make it attractive to the members.

Another Season Record Set By Tobacco Market

A new season record was set on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday when 1,223,714 pounds of the golden weed was sold on the local warehouses.

Yesterday's record surpassed Friday's sales of over 1,158,000 pounds, which set a new high mark for the season up to that date.

Farmers were paid a total of $273,536.96 for their offerings here yesterday for an official average of $22.34.

So far this season 6,743,106 pounds have been sold, bringing $1,513,531.85, a general average for the entire season of $22.45.

Much of the tobacco in this section was late this year and during the first several days of sales offerings were below those on corresponding dates last year. For the past several days, however, the floors have been flooded and the warehouses took on the appearance of former years and "the best tobacco market in the world" began to assume its real position of importance. Prices also are considered as high or higher than on any other market in the state, and fair to good grades continue to bring good prices. This fact is evidenced by the large number of out-of-the-county growers who continue to bring their product to the local market to be sold. Farmers from some 35 Eastern Carolina counties are selling leaf here this season.

REBEL FORCES DRIVE NEARER CAPITAL CITY

Liquor Laden Car Halted Near City; One Man Arrested

Patrolman Smith Jails E. L. Crawford of Wilson After 85 Gallons Bootleg Liquor Found

Patrolman H. B. Smith last night lodged E. L. Crawford in jail after he had found 85 gallons of whiskey in the Hudson automobile in which Crawford and another man were traveling from this city on the Falkland road.

Patrolmen had been tipped off that a liquor laden car probably would pass through this county last night and had been on the watch-out for it some time. Nothing having been seen of the car, the patrolmen came on back to this city. Patrolman Smith then decided to ride out the Falkland road, thinking he might spot the car. He was on his way back to the city when he spied what he thought to be the car. He turned around and caught up with the big automobile, forced the driver to stop. One of the occupants jumped from the car and made his get-away, but the officer held Crawford.

The whiskey, all in five-gallon jars, was brought to the city and the automobile was ordered held and turned over to federal authorities for possible confiscation.

Members of the sheriff's office, city officers and the patrolmen have been unusually active recently in breaking up bootleg parties and rum runners in this section.

Mr. Paylor, 51, died at 11:00 a. m. Monday at his home in Peterburgh and funeral services were conducted there this afternoon.

STATE ELEVEN HAS SETBACKS

Several First String Men Out With Injuries

College Station, Raleigh, Sept. 15.—Coach Hunk Anderson said today that the N. C. State College Wolf-pack had lost the services of E. V. Helms, left tackle, for three weeks or more, and Carroll Conrad, left end, for at least six weeks.

Anderson also said that Cowboy Robinson, triple threat halfback, may not be available for the opening game Saturday afternoon with Elon in Riddick Stadium here.

Helms has a shoulder separation and an x-ray shows it to be a bad one. Conrad has a fractured collar bone sustained in Saturday's scrimmage. Robinson has a sore ankle received when he stepped in a hole while catching a pass.

Helms, Charlotte boy, was the regular left tackle last fall and one of the best extra kickers in the South. He would have been on the starting line up Saturday against Elon.

Coach Anderson hasn't said who will replace Helms, but he has been using Carl Goods, 238 pound tackle from Avondale. Goods is a senior and a mottogram player.

Conrad, who hails from Greensboro, also is a veteran and has shown great promise this fall as understudy to Captain Mac Cara. He excels as a pass receiver. Unless Conrad's injury responds rapidly to treatment, he may be lost for the season.

Robinson, Wallace, Idaho cowboy, may be able to face Elon. If he is held out, Anderson may select Phil Davis, Eddie Berinski, or Nick Hayden at left half. Robinson will be all set for Davidson next Saturday.

IS HEADED FOR THE TWO-YEAR-OLD TITLE WITH A TOTAL OF $51,340 TO HIS CREDIT !!

MAEDIC WON FIVE STRAIGHT STAKE RACES AT THE RECENT SARATOGA MEETING

MAEDIC IS LIKELY TO BE THE FAVORITE IN THE RICH BELMONT FUTURITY.

SPORT SLANTS

The 2-year-old championship is still pretty much of a toss-up with Maedic from DeWitt Page's Mares Farm of Bristol, Conn., having the inside track by virtue of the five stake victories the colt scored at Saratoga in as many starts.

The sturdy son of Bostonian accomplished something no other thoroughbred could do in a single meeting at Saratoga when he finished first in the five stakes. Maedic showed equally well on fast footing and in the mud. In the Flash, Saratoga Sales and Sanford the track was fast, but the mud was fetid-deep when Maedic scored in the Grand Union Hotel and in the Hopelul.

Maedic cost his owner only $1,350 as a yearling and has already returned $51,340 to Page's coffers. The same stable paid $20,000 to W. F. Kilmer for Traulove recently but the colt has failed to come up to expectations.

Maedic is one of the few Florida-trained horses to come through the summer tracks in the north. He was just an ordinary colt in Florida and won only one race in the south. As a matter of fact, Maedic was not at all outstanding until he suddenly found his footing at Saratoga. In 16 starts prior to racing at Saratoga the colt won only twice.

The 2-year-old was trained by George Phillips until he was suspended by the New York racing commission and now is being saddled by Jack Wythe, who trains for Kilmer.

Maedic will be pointed for the $100,000 Futurity at Belmont Park on October 3. He will be asked to meet virtually the same field he defeated in the Hopelul, and, in addition, J. H. Louchheim's Pompoon, winner of the National Stallion Stakes at Belmont, Pompoon, a son of Pompey, had a string of three straight victories before he lost to Mary Hirsch's No Sir by a slim margin. In that race Pompoon carried 130 pounds, eight over the goal weight, and gave a good account of himself. Pompoon is likely to prove the strongest contender Maedic will have to face in the Futurity.

The rich classic for 2-year-olds is certain to make the winning thoroughbred the top-money winner of the year and, because of the representatively field nominated, may carry the 1933 title as well.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington.—The overwhelming primary victories of Senator Pat Harrison in Mississippi and Senator Jimmy Byrnes in South Carolina were not dismissed lightly in Washington by those hunting for indications of drifts in political sentiment.

Both senators were ardent, wheelhouse-style New Deal supporters. In South Carolina Byrnes had two anti-New Deal opponents but his vote was 221,000 against the 32,500 aggregate of both the others.

In Mississippi, Senator Harrison's record was largely the issue. But this New Deal supporter, in nearly complete returns, won 127,700 votes to 64,600 for former Governor Sennett Conner and 2,456 for a third candidate. This came in the wake of a hard fight.

It must be remembered that in such deep southern states as Mississippi and South Carolina the primary is really the election and offers the voters almost their only opportunity to voice opposition against any incumbent Democratic administration. The vast majority of these voters could hardly think of going so far in voicing their opposition as to vote Republican in November.

There have been many predictions of a rise in the south against Rooseveltian democracy. Senator Glass and Byrd of Virginia, being cited as samples, although both had declared for Mr. Roosevelt. Not enough anti-New Deal sentiment developed in South Carolina to justify the fears Byrnes reputedly held several months ago that he was in for a hard fight.

The Mississippi situation is less marked. It can be recalled, however, that President Roosevelt recently summoned Harrison to the White House, and announced then that no new taxes would be necessary next year.

The gesture was widely interpreted as an effort to support Harrison against the attack of his colleague, Senator Bilbo, who was supporting Conner. It would have been looked upon by many as a stinging rebuff to the administration if Harrison had been defeated. He wasn't.

Revenue Employees Appear Regretful At Noble Leaving

Feeling at Present Direct Contrast With That in Department Following His Appointment

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Sept. 15.—Most of the employees of the Department of Rev. M. C. S. Noble is leaving as Assistant Commissioner of Revenue and because today is the last full day he will ever spend in this capacity.

Dr. Noble will officially sever his connection with the state and the Department of Revenue tomorrow and leave for Greenville, S. C., to assume his new position with the General Education Board, maintained by the Rockefeller Foundation. The employees are sorry to see him leave because they say he has been fair and square with everyone, has always had time to listen to them, no matter how trivial or unimportant the complaint and because those who have done their work efficiently and honestly have never had to worry about losing their jobs and because many of these have been promoted.

This is in strange contrast with the feeling in the Department when the appointment of Dr. Noble as Assistant Commissioner of Revenue was announced some three years ago and for some time thereafter. There was consternation in the Department when his appointment was announced and for many months he was probably the most heartily hated state official among state employees here, especially in the revenue department. When he put the ban on cigarette smoking among the stenographers and clerks, banned wearing of flowers and the constant running to the corner drug store for cold drinks during office hours, the air was almost blue after the girls in the revenue office got through saying what they thought about him.

But as the employees got to know Dr. Noble better, watched him work and began to learn that he was just as anxious to help and reward those who were doing their work and anxious to do it right as to weep out the drongs and the political office holders, they started to change their estimate of Dr. Noble. And when eventually the weeding out process was ended and the employees discovered how much smoother the entire department was functioning, they realized that Dr. Noble was their friend and helper, not their enemy. Now that he is leaving the department for good, there are far more tears than ciphers.

THE SPORTSMAN

By LARRY BAUER

There is something about an old shack that gets into the blood of the outdoorsman and calls him back to the woods or marsh year after year. Old-timers who no longer can follow the game trails, and younger men who just want to get away from it all for a while and rest, may be found in nearly every cabin when the hunting season opens.

Of course, numerous sportsmen go to luxuriously appointed lodges manned by servants, yet, strange as it may seem, some of these men have confided their years for the weather-worn shack in the bush with the squeaky-hinged door and rough bars which they know in less affluent days. There is peace and quiet about such humble habitations, and an atmosphere of good fellowship. A man may grow a beard, go without a bath, drop ashes on the floor, or hang his wet socks over the stove and there is no one to say him nay.

Yes, the out-of-the-way places are calling now, and men are dreaming of little cottages and sleeping under autumn stars. Some folks cannot understand why a sane man will desert modern comforts for a pack and stick for the back country. For the same reason that a dog, still howls at the moon. Both are a swerving the age-old call of the wild. Living outdoors for a "n" is an invigorating recreation for both mind and body, and a person is physically able to "rough it" so much the better.

MOVE SEEN TO OUST BALDWIN

Old Friction With King Edward May Encourage Move

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

New York, (AP)—Europe's next political sensation is likely to be the compulsory retirement of Britain's conservative premier, Stanley Baldwin. If young progressives in his own ranks are successful in the fierce attacks they have been directing against him.

The summer recess of parliament has provided a breathing spell in the warfare to unseat Baldwin, but the insurgents are bent on purging the party of what they call the reactionary Old Tory guard, in which they accord Mr. Baldwin a high place.

An important aspect of the situation is the statement circulated in high quarters in England that young King Edward does not regard Mr. Baldwin with high favor. A ruler is not supposed to mix in politics in democratic Britain, but his private views have a strong influence.

Those who have watched the relationship between Edward and his portly premier over a long period are not surprised to hear the king lacks any deep affection for "Farmer" Baldwin, who is said to have set himself up long ago as mentor or the then Prince of Wales.

Mr. Baldwin is credited with having compelled the Prince to abandon his favorite pastime of riding to hounds in 1923, on the grounds that the helter to the throne was endangering his life. The premier also is said to have been one of those who tried to induce the Prince to marry against his will.

Young conservatives long have charged that Baldwin is non-progressive and lacking in ideas and initiative. The handling of the Italo-Ethiopian problem all but brought his political house down about his ears. But there have been many other things, dating from the World War debt settlement which Baldwin effected in Washington in 1923 as chancellor of the exchequer. British have said he allowed the Yankees then to take him for a ride.

Apocryphal of the charge of lack of initiative, Baldwin once remarked to me that secrets were safe in his keeping, and added:

"When people try to quiz me I put on a stolid expression. The result is that some of them get the idea I am stupid, but I had rather be considered stupid than have to give away secrets."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS.
 Hollywood — Church weddings are a comparative rarity in Hollywood, so the marriage of Maureen O'Sullivan and John Farrow was an "event" in filmland.
 Solemnized at a nuptial high mass, the wedding in Santa Monica attracted great crowds of sightseers — which is one reason so few movie people say their "I do's" at the altar. Another is that big church weddings require planning while a round-trip ticket to Yuma by air is quite simple. Sometimes, even, the airplane wedding is over before the crowds know about it.
 Maureen, too, was an unusual bride in this town of quick marryings and leisurely repenting. Long engagements — when they end in marriage — are nearly as unusual as church weddings. Maureen was wearing Writer Farrow's diamond when she made the last Tarzan film, "Tarzan and His Mate," and that was well over two years ago. They might have been married sooner, of course, but that Farrow's previous marriage necessitated a papal dispensation.
 Now that the wedding is over, Hollywood can start wondering how soon Maureen is going to give up pictures. She used to say she would retire when she was 25 — and that birthday came May 17.
 Miss O'Sullivan was 17 when she came to Hollywood for the John McCormack film, "Song o' My Heart," in 1929 — straight from Ireland, and shy as a schoolgirl. For some time her film career was shaky, after her release from the studio that signed her first, but she refused to go home, "because," she said, "They fired me. It was just perversity — the more Hollywood told me I was no actress, the more I wanted to prove I was."
 And she did, finally, in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "David Copperfield," and other pictures.
 "But I think," she often said, "women were made only to be wives and mothers, and anything else is just a waste of time."
 Writer Farrow, meanwhile, has turned into Director Farrow. He is starting a picture after the honey-

SALE OF VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY

WE PAY MORE NOW
 There may be those who favor the sales tax but it was our contention at the start that under the sales tax plan our county would pay more taxes than under the old plan, and figures recently released by the State Department bear out this contention.

In 1931, the last year we operated prior to the sales tax the total tax levy for Pitt County for all purposes, including schools, was $523,628.77. Despite reduced costs in the operation of the various county departments and the fact that school teachers' salaries are now lower than under the old system, Pitt County's tax bill for 1935, including the $236,040.98 sales taxes, was $626,549.26, or $103,000 greater than under the old system. While Pitt County's tax bill has increased under the sales tax plan and while few Eastern counties have shown any worth-while savings, it is noted that some richer counties of the Piedmont section of the state are showing savings running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars under the sales tax plan. Instead of proving a more equitable system of taxation as claimed by its proponents the sales tax has been the means of shifting the tax burdens from those most able to pay and placing it upon the daily bread and other necessities of those least able to pay.

care of the sick fall upon them — and they can VOTE NOW.

 Neither our military nor diplomatic scouts have mentioned such a Jules Verne-like project in their most confidential and imaginative dispatches, although they have whispered about everything from death rays to flying cannon. Attaches of other nations stationed at Washington (and all exchange information) are in the dark over underground chambers supposed to accommodate a whole division, equipment and supplies. The cost (our experts have toyed with figures in anticipating how extensive such a defense system might be) would be prohibitive.
 So far our general staffers can't determine the use or need for military moles. War is taking to the air rather than the earth. Modern military science exalts mobile, motorized forces for open warfare. A division buried in the dirt would furnish no combat strength. Its only function would be to rise from its burrows after an invading army had passed over and harry the enemy's rear. But air forces could quickly offset such harassers. So until further word the military men will attribute this communique from Minsk to too much fiery vodka.
PERQUISITE: Uncle Sam will save no nickels on Congressional mileage as a result of the reduction in railroad fares from 3.6 to 2 cents a mile. Congress won't pass this saving on to constituents.
 Members receive 20 cents a mile by law. It requires a majority to change the rate, and it would be impossible to muster that many on this delicate question. Though their mileage perquisites often provoke ridicule, the honorable gentlemen insist the rate is not excessive in view of other costs.
 A member must use transportation for family and furniture. He must maintain a home at Washington and in his state or district. En route he has expenses—sleeping pulman, food—which run up his bill. The only ones who break even are those from distant points who never—or rarely—go home during a session. But even they will collect only $100 additional each session because of the cut rate. To suggest a slice in mileage would strike every statesman as an unfriendly and subversive act—so nobody has up to now.

substantial modification of New Deal power policy if Mr. Roosevelt is reelected.
 Certain high administration circles are reported to feel that they have a tiger by the tail in TVA and had better figure out some way of letting go as gracefully as possible. Two angles of the policy so far developed are seen as potential sources of great embarrassment. One is that tax payers might consider it a peculiarly silly waste of their money actually to build—as distinct from threatening to build—municipal distribution plants to compete with existing privately-owned facilities.
 The other is the vulnerability of an arbitrary yardstick rate with which it is obviously impossible for taxpaying companies to compete. In this connection, government engineers are much concerned because existing municipal plants using TVA power in small cities of Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee are not earning their fixed charges with the rates established by TVA, even under exceptionally favorable conditions as to operating costs.

ALTERNATIVES: What the solution will be, if the voters give Mr. Roosevelt an opportunity to work one out, cannot yet be predicted with any degree of certainty. Several alternative plans are under discussion in responsible New Deal quarters.
 One of these would set up an elaborate power grid system. Another would limit experiments in government ownership and operation of power generating and distributing facilities to a rigidly restricted area until various problems have been ironed out in practice and the benefits of public ownership have been clearly and demonstrably proven.
 A third alternative envisages scrapping the whole yardstick idea insofar as any attempt to determine fair rates by tax exempt, competitive operation is concerned. This would not, however, imply abandonment of the principle that government should exert a measure of control over utility rates. As a substitute for the TVA yardstick, a regulatory federal commission might be set up (if Constitutional obstacles can be surmounted) bearing the same relation to utilities as the Interstate Commerce Commission does to railroads.

FORMULA: Insiders at Democratic national headquarters have the electoral vote doled out in very comforting terms. According to their formula, Mr. Roosevelt could lose half of the 48 states—including most of the doubtful ones—with large electoral representation—and still come out on top.
 They figure it this way. Start with the solid South (Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas)—113 votes. Add the border states—except Maryland (West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Oklahoma)—56 votes. Add the Pacific Coast states (California, Oregon, Washington)—35 votes. Add only half the mountain states (Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah)—14 votes. Add only one midwestern (or farm) state—and that the surest—Wisconsin. Its 12 votes bring the total so far up to 230.
 Add only one big eastern state—Pennsylvania (36 votes)—and you have a grand total of 266 votes—exactly the majority needed to elect.

BURDEN: On this basis Landon could capture the whole Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Maryland (except Pennsylvania), the big midwestern states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, the farm belt (Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas), and half the mountain states (Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona)—and still win.
 If the Republicans won Pennsylvania, New York alone or Ohio plus Minnesota or Michigan plus Massachusetts would be an adequate

WHY NOT A COUNTY HOSPITAL?
 Dear Mr. Editor:
 Other counties in North Carolina are building hospitals, why not Pitt?
 Tarboro, Sept. 12.—The Edgecombe County Board of Commissioners in special session here yesterday awarded contracts totalling $114,170 for construction of a new county home and tuberculosis sanitarium.
 D. J. Rose & Sons of Rocky Mount was awarded the general building contract on its bid of $101,920.
 Forty-five per cent of the total amount will be supplied by the government in the form of a WPA grant and the building will be erected as a WPA project.
 The county's share of the expense will be defrayed with liquor store profits.
 If Edgecombe county can build a hospital, why can't Pitt? She can if she wants one. If the clubs (both men and women) in the county would get behind the proposition a hospital would be built. Are the women interested? I should think they would be, since most of the RESPECT: Surprising though it may sound, certain New York bankers had more than a casual voice in setting the terms of the Treasury's latest bond offering.

 They consulted with Secretary Morgenthau shortly before he announced the financing. At that time he was inclined to favor a 10-12 year issue at 2 1-4 per cent. The bankers told him that if he really wanted to make a big splash politically with a striking interest reduction he could offer 9 year bonds at a flat 2 per cent with perfect assurance that they would be snapped up—bond market conditions being what they are. But they also advised him that from the purely financial viewpoint the soundest move would be to continue the 2 3-4 coupon of recent issues and extend the maturity to 20 years or more.
 Mr. Morgenthau took the latter advice. He chose to ease the financial problems of future administrations by spreading future maturities rather than make temporary political capital out of a dramatic cut in the interest rate. This decision has enhanced the private respect of financial leaders for the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has returned from four years in China to London, and the apartment of his friend Billy Ross. He finds Ross nervous, irritable, fearful. And then the friends start down to Ross' father's country place for dinner, and Ross' car is forced purposely into the ditch, and Ross himself is seriously injured. Ross confesses that he knows who tried to murder him, and that the man, as well as Ross himself, is a crook. He is hurrying to finish his story before losing consciousness.

Chapter Two FANCY DRESS

"The man behind the wheel of the car," he said in a strong, clear voice.

Ross' grip on Mahony's sleeve relaxed. He gave a faint sigh and lay still.

Far away in the distance a glow in the sky announced the approach of another car. Mahony rose to his feet. His obvious next move was to stop the approaching car. And then what?

If Ross were not dead already, he would probably die from his injuries. Mahony hoped that he was already dead. A man who had been a member of a dope-peddling and kidnapping outfit was better dead. He had no doubt whatever about that.

of anything like a complete recovery. Whatever happened Billy Ross would be a helpless cripple for the rest of his life.

TERENCE MAHONY was not a man who would strike the casual observer as being remarkable to look at. His age was twenty-six. He was of tough, stringy build, stood about five feet ten in height, weighed about 175 pounds, and was inclined to be careless what clothes he wore.

He carried himself with a slight slouch that made him look shorter than he really was. His eyes were grey, and very calm and unworried; his smile, though infrequent, was goodnatured; his chin was obstinate; his hair was a reddish brown color and inclined to wave.

His manners were quiet and self-contained; when he was bored he was apt to show it by inattention. There were certain contradictions about him which puzzled, and sometimes annoyed, people with whom he came into contact. He was an excellent natural athlete, and had represented his school at football and boxing, and his county at lawn tennis, but he was incapable of taking any game really seriously.

From his father, an Irishman who had been Professor of English literature at a minor English university,

Billy Ross was still unconscious.

Yes, that was quite clear, as far as it went. But it did not go far enough. Standing there, waiting, Mahony thought of another Ross, Billy Ross as he had been four years ago, reckless, unstable, but generous and good-natured to a fault. The Billy Ross who had saved his life.

He knew perfectly well what he was going to do. He wasn't going to the police. If he went to the police with his story about Ross and Lawson, they would certainly believe the story about Ross, but it was not so certain that they would believe the part about Lawson, or, even if they did believe it, they might not be able to get proof of Lawson's complicity in the dope trade.

Ross had wanted things hushed up for the sake of his parents, and Mahony proposed to see that his wish was carried out. As for Lawson and his associates, he would deal with them himself. It would give him something to occupy his mind before he went abroad again.

As the approaching car came nearer, he stepped out into the roadway and held up his hand. At the sound of the crash the car stopped; a couple of men sprang out and came running forward.

"What's happened?" asked one of them excitedly. "Good heavens, what a frightful crash! Is anyone hurt?"

"Yes, I think my friend has been killed," answered Mahony quietly. "We burst a back tire and the car overturned."

"There was another car just behind us, but it didn't even stop," he added.

The three of them got busy. Ross was lifted into the newcomers' car and taken to a hospital. Mahony telephoned to Captain Ross, telling him of his son's accident, and had a long interview with the police. The story that he told them was simply that a back tire burst at speed and the car overturned. After that he returned to the hospital to await Captain Ross.

At a late hour that night, Billy Ross was unconscious but still alive. There was, the doctors said, a faint chance that he might survive. But they held out no hopes whatever he had inherited a love of reading. Sometimes, for long periods, he remained silent; at other times, with the most serious air, he talked the most fantastic nonsense.

If he made up his mind to do anything, he did not waste time talking about it; he simply set about doing it. He liked to make his own plans and act on them, and the opinions of other people did not worry him.

THE day after the smash he returned to London, took a couple of furnished rooms for himself, and removed all his things from Ross's flat. He also took the opportunity of going thoroughly through Ross's possessions in the hope of finding something which might shed light on his criminal activities. But he found nothing. One possession only of Ross's, however, he took away with him—a fancy costume which Ross had intended to wear at the Cinema Ball.

That costume had arrived the previous morning, and Mahony had examined it with some curiosity. It was a long, brightly colored garment, with a colored head-dress, and was obviously meant to disguise its wearer as an Arab sheik. But, Mahony noticed, both robe and head-dress were lined with black and were made reversible, so that they could be worn equally well inside out.

Worn thus, with a slightly different arrangement of the head-dress, the costume transformed its wearer into a black-barbed, cowed monk.

He had asked Ross where, and for what reason, he had obtained such a curiously made costume, and Ross had become fidgety and irritable, and had replied crossly that he didn't see anything curious about it and he neither knew nor cared where it had originally come from; he was wearing it because it had been sent along to him by a friend.

Recalling that Elia Little was to have been kidnapped at the Cinema Ball, Mahony connected the costume with the deed. He decided to attend the ball—and to wear Ross' costume.

BANKHEAD, WELL AGAIN, THANKS "KEEPER" WIFE

Although Tallulah Bankhead, the actress (right), is the daughter of Speaker of the House Bankhead's first wife, many persons see a striking resemblance between her and the second Mrs. Bankhead, with whom she is shown.

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY
Jasper, Ala.—(AP)—Those who have watched Mrs. William B. Bankhead's long guardianship over her husband's health have come to know her as "the speaker's keeper."

In the quiet of their home here, as in Washington, the wife of the presiding officer of the house of representatives "prods" him to a routine designed to hold the strength Bankhead has recovered after a severe heart attack.

Mrs. Bankhead, at the capital, could be seen daily in the speaker's lobby of the house, calling the speaker's lobby of the house, calling the speaker from the floor by messenger—to take his periodical rest prescribed by physicians.

Resembles Tallulah
In Jasper, the speaker's keeper governs the extent of his indulgence in his care of his new turnip patch, and in myriad other activities that might cause too great a strain.

"And he loves it," Mrs. Bankhead said.

Mrs. Bankhead and Tallulah

Bankhead, the actress, bears a striking resemblance, Tallulah is the daughter of the speaker and the first Mrs. Bankhead, who died shortly after her birth.

"Many say that," Mrs. Bankhead said when reminded of the likeness of features. "And I always appreciate the compliment."

Picture of Health
Bankhead was in his turnip patch when reporters approached his big white house. Mrs. Bankhead called him.

"Doesn't Billy look well?" she asked as he came into the house. And "Billy" did. His face, sun-tanned and rested, bears no mark of the long illness of 1935, when as Democratic floor leader, he did not appear in the house. The speaker said he was in extraordinary health, but was taking every precaution against recurrence of the heart malady.

Will Bankhead and Florence McGuire met in 1905, when Bankhead moved to Jasper to practice law, and were married 21 years ago.

REPORTS MADE BY PATROLMEN

Total of 2,939 Drivers Arrested During Past Month

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Sept. 14.—The State Highway Patrol arrested 2,939 automobile drivers for violations of the state traffic laws during the month of August, of which 290 were for drunken driving, the report covering the activities of the patrol for August made public today by Captain Charles D. Farmer shows. Out of 2,605 drivers tried during August, 2,537 were found guilty and only 68 acquitted.

In addition to the actual arrests made, patrolmen stopped and issued warnings to 6,150 drivers, inspected 16,299 cars, issued tickets to 2,103 drivers for having defective lights, stopped and weighed 225 trucks suspected of being overloaded, of which 200 were found to be loaded in excess of the amount allowed by law. Patrolmen also investigated 1,108 complaints, examined 10,469 applicants for state drivers' licenses and rendered first aid to 18 persons.

A total of 262 accidents were investigated by patrolmen in which 33 persons were killed and 213 injured. Tickets for having faulty equipment were issued to 1,251 and lights corrected on 13,103 cars which had faulty lights. Court fines were extended to 2,825 drivers and 231 vehicles were stored and five fires extinguished. Citations were issued to 2,451 drivers, notifying them that certain defects in their cars must be corrected or they will be summoned into court.

Total sentences imposed upon those convicted following arrest by highway patrolmen was 194 years, one month and 20 days while the total in fines and costs assessed amounted to $42,510. Fines alone amounted to $24,874 which went into the school funds in the counties where they were assessed. The total cash value of the work done by the patrol in August, consisting of property recovered, fines, costs and highway revenue collected by the arrest of liens tax evaders, is estimated at $87,404.

Patrol Radio Not To Interfere With Regular Reception

Chief Engineer Says Not Even Necessary to Erect Stations Outside Larger Cities

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 14.—The five highway patrol radio broadcasting stations soon to be built will not cause any interference with the reception of radio programs from commercial radio stations, either long or short wave, Paul Rosecrans, chief radio engineer for the highway patrol, said today.

"Some people have gotten the idea that the reason the patrol radio stations are all being built outside the city limits of cities and towns was because the stations might interfere with other radio reception in these cities. But this is not the case, although Rosecrans said that better diffusion of the radio waves is obtained by having them located outside cities and towns.

"The principal reason these stations are being located outside the cities is that approximately 30 acres of land are needed for each station and the cost of this much land inside city limits would be prohibitive," Rosecrans said. "For in addition to the single steel tower 303 feet tall for the antenna, some 13 miles of wire will be tacked in the ground radiating from the tower, like spokes in a huge wheel, 600 feet in each direction. This ground wiring is essential to this type of radio station, with the result that to get sufficient space for this wiring and the greatest efficiency it is necessary to locate the stations in semi-rural sections.

"But those who fear these stations will cause static or interference with the reception of radio programs from commercial stations, are generally mistaken, since there will be absolutely no interference whatever. Even if we wanted to build stations which would cause interference, we would not be permitted to do so by the Federal Communications Commission, which will not permit the building of any station that will interfere with another.

Holtan, Kas. (AP)—Claude Douglas is skeptical of the widely accepted belief that extreme cold will kill grasshoppers. As an experiment Douglas placed one of the pests in an electric refrigerator until it was frozen stiff and coated with ice. Then he put it out in the sun. In a few minutes the grasshopper was hopping about as sprightly as ever.

ROAD REPAIRS HELP WAYNICK

Work On Highways Boost for Head of Commission

Raleigh, Sept. 15.—Road work, in the opinion of visitors to Raleigh, is the best boost for Chairman Cassius M. Waynick of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, whose head was believed to be in danger all through the latest campaign for governor.

Candidate Ralph McDonald declared that Mr. Waynick and his commission have been building "political roads," and Candidate Andy Graham broke a few remarks upon the political activities of the chairman and his associates. The impression which everybody drew from these candidatorial remarks was that Mr. Waynick would go out if either of the aforementioned gentlemen came in.

Mr. Waynick said nothing one way or another, but some of his best supporters were ever after him to small Mr. Waynick. Dr. McDonald's accusation would not stand historical inquiry. The doctor was charging the chairman with shortcomings that belonged to other men, officials whom the Forsyth candidate had been training.

Having refused to join the general commission, Governor-elect McDonald has no objection to his own road work. Meanwhile, the commission is starting up and tearing down old road structures. A day or two ago it was announced that the Raleigh-Chapel Hill stretch of 15 miles will be open again today and in perfect shape for the fall traffic, which means football. At least 30,000 fans will be expected to pass that way.

Then the Asheville-New London road, badly battered by last winter's snow, is due to get a new hauling before frost, and some of the tobacco markets in the middle belt already are being served by the accelerated work. By legislative time it is figured that Mr. Waynick will have nearly all the violent ones subdued.

The outcry against him has greatly softened, anyway, according to the reports which come from this part of the State. One of the Congressmen who has been in a quarrel with the Governor, whose power has declined, Mr. Waynick, than any other man in the State, Mr. Dougherty, who has sided with Governor-elect, says the story goes.

The Congressman road in up-country is to come through the State's Green hills, the Great Smoky Mountain parkway, which is to traverse North Carolina. It is to receive all possible help, and the State may be without fighting a movement of Mr. Waynick.

There are other interests making war on Mr. Waynick, but to publish them would be of little help to the cause as publicity of the contributions of Big Business to the Republicans in the Maine election was to them. In a word, if none of the Waynick opposition should make itself known lukewarm supporters of the chairman would get hot.

The fight developed too soon, according to these visitors. It gave the chairman a chance to answer the opposition with repairs. There is no sign that more spots have been selected on which to work. And what is better, there is no evidence that the chairman has sought to punish sore men. The road organization believes it will have the best looking system by January 1, 1937, that the general assembly and a few governors ever looked at.

Good Crop Prices Balk Republicans In Fall Campaign

Raleigh, Sept. 15.—Tobacco prices are making Republican progress difficult, according to members of the party, who say they hear a good deal of despair as they go about the State, and they expect to hear more when cotton gets on the market.

Twice only in the memories of old people have the Democrats been advanced by prosperity as they went into a national campaign. It was hard times that ousted Harrison in 1892 following Cleveland's election in 1888. But the disaster of 1892 was magnified, so that the "Cleveland panic" came to be a scare for 20 successive years. In 1918 the Republicans put up their best against Wilson, but 20 cent coffee and better tobacco ruined the Hughes chances.

There are so many prominent industrialists and old line Democrats who swear that they will not support Roosevelt that the Republicans had a hope of repeating the 1928 election on these presidential aversions. But with cotton more than double what it brought four years ago and tobacco going to a new high on poor grades, the Republicans are said to fear that they lose more votes on account of these money crops than they will gain as the result of defections.

And the pick-up is considered much more difficult since the severity of the Hoover hard times shines as a memory. And if there were no permanency to that recollection the Democrats are going to recall the era by planting some memorials in the past and some similar devices in the Westmont and West Ware, both of the remnants is supposed to exist.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The stock market held hot and cold today on the Maine election results and prices got nowhere in particular. The list made a feeble effort to rally at the opening but profit takers again stepped into the arena and cut down many of the leaders fractions to a point or more. Dealings were on the quiet side at the fourth hour, however, and a number of issues found buying support. Stock sales totaled approximately 1,100,000 shares.
