LOYAL FORCES ANNOUNCE AIM DESTROY FORT

High Explosives Reported To Be Ready For Blast

MADRID DEFENSE GAINS VICTORIES

Basque Nationalists Set Up Virtually Autonomous Government in North

(Copyright By Associated Press) Toledo, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Government plans to blow up the shell-battered Alcazar and its thousands of fascist occupants virtually as completely as a reliable authority disclosed tonight.

Socialist sources said the "terrible decision" to blow up the crumbling fortress atop Toledo had been taken after 10 days of futile efforts to induce the fascist commander to release women and children in the building under pledges of safe conduct from both the government and the diplomatic corps.

High explosive charges, each containing more than a ton of TNT, have been set in place.

Electric cables connect with the charges along two underground mines feeding beneath the Alcazar, each 100 yards long.

Troops will storm the sides of the fortress as soon as the dynamite has done its work.

Government artillery batteries northeast of the town which have shelled the Alcazar constantly for two months, were standing by ready to pour more shells into the ruins in the subterranean passages if the fortress is not destroyed by the blast.

No quarter will be given the male defenders of the fortress, but orders have been given to respect the lives of any women or children who manage to live through the explosion.

(By Associated Press) A new and apparently serious split in the government defense of northern Spain opened up today while the militiamen of Madrid in the central battleground announced they had jowed a mile-deep hole in the fascist front.

Basque nationalists in the north, who previously had broken with anarchists because the latter fired in the name of the republic, set up a virtually autonomous government and ousted the anarchists from all government posts in the territory still dominated by friends of the Madrid regime.

Government militiamen, 40,000 strong, also formed a new battle line west and south of fallen San Sebastian, while at Bilbao, still farther to the west, government firing squads blasted out the lives of 62 officers who attempted a revolt.

Government forces in central Spain fighting desperately to stem the fascist advances on Toledo and Madrid claimed the mile-long advance in the Santa Olaya sector, 24 miles from Toledo. New triumphs also were announced for the Madrid militiamen in Cordoba province.

In Madrid United States diplomatic authorities set Tuesday as the final deadline for use of the American embassy for refugees. It then will be closed with officials remaining in the capital in private residences.

SHIRLEY GETS A SHETLAND

Shirley Temple was the proudest little girl in Hollywood when she went down to the railway station to meet her new Shetland pony. The little steed, which came all the way from the Shetland Islands north of Scotland, is the gift of Joseph M. Schenck, the film producer. The child actress promptly dubbed the pony "Spunky." Naval Squadron Created For European Coast Duty

Unit to Be Known As 'Squadron 40, Temporary'

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The navy today announced the creation of a temporary European squadron under the command of Rear Admiral Arthur W. Fairchild.

The squadron will consist of the light cruiser Raleigh which will be Admiral Fairchild's flagship, the destroyers Hatfield and Kane, and the coast guard cutter Cayuga. The last three named have been on emergency duty in and outside of Spanish waters since the Spanish revolution broke out.

The official naval department announcement said that upon the Raleigh's arrival at Gibraltar, Admiral Fairchild would organize the four ships into a unit to be known as "squadron 40 temporary."

Greenville Negro Held In New Bern On Robbery Count

Craven County Rural Storekeeper Seriously Injured In Darling Hold-up Yesterday Afternoon

Bob Brown, Greenville negro, was taken to New Bern yesterday afternoon following his arrest here after local officers had been given a description of the negro and asked to seek him in connection with the robbery of a small, rural store and the critical injuring of the owner.

The name of the store-keeper was not definitely known by local officers, but the store was located near Pitch Neck in Craven county. Chief Clark said the man was seriously injured and fear was expressed for his life.

According to Chief Clark, the negro apparently left the store-keeper for dead and caught a ride to this city with a man bringing a load of tobacco here. Upon returning to the Pitch Neck community and learning of the seriously wounded store-keeper, the farmer returned to this city and volunteered to officers his information concerning the man brought here.

A search was immediately begun and a short while later the alleged assailant was "picked up" in Tobacco Town, dressed in new clothes from head to foot and, according to Chief Clark, possessing a sum of money in a pocketbook which belonged to the injured man.

Craven county officers returned the negro to New Bern where he will be held pending the filing of formal charges following the outcome of his victim's injuries.

MARTIAL LAW HOLDS PAKHOI

Soldiers Oppose Investigation of Slaying in China

Hong Kong, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Martial law was reported in Pakhoi today, where defiant soldiers are opposing Japanese and Chinese investigations of the killing of a Japanese druggist.

Members of the old 19th Chinese army, under the command of General Woong Chao-Yuan, have refused to withdraw from the city to allow inquiries ordered by the Tokyo and Nanking governments.

General Woong was declared to have stated his intention to resist landing of the investigating commission in the same manner his forces opposed Japanese attacks at Shanghai for more than three months in 1932.

Fear was expressed in Chinese quarters that strengthened forces of Japanese marines might attempt to force the inquiry.

(Nanking reported the Chinese foreign minister and the Japanese ambassador to China might hold an emergency discussion to clear up the Pakhoi incident which resulted from the stabbing to death on September 3 of a Japanese.)

Sen. Guffey Holds Election Statutes Violated In Maine

Chairman of Democratic Campaign Committee Says at Least Prima Facie Evidence

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Senator Joseph P. Guffey of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, said today he was convinced "that there is at least a prima facie case of violation of the federal election laws" in Maine and declared he would ask for a recount in Monday's senatorial election.

After a conference at Democratic headquarters with Governor Louis J. Brand—-who was defeated by the incumbent Republican Senator, Wallace F. White, Jr. by around 5,000 votes—Senator Guffey said:

"If the evidence justifies it there will be a contest when Senator White attempts to take his seat in the Senate."

HIGH FIGURES ARE DEFEATED IN PRIMARIES

Senator James Couzens Loses in Michigan Contest

GEORGE H. MOSES ANOTHER VICTIM

Governor James M. Curley Wins Democratic Senatorial Nomination in Mass.

(By Associated Press) Names known to the nation over figured in triumphs and defeats today as they rolled in from primaries held yesterday in 18 states.

Former Senator George H. Moses, long a power in conservative Republican circles, failed in a comeback attempt in New Hampshire. The 39-year-old Governor H. Styles Bridges beat him for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Governor James M. Curley won the Democratic senatorial nomination in Massachusetts by a large margin over his nearest foe, Mayor Robert E. Greenwood, son-in-law of Democratic senator Marcus Coolidge. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., captured the Republican nomination.

Political statisticians went to work on the vote totals from the five states—Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, Wisconsin and New York—today in an effort to figure what, if anything, they signify for November.

In New York the returns smothered the hopes of Townsend and Coughlin candidates, who sought 13 of the state's 45 nominations for the national House of Representatives. However, one candidate who ran both as a Republican and a Townsdenite capture a nomination.

Health Inspection For Pitt Schools Meeting Approval

Health Officer Announces Program Will Be Made Annual Affair at Opening of Each Term

Dr. N. Thomas Emmett, Pitt county health officer, declared today the inspection of all school children was meeting with gratifying results and it said the work would be carried on at the beginning of each school year.

The inspection of all students for any diseases, especially contagious, is being made by the Health Department and with the cooperation of county school officials, principals and teachers. The health officer declared the school officials were cooperating 100 per cent in the campaign and added they were evidencing much interest in the program.

The work will be completed this week after all schools in the county have been visited. Dr. Emmett said a number of children had been excluded from school temporarily for treatment of various maladies discovered in the inspection.

The program was inaugurated this year, but the health officer declared the success which it was experiencing and the cooperation it was receiving warranted making it an annual feature to insure better health among school children.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker BUSINESS: Chairman John Hamilton's behavior on his sallies across the country convinces keen observers that fragmentary reports of personal and political dissension within the Landon camp have not been exaggerated.

On one occasion the red-headed Kansan amazed his hearers by broadcasting rather boastfully that "I sent Governor Landon into Maine." (Next day a gentle demurrer was issued from the candidate's train). Mr. Hamilton openly deplores the off-key singing among publicity and political prima donna at Chicago headquarters. He mentions himself ten times for every reference to the man he is trying to land in the White House.

FDR TO CONFER WITH BANKERS

Parley Expected To Follow Talk With Insurance Heads

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—A future White House conference of bankers was indicated today after insurance executives who talked with the President yesterday reported life insurance is "the safest of all possible securities."

The President said yesterday's conference with insurance leaders dealt with possible mutual assistance between the government and their companies. He asserted that Col. Frank Knox's argument that insurance policies and savings deposits are threatened by New Deal spending was not discussed.

Replying to a question, the President said he probably would talk with leading bankers later. White House aides said the insurance meeting was one of a series of talks with business men the President had been holding for some time and declared it was not prompted by the statement of Col. Knox.

The President told reporters the conference brought out that insurance assets had jumped three billion dollars in the past three years and that the average size of policies was decreasing. More people, in other words, were taking out small policies.

Charles F. Williams, president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Company, issued a statement which he said had been approved by his fellow conferees. It declared that life insurance policies are "the safest of all securities."

Reedy Branch Church To Decide On Pastor

All members of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist church have been urged to attend a meeting at the church Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock called for the purpose of selecting a pastor to serve during the ensuing year.

Officials of the church expressed a desire today to have as many members as possible present and take part in the selection of the new pastor.

Otherwise, he strikes people as a pleasant and likable politician. But he is no longer the gay, dashing Lochinvar who dominated the scene at the Cleveland convention. There is a subtle change which suggests that he finds a presidential campaign to be a business rather than a game—and not altogether a prosperous business.

Income From Farm Increases In N. C.

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The agricultural economics bureau reported today North Carolina's 1935 gross income from farm production increased more than $11,000,000 over that of the preceding year.

The 1935 production was given at $281,761,900 compared to $269,829,000 for 1934. Basing its figures on 78 crops and 13 live-stock items, the bureau reported virtually all of the state's increase was in the latter class of farm production.

Gross income for crops in 1934 was $226,101,000, compared to $224,116,000 for the following year. Livestock increased from $55,660,900 to $56,711,000.

RESCUE PLANE IS ABANDONED

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker Seeks Fliers in Motor Ship

Carbonear, Newfoundland, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, substituted the motor ship Lincoln for an airplane today in a fresh effort to reach Harry Richman and Dick Merrill in Musgrave Harbor.

Rickenbacker is leading an expedition carrying gasoline and spare parts to the American transatlantic fliers.

He transferred his expedition fuel and a new propeller for Richman's plane, Lady Peace, to the motor ship Lincoln, leaving his plane at the Harbor Gas airport.

He expected to reach Musgrave Harbor by noon and expressed belief the Lady Peace could be repaired quickly to continue its flight to New York.

Richman, night club entertainer, and Merrill, veteran pilot, were forced down on the isolated Newfoundland coast Monday when their plane ran short of fuel after they had battled rain, fog and sleet during the last stages of a transoceanic flight from Southport, England.

The New York Daily News in a copyrighted story from Musgrave Harbor said a row during the flight between Richman and Merrill "ended in the dumping of 500 gallons of gasoline and all but crashed the Lady Peace in the ocean."

AUCTION SALE REMAINS GOOD

Greenville Mart Already Paid Out $1,694,404.84

The Greenville tobacco market yesterday again experienced a heavy sales day, but not as large as on Monday and Friday.

A total of 896,028 pounds was offered on the local warehouses, Tuesday bringing farmers $180,577.98, on an average of 20.19 per hundred-weight.

Farmers selling tobacco on the Greenville tobacco market this year—and growers from an unusually large number of counties have visited here this fall have been paid more than one and a half million dollars.

So far this season 7,619,128 pounds of the golden weed has been sold here, bringing $1,694,404.84, at an official average of $22.18. The average this year is approximately five dollars a hundred higher than it was at the corresponding time last year, despite the fact farmers are offering their poorest grades, while last year they were able to realize five dollars a hundred from the Federal agricultural program and took this rather than accept a smaller price on the market.

Raleigh, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The tobacco market news service reported today that officially graded tobacco sold lower yesterday than on Monday on the Goldsboro and Farmville markets in 18 grades, sold at the same both days, in two grades and was higher yesterday in two others.

Sales continued heavy, hiccups at Goldsboro with demands good and market firm generally, the report said.

Orange leaf B2F was the same both yesterday and Monday at $36.70 per hundred; but B2F was only $39.60 yesterday, compared with $31.20, while B5F was 30 cents yesterday to 31.70.

In Orange smoking leaf H2F was off 20 cents to $36.70 yesterday, while H3F was down $1.20 to $31. etc. except for H2F which was at $6.00, up 10 cents. Orange cutters C2F were the same at $39.10, but other grades as well as all orange lugs and priming lugs were down by amount ranging from 50 cents to $3.50 per hundred pounds. F2F was off worst from $30.50 to $27.

LEAF GROWERS REQUEST GOVT. DRAW UP BILL

Delegates From Nine States Depart From Conference

ACREAGE QUOTA WILL BE SET UP

Compact Legislation Similar to One Already Adopted in Virginia Endorsed

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Leaving a request with the agriculture adjustment administration to draft a model bill, delegates from nine tobacco producing states returned to their homes today to begin organization of committees to guide proposed legislation to control tobacco production through interstate compacts.

After a two-day conference the group endorsed unanimously compact legislation similar to a law already adopted in Virginia and including acreage quotas to regular marketing of scrap tobacco.

The conference suggested election of a limited number of growers by districts from whom governors would select state commissioners to administer any control program adopted.

In addition to planning organization of state committees to guide proposed legislation, the conference proposed that a national committee be set up in Washington to assist the individual states.

N. Carolina Negro Had Part In Race Against Talmadge

Democratic Recall For Hest Cabell Resident Writer Author of 'President Truman's Story'

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—After the slaughter of Governor O'Neal Talmadge of Georgia in his race against Senator Richard B. Russell, North Carolina Democrats were remembering that a North Carolina negro, Dr. James E. Shepard, wrote a letter of protest against Governor Talmadge's race appeals that had an unconsciously wide circulation.

"I developed while the contest raged that Dr. Shepard received letters from white Republicans urging him to desist from doing things that would hurt the Republicans; that Governor Talmadge in his attacks upon President Roosevelt was doing much to undermine the administration and to help the Republicans. Dr. Shepard is said to have replied that national Republicanism as he is, is first a negro, interested in the race, and determined to make dignified protest at every indefensible use of the race question in state or national politics.

The Atlanta Constitution printed Dr. Shepard's letter in full and gave a column of comment editorially on it, using the text to rebuke the Governor for his tactics. Papers which circulate on the edge of the two Carolinas and Georgia took it up and added to the unfavorable publicity which Governor Talmadge had brought upon himself. Many other North Carolina papers printed the protest in part or in full. The Durham editor has been led to believe by the publicity and by the result of the election, that raising the race cry against his 'vet' probably is not so popular as it once was. He sees much to encourage him.

So Georgia paper appeared in fear that rebuking the Governor would help him. The Governor never replied to the statement which was sent to him before it got into the papers.

JAPANESE MAY TRY TO CLIMB MOUNT EVEREST

Calcutta, India.—(AP)—A new assault on the unconquered heights of Mt. Everest, recently the scene of still another British failure to scale the 29,002 foot peak may be launched by a Japanese expedition which has reached here.

The 24-year-old leader of the Japanese party, Kagya Yanagita, said that the first goal will be the Nanda Kot peaks in the Himalayas. "If we are successful," he added "an attempt will be made to lead the expedition to the higher peaks of the Himalayas, including Mount Everest."

Most of the members of the Japanese party are graduates of Rikyo University at Tokyo.

"Callithrix" comes from a combination of Greek words meaning "beautiful" and "monkey."

REPUBLICANS TRIUMPH IN MAINE ELECTION

Maine's "barometric" state election, which observers watch closely for possible portents in November's national poll, returned that state to Republican control for the first time in four years. Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., Republican, who retained his seat by a margin of 4,000 votes, is shown (left) voting in Lewiston. On the right is Gov. Louis J. Brann, defeated Democratic candidate for the senate, also casting his ballot in Lewiston. (Associated Press Photos)

We are still flooded with inquiries as to the availability of houses or apartments. One of two things must happen. Greenville must have more places for newcomers to live or our town must stop growing and the persons who would like to locate here must go to some other place to live. One or two modern apartment houses here would mean a lot to Greenville and we believe would pay good returns to the owners.

The traffic lights in the business section are having a tendency to slow down traffic considerably. Of course the lights are still a new experience to us and it will take time to get them regulated to the desired timing but we believe that they could be changed so as to move traffic just a little faster with just as great a degree of safety as is now prevalent.

The success of the Pitt County Fair staged this year by the two American Legion posts of this county, will depend upon the support received from the public. The sponsors of the fair are going to make every effort to give the people of this county a real agricultural fair but without the cooperation of our people the efforts of the Legionnaires will count for little. While there have been so-called "fairs" here each fall, it has been a long time since Pitt County has had a real county fair, so let's all pull together this year to see that the fair is what a fair should be.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

His charge that "Jim" Farley has used his official position to build up a steam machine. He steers away sharply from detailed discussion of the former President's role. He explains that he told Mr. Hoover he would be happy to have the Palo Alto man speak for Mr. Landon. But the chairman won't say when or where the event will be staged. The G.O.P. chairman obviously wants Mr. Landon to become more aggressive, more personal, more tough, in his New Deal attacks. So far the work of "smearing" FDR has been borne by Mr. Hamilton Col. Knox and subordinate speakers who don't rate headlines outside their own backwoods. Despite undercover differences, there are indications that the Governor will soon act on his young aide's advice.

TECHNICAL: The Democrats' publication of duPontish gifts in the Maine election marked only the first move in the game of guiding the G.O.P. as an annex of the Liberty League. The other escaped notice entirely. The federal corrupt practices act requires a report on political contributions between September 1 and 10. Ordinarily, however, news-hawks seldom visit the Clerk's office and these reports gather dust on the shelves for days until some enterprising reporter goes out of his path to read them. But on September 10 somebody in the Clerk's office phoned the press that the Republican contributions were on file and contained some "hot news." The result was that a new list of few-duPont-Rutten gifts hit the front pages on September 11—or in plenty of time for use in Maine.

The Democrats, incidentally, violated the corrupt practices act by not filing their accounting until after the legal date. It's a technicality which never results in prosecution, but these days the politicians seem to be going technical in telling tales on each other.

ADVANTAGES: Without any fanfare the Roosevelt administration and the Baldwin ministry appear to have established the dollar and pound on a mutually satisfactory basis. It would not be the first time that Washington and London have entered into agreements without advertising them.

There has been no formal agreement or announcement or arrangement, and there probably won't be until after the November election. But for some time now the pound has hung around $5 as against the dollar (which is the relationship most frequently mentioned as practicable). This amounts to de facto stabilization and it seems to suit everybody concerned.

It is doubtful if the balance between the currencies could be kept so even without the aid of artificial forces. A good guess is that the American stabilization and British equalization funds are being operated jointly so as to peg the pound at $5 until new circumstances necessitate a higher or lower point. The advantage of this informal arrangement is that it can be changed without notice as development warrant. And the rest of the world won't be any the wiser.

PRESSED: All has been quiet on the Italo-Ethiopian news front for many months. But confidential diplomatic and military information indicates that the peace is more apparent than real. Long ago Mussolini clamped a censorship on newspaper dispatches from Addis Ababa.

Il Duce, who used to be a newspaperman himself, is no slouch as a publicity expert. If he were transforming Ethiopia into an ideal Italian colony and capping his conquest with development of its natural resources, he would be the first to tell the world. The truth is that dead Italian soldiers are being brought back to Italy at the rate of 200-plus a month. It's making an unfortunate impression in the homeland. From mountain fastnesses the natives harry the Italians wherever the latter venture into unguarded country.

Mussolini hasn't yet put his hand on funds to capitalize his victory even assuming that valuable minerals are waiting exploitation. Internationally the danger lies in the fact that if the 20th century Caesar derives no profit or prestige from his Ethiopian enterprise, he may break loose somewhere else. In fact that may account for his flirtation with the fascist forces now making a chat-bles of Sen S. bastian.

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN
DIPLOMAT: Keep an eye on Morris Cooke. The head of the Rural Electrification Administration is not as vocal as some of his New Deal colleagues, but New Yorkers who have had contact with him call him one of the administration's most valuable assets and predict that he will become an outstanding figure in FDR's entourage if the President is re-elected.

Mr. Cooke is a real diplomat. An important phase of his work has been to enlist the cooperation of the private utilities in promoting rural electrification. That was a job utility chiefs were 100 per cent suspicious of the motives behind his every suggestion at first and the outlook for furtherance of his plans was extremely discouraging. But gradually, by keeping faith with them and by using sweet reasonableness instead of the invective they had come to expect from other New Dealers, he won their confidence and their support. He was an excellent choice for behind-the-scenes stage manager of the World Power Conference. His assignment was to see that it went off as smoothly as possible with a minimum of name-calling by representatives either of government or of the industry. He did so well at it that discussions—with one notable exception—were kept on a higher and more dignified plane than many of the participants thought would be possible.

NOTE: That one exception and its aftermath illustrated a significant alteration in the New Deal attitude towards private utilities which will last at least until election and quite possibly afterwards if Mr. Roosevelt wins.

The faux pas committed by Maurice Davidson and Langdon Post—representing Mayor LaGuardia of New York City—was innocent enough. Nobody had remembered to tell them in advance that the signals had been changed, so they naturally figured they were supposed to go ahead with the familiar pastime of pasting the daylight out of the private companies. They even brought up David Lillenthal's pet idea that the most effective way to force a private company to lower its rates is to threaten it with public-use competition. All this intruded a jarring note for which they were stepped on hard—to their shocked surprise—by Cooke and others.

The howling out Cooke gave them was officially endorsed by New Deal G.H.Q. It is no part of the plans of the Democratic high command to talk tough to the utilities at this juncture. Cooke made this so plain that even hot-tongued Harold Ickes—whose favorite fun is baiting the big boys of industry—was a model of tact in a subsequent speech. Floyd Carlisle responded for the industry by markedly toning down his counterattack on government power activities. Polite sparring with heavy gloves is the order of the day—and may remain so for some time—but don't jump to the conclusion that brass knuckles have been permanently scrapped.

OFFSET: We recently reported that the Democratic high command plans to have either Carter Glass or Millard Tydings—preferably the former—tell the world that the federal government's financial affairs are in good shape and getting better. The Virginian hasn't said yet whether he will do it or not. Informed New Yorkers understand that Senator Tydings—stands ready to pinch-hit for Senator Glass on this assignment if necessary.

While he hasn't the headline value of Glass, he is sufficiently well established as a conservative to be useful in offsetting G. O. P. charges that New Deal sending and New Deal debts are wrecking federal credit.

TRUSTS: Investment trust stocks—especially those of trusts with a large leverage factor—have not been doing so well lately. Not only have they lagged behind general market trends—in some cases they have sagged quite sharply.

Financial observers attribute this weakness primarily to the Securities Exchange Commission's investigation and uncertainty as to what lies ahead in the way of restrictive legislation and regulation. It is recalled that the stocks of utility holding companies acted much the same way when their fate hung in the legislative balance.

Three SEC people may hold the key to the future of all investment trust activities—Commissioner Robert Hesley, counsel David Schenker and director of research Paul Gourrich. The latter has done a remarkable job in analyzing and explaining the use of the mountains of statistical material available.

SIDELIGHTS: The continued strength of the railroad comeback startles railroad leaders themselves. It means big orders for rails, cars and other equipment soon—keeping heavy industry on the jump. President Bill Green of the Federation of Labor is in an odd spot as a result of the de facto suspension of 10 unions. He's a member of United Mine Workers himself—therefore may not be legally eligible as a delegate to the A.F.L. convention, let alone for the presidency.

SWEDEN'S FARMERS

By ELMER W. PETERSON
Stockholm—(AP)—Foreclosures on mortgaged farms, with the owner bundled off bag and baggage, Swedish agriculture experts say, are now practically unknown in Sweden. A honest, hard-working farmer need fear the loss of his land through crop failures or other circumstances beyond his control, they say.

The threat of the sheriff's notice of sale, the rise and fall of the auctioneer's hammer virtually have been eliminated. Tenant farmers, moreover, have unusual opportunities, it is asserted to buy their farms. They also have legal rights which give them a definite measure of security. The problem of the share-cropper is declared almost non-existent.

These achievements by modern agriculture in Sweden, the experts say, have been made possible by elaborate land legislation dating from the beginning of the present century and by extensive government financial aid to farmers.

To alleviate foreclosure distress the government in 1933 voted 10,000,000 kroner (about $2,500,000) to aid farmers who, because of the depression, might "face the possibility of eviction from their land." The individual farmer, confronted with financial difficulties, now appeals to a local committee which hears his case in detail. Bankers are called in. Solutions to the individual farmer's problems are talked over. Recommendations are made to a national committee.

Under no circumstance, it is said can the holder of a mortgage simply step in and foreclose. To check farm tenancy Swedish legislation has aimed at restricting acquisition of land by industrial enterprises, keeping peasant properties in peasant hands and developing ownership of small holdings.

Today only a small percentage of Swedish farms are leased. A census in 1932 revealed that of the total number of farms and holdings with more than five acres of cultivated field, 247,167, or 80.4 per cent, were farmed by the owner; 60,192, or 19.6 per cent, were leased.

Leasehold farming is most common for the really small holdings—below five acres—and for the largest—over 75 acres. There are in Sweden today less than 1,800 farms of more than 250 acres. The great bulk of farm holdings run from one to 50 acres.

local organizations rather than set up headquarters of its own. It get nothing like so far in state or national politics as the Grandy Army of the Republic was wont to go in the northern and western states for the Republicans of state and nation in the old days.

What seemed significant to the commentators of the legion's act in setting its leaders to work for the president, was the apparent feeling of safety politically of the leaders who have started their activities. The President was supposed to have affronted thousands of them in vetoing the bonus. Governor Landon does not happen to have Legion favor, but there has not been successful assault on him as to a former guardsman in his state militia. It is remembered that in North Carolina the legion wrought well for Frank Grist. In the first race for commissioner of labor and printing Grist ran 30,000 behind in a vote barely half as big as the present voting is. But the legion without appearing as a body to be interested, got behind Grist and nominated him by a big majority.

It almost repeated in the late Democratic primary when individual members took the burden of the Graham campaign and in a tremendous campaign of 30 days raised the Graham vote to 126,000. The legion as divided on that enterprise but the leaders who worked for their candidates showed what they know about the push of a campaign.

For a long time it has been known that the American Legion expects to nominate a veteran and a legionnaire for President in 1940. The most probable and the most powerful of them is Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana. Governor McNutt is regarded the greatest campaigner in the country. He has as executive of his state had much the same sort of record that Govern Aycock had in North Carolina. A great speaker was a great executive. Governor McNutt in Raleigh some months ago declared that there is not the slightest doubt that Roosevelt will be re-elected. He will carry every state west of the Mississippi, and most of them east.

The Governor based his championship and his prophecy much on the ground of Gerald Johnson's dissent in the Baltimore Evening Sun—Roosevelt's understanding of what was going on in the world. Governor McNutt declared that the public had come to believe that its government no longer could function and Roosevelt proved that it could.

That's Mr. Johnson's view of it. He declared in Raleigh yesterday that the American Legion takes Roosevelt more for his attitude than for his specific record, good as he regards that. And he does not believe that there will be any effective protest to the action of the North Carolina or the outside legionnaires in going for Roosevelt.

The Iredell member supposed in the 1935 general assembly that he could not return on account of his sales tax votes; but he gets back by a bigger vote than the first one which sent him there.

LEGION JOINS INTO POLITICS

Action Pleases Democrats, But Causes Some Talk

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 16.—North Carolina's American Legion going Democratic in a lump of course pleases the Democracy, but folks are wondering today if there can be a possible kick-back.

When former Commander Con C. Johnston of Iredell was here yesterday he said the veterans would work for Roosevelt all over the nation. The Iredell man, who twice beat the daddy of the anti-sales tax organizations for the nomination as house member in the legislature, does not think anybody can impeach the patriotism of the legion. It was for the bonus and Roosevelt was against it. The general attitude of the President seems to please the veterans who like him in war and like him in peace. The President has been in both places.

Whether the few Republican members of the legion will protect this action of the legion leaders it is too early to guess. The legion is going to work through state and

Ehringhaus Stand On Weed Compact Is Given Support

Solicitor of Agriculture Department Agrees Act Offered in Spring Was Not Complete

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 16.—Tobacco prices in eastern North Carolina have justified the position of Governor Ehringhaus in holding out against a special session of the general assembly the past spring, citizens generally agree; but the tobacco meeting Monday in Washington in which James Bagwell, agricultural solicitor of the department of agriculture, backed up the Governor more impressively it seems.

The position of the Governor is now almost forgotten, so long ago has it been. In brief the executive said the federal act was faulty and unworkable, Monday Mr. Bagwell told the meeting that the national act would have to be amended if it is made effective for next year. And the amendments which must be inserted were the points raised by the Governor.

It is almost certain that the general assembly of 1937 will take up the compact bill and that North Carolina will get in line with the nation in an effort to grow and market tobacco intelligently. This year the weather did the curtailing that the tobacco farmers asked of their government—Here again the Governor's wisdom was manifest, in the opinion of many of his supporters. By planting normally the farmers were not put at the mercy of other growers who exceeded their 1935 crop. And the seasons have cut the whole acreage of the country by natural processes. The Governor never felt himself more right in a position he has taken than he was in this mass meeting where the multitude was violently against him. But he likes the first prices which have been reported from the markets and he still believes that other states would have profited by weak legislation which did nothing to prevent the interstate traffic in tobacco in a way to defeat the very terms of the compact legislation.

Question About CARDUI
HOW IT HELPS WOMEN
"Who takes Cardui?"
Women who are run-down, weakened, nervous, from not getting sufficient strength from the food they eat. — Thousands and thousands have found that Cardui increased their appetite, improved their digestion, thereby promoting better nourishment, and the consequent strengthening of the whole system.

And women who have suffered from functional pains of menstruation have found that, by taking Cardui just before and during the periods, this purely vegetable sedative and antispasmodic seemed to save them much discomfort. This action of Cardui is highly esteemed because the relief credited to it comes in an entirely beneficial way. Cardui is purely vegetable; nothing in it to be afraid of. — (Adv.)

Schacht Pulls The Wires For Hitler's Big Deals

New York, Sept. 11.—The man behind the gun in many of Nazi Dictator Hitler's recent far-reaching political and economic moves among neighboring states has been Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, credited with wielding more power in Germany than any other save Der Fuehrer himself.

Through his position as president of the Reichsbank and minister of economics, Dr. Schacht is virtually financial and economic dictator of the Fatherland, always remembering that there is only one real boss in Germany — Adolf Hitler. Schacht, who stands ace-high with his chief, is known as one German who can criticize the government more than once and not come a cropper. He speaks his mind so free on all subjects that Old Line Nazis frequently cringe at his "heresy" but Hitler just smiles.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht is virtually dictator of finance in Germany.

Bargains With France
Schacht is fond of telling the world that he has nothing to do with politics; he is just a plain financial and economic chap. However, he has had a big hand in the private negotiations which European diplomats think are tantamount to an Austro-Italo-German alliance.

The other day, too, the doctor took white collar to Paris to assure France that she had nothing to fear from Germany's lengthening of military service which would greatly increase the size of her army. Having delivered this message, Dr. Schacht is reported to have told French ministers that the best way to cope with German militarism was to aid economic rehabilitation of the Reich.

Travels For Hitler
It is reported he also attempted to persuade France to break off her alliance with Russia in favor of an arrangement with Germany. In any event, Premier Blum, of France, was said to have replied his government would join in any conversations which might facilitate Europe's economic, financial and political problems.

Dr. Schacht has been doing a deal of journeying about in other places on confidential missions for Hitler. The minister's bluff and apparently open-handed way of doing things, coupled with his admitted capabilities, carry him a long way.

When Schacht has made up his mind to a thing, he smashes straight for it unmindful of consequences.

He is an intense nationalist, like his master, and applies the nationalistic principles to his operations in finance and economics. The minister is 59 years old. When he isn't involved in high finance he likes to raise pigs.

G.O.P. DEBATES TWO COURSES

Consider Two Separate Plans For Presidential Campaign

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

From the standpoint of major strategy, mid-September finds the presidential campaign still in a waiting stage.

Nothing is plainer than the intent of the Democrats to reserve for the final hours of the battle whatever bombshells may repose in their arsenals, whatever dramatic strokes of policy they may be considering.

On the Republican side, there is no evidence of a decisive choice between the two alternative courses which are open. The party still is free to adopt a plan of attack only, hoping to be voted intopower by the force of anti-administration sentiment, or to appeal affirmatively for support by presenting a definite program of its own.

Both major party nominees are delaying a detailed discussion of those issues which have been regarded generally as paramount in the campaign.

Governor Landon has not yet laid out the program he would adopt, if elected, with respect to lief; nor has President Roosevelt made specific reply to those numerous criticisms which have fallen upon his own relief policies. It is much the same with respect to the farm problem, the labor issue—even the constitutional issue.

The reasons for this, so far as the Democrats are concerned, grow in part out of the accepted custom of the party in power.

It is axiomatic among politicians that it is neither wise nor profitable for a President to appear too anxious about his own reelection, or to leap too readily into any political campaign.

But there also is a special consideration applying to the situation this year. The Democrats face an opposition which has been badly routed in two successive national campaigns—1932 and 1934. It is an opposition which obviously is not thoroughly united at least so far as the rank and file is concerned. The Democratic general prefers to wait until they can see how the lines have reformed and from what direction the attack will come.

To vary the figure, Chairman Farley and his advisers want to give their Republican opponents every opportunity to commit costly blunders to talk themselves into a corner, to develop fully all of their internal quarrels and disruptions.

Particularly, the Democratic general has been waiting to see whether the Republican nominee for President would make direct commitment to a specific legislative and administrative program for the coming four years, so that the Democratic defensive could be changed to an offensive.

This general set of circumstances appears to have contributed also to the delay in the Republican camp.

A great party is not rebuilt in a day. It was apparent that Governor Landon and his friends were suffering somewhat from surprise after their easy victory at Cleveland, and wanted time to familiarize themselves with the vastly complicated party machinery which had come suddenly into their possession.

They were made cautious by the magnitude of the responsibility, and by the torrent of conflicting advice which poured in upon them. Especially would it be better merely to attack the New Deal or should Mr. Landon present a substitute program?

It is well known that elections often are won because the voters are against someone, not because they are for someone else. Most politicians agree that the majority voted against the Wilson policies in 1920, not affirmatively in favor of Harding; against Smith in 1928 rather than for Hoover; against Hoover in 1932, more than for Roosevelt.

That the present administration has made bitter enemies is plain. Are they numerous enough and powerful enough to defeat a reelection if Governor Landon merely will keep friends with all of the disaffected elements, and make no enemies of his own?

It appears that a division of opinion on this subject persists in Republican councils. On the decision everything may depend.

Harold Newhauer, pitcher for the champion All-City Stars in Detroit, has averaged 15 strikeouts per game this season. He whiffed 20 batters in one tilt.

DUKE ALREADY BEING PICKED

Good Chance Seen by Wades for Over-Confidence Case.

Greenville, Sept. 16.—Duke University's Blue Devils are having all the chance they need for a good case of over-confidence—the most dangerous ailment a football team can have.

They are being picked far and wide to win state and conference championships and are even being ranked among the top-notchers of the country.

In addition to the danger of over-confidence, the selection of the Blue Devils as the team to beat for the titles means that of the 10 games on the schedule everyone will be a battle where the opposition has pointed for the Wademen. While much of this picking can be credited to Coach Wallace Wade's consistent ability to produce outstanding grid machines, the Duke mentor holds no illusions about his 1936 club.

He feels that the backs are good, capable of fine running but that the line is not great and that the blocking in practice games is not as good as he thinks a good team should block.

Over the past week-end, the Blue Devils had two hard scrimmages—one between the first and second teams and the other with the University of Richmond eleven. The intrasquad battle was practically a deadlock. The first eleven pushing across a touch-down in the final quarter on a 36 yard run by Pull-back Harold Smith while the game with Richmond resulted in a 19-0 win for Duke in a game that was rather listless outside of the Blue Devils' three touch-down drives.

The Duke mentor is on the spot again this year—but he is working hard and saying nothing, but hoping that the boys will come through with their assignments and will make a good record against all foes—win or lose.

A line of what is expected whether the team really will stack up as the "team to beat" will be answered in the games Saturday night and a week from Saturday with Davidson and Colgate.

WAR BRIDES TO MEET AT LEGION CONVENTION

Cleveland—(AP)—French war brides of American soldiers won't be forgotten when their husbands rally in Cleveland for the national convention of the American Legion September 26 to 28.

The war brides, of whom there originally were 27,000, will come along, too, for the third annual meeting of one of the most exclusive of American Legion organizations—the National Organization of French War Brides.

The war brides didn't form their organization until 1932 and have met only once since then.

HORTICULTURAL EXPOSITION SCHEDULED FOR CHICAGO

Chicago—(AP)—Just before frost when gardens are in full bloom, the first international horticultural exposition devoted exclusively to horticulture will be held here September 12-20.

Flower, fruit and vegetable exhibits of wide variety are displayed. Garden clubs, amateur and professional growers will compete for numerous trophies and cash prizes of some $10,000.

"Dainty" A Coat

Paris—(AP)—Among Heim's sensational new models in fur coats is one in horse skin. This is like pony in texture but is white flecked with black hairs. Another coat is of white calf skin and answers to the name of "Dainty."

Use Watches For Buckles. London—(AP)—Tone-pieces are used for buckles on kid belts.

Wolfpack To Meet Elon College Saturday Afternoon

Raleigh, Sept. 16.—A backfield reputed to be the fastest ever to work behind an Elon College line, will face N. C. State College's Wolfpack here Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Riddick Stadium.

James Abbit and Humphreys have been the staric plug in scrimmage games. Abbit, a monogram player, is considered one of the best kickers in the State and will match kicks Saturday with such State kickers as Howard Bards, Charlie Gadd, Cowboy Robinson, Eddie Entwistle, and Joe Schwerdt.

Humphreys is a new comer at Elon, but the youngster has about won a regular assignment. He is fast and a good runner. As a runner, he will seek to match Eddie Berlinski, State's brilliant back.

Berlinski is in fine shape for Saturday's game and Coach Hunk Anderson is looking for him to begin a great season. Berlinski is known as a runner, but before the season is over he will probably rank with the South's best passers and extra point kickers.

Such other speedy backs at Elon are Shelton, Goddes, and Caraus, monogram players, and Noall and Engles, new men.

In addition to the State backs already mentioned, Coach Anderson plans to use Phil Davis, George Murphy, Albert Sandross, Nick Hyaden, Tom Lawler, Joe Ryneska, Pete Kuzma, Ren Hoek, Jake Mahoney, Andy Pavlosky, and possibly a few others.

State officials expect a good size opening day crowd. It is the first game of the season involving a Big Five team. Duke and Davidson meet Saturday night at Greensboro.

THIMBLE THEATRE (Starring Popeye)

UNC GRIDDERS WORK ON PASS

Coach Ray Wolfe Is Stressing Aerial Phrase of Game

Chapel-Hill, Sept. 16.—Coach Ray Wolfe, who has devoted the first two weeks of football work primarily to the development of a running attack, branched off this week into the passing phase of the game.

Passes of all kinds whizzed through the air on Fetzer field in both morning and afternoon sessions with definite indication that the Texan isn't going to neglect the colorful, wide-open style of play when Carolina meets Wake Forest Saturday week at Charlotte.

Coach Wolf is fond of the pass. He has a high regard for the different types—forward, lateral, shovel. The Texas Christian University teams which he coached used them frequently and effectively. The Tar Heels will have their own "aerial circus."

Quarterbacks, Crowell Little and Dick Dashiell, and halfback, Randy Cooner, all took their turns at throwing. Cooner appeared to be the best of the lot. He will undoubtedly be used chiefly in this one capacity. But Little and Dashiell are being groomed to do their own tossing.

Bershak, Buck, Peiffer and P. Gordon, ends, and Bricklemeyer, Pitt, P. Thompson, Kline, Winborne and Dunham, backs, worked as the receivers. They did a fine job in executing them.

But at the same Coach Wolfe began to mold some sort of pass defense. Watson, Cernughe, Hutchins, Burnette and Coughenour, backs, and Avery, center, all worked with the defensive club.

Regardless of how much time Coach Wolfe devotes to the air game, it is the general belief of the observers who have watched the Tar Heels in their daily drills this fall that Carolina will rely principally on the ground game to advance the ball.

ROOKIE SETS PITCHING RECORD

Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians rookie pitcher fresh from the farm, set an all-time American league record when he struck out 17 men in a game with the Philadelphia Athletics. And here's Bob grinning boyishly just after his two-hit game. (Associated Press Photo)

er the treacherous jumps at Aintree in the Grand National steeplechase, but his efforts have not met success. Just about every famous American jumping race has been won by mounts under him. And one of these days his name may be placed among those of Grand National winners. A Bostwick victory in the English steeplechase classic would be immensely popular abroad, for the little fellow is just as well-liked by the British as by the folks at home.

There was plenty of evidence of his popularity when, during the cup presentation ceremonies following the Greentree victory at Meadow Brook, it was Pete Bostwick who was mobbed by autograph seekers in the most approved Hollywood fashion. Even Gerald Balding, high scorer of the Greentree forenoon, was overlooked in the stampede for Bostwick's signature.

Prefers Horses to Yale Bostwick has the courage of a lion. He has always been a grand fighter—a little Dempsey, someone once called him, perhaps because of the wallop he packs on the polo field.

Pete has proved he can bump and wrestle with the best and there is no doubt as to his ability to control the hardest "puller" that ever got a bit between his teeth.

Bostwick was headed for Yale university after he had completed prep school education. But, he asked himself: "What's the use of sitting in a stuffy school room when one can sit on a horse and go somewhere?" He has been sitting on a horse ever since—largely because no one has been able to answer the question. And the chances are that he will

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has come home from four years in China only to have his old friend Billy Ross seriously injured while the two of them were on their way into the country from London. Thinking he is dying, Ross confesses that he is one of a dope-kidnapping gang, and that Ambrose Lawson is its leader. Mahony goes to town to make certain by a fancy dress costume seen Ross for secret at the cinema hall. Knowing an attempt may be made to kidnap Elsa Little, Mahony determines to attend the ball—and wear the costume.

Chapter Three CALL ON ELSA

TERENCE'S next action, after changing his quarters, was to buy himself a car. He had returned from China with a sum of nearly fifteen hundred pounds, and he spent three hundred of this on a second-hand but tremendously fast sports car, which he bought with a guarantee that it would do eighty-five.

affair, that—shocking. Obviously he was driving very recklessly." This remark merely confirmed the opinion which Mahony had formed instantly—that Little was a pompous old fool. He turned to Elsa. "I suppose you're going to the cinema hall tonight?" he remarked. "Yes," she answered. "Though I don't want to a bit, after that horrible accident, Billy Ross was to have been in our party, you know. I tried to get out of going, but Mr. Lawson said it would be silly, and the company I work for wouldn't hear of my not going."

"Lawson was right," put in Little importantly. "Young Ross was no relation of yours, and the public have paid a guinea each for tickets to the dance, expecting to see you and other stars there, and you have no right to disappoint them. I don't wonder that the company insisted on your going."

"Are you going with Lawson?" asked Mahony.

At that Little raised his eyebrows slightly. But Elsa answered with out hesitation. "A man named Fordham is calling for me, and we're joining Mr. Lawson's party at the Albert Hall. Are you going?"

"No," answered Mahony untruthfully. He paused.

"Who and what exactly is Lawson?" he asked. "Where does he come from?" Elsa's ankle looked, slightly shocked. "Lawson's a friend of ours—a very good friend," he said reprovingly. "He's an absolute first-class chap."

"Really?" said Mahony. He turned to Elsa. "You like him, do you?" he asked.

AT THAT question old Little's eyebrows went up about half an inch. Evidently he thought the question highly impertinent. That did not disturb Mahony. He wanted information, and he did not care a hoot if old Little's eyebrows went right up through the ceiling.

Elsa hesitated, laughed, and shrugged her shoulders slightly. "Well, yes, I think he's all right. He's rather an extraordinary man, you know, terribly clever. There doesn't seem to be anything that he can't do. He speaks about four languages, and he's good at sports, and he's a marvelous musician."

She hesitated again. "I don't think I altogether rave about him," she said judicially. "But he's been very nice to us."

"Nonsense, Elsa; you shouldn't say things like that; you know you like him," put in her uncle in a rather annoyed tone. "Everyone likes Lawson. He's most popular."

The door of the room opened. "Did I hear my name mentioned?" asked a voice from the doorway.

A tall man of about forty stood on the threshold. He was strikingly good-looking. His hair was dark, with a central parting; his eyes were dark, with a slight upward slant to them; his features were clear-cut and keen; his lips, slightly parted in a smile, revealed a glimpse of singularly white and perfect teeth.

His clothes were beautifully cut, and he wore them with an air of distinction. For a moment he stood quite still in the doorway, almost in the manner of an actor who pauses for a moment, after his first entrance on the stage, in order to give the applause time to subside.

"I found the front door unlocked, so I walked in," he said.

"Of course. That's all right, my dear chap; we're very glad to see you. Let's see, you've met—er..."

"You're going to the cinema hall tonight?"

Transferring his possessions and buying the car took him until nearly three in the afternoon. At half past three he called at the house in Chelsea, where Elsa Little lived with her uncle. He had only met Elsa twice in his life, and was aware that he had had no encouragement to call. That did not worry him. He had never suffered from shyness.

Vincent Little, Elsa's uncle, greeted him politely, but with an air of surprise, as if he were rather at a loss to account for the reason for his call. He spent a great deal of his time in being frigidly polite to young men with ambitions to see Elsa.

Elsa also seemed surprised, but not displeased to see him. In spite of her recent sensational rise to stardom in the film world, she had remained unspoiled and natural, that was part of her charm.

Mahony could easily understand how she had risen so quickly. Though small and childish-looking, there was an air of great health and vitality about her; she radiated personality. Her hair was very fair and silky, and fell in glossy waves on either side of her forehead, framing the delicious oval of her face.

Her eyes were a vivid blue, the bluest Mahony had ever seen; her nose was slightly turned up, giving her a rather impudent expression; her small mouth was delightful. She had a lovely friendly smile that crinkled the corners of her eyes a little, and caused the hearts of impressionable young men to melt within them.

"How nice of you to call," she said. "You'll stay to tea, won't you?"

VINCENT LITTLE frowned, and cleared his throat slightly. He did not want Mahony to stay to tea. He disapproved of the manner in which Elsa became friendly with young men without making the least enquiry into their wealth or social position. While he was proud of Elsa's rise to stardom, he deplored the fact that her association with the film world brought her into contact with a great number of people who had never played polo or hunted in their lives.

Still, as Mahony was staying to tea, he supposed he ought to talk to him.

"Let me see," he began rather patronizingly. "You're a friend of young Ross, aren't you? A shocking

A dhow is business at the moment, with the revolt freshening every day, the death toll rising steadily, tempers fraying, hatreds more bitter, violence more extreme?

"It's bad, very bad," he says. "Yesterday, after a whole week's work, I reached here with 47 rifles, 10,000 cartridges. But the more the British capture, the more we smuggle, and the more we get through."

The northern border of Palestine now is so well protected by British troops that Arab arms smuggling practically has ceased; along the Jordan river line north of the Dead Sea. But east of the roaring valley of biblical fame, some 2,000 feet below sea level, there stretches a wide desert, most difficult to patrol but simple territory for Arabs and camels.

It's not far to the Syrian border along this desert corridor, not far either to Iraq, where arms also are easy to procure. And coming into Palestine from the south, through more bleak desert and hill country, there are many places for gun runners to slip through the British cordons.

The Arabs say they have brought in at least 10,000 rifles and hundreds of thousands of rounds of ammunition through these holes. There seems plenty of truth to such a statement, for only a week ago one caravan was caught in a series of twisting wadis along the southern frontier between Ghafir and Rashrash, and in the camel packs were 1,000 army rifles and 23,000 cartridges.

QUEEN-TO-BE HAS WORRIES

Frets Over Carol's Freckles While Cabinet Falls

(By The Associated Press)

Mme. Magda Lupescu, object of gossip and headshaking again in the Balkan following a turnover in the Rumanian cabinet, has worries of her own.

First, there are the freckles. The few privileged Rumanians who have met their country's "uncrowned queen" say that freckles are one of her most distinguishing characteristics, aside from flaming red hair. Her royal friend, King Carol, rather likes the freckles, they add, and considers that they enhance her beauty. But she wants none of them and has tried all sorts of lotions and creams to get rid of them.

Then Mme. Lupescu—Ella, to the king—has a ways to think of the agitation against her by those who dislike her race, her reputation, her activities or her position as Carol's companion.

But political worries haven't kept Mme. Lupescu from a lively interest in hats and gowns.

Every class the Jewish red head as the best dressed and most respected woman in Rumania.

Information from Bucharest is that she has a red lesson for elaborate French fashions, ordering a dozen at a time. Couturiers say she generally selects chic-fitting gowns of rich dark material, which set off the beauty of her figure as well as of her face and hair.

"I wonder if the King will like me in this," she asks. And the dress maker replies: "Oh, certainly, madam, it is just to his majesty's taste."

Shopping along the boulevards in Bucharest, Mme. Lupescu is rarely alone. There's always the chance that someone who disposes strongly of her relationship with the king might take direct action. So Colonel Eric Urzulea, prefect of the royal police and one of King Carol's right hand men, accompanies her.

Once she was seen in the arm with the colonel, on the fashionable Ca's Victoriei where she selected six fine imported silk neckties.

"Twenty-five francs a lot (about $25)," said the salesman as he handed her the necktie.

"Oh, send the bill to the king, it will be all right," she replied.

For silk stockings and lingerie, Madame Lupescu's friends report, sends to New York department stores. She likes the goods and workmanship there as well as the prices.

A great lover of phonograph music, she orders all her phonograph records from New York also. Every month or so she and the king make out a list of new ones to be purchased. A new radio-phonograph set presented her by the king, provides broadcast entertainment also.

Rarely seen abroad except on the shopping trips, Mme. Lupescu dwells in a palace in the fashionable Chaussee section of Bucharest, guarded by armed men and detectives.

Arab Gun Runner Reveals Stories of Arms Bootlegging in Palestine

Then, if you hammer hard enough at him, and he really trusts you, he'll talk about his specialty, gun running.

DUCE SCHEMES TO GET MONEY

Italian Premier Evolves Plan to Secure Real Cash

By W. STEPHEN BUSH

Rome, Sept. 16.—The Italian government is evolving a new scheme for getting some real money into its treasury—or, plainly speaking, for stimulating the flow of remittances from Italians living in the United States. These remittances, considered in pre-war days one of the richest and most dependable sources of revenue, have within the last few years slumped until now in their thinness and infrequency they resemble the last run of shad.

The royal decree describing the general features of the new project speaks of the government's intention to issue treasury notes in foreign currencies. It is not stated in what particular foreign currency the notes are to be issued nor where it is intended to place them. The notes are to run for a period of one to two years and are to be exempt from all taxation present or future. The rate of interest is not mentioned and many other important details in such a matter are left undetermined. The publication of the decree in the press and the latter's inspired comments thereon make it seem like a trial balloon to be sent up for the particular benefit of American investors, press and government.

The area within which Italy can expect to raise a foreign loan is clearly limited. There is no chance in Europe. In order to place the proposed treasury notes in foreign currencies in Great Britain, Italy would have to obtain the consent of the Foreign Loans Committee—a rather remote contingency just now. As to the other countries in Europe they are either unable or unwilling to bolster up the lira at this time.

The Italian lira is now as much on the list of doubtful and depreciated currencies as the German mark. It loses some of its value the moment it crosses the border. In Switzerland, where lira are heavily traded in, the prevailing rate at this writing is 19 Swiss francs for 100 lire. Bills of 500 and 1000 lire may be had at even a lower rate. The parity of the lira in relation to the Swiss franc is 27.25 and today's nominal quotation is 24. In Paris the official quotation of the lira is 119.35 French francs for 100 lire but almost any bank will sell the lira at the rate of 95 French francs for 100 lire.

The so-called travel lira has not proved popular, because of the restrictions attached to it. For a few more cents one can buy lire without any restrictions. The government has tried to bar the way of the cheaply lira into Italy by an order limiting the maximum for import to 1000 lire. There is also a system of tagging and stamping big bills that are sent out of the kingdom. Unless these bills carry their yellow ticket with them their importation is considered unauthorized. They are subject to confiscation on the spot. But in spite of all these expedients the lira continues to wobble with a pronounced tendency to keel over.

Mussolini of course is well aware that his government, being in default on its payments of the war debt owed to America, is not eligible to borrow in the United States. But there is more than one way of capturing the "North American dollar" and sending it to the royal treasury in Rome.

The Italian press intimates that the security for the loan will consist of concessions for the development of the natural resources of Ethiopia. It is proposed to form a company for the exploitation of the African conquest. The company will be incorporated under an American charter and will have its legal residence within the jurisdiction of the United States. An able and aggressive promotion campaign will be conducted. In this field the Bureau of Propaganda and Publicity in Rome has no competitors. As soon as the details of incorporation are perfected bonds will be issued against the concessions in Africa. It is evident from the newspaper articles that a complete prospectus has been prepared and is ready for publication and circulation among prospective investors.

The promoters plan to make their first appeal to Italian residents in America and to Italian-Americans. At this time the "Department for Fascism Abroad" with its headquarters in Rome will come into action. Its bureau of statistics has divided the Italian population abroad into certain geographical groups. Its estimate of Italian-born aliens and Italians who have been naturalized is 800,000 for the New England states; 2,500,000 for New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; 600,000 for the Middle West; 700,000 for the Far West and 400,000 for the southern states—a total of 6,250,000. These figures comprise only men and women who were born in Italy. Adding the second generation would more than double the amounts.

Not all of these of course are good prospects for a direct or indirect subscription to a loan for the benefit of the fascist government. A goodly portion of them is hotly opposed to any such scheme. The inducements too are included in the ultimate. However, however, for all these deductions and figures there are enough men and women left in whom the selling of loyalty

Call The Coast Guard

Lost Parrots — Fishermen On Sprees — U. S. Fliers Hunt Them All

The fun these coast guardsmen see in taking in demonstrating how an injured man is removed from an ambulance plane at Miami belies the grave danger they face when flying to sea for ailing persons.

By J. A. HODGES

Miami, Fla. (AP)—Fishermen on spears and women with lost parrots keep dulled away from the lives of coast guardsmen stationed here.

The men at the Miami air base don't mind the strange requests they receive but they do wish "landlubbers" would get acquainted with boats.

Calls from missing fishermen's distraught relatives send the coast guardsmen off on frequently perilous flights at all times of the day and night searching for boats that fail to return.

"Sometimes we find them and sometimes we don't," said Lieut. Commander R. L. Raney. "However, the relatives usually aren't much help. They don't know the name or number of the missing craft and they can't describe it."

"When they do describe the boat, they usually say it's a 30-foot cabin cruiser with white or buff decks, and that fits a hundred charter boats in these waters."

Some searches end with aviators finding the boat safely anchored while the ostensible anglers go on a spree.

"Back hom, they think it's the boat that's disabled," Raney said, "but we don't squeal."

The most dangerous flights are those to the side of steamships far at sea to bring ailing seamen back to hospitals. The common difficulty is setting the large ambulance seaplane down in rough water. In addition to flipping over there is the possibility waves will prevent the plane from taking off after it has landed.

The fliers have little trouble locating steamships because their radio messages for aid always give the exact position.

"Along with these distress calls come others which give the government men a laugh."

"One family, fearing for the safety of an elderly man, asked the coast guard to warn him not to fish from a nearby dock."

An amateur kayak-builder wanted to know where to buy "dope." That's the glue used on airplane fuselage fabric.

And a woman enlisted the aid of the coast guard in her search for a pet parrot.

It's all a part of the work, the guardsmen say, while they tune up their plane motors and listen for radio buzzings of something more serious.

ing being located near Kings Mountain.

Mr. Bryson asserted that Frank L. Hess, principal mineralogist, U. S. Bureau of Mines, with O. C. Ralston, of the same bureau, recently examined the deposits near Kings Mountain, which hitherto had been considered of insignificant value, "but with interest focused on their spodumene content has given a considerably different idea of their relative importance," commented the mineralogist. Mr. Hess also indicated a possible much larger use of lithium salts.

"The lithium-bearing pegmatites are unusually consistent in that they carry spodumene almost throughout," said Mr. Hess in a recent article. "It is not to be supposed that they are everywhere equally rich, but in nearly all of those which carry any of the mineral it is uncommon to find a part that does not show some spodumene."

"So much of the spodumene-bearing rock lies on the surface of the ground and is available in protruding outcrops that hundreds of tons of lithium salts could be produced without digging."

Mr. Hess suggests means of concentration which he thinks should be comparatively simple, and he revealed that an investigation of the general problem of separation of the lithium from rock to finished product has been undertaken by Mr. Ralston and concentration by Will H. Coghill of the Bureau of Mines.

Most widely known fact about lithium, according to Mr. Hess is that it has been prescribed extensively as a cure for bodily ailments. Lithium (metal), has been used in small amounts for hardening aluminum and lead and some in storage battery, Mr. Hess said.
