Gen. Frank D. Hines Warns Legion Against Any Further Benefits

Desire to Avoid Possible Claims of Injustice

WILLIAM GREEN ALSO IS HEARD

Labor President Asks Support for Neutrality Against Foreign Entanglements

Cleveland, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The American legion selected New York today for its 1937 convention, heard a plea for a veteran labor alliance against "foreign entanglements" and a warning to move cautiously in pressing for new benefits for ex-service men.

Election of Harry W. Comery, Topeka, Kansas lawyer as national commander was assured for tomorrow when his only remaining opponent, Quimby Melton, Griffin, Ga. editor conceded victory to the Topekan.

Gotham's spectacular bid for next year's meeting won a shouting approval from the convention floor for the slogan "up Fifth avenue again in 1937."

Cleveland, Sept. 23.—(AP)—General Frank D. Hines, veterans administrator warned the American legion today against pressing immediately for further veteran's benefits while William F. Green, American Federation of Labor president, urged legion support for neutrality legislation against "foreign entanglements."

Asserting disabled veterans and dependents of those who died in the service "have had reasonably adequate compensation," the veterans bureau chief added:

"In the consideration of future proposals for the enactment of additional legislation beneficial to veterans and their dependents, due recognition should be given to existing benefits and care exercised to avoid the possibility of claims of injustices" to non-veteran groups.

The American Federation of Labor chief pleaded with the legion to join forces with labor in demanding "strengthened" neutrality legislation.

The American legion and the American Federation of Labor standing together will constitute a highly force against any attempt which may be made to inveigle the United States into any of the controversies and war activities of European countries."

Course in Safety To Be Offered At Teachers College

First College Course in Highway Safety to Be Taught in State to Be in This City

The first college course in highway safety to be offered in North Carolina is to be taught this year at Eastern Carolina Teachers College here, according to Director Arthur Fulk of the highway safety division of the Department of Revenue.

The course is entitled Safety Education and is being taught by Prof. M. L. Wright, head of the Department of Sociology and is designed primarily to train teachers so that they will be able to teach safety especially highway safety, when they become teachers.

"So far as I am able to learn, this is the first regular course in safety education to be offered in any college or university in North Carolina," Director Fulk said, in Raleigh yesterday. "We feel that the institution of this course by Prof. Wright is due in part to the lectures on highway safety given before all the summer schools in the state this past summer under the auspices of the highway safety division and the National Safety Council, in which an effort was made to get the teachers of the state interested in safety and especially in teaching safety in the public schools."

Prof. Wright has written to Director Fulk asking him to inform him of any textbooks dealing with safety and especially highway safety, also for suggestions dealing with the teaching of highway safety.

Director Fulk has already assembled a bibliography dealing with all phases of highway safety and is sending Prof. Wright this list of texts. He has also prepared a suggested outline for the teaching of safety in the public schools which he will send to any teachers who would like to have it.

"We have written Prof. Wright that we will cooperate with him in

TWO BROTHERS DIE TOGETHER

Hanged for Killing Woodsman in Kidnap Plot

Dorchester, New Brunswick, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Two brothers — Arthur Bannister, 19, and Daniel, 20,—were hanged together today for killing a woodsman-squatter during the kidnaping of his infant daughter for her mother to use in the "baby doll" extortion plot.

"It's too tight, I can't pray," complained Daniel, shortly before the traps were sprung simultaneously.

The brothers were convicted of killing Phillip Lake, 30-year-old woodsman living near Pacific Junction, New Brunswick. The Crown charged the Bannister brothers were responsible for Lake's death during the abduction of his four-month-old daughter last January. Mrs. May Bannister, their mother, wanted the baby to aid in an alleged extortion plot against two men, the Crown charged, who were under moral obligation to her.

During the kidnaping Lake was killed, his common law wife fatally injured and his young son left to die outside their lonely cabin in mid winter, the prosecution alleged.

'CHAIN LETTER' ADDICTS GETTING QUARTERS BACK

Ponca City, Okla. (AP) — Ten thousand quarters, contained in letters mailed during the "chain letter" craze last March, are being returned to the senders.

The Ponca City postoffice was flooded with the letters due to a hospital building fund movement started here. The letters were impounded when the postoffice department ruled the chain letter movement violated department regulations.

CROWDS AT OBSERVATORY MAKE LAND OWNERS RICH

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — The Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory is proving a bonanza for the company which owns the land on which it is situated.

Until a year ago the observatory could be reached only by a steep, narrow toll road and visitors were comparatively few. Then Los Angeles county built a high gear road up the mountain.

The institution charges no admission, but the owners of the mountain top site are reaping a harvest in parking and other fees.

ADMITS BEING PAID TO BREAK MANY STRIKES

Chicago Man Says He Was Hired by the Strike-Breakers

TELLS OF DEATHS IN LAKE CHARLES

Asserts Guards Turned over Automobiles and Fired at Own Men Create Strife

Washington, Sept. 23.—(AP)—E. J. McDade of Chicago told a senate investigating committee today he had been frequently employed by strike-breaking agencies to create disorder for the purpose of discrediting union strikers.

Speaking almost in a whisper, McDade testified before the Lafollette committee investigating alleged violations of workers' civil liberties that three men were killed in a seven-hour battle at Lake Charles, La., where he had brought 21 men from New Orleans to serve as guards during a longshoremen's strike.

The guards were sworn in as special deputy sheriffs, he said, and were armed with machine guns and tear gas supplied by Federal Laboratories, Inc. of Pittsburgh. They were employed by the railway audit and inspection, an industrial detective firm, he added.

During the 1921 Cleveland milk strike, McDade told the committee, red paint was daubed on the house of Frank Tabor, head of the Tabor Ice cream company, in an attempt to "create sentiment against the strikers."

Guards turned over union automobiles and fired on their own men in that strike, he said, to create disorders and cause the hiring of more men.

Parole of Banker Been Terminated By Commutation

Wallace B. Davis, Former Asheville Banker, Was Granted Parole on April 19, 1935

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—The parole granted to Wallace B. Davis, former Asheville banker convicted with Colonel Luke Lea of Nashville, Tenn., for violation of the state banking laws in connection with the failure of the Central Bank and Trust Co. of Asheville, has been terminated by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus by commutation. It was learned here today. The commutation terminating the parole was issued August 29, by Edwin Gill, Commissioner of Paroles, but nothing was learned of the commutation until today.

This commutation officially ends the parole and reduces Davis' sentence to the time served, approximately 2 1/2 years, instead of permitting the original sentence of 5 to 7 years to stand. As long as the parole was in effect, the Governor at any time could have revoked the parole and Davis would have had to return to prison to complete his sentence. Now, however, that the parole has been terminated by commutation, Davis has the same status as if he had completed his term and cannot now be returned to prison for any reason whatsoever in connection with this particular conviction. This action also gives Davis the opportunity to go into court to seek the restitution of his citizenship and right to vote.

Davis entered prison here October 26, 1932 and was paroled April 19, 1935, after serving approximately 2 1/2 years of a maximum sentence of from 5 to 7 years, the records show.

There is nothing unusual about the termination of paroles by commutation, according to Commission Gill, who explains that it is now the practice of his office to end paroles by this method whenever it becomes apparent that a parolee prisoner has completely reformed and no longer needs the restraining effect of a parole.

"Whenever a parolee prisoner so behaves himself that we are convinced he has reformed and that it is not necessary to hold the threat of revoking a parole over him to keep him going straight, we end the parole with a commutation," Gill said. "This action relieves the prisoners of having to report to county welfare officers each month and puts them on the same footing as a discharged prisoner."

Arthur B. Reeve, mystery story writer who died recently, had more than 800 works of fiction to his credit.

MAYOR FAVORS HOUSING PLAN

Issues Proclamation Urging Citizens to Participate

The "Better Housing Campaign" for the Federal Housing Administration in Greenville was endorsed in a proclamation issued today by M. K. Blount, Mayor, who urged interested citizens to observe, September 23, 24, 25, 23, as "Better Housing Days."

The proclamation follows: "Whereas, the Federal Housing Administration is directing a nationwide "better housing program" for the purpose of helping the citizens of this nation to buy, build, refinance, and modernize their homes, and since it is uniformly recognized that home ownership makes for better citizenship; and, Whereas, the citizens of Greenville and surrounding districts will be given every opportunity to discuss their home financing problems with representatives of the Federal Housing Administration at an insured mortgage clinic to be held in Greenville beginning on Wednesday the twenty-third and continuing through the week; and, "Whereas, the Federal Housing Administration, through the clinic, will be a definite stimulus to business in Greenville, will increase employment and will bring us a step nearer that prosperity for which we are all working;

"Therefore Be It Resolved, that I, as Mayor of Greenville, urge all interested Greenville citizens to observe Wednesday, September twenty-third through the week, as "Better Housing Days."

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED FOR PART OF CHINA

Japanese Navy Landing Party Invokes Rule

ACTION FOLLOWS FATAL SHOOTING

North Section of International Settlement Included in the Area Affected.

(Copyright by the Associated Press) Shanghai, Sept. 24.—(Thursday)—Japanese bluecoats, armed for war held a portion of Shanghai's international settlement under martial law early today in a grim search for the gunman, who, a few hours before, had shot three Japanese marines, one of them fatally.

Memories of Shanghai's memorable 1932 siege came back vividly as the reinforced Japanese marines occupied the entire Hongkew area of the settlement, where the shooting occurred and spread their lines to the creek which cuts through the heart of the foreign area.

The Japanese charged the shootings were the work of two Chinese gunmen. One suspect was held. Another fled into a maze of dark alleys of the Japanese populated district. The two surviving marines, it was announced, probably would recover.

Japanese authorities stated: "Before the night is over we shall take adequate steps to protect Japanese lives and property in Shanghai."

Shanghai, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Commanders of a Japanese naval landing party declared martial law tonight in a huge area in the northern section of the international settlement where three Japanese marines were shot, one fatally.

An alleged Chinese gunman was seized and taken to a branch of Japanese naval headquarters for questioning about the shooting. Another suspect escaped in a maze of dark alleys.

An unconfirmed report stated a fourth Japanese marine was shot by an unidentified assailant near the scene of the first shooting. The flag ship of the Japanese fleet, now tied up in the heart of the Shanghai waterfront, was understood to be preparing to land additional marines.

Wilson Fire Causes $15,000 in Damages

Wilson, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Fire, believed caused by spontaneous combustion, did damage estimated at $15,000 to $30,000 to a three-story brick cotton warehouse here today.

The fire started on the third floor and had gained considerable headway when discovered. Firemen soon brought the blaze under control however.

Between 300 and 400 bales of cotton were badly damaged by the fire and others damaged by water and smoke. Damage to the warehouse was slight.

GOOD TOBACCO SELLING HIGH

Demand Continues Be Good for Medium Grades

Good tobacco continued to bring high prices on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday, but a large quantity of black and green tips which were offered held the average down materially.

Medium to good grades have brought higher prices during this week, some piles bringing up to $80 or over.

Yesterday's offerings of 744,572 carried total sales this year to more than 11,000,000 pounds for the entire 1936 season.

A total of 11,617,946 pounds of the leaf has been sold here this year, bringing $2,516,894.18, an official average of $21.65 per hundred weight.

Yesterday 744,572 pounds were sold for $156,006.81, an average of $20.96.

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Tobacco prices continued firm today at the big markets of the North Carolina middle belt.

Early sales today at Fuquay Springs, estimated at 500,000 pounds brought from $28 to $29 per hundred weight. Lenoir County warehouses estimated early sales at 150,000 with an average price of $27.60 predominating.

An official statement of opening day sales yesterday on the Henderson market said 496,154 pounds sold for $130,897.87, an average of $26.37 a hundred.

The statement said the average was the highest for an opening day since 1919, except in 1924, when the average was approximately half a cent better.

Reports from Oxford said prices were holding to higher levels there with nearly 1,000,000 pounds on warehouse floors for the second day's sales.

Opening day's sales there amounted to 496,924 pounds for $116,986.87, an average of $23.52 a hundred pounds.

Approximately 100,000 pounds were taken to Sandford warehouses today as sales continued at a lively clip.

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Tobacco market news service reported today that 18 of the 19 grades of officially inspected tobacco on the Farmville and Goldsboro markets (Continued on Page Eight)

HEAR REPORTS OF SURRENDER

Commander, However, Prepares Take Spanish Capital By Storm; Government Forces Said to Have Been Harled Back on Both Fronts After Heavy Losses

(Copyright by Associated Press) Fascist headquarters: "Elvira de la Reina—the fall of Madrid and Toledo was declared imminent today by insurgent leaders as the fascists rapidly cut the distance separating their armies from both cities."

Officers said the government forces were harled back on both fronts after suffering severe losses in battles at Torrijos and along the Talavera—Madrid highway beyond Madrid.

Reports were current the Madrid government was debating the advisability of surrender.

General Francisco Franco, insurgent commander, however, prepared to take Madrid by storm, probably in a joint attack with forces of General Emilio Mola, occupying out of the Guadarrama mountains northwest of the capital.

A third insurgent column struck out straight north of Madrid, determined to subdue the hostile regions west of Madrid.

Only sporadic resistance, said General Franco's headquarters, had been encountered so far. But a full-scale story was being in the making as the insurgents neared Genoa. Gen. Del Balmis, Madrid's central commander.

Gov. Alf Landon Steps Personally Into Organization

Join in Iowa Campaign After Farm Address Pleading "Independent Agriculture"

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon stepped personally into Iowa Republican party organization work today after a farm address pleading a "free and independent agriculture."

Cash benefits and conservation payments were endorsed by the candidate last night amid the cheers of an audience at the state fair grounds estimated by police at from 15,000 to 18,000.

Cheers greeted his declaration that after four years the new deal was "right back where it started from" and that its conservation plan was a "stop gap and a half-breed."

Landon asserted that in his opinion the new deal had no farm policy and outlined his plan for a "settled, workable national plan for agriculture."

The Republican nominee's intensive schedule today calls for conferences with party leaders.

He also had an appointment with John P. Wallace and Dan Wallace, uncle of Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, both of whom long have been connected with farm paper publishing.

J. H. WALDROP IN STATEMENT

Discusses Methods Of Securing Loan from the FHA

J. H. Waldrop, cashier of the Guaranty Bank & Trust company which institution is the authorized lending agency for the Federal Housing Administration, today issued the following statement:

Eighteen months ago we qualified as a lending agency to handle loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

There are two types of these loans:

Title I. Up to $2,000.00 payable monthly up to thirty-six months can be used only for repairs and improvements to properties, and only 10% of these loans are insured. We have only handled a limited number of these loans because the demand of worthy applicants has not been very great. All such loans as we have handled are paid up to date and experience has been very satisfactory.

Title II. Loans are first mortgage loans on residential property. We started out to handle $100,000 of this paper and our experience was so satisfactory that we increased it to $1,000,000.

ed the amount and have already handled forty-eight loans totaling $122,003.00 in Greenville. Twenty-four of the loans were for new construction and twenty-four of the loans were for refinancing and purchase. These loans are insured 100% by the Federal Housing Administration. We have made $2,000.00 a minimum loan and fifteen years maximum time on the loans we handle. They are payable monthly and the monthly payments include taxes and insurance which prevents the possibility of any substantial payments having to be made at any one time. Of the forty-eight loans we have made there is not a delinquent payment on any loan, and those who have borrowed the money seem to be well pleased with the terms of payment and method of handling.

We feel very proud to have had this part in creating additional home owners, as we feel that every man owes it to his family to own a home if possible.

The terms under which these loans are made make it possible for people of very moderate income to own a home if they have looked ahead and saved up a small amount with which to buy a lot or make a down payment.

HIGH SCHOOLS RECORD GAINS

Enrollment Increases To Estimated 75,000 Students

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—More children are attending high school this year than ever before, although there is a decrease in the enrollment in the elementary grades. Lloyd Griffin, executive secretary of the State School Commission pointed out today. The high school enrollment this year is estimated at approximately 175,000, the largest in the history of the state's public school system, with approximately 725,000 in the elementary grades, making a total of about 900,000 children enrolled in both the elementary and high schools. The enrollment in the entire system for the school year 1934-35, the last school year for which the complete figures are available, was 892,000, so it is generally conceded that the enrollment this year is in excess of 900,000. The high school enrollment in 1934-35 was 156,593 but this is now believed to be at least 175,000.

Last year there was an increase of 4,090 in the high school attendance over that of the 1934-35 school year, although there was a decrease of 2,050 in the elementary schools attendance. Griffin pointed out. This year there is a still greater increase in high school attendance and another slight drop in elementary enrollment, as shown by teacher allotments.

Last year a total of 23,570 teachers were allotted of which 23,492 actually worked and were paid from state funds, exclusive of vocational education teachers. Griffin pointed out. So far this year, 23,666 teachers have been allotted, or 174 more than actually were employed last year. Of this larger number of teachers allotted to the schools this year, 4,308 have been allotted to white high schools as compared with 4,224 allotted to white high schools last year, an increase of 84 in the number of white high school teachers allotted. Only 12,433 white elementary teachers were allotted this year as compared with 12,532 white elementary teachers last year, a decrease of 99 in the number of white elementary teachers allotted this year, indicating a further decrease in average daily attendance in the elementary grades.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

It was during a midnight bull session in the back stage dressing room of a glamorous old playhouse. We sat around on broken-down divans, toying with a magnum or so of coffee and talking of the inscrutability of success on Broadway.

There were an orchestra impresario, a theatrical manager, a motion picture star, a columnist, and the mentor of a famous prize-fighter. Most of the tales concerned dramatic episodes in the careers of one celebrity or another, and not a few of them illustrated how often the performer turned a contretemps into a great triumph.

"An interesting point in common with this is an accident that once befell Vladimir De Pachmann," recalled Joe Reckman, whose music is wafted on the fall breeze each night from the roof of the Hotel Pennsylvania. "De Pachmann suffered the bane of all musicians, a memory lapse, and found himself stumped in the middle of an important number. Chagrined, he banged a certain note on the piano again and again, as if he were dissatisfied with the quality of the tone and left the stage in genuine disgust. Immediately a young man, a piano tuner, rushed out and tinkered with the instrument, restoring the key to the tone desired by De Pachmann. Then, all smiles, the pianist returned and gave his audience some brilliant renditions.

"Actually, the 'piano-tuner' was a young man who just happened to be backstage—I think his real business was stocks and bonds. While he faked at the piano, De Pachmann hurriedly went over that part of the score that had slipped his memory.

"The audience, completely taken in, remembered De Pachmann as being pleasingly eccentric. It never dreamed that the great man had momentarily drawn a blank."

Then the fight manager chimed in: "My boy was taking a terrific shellacking one night. His adversary was all over him, cutting him down with a well directed body attack. This was in one of the little fight clubs out of town and while the fight was going on the local band was giving a concert in the hall next door.

"Suddenly our opponent stopped a left jab in mid air and stood straight up, as if at attention. He dropped his gloves to his side. My boy seized this opportunity like a drowning man grasping a life preserver. He knocked his man kicking with a roundhouse right to the jaw. After the fight, we understood what had happened. The band next door had suddenly blared out the national anthem, and the other fighter, being patriotic and somewhat confused, thought he was still in the army. When my boy hit him he saw more stars and stripes than he could count in a hundred patric flags."

So it goes. John Barrymore once gained an important assignment because he missed a train. Dizzy Dean was a failure at picking cotton, so he became a scintillating star of the diamond. You never can tell.

MALE QUAIL SITS— BUT UNDER PROTEST

Hershey, Pa. (AP)—A male quail went maternal near here and hatched a brood—but he did it under protest.

Early in the hatching period at the Hershey quail farm, the mother bird left her nest of 10 eggs and the father took her place, voluntarily at first.

Then he became tired of his job and tried to leave. But each time he made the effort, the mother bird drove him back to the nest.

Finally, eight of the 10 eggs hatched.

Presbyterian Prayer Service
There will be regular mid-week prayer service this evening at 7:30 in the Presbyterian church.

Memorial Baptist Prayer Service.
The Mid-week Devotional Study Hour: 8:00 o'clock. The devotional topic of our meditation will be: "These things saith the Amen." All members are invited to be present, and to enjoy the blessing of our fellowship together. Come and you will be happy to return and to invite others to be with you. The officers and teachers of the Sunday School are expected to be present. This hour offers them an opportunity to be fully prepared for their task on the Lord's Day.

The 4-H Club Council.
The 4-H Club of Pitt County held a social meeting in the Campus building in Greenville Wednesday night, September 16.

At this meeting we elected the officers for the following term. The officers were: President, Lucille Tugwell; Vice-President, Noah Carroll; Secretary and Treasurer, Albert French Tyson; Program Conductor, Virginia Woolard; Song Leader, Elizabeth Whitchard; Reporter, Hal Thomas Erwin.

The nominating committee is: Myra Watson, Doris Mae Hawkins, Hal Thomas Erwin and Dalton Vainright.

We have organized the council to meet at the Campus Building the first Thursday night of each month at 7:30 P. M.

The girls have had a Council for the past several years, but this is the first joint 4-H Council in the County. We played several games, sang some songs, and then had refreshments.

We had a very fine time and enjoyed it very much.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.
"Matter" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 20.

The Golden Text was from John 3:6. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; he also is to be feared above all gods. For all the gods of the people are idols; but the Lord made the heavens. Glory and honor are in his presence; the strength and gladness are in his place. Give unto the Lord, ye kindreds of the people, give unto Lord glory and strength." (I Chronicles 16:25-28).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The immortal never produces the mortal. Good cannot result in evil. As God Himself is good and is Spirit goodness and spirituality must be immortal. Their opposites, evil and matter, are mortal error, and error has no creator. If goodness and spirituality are real, evil and materiality are unreal and cannot be the outcome of an infinite God, good. (Page 277)

Methodist Philathea Class.
The Junior Philathea Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church will meet Thursday evening at 8 o'clock with Mrs. L. M. Ernest on the Washington highway.

ARMCHAIRS ON THE ALCAZAR FIRING LINE

These loyalist soldiers believe in making themselves comfortable even while fighting Fascist rebels besieged in the Alcazar at Toledo, Spain. The armchairs in which they are seated behind sandbags were dragged from nearby buildings. Meanwhile, the insurgents continued to hold the Alcazar despite a two months' bombardment, the explosion of underground mines and constant sniping. (Associated Press Photo)

BEAR SAID BE SMART ANIMAL

Has More Sense Than Some People, Declares Warden

Reflector Bureau.

Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 22.—The bears that live in the mountains of western North Carolina are among the smartest of all the wild animals and have more sense than a lot of people, according to C. N. Mease, chief game protector on the 17,000 acre Mt. Mitchell Game Refuge in Yancey county, maintained by the Department of Conservation and Development. While most of the bears on the refuge are for the most part harmless and more afraid of human beings than human beings are of them, a few have lost their fear of people and enjoy playing jokes and tricks on them, Mease said.

"We had a big black bear up in the refuge a few years ago that we knew to be harmless, although he enjoyed frightening people," Mease said. "He could tell right away if a person was even slightly worried or frightened and would then do his best to worry him. His favorite trick was to follow a person at a distance of about 100 feet and keep the same pace as the person he was following. Usually the person would become more and more frightened and eventually break into a run, when the bear would run, too, but always keep the same distance. But he would never attack or hurt any one. It was all just a game with him and he never bothered any of us, since he knew all the refuge rangers and knew he could not fool or bluff them.

"But because he had frightened so many people who came into the refuge from time to time, we decided to catch him, put a collar on him and keep him tied up in a pen. But we found we could not get near enough to him to put a collar on him. We then decided to try to trap him.

"We fixed up a big trap, baited it with a dish of honey and ran a string from the trigger over into a clump of trees where I told one of the rangers to hide and wait until the bear got in the trap and then pull the string to trip the trigger. All the time we were fixing the trap, the bear sat in an open space across the creek watching every move, just as if he thought something unusual was going on.

"After we had fixed the trap and left, the bear decided to come over and investigate, for bears have more curiosity than almost any other animal. He walked all around the trap, sniffed at the dish of honey, but made no move to enter it. Instead, he stood on his hind legs right in front of the trap, evidently saw the string attached to the trigger and then followed the string up to a place where he could reach it. He then grabbed it with one hand, just like a street car conductor ringing up fares, gave it a jerk and sprung the trap. Then he waddled back to the trap and started eating the honey by reaching through the slats in the side. He was a smart bear."

Mease estimates that there must be almost 200 bears in the refuge at the present time, despite the fact that bear hunters average killing about 50 bears each season along the ridge just outside the refuge line. But all the bears and other animals for miles around outside the refuge seem to know that they are safe from hunters and dogs inside the refuge and make for it just as soon as the hunting season opens, Mease said. They wander for miles outside the refuge through the mountains during the closed seasons, but head back into it when the guns begin to fire. But a good many fall prey to the guns of hunters before they can get back into the refuge.

The bear hunting season opens October 20 this year and Mease is looking for more bear hunters than usual along the mountains just outside the refuge area.

ing in automobile and truck mechanics as well as in wood-working and carpentry, is foreseen by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin if the coming general assembly will only provide an appropriation sufficient to permit the state to share in the enlarged amount of Federal aid made available by this last Congress, he said today. Supt. Erwin pointed out that if the state will appropriate as much as $200,000 for vocational education, the Federal government will give the state approximately $750,000 in Federal aid, and thus make available a total of more than $1,000,000 for enlarging the vocational education program in the state.

At the present time the state is providing an appropriation of only $180,000 a year for this purpose, the Federal government providing another equal amount, so that a total of about $360,000 a year is now available. But this is not enough, Supt. Erwin is convinced.

"We are hoping to change our vocational education program to provide instruction in crop and produce grading in the rural schools and to install courses in both retail and wholesale salesmanship in the city and town schools, in addition to the present courses in agriculture, domestic science, manual training and industrial arts," Supt. Erwin said. "We feel that if the farmers in the east, for instance, knew how to grade their produce better, they could get much better prices—in fact, the produce dealers have told me that the lack of grading or improper grading is costing the farmers hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. They also need

THE F. H. A. CLINIC

The Federal Housing Administration, perhaps the most common-sense project initiated by the New Deal, has its intricacies. Financing the building or alteration of a home or commercial structure is within itself a complicated affair. To do so through an agency set up by the government on a nation-wide scale involving billions instead of millions is still more complicated, especially since the government is operating through a maze of existing agencies. The government's plan is not lacking in simplicity, but ever since the FHA came into being there has been the problem of imparting knowledge and motion to the prospective home builder.

To solve this problem the Housing Administration is conducting a mortgage clinic in Greenville. This clinic will be held on the second floor of the Post Office in Greenville and will be in charge of well-informed field workers. The prospective home owner may carry his problem to clinic headquarters and obtain complete information regarding the government's plan, which, incidentally, has been wholeheartedly endorsed by the leading banks and other private commercial agencies. It is a cooperative plan in which the banks and the government share liability.

Those who are anxious to build residences, remodel or make additions to their dwellings will do well to go to the FHA mortgage clinic which will be open here tomorrow morning. Many problems which could not be settled within a few moments of personal interview.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

(Continued from Page One) campaign by Candidate Landon, the G. O. P.-ers think they can corral slightly more than the necessary 266 electoral votes. Here are the states where Mr. Hamilton will miss his shock troops: New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Maryland, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana. It's the section where the New Deal is supposed to be least popular. These states will furnish 234 electoral votes. Chairman Hamilton expects to pick up the balance in Kansas, Wyoming, South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska or Iowa. As figured in inner circles, it's the East against the West, with each candidate apparently more popular in alien territory than on his home grounds.

EASIER: Despite Republican cheer-leaders, Governor Landon can win only by the narrowest sort of political squeeze play. Even his confidants recognize the peril of a single mistake of looseness in campaign organization.

A close analysis of these G. O. P. expectations reveals that the battle really settles down into a scrap

DUKE-COLGATE VIE SATURDAY

New Yorkers Favor Red Raiders to Win by Wide Margin

Durham, Sept. 23.—It's an odd thing how football games stack up to the fans—even more peculiar when two teams, geographically far apart, meet as early in the season as Duke and Colgate.

For instance, folks up New York way like very much the Red Raiders—so much, in fact, that they are willing to spot from 7 to 18 points or will give mighty fine odds that the razzle dazzle boys, who have turned in one of the sweetest records in the east since 1929, will board their train Saturday night on the long end of the score.

Now, these southern fans are just about as optimistic about Duke. They figure they can safely give 7 points and they may stretch it a point and give some good odds.

That's what's rather odd about the situation. Maybe some means should be figured out to get the partisans from the two sections together.

Of course, the non-bettors can see that those Red Raiders and those Blue Devils are going to put on quite an afternoon of football in Duke stadium Saturday. It appears that the two teams are just about evenly matched. The battle of the "razzle dazzle" vs. the "orthodox" sizes up as some scrap.

There is a news reel circulating through the theatres of the state that may bring a big drop in the stock of the Blue Devils. It did with a lot of folks in Durham when shown in a local movie house.

The reel was a short of the Red Raiders at work with the later passes and it also had a few shots of the Colgate-Syracuse game of 1935 when the Red Raiders turned in a big upset victory over Syracuse on the same day Duke upstaged North Carolina's Tar Heels.

The reel pictured the Red Raiders at top speed with their laterals and many of the people in this city who saw it left the theatre agreeing with the Colgate press agent who says the Blue Devils will be "chasing ghosts" in Duke stadium Saturday afternoon.

FIVE DUKE STUDENTS RETURN FROM GERMANY

Durham, Sept. 22.—Five Duke university students have returned after studying during the summer at Heidelberg university, Germany, where they held scholarships. They are: Ross D. McClelland, Asheville; Hamilton Slingluff, Jr., Upper Montclair, N. J.; David Cozart, Jr., Raleigh; Herbert Pohl, Rutherford; and Miss Dorothy Seymour, Plainville, Conn. They studied principally German language, literature, music and art.

Duke has been represented each summer for several years at Heidelberg.

Family Tree in Full Bloom

Junction City, Kas. (AP)—Three hundred members of the Gfe'ler family attended the family's fourth annual reunion near here this summer. The family tree, containing 1,066 names, traces the family from Peter Gfe'ler, who settled in Aida, Kas. in 1875.

The favorite dish of CCC enrollees a poll shows, is pork and apple sauce.

AVERY GETS CENTER POST

After a great deal of experimenting with various candidates, Coach Ray Wolf has about decided that Pete Avery, (above), under-tody to Babe Daniel last year, will get first call for center in the opening game with Wake Forest in Charlotte's new stadium Saturday. Should Avery not come through against the Deacons, the chances are that Buck McCarn, converted end, will be used at the pivot post. Avery comes from Morganton, is 19, weighs 185, stands 6 feet 11, is a University junior, and prepped at Morganton High.

SPORT SLANTS

The time-worn adage, "Take nothing for granted in baseball," does not merely apply to the action on the diamond—it holds true in other respects as well. Take the cases of Jake Powell, Kemp Wicker and Bob Seeds. This trio is headed for a cut of the World series melon and a possible chance at gaining places in the bright glow of the big series spotlight. "Something they never dreamed of months, and in the cases of Wicker and Seeds, even weeks ago. The pennant-winning Yankees are counting the days until they will meet their National league opponents in the fall classic, and none of the Yankees look forward to that day more than do Powell, Wicker and Seeds.

Up to the middle of June, Jake Powell was floundering around with the rest of the Washington team. And then he exchanged uniforms with Ben Chapman of the Yankees. The entire outlook changed for Powell. And it became brighter and brighter as the Yankee machine thundered down the home stretch to win the American league pennant. It practically assures Powell a full share of the series swag, very likely to come close to the amount specified in the year's contract he brought from Washington.

Kemp Wicker is another fortunate. The left-hander came up from Newark to take the place of Ted Kleinham. More than likely Kemp will split a series share with Ted.

But Bob Seeds is the most fortunate of all. A short time ago he was with the Montreal Royals of the International loop. His team was in sixth place, hopelessly out of the playoffs. Seeds' outlook was anything but bright. The best he could hope for was that one of the last place teams in the major leagues would draft him and give him another chance under the big tent. There wasn't too much chance of that, he figured. And then along came the New York Yankees. The Yankees needed an experi-

PACK WORKING UNDER LIGHTS

N. C. State Preparing for Davidson Game Saturday

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—A scrimmage under the lights is scheduled tonight for the N. C. State College Wolfpack as Coach Hunk Anderson shapes the Pack for its struggle Saturday night with Davidson College at 8 o'clock in Riddick Stadium.

The remainder of drills this week will be staged under the floodlights in order to have the Wolves acclimate themselves to nocturnal playing conditions. The game is the second for them this fall, but will be their first night test. Davidson opened their schedule last Saturday with a night game with Duke at Greensboro.

Before the Wolfpack can meet the Wildcats on even terms, Hunk Anderson and his assistants, Ed Koksy and Mike Koken, must have the Wolves overcome several weaknesses that were uncovered in the Elon game last Saturday.

For one thing, the Wolves will have to block better if their backs are to pierce the big Davidson line for any consistent gains. The Davidson wall is one of the heaviest strongest and smartest the Presbyterian school has turned out. It is headed by Captain "Big Six" Johnson, left guard.

State's passing attack must be improved. The Wolves may have to use the air often and must have better success than they did against Elon when seven passes were tried and none completed. The final outcome of Saturday's game may depend upon the extra points after touchdowns. Here State will have to show improvement as it missed both of its attempts against Elon.

State's punting must be better. State backs punted eight times against Elon and averaged 29 yards a punt. Anderson has the kickers however, and good punting may be the thing needed to keep the Wildcats away from the Wolfpack goal line.

Coach Anderson says the State-Davidson game will be as thrilling as the Duke-Colgate game Saturday

WFC-CAROLINA TO DRAW MANY

Always Plenty Color and Glamor in this Annual Battle

Chapel Hill, Sept. 23.—There's always lots of color and glamor when two outstanding ends oppose each other on the gridiron. The Carolina-Wake Forest game at Charlotte Saturday goes that one better—for three of the finest flankmen in Dixie will be represented on the two teams.

They are Dick Buck and Andy Bershak of the Tar Heels and "Preacher" Bert Shore of the Deacons. All were honored on mythical All-State and All-Southern selections last fall. Shore was named on several of the All-State teams as were Buck and Bershak. Buck was chosen on the All-Southern eleven selected by the Associated Press.

This same trio had a prominent part in the 1935 Tar Heel-Demon Deacon fracas. Buck and Bershak lent a helping hand to the Carolina defensive cause which stopped the Deacons from advancing any further than their own 32 yard line. They broke through frequently to stop the Baptist backs on their tracks.

Likewise Bert Shore justly was termed the "demon" of the Deacons' defense. The Tar Heels frequently penetrated deep into Wake Forest territory. Five times they were in scoring positions. But only twice were they successful. Carolina learned one thing early that day—that it must try means other than end running to do their scoring. It did and was barely successful in winning.

Messrs. Buck, Bershak and Shore are constant threats on the offense. Buck is the best pass snagger of the trio. The others aren't far behind. Bershak and Shore have an edge on Buck when it comes to afternoon. He says State and Davidson are evenly matched and that Teeny Lafferty running for the Wildcats and Eddie Berlinski sprinting for the Wolves, will put on a grid show that will rank with the best of the season.

blocking. Bershak is the ball hawk of the group. They are all hard tacklers. Their opponents can vouch for that.

The Kitchin-Shore passing combinations has started the Deacons many times on the victory road. It will be an ever dangerous and ever-threatening duel Saturday. Coach Wolf has his own aerial attacks. He will shoot them Saturday and Buck and Bershak will be on the receiving end with Little and Burnette throwing.

FHA Mortgage Clinic Backed By Realtor

"The Federal Housing Administration insured mortgage plan should bring more business to the realtor," said B. W. Moseley prominent realtor. "But the important thing about the plan is why it makes more business.

"It makes more business because it enables more people to acquire real estate and own their own homes. It allows them to pay for their homes at a rate they are paying rent.

"Anything that increases home ownership, I believe is good, not only for the real estate man but for all the community."

To Your Questions About Modernization Credits

1. WHO MAY APPLY?

Any property owner, individual partnership or corporation with a regular income from salary, commissions, business, or other assured source. It is not necessary to be a depositor in the financial institution consulted.

2. TO WHOM DO I APPLY?

To any Financial Institution approved by the Federal Housing Administration; or to a contractor or building supply dealer.

3. HOW MUCH MAY I APPLY FOR?

From $100 to $2,000, depending on your income, for improvements on any one property.

4. HOW LONG MAY NOTES RUN?

For any number of months from one to five years. However, the term of the notes depends entirely on the discretion of the financial institution which may at its option require loans to be repaid over such lesser periods as justified by the amount you can reasonably afford to pay each month.

5. WHAT SECURITY IS REQUIRED?

That you have an adequate regular income and a good credit record in your community. Other security may be accepted if deemed necessary by the financial institution to facilitate extension of credit; or if required by the law governing certain institutions.

6. WHAT ASSURANCE NEED I GIVE?

- (a) That you own the property.
- (b) That the annual gross income of the signers of the note is at least five times the annual payments to be made on the note.
- (c) That your mortgage, if any is in such standing that the financial institution is justified in approving the loan
- (d) That you will use the proceeds solely for property improvement.

7. WHAT SIGNATURES ARE REQUIRED ON THE NOTE?

Signature of the property owner; and (except in special cases) if the owner is an individual and is married, also signature of wife or husband. No other co-signers or endorsers are required, unless necessary to facilitate a loan which could not be made otherwise.

8. WHAT IS THE COST OF THIS CREDIT?

The financial institution may not collect as interest and/or discount and/or fee of any kind, a total charge in excess of an amount equivalent to $5 discount per $100 original face amount of a one-year note, payable in monthly installments. Charge for longer periods than one-year is on the same basis.

9. HOW DO I PAY THE NOTE?

By making regular, equal, monthly payments (seasonal payments for farmers) until the note is paid in full.

10. MAY THE OWNER OF ANY KIND OF PROPERTY APPLY?

Applications will be considered for credit to improve one-family two-family, or other residences; apartment buildings, stores, office buildings, factories, warehouses and farm buildings.

11. WHERE DO I MAKE PAYMENTS?

The regular installment payments will be made in person at the place of business of the financial institution; or by mail; or as otherwise arranged. No payment shall be made to any governmental office or organization.

12. MAY I PAY THE NOTE IN FULL BEFORE MATURITY DATE?

Yes, at any time. A reasonable rebate will be allowed for prepayment, if charges have been collected in advance.

13. MAY I MAKE MORE THAN ONE PAYMENT AT A TIME?

Yes, as many as you wish, but such payments should be in exact multiples of the agreed payments—that is if monthly payment is $10.00 larger payments should total $20 $30, etc.—not, for example, odd sums such as $18 or $25.

14. WHAT IF I AM LATE IN MAKING MY PAYMENT?

The maker must not permit his payments to fall in arrears. Should a payment be more than 15 days late, the financial institution's expense, caused thereby, should be reimbursed in part at the rate of not more than five cents per dollar for each payment in arrears. Persistent delinquency will make it necessary for the financial institution to take proper steps to effect collection in full.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Through a tip from his friend Billy Ross, Terence Mahony has been able to rescue Elsa Little from a gang of kidnapers headed by Ambrose Lawson, who is a respected friend of the Little family. But while Terence was returning Elsa home, Lawson killed her uncle. Terence has escaped from the house, knowing he cannot prove his innocence of the murder. But Elsa heard Terence's voice although she did not recognize him... and now Inspector Kennedy, investigating the murder of Mr. Little, believes Elsa is about to remember whose voice it was she heard.

Chapter Nine

ELSA REMEMBERS

INSPECTOR KENNEDY leaned forward slightly. "Have you remembered?" he asked eagerly.

"I... but it can't be," she said slowly. "Why, I hardly know him at all. And, anyway, he was a friend of Billy Ross, who was one of my best friends."

"What's his name?" asked Inspector Kennedy.

"The voice sounded like Mr. Mahony's—he came to tea this afternoon," answered Elsa. "But he couldn't possibly have done it. Why should he? And he wasn't going to the dance. He told me so."

"He was talking to you about the dance, was he?" asked the Inspector. "Asking you questions?"

"Well—yes," admitted Elsa. "But why should he want to kidnap me and kill my uncle?"

"Who is that Mr. Mahony, and where does he live?" demanded the Inspector.

"He was a friend of Billy Ross, a friend of mine who was very badly hurt in a motor smash," answered Elsa. "He was staying with Billy when I met him. I don't know where he is now."

Nor did Lawson know where Mahony was living. In fact, nobody did. Mahony had not yet bothered to tell anyone his change of address.

"I'll find his address all right before morning," said the Inspector. Luckily for Mahony, that statement was a trifle optimistic.

MAHONY'S first action after driving away from the Little's house was to return to the Albert Hall. He had left his own car in a park near the Hall, and in the men's cloak-room he had left an overcoat, a hat, and a pair of grey flannel trousers.

He had worn the overcoat, hat, and trousers on his way to the dance, since an Arab kit is chilly wear in an open sports car on a cold winter evening. Since he intended to deny that he had ever been to the dance if anybody questioned him, it was essential that he should remove those things before the dance finished.

In a quiet street in Kensington he stopped the car and changed his costume round, so that he now appeared as an Arab instead of a monk. Leaving the car in a side street near the Hall, he returned to the Hall on foot and entered.

The dance was still in full swing when he arrived; the floor was still crowded; everything was just as he had left it before Elsa's kidnapping, except that now the dancers were unmasked. Mahony did not unmask. Avoiding the dance floor, he made his way towards the men's cloak-room.

Half-way to the cloak-room he felt a sudden touch on his shoulder. He turned. Facing him was the man dressed in the costume of Charles II who had taken Elsa to the exit where the men dressed as monks had seized her. From conversation he had heard in the car while Elsa was being taken away, Mahony knew that the man's name was Mulgrave.

Seen unmasked in the brilliantly lighted passage, he was a dispirited, cynical-looking man of forty-five, with a heavily veined face, small, calculating eyes, and a heavy, brutal mouth.

"So you've got back at last, have you?" he said roughly. "Where the devil have you been all this time? And where are the others?"

It was obvious that, judging from Mahony's costume, he mistook him for one of the kidnapers. Evidently those worthies had not returned to the Hall after their recent setback.

For a moment Mahony was undecided how to answer. Then he had an inspiration.

"The game's up," he said hoarsely. "The whole scheme's a flop. The others have all been copped by the police. I came here to grab my things from the cloak-room and make a quick getaway."

The red veins in Mulgrave's face showed up suddenly against a deathly pale background.

"Copped!" he gasped. "But... how the hell did that happen? Our plan was absolutely water-tight."

Mahony laughed grimly.

"It's wrecked now," he said. "And

"I'm going to beat it as soon as I've got my things. I've got a fast car outside, and I know where to go. You'd better grab your things and come with me."

"Eut..." began Mulgrave.

Mahony had no intention of arguing. For one thing he was too unsure of his ground. For another he wanted to get away as soon as possible before the police arrived at the Albert Hall. But he wanted to take Mulgrave with him if possible. He decided to bluff.

"Hell," he said. "What are you arguing the toss about? The police will be on their way here now. Are you coming, or are you going to stay and be pinched?"

And he resumed his progress towards the cloak-room.

That decided Mulgrave. He also made for the cloak-room.

Mahony reclaimed his belongings and fairly hustled Mulgrave out of the cloak-room and out of the Albert Hall to the car park where his Aston Martin was waiting. With a roar they shot away, heading north.

"Tell me exactly what happened; how did things go wrong?" asked Mulgrave excitedly as they drove along.

"Don't talk; I'm busy. You'll learn all about it when we get where we're going," replied Mahony shortly.

THERE was a slight smile about his lips as he drove the car at high speed through the silent and empty streets. He was reflecting that, as a piece of kidnapping, his abduction of Mulgrave had been rather neat.

Leaving Hampstead behind him, he headed out across the lonely heath. Half-way across the heath he brought the car to a standstill. All round them was bare grass, and away in the distance the lights of Hampstead and Highgate twinkled brightly. Mahony switched off his headlights and turned to Mulgrave.

"This is our first stopping-place," he stated. "Get out of the car."

"Get out of the car?"

It seemed that Mulgrave did not understand.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"I mean get out of the car. I don't want you to bleed all over the upholstery," said Mahony.

During this speech he quietly produced his pistol. Mulgrave looked at it, and from it to Mahony, rather as a rabbit, paralyzed with terror, looks at a deadly snake.

"But what—?" he began.

"Shut up," said Mahony, his voice suddenly cold and savage.

Mulgrave shut up.

"You've been kidnapped," went on Mahony in the same cruel, biting tone. "And now you're going to be murdered. At least, I think you are. But maybe you're not. It will all depend on how much information you can give me."

"But you can't bring me out here, and m-murder me in a cold blood," protested Mulgrave in a terrified tone. "You can't do it."

"But I can," said Mahony. "Quite easily."

He spoke quietly and naturally. And yet, somehow, the manner in which he spoke made it quite clear that he would not have the slightest hesitation in shooting Mulgrave if he considered it necessary. The realization made Mulgrave feel slightly sick.

"W-w-what is it that you want to know?" he quavered.

Mahony thrust a hand into his hip-pocket and produced from it a newspaper cutting. The cutting was from a copy of the evening paper which the barmaid in the wayside pub had been reading just before the motor smash the previous night. It consisted of one small paragraph;

Miss Ruth Fraser, a popular young Society girl, has been missing from the house of her guardian, Mr. Gerald Lee-Ramsden, of 178 Upper Brook Street, since yesterday afternoon. Miss Fraser, who is twenty years old, is an intrepid air-woman and a well-known tennis player. Mr. Lee-Ramsden states that she left home with the intention of going shopping, and has not been heard of since. It is feared that she may be suffering from loss of memory.

Since the barmaid's comment on this paragraph had agitated Billy Ross considerably, Mahony concluded that Billy had known something about the young woman's disappearance. And Mahony felt that if he was going to shield Billy, it was certainly up to him to try to undo as far as possible any harm that Billy had done. That was the chief reason why he had kidnapped Mulgrave. He wanted to ask questions.

"I want to know where that girl is," he said. He leaned forward and switched on the dash-board light in his car so that Mulgrave could see the cutting clearly.

Mahony tries, tomorrow, an outrageous bluff.

WOMEN URGE BETTER HOMES

Parent-Teacher Clubs and Groups Asked to Participate

Join the crusade, is the appeal that Miss Cora A. Harris, field representative of the Federal Housing Administration in the case of women's activities, is making to every woman in North Carolina in behalf of better housing.

Miss Harris said, "this is a woman's war." She is vanguard of the troops and her courage, determination and enthusiasm will lead others on to victory. We have enlisted the support of our women and of this nation. They are doing a marvelous job throughout our state in promoting better home-life.

"At a recent clinic in Durham, Mrs. W. B. Aycock, past president of the congress of Parents and Teachers said: 'The opportunity is presenting itself in raising the standards of home-life, which is one of the objectives of our Congress. There is an urgent need for this today and the program of the Federal Housing Administration is of particular appeal to us as parents, and deserves our finest cooperation and support, as we are both working to this end.'"

Miss Harris stated that women fully realize that better homes mean better citizenship and morals, and that nothing can so enrich the lives of a family as a comfortable, roomy and home-like home. "Attractive and convenient homes are very likely to keep youngsters off the streets," she said. "Little sister should be allowed to have her room freshly painted and papered, which will inspire to become dainty and domestic. Rough and tumble boys should have adequate space in which to play. This can be accomplished by building a new home to care for the family."

In North Carolina we have about 55 women chairmen who are acting in a volunteer capacity.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Each year for four years the securities and exchange commission has received from congress new supervisory authority over the securities business — and next session seems certain to find a back for more.

In 1933 was enacted the measure requiring federal registration of all securities to be issued, with a statement of the nature of the security and the use to which the proceeds will be put. This is intended to give the investor a picture of what he is buying.

Control over trading on stock exchanges came in 1934. The utility holding company act, giving wide authority to the commission in dealing with utility organization, was enacted in 1935. The past congress extended the commission's control over trading in unlisted securities.

Large unaffected by any of this legislation are bondholders protective committees and investment trusts. Supreme court action last spring also invalidated that part of the national bankruptcy act permitting municipalities to use the law in composing their own debts. These three subjects are the present concern of the commission.

Best bet is that the type of legislation to be sought to cover all three cases is that contained in the 1933 securities act requiring disclosure of all purposes, personnel and back ground of persons or corporations involved in any bondholders protective committee, investment trust or municipal bankruptcy program.

The supreme court decision, William O. Douglas, a member of the commission, told the American Bar Association in Boston, left neither federal nor state government a voice in municipal debt affairs, creating a new "no-man's-land."

Douglas recited that municipal bondholders committees had an opportunity to collect excessive fees, supervised by nobody, could trade in the securities under their control, operating with the benefit of inside knowledge, and perhaps, if representing a minority interest, could hold up a debt settlement program to the great disadvantage of the majority holders and the community.

nities, and a ten dollar cash prize will go to evidence of superiority among the freshman dormitories.

While some of the groups are planning to put up their displays early, others are saving what they believe to be highly original creations for the week-end. There will be grave yards with eleven Colgate headstones, hanging effigies, and banners with plays on words.

Duke students also are planning a striking float for the big downtown parade.

Meanwhile the 80-piece band is practicing for its participation in the homecoming game. Director Robert Fearing has his charges going through paces for "a big surprise" for the big stadium crowd. The cheerleaders also are drilling the freshmen and other students for an afternoon that is expected to leave the impractically voiceless next week.

Residences Are Modernized Under Federal Program

A family moved into an old house. It had been built in the period of "ginger bread" and cutup rooms, but was well constructed and spacious. The new owners set about modernizing the house with as small an expenditure as possible.

Much of the "ginger bread" was removed from the exterior of the house and it was repainted. The interior was completely renovated.

Much of the work was accomplished with modernization funds obtained from a private financial institution which held a contract of insurance with the Federal Housing Administration. The dining room was situated on the least sunny corner of the house. The woodwork had been painted a dark color and the walls covered with dark brown paper. The owner wanted a cheerful dining room and planned the room accordingly.

The woodwork was refinished in ivory. The floors were scraped, varnished and waxed. A wainscoting, about one-third the height of the room, furnished an effective background for the dark finish of the furniture. A scenic wall paper was used on the remainder of the walls. Pale blue and green hills and sky were accented by brilliant figures in gay costumes. The resulting room was, in effect, as cheery as the summer scene portrayed by the paper.

The tiles in the fireplace were a pale green and this color was carried out with the numerous ferns and plants which the owner placed about the room. On the coldest winter day the room brought to mind pictures of the summer just ahead.

A beige carpet and dark furniture, possessions of the owner, were used in the newly decorated room.

Albert Einstein, then 26, delivered in 1905 his first paper which was to become his "Theory of Relativity."

Students At Duke To Test Ingenuity During This Week

Fraternity, Dormitory and Class groups Competing for Original Ideas For Decorations

Durham, Sept. 23.—A score of Duke university campus organizations—fraternities, classes, and dormitories—are giving their ingenuity a thorough-going test in preparation for elaborate and original homecoming displays in connection with the Colgate-Duke game on Saturday and the events of annual homecoming day.

By Friday the campus dormitory section is expected to present a startling appearance as the students get their displays in order. These will vary from huge-lettered banners with dire threats to the invading Red Raiders to more complex ideas necessitating both carpentry and artistic finish.

Beta Omega Sigma, sophomore honorary fraternity, has offered two prizes to the students. A loving cup will go to the most outstanding display among the fratern-

Talks To Parents

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH No child can be guarded from all unpleasantness. Parents can do their utmost to keep their children what they call "pure," but sooner or later some other child or perhaps some grownup with a taste smut, will take the trouble to inform the child of the "facts of life" as he sees them, and the facts from such a person are as a general rule pretty sure to be nasty.

The only way to guard one's child is to see to it one's self that he is informed - well informed - on any subjects about which misunderstanding and dirty innuendoes are possible. Many, in fact most children, through no fault of their own, get the facts of life from the gutter. No one can keep his child from boys and girls who have had this kind of training, to such an extent that it hears none of the resulting misconceptions. If the youngster has thought all his life that the stork brings the baby, and is crudely told the truth, he is going to be shocked, and is, furthermore, never again going to trust the person who deceived him in the first place.

What a child knows cannot hurt him. It is how he knows it that matters. Innocence and ignorance are often confused. Innocence is no virtue if it is founded on ignorance. By the time a child goes to school he should have been carefully prepared by his parents so that he will not be shocked by anything. To the child who takes joy in disillusioning his play-fellows, it is very disappointing to be met with the statement:

King Arthur DON'T GET CAUGHT IN A MELTING ICE JAM! Do your gin drinks ever get caught in a "jam" and lose their flavor as the ice melts? Avoid it this way: Mix with Seagram's King Arthur Gin. It's "Soft-Stillled". "Soft-Stillling" keeps drinks full flavored from first sip to last!
