American Legion's 18th Convention Ended After New Commander Named

Harry W. Colmery of Topeka Selected For Post

MEET NEXT YEAR NEW YORK CITY

Convention Adopts Resolution Demanding Country Steer Toward Neutrality

Cleveland, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The American Legion's 18th convention elected Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kas., national commander today with a unanimous vote, adopted resolutions demanding the country steer a course of strict neutrality in international affairs and then adjourned to meet in New York next year.

The election came after the legion affirmed its belief in the Monroe Doctrine as a measure of peace and opposed entry on the United States into the League of Nations by a unanimous vote.

Another resolution urged the United States government to maintain a strict policy of neutrality and remain "free of any alliance which might draw the country into war."

Ralph Barbour, Sentenced in Johnston, and Elliott Best, in Duplin, Given Pardon

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two bank robbers, Ralph Barbour and Elliott Best, received pardons today from Governor Ehringhaus, along with five other prisoners.

Barbour was sentenced in Johnston county in December 1932 to 15 years for robbery with firearms of the Pine Level bank. D. B. Oliver, president of the institution joined court officials in recommending parole.

Best was convicted of robbing the bank of Magnolia in Duplin county and was given nine to 12 years in October 1932. President H. D. Williams of the bank was among those recommending clemency.

Both men apparently have reformed, the parole statements said.

GIANTS CLINCH NATL. PENNANT

Leaders Defeat Boston Bees in 10-Inning Battle

Boston, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The New York Giants clinched the National League pennant today by defeating the Boston Bees, 2 to 1 in the 10th inning of a double-header.

Climaxing a drive they started on July 15 after sinking to the second division, the Giants scored their 91st victory in today's win. They have four games to play. The second place St. Louis Cardinals with 85 victories have five to play and by winning all their games will still fall short of tying.

The victory moved the Giants five and one-half games in front of the Cardinals before the gas house gang started their double header today with the Cincinnati Reds.

Hal Schumacher's seven-hit pitching and a run in the 10th inning on Travis Jackson's liner and Schumacher's single sewed up today's victory for the Giants breaking up a pitching duel between the New York ace and Johnny MacFayden.

By sewing up the pennant the Giants clinched the first "subway" series between the two New York major league teams since 1923.

The Yankees won the American League Pennant on September 9.

FIGURES SHOW INCREASE IN SMOKING BY GERMANS Berlin, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Germans are smoking more than ever, according to official statistics for the fiscal year 1935-36, when 7,800,000, 000 cigars and more than 37,000, 000,000 cigarettes passed through the tobacco excise department.

In that period German smokers spent 9.1 per cent more of tobacco than in the previous year. The home-grown weed is used more and more as a substitute for the foreign product.

JAP OFFICERS DENY PROTEST FROM CHINESE

Armed Marines Patrol Large Area Under Martial Law

SECTION WARNED "TO KEEP COOL"

Excitement Over Latest Attack on Japanese Nationals Continues High

(Copyright by Associated Press) Shanghai, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Japanese officials, backed by armed marines patrolling a large area under martial law, rejected curiously today Chinese protests against invasion of the Chinese settlement and warned the entire city to "keep its head cool."

Strong forces of blue-coated Japanese in tanks and armed cars and on motorcycles drew tight lines around a large area of the international settlement; where "self-defense measures" resulted from the killing of one marine and the wounding of two others.

The spot where the marine died was heavily guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets. Military authorities continued their investigation of the slaying, but released one Chinese held as a suspect.

The official investigation of the shooting, which was fixed at 8 p. m. Wednesday, centered around the story told by a Japanese eye witness. Through his testimony the innocence of the Chinese suspect was established.

Excitement over the latest attack on Japanese nationals continued high within the Japanese community.

Admiral Kondo, in a proclamation urging his country men to remain calm, asserted the action of the Japanese forces "is based upon the right of self-defense."

Declares Members Of Black Legion Howled For Death

Testimony Corroborates Version of Former Witness of Black Legion "Execution"

Detroit, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Ernest Becker testified today at the trial of 12 men charged with the Black Legion killing of Charles A. Pooler that members of the societies meeting a few hours before the "execution" had howled for Pooler's death.

Becker's testimony corroborated Dayton Dean's version of the events preceding the crime and disputed the stories of Harvey Davis and Ervin D. Lee, two of the defendants that Dean was the sole instigator of the death plot.

The witness said he attended the meeting with Elmer Anderson, who is being sought on a perjury charge as a result of his testimony for the defense yesterday. Becker testified today for the state.

"Davis was presiding at the meeting," Becker said, "we saw Dean hand a note to Davis and Davis said 'fellows what do you think of a Catholic so-and-so who beat his wife when she was going to have a baby and got drunk and kicked her so that she had to go to a hospital?'"

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

WASHINGTON BY RAY TUCKER POISONING: Japan's option of offensive against the Chinese has not been headlined in the news, but it has provoked protests from the United States, Great Britain, Canada and the State of California.

The gist of these charges is that Japan seeks to "narcotize" China—and perhaps other nations—so as to make easier her military and economic conquest. The attack first broke out at the League of Nations recent drug parley, where a State Department spokesman (Stuart J. Fuller) asserted that Japan's promotion of commercialized drugs in certain Chinese provinces was an "open scandal."

Alarmed by opium inroads, the California Senate named a special committee to investigate. The report declares that the Japanese have introduced a new and deadly narcotic into China to "poison the younger generation slowly and quietly, so as to make way for the Japanese army." Federal narcotic officials privately concede that these charges are not exaggerated.

METHOD: Chiang Kai-Shek has struggled in vain against use of this insidious weapon against his Chinese followers. Japanese authorities have informed him and the League that they are powerless to prevent or punish violations.

1936 AVERAGE DEATH CLAIMS NOW AT $21.60 LEDYARD ROSS

Good Tobacco Continues to Bring Top Prices Here

Tobacco offered on the local market during the 1936 season passed the 12,000,000 mark yesterday, when 521,588 pounds of the golden weed was sold here, bringing $105,360.50, an official average of $21.60.

So far this season 12,138,636 pounds of tobacco have been sold for a total of $2,622,044.00, an average of $21.60 for this year's auction.

Only a small amount of the leaf is of good quality, green and black tobacco being the greater part of the offerings. All good, yellow tobacco offered, however, continues to bring a high average.

There is no doubt that this year's crop is short and also composed of much sorry tobacco.

WAR COUNCIL OF DEMOCRATS MARKS BATTLE

Republican Candidate Plans to Renew Attacks

NOMINEES FAVOR PRESS' FREEDOM

President Roosevelt Calls 15 High Democratic Officials To Hyde Park Parley

(By The Associated Press) The political battle was marked today by a council of war on the Democratic side and the reading of a new attack by the Republican candidate.

Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee, travelled toward Minnesota to deliver his second attack on the administration's program as it affects farming. Reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations will be the target of Landon's speech following a Des Moines address Monday in which the Governor discussed the administration's domestic farm policies.

To his summer White House at Hyde Park, N. Y., President Roosevelt called fifteen men high in Democratic circles to discuss his drive for re-election. Vice-President Garner, three cabinet officers, four senators, two congressmen and five Democratic committee leaders were in the group invited to the conference.

The two candidates joined yesterday in upholding the right of freedom of the press in messages to the New York Herald Tribune's forum on current problems. President Roosevelt, speaking by radio from his Hyde Park residence, also called for "clear thinking" about the future of the nation. Governor Landon's statement, read by Rep. Martin (R.-Mass.), attacked "waste and extravagance" of the New Deal.

Mr. Ross suffered breaks to both legs, one of them having been broken in three places. He also sustained serious injuries about the face, his nose having been broken and his teeth knocked out, and to his hip.

The plane crashed when the pilot was unable to pull it out of a tail spin as it flew over the Eastern edge of the city. It fell off the road on the Washington highway, just behind Rivers filling station.

Funeral services for Mr. Ross will be conducted from the home at 10th and Cotach streets at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with Elder J. L. Ross and Rev. R. F. Pittman, Free Will Baptist minister of Ayden in charge. Burial will follow in the Moore cemetery near Stokes.

CHINESE INVESTIGATING PILLS AS HUNGER CURE

Nanking, China (AP)—The famine relief commission of the northwestern province of Kansu, where about half the populace suffers from chronic lack of food, is investigating the use of pills of ancient formula as a "sure cure" for hunger.

Sesame seeds, soy beans, and medicinal herbs are believed to be the chief ingredients of the pills. So, Chinese medical officials remark facetiously, no doubt the pills, if swallowed in sufficient quantities would "cure" hunger.

Town 36 Miles From Capital Reported Destroyed

FASCISTS ARMY NEARING TOLEDO

Stubborn Defense Near Santa del Rey Amar Splits Section of Insurgent Army

(By Associated Press) Madrid's defenders, desperately trying every measure to hold off manifold insurgent advances on the capital, loosed the waters of the Alberche river dam today over the town of San Martin de Valdeiglesias 36 miles to the west.

The town, intended point of convergence for fascists northern and southern columns was reported destroyed and with it much insurgent equipment.

Both government and insurgent dispatches agreed the fascist armies advancing on Toledo had reached a point 12 or 13 miles from that city.

The government announced a desperate "pinching movement" by its armies had boxed in fascist armies pressing on the capital.

Stubborn defense near Santa Cruz del Rey Amar was combined with an assault which split insurgent lines behind Talavera de la Reina, the government declared.

Fascist communications in the Talavera sector were wrecked by aerial attacks, the announcement continued.

If the government claims were true—and they appeared born out at least in one respect by official insurgent reports—the attackers would be forced to pause and consolidate in the rear.

The crash of cannons in the Guadarrama mountains northwest of the capital signaled a combined artillery infantry drive by northern fascist to break through passes in the Sierras at two points.

Today I Duce conferred at length with the representatives of a non-league power, the German minister without portfolio, Hans Frank.

Mr. Peacock, 64, died in a New Bern hospital at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Barnes was arrested in this city last week after local officers had been sent out in search of the assailant. After beating and robbing the aged store-keeper of the Pitch Kettle Landing community, officers allege, the negro caught a ride with a farmer bringing tobacco to this city. After returning to the community the farmer, who also is a peace officer, learned of the crimes and returned here and told officers the man whom he gave a ride might be the person wanted.

Officers shortly afterwards arrested Barnes and charged him with the beating and robbing having occurred in Craven county.

Final services for Mr. Peacock were held yesterday from the grave site in Greene county, conducted by Rev. Mr. Carney.

He is survived by his wife, one brother, W. I. Peacock of Goldsboro, Route No. 1, and two nephews and two nieces.

Kimston, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Four Green county residents received treatment at a hospital here for shotgun wounds, officials said a relative inflicted in a dispute last night and were dismissed today.

The wounded were Mr. and Mrs. Dall Sugg and their sons, J. P. Sugg, 18, and Spicer Sugg, 16.

Hospital attendants expressed the belief at first that Mrs. Sugg, shot in the abdomen, was critically wounded, but said later examination disclosed she was not.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony is spending the evening in a rooming house. He has noticed Miss Little, cinema star, from his neighbors and returned her home. As reward for that is to be suspected of killing Miss Little's uncle. Now he sees Mulgrave, a member of the same kidnapping gang in his car, threatening to kill the man unless he confesses the crime. Ruth Fraser has been hidden. Mulgrave is pretty sure Terence means business.

Chapter 10

MAN KNOCKED OUT

"I DON'T know where she is," he stammered. "How should I know?"

Mahony was not in a pleasant mood. Though outwardly he was quite calm and matter-of-fact, there was a hard, black core of savage anger deep inside him.

He thrust the pistol suddenly into his pocket, turned on Mulgrave quickly, grabbed him by the collar and waist-band and heaved him bodily out of the car. Then he jumped out after him, hauled him to his feet, and gave him a crashing punch in the mouth that knocked him down again. Then quite deliberately he picked him up and knocked him down again.

"Come out with it, you rat," he said in a low, savage voice. "Where is she? I'll smash you to pieces if you don't tell me."

"Ow . . . ow!" yelled Mulgrave. He blubbered like a big baby.

Mahony gave him a good kick in the pants.

"Talk," he said. "I didn't ask you to sing."

"Ow! . . . all right, I'll tell you," gulped Mulgrave.

"She's in a house near Watford. There are three men guarding her."

"And doping her, I suppose," added Mahony grimly. "Well, you're going to take me to that house now, I'll kill you if you don't."

Mulgrave made a despairing gesture. But he realized he had no choice.

"All right," he mumbled. "Get back into the car then," said Mahony. "And mind you don't bleed on the upholstery."

That four hundred yards might make all the difference between success and failure if he had to make a quick getaway with the girl. Bluff had served him well once that evening; it would probably serve him again.

He stepped back into the car, drove up the drive, and stopped immediately outside the front door of the house. It was evident that the occupants of the house had heard his approach. Hardly had the car stopped before the front door opened.

"Who are you, and what do you want here at this time of night?" demanded a voice harshly.

Mahony got out of the car. In his overcoat pocket his right hand was clapped on his pistol-butt.

"NEVER mind who I am," he answered equally harshly. "I've been sent to fetch the girl, Ruth Fraser. Bring her out here to the car, and get a move on. I'm in a hurry."

"Oh!" said the man blankly. "You want the girl."

The light from the car headlights showed

Over his body Mahony jumped into the house.

Five minutes later they were speeding the Great North Road towards Watford.

ABOUT four miles from Watford they turned off the main road along a little country lane. Another seven or eight minutes driving brought them to the entrance to a rough drive leading through a thick copse to a small house that stood in an isolated position about four hundred yards from the lane.

"That's the place. She's in there," said Mulgrave sullenly.

Mahony stopped the car just outside the drive entrance. The lights of the house could be seen gleaming through the trees.

"We get out again here," he said. "You first. And don't shout or try anything smart, or I'll plug you."

They got out of the car and stood in the roadway. Everything around them was quiet except an owl calling in the copse. Mulgrave stood sullen and uneasy. His face was hurting him; he suspected that he was going to lose a tooth.

"What have I got to do now?" he asked.

"Nothing," said Mahony quietly. "I shan't want you any more."

With that he suddenly hit Mulgrave a tremendous wallop full on the point of the jaw. Mulgrave's heels came off the ground; he crashed down and out into the ditch. Mahony bent over, hauled his unconscious body back into the lane, carefully bound and gagged him, and thrust him back into the ditch.

Beside Mulgrave he flung his own fancy costume. That was a thing he was well rid of.

For a few moments he considered; should he use bluff or stealth to get into that house and rescue the girl imprisoned in it? He decided upon bluff. The use of stealth and quietness would mean that he would have to leave the car where it was in the lane, four hundred yards from the house.

ed him standing in the front doorway of the house—a short, fat man, with his head heavily bandaged. He had a sheepish, nervous air.

"As a matter of fact . . . the truth is . . . there's been an accident. I—I didn't like to report it, because . . . well . . . you see . . ."

He did not appear to know quite what he wanted to say. Mahony felt a sudden quick chill of fear. What had happened. Had they killed the girl by any chance?

"What the devil do you mean?" he demanded. "What's happened to the girl. She's not . . . dead?"

"Oh, no. No, she's not dead. Far from it. But . . . the trouble is, we can't get at her. You see . . ."

At that moment, from an upstairs window, there came the sudden unmistakable high-pitched crack of a pistol shot. "Whit!"—a bullet slipped past Mahony's head and buried itself in the turf behind him. Mahony cursed loudly and moved swiftly. It was apparent to him that the game was up; his bluff was spotted. He had no wish to present a running target to anybody. Therefore his move was in the direction of the house, not away from it.

He simply hurled himself toward the front door, snatching his hand out of his pocket with his clubbed pistol in it. The man in the doorway was so surprised that he did not even attempt to move until Mahony's clubbed pistol came down on his head. Then he collapsed in the doorway.

Over his body Mahony jumped into the house, and his voice rose in a terrific shout: "Miss Fraser! Miss Fraser!"

A door on the left of the hall opened; a startled looking man came running out, almost colliding with Mahony.

"Here! Who the—" he began. (Copyright, 1936, Hugh Clevely)

And tomorrow, Ruth Fraser tries to shoot Mahony.

New York's community sing takes place every Sunday night at the Avon theatre on West 45th street. More than 1,500 turn out to sing songs which awaken nostalgic memories. And the songs they choose are not the Cole Porterish kind that speak of unrequited love in the sophisticated accents of a Park avenue debutante, but such homey favorites as "Bury Me Beneath the Willow," "Beautiful Ohio," "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," and "Sunbonnet Sue."

Perhaps the only urban touch in these proceedings in the presence of one that is little removed from the kind that is held at functions as a master of ceremony-

Talks To Parents

Tell Mother

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
It is a child's confidence and not his confidences that are desirable. No child should be expected to tell everything to his parents. It would not be good for either child or parents if he did. But he should trust his parents, and his parents should be able to trust him.

Nothing exasperates a growing child more than a prying mother. He chafes at it, and rightly, that he has a right to a certain amount of privacy. He resents the mother who is always saying, "Remember, dear, that you must tell mother everything," or brags to her friends, "My children have no secrets from me."

Of course a mother who brags of such omniscience puts her children into a bad place with their friends. No one is ever going to talk before a boy or girl who will repeat all that he hears to his parents. A child's life and the life of his friends are not necessarily vicious because they are not public. No one wants the world in the shape of a friend's family let in on his private affairs. So the child who "tells mother everything" is more than apt to have very little to tell, since he is excluded from the confidences of all his little playmates.

Another very trying mother is the one who is forever imagining that the child has something on his mind. She questions him, even uses a form of third degree on him. "I know that something is worrying you. It makes me wretched to be unable to help you. We have always understood one another so perfectly. Tell me what the trouble is. You know I never repeat what you tell me."

Day and night, the child gets no peace. If he has no secret sorrow, he is tempted to make one up to satisfy his mother. If he has one, he probably blurts it out in desperation and regrets it bitterly afterwards.

les. But the other song leaders are entertainers who have been as popular in the hinterlands as they have been on Broadway. There is genial redheaded Wendell Hall, who popularized "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More." And Billie Jones and Ernie Hare whose radio theme song is sung even today at Kiwanis, Lion and Rotary luncheons thru out the country. You remember it—"How Do You Do Everybody How Do You Do?"

Then, too, New York's community sing is broadcast over a national hookup because some sponsor recognized the fact that everybody loves to sing and bought radio time offering it to community singers.

Cynical New Yorkers, looking askance at these rural demonstrations, are awaiting the day when they will receive notice of the New York county fair, with livestock competitors, preserve exhibits, et al.

Central Park's seals have put the seal of approval on what Harry Selter calls his "Tidal" music. Came about like this: Selter played a bit of his new melodic music while visiting Phil Baker, Baker's Scotties, Pom and Pom Pom, quit romping, lay down and watched Selter play. Their eyes grew dim and dreamy. "Waffled back to Scotland on a tide of music," mused Baker. "Say, I have an idea . . . Saturday night when Selter played on the 'Hit Parade,' Baker had the zoo keeper take a portable radio set out to the seal pool.

"Well," phoned Baker later, "what did they do?" They woke up," said the keeper. "Then what?" "They swam over and poked their heads out of the water near the radio." "And then—" asked Baker eagerly. "They blubbered," said the keeper. "Colossal," said Baker. "Honesick for the tides. What power!"

Effete table loungers are somewhat startled by the introduction of athletics as a part of the entertainment at a number of night-clubs. The latest in this line is the table tennis campaign at the Rainbow Room, where the management will present a quart of champagne to any guest who can defeat Ruth Hughes Aarons, 18-year-old women's champion. To date, all comers have been badly defeated.

The first athletic invasion of right-life here was the advent of ice-setting at the New Yorker. They hold a carnival there every night.

How's Your Health?

By DR. IAGO GALDSTON

Recreational Medicine

One of the unfortunate results of the germ theory of disease has been ever more concentrated attention to germs and the diseases they produce, and consequent neglect of the patient's person. This is even more true of the sufferer proper than of his physician.

Frequently the patient comes to his physician with his troubles and says, "Here, relieve me of this." And should the doctor reply, "But really, it's up to you to relieve yourself, or to make the necessary adjustments," the patient would quite likely change doctors.

When a child has a sore throat, and the physician makes a diagnosis of diphtheria, he can, by the simple means of an injection of anti-diphtheria serum, cure the child. But, with an over-weight, middle-aged woman suffering from arthritis in the knees, the best the doctor can do is to advise the patient to reduce her weight to take short intervals of rest—during the day, possibly to massage and "bake" her affected joints. In other words, to rearrange her life pattern, to "recreate" herself.

Recreational medicine is even more essential in dealing with patients suffering from such diseases as tuberculosis, rheumatic fever (with involvement of the heart) and from a variety of functional disturbances arising from emotional maladjustments. Such emotional maladjustments may be due to unsuitable occupation, unhappy family life, or to untoward experiences, such as the loss by death of loved ones, crippling accidents or diseases.

In these conditions, the patient, either originally, or later, falls "out of step" with life, and to recover in the full sense of the word, he must make (and no one can make them for him) certain deep and trying readjustments.

While it is comparatively easy to "cure" tuberculosis in its early stages, it is difficult to keep the patients cured. A large percentage of them break down again. When this problem was studied, it soon became evident that most so-called tuberculosis patients return to their former life, wherein prevailed those very conditions which helped bring about their original breakdown. Not all of the inimical conditions can be removed or remedied, but some do yield to change. Among these may be listed the patient's attitude toward his disease; his personal hygiene and most important, perhaps, his occupation. These can be modified and such modification for the better is in essence recreational medicine.

BERLINSKI PROVES TO BE UP TO PRE-SEASON DOPE

Raleigh, Sept. 22.—Eddie Berlinski, sensational N. C. State half-back, lugged the ball 14 times last Saturday against Elon and picked up 112 yards for an average of eight yards a trip. He scored both of State's touchdowns in the 12-C win. One score was on a 7-yard end run. The other on a thrilling 51 yard sprint through the center of the line.

Total of 28 Real Estate Transfers Recorded in Offices of Register of Deeds in Week

More real estate transfers were recorded in the offices of Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins during the past week than for any similar period in some time.

PRISON PLANS NEW PROGRAM

Extensive Education Project To Be Started Soon

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—An extensive educational program for the prisoners in the state prison system is to be started in the near future, possibly by November 1, Acting Director Oscar T. Pitts of the prison division of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, said today. An educational director will be appointed in the near future who will be in charge of the prison education program, he indicated.

Because of the large number of prisoners—almost 9,000—and the number of prison camps, the program will have to be started on a small scale and then gradually expanded, Pitts said. Accordingly, present plans contemplate the establishment of the educational work in only about nine or ten units and for the longer term prisoners only, Pitts said.

"We have decided that it will not be practical to undertake any of this educational work among prisoners whose sentences are less than one year, due to the fact that the short term prisoners would not be in the prison system long enough to get any benefit from the classes we are planning to hold," Pitts said. "In fact, we have decided that for the time being most of the educational work should be confined to the long termers convicted of felonies and the younger prisoners from 16 to 21 years of age serving sentences of one year or more."

"So to start things off, we are planning to start the classes only in the Central Prison here, at Camp Polk, where we have the young white felons from 16 to 21 years old, at Caledonia Prison Farm in Halifax county, where we have most of the older long term felons and 'hard boiled yeggs' and probably in about six carefully selected prison camps in which we will segregate the younger prisoners. For we have hundreds of prisoners between 16 and 25 years of age scattered all through the other camps, since we have room at Camp Polk only for the younger prisoners convicted of felonies and sentenced to long terms."

If these six prison camps are established for young prisoners, three will probably be for white prisoners and three for negro prisoners, Pitts said. They will all be carefully selected on the basis of their records to date, past records before being sent to prison, their present attitude, and so forth, Pitts said.

"One reason we have delayed the starting of this educational program was to give us time to make more progress with our segregation plans," Pitts said. "For it is very essential to get the prisoners classified and segregated before trying to start our classes. For three or four tough guys in a camp can undermine the entire morale of the others in the camp and have the same effect on the other prisoners that half a dozen rotten apples has on the good apples in an entire barrel. Accordingly, we are trying to need these tough and intractable prisoners out from the better prisoners and put them in camps by themselves, under more stringent discipline and closer guarding. Indications are that there will be about 400 of these 'tough guys' and that about four special camps will be needed to take care of them. These will be the 'Alcatraz' camps, as you newspaper boys have named them.

"It will then be a comparatively simple matter to pick out about 300 young white prisoners and about 300 similar negro prisoners for these other six camps where schools will be established and the prisoners be given an opportunity to get more education. Many of the prisoners at present cannot even read and write while a majority have not gone beyond the third or fourth grade in school."

A majority of the better class of prisoners are very anxious for these classes to start and in a good many of the camps volunteer night classes have already been organized, with prisoners as teachers, in which hundreds of prisoners are spending an hour or two every night improving their minds and trying to get more education, Pitts said.

For the time being prisoners who are qualified will be used as instructors, Pitts said, although the will work under the supervision of the educational director.

Madness With a Method

"God's country and the Woman," is under the direction of William

Keighley in an interior set where George Brent and Beverly Roberts are rehearsing one of those modern movie love scenes. There is no clench and no kiss. Standing feet apart, hero and heroine tell exactly what they think of each other—and in very certain, uncomplimentary tones.

There is a slip in the dialogue and at that moment a small missile lands at the players' feet with a thump. Archie Mayo, who sailed it there, is already on his hurried way out, calling apologetically to Keighley, "I knew it was spoiled before I threw, Bill!"

Mayo, the stout Puck among directors, goes back to his own neat by set for "The Black Legion", a street scene in which a studio workshop is serving as a factory exterior.

Mayo, confirmed practical joker is irrepressible on his own sets too. But there is method to his madness, as more than one player will tell you. Mayo's clowning keeps the actor's from self-consciousness keeps them "light", and relaxes them—and they give better performances for it.

Tarzan Plays Safe.

"Tarzan Escapes" is back from location and there is a jungle—with a dank stream and vines to swing Johnny Weissmuller from tree to tree—on the back lot. Tarzan caged by a hunting party and being brought back to civilization for museum purposes, is supposed to fall from the boat and be rescued from drowning by a faithful elephant friend.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Joan Crawford, wearing a white wedding gown that billows about her feet as she rests between scenes of "Love on the Run", confides a dietetic idiosyncrasy.

"When I get mad I eat twice as much as usual. It's my way of venting wrath. The other day I was mad about something at lunch time, and I ate every bit of a full thermos bottle of creamed chicken beef I brought from home—ordinarily I would take much less than half of it."

"And ice cream sodas—I never think of one. But the other evening Franchot and I were furious at something that happened, and we stopped at a drug store and ordered a double ice cream soda—deliberately and recklessly!"

Fortunately for the Tone food budget, Joan is serene and unruffled as she watches Franchot and Clark Gable do a scene under W. S. Van Dyke's direction, and talks of their plans for an European vacation provided she finishes two more films by spring.

"If we're free before spring, then we'll go only to New York," she says.

Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Earl Browder, the communist presidential candidate, stepped into Washington recently and deplored what he termed lack of freedom of the press in America.

His speech was delivered before the national press club, which is hearing speakers from all political groups.

The principal reason for reporting this is that Browder, a slender pleasant fellow of 45 or 50, with dark sandy hair and mustache, argued that the American public was not getting a fair break in the newspapers. The several score of newspapermen there did not rise up in indignation at the assertion but simply asked why he thought so, and he told them.

"Sentiment Unreflected"

He did not say where he got his figures but he said 90 per cent of the newspapers in the country were owned by Republicans and were therefore not reflecting the majority public sentiment. The latest votes to test that, he said, had indicated the majority of the sentiment was Democratic.

The newspaper men had come to listen and so did not argue with him, as they did later among themselves, that perhaps ownership was not so much the test as whether all sides in a controversy are given an opportunity to be heard through the newspapers. Browder agreed his speeches had been reported by the newspapers.

He was thoroughly questioned on how the press was operated in a communist state, like Russia.

sian papers for the soviet government? Because, he answered, all the people were for the soviet government, or at least 99 per cent as shown in the most recent roll call.

Did the remaining one per cent have freedom of the press? No because communists believe in majority rule.

There was a sort of mass lifting of eyebrows at such an interpretation of freedom of the press, which Browder frankly conceded was not the interpretation placed upon it in America.

It doesn't necessarily imply anything, but the day Browder spoke in Washington, two men were arrested on the capital streets for dis-

KNOW WHAT YOU VOTE FOR.

Throughout the state, organizations are being formed to seek adoption by the voters in November of the constitutional amendment that would increase the number of justices of the North Carolina Supreme Court, but before making a definite decision of the matter we urge every voter to study this and other proposed amendments carefully. While the number of Supreme Court judges in this state probably should be increased, this is not the only change that the amendment makes in the present court. It likewise provides for the court to sit in divisions where it would be possible for a smaller number of judges to sit on a case than under the present system. This feature of the proposed amendment is, we believe, dangerous and the voters should not adopt the amendment with this feature in it. If it is deemed necessary to increase the size of the court let the next legislature have such an amendment submitted to the voters leaving out of such an amendment this feature that would permit an even smaller number of men than the present court to have the final say in the cases coming before the court. In its present form it is our belief that the amendment should not pass.

There are other constitutional amendments to come before the electorate in the coming November election and we will discuss each of these amendments between now and that time. Like the Supreme Court amendment there are others in the group that we feel carry very objectionable features and we urge the voters to give careful study to each and every one of the amendments before voting on them.

IS SOMEBODY ELSE GETTING YOUR BUSINESS?

Recently one of the country's leading mail order houses mailed out its new autumn catalogue to an average of one out of every four families in the United States. Pitt County like other sections no doubt received its quota of these catalogues more than a thousand pages on which are described thousands of articles to fill the needs of every member of the family. As a result of these catalogues thousands of dollars will go from this county to the mail order house to purchase articles that should be bought from local merchants.

The best way for the local merchant to compete for this business is to see to it that his sales message is likewise placed in the hands of these buyers and there is no better way to do this than by consistent newspaper advertising. While some local business firms are sitting still trying to decide whether or not they can afford to advertise, the buyers are looking over the mail order house catalogue, picking out the articles they want to purchase and sending their money into another state to make their purchases. If you, Mr. Local Merchant, want to keep this business at home and get your share of it, wake up now and go after it.

Dope peddlers are let off by Japanese officials in Manchuria with light fines or two months in jail. ton mile, they increased the size of their freight cars, they learned to load and unload more quickly and efficiently. So 750,000 carloadings per week amount approximate the total of Coolidge-Hoover days. Shipment by truck introduces a blind factor into the transportation equation. Although exact figures are not available, trucks are carrying more freight than they did a few years ago. The railroads' increased hauling does not mean that they are stealing traffic from their motorized competitors. The net is that old-fashioned statistics no longer measure with any degree of accuracy America's economic recovery. Charts have not kept pace with the comeback.

COMPETITION: J. Edgar Hoover's attack on the Secret Service has proved a boomerang. You may not have noticed it, but Secretary Morgenthau has at last set out to publicize the exploits of his expert detectives, who rank at the top among government criminal investigation men. The treasury has abandoned its reticence concerning its sleuths successes. It recently advertised it had driven Rum Row from the seas, and now it says that bootleggers have become museum pieces. Frank Wilson, new Assistant Secret Ser-ers who were present confide to their financial friends that they are still in the dark as to why they were summoned. They had a pleasant visit with the President but he didn't seem to have anything particular on his mind. He neither asked nor gave any information that wasn't already on record. But the impression was conveyed to the nation that Mr. Roosevelt was showing a friendly interest in the progress of the insurance companies, and that—say sources close to the Democratic command—was precisely the purpose. Word has been passed in high financial quarters that similar White House conferences will be scheduled later with bankers and other groups of business men to keep this impression alive in the public mind.

WORK STARTED ON TWO MINES

Two Developments in Western N. C., Involve Big Sum.

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—Two kaolin mining developments involving investments totaling more than $500,000 are under way in the Spruce Pine district of North Carolina in Mitchell and Avery Counties, State Geologist H. J. Bryson announced today.

Construction has just been started, the State geologist said, on a plant in Avery county on a mineral tract of some 4,000 acres in that and Mitchell county by Kaolin, Incorporated. Principal officers of this concern are Edward C. and Walter C. Marmon, of Pineola, N. C., and Indianapolis, Ind.; C. H. Hacks, general manager and D. P. Glickenshner, of Indianapolis as secretary-treasurer.

This development, Mr. Bryson continued, is a result of intensive study of the kaolin resources of the area since 1928 by Mr. Ricker. This is the first of a series of developments contemplated in that area by the company, the geologist informed.

The main building, according to information from Spruce Pine, will be 240 by 125 feet and from one to three stories high. It is designed to produce a minimum of 30 tons of clay a day and from 20 to 25 tons of mica. Mr. Bryson made the first report on the properties and has consulted throughout on the development of the entire project.

Reports have also been received on plans of the Harris Clay Company to have in operation this fall a new kaolin refining plant at Lunday, also in the Spruce Pine section.

This development, it is pointed out, followed extensive research to determine the best methods of mining and refining the kaolins of the district. These studies were first undertaken by the ceramics laboratory of the Tennessee Valley Authority at Norris, Tenn., and indicate that production on a commercial scale of the high grade product should be successful.

Tests indicate, according to Geologist Bryson, that the Spruce Pine clays are suitable for the manufacture of pottery, and he believes there is a probability of the location of high grade products in that area.

Mr. Bryson declared in his biennial report that there are millions of tons of recoverable clays in the section "Research," he asserted, "has shown that the North Carolina clays, in some respects, are the most outstanding clays ever discovered."

Samples of porcelain made from the kaolin produced by the new refining methods and fired electrically are said to be equal to the highest

BERTIE SEEKS NEW HIGHWAY

Wants 1-Mile Stretch Constructed To Pulp Mill

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—The construction of one mile of hard-surfaced highway leading from the present highway just a few miles out of Windsor, in Bertie county, towards Williamston, to the site of the new paper pulp mill to be erected soon on the Cashie river three miles out of Windsor, was asked of the State Highway and Public Works Commission here Tuesday by J. A. Matthews of Windsor and Congressman John Kerr of the Second District. Chairman Capas M. Wayne told them he would take the matter under consideration and present it to the members of the commission at their next meeting. The Kleckhfer Container Company of Delair, N. J., has purchased 10 acres on the Cashie river, three miles from Windsor and one mile from the hard-surfaced highway, as a factory site. Matthews told Wayne, and within the next 30 to 60 days plans to start construction of a $2,000,000 pulp plant. The plant will make pulp from slash pine, which will then be made into pasteboard for containers. Later on the company plans to add a $1,000,000 paper plant so that the finished product will be produced as well as the pulp, Matthews said. But for the time being, only the pulp will be produced in the Windsor plant.

Sacrifice comfort for concealment in a small, inconspicuous blind built to blend with the landscape—and half your duck-shooting trouble is over.

If you were a duck and every time you were an object that resembled the chief's hut in a Kaffir village you were greeted with exclamations, would you continue to approach such objects, or would you give them a wide berth?

Well, a duck will steer clear of the unnatural, too. Wild creatures, birds and animals, always are alert and instinctively sense danger, for in their world eternal vigilance is the price of life. If they escape furred and feathered predators the hunter is just around the bent.

Now let us get back to the business of blinds. Don't construct anything that looks like a small house on a sand bar or on the barren edge of a marsh. Don't use green shrubbery when the surrounding terrain has been browned by autumn frosts. Use the natural growth on your favorite hunting ground. And very little of that.

The best blinds, of course, are no blinds in the artificial sense—just squat in the rushes, grass or bushes near the water's edge. But if the water has receded or you are on a bar without plant life: Gather enough dead-colored foliage to hide a hunter in a seated position. Then stick small willows, bunches of grass or what-have-you around for a distance of several yards in all directions. That gives the illusion of real cover and the blind doesn't stand out like a locomotive on a country siding.

Since the tanning of live decoys, successful concealment in natural surroundings is necessary. During this harangue we have had in mind the hunter who takes his sport where he can on free ground, or has rights to a bit of marsh, lake or stream.

Guides and keepers will take care of those who belong to shooting clubs or do their gunning on preserves. When decoys were legal we saw some mighty luxurious concrete layouts (heated and with cushioned seats!) and wondered why smart wildfowl came in. Probably because they were fed regularly on the club's waters, and probably shooting was restricted to a few hours every third day.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes of filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or heavy passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your Druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Baker Considered Likely Successor To Clerk Of House

Chief Assistant to Thad Eure for Past Three Legislative Sessions May Be Promoted. Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Sept. 24.—W. A. Baker of Raleigh, for three years chief assistant to Principal Clerk Thad Eure in the House of Representatives of the North Carolina General Assembly, is regarded by most observers here as likely to be elected Principal Clerk of the house when the 1937 session of the general assembly convenes in January. So far Baker is the only candidate being mentioned for the job, although it is expected that other candidates will undoubtedly get into the running later on.

The old timers here, however, are already conceding the office to Baker, chiefly because of the reports from over the state that virtually all of the members of the house who have served in previous sessions are actively supporting Baker for the clerkship. If Baker already has the support of most of the former members of the house, it is conceded that most of the new members will follow their lead, in which case Baker is virtually assured of election as Principal Clerk. The Principal Clerk is selected by the house in the same caucus in which the speaker is elected, the right before the assembly formally convenes. The candidate who wins out in the caucus is assured of formal election by the entire house when it convenes.

The two factors which point more strongly to Baker's election as Principal Clerk than anything else are, first, that it is traditional to appoint assistant clerks to chief clerks whenever vacancies occur and second, the need for an experienced and trained man in this very important post. It is generally agreed by those who know the duties of the office, that it is one of the most important in the entire legislature, since the Principal Clerk must keep a record of every bill introduced and be able to account for every one until it is either enacted or rejected. He must also be an expert parliamentarian and be able to advise the speaker or members on parliamentary procedure.

Baker, because of the three years spent as assistant clerk and because he has held every job in the clerk's office and before that started in as a page, is regarded as being well qualified for the clerkship.

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The French fiscal situation, including possibility of imminent devaluation of the franc today tended to chill buying order in the stock market today. Although dealings were pretty quiet and a few issues were depressed, most trading was disposed to await further news from abroad before expounding commitments to any great extent.

The domestic outlook was still brighter and a number of equities moved against the trend, but near the fourth hour small issues predominated.

The job tone was firm. Transactions approximated 1,150,000 shares.
