1ST DISTRICT DEMOCRATS IN PARTY PARTY

Big Guns Affirm Faith in New Deal Administration

MRS. J. B. SPILMAN CHIEF SPEAKER

Vice-Chairman Calls on Women of State to Vote in Equal Numbers with Men

Greenville, N. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The guns of North Carolina Democracy reaffirmed their faith in the party, recounted benefits under its government and called upon members of the party to flock to the polls in November to reelect President Roosevelt.

Over 1,500 persons attended the gathering, featured by speech making and a barbecue.

Speakers included Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville; State Democratic vice chairman; J. Wallace Winborn of Marion, chairman; Senator Josiah W. Bailey; Representative Lindsay Warren, Governor Ehringhaus and others. David S. Barnes, Hertford county chairman, presided.

Mrs. Spilman urged Democratic women of the state to "make it a 50-50 vote with the men" in the November election.

Representative Warren said "we don't take our Democracy in broken doses and never will. We shall stand by the party."

He compared business conditions prior to the new deal administration with those of today and asserted President Roosevelt was "more interested in the situation of the farmer than anyone else in history."

Winborne joined Mrs. Spilman in calling for a heavy vote, asserting "we do not anticipate defeat, but do want a strong vote."

Governor Ehringhaus said the party had proved capabilities to serve the state.

Lauding what he termed the accomplishment during the last few years, the North Carolina chief executive said:

"We have in North Carolina a government that is carried on at the lowest per capita cost of any state in the union. During the last three and a half years the state has paid off debts amounting to $25,000,000 and laid aside $5,000,000. That is the greatest debt reduction in all the years of the state's history."

Schedules Mapped For Two Nominees For Coming Week

President Roosevelt is to Deliver at Least Six Addresses in First Week of Campaign

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—White House officials announced today President Roosevelt would make at least six speeches—two major—in four eastern states next week in inaugurating his campaign for reelection.

The announcement was made after twenty-seven party leaders and advisors had discussed with the president late yesterday a tentative October speaking drive that would take the democratic standard-bearer into eight states—with an aggregate of 185 electoral votes—in the far west, middle west and east.

Calls Conference For Discussion Of Contentnea Creek

Meeting Postponed From September 23 To Be Held in Wilson Court House Tuesday, October 2nd.

A conference postponed from September 23 in Wilson for the purpose of a preliminary examination of Contentnea creek with a view to determining whether or not a flood control project on the stream is feasible will be held in that city at 11 o'clock Friday, October 2, in the court house.

The meeting, provided in the flood control act of June 22, was postponed because of the inability of Ralph Mills, engineer, to reach Wilson on the scheduled date because of heavy fog.

Section 3 of the Flood Control Act provides that "No money appropriated under authority thereof shall be expended on the construction of any project until States, or political subdivisions thereof, or other responsible local agencies have provided without cost to the United States all lands, easements, and rights of way necessary for the construction of the project x x x."

If a flood control project for Contentnea Creek should be adopted.

CHINA PLANNING PUBLIC PAWNSHOPS

Nanking, China (AP)—Pawnbrokers, who form a not inconsiderable and not unimportant part of Chinese society, fear the loss of businesses which have been handed down from father to son for centuries if the national government goes through with its public pawnshop program.

In a recent order to district and municipal administrations, the national authorities provided for the opening of loan bureaus which would advance cash at low rates of interest to the poor and needy. In case owners fail to redeem pledged property within the stipulated period, the public shops are to return to owners any surplus remaining after principal and nominal interest are deducted from the auctioned value.

History Repeated in 1919

New York, (AP)—The "phony" World Series of 1919 wasn't the first of its kind. Starting in 1894, and going on for four years, the first and second-place teams of the National league played a post-season classic for a trophy known as the Temple cup. The Temple cup series finally was discarded because players made agreements with the enemy to divide their shares, no matter who won.

Pullen's Condition Said Satisfactory

Rocky Mount, Sept. 25.—(AP)—E. F. Pullen, who suffered serious injuries in an airplane crash at Greenville Saturday, was reported in satisfactory condition at a hospital here today. Pullen had not been informed that a passenger in the plane he was piloting, Leydard E. Ross, of Greenville, died yesterday.

HINTS REBUKE FOR COUGHLIN

A Possible Stronger Warning Seen For Radio Priest

Vatican City, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Prelates said today they "wouldn't be surprised" if the Vatican were obliged to give Father Charles E. Coughlin a stronger "warning" than the one which appeared recently in the paper Observatore Romano.

Such a step might be necessary, the prelates added, if the Detroit radio priest continues his attacks on President Roosevelt of the United States.

At Cincinnati last night Father Coughlin said the President was "anti God" because, he asserted, Mr. Roosevelt "says destroy and devastate." He also asserted he would advocate "the use of bullets" should an "upstart dictator" make the ballot void.

Such expressions, said the prelates, came clearly under the rebuke which the Observatore, authoritative Vatican newspaper, administered recently when it said it was not proper to attack constituted authorities, much less so for a priest to do so.

SILK THREADS SOLVE MURDER

Former North Carolina Negro Held in Slaying

Washington, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Silken threads so small as to be almost invisible to the naked eye led today to what police called a complete solution of the mysterious killing of Mrs. Florence Goodwin, 43-year-old government typist.

Norman Wesley Robinson, 27-year-old negro, was arrested as the killer after tiny threads found under his fingernails were declared by police experts to have come from Mrs. Goodwin's dressing robe.

She was attired in this robe when an intruder invaded her home a week ago and strangled her after striking her with a furnace shaker. Robinson, formerly a janitor in the fashionable rooming house where Mrs. Goodwin acted as manager when she was not working for the government.

Police Captain Ira Keck announced that Robinson had confessed and that his motive was robbery.

Police said that Robinson, also known as John Williams, had served 21 months of a three to five-year sentence for highway robbery at Raleigh, N. C.

Washingtonian Held For Reckless Driving

J. B. Boyd of Washington is facing a charge of careless and reckless driving following a wreck late yesterday afternoon on highway No. 43, near McBroom's dairy.

The truck driven by Boyd is said by highway patrolmen to have been going East across a bridge and around a curve at too fast a speed, to have struck another truck driven by J. D. Watson of Rocky Mount, damaging both vehicles, but inflicting no personal injury.

JAP MARINES GAIN CONTROL CHINA POLICE

Blue Coats Brought in to Patrol Shanghai District

REDUCE TRAFFIC MAIN HIGHWAYS

Tokyo Officials Assert They Will Proceed According To Events, Necessities

Shanghai, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Japanese marines seized police control of the Chinese districts of Shanghai today as Tokyo government officials asserted "we will proceed according to events and necessities."

Blue-coated Japanese marines brought in to patrol streets of the Hongkew section of the international settlement after an attack on three comrades Wednesday, moved into the Chinese districts with pistols and rifles, bayonets fixed.

Traffic was limited on two main highways and even foreigners driving to golf courses north of the city were stopped and searched.

Many foreign residents of Shanghai condemned the Japanese action strongly, but the only reply was "we must protect our nationals."

Three Chinese suspects were brought into the Chinese courts for preliminary hearing in connection with the fatal shooting of one marine and the wounding of two others, but no definite facts were disclosed during the court session.

The suspects denied knowledge of the attack and police were unable to produce direct evidence.

Representatives of the armed Japanese forces declared loudly the "period of conferences is over from here on there will be nothing but action."

Funeral Services For Ledyard Ross Conducted Today

Last Rites For Airplane Crash Victim Held From Late Home; Burial In Moore Cemetery

Funeral services for Ledyard E. Ross, who died early yesterday morning as a result of injuries received in an airplane crash Saturday, were conducted from the home here this afternoon, with Elder J. R. Ross and Rev. R. L. Pittman, Free Will Baptist minister of Ayden, in charge. Burial followed in the Moore cemetery near Stokes.

Members of the State Highway patrol were active pallbearers. Mr. Ross died at 2:20 a. m., yesterday morning. In the airplane crash, which occurred late Saturday afternoon on the Eastern edge of the city, he suffered breaks to both his legs and many other serious injuries.

E. F. Pullen of Rocky Mount, pilot of the plane, also sustained critical injuries. He was taken to a Rocky Mount hospital.

Mr. Ross is survived by his wife, the former Miss Mildred Dupree; one son, Ledyard, Jr., 11, and one daughter, Leah Mildred Ross, 13. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Ross of near Stokes, and one brother, Blainco L. Ross of this city, also survive.

Loyal Troops In Counter-Attack

Ten-Foot Wall of Water Loosed from Alberche River Dams West of Madrid Provides Overwhelming Ally to Loyalists

(By Associated Press)

Claiming ten million cubic yard of water as an overwhelming ally, three forces of the Madrid government struck today in vicious counter-attacks on insurgent armies seeking to seize the capital.

A ten foot wall of water let out of Alberche river dams west of Madrid engulfed insurgent encampments, the government, shut out fascist off from their base.

Men and animals died in the flood, the Madrid defenders said. "Quickly following up their advantage, government armies claimed to have retaken Torrijos on the Maqueda-Toledo road."

Their commanders said the government columns now were menacing Maqueda, strategic highway junction 24 miles northwest of Toledo and 45 miles southwest of Madrid.

Insurgent advisers from Torrijos, however, stated fascist columns still were between Torrijos and Toledo, within sight of the provincial capital where the memorable seizure of the Alcazar wore on.

If government claims were true, these attackers of Toledo were cut off by both men and flood waters. A second government attack proceeded southwest toward Maqueda, while forces west of Talavera drove into the fascist rear guard.

From the insurgents' side came announcements of the capture of government war materials and reports of heavy government casualties in scattered engagements on the Maqueda-Toledo front.

CALL MEETING BUSINESS MEN RETAIL SALES CONTINUE HIGH

County-Wide Session To Be Held Court House Tonight

Every business man in Pitt county is urged to attend a meeting in the court house tonight at 8 o'clock, at which time proposed tobacco compact legislation will be discussed. The business men will determine whether or not the business interests of the county will cooperate with the State Farm Bureau Federation in efforts to secure passage of such legislation during the 1937 General Assembly.

The meeting is being sponsored by a committee of 19 business men and invitations have been issued personally or over the telephone to every business man in the county. In case anyone has been overlooked, however, sponsors asked that an invitation be extended through the press.

In announcing the meeting, E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the State Farm Bureau, issued the following statement:

"According to leading farmers, State Compact legislation is the only means available whereby tobacco production can be brought in line with consumption. Control of the tobacco crop in 1934 and 1935 was responsible for the prosperity enjoyed in Eastern Carolina during that time. The books of every business concern in Greenville today, when compared with the conditions of their books in 1932, will tell the story of what control legislation is worth to the business interest of Greenville. Therefore, it was thought advisable by this committee of business men that all the business interest of the county should come together and determine what steps, if any, are necessary for them to take in order that normal business interest may be maintained.

In 1932 Pitt County's Tobacco crop brought five and one-half million dollars. In 1934 it brought more than eleven million dollars, and if there is no control every indication (Continued on page six)

Bennett Advising Farmers To Plant Conserving Crops

Points Out How Number of Pitt Farmers Can Receive Full Benefits From Federal Program

R. R. Bennett, Pitt county farm agent, announced today that in checking up on compliance supervisors' reports as to the number of acres of soil depleting crops various farmers had reduced and the number of soil conserving crops they have planted, he found that a number lack several acres of having enough of the conserving crops to receive all benefits available under the Soil Conservation program.

Each farmer coming in this group is being advised as to the number of acres he must plant in soil conserving crops in order to reap the full benefits of the program for the current year.

He is advising each farmer that if he will act immediately and plant the specified number of acres to crimson clover, vetch, Australian winter peas or mixtures of the crops named, he will be eligible to receive the full payment under the federal program.

Mr. Bennett further advised the farmers that in reporting the planting of such crops to the county agent's office they must do so in a written statement signed by two disinterested neighbors or a member of the community committee, not later than October 15.

All Divisions of Trade Hold Recent Highs During Week

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—All divisions of trade continued at their recent high rates of activity. Dun and Bradstreet said today in the weekly review of business and trade.

"Retail sales totals were uniformly satisfactory, despite heat in some localities," the report said. "Wholesale volume kept pace with retail turnover and an increasing number of manufacturers operated plants at or near capacity to fill current orders. Employment made further gains.

"The principal industrial index attained new high positions, well above 1935 comparative levels and also above last week's figures x x x."

"Retail sales across the country last week were notable for uniformity in type. Outlets in most cities were favored with continuation of recent gains over 1935 levels, averaging 10 to 15 per cent."

Greenville Youth Attains Top Rank In Scouting Work

Kenneth Lane Henderson Awarded Eagle Scout Badge in Ceremonies at High School Today

Kenneth Lane Henderson, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Henderson, today was awarded the highest Boy Scout distinction available, that of an Eagle Scout, at ceremonies at the High School.

Young Henderson is a member of Troop No. 30, of which Jake Skinner is Scout master.

The program at which the presentation was made was presided over by V. M. Mulholland, F. C. Harding, chairman of the Scout Court of Honor, made a brief talk in which he recognized the achievements of the youth. Ralph Moss, assistant Scout executive, then was recognized and made the award.

The badge was pinned on the Eagle Scout by his mother. His father, an instructor at the college, read a letter from James E. West, chief Scout executive, which praised the boy for his accomplishment.

The youth has been a Boy Scout only two years, but during this short time has acquired all 21 merit badges required for acceptance as an Eagle Scout.

The Eagle's badge is the highest honor available to a Scout. Only one boy in seven is a Scout and only one Scout in 350 attain the rank of Eagle Scout.

Young Henderson is the first Greenville Scout to acquire the honor in the past five years.

SPANISH SOIL SAID TO BE SITE OF WORLD WAR

Spaniard Warns The League Assembly of Future Strife

MUCH APPLAUSE FOLLOWS SPEECH

Assembled Statesmen Construe Address as Attack on Germany, Italy and Portugal

Geneva, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Spaniard, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, told the League of Nations assembly today the "bloodstained soil of Spain already is the battlefield of a world war."

In what delegates construed as an attack on Germany, Italy and Portugal for allegedly arming the Spanish insurgents, he warned the assembled statesmen that future wars will not be a conflict between states.

Instead, he said, the battle will be between two groups of ideas between "democracy and oppression." Considerable applause followed the conclusion of his speech.

He mentioned no nation by name, but grouped the states which he accused as those whose political structure coincided "with that to which the rebels desire to reduce Spain."

Del Vayo spoke after Anthony Eden of Great Britain had declared his position, ardently believing in Democratic government, will "allow none to wrest it from us."

The Spaniard assailed the European non-intervention agreement as "direct and positive intervention in behalf of the rebels" and as "a blockade of the lawful Spanish government."

Further Evidence 'Labor Espionage' Given Committee

President of Detective Agency Says Proceeds From Undercover Activities At $1,000,000

Washington, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Testimony that the Pinkerton detective agency collected approximately one million dollars last year from its "undercover" investigations in industrial plants was presented today to the special senate civil liberties committee.

Tobert A. Pinkerton, president of the firm, told the committee his company's proceeds from "labor espionage" amounted approximately $1,000,000 during the first seven months of this year and totaled about $800,000 in 1934.

Closely questioned, LaFollette, Asher Rossiter, general manager of the firm, said its industrial work included investigation of conditions in manufacturing plants and towns, particularly with reference to "radicalism" and "discontent" among employees.

LaFollette drew a statement from W. H. Shoemaker, superintendent of the Pinkerton Detroit office, that some of his operatives "probably" had been employed by the General Motors corporation "to shadow" Adolph Germer, described as an organizer for the committee for industrial organization headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

Jack Benny started life as a violinist, but he switched talents after starring for a few years, and radio is none the worse off. Can you imagine James Melton tooting a saxophone. That's how it all began, but a college professor (this was at Vanderbilt) urged him to give his voice a chance, and now he is one of the highest paid stars. Frank Black might have been a chemist. ## Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER There's an ancient wheeze about the motorman who took his trolley out one morning and came back in the evening with the highest total of receipts ever taken on that line. "How in the world did you do it?" exclaimed the startled officials. "Well," said the fellow, "business wasn't so good on the road where you sent me, so I switched the car to Broadway." Of course, such things are only possible in jokes, but in the amusement field many noted personalities owe their continued success to the adoption of a new line. And the financial pay-off hasn't been bad.

Talks To Parents

Tyranny of Tears. By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH There are many grown women who get what they want by crying or pouting. It is simply a habit that they have carried over from childhood. Parents are to blame for turning out such incomplete samples of womanhood on an unsuspecting public. Every man knows the secretary whose one reaction to a reproach or a correction is tears. There are many husbands whose whole lives are spent under a tyranny of tears. Whatever their wives want, from sympathy to a trip abroad, they fight for; and they even win arguments by bursting into tears. In the end the weeping woman is the loser, for she cannot keep respect or admiration or even love, if she habitually uses such an unfair weapon. There is no more reason for permitting a girl to cry than a boy. Boy and girl babies have the same reaction to pain and discomfort. They cry when they are in pain or hungry. As soon as they can listen to reason the difference in training starts. Tommy is told, "Big boys don't cry. You must learn to be a man. Suppose Daddy cried. Wouldn't it look funny?" But no one talks this way to Mary. It would not be true, and Mary would know it. She has probably seen mother in tears a dozen times. Weeping is called a woman's prerogative, like changing her mind and inconsistency. If, however women are to have the right and privileges of adult human beings they must also fulfill the requirements of being grown up. No one can have his cake and eat it too. Tears may have been necessary when men held the purse strings and ruled their wives. Today they are outmoded, and the new motto for the nursery should be, "Grown people do not cry."

FARMERS SAVE ON LIMESTONE

Highway Department to Offer Product Cheaper

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Sept. 24.—Production of limestone recently begun by the State Highway and Public Works Commission at the crushing plant at Woodlawn, in McDowell county, should save hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for North Carolina farmers, H. J. Bryson, State geologist, said today.

Although the plant was established primarily for the production of highway building materials, the highway commission will make the dust from the crushing plant available at low prices to farmers, Bryson said. The price, he is informed, will range from 50 cents to $1 per ton at the plant, enabling delivery to be made in parts of Piedmont and Western North Carolina at a price of about $2.50 per ton.

Agricultural lime, Mr. Bryson continued, has previously cost farmers from $5 to $8 per ton. It is estimated that some 100,000 tons are used annually on North Carolina farms. The lime, he said, is excellent for neutralizing acid soils. Mr. Bryson, who made the first reports on the property, said some 400,000 tons of limestone are used each year in highway maintenance. Tests made in this state, South Carolina, Tennessee, Wisconsin, and by the U. S. Bureau of Roads, show that the product now being turned out is an excellent highway construction material. The plant has a capacity of 400 tons per day. The state geologist expects the use of agricultural lime to increase materially, especially in counties in close proximity to the plant, because of the greatly reduced price at which it will be made available. Loading facilities, eliminating and handling of the material by hand, have been installed for the convenience of the farmers.

Urge All Farmers To Take Inventory Of Timber Supply

Study of Timber Products Needed Annually Should Be Made Along With the Check-Up

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—It's a good idea for all farmers to take inventory for their timber supply, according to R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College. With this inventory should be made a study of the timber products needed annually to keep the farm going, he pointed out. The farmer should determine as accurately as possible the average requirements for fuel wood, for lumber for repairing buildings and for new construction, for fence posts, or logs for fence and bridge repairs, and other needs. If the annual growth of timber is not enough to supply these needs year after year, Graeber stated, the farmer should investigate the possibilities of increasing the supply. Annual growth may be speeded up by taking better care of the woodlands and, if necessary, by increasing the acreage of timber. Selective cutting of only the trees ready to cut will also help. On the other hand, if the farmer finds he has a surplus supply, he should plan to market it so that he can anticipate a periodical harvest of wood and lumber as a cash crop. A forest is as much a crop as is a field of corn, Graeber declared, and it will continue to yield annual or periodical harvests indefinitely if given the proper protection and management.

Alexander Farmers Raise Own Workstock

Taylorsville, Sept. 2.—Alexander county farmers say it is foolish to pay hard-earned cash for workstock than can be raised at home.

Farmers who have mares and sufficient feed and pasturage to care for growing colts find that it costs them almost nothing to raise their own work animals.

J. F. Brown, county agent of the State College extension service, who has been encouraging the farmers to raise more workstock, pointed out that a mare used for breeding purposes can also be used as a draft animal at the same time.

"Since a mare need not lose more than a week or two of work at foaling time, he continued, the production of colts does not place a handicap on the farmer who needs to keep his workstock busy."

During the spring and summer of this year, 57 colts were foaled in Alexander county. There were 32 mules and 25 horse colts.

Raising workstock is not new to farmers of this county, Brown said, from 1925 to 1935 production fell off greatly. Now that the price of work animals has increased, production is fast reviving.

Farmers who raise their own stock not only save themselves the heavy expense of buying teams elsewhere, but they also make a welcome profit on surplus animals they are able to sell.

D. L. Hines, of Stony Point, is one of the foremost colt producers in the county. Since 1932, 31 colts have been foaled on his farm, of which 25 have been sold at a handsome profit, Brown reported.

A little over two years ago he purchased two large gray mares from Montana. Colts from these mares have been sold for a total of $737.50.

HAWAII TOURISTS ANGRY OVER PROLONGED STAYS

Honolulu, T. H. (AP).—Many tourists complained this summer because they were "condemned" to more swimming, sunbathing and golfing than they originally intended when they came to Hawaii.

For more than six weeks, close to 1,000 visitors arrived every seven days, too many for the steamers to carry when most of them decided to return home about the same time.

Pactolus, North Carolina

The marriage of Miss Wiggins and Mr. Satterthwaite was solemnized at noon today at the home of W. M. Moore, uncle of the bride-groom on Eighth Street.

The Reverend A. W. Fleischmann, pastor of Memorial Baptist church performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a very becoming suit of brown wool with brown fur trimmings. Her flowers were a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Satterthwaite left for a wedding trip to Baltimore.

Mrs. Satterthwaite is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wiggins of Sampson county.

For the past several years she has made her home in Greenville, holding a position with the Young Mercantile company. Mr. Satterthwaite is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Satterthwaite. He holds extensive farming interests and is a merchant in Pactolus.

How's Your Health?

Dead Diseases
The public is frequently regaled with vivid descriptions of so-called new diseases. Recent years have witnessed the "advent" of psittacosis (parrot fever), tularemia, commonly contracted by handling diseased rabbits, and several types of encephalitis, loosely termed "sleeping sickness." In addition, diseases long prevalent but only recently defined—such as infantile paralysis and undulant fever—have added to the concerns of mankind.

By contrast, certain "dead diseases" once widely prevalent, are now entirely eliminated or rarely encountered. Such a list of diseases was recently presented by Dr. David Reisman in the Annals of Medical History.

The so-called sweating sickness is one. This disease appeared in England in 1485, and spread with such rapidity and to such an extent that hardly one in a hundred escaped. The disease caused a rapid stiffening of the body followed by copious perspiration, headache, stupor and pain in the pit of the stomach. The attack was of comparatively short duration, the crisis being passed within 48 hours. During the reign of Henry VIII, several epidemics of this strange disease swept through England.

Tarrantism was another strange disease, now apparently non-existent, which prevailed during the middle ages. As the name suggests, the disease was thought to be caused by a spider bite. A few hours after the bite, the "patient" is seized with great difficulty of breathing, a heavy anguish of heart, a prodigious sadness, his voice is sorrowful and querulous, his eyes disturbed.

By making allowances for the quaintness of the description, the symptoms are substantially like those witnessed today in persons bitten by the black widow spider.

Certain forms of mass hysteria, experienced during the middle ages are unknown today (though possibly a future historian will see their like affecting our generations). Among these the most noteworthy is the dancing mania. Men and Women seized by this mania danced for hours, and days, and formed indeed wandering bands of dancers.

Numerous diseases, formerly widespread, are now, if not "deceased," certainly much less prevalent. These include leprosy, typhoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria, and probably too, syphilis.

How diseases decline is not certain. Undoubtedly the "active opposition" of mankind has much to do with their elimination. However, diseases appear to have a life span, to which "old age and death" are natural terminations.

MEDICAL MEET IN GOLDSBORO

Pitt County Represented at Session Being Held

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 2.—Dr. Charles Reid Edwards, professor of clinical surgery in the University of Maryland and surgeon of the University of Maryland hospital, will address Eastern North Carolina physicians who attend the post-graduate extension course in medicine to be held at Goldsboro September 24 to November 5.

Dr. Edwards will lecture Thursday evening at the opening session of the course which is being sponsored by the University of North Carolina School of Medicine and the University Extension Division. He is taking the place of Dr. Arthur M. Shipley of the University of Maryland Hospital, who will be unable to attend due to illness.

With 85 physicians in eastern North Carolina already enrolled for the course, which is to be given each Thursday, the first session will get under way at 7 o'clock September 24 with a dinner at the Hotel Goldsboro where all the meetings are to be held.

A number of nationally known physicians are scheduled on the program of speakers. Dr. C. M. Byrnes of Baltimore, Md., will make his address on "Vascular Lesions of the Brain" on November 5, instead of October 8, as was previously announced.

Other speakers will include Dr. Warren T. Vaughn, of Richmond, Va., who will speak on "Allergy"; Dr. Thomas Fitz-Rugh, Jr., of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, "Common Forms of Anæmia"; Dr. Paul White, of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, "Coronary Diseases"; and Dr. Albert Graeme Mitchell, of the Children's Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio, "Pediatrics."

Counties to whose doctors this course is offered include Duplin, Edgecombe, Greene, Harnett, Johnston, Lenoir, Nash, Pitt, Sampson, Wayne, Wilson, Wayne and others accessible.

The following prominent physicians have been appointed as county chairmen to assist in organization: for Duplin, Dr. R. L. Carr, of Rose Hill; for Edgecombe, and Nash, Dr. A. L. Daughtridge; Rocky Mount; Greene, Dr. W. B. Murphy, Snow Hill; Harnett, Dr. J. W. Odell, Dunn; Johnson, Dr. W. G. Wilson, Smithfield; Lenoir, Dr. Paul Whitaker, Kinston; Pitt, Dr. K. B. Pace, Greenville; Sampson, Dr. John Kerr; Wayne, Dr. Wm. H. Smith, Goldsboro; and for Wilson, Dr. C. A. Woodard, Wilson.

'Dead' Man Returns

It's putting it mildly to say friends of Henry Gilland (above) of Humboldt, Tenn., were surprised when he casually strolled down the street. Two days before they had attended his "funeral." At least, they thought it was his funeral. A man identified as Gilland had been killed in a train accident and so buried. (Associated Press Photo)

Bean Demonstration Conducted In Murphy

Murphy, Sept. 2.—Final results on a Tendergreen bean demonstration conducted by J. S. Queen of Marble, Cherokee County, show a net profit of $66.29 on the venture, reports Assistant County Agent R. B. Wooten. All labor was hired and the total costs on the project amounted to $40.55 which included $30.00 paid for harvesting the beans at seven and one-half cents an hour. Mr. Queen harvested from the demonstration, 5,871 pounds of beans which sold for $123.58 at a total production cost of only $57.29, which left him a profit of $66.29 for his labor in grading the beans before they were hauled to the cannery, Wooten says.

Question About CARDUI

PERIODICAL PAINS

"Why do so many women take Cardui for functional pains of menstruation?"

Each dose of Cardui contains a purely vegetable sedative and antispasmodic—that is, a pain-relieving and cramp-relieving medicine that is especially effective at monthly periods.

This fact about Cardui (that it helps to relieve many of the ordinary functional pains of menstruation with a beneficial plant extract not habit-forming, not objectionable to take) is greatly appreciated by thousands of women. They recommend it to others.

Cardui is purely vegetable, liquid in form, and comes in 9-ounce bottles, with full directions for use. Try it! Of course, if it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.—(Adv.)

Tomorrow opens the college football season in this state which means that on Saturdays for the next few weeks thousands of persons will travel the highways to and from the games. During the football season there is hardly a Saturday that passes without its serious accidents with the resulting toll of dead or injured. If you are going to attend the football games this fall leave home early enough so that you will not have to rush to get there and then take your time in getting back home. Likewise remember that gasoline and liquor do not mix and even if you escape injury you are likely to lose your driving permit if you mix your drinking and driving.

Greenville today has another Eagle Scout, Kenneth Henderson, who within a little more than two years as a Boy Scout has attained the highest rank of the organization. Boy Scouting is not only good for the boys but it is good for any community because scouting prepares the boys for better citizenship. As they grow up Boy Scouts become the leaders in their chosen lines of endeavor and the records of the penal institutions reveal that former Boy Scouts are not listed among the inmates. Not only do we congratulate young Henderson for his achievements in Scouting but we congratulate this community for standing behind the Boy Scout movement and making it possible for our boys to have the benefit of it.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG (Continued from Page One) poles and wires cluttering up each thoroughfare gives pause to the New Dealers. It will dramatize and visualize the danger of government competition with private industry more graphically than a thousand speeches by Alf Landon. That's why Mr. Roosevelt now proposes a pooling of generating and distributing plants and retailing systems. Government politicians and legalists seek to stave off other threats. In their pending suits testing the constitutionality of TVA, the power companies will concentrate on picturing the "Roosevelt yardstick" as phoney. They will contend that it's only two feet long, not three, meaning that it does not include elements of cost which they must consider in fixing rates. Ex-Friend Newton Baker will handle the utilities case, and he's aching to spoil the power picture Mr. Roosevelt has painted. The tip-off on the thing is that Mr. Roosevelt sought the conference, not the power people. SURPRISE: Some of the President's keenest advisers regard his attack upon Hearst's "communist" series of articles as a major political blunder. Though signed by Secretary Early, the statement was inspired by FDR, who is running his campaign all by himself. The presidential deplorers are afraid that the White House pro-announcement reflected a spirit of concern and irritation which may spread to friends and foes. Until now the President has exhibited a serenity over his reelection which encouraged partisans from Chairman Farley down to the humblest precinct worker. What they fear is that this blast may wreck party morale by suggesting that FDR is losing his poise. Worse of all, the White House statement advertised the Hearst articles, and forced many hostile and rival publishers to carry the gist of the "communist" charges in their newspapers. Mr. Roosevelt's action was a complete surprise to his closest aides because every adviser except Harold Ickes has urged that he ignore the publisher's enmity and the attempt to inject a "red scare" into the campaign.

BRAHMIN: The Boston drizzle which slanted off President Roosevelt's top hat was palmy by comparison with the welcome which Harvard officials and alumni extended their most distinguished alumnus at the tercentenary celebration. The President's party was given a cold, academic shouder. In awarding honorary degrees President Conant libeled at New Deal aims and principles. Despite contrary (Roosevelt) theories, he noted that "mathematical cycles still revolve" and that the Constitution still preserves our liberties. FDR was allowed to huddle in the rain during the open air ceremonies, although wealthy and prominent Harvardians nearby had more than enough umbrellas to go around. University officials angrily refused to permit the White House press party to set up telegraph wires on the spot. So poor were the arrangements that some reporters accompanying the President could not squeeze into the hall. Veteran presidential companions can't recall when a Chief Executive was so thoroughly rebuffed as FDR was at his alma mater. In his manner and in his tart address joshing Harvard for its dislikes of Democratic Presidents Mr. Roosevelt gave it for tat.

COALITION: President Roosevelt will revamp 60 per cent of his Cabinet in the event of his reelection. He feels under no obligation to reappoint any member of his present official household, although he won't break the bad news before Election Day. According to present plans, the only four who will remain are Secretaries Hull, Morgenthau, Wallace and Ickes. Attorney General Cummings could probably stay on, but he is expected to resume private practice to recoup a fortune never any too large. Ill health will force the retirement of Navy Secretary Swanson. Francis Perkins will probably be drafted as head of a university. Harry Woodring of Kansas will be honored with the War portfolio after election, but he will not carry on if FDR has another four years. Mr. Farley will return to his contracting business and Secretary Roper will just quit. There will be no dearth of material to fill these vacancies. Senator Couzens whose New Deal sympathies defeated him for renomination, can have almost any post he pleases, so FDR told his friends. Another New Deal Republican—Major LaGuardia of New York—needn't worry about a wolf at his door. FDR will have a "coalition Cabinet" in a big way if returned to the White House.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN OPTIMISTIC: The move to pool public and private power facilities in the Tennessee Valley area—undertaken on President Roosevelt's initiative—was forecast in this column some weeks ago. The conference called for next week to discuss the matter fits neatly into the program for a series of reassuring White House parleys with groups representing various business interests. The practical issues are far more important in the power pool meeting than they were in FDR's chat with insurance chiefs or will be in his forthcoming session with the bankers. Yet the underlying idea behind all three is much the same—to convince the country that the New Deal means no harm to legitimate enterprise. Utility leaders, however, do not by any means regard the power pool conference as merely a political gesture. They believe that the President is sincerely desirous of finding a solution to the Tennessee Valley problem that will be reasonably satisfactory all around and are genuinely optimistic about the chances of working out such a formula.

SNIPING: Inspired reports from Washington intimate that the President's power pool proposal "marks the end of differences" within the Tennessee Valley Authority between Chairman Arthur Morgan and his colleague David Lillenthal. New Yorkers in a position to know say that these reports are exactly 100 per cent wrong. As we have noted on several occasions, the Morgan-Lillenthal rift cuts wide and deep. President Roosevelt has now officially adopted—at least temporarily—Dr. Morgan's philosophy of reasonable compromise with private utility interests. It can safely be stated that this does not please Lillenthal one little bit. He remains as unreconstructed as ever in his conviction that the only way to deal with the private utilities is to treat 'em rough. Exceptionally posted insiders say that Lillenthal is and will be the chief obstacle to a workable power pool agreement. It is known that he is sniping away vigorously at the plan behind the scenes and there is ample evidence in support of the belief that he hopes to block its consummation. On the other hand, if the conference hears constructively, it will be a large feather in Chairman Morgan's cap.

and encouragement of new businesses. They comment that the current tendency to give full consideration to established businesses before permitting the financing of one of the New Deals cardinal offenses from the viewpoint of bankers who prosper on volume of financing. SUBSTANTIAL: One word may make a lot of difference to the Securities Exchange Commission in forthcoming court tests of its legal authority. The securities act of 1933 states: "The findings of the commission as to the facts, if supported by evidence, shall be conclusive." In the Securities Exchange act of 1934 the word "substantial" is inserted to qualify the word "evidence." It's a cinch that lawyers for clients charged with market manipulation by the SEC are going to bear down hard on that "substantial" when they get to the courts. Whoever was responsible for getting it in the 1934 law was an enthusiast for airtight enforcement. Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate

It Was Something He Ate. Nowa Gradischka, Yugoslavia.—(AP)—Teodor Roschko, a young peasant, underwent a successful operation to remove an iron fork he had swallowed a year before in a suicidal attempt. Just before he was due to leave the hospital, however, he complained of stomach pains and suddenly died. An autopsy revealed the presence of four stocks, heavy nails and another fork in the stomach and intestines.

Native chiefs ceded Samoa to the United States in 1904 but congress did not accept the island group until 1929. LIGHT: We recently reported that Walter Chrysler's presence at a New York dinner in honor of Vice President Garner caused quite a furor in certain anti-New Deal circles. It was feared that perhaps Mr. Chrysler might wreck the "united business front" by going over to the enemy, although he had not said or done anything specifically in support of Roosevelt. In point of fact, Mr. Chrysler's political attitude was shifted several times since 1933. Originally sympathetic to the tenets of the Liberty League, his personal sentiments underwent a marked change after a personal visit to the White House about two years ago. For a while he was the New Deal's biggest booster in big business. Lately his ardor had obviously cooled somewhat, although it was not easy to determine just where he did stand. A private checkup now gives comforting assurance—that Mr. Chrysler has seen the light. In the past couple of weeks he has been actively soliciting contributions from some of his business associates on behalf of the Republican National Committee.

OFFENSE: A man of distinguished anonymity predicted some months ago that a striking series of recruits to the Landon cause would be announced as the campaign developed. The statement of Mr. Felix Warburg that he favors the Kansas—which crashed the front pages in New York—can be taken as one of the series. But financial insiders are privately more amused than impressed. They recall that Mr. Warburg was pro-Hoover in 1932 and remark that it would have been a case of man-bites-dog if he had come out the other way. At the same time, it is admitted that his open espousal of the Landon cause is useful in giving the lie to absurd but persistent whispered charges that the G. O. P. nominee is anti-Semitic. Keen New York observers also call it a bit naive of Mr. Warburg to say that what the country needs is expansion of present enterprise

Sweden's 'Lifers' Rare. Stockholm, Sept. 24.—(AP)—There are only 19 life term prisoners in Swedish jails—the lowest in number ever recorded. And thus in spite of, or because of the fact that Sweden long ago abolished capital punishment. The total number of prisoners is 1,816, of whom 80 are women. Last year the number was slightly lower, or 1,713.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has already rescued one girl from Ambrose Lawson's gang of kidnapers—Miss Little, the film star. But when he took her home he became the leading suspect for the murder of her uncle. Now Mahony has learned from Miss Fraser, one of Lawson's maids, where Ruth Fraser is being hidden and is determined to release her also. He has battered his way into the hideout, and is being intercepted by one of Miss Fraser's guards.

Chapter 11
GIRL WITH GUN
MAHONY turned on him like a tiger, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him nearer, and raised his pistol.

"Where's Miss Fraser? Answer quickly or I'll knock your brains out," he ordered harshly.

"Eh? Miss Fraser. She's locked in a room upstairs," answered the man. He had a bleary, bloated look, as if he had been sleeping in an armchair and was not yet properly awake.

"Thanks," said Mahony. His pistol-butt came down with a sharp rap. The sleepy-looking man joined the fat man on the floor.

Mahony sprang for the stairs and ran up them two at a time. At the top was a corridor with doors on either side of it. Half-way along the corridor a man was sitting as if keeping watch, a pistol in his hand.

As Mahony gained the top of the stairs, he rose from his seat quickly. Again there came the sharp ear-splitting crack of a shot, and something twitched Mahony's sleeve. Instantly Mahony flared back; the reports of the two shots followed one another with hardly an interval.

The man clutched at his shoulder, spun round on his feet, and sprawled on his back on the floor; his pistol slid from his hand across the carpet. Thin wisps of acrid smoke formed a slight haze in the corridor.

After the report of those two shots the silence, for a moment, seemed almost unnatural. Then Mahony shouted:

"Miss Fraser! Miss Fraser!"

From behind a closed door came a clear, defiant voice—a girl's voice.

"What do you want?"

"Are you locked in?" shouted Mahony. "I'll have you out of that in a minute."

He ran for the door and put his shoulder to it in a football charge. The timber cracked. He was about to have another go at it when the girl's voice came again, warningly.

"I shouldn't try that if I were you. I've still got four shots left."

Mahony didn't know what she was talking about. Anyway, she spoke so late. He had already started on another charge. Again his shoulder struck the door with all his weight behind it. There was a rending crash, and one of the timbers caved in slightly. From behind the door came the crash of a shot, and a splinter of woodwork jumped from the door and grazed Mahony's face.

He was amazed. The girl was shooting at him from behind the door. It occurred to him that it was probably she who had shot at him from the window.

"It's all right," he shouted. "Don't shoot. I've come to rescue you."

"Go and tell that to the Martinees," came the girl's voice from behind the door. "You won't catch me like that."

"Hell and damnation!" said Mahony in a tone of intense annoyance.

As yet he hardly understood what was happening, but the fact that the girl whom he had come to rescue was trying to shoot him aroused in him an acute exasperation. The fish-faced little half-wit, he thought; that was the kind of thing an intrepid young airman would do. He did not try to argue with her or persuade her; he acted.

He drew back slightly and then lunged forward with his right foot, with all his strength behind the lunge. The sole of his shoe struck timber in its weakest part, where it had already begun to give. With a splintering crash a panel split all the way down and the door flew open. As it opened, Mahony dropped to one knee, ducking as low as possible.

"Crack!" went the girl's pistol viciously, but the bullet passed harmlessly over Mahony's head. Before she could fire again he lunged himself forward, thrust out a long arm, grabbed at her ankle and gave a vigorous pull. She uttered a yell and sat down suddenly. The pistol went off again, but this time the bullet went into the ceiling. Before she could fire again Mahony grabbed the barrel and wrenched it from her hand.

"What the devil do you think you're doing?" he asked. "You might have shot me."

"That's what I meant to do," she said.

Sitting on the floor, they examined one another bad-temperedly. Ruth Fraser was a slim girl with a boyish figure, candid, slightly freckled features, a small determined chin, and very clear dark eyes. She looked at Mahony with great scorn and dislike; it was evident that she disapproved of him strongly.

Mahony sighed.

"Didn't you hear me say I'd come to rescue you?" he asked in a brave, patient voice. His tone seemed to indicate that she probably did not understand the meaning of a long word like "rescue."

"Of course I did," she answered. "But I didn't believe you. Why should I? I thought you were one of them. They've been promising me all sorts of things if I'd come out."

"I see," said Mahony. This annoyance vanished; he laughed.

"Do you believe now that I've come to rescue you?" he asked.

"Yes," she said.

He rose quickly to his feet, and held out his hand to help her to rise. She grasped it, and he pulled her upright.

"Come on, then; we'd better get out of here," he said.

"That will suit me," she answered.

SHE swayed slightly; of a sudden she looked very weak and tired. Mahony took her arm and helped her along the passage and downstairs to the hall. No one tried to stop them. In the front doorway the fat man was sitting up, leaning back against the wall and groaning loudly. He looked rather like a fat expiring fish. He watched them, glassy-eyed, while they got into the car. Mahony started the engine, and with a loud roar they were away.

It was not till they were well clear of the house that either of them spoke. The girl broke the silence between them.

"So you came into that house after me alone," she observed.

"Yes," said Mahony. She appeared to consider for a moment. Then she went on:

"I'm sorry I was such a nuisance. I mean, trying to shoot you, and all that sort of thing."

"That's all right," said Mahony. "How are you feeling?"

"Tired," she answered, "and hungry. I suppose you haven't by any chance got a ham sandwich or a piece of chocolate about you? I haven't had anything to eat since the day before yesterday. There was some water in my room, but that's not frightfully sustaining."

There was no trace of hysteria or terror about her; she spoke quite simply and seriously. Mahony liked her. A nice kid, he reflected.

"I'm sorry, I haven't," he said. "But I'll soon have you back at your own home, and you'll be able to get all you want there."

"I didn't really think you had," she said. "But I thought you might have, if you know what I mean."

She looked at him with frank curiosity.

"By the way, who are you?" she asked. "And how did you happen to butt in this evening?"

Mahony had no intention of disclosing his identity to her. He did not want to have to explain to her relatives, or the police, how he had found out that she was in that house.

"Don't bother about who I am," he answered. "I'm not going to answer any questions, but I'd like you to tell me about yourself—how you were kidnaped, and what was going on inside that house when I turned up."

"I was kidnaped about three days ago, when I was with a friend of mine named Billy Ross," she answered. "He met me as I was coming out of my guardian's house, and asked me if I'd like to go with him to see a marvellous fortune-teller named Rachel."

"I went with him, and while I was looking into a crystal somebody came up behind me and pressed something over my mouth. I think it was chloroform; it smelt like it."

"Of course I kicked and struggled like anything, but it was no good. That's all I remember till I woke up in that house. There were three men there, and they kept me locked in a room. They didn't ill-treat me, except for not letting me go, but I believe they put something in my food."

"Some drug, you mean?" asked Mahony.

curtailed or abandoned. Simultaneously, Mr. Landon greatly enlarges his itinerary, adding a sudden swing into Maine and the east to an already crowded schedule.

In the case of Mr. Roosevelt, the reversal of form is especially notable because he is following Presidential precedent.

On many past occasions he has prided himself on his disregard of tradition, particularly the tradition of Presidential aloofness. Politically, he has looked upon himself as a reformer, unfettered by the forms and pretenses which have surrounded so many of his predecessors.

Now he follows the course of custom by speaking almost as though he were unaware that a Presidential campaign was in progress.

It is true he has embellished the precedent somewhat, adding a fitness which many other presidents have lacked. He has accomplished an oblique approach to political subjects, stipulating that he is not speaking or acting from political motives in cases where the actual political effect has been clear to everyone.

At the celebrated tax conference he made no public statement at all; others announced no tax increases were impending. He left it to the insurance executives to say from the White House steps that their companies were sounder than ever. Without a mention of politics, his advisers are giving out almost daily hints that the foreign situation makes 1936 a bad time to change horses.

On the Republican side there is no prospect that tactics will change. Mr. Landon now is thoroughly committed to the road; the front porch campaign advocated by some of his friends no longer is a possibility, even if it were deemed advisable. A change at this stage would be interpreted widely as a retreat.

Regarding Mr. Roosevelt, opinions differ. That he will make some purely political speeches, and himself label them as such, seems certain.

tain. There are those who think it will not be long until he answers unreservedly the call to which he has responded so often before, and abandons the oblique approach for the direct.

What about the wisdom of campaign swings by Presidential nominees? The record supports only in part the old belief that they almost always do more harm than good; and besides every campaign year has its own set of circumstances. The election returns will tell.

It is not unusual for a national campaign to work strange transactions, yet it would be difficult to recall another such out-of-character alignment as that which has governed the roles of the two principal candidates for President during recent weeks.

On the one hand we have had

President Roosevelt, born with a love for the hustings and skilled in the school of hard campaigning, letting to summer months drift by without a move toward coming openly to the stump, and speaking only indirectly about the election.

On the opposite side has been Governor Landon qualified for spellbinding neither by native inclination nor experience, a man who won a Presidential nomination largely by sitting tight on his job as governor, swirling from state to state and making rear platform speeches by the score.

A though he now has agreed to a few late September speeches, Mr. Roosevelt will travel "non-politically," says the White House, and an October transcontinental trip which had been projected for him may be

CALL MEETING OF BUSINESS MEN

(Continued From Page One) points to a large crop in 1937 which would perhaps sell for not more than the crop in 1932. Control legislation is the only thing that will prevent this from happening, and the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation is asking that the business interests of Greenville join in with them in an effort to prevent a condition that will not only mean low prices for tobacco crop, but also a reduction in the value of all real estate.
