Drive Against Capital Next Fascist Objective In Spain's Civil Strife

Insurgents Rout Defenders from City of Toledo

LOYALISTS PLAN COUNTRY ATTACK

Reinforcements For 'Cold Steel' Charge Ordered for Vicinity of Fallen City

(By Associated Press) A fascist army, 8,000 strong, commanded the ancient city of Toledo today after routing government defenders and freeing comrades from the ruins of the long-besieged fortress Alcazar.

The government forces fled to the south and east, their pass north to Madrid blocked by insurgents. In a ragged fight the loyalist militiamen stopped at intervals to shell Toledo and then sped on their way.

The fascists troops smashed their way into the city yesterday afternoon. Their first step was to free the joyous Alcazar defenders, who for 10 weeks had resisted shell, fire, dynamite and gasoline fumes directed against their battered fortress by government fighters.

The Alcazar force joined in the battle and the last socialist lines scattered and fled.

Next objective of the fascist army, consolidating its lines at Toledo, was expected to be a crushing drive toward Madrid, 40 miles to the north.

The Madrid government, mapping elaborate plans for a counter attack in the Toledo sector, ordered reinforcements for a "cold steel" charge. Throughout the night troop-laden lorries, escorted by war planes, rumbled southward.

Rowland Residents Flee From Floods

Hundreds of Families Forced to Drop Rehabilitation Work as Rivers Again Reach High Stages

Waco, Texas, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Hundreds of lowland families dropped rehabilitation work and fled for their lives again today when central Texas rivers did an unwelcome encore to last week's disastrous floods.

Property loss estimated at $5,000,000 after last week's floods rapidly climbed into additional millions, but loss of life was held to a minimum. Four deaths had been attributed to autumn rains and record overflows.

Thousands received emergency relief as streams and tributaries equalled in some sections flood stages attained during the 1921 flood that took 224 lives in the area.

In Brown and McCulloch counties more than 100 families had moved back into homes ruined a week ago fled today as the Coocardi river at Winchell reached a 56 foot stage at 11 a. m. It continued to rise a foot an hour toward last week's high mark of nearly 60 feet.

Advices received at Brownwood said the river was dropping at Rockwood after reaching a 70 foot stage late last night. Residents said the flood could not be as disastrous as that of a week ago. All crops were destroyed then.

EMPLOYED REPEL YOUTHS

Students Strike When Favorite Teacher is Transferred

Campbell, Ohio, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Police threw two tear gas bombs today to disperse hundreds of striking Memorial High school students protesting against the transfer of a favorite teacher. Three youths were held on charges of suspicion.

Police chief Frank Cunningham discharged the bombs near the school and the students refused to halt a demonstration outside the school and enter the building. A squad of half a dozen policemen were on the scene.

As a breeze swept the gas clouds into their midst, the students took flight to a nearby hill, many of them coughing and sneezing.

Classes were suspended Friday when all but about 100 of the 1,000 students refused to enter the building in protest against the transfer of Michael Graban, a popular instructor, to a grade school.

Supt. Andrew Klisko, explained that the transfer was routine, caused by smaller attendance at Memorial High this year.

Klisko said that after he had explained the matter, several ring leaders apologized and said they would return to school this morning.

At the opening hour, however, about 200 students entered the building and the rest milled about outside, shouting an displaying placards reading "strike" and "we want Graban."

Numerous Counties Wish Chance Vote On Whiskey

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, Sept. 28.—Between 50 and 60 counties will vote to set up county liquor stores if the 1937 assembly enacts a state-wide local option law which will permit any county which so desire to hold county-wide elections to decide whether or not liquor stores shall be opened and operated on a legal basis, according to the prevailing opinion among those who have been keeping an ear to the ground in the present "dry" counties.

With 17 counties already operating legal liquor stores, the prevailing belief is that from 35 to 43 additional counties will swing into the "wet" column as soon as they are given an opportunity to vote on the question.

A member of one of the ABC boards in one of the larger wet counties who is well acquainted in every section of the state, especially with county commissioners and county officials, is already predict-

FOREST FIRES MENACE MANY SMALL TOWNS

Two Communities Already in Ruins with Seven Deaths

FIRES CRACKLE OVER WIDE AREA

Virtually Entire Timber-Clad Southwest Portion of Oregon, California Afire

Marshfield, Oregon, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A town of 1,500 and a neighborhood in ruins, seven persons were dead and other small towns were threatened today as forest fires converted virtually the whole of timber-clad southwestern Oregon into a giant torch. Another settlement was wiped out in northern California.

United States forest service information that a third of Myrtle Point, Ore., was in flames was disproved later, but M. M. Craven, Myrtle Point fireman, said a shift in wind would endanger the town of 2,000. It is 30 miles inland from Bandon, destroyed Saturday night.

Fires crackled at the outskirts of Coquille, North Bend, and Marshfield. The settlements of Proper was wiped out. Damage was in the millions.

Fifteen thousand were homeless. Only a shift or diminution in the daily winds or a rain could save at least three towns and thousands of acres of timber land, authorities said. More than 3,000 men were on the fire lines.

SEAMAN TRIED IN NAZI COURT

American Sailor Sentenced To Three Years for Sedition

(Copyright by Associated Press) Berlin, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Lawrence Simpson, American seaman, was convicted of sedition by the people's court today and sentenced to three years in prison minus the 14 months he spent in jail awaiting trial.

Simpson, a sailor on the S. S. Manhattan was convicted in a one-day trial during which he admitted, without reservation, that he and three German communist friends had tried to set up a popular front government in Nazi Germany with three small balloons and packages of anti-anti-propaganda.

The venture failed, Simpson said, because one of the four turned out to be a police spy.

He admitted freely that he repeatedly brought communistic propaganda into Germany aboard the S. S. Manhattan on one occasion smuggling 60,000 "deaths to fascism" stickers into the Reich.

Defense attorneys pleaded for clemency for Simpson, as for an American, "he had no real opportunity to learn the benefits of life in the Third Reich. Therefore, as an outsider he must be judged less harshly."

SOVIET CHIEF ATTACKS NAZIS

Maxim Litvinoff Opposes Entry of Germany Into League

Geneva, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar tonight launched a fierce attack before the league of nations assembly against nazism and fascism, declaring them to be "deadly enemies of all working people of civilization."

Without mentioning Germany by name, Litvinoff opposed the entry into the league of any nation founded on the idea of "racial and national inequality which described all people except its own as sub-human."

However, he said, Russia is ready to make an agreement with "the most aggressive countries" and therefore recommended seeking universal agreement by calling a peace conference or convoking a commission on European union to discuss political economics and disarmament problems.

"If any state refused to participate," Litvinoff asserted, "everyone will see our road and their's do not run together. We must organize for peace without them."

Officials said several hundred arrests were expected to result from the raids, which were ordered by Harold N. Graves, assistant to Secretary Morgenthau and coordinator for the treasury's various law enforcement agencies.

Although the drive will be centered on narcotics and liquors, treasury officials reported that counterfeiting, custom violations and any other illegal activities within the province of treasury law enforcement would be included.

The activities were being centered in the 50 or more cities where various treasury enforcement agencies maintain offices.

Prison's 'Forgotten Men' Are Given Encouragement

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 28.—Some 1,400 "forgotten men" in the State Prison system who have no relatives or friends to show any interest in them, many of them long termers who have already been in prison for many years, are being given the same chance at getting paroles or pardons as the other prisoners who have friends and relatives to intercede for them and if necessary to employ lawyers for them. Commissioner of Paroles Edwin Gill said today.

For several weeks now the entire staff of the paroles office here has been concentrating on these "forgotten men," with the result that they have almost completed the files on 400 of these men while those on the remainder are expected to be completed within the next 60 days, Gill said. When the files are completed, they will all be gone over carefully by Commissioner Gill and Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus with a view to granting paroles or pardons to those whose records indicate they have reformed to the degree where clemency can be granted.

"For several years I have wanted to make a careful and systematic check and survey of the prisoners who have never asked for a parole or who had no friends or relatives to ask clemency for them and have managed to look into a good many of these cases," Gill said. "But there were so many that it was impossible to do much along this line until our staff was enlarged. Now that we have a larger staff, we are able to do this work and when this present survey is completed, there will be no such thing as a 'forgotten man' in the prison system. For then the record of every man will have been investigated and placed in the files for yearly examination to determine whether or not he is deserving of parole."

The task of preparing these files and gathering the information needed is slow and tedious, Gill (Continued on Page Five)

LARGEST SALE ENTIRE SEASON

Estimated 1,750,000 Pounds of Tobacco Offered Today

Authoritative sources declared this afternoon that more tobacco was offered on the local market today than on any single day since this season's auctions began.

It was officially estimated that one and three-quarter million pounds were on the floors.

Better grades were reported to be selling much stronger today, but the usual amount of black and green tips were on the floors to hold the average down.

Through Friday a total of 13,963,425 pounds of tobacco had been sold on the local market, bringing farmers $3,008,056.55, or an average of $21.48.

While it was freely admitted that this year's sales would not equal those of last year, offerings for the past few days have shown a large increase. On Friday 1,114,913 pounds were sold for one of the largest auctions this year.

There was little doubt, however, that today's offerings would surpass those of any day so far this year.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

READY: Henry Wallace is the most stubborn member of the cabinet, despite his superficial shyness. Ordinarily this is an unhappy trait in a presidential aide, but his persistency enabled him to romp through the farm belt as a campaign Paul Revere.

For several years the Secretary of Agriculture has tried to sell the idea of crop insurance to FDR. The President listened patiently, but always shied off because of pressure of other business. Mr. Wallace tucked a crop insurance plank into his grip, hopped a train for Philadelphia and badgered "practical politicians" until they were bored. Finally, reluctantly, Platform Chairman Wagner agreed to lay the proposition before the President by telephone.

Mr. Roosevelt's reply was that he wanted more actuarial statistics before making a specific pledge and no plank was included. But the Iowa corn-grower continued his collection of data. When the White House sent out an SOS call a few (Continued on Page Four)

FEATURE ACTS AT EXPOSITION

Best Grandstand Entertainment Yet to Be Offered

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Sept. 27.—Superior entertainment of a whole new nature will feature the grandstand program as the 1936 State Fair which will be held in Raleigh the week of October 12, according to bookings announced today by Manager Norman Y. Chambliss.

The North Carolina State Fair has the reputation of being the only exposition in the country at which the grandstand receipts are able to pay for the entire arena program. That record was set last year, when $17,000 was realized from the grandstand, which has a seating capacity of 7,000.

"I can attribute our success with the grandstand solely to the fact that we offer some of the best outdoor entertainment that money can buy," declared Manager Chambliss. "The fair patrons have learned to expect a show above the ordinary, and that's what we are going to give them this year. As in the past two years, two grandstand shows will be presented on Thursday and Friday nights, and possibly on Wednesday night, to take care of overflow crowds."

Outstanding among the grandstand features will be the performance of "Lucky" Teter and his "Hell Drivers" on Tuesday afternoon. Teter will lead his motor-mad daredevils through two solid hours of what is known as "the greatest thrill show on earth."

Harness racing, with some of the country's best known horses, will feature the arena program Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Saturday's main event will be siming auto racing under A. A. A. supervision.

A colorful revue, "The Revelations of 1936," will present a program of mirth, melody and mads nightly before the grandstand, closing with display of aerial fireworks.

up" as well as "step down" transformers. Some, notably Crile, have included in the representation electrical generators in the form of chemical batteries, corresponding to the cell bodies of the neurons.

In the main, however, these comparisons were made in the manner of analogies, to facilitate an understanding of the structure and functioning of the intricate nervous system. Now, however, it has been found that the nervous system is indeed a generator of electrical potential which can be measured by means of sensitive instruments.

This discovery was made by Berger in 1929. He demonstrated that the activity of the human brain could be detected from the outside of the skull. By applying electrodes to certain portions of the skull, electrical currents can be drawn off, which when amplified sufficiently can be recorded graphically. Further study revealed that the electricity thus gathered is generated in the outer portions of the brain. The electric potential appears in waves at the rate of about 10 a second. Oddly, they are present when the eyes are closed, but disappear when they are opened. Intense mental activity is also found to cause their disappearance.

The frequency of the waves varies in different individuals but is re-

Jahs, and they went out of their way to help us get what we wanted. You see, we were making pictures, and there are parts of Indian philosophy and life that white men have never been permitted to witness. For instance, we secured some excellent shots of the Faithful at Prayer in the sacred Hindu and Mohammedan mosques.

"The Maharajahs honored us with special military reviews of their private, and let me assure you, powerful armies. Each detachment of men was headed by an elephant, and the jewels adorning the beasts' heads were estimated in value at a quarter of a million dollars.

"One of our most exciting experiences was negotiating Rajputana, which the natives call 'The Land of the Princess.' This is the barrier between the millions of South India and the fierce, warlike tribes of the north.

"One met with a lot of violence and misery, of course, but the impression carried away by most observers is that India is the world's last great frontier of pageantry—gorgeous palaces and shrines, mystics and yogis, the calm tranquility of the religious sects, the turbulent, rowdy tribes of the Rajputi, the fighting and the dancing, the bright color and red dust.

"One of the sights I'll never forget was the fanatical prayer to the Sun God in Jaipur. They let us film it. Then we saw the famous camel corps of Bikaner, a private battery of thousands of mounted camels which is retained especially for the will of one man, the Maharajah of Bikaner."

"Did you witness any actual fighting?"

"Listen—men may club one another, and a wild bull may gore a matador—but for sheer, magnetic horror, nothing can equal the death struggle between two enraged bull elephants. But each succeeding episode seemed to be more thrilling than the last. We persuaded His Highness the Nawab of Bhopal to overcome his prejudices against the camera and he permitted us to photograph him. One marvelous sequence shows him hanging down over a cliff taking a shot at a tiger."

"That must have been exciting."

I agreed enviously. "After being in the wilds so long, I'll bet you are ready to settle down in old New York for a while, eh?"

Explorer Hoefler shook his head slowly. "Not for very long," he said. "You see, day after tomorrow I'm sailing for Africa."

Man About Manhattan

There was a lecture by Jean LaVoure in the Village about some missing murals, and I drifted in to hear what that exciting adventurer had to say. But the lecture was in French, so I drifted right out again and went over to the Explorers' club, in 72nd street, where Paul L. Hoefler had just checked in after a year in India.

"How was Mother India?" I asked him. "Great," he declared, "and not at all what one would suspect. We were fortunate in being the guests of India's most powerful Mahara-

He is the first Greenville Scout to attain the rank of Eagle Scout in the past five years.

Scouts Were Busy During Past Months

Boy Scouting in Greenville District during the summer kept up active troop meetings in ten troops out of sixteen and held a camp all the summer at Camp Charles, the Council Camp, which was attended by eleven boys from Greenville, five from Ayden, nine from Fountain, two from Stokes, and nine from Farmville. With the opening of school and the return of Scoutmasters and scouts from their summer vacations all sixteen troops are actively meeting now. The troop of colored Scouts has been meeting regularly all summer and Assistant Scout Executive Mozo reports they are doing a fine job of Scouting.

Members of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade were guests at a sumptuous barbecue dinner Saturday night served on the lawn of Bob Stokes at his home in Stokes town.

Joint hosts were Jim Edwards, G. T. E. T. J. T. Jr., and Dewey Stokes, all of the community.

In addition to barbecue pig, barbecue chicken and "all the trimmings" were served the tobaccoists. The feast was served on the lawn, which was well-lighted and provided a perfect location for the dinner.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By PRESTON GROVER
Washington — As Maine goes, some Republicans are chanting, so goes Michigan.

The result in Maine and the defeat in the Michigan Republican primary of Senator James Couzens, a New Deal supporter, are interpreted by Republicans as successive slaps by the electorate at President Roosevelt.

Be that as it may, it is evident that what observers looked upon as a Democratic effort to build up party strength in Michigan and at the same time save Senator Couzens has, in part, failed.

When Frank Murphy, former Detroit mayor, was granted leave of absence as Philippine high commissioner to run for the Democratic nomination for governor in Michigan it was little concealed that it was a maneuver to bolster Roosevelt chances in Michigan in November. Murphy was popular with the poor, with the low paid, and with the negroes of Michigan.

So was Couzens. The senator's great wealth seems not to have branded him in the eyes of Michigan's "masses" as an "economic royalist." His benefactions, directed at relief of the poor in his state, were considerable, particularly at the onslaught of the depression.

Thus this situation arose: Any effort to win the Democratic nomination for Murphy meant drawing in that primary part of the vote which otherwise would have gone into the Republican primary to support Couzens.

Caustic Republicans observed that while the administration wanted much to have Couzens in the Senate it wanted Michigan for Roosevelt in November more.

Couzens always has campaigned largely independent of the Republican organization in Michigan. Some loyal adherents of the Republican organization long ago suggested quietly that Couzens ought to be dropped as the party's candidate. When, weeks before the primary, he announced his indorsement of Roosevelt, the organization support went to former Governor Wilbur M. Brucker, who won.

Where now will go the vote that followed Couzens into the Republican primary? Democrats hope it will switch over to Prentiss M. Brown, Democratic senatorial nominee, and to Murphy and thereby mark a split in the Republican ranks which will give Michigan to Roosevelt.

Republicans point to the state's long Republican record, to the far greater number of votes in the Republican primary, and claim Michigan for London.

minders admit privately that the Baltimore Sunpapers' poll of all registered voters in Maryland worries them more than any other single factor. The canvass gives Mr. Roosevelt about 61 per cent of the vote so far, and shows him ahead in rural, Republican regions.

It is a distinct shock for several reasons. Since 1832 Maryland has been on the winning side in national elections. It is a conservative state dominated by wealthy aristocratic Baltimore. The late Albert Ritchie, who had no love for the New Deal, was supposed to have sored his followers on the administration. Henry Breckinridge rolled up an 18,000 vote in the primary. In the face of these considerations, Republicans are rubbing their eyes.

Their off-the-record solace (and they're not sure it's valid) is that the Maryland G. O. P. has been disorganized for years, whereas even Democratic bourgeois are closing ranks behind the President. G. O. P.-ers also suggest that their enemies are rounding up votes so as to make Maryland offset the psychological effect of the Maine result.

COUNSELLOR: Although the nation chuckled when the "missing John Nance Garner" suddenly turned up at the Hotel Baltimore National Chairman Parley welcomed the slow, shrewd Texan with open arms. For the duration of the campaign the Vice-President will furnish a force which the Democrats sorely need.

Mr. Garner will fill the spot left vacant by the death of Louis Howe. Cautious and conservative, the Texan places great faith in that useful, political "monosyllable"—"No." He will sit in on inner conferences, and pass judgment on the many wild ideas which bob up at every campaign headquarters. And there have been several instances—both at New York and Washington—where a Garneresque ounce of prevention could have been applied with benefit to the patient.

The V. P. also supplies close contact between New York G. H. Q. and the President. There has been a lack of liaison because of the fact that not even Mr. Parley likes to oppose Mr. Roosevelt's ideas and moves. The outspoken Texan suffers from no such fears (the often vetoed FDR's plans during the Congressional session) and FDR has learned by experience to lend an ear when Mr. Garner talks.

MUFFLED: The New Deal's power aces recently played a quiet card which discloses their eagerness to make peace with the utilities. Diplomatic REA Chief Morri Cooke was the dealer.

Mr. Cooke invited Rep. Maury Maverick of San Antonio to speak before the young people's section of the Upstream Conference. Since Mr. Maverick has been an advocate of public ownership, and was bitterly fought by the private utilities in the recent primary, he figured that the administration wanted him to expound the views for which he is noted. In advance copies of his speech submitted to Mr. Cooke the Texan declared that Roosevelt power policies would eventually lead to "public ownership."

When the speech was returned to Mr. Maverick, polished and mimeographed for delivery, the reference to "public ownership" had been eliminated. As he did at the Third World Power Conference, Mr. Cooke tamped down all violent political explosions at his "little waters" assembly.

OFFENSE: Democratic defenders in the farm country are figuratively dynamiting the G.O.P.'s "trailer trucks" which are supposed to dramatize the increase in agricultural imports under the Roosevelt-Hull tariff policies. The thrust won many rural votes in Maine, and its deadliness may be duplicated elsewhere.

The All-Party Agricultural Committee for Roosevelt has recruited the wrecking crew. It has instructed its state committees to mobilize groups of hecklers as welcome committees for the trailers. It has furnished its field agents with facts and figures designed to dispute the contention that FDR has surrendered the American market to "foreign farmers." It is flooding farm states with millions of pamphlets to hold the agricultural line.

An ex-Republican, William H. Settle, heads the New Dealers Francis Clare, who stars in the G. O. P. troupe, was once employed by Subsistence Homesteads. The blond lady who sang and danced and let the Cleveland oval for Herbert Hoover is Mrs. Clare. Old partisan tieups have been washed wholesale in the farm-and-market fight.

NEW YORK By James McMullin FORGET: A number of Tammany leaders have made a point lately of proclaiming publicly their loyalty to President Roosevelt. To hear them tell it, he is going to sweep New York City by an even greater majority than he did in '32. Wide-spread reports that the boys have their knives out for the national ticket are airily dismissed as baseless canards.

Why this sudden solicitude by Tammanites to emphasize their fidelity to Roosevelt? Because a Democratic state convention is scheduled for this week. Jim Farley—despite persistent undercover sniping—will be the boss of that convention. And even though Farley's grip is supposed to be weakening, prudent politicians still deem it worthwhile to try to make a good impression on the big shot.

will forget to show up at the polls on November 3—or will pull the wrong levers at the voting machines by accident.

SMART: The New York State milk crisis is working out exactly in line with our advance dope in this column. Stanley and Felix Piseck—leaders of the independent dairymen upstate and chief agitators for a milk "walkout"—talked the best strike they knew how last week. They wanted one badly in order to impress the politicians with their power over the farmers. But the only walkout resulting from their efforts was the farmers' walkout on their own leadership. The milk producers flatly refused to follow them into a strike.

The real difficulty was—as we predicted—that Dairymen's League and Sheffield producers would have nothing to do with a strike at the present time. They are much pleased with the larger checks for their August milk that they received this month.

The independents were smart enough to realize—despite violent arm-waving by the Pisecks—that they could not get to first base without the support of these major producing groups.

NOTICE: But seeds of real trouble have been sown for October. Borden's and Sheffield's have both reduced their retail prices in New York City. Mayor LaGuardia is presumably pleased with his victory on the consumers' behalf—but the farmers who supply Borden's and Sheffield (including the Dairy-men's League) won't be a bit pleased when they get their checks next month. Pre-election milk fireworks may stir up plenty of political excitement.

The Pisecks are counting on that when they grandly announce that they are putting their dealers "on probation" for a month. Their actions remind keen observers of small boys who crowd to the foreground of a news-reel movie to be sure that people notice them.

MASTERY: New York G. O. P. leaders will have to handle their state convention with kid gloves to fend off the risk that they will lose if they have planned any degenerate into an unlovely family brawl. Backers of the various leading candidates for the governorship are as suspicious of each other as the French are of Hitler. For instance, supporters of Judge Bleakley of Westchester have an idea that the party old guardmen who are promoting Senator Fearon of Syracuse may try to flatten them with a well oiled steam roller. Threats of vigorous reprisals if this happens have already been voiced.

It is quite true that the old guard in general would prefer Fearon to anyone else—and especially to Westchester's favorite son. They know exactly where the Syracuse Senator stands. But the progressive element is equally determined to block Fearon. It will take mastery plotting to complete the convention without leaving an aftertaste dangerously detrimental to November harmony.

CORPORATIONS: Analysis of the political convictions of the managements of twenty companies whose stocks are rated among the acknowledged leaders on the New York Stock Exchange reveals an overwhelming pro-Landon preponderance. All of these companies have shared prominently in the 292 percent stock market recovery from the depression low on July 8, 1932 to September 19, 1936 (seventh anniversary of the end of the bull market).

Of the twenty, Allied Chemical the failure of L. M. Edwards and American Can, American Locomotive, American Telephone & Telegraph, Atchison, Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Edison, duPont, General Motors, International Harvester, New York Central, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, United States Steel, Westinghouse Electric and Woolworth (80 percent of the companies considered) can be classed as strongly for Landon as far as their chief officers and directors are concerned. Or perhaps, it would be more accurate to say that they are vigorously anti-New Deal.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

The library stands second only to the school systems in the education of both juveniles and adults. Dr. Lyman Bryson of Teachers College, Columbia University, told the 4000 delegates to the New York State Library Association convention. He advocates a still wider scope for libraries in their educational activities, declaring that "self-education" and "post-school" education for the adult are equally important with the furnishing of recreational reading.

Dr. Bryson added that the schools meet first needs in education but it is the duty of librarians and their assistants to afford continuing education to "supply and foster the desire for informational and educational literature."

Carlyle said that the modern university is the university of books. H. G. Wells merely spoke a platitude when he said, "Today I suppose most educated people would agree that so long as we live we learn and ought to learn—that we ought to develop our ideas and enlarge, correct and change them."

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has rescued two girls from Ambrose Lawson's gang of kidnapers the same night. When he took Lisa Little, the film star, to her home he unfortunately made himself a suspect in the murder of her uncle. And now he has left Ruth Fraser at the home of her guardian, Lee-Ramsden, and departed without telling her who he is. And Lee-Ramsden tells Ruth that the police will never believe the story she has told him of her experience.

Chapter 13
THREAT FROM LAWSON
LEARMSDEN rose from his chair.
"Why not tell them the old story that you went to stay with an old school friend and forgot to let us know you were going," he suggested. "Then they won't have to pretend to be busy investigating a lot of kidnapers who, they will be quite sure, don't exist. I don't suppose for a moment the police will believe the story of the old school friend, but at least it will relieve them of further responsibility, and it will look much better in the newspapers than that ridiculous kidnapping story."
"Perhaps you're right," she replied. "I'll tell the old school friend story if you think that will cause less fuss. Now I'm going to bed. Good night, Uncle Gerald."
She always called him uncle, though he was not her uncle. But ed, put the car away in a lock-up garage he had rented in a nearby mews, and entered the house where he lodged.

He wakened fairly early in the morning, and during breakfast he studied the morning papers. Nothing was in them about the murder of Vincent Little.

After breakfast he rang up the hospital to which Ross had been taken to enquire about him. Ross was still alive and still unconscious; he might remain unconscious for several days. The doctors did not know yet whether he would live or not.

Mahony decided that it would be best to leave the next move to his enemies. He wondered what form that move would take. Lawson could hardly tell the police that he, Mahony, had been in the Little's house when Mr. Little was murdered, and he thought it extremely unlikely that Lisa could have recognized him.

Nevertheless his enemies, not knowing what he knew about them, would be pretty sure to make some move against him for their own protection.

In the meantime it might not be a bad idea to have a bit of a look round. When he had finished his second cigaret, he consulted the telephone directory and looked up examination in driving by the school principals that is given by the highway patrol, however," Griffin said. "Only those who make the best showing in these strict examinations are selected as bus drivers. In addition, these drivers are under the constant supervision of the school principals, who in turn are held responsible in case of accidents. The result is that our records show the student drivers are much better drivers than the 350 or so adult drivers who are employed. The student drivers also have a much higher mental age and for the most part are superior in almost every way to the adult drivers who are available, even at twice the amount we pay student drivers. This is not a matter of opinion, but is shown by the records kept by the school principals and superintendents for several years now."

During the school year of 1935-36, there were only 16 accidents which resulted in the death or injury of any school child and only three school children were killed in these accidents. Griffin pointed out—only one accident to every 1,312,500 miles traveled by school buses.

ARE GIVEN ENCOURAGEMENT PRISONERS FORGOTTEN MEN

explained. First, the medical record of the prisoner is obtained from the medical department, along with his picture and finger prints from the Department of Justice in Washington. This finger print, record not only shows his record in the North Carolina prison system, but his record in other prisons as well, if he has ever served a term in any other prison, Gill explained. A transcript of the prisoner's record since he has been in the State Prison here, together with the estimate of the prisoner by the camp superintendent or prison warden who has been in immediate charge of the prisoner is added to the file.

When this data has been assembled, each prisoner is then interviewed by an investigator from the parole office, who takes down the prisoner's own account of the crime for which he was convicted, whether the prisoner admits the crime or maintains his innocence, his attitude towards prison life and regulations and towards society. He is also questioned with regard to his religious beliefs, if any. The investigator then files another report on his personal estimate of the prisoner based on the interview, whether or not he thinks the prisoner is sincere and telling the truth, and whether he shows sufficient indication of reformation to warrant parole. Both the interview with the prisoner and the investigator's confidential report are made part of the file on the prisoner. Whenever they can be obtained, accurate accounts of the crime of which the prisoner was convicted are made a part of the file.

The result is that when the file of any prisoner is completed, it presents an accurate, condensed record of his entire life both before and after he entered prison, of his record and attitude while in prison together with confidential estimates of the character and personality of the prisoner by his immediate superiors and by the parole investigators. By examining this record, Commissioner Gill decides whether or not to recommend him to the Governor for parole or pardon.

The parole office has already completed files on more than 1,000 new prisoners who have been admitted since the new parole system was established and expects to complete the files on these 1,500 "forgotten prisoners" within the near future, Gill said. Eventually it is planned to prepare a file on all the prisoners convicted of felonies, both new and old and possibly to go into the cases of some of the longer term misdemeanors, Gill indicated.

permit any counties which so desire to hold county-wide elections on whether or not liquor stores shall be opened, also on the assumption that the present county liquor store system will be preserved pretty much as it now exists in the 17 wet counties. Opinion in political circles here is almost unanimous that the privilege of having legal liquor stores will be extended to every county in the state by local option, also that the control of the stores and the profits from their operation will be left in the counties, but with uniform state-wide regulations and limitations to be enforced jointly by the state and the counties.

The belief is now general that almost all of the tobacco and cotton growing counties bordering on either the Virginia or South Carolina lines, will vote for liquor stores, due to the heavy volume of business which has been attracted into these other states because they are "wet" thus reducing the amount of business done in the tobacco and cotton markets in the North Carolina border counties. The "dry" counties contiguous to the "wet" counties are also expected to vote "wet" as soon as possible in order to prevent the flow of tobacco trucks into the "wet" counties, many observers are convinced. Thus almost every county from Guilford county eastward is regarded as likely to go "wet" while some think the wet wave may flow as far inland as Forsyth and Winston-Salem on the north and Mecklenburg and Gaston counties on the South. A sprinkling of western resort counties, including most of the western resort counties around Asheville and Buncombe county, are also expected to go "wet."

"The people who really know the facts in the present 'dry' counties know just about as much liquor is being sold and drunk in these counties as in the so-called 'wet' counties, the only difference being that the counties get no revenue whatever from this liquor business, all the profits going into the pockets of the bootleggers," a state official who has been devoting much attention to the liquor problem said today. "It is easier to buy liquor in Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro, Charlotte, High Point, Winston-Salem or Asheville—all located in supposedly 'dry' counties, than in the 'wet' counties, since a person can get virtually the same brands, though at much higher prices, by merely calling a telephone number while in the 'wet' counties those who buy it must go to the liquor stores in person and get it. Those who think prohibition still exists in any part of North Carolina are only kidding themselves. Why try to keep on perpetuating a joke?"

Peter McLaren, who claims the wood-chopping Championship of America, will stage a log-cutting contest and demonstration here on Tuesday, September 29, 10:00 a. m.

This contest has been arranged by J. A. Watson who is to be congratulated for arranging for the visit of this colorful champion, McLaren, whose wizardry with an axe has carried him from a poor farm lad in Australia, to the peak of his profession.

In chopping tours, covering a score of years he has chopped before hundreds of thousands, both here and abroad. McLaren, who is nearly 50 years old, claims that outdoor chopping is a great physical developer. His own condition bears out this claim.

The contest is open to any local man who has not previously competed against McLaren. A prize of fifty dollars will be paid to any contestant if McLaren fails to chop through a log in two-thirds of the time the contestant takes.

The handicap gives all good choppers a sporting chance to win the prize money, as it is just like giving 33 yards in a hundred yard dash.

The only restriction made is that no contestant be permitted to use a Plumb Axe. This is the only axe which McLaren himself ever uses, and he refuses to chop against a Plumb Axe and also allow the handicap.

Every one is cordially invited to attend the demonstration. Choppers wishing to compete should bring their axes with them. It costs nothing to enter the contest.

he had been her dead father's best friend.

"Good night, my dear," said Lee-Ramsden. "And next time you're talking of going off for a day or two just let me know. I shan't ask where you're going. But I shan't start the police hunting for you."

Ruth did not answer; she went to bed. After she had gone Lee-Ramsden remained for a few minutes leaning back against the mantelpiece with his hands in the pockets of his silk dressing-gown. The butler entered to remove the things from the dining-room table. Lee-Ramsden glanced at him.

"Well, Mullins, this is a surprise, isn't it?" he observed cheerfully.

"Indeed it is, sir," replied Mullins. He had an uneasy air.

"Our friend Lawson seems rather to have made a mess of things somehow," went on Lee-Ramsden. "I wonder who that young man was who fetched my ward back. You didn't see him, by any chance, did you?"

"No, sir. He drove away before I had the door open," answered Mullins.

"That's a pity. A great pity," said Lee-Ramsden, and his voice became more genial and cheerful than ever. But a little pause was beating strongly in his forehead.

"A great pity," he repeated. "Because we shall have to find out who he is and deal with him before we do anything more about Miss Ruth. And in two months' time she will be twenty-one. Which does not give us a great deal of time, does it, Mullins?"

"No, sir," said Mullins.

"Time enough, though, I hope," said Lee-Ramsden.

Mullins picked up the tray and hurried from the room as though anxious to get out of it as quickly as possible. He was frightened.

For twenty-five years he had served that large affable, cynical, pleasant-mannered man, Gerald Lee-Ramsden. He worshipped Lee-Ramsden; he would have done anything at his command; and at the same time he feared him with a mortal terror.

AFTER leaving Ruth Fraser, Mahony returned to Notting Hill Gate, where his rooms were situated.

But this is not correct. The state issues driving licenses to any person 16 years of age or older who can pass the driving tests although it does not issue chauffeur's license to any person under 18 years of age, Griffin pointed out. POLL PLEASING TO DEMOCRATS

Baltimore Sun Puts Itself on Spot with Straw Vote

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Sept. 28.—Democratic leaders and editors who are watching the national political trend in other states are both amused and startled over developments in Maryland and especially the trend of the Baltimore Sun poll for President being conducted by the Baltimore Sun which shows that Roosevelt is leading in the poll.

The poll so far, based on 149,000 ballots already received and tabulated gives Roosevelt 52.29 per cent of the total and Governor Landis only 37.12 per cent. In numbers of votes, Roosevelt has received 90,313 ballots and Landis 55,803.

Observers here are also chuckling over the fact that when the Baltimore Sun carried its announcement that it could no longer support Roosevelt and would support Landis instead, "Bill" Gerald Johnson, a native North Carolinian who is one of the chief editorial writers on the Sun, came out with a signed editorial in which he differed with the announced policy of the Sun and stated that he would continue to support Roosevelt personally and state his reasons for so doing.

Johnson has formed North Carolina newspapermen and was head of the Journalism Department of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, before joining the editorial staff of the Sun a number of years ago. About a week after the Sun announced its opposition to Roosevelt and support of Landis, it raised the newspaper poll, which the Sun has shown Roosevelt leading in Maryland, by about three to one.

"All of which only goes to show that the Sun management did not know the sentiment of the people in Maryland," said Gerald Johnson, a seasoned newspaper man who is now in charge of the Sun's editorial staff. "The Maryland poll is a pointer to study public opinion, instead of the opinions of the manufacturers and big advertisers." Edwin M. Gill, Commissioner of Public Safety here today in connection with the Maryland election, also shows that a North Carolina newspaper man knows more about sentiment in Maryland than some of the natives.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Mild optimism prevailed in most of today's financial markets as further study was made of Europe's currency devaluation plans.

Stocks lifted forward at a fast opening, but profit-taking reappeared later. The pace slowed and early gains were reduced, or cancelled in some instances.

Selected motors, rails, farm implements and specialty issues held most of the buying places with advances near the fourth hour of fractions to a point or more.

N. Y. STOCK LIST

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened very steady, 10 to 12 points advance on higher Liverpool cables, heavy rains in the western belt, and active foreign and commission house buying.

Prices were within two or three points of the best at the end of the first half hour.

Offerings were absorbed on comparatively moderate reactions, however, with December selling around 11.87 and May 11.89 at mid-day, or four to eight points net higher.

FOREST FIRES LOSSES SMALL

Raleigh, Sept. 28.—Although unreasonable forest fires which have given protective forces one of the most troublesome summers since the beginning of this work continued during the month of August, the total damage inflicted by forest fires in organized counties were the lowest for the year since February, W. C. McCormick, assistant State forester, reported today.

According to a monthly summary of forest fire statistics issued today by the Department of Conservation and Development, damages in the 58 cooperating counties from forest fires amounted to $24,798 in August, a slight decrease from $26,576 in July.

The report showed a wider area covered by forest fires in August when 19,469 acres were burned over than the 13,710 covered in July but the fires last month were less severe. The average damage per acre last month was only $1.28 compared with $1.94 the previous month.

The number of fires dropped from 117 in July to 71 in August. Major destruction from the conflagrations was centered in district six, with headquarters at Fayetteville where more than three fourths of the damage was done and a comparable portion of land was burned over.

Careless smokers constituted the major hazard to the forest lands of the State last month by starting 25 or more than one-third the flames. Incendiaries were next in number of fires started, being charged with 14. Recreationists, lumbering operations, and miscellaneous causes accounted for six each of the fires.

The proportion of non-man caused fires continued the unusual proportions existing during the last several months. Five of the forest fires of the month were ascribed to this natural and unpreventable source. These resulted from the numerous thunderstorms occurring during this period throughout the State. Man-caused fires, preventable by the exercise of proper precautions, according to Mr. McCormick, continue to be the major hazard to the woodlands of North Carolina.

Talks To Parents

MISSING A SCHOOL YEAR (By Brooke Peters Church)

When Mary had typhoid fever and pneumonia the same year, the doctor ordered a winter of no school work. Mary's parents were unwilling to take the child out of school, for they felt that regular attendance was a habit which must not be broken. They felt also that Mary would be bored with the whole day empty of real occupation. They sent Mary to school with the understanding that she was to go to classes, but do no real work in class and prepare no lessons.

Mary and the school both suffered by the arrangement. It was demoralizing to the other children to see Mary idling. They could not grasp the reason for it. To them Mary seemed all right. She was able to take part in games and sports and was enjoying all the pleasures of life with none of the work. The whole class began to soldier on the job as a result.

Mary herself was bored. She had to sit and listen to lessons which meant little to her, and which she knew would have to be repeated another year. She was tired and listless, and furthermore, did not get the vacation the doctor had prescribed, since during the best hours of the day she was shut up in a class room. She formed habits of inattention and lost interest in study. Missing a school year entirely would have done far less harm than attending school as a parlor boarder.

There are times when, for reasons of health, a child must lose weeks or months of school. Frequently the enforced vacation does no harm. Education is by no means entirely a matter of books. Cooking, sewing, carpentry, hobbies, sightseeing, reading music lessons, dancing, games, sports and such, can any of them be intensive, cultivated where the child who attends school has little or no time to give them.

Half Million Dollars Is Granted Penderlea

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 28.—A half million dollars of new money has been allotted for the construction of additional Resettlement farmsteads at Penderlea, Willard, N. C., according to information released today by George S. Mitchell, Regional Director of the RA.

Mr. Mitchell's statement was based on official notice from Washington that $503,000 had been allotted for the Pender County, N. C. Project, $234,000 of which has been set up in the Treasury Disbursing Office in Raleigh. The remainder of the allotment $278,500 has been set up for disbursement from the U. S. Treasury in Washington.

One hundred and fifty new farmsteads are to be developed on 5000 acres of additional land recently optioned by the RA, adjoining the existing community where 142 farmsteads have already been completed, and where 53 families in residence have made their first crops. "The money allocated at the present time is for the construction of 50 new farmsteads and educational buildings," Mr. Mitchell stated.

Panthers in Profusion

Berlin (AP)—When Cornelius Johnson won the high jump on the first day of the Olympic Games, Berlin newspapers referred to him as "Black Panther." Archie Williams, who won the 400-meter dash, and Jimmy LuValle, who was third, were "Brown Panthers."

"BLACK-DRAUGHT IS PURELY VEGETABLE"

—What Does That Mean?

A great many things can cause constipation and there are many remedies to relieve it but possibly none more popular than the "vegetable" laxatives.

Among these, Black-Draught is outstanding. In its manufacture, leaves of a certain plant are used, and the roots of certain others. These are dried so they will keep without preservatives...no other chemical change from the way they grow in "Mother Nature's medicine garden." By their being finely ground, the digestive system extracts the active medicine right where it is needed. Constipation is relieved. Black-Draught is so economical that a 25-cent package averages upwards of 25 doses.—(Adv.)
