Insurgent's "Big Push" Starts Rolling Against Capital City Of Madrid

Government Militiamen Fight to Hold Crumbling Lines

REBELS DRAWING NEARER TO CITY

Fascists Move Swiftly Against Sector, Occupying Several Strategic Centers

(By Associated Press)
General Francisco Franco set the insurgent "big push" rolling against Madrid today.

Government militiamen fought bitterly to hold their crumbling defense lines against the fascist juggernaut of men, artillery and bombing planes.

With a spearhead driven to within 20 miles of the capital, on the southwest front, the insurgents attempted to straighten out their front in a 40-mile sector from Navalperal, northwest of Madrid, to Torrejon, 16 miles southwest.

An insurgent column quickly swept the Santa Cruz del Retamar sector, fascists headquarters claimed, occupying several strategic towns.

The assault, extraordinary for the extent of territory it covered, began shortly before dawn and lasted until nightfall. It was carried out under cover of a whithering artillery and aerial bombardment and fascist leaders declared its scope indicated the speed which they intend to strike at the capital.

The harassed government troops held stubbornly in their positions, apparently unaware of the fascist flanking movement in the Navarperal sector.

The government claimed capture of the town of San Juan, northwest of Madrid, 43 miles northeast of the city. It is considered, however, that insurgent artillery had cut communications between defense outposts and their supply base.

King's Daughters Asking Donations To Provide Chapel

Mrs. Hortense Moyer Appeals for Additional Building at Stenewall Jackson Training School

Mrs. Hortense F. Moyer of this city, State president of the King's Daughters, today called on the citizens of the State and Greenville in particular for funds to construct a chapel at the Stenewall Jackson Memorial Training and Industrial school.

The chapel will be called the King's Daughters chapel and will be a smaller one built by the organization 20 years ago. The proposed building will be used to provide spiritual training for the youths at the training school.

Mrs. Moyer recalled that the school was chartered by the 1907 legislature and granted an appropriation of $10,000. In 1909 the school opened with one cottage built by the King's Daughters with accommodations for 30 boys. At that time the student body consisted of one boy—today there are 540 boys at the institution.

The chapel for the school, which is located on the outskirts of Concord, will be built of native rock found on the school grounds and the boys will aid in the construction of the building.

Declaring that she thought it would be an interesting feature of the history of the chapel and an inspiration to the boys to have the pews marked with the names of generous and prominent persons in the state, Mrs. Moyer said this was being made possible by offering to any individual, members of a family or to any organization the opportunity of placing on a pew any name desired upon the gift of $100.

LEAF AVERAGE SHOWING GAIN

Another Good Day Experienced On Mart Tuesday

Offerings continued heavy and prices high on the Greenville Tobacco market, yesterday, when 1,101,430 pounds were sold for $293,508.41, an official average of $23.92 per hundred weight.

The average yesterday was surpassed by only one day this year, the preceding day when $25.06 was paid. Offerings Tuesday also were among the heaviest for any day this year.

So far this season, 21,012,929 pounds, have been sold, bringing $4,835,028.88, an average of $22.06.

The season's average continues to climb on the local market. Unlike several Eastern Carolina markets, however, the general season average here has never dropped below the $20 mark this year.

Raleigh, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Eight grades of officially inspected tobacco sold higher on the Goldsboro and Farmville markets yesterday, the tobacco market news service reported today, while two grades were down from Monday and five were at the same levels.

Several lots of wrappers sold up to $60 per hundred pounds for third quality lemon color.

Orange leaf B2F at $39 and B3F at $32 were the same Monday and Tuesday, while B4F dropped $1 yesterday to $21.50, with B5F going up 25 cents to $11.25. Smoking leaf H1F at $42 and H2F at $33 averaged the same. H3F was down $1 to $30 and H4F was down $1 to $23.

Cutters C4F advanced $1 to $38, while lugs X1F averaged $35 both days, and X2F went up $1 yesterday to $30.

College Placement Bureau Has Requested For Home Economics Teachers, Coaches and Others

Dr. Howard T. McGinnis, Registrar at East Carolina Teachers College, announced today that the College Placement Bureau has been unable to supply the demand for Home Economics teachers, men who could coach athletics, and men with principal certificates.

The Bureau has been forced to turn down several school representatives looking for home economics teachers, and has been unable to furnish replacements for Teachers College graduates who were offered positions as assistant county agents. Doctor McGinnis said that he had had many numbers of calls for men who could coach athletics, and men with principals' certificates are also in demand.

Every science graduate who filed his application with the Placement Bureau found a position.

Of the 97 June graduates who availed themselves of the services of the Bureau, 84 have reported as having found a position. Doctor McGinnis believes that some of the thirteen applicants who have not reported are teaching, which, in two instances, he knows to be the case.

There is now comparatively little demand for two-year normal graduates. The Bureau has succeeded in placing only 48 of 111 June normal graduates. Several of those who were not placed are back in school this fall.

With improved facilities in the Home Economics Department and an enlarged athletic program for men, Doctor McGinnis says that he hopes the Bureau will be able to fill all vacancies in the future.

Officers Happens By In Time Make Arrest

No officer had to be called to the scene to arrest O. T. Meeks, white man of Stokes, yesterday when he was charged with driving drunk following a collision on Tenth street in front of the Greenville Tobacco company.

Lieut. Lester Jones happened along about the time of the accident and took Stokes in custody. The Stokes man is scheduled to be tried at next week's term of County court on charges of driving an automobile while under the influence of whiskey.

Cotton Manufacturers Attack Soil Conservation Plan

CHARGES RESULT OF AAA SOUGHT

Association Secretary Says Administration Was Not Discouraged by Court Decision

Boston, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Russell T. Fisher, secretary of the national association of cotton manufacturers, declared today the national administration sought through the soil conservation act to "secure similar results" to the invalidated agricultural adjustment act.

"Invalidation by the Supreme court of the AAA brought to dramatic close the efforts of the department of agriculture to control the size of the cotton crop through subsidies collected from manufacturers in the form of a processing tax," Fisher declared in an address prepared for delivery to the 82nd annual convention of Northern cotton manufacturers.

"The administration, far from being discouraged by this court action, began plans to secure similar results through a soil conservation scheme.

"It is much too soon to comment on the effectiveness of the soil conservation act or whether the anticipated control of production through this plan can be effected."

Fisher also asserted "imports of Japanese cotton cloth during the past year have increased steadily."

"The President," he continued, "recognized the impossibility of the industry to compete with cotton labor when x x x ordered duties increased approximately 42 per cent on composite duties, effective June 30."

"The amount of this increase has been generally misunderstood and little, if any relief, will be given by it," Fisher charged.

SWEDISH FLIER STILL MISSING

Brief Flurry of Excitement Caused by Erroneous Report

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A report that Kurt Bjorkvall, 31-year-old American-to-Sweden flier, had been sighted off the south coast of Norway caused a brief flurry of excitement today, but investigation disclosed the plane probably was not that of the non-stop flier.

The newspaper Piddingen, after an inquiry, announced the plane seen 40 miles south of Christian-sand, Norway, was equipped with pontoons, Bjorkvall, who left New York at 7:35 a. m. Tuesday was flying a land plane.

It was believed the plane sighted might have been one of those sent out to look for the lone aviator. It was reported seen at 5:15 p. m. (11:15 a. m. eastern standard time).

NEW ARGUMENT INJECTED INTO CAMPAIGN WAR

Son of Mr. Roosevelt Brought Into Political Front

BOTH NOMINEES PREPARE TALKS

Senator Wheeler Asserts That New Deal Earned Hatred Of 'Economic Royalists'

(By Associated Press)
While New Dealers and their foe whaled away at each other more loudly than ever, an additional argument arose over an affidavit saying that Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, contracted to sell 50 military planes to Russia for a $50,000,000 commission.

Attributed to Anthony H. G. Fokker, airplane manufacturer, the document was made public by aides of the senate munitions committee who said Chairman Nye (R. N. Y.) had ordered its release. Young Roosevelt denied he ever agreed to sell military planes to any government.

While campaign strategists studied their developments, President Roosevelt and Governor Landon spent much time preparing for forthcoming speaking tours.

The only definite date announced for Mr. Roosevelt on his western swing, to start this week, is a speech at Omaha Saturday night, but there were indications of other addresses at Denver, Chicago and Detroit among other places.

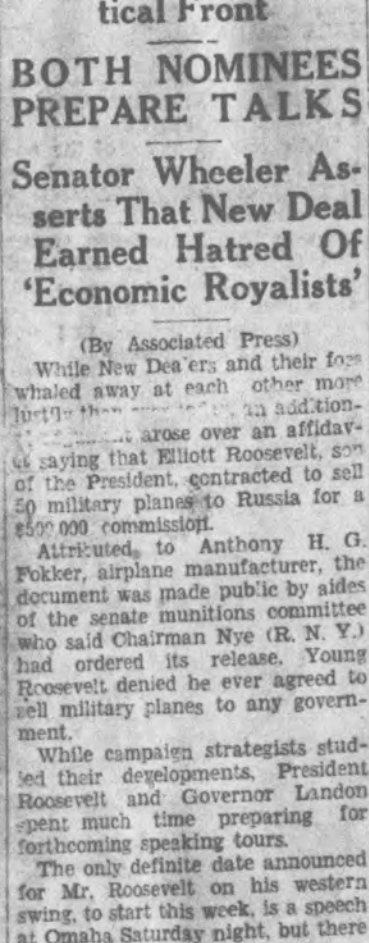

On the eve of departure for a drive through the Lakes states, Governor Landon set aside time to confer today with Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania.

Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) said in a broadcast address at Washington last night that the "economic royalists" earned the hatred of "monopoly" and excessive concentration of economic power."

Col. Frank Knox told a Paterson, N. J. audience that the new deal campaign was a "shabby spectacle" and an attempt to gain favor "by lavish gifts from the public treasury."

Burglary Charge Quashed Because Negroes Refused Right To Serve On Jury

HIGH COURT ADMITS A 'PORTIA'

Charlotte, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Judge J. Will Pless, Jr., today quashed a burglary indictment against a negro defendant and deferred the trial of two negroes accused of murdering a taxi driver because there were no negroes on the Mecklenburg county grand jury that voted the indictment.

Judge Pless in Superior court upheld the contention of the defense in the case of Tommie Walls, charged with the capital crime of burglary that the grand jury was "without constitutional status," owing to the failure of the county commissioners to have the negro race represented.

He announced that the trial of Fred Steed and Sam Jones, youthful negroes alleged by officers to have confessed the slaying of Clifford Fowler, taxi-cab driver last week, would not be called tomorrow as scheduled since their attorney had informed him he would raise the same question.

Attorneys for the negroes have their hands upon the ruling of the United States Supreme court in the Robinson case, which holds that the negro race is not to be excluded from the grand jury.

Judge Pless said the situation left the superior criminal court at the mercy of "the whims of the defendants who, if they don't want to be tried, can not be tried."

Before announcing his ruling, Judge Pless heard Baxter Hunter, chairman of the board of county commissioners, testify that it had been the practice to discard the names of negroes drawn for both grand and petit jury service.

"Why?" asked the judge.

"Well, personally, I thought it was for the best interest of the community and all concerned," Hunter answered.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON (By Ray Tucker)

YEARNINGS: Everybody is speculating on the kind of President Franklin D. Roosevelt would be in the event of re-election—radical or conservative. Behind the guessing lies a serious but inner circle dispute between the practical politicians and the "brain trust" boys.

Though they forecast a landslide for the President, the "brain-trusters" are content if the President squeezes through to victory. They argue that an inch is as good as a mile. But the real New Dealers are praying that FDR will win by a whopping majority—carry New York—sweep Pennsylvania—disconcert the Republicans—and strengthen the liberal wing of the Democratic party they ache for a smashing blow that will repudiate Jeffersonian and Liberty League Democrats.

The explanation lies in the divergent aims of the politicians and the prophets of a new social order. The former are thinking of jobs the latter are yearning of new reforms. The "brain-trusters" realize that a close race will tend to slow down Mr. Roosevelt's march toward achievement of social and economic reconstruction. So they are demanding and scheming for a nationwide

COUNTY SEEKS EXTEND POWER

Caldwell Applies for Certificates of Convenience

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, October 7.—The Caldwell County Electric Membership Corporation, incorporated under the laws of North Carolina, is appearing before the State Utilities Commission here this afternoon seeking a certificate of convenience and necessity for the construction of some 300 miles of rural electric lines in that county. The hearing started at 2 o'clock this afternoon before Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne.

If the certificate is granted, the county membership corporation is expected to start construction of some of these lines at once. But unless this certificate is obtained the corporation will not be able to build any lines, since the 1935 law requires that the permission of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority must be obtained before any lines can be built and it in turn has ruled that it will not approve the construction of any rural lines by county corporations unless such a certificate is obtained from the Utilities Commission. The reason for this ruling is that if such a certificate was not granted, a private power company might go into this same territory and build its own lines before the cooperatives could build theirs. In fact, this happened in one county, before the State Authority passed this ruling with the result that it decided to protect the local cooperatives from outside competition.

Accordingly, if the Utilities Commission grants this certificate of convenience and necessity, no private power company or other corporation will be permitted to build rural electric lines along any of the routes indicated on the map which was submitted today.

The Duke Power Company now has between 50 and 60 miles of rural lines in Caldwell county. But there was nothing to indicate this afternoon whether this company would oppose the granting of the certificate sought by the Caldwell county membership corporation. This corporation, formed by the people of the county without any assistance from the State Authority has already received a loan of $430,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington. The proposed 300 miles of line will serve some 2,500 rural customers.

How's Your Health?

Vitamin C and Gastric Ulcers

Gastric ulcer is a serious and common condition, yet relatively little is known about its causation. Staff members of St. Bartholomew's hospital of London premise a relationship between gastric and duodenal ulcers and a deficiency in vitamin C, producing what is termed a sub-scurvy state.

Vitamin C, present in oranges, lemons, limes, tomatoes, lettuce and cabbage, is termed the anti-scurvy vitamin. It was established, empirically, in the days of the sailing vessels, and scientifically, recently, that a marked deficiency of this vitamin leads to the development of the disease scurvy.

Scurvy is a systemic condition—that is, it affects the entire body. Its outstanding characteristic is a fragility of the fine blood vessels called capillaries. In consequence, the scurvy sufferer bleeds easily from his mucous membranes, as well as internally, within his tissues, especially into the outer bone covering known as the periosteum.

Nowadays the so-called classical cases of scurvy are but rarely seen. However, it has been shown that many individuals, especially children, suffer a partial want of vitamin C. Such individuals are in a state of sub-scurvy.

The diagnosis of this condition is made ingeniously. It is known that the body does not store vitamin C in any amount. The administration of an excessive quantity of the vitamin to a normal individual leads to its prompt excretion through the urine, from which it may be recovered and measured. Hence, if a large quantity of vitamin C is given an individual, and he fails to excrete it in its entirety, that is, he retains an appreciable amount, it is presumptive evidence that he was vitamin C deficient.

It has also been observed that scurvy sufferers do not heal their wounds as promptly as they should. This observation, plus certain experience with patients who succumbed to operations on the stomach led to the study on the relation of the sub-scurvy state to gastric and duodenal ulcers.

The findings were that more than 60 per cent of the ulcer patients studied were in the sub-scurvy state. Apparently, too, the administration of large doses of vitamin C to the diet of these sufferers helped heal their ulcers.

The study is not conclusive, but is highly suggestive. It is substantiated by much animal experimentation.

CORN HUSKS THICK, BAD WINTER COMING

Salem, Mo. (AP)—Omark old timers are holding up for a long hard winter. Hill residents say corn husks have been unusually thick and the fur of wild animals more luxuriant than usual. Weeds, too, have grown tall—indicating a high snow level. Mountain folk say the weeds grow high so their seed will reach above the snow and provide food for the birds.

The End of the Century Club
The End of the Century Club held a very enjoyable meeting on Tuesday afternoon, October 6th at the home of Mrs. J. L. Hassell, with Mrs. Blanche Manor of Raleigh, N. C., and Mrs. W. S. Brown as guests. After a short business session the President, Mrs. A. D. Frank, turned the meeting over to the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. J. L. Little. Mrs. Little in her usual charming manner, introduced the speaker, Mrs. J. B. Spilman as the most popular and prominent woman in politics in North Carolina.

Mrs. Spilman's topic, "My New Job," was very interestingly and enthusiastically presented. She outlined the duties of State Democratic Chairman from the time of her election August 15th to the General Election November 3rd. She brought to us phases of the New Deal, giving President Roosevelt's motto, "the strength of the home is the strength of the nation."

Interesting accounts of various meetings held throughout the state were described. She paid tribute to Clyde R. Hoyt, the Democratic nominee for Governor of North Carolina, saying that in him the men have a candidate in whom they can put every trust. In him we have a rare combination. He is a leader of men, an able, practical, successful leader who, at the same time, has the heart of a woman. Under Clyde Hoyt North Carolina will have better schools for its children, a greater opportunity for its adults and security for the aged.

Mrs. Spilman's enthusiasm in "Her New Job" cannot help but inspire every woman who hears her and make them want to be fighters for the Democratic principles. She quoted Carlisle in "Blessed is the man who has found his work" and said, "that being true, I am not doubtfully but truly blessed."

Mrs. Blanche Manor, prominent in Democratic headquarters, gave a glowing tribute to Mrs. Spilman and her work; her popularity in Raleigh and all over the state.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. L. Little, served a most delicious salad course.—Reported.

Young People's Party
On Friday night of last week the Young People's Division of the Christian Church began the fall and winter program with a Hobby Party, held in the Church School room. About fifty young people of high school and college age were in attendance. On entering the room each person placed representations of his hobby or hobbies on a display table. A well-rounded group of hobbies were represented, some of which were: crocheting, knitting, embroidery; scrap-books of home planning, gardening, and free hand sketches; photo albums, silhouettes, stamp collections, musical instruments, and various articles representing both indoor and outdoor sports.

Later, the group enjoyed playing musical and folk games of many lands. After the serving of refreshments the party was closed by the group singing "Goodnight Round" used in Christian Youth Conference groups.

Presents Faculty Members
The members of the College faculty sat on the stage at the assembly hour yesterday and were introduced by President L. R. Meadows. Representing sixty-six colleges and universities, and having originated in half the states of the Union, the Teachers College faculty should be endowed with the wisdom of the nation, Dr. Meadows explained.

Before introducing them, he read extracts from the sayings of Solomon, in which is found the expression, "wear the doornails of the wise." He repeatedly used this in his talk about the faculty. He introduced the chairman of each department and introduced the members of the division.

Pres. Meadows called attention to the fact that about half of the faculty, the critic teachers, could not be present because they were busy teaching in the High School and the grades.

Black-Draught High In Quality Without Being High In Price
Black-Draught is "easy to pay for" because it is so economically packaged and so reliable. But as to quality, there's nothing "cheap" about it. For instance, its principal active ingredient is the leaves of a certain species of plant that are brought 10,000 miles from where they grow to the factory where the medicine is made. These leaves from far, far away, help to give Black-Draught its well-known "laxative reliability." They could quality.

For a good, purely vegetable laxative, not be left out or substituted, without real loss of good medicinal value, insist on Black-Draught. About 25 doses in each 25-cent package.—(Adv.)

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES:
The F. Clark Co., Inc., New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City.

Early reports indicate that a little more than half of the $2,000 necessary for the Boy Scout work in this community was pledged as a result of yesterday's solicitations. This is indeed a good start toward raising the fund but it must be remembered that the first half is easier to raise than the latter half and the support of every citizen in the community is necessary if the total fund is to be raised. The cause is one in which our community should be vitally interested and we urge you to make a liberal donation when you are called upon by a member of the soliciting committee. Of course it is a big job for committee members to call on everyone in the short time allotted for raising the fund so if you have not been called upon but would like to make a pledge or donation call some member of the committee or this newspaper and your contribution will be called for.

HOUSE: Nobody—not even Mr. Roosevelt—knows what new and strange reforms he will sponsor in the event that he defeats Alfred M. London. Though extremely hopeful, the "brain-trusters" most intimate with the President concede that he will be guided and influenced by social and political forces. They figure that if FDR pulls through with a narrow margin, he will rest on his social and economic cars. They don't complain over the prospect. He has restrained their enthusiasm many a time with the warning that "a general can't afford to cut off communications with his army." They, perhaps know the workings of his mind better than the vote-getters of the Cabinet and party do. That's why a tremendous endorsement seems so important to them.

Congressmen scotching in and out of Washington corroborate this theory. Forty per cent of the Democratic membership on Capitol Hill are weary of reform and excitement. They're Jeffersonian at heart. They will buck the President if he simply noses out Alf London. But they will nonsensical through his hoop if he wins a walk.

STATESMEN: If the President achieves a peace with the private utilities over TVA and other "yardstick" projects, he will owe a handsome debt to the suavity and diplomacy of Owen D. Young.

Public and private power conferences exhibited extraordinary restraint in the presidential presence but undercover disputes between TVA-er Lillenthal and Wendell Wilkie of Commonwealth; and Southern threatened to thwart efforts toward an agreement. As a manufacturer of electric appliances who must deal with both sides, Mr. Young intervened time and again to suggest proposals for a compromise.

Mr. Roosevelt himself urged temporary extension of the agreement between the government and Mr. Wilkie's corporation pending a final settlement of basic difficulty over the "yardstick" theory. Mr. Wilkie gladly accepted the offer because he can't serve his customers with out drawing on TVA power. You will hear reports of squabbling for several weeks, but a definite hook-up resembling the British "grid" system is in the making—thanks to Mr. Young mostly.

TERRITORY: Democratic spokesmen are quietly minimizing Alf Smith's declaration for Alf London as a "neat, personal, spiteful speech," but the brown derby man's sudden dash into the political arena as a G. O. P. champion has joined the Rooseveltians. It may completely change their campaign strategy.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: In the determined effort to bring Amosue Lawson and his gang of kidnapers and eye ravers to justice, Terence Mahony, who swilled deliberately into one of Lawson's traps. He has gone to a quiet home in an unassuming neighborhood, and to waiting for a mysterious Mr. Brown when suddenly a very angry Irishman breaks into the place. He accuses Terence of being Mr. Brown, and threatens to take fifty quid out of his hide.

Chapter 21

DEATH STRUGGLE

WITH it seemed the man's patience came to an end. His large fists clenched; he took half a pace forward; and at that Mahony's pistol came out of his pocket and he pointed it at the man's stomach.

"Better not," he said curtly. At the sight of the pistol pointed at him the Irishman paused. But only for a moment.

"So that's the game—twist me out of me money and threaten me with a gun!" he exclaimed in a tone of outraged astonishment. "Shoot, then, me foinie gentleman, if you've the pluck, and if you kill me, may you swing for it."

At that, with an agility astonishing in a man of his bulk, he darted suddenly sideways, in order to confuse Mahony's aim, and then sprang, his huge hands outstretched towards Mahony's throat.

Mahony did not flinch. The last thing he wanted was the noise of a shot, which would attract the attention of the whole neighborhood, including the police, to the house.

He ducked quickly under those outstretched hands, stepped nimbly to one side, and slipped the pistol back into his pocket. Then, as his opponent turned for another spring, Mahony stepped in and brought his right over in a crisp, hard punch to the man's face.

The man's head went back; before he could recover himself Mahony had hit him again with the left in the stomach and the right in the jaw, both good solid hefty punches that might easily have knocked an ordinary man out.

The big Irishman took them without flinching; then he gathered himself together and sprang again.

Once more Mahony slipped lightly to one side; again his fist thudded into his opponent's face. The big man's right cheek was cut; one of his eyes was fast closing; his lower lip was considerably swollen. It seemed that he had learnt his lesson; he no longer indulged in those mad rushes.

Instead he adopted a half crouching attitude and began to advance quite slowly across the room towards Mahony, watching him like a cat the while. His intention was evident; he meant to crowd Mahony into a corner where he could pin him and get a grip on him.

But Mahony was not having any. He realized very well that once he came to grips with his herculean opponent he would stand little chance.

Smack, smack, his fists landed in rapid succession in the man's face, and he slipped away out of range. But the Irishman, it seemed, also knew something of boxing; though he could not avoid the blows altogether, he managed to turn his head slightly, so that none of them reached a vital spot.

Slowly, remorselessly, he shuffled after Mahony, taking all the punishment that Mahony dealt out to him, waiting his chance to come to close quarters and get a grip on Mahony with those huge hands.

HIS chance came as Mahony, stepping back quickly out of range, caught his heel in the edge of a rug. For a moment Mahony staggered, off his balance, and in that moment the Irishman leaped.

Mahony twisted desperately, trying to get out of range; he almost succeeded, but not quite. The Irishman's left hand got a good grip on Mahony's coat; with a sudden jerk he drew Mahony near to him; and his right hand, like a snake striking, closed round Mahony's throat.

"Now, me foinie gentleman, we can continue the argument more comfortably," said the Irishman in a triumphant tone.

For a moment, in that tremendous grip, Mahony felt utterly helpless. He struggled, hitting out with both fists at his opponent's body, but it was like battering at a brick wall. The Irishman was smiling; his eyes were blazing with a light of victorious exultation. Mahony's struggles grew weaker.

And then the rug which had been his undoing proved his salvation. As the two men struggled, the loose rug, which had become thoroughly rucked up, became entangled between their feet. Still holding Mahony, the big Irishman tripped; the two men together staggered into a small chair, knocked it over, and came crashing to the ground.

As he fell, the Irishman had instinctively released his grip and flung out one arm to try to retain his balance. Mahony gave a desperate wriggle and got clear.

The two men rose to their feet almost simultaneously. Mahony's back was against a corner of the wall; his breath was coming painfully in sobbing gasps; and the Irishman barred his exit from the corner. In another moment that terrible grip would close on Mahony's throat again.

Mahony had neither the energy nor the breath remaining to dodge. There was only one thing to do, and he did it. As the Irishman sprang in again to the attack, he marshalled all his strength in one supreme effort and sprang to meet him.

And this time, either from sheer carelessness, or because he thought that his opponent was exhausted, the Irishman left a vital spot unguarded. Mahony's fist, with all the skill and timing learned during many hours of boxing, and with every bit of bone and muscle in his body, and all the strength of desperation behind the blow, crashed fairly on to the angle of the big man's jaw.

The Irishman, coming forward at full speed, was knocked clean over in his tracks, landing on 'the flat of his back with a crash that seemed to shake the building. Mahony, panting and exhausted, leaned back against the wall. His right hand felt as though every bone in it was broken. The Irishman lay still.

From outside in the street came a sound of voices and a car drawing up. The big Irishman stirred. Slowly and feebly he raised himself into a sitting position. Mahony stepped forward from the wall. In case of any more trouble he meant to use the butt of his pistol.

The big man, sitting on the floor, stared up at him in a bewildered manner, his eyes wide with wonder. A hideous smile twisted his battered lips.

"THAT was a foinie punch, Mister," he said in a tone of awed admiration. "I don't know that anybody ever hit me as hard as that before."

"I'll hit you a damned sight harder, with the butt of this pistol, if you try to get up," said Mahony bluntly. The Irishman raised a protesting hand.

"Be aisy," he said. "You can keep the money, I know—"

He was interrupted by a knocking on the front door below. Mahony turned swiftly to the window and looked out. A car was drawn up in front of the house, and by it was standing a uniformed policeman; another was standing a few yards away down the street. Both of them were looking at the house.

"Hell! The Police!" exclaimed Mahony.

"What's that?" exclaimed the Irishman.

With an effort he staggered to his feet, and looked round him. The smile had left his lips; his expression was that of a hunted man.

"It will be me they're after," he went on. "Some dirty traitor must have seen me come here and given them the wire. Get me out of this, mister—you will get me out of it, won't you? Sure, a man like you, a fightin' man, wouldn't see a poor devil of a fellow sent to jail without stirring a finger."

"I don't know the blasted way out myself; I don't want to be caught here any more than you do," replied Mahony. "From what I can see, the place is surrounded. It will be no good going downstairs; I'm going to try my luck upwards. You can come if you like."

"I'm with you," said the Irishman. He reached out his hand, lifted the whisky from the table, and took a mighty swig.

"Ah," he said, taking a deep breath. "Now I feel like a man again."

From down below came a sound of loud thudding on the front door. The police were no longer content with knocking; they were breaking in.

At the top of the stairs was a small landing. And in the middle of it a narrow wooden ladder leading up to a trapdoor in the flat roof of the house. Mahony ran up the ladder. To his dismay the trapdoor was securely locked with a padlock.

From down below came a loud crash as the front door burst open. Mahony seized the padlock and gave it a wrench. But it was a good strong lock and securely fixed; it did not move.

Terence makes a thrilling dash for liberty across the housetops, tomorrow.

men are quietly minimizing Alf Smith's declaration for Alf London as a "neat, personal, spiteful speech," but the brown derby man's sudden dash into the political arena as a G. O. P. champion has joined the Rooseveltians. It may completely change their campaign strategy.

It may be true that, as Smith's enemies insist, his political stock has sagged since his Liberty League appearance. But they realize that he still has a lusty following in certain key states, and that if his desertion lops off enough Democratic FDR faces a ratty political road States where the "Happy Warrior" strategy.

THEORY: Republicans are fast convalescing from the political stupor superinduced by the three-tion currency stabilization move. They are beginning to pick flaws in what seemed an undebatable and constructive step for Uncle Sam and the world.

Fact is that certain official high-crusps are not entirely satisfied with the bargain. Whereas the British pound should remain at about $5.00 if the United States is to benefit, it has already sagged to its historic value—$4.86. London is making representations that it should be allowed to drop to $4.50, which would afford Britons a definite handicap in the competition for international commerce. Nobody dares to hazard a guess as to how long the "gentleman's agreement" will last.

Treasury officials remain discreetly silent on the details of the tripartite pact to protect the dollar—the pound and the franc. Because of these considerations G. O. P.-ers will advance the theory that the deal was really political rather than financial, with Uncle Sam holding the bag.

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN
STERILE: The much heralded power pool conference at the White House last week turned out to be the vaguest of gestures. President Roosevelt stated at the outset that he wanted the discussion confined strictly to the question of pooling transmission facilities in the Tennessee Valley area.

This effectively throttled in advance any consideration of yardsticks or of TVA invasion of territory now covered by private distribution systems. With these vital issues barred, practical progress towards a workable compromise between government and private utilities was impossible.

New York utility leaders believe that FDR would personally have preferred a broader and more realistic discussion, but that his hands were tied by the inability of his various power advisers to agree among themselves on a program. This discussion wasn't merely between David Lillenthal of the TVA—radical protégé of Senators LaFollette and Norris—and his more conservative colleagues either. The latter were equally unable to get together among themselves at preliminary parleys. This made it inevitable that the main conference would be as sterile as a year-old egg.

FUTURE: There is, however, one ray of hope for a future understanding between the administration and the power industry.

Talk of a transmission pool operated jointly by public and private enterprise was restricted to generalities this time. But it was more or less definitely arranged that there should be future discussions of the same subject along more specific lines under the auspices of the Federal Power Commission. No date was set—even approximately—but the inference was strong that if Roosevelt is re-elected the power pool idea will get further attention.

So it's a fair statement to say that machinery of a sort has been created to handle future relations between the TVA or other similar federal agencies and private power companies. Utility chiefs figure that such discussions conducted by the Power Commission would sooner or later have to go beyond idealistic abstractions and get down to cases on vital points of conflict.

MR. WILKIE: Meanwhile plenty of pressure has been brought on Wendell L. Wilkie of Commonwealth and Southern to call his legal hands off TVA's trail. It was suggested that if TVA were willing to extend its contract with Commonwealth and Southern on mutually agreeable terms, it would be only a reasonable quid pro quo for Mr. Wilkie to cancel current suits by 19 utility operating companies to prove TVA unconstitutional.

Mr. Wilkie was not responsive to this proposal. New York insiders understand he replied that he would be willing to suspend—not cancel—the suits if the TVA would agree to suspend its construction of power facilities (on which the suits are largely based) simultaneously.

That ended that. It is safe to conclude that the government side was decidedly disappointed.

AGREEMENT: There will be considerable arguing over the details of the contract renewal between TVA and Commonwealth and Southern before it is signed.

David Lillenthal wants to include all kinds of reservations which would allow him to supply TVA juices to customers with whom he has been dickering. He also wants to limit the extended contract to not more than three months. The Commonwealth and Southern people reply that no contract at all would be preferable to one that is full of holes and want a breathing spell of four or five months at least.

Louis Brandeis Wehle—New York lawyer—is acting as umpire in these negotiations. He is doing all he can to promote an agreement. This is important because—as our Washington column recently noted—Mr. Wehle is currently very close to the White House. Nearly all FDR's power advisers are in fact urging the desirability of settling the contract argument before election. So inside betting is that Lillenthal will be overruled to whatever extent is necessary in order to reach an agreement.

AUTHORITY: It's a perfectly safe assumption that Cardinal Pacelli—Papal Secretary of State—isn't coming to the United States just for a restful ocean voyage. Exceptionally well-posted New Yorkers profess that the Cardinal will do something definite to disassociate the Vatican completely from Father Coughlin's political activities.

Whatever Cardinal Pacelli says or does will carry the weight of authority. By virtue of his office, he ranks second only to the Pope in the Roman Catholic hierarchy, which has no high-ranking member in the U. S. A.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN HEAR MRS. SPILMAN YESTERDAY

praise Clyde R. Hoey, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, saying in him North Carolina would have the best governor in its history. She also paid honor to President Roosevelt.

Calling attention that not many years ago only about 400 women in Pitt county voted, as compared to the 3,000 in the last primary. Mrs. Spilman said she wanted women to represent 50 per cent of the total votes cast in the county for the Democratic nominee. She estimated that they cast 45 per cent of the total vote at the last election. The meeting was attended by the vice chairman of the various precinct organizations in the county. They were told to get a list of women in their respective precincts and exert efforts to get each on the registration books, to canvass their precincts in behalf of the New Deal, telling the women what the president has done for them, and provide ways for them to go to the polls.

Attention was called to the statewide women's meeting to be held in Raleigh October 15 and all were urged to attend.

Mrs. Perkins made a brief speech of welcome and presented Mrs. Spilman.

Dog Mothers Pig

Dorrance, Kas.—(AP)—A motherless pig at the Roy Harbaugh farm here objected to hand feeding and attached itself to a dog with a litter of pups. Soon the pig was the mother dog's favorite and she pushed her pups over to make room for the new comer.

Jules Dalou, who died in 1902, was the most famous French sculptor after Rodin of the latter 19th century.

"If you haven't seen the beautiful scout posted down town on the space usually occupied by the Carolina Sales Corp. be sure to see it. That scout, with his smile is so typical of all Greenville scouts," one campaign official declared.

Character Development and Citizenship Training is taught every member of the Scouting organization. Under competent scoutmasters the boys meet weekly. The Greenville District is a definite part of the East Carolina Council. Two professional leaders serve the District and the past record is being eried by the other Districts in the Council. In January Greenville will be host to the Council in its annual meeting.

"Aw, Winter's not here yet!"

BUT OIL-PLATING LASTS...

Change today

Right you are. The weather hasn't made up its mind yet. But you don't care, once Conoco Germ Processed Oil—patented—is Oil-Plating your engine for Winter.

Change to modern Oil-Plating today, for instance. Then every cylinder, piston, bearing and other part is completely Oil-Plated.

And today... tomorrow... next month... as long as you use Germ Processed, this Oil-Plating will still be up there. It gets there by means of the special "hyper-oily concentrate" which is alloyed into Germ Processed oil under patents. In circulating, this oil renews its genuine Oil-Plating, which doesn't return to the crankcase, but stays up all through your engine.

Thus the old cry of "get your right Winter viscosity" isn't the half of it, now that you can get exclusive Oil-Plating, too—a great big extra. Oil-Plating is oil ready to lubricate before your starter even turns, and that lets your battery live. Oil-Plating doesn't run off in any weather, and that saves your engine and oil. You keep away from your next quart—your next battery—your next car, by changing today to Conoco Germ Processed oil. Continental Oil-Company

Charlotte Industrialists Figures in State Football

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Oct. 7.—The remote control exercised over State College football, including its coaches, by Dave Clark, Charlotte industrialist and purported "angel" to many of the State players, is one of the things the matter with the State football squad this year, according to a good many of the "fans" and alumni here who are anything but happy over the showing made by State so far and especially since the defeats by both Davidson and Wake Forest.

The reports of friction between the native born North Carolina members of the football squad and the players brought in from other states continue, as do the reports of friction between Coach Hunk Anderson and some of his assistant coaches, although it is difficult to say these reports since members of the squad shut up like clams if any questions are asked.

But many of the students, alumni, fans and even a few faculty members are dropping remarks here and there which indicate that something is radically wrong with the football business at State College, that all is not as harmonious within the squad as some would make it appear and that there is a lot of bitter feeling among the students and alumni alike towards Coach Hunk Anderson and Dave Clark. For whether there is any truth in it or not, the feeling is prevalent both among many of the State College students and alumni here that Clark is the man and the only man that gives any orders to Anderson and that so long as Hunk keeps on the good side of Dave his job is safe. Several are remarking that if Anderson would spend more time coaching his players and cultivating their confidence and regard instead of cultivating Clark, that State would have a much better football team.

It has been more or less conceded for years that Clark has been the vital football dictator at State and has selected its coaches almost single handed. But according to reports now going the rounds Clark also "scouts" for many of the players and takes them to State by making it possible for them to get loans from the college loan fund or to drive through school. It is maintained that this loan fund is administered almost solely by Clark and that it is hence necessary for the coach to "stand in" with Clark in order to get the players he wants. It is the alleged strangle-hold control of the loan fund which gives Clark an almost absolute dictatorship in State College football, many of the students and alumni maintain.

But Dave Clark has his friends and defenders here as well as those who dislike and oppose him. His supporters maintain that he has rendered an invaluable service to State College and its football team and that without the interest he has taken in it and the money he has spent in scouting for good players and getting them to come to State, it would not have made as good a showing as it has in the past ten or fifteen years. These also maintain that Clark is not trying to exercise any "remote control" over the State football squad and Coach Anderson and point out that while other alumni are already yelling for Hunk's scalp and beating the team for not beating Davidson and Wake Forest, that Clark has taken these two recent defeats in a fine spirit without "cussing" either the team or Anderson.

With regard to the criticism that Anderson has brought in too many "outsiders" from other states, and that he favors these players over the native born North Carolina players on the squad, friends of Clark here point to the interview given by Dave to Jake Wade in The Charlotte Observer yesterday in which Clark pointed out that State has no more imported players from other states than either Carolina or Duke and that many of the outstanding players on the State squad are from North or South Carolina.

Yet many here are convinced that these native players are being discriminated against by Anderson in favor of his out-of-state players, that Clark concurs in this because they believe he helped pick them and that football at State is a two man business, run by Clark, Anderson and Company. Maybe this belief is because State has been losing instead of winning and that a different song would be in the air if State was having a winning streak. But for the time being, most observers agree that something is wrong in the football picture at State College.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE FICKER

New York.—The managers of the big hotels in New York keep logs of each day's events, just as the masters of sailing vessels do at sea. Sometimes these reports make for melodramatic situations, as witness these excerpts from the log of a tavern on the park:

10:40 p. m.—Sleeper in lobby ousted.

11:25 p. m.—Wild dice game in room 2117. Occupants apparently college youths. Waiter reports two glasses broken over telephone stand. Wine steward reports three quarts alcoholic beverages, six mineral waters delivered. Had to be warned three times before quiet restored.

12:06 a. m.—Loud radio in room 1503. Two complaints.

1:17 a. m.—Fire reported in 1648. Maid heard guest pounding door trying to get out. She then summoned house detective, who led guest out after unsuccessful attempt to control flames with hand extinguisher. Guest severely burned from waist up, hands, arms, face, head. Rushed to emergency hospital in cab by night cabby and myself. Guest later transferred to another hospital, where his condition was said to be serious. Hospital reports patient asks that his family in Los Angeles NOT be notified. Fire evidently started in davenport and spread to rest of room. Furniture a total loss.

3 a. m.—Disturbance in room 571. Heard young girl scream, pleading with her father not to hurt her mother. Entered and found man who gave his name as _____ and woman who claimed to be his wife. With them was a little girl about six years old. The man and woman both wanted to talk to me alone. After leaving I listened and overheard their conversation. The man evidently wanted to leave alone. "If you do," the woman squawked, "I'll call the police." The man replied, "You're in this as deep as I am."

While I was in the room, the child told me her father wanted to shoot her mother. The man did not have a gun on him. The little girl had a pair of pliers which she said she took from her mother to keep her mother from hurting her father. The woman had a fur coat which I judged to be of little value. I doubt that their baggage would amount to a week's rent.

Outside, I heard them arguing and discussing a "deal" which they had put over in _____ recently. The argument was obviously over a division of money. They spoke also of another "terrible mess" in which they had recently been embroiled.

The man and woman apparently were afraid each would betray the other to the police. The night telephone operator has been instructed to make a record of all calls given and received. It has been arranged to stall them if they attempt to check out during the night. Failing in this, plain clothes men will pick them up after they get into the street and put them through the usual police routine.

Among the woman's effects were a number of small, well-wrapped packages. Possibly these contained money. An examination of these will be made if and when the matter reaches the police.

Notes: This sheet from the journal of a great metropolitan hotel was handed me by the manager himself in payment of a water lost on a ball game. Although it contains only fragments from a single entry, it reflects, I think, something of the bizarre side of New York life.

COLLEGE TEAM HAS PROBLEMS

Teachers Complete First Week of Grid Practice

With eight letter men returning, lack of reserves and weak tackles and ends are problems that confront Coach Bo Farley, new head mentor at East Carolina Teachers College, at the end of the first week of practice.

Backfield material is plentiful. Gibson at quarter, Ferree at full, and Northcutt at half, all letter backs, are expected to supply necessary punch to carry the pigskin over for the Pirates again this season. Along the freshmen, Powell and Sheldon, who starred for Danville High School, look good. Pratt, of Elizabeth City, is doing some fancy passing, kicking, and ball-toting, and looks likely as a triple-threat man.

The middle of the line is held by experienced men. Ridenhour is at center; Sinclair and Carpenter are at guards; while Pittman, a newcomer, is also a candidate for the center post.

Lindsay, a letter man, McGlohon and Vinters of Ayden and Therington of Warrenton are the most hopeful prospects for the tackle and end positions at present.

Coach Farley hopes to discover strong men for the ends of the line before the opening game with Chowan College, October 17th.

GEHRIG OUT AT HOME IN FAST DOUBLE PLAY

Yankee First Baseman Lou Gehrig was pretty fast but he wasn't quite fast enough when he tried to come home in the second inning of the fifth World Series game. He is shown being called out by Umpire Fritman in a rapid-fire double play executed by Pitcher Schumacher to Terry to Catcher Gus Mancuso (with back to camera). The Giants won, 5 to 4. The Yankees, however, walloped the Terrymen the next day, 13-5, to take the 1936 championship. (Associated Press Photo)

Highway Patrol Radio Contract Will Be Let

Raleigh, Oct. 6.—Contracts for the equipment for the radio transmitting stations and receiving sets for the State Highway Patrol will be let within the coming ten days, Director A. S. Brower of the Division of Purchase and Contract said today. It had been hoped to award the contracts October 9, but indications now are that the awards will not be made until next week.

Brower has just returned from an inspection trip of several days with Paul Rosecrans, patrol radio engineer, during which they visited police radio plants in New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts, also the factories of four of the largest makers of radio equipment.

Brower said the biggest factor in the purchase of radio equipment is the fear of its becoming out of date and that he was convinced it would be good economy to buy the best and latest equipment available.

This is the initial appearance of the Great Tom Mix Circus, and the management boasts that it offers nothing antiquated in the way of circus entertainment. Promising new waltzes, new acts, and new wild animal features.

Among the performers to appear in the three rings are such famous names as: The Flying Argubugs, combined with the Ward Codona troupe said to be the largest flying act in the history of circusdom; Max Grueber, wild animal subjugator from Germany, presenting for the first time in America, his jungle oddities; Juanita Hobson, and the famous Hobson Family of Equestriennes, with the world's greatest riding clowns. Homer Hobson, Jr., Erma Ward, internationally proclaimed "Queen of the Air" for her daring and intertidity; The Jordan Family of Equibrists; The Arly Bros. and Bell troupe of tumblers; the famous Tom Mix high school horses, trained and presented by Tom Mix himself, and scores of other daring feats.

Tom Mix himself introduces his own congress of rough riders and ropers from the Bar T. M. (Tom Mix) Ranch who appear during the performance to present the sports and pastimes of the old west, and a whole army of clowns, headed by Abe Goldstem and Jimmy Davidson, supply the laughs to both the young and old alike. Performances will be given at 2 and 8 p. m. Doors will open promptly at 1 and 7 p. m. to allow ample time to visit the huge menagerie before the show begins. For the convenience of their patrons the Tom Mix Circus has established a downtown ticket agency at the Hill Home Drug Store where both general admission and reserved seat tickets may be purchased for the same prices as charged at the showgrounds.
