SENATOR SAYS COUNTIES DUE ROAD REFUNDS

Martin Solon Insists State Should Pay Claims

PREFERS REFUND TO NEW HI-WAYS

Tells Road Debt Commission That it's Better to be Just Than to be Generous

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Senator R. L. Coburn of Martin county, one of the authors of a 1935 law providing for a commission to study the matter of road debt refunds to counties, told the group today that each county having a claim it could substantiate for funds donated or state highway built, should be refunded "without further consideration."

The senator appeared for Martin county and was showered with questions by Carl Bailey, chairman of the commission, and other members.

Coburn explained he referred to counties included in the highway system of 1921 or added to it by the highway commission under the terms of the act of that year.

Countries should be given a preference in payment of refunds over allocations for new road construction, Coburn said, "as it is better to be just than generous."

Eleven counties appeared before the commission to present claims aggregating $6,704,067.34.

Duplin county asked $574,004; Martin $562,260.98.

Major Candidates Facing Busy Days Until November 3

President Roosevelt and Governor Landon III Campaign Trail Including Heavy Schedules

(By Associated Press)

Hitting the campaign trail again President Roosevelt and Governor Landon aced today the gruelling phase of electioneering which will give them little rest from now until November 3.

With expressions of "renewed confidence," Governor Landon made ready to leave Tokyo this evening for a 2,400 mile tour of Lake states. The first of three major addresses will be tomorrow night at Chicago on public financing.

Yesterday Governor Landon issued a statement saying that if citizens would "set out a pencil" and figure they would get results "quite different" from those reached by President Roosevelt in discussing fiscal affairs.

Mr. Roosevelt turned his face westward today for a nine-day drive into 11 states. Departing at noon, he planned to tour much of the agricultural midwest, go into the Rocky mountain and swing back into New York.

At least two major speeches were on his program one from Omaha October 10, and another from Chicago October 14. The trip will carry him into Landon's home state of Kansas. After this swing into the interior 14 over he plans to go to New England.

Praise and denunciation of the new deal continued to be heard from rostrums throughout the country. Among the pronouncements were:

Secretary of State Hull—Accused enemies of the new deal reciprocal trade treaties of "atrocious falsehood" and said "our critics offer nothing but a return to Smoot-Hawleyism that will inevitably destroy the gains so far attained."

Offers Suggestion ABC Store Clerks 'Spot' Bootleggers

Conduct of Employees Said To Be For the Most Part, Above Reproach, Some Criticism Heard

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—While the conduct of the county liquor stores in the 17 counties and two townships which now have legal stores has for the most part been above reproach, some criticism is being heard to the effect that in some of the counties the store managers are not being sufficiently careful in making quantity sales to customers who come in large lots. For these purchasers are generally conceded to be bootleggers who sell this liquor they purchase from the liquor stores to customers who want it after the stores (Continued on page eight)

FDR'S SON DENIES RUSSIAN DEAL

The senate munitions committee has made public what it described as an affidavit by Anthony H. G. Fokker (right), former German airplane manufacturer, declaring he signed a contract in 1934 to give Elliott Roosevelt (left), son of the President, a commission of $500,000 to sell military planes to Russia. Young Roosevelt denied the statement and said "this story comes originally from Republican sources." (Associated Press Photos)

LOCAL MARKET HASSELL RITES AVERAGE HIGH SET TOMORROW

Third Successive Day of Strength Shown Wednesday

An official average of $25.05 struck on the Greenville market yesterday marked the third successive day on which records have been broken and was only one cent on the hundred pounds lower than the highest of the season set on Monday. Tuesday's offerings brought an average of $23.92.

As the prices continue to show great strides an increased spirit of optimism is evidenced in the city. Citizens engaged in other lines of business also are expressing congratulations to the local market for its showing.

Sales also continue heavy, an average of a million pounds a day having been sold here during this week. It was conceded, however, that the crop was much smaller this year than last and total offerings for the season would fall short of last year's sales.

Yesterday's average of $25.05 was struck when 967,925 pounds sold for a total of $24,236.54. So far this season 21,979,320 pounds have been sold, bringing $4,877,265.52 an average of $22.19.

Pittsburgh (AP)—The Mellons ordered some straw and called on Robert Hurst to repair the roof of their cottage.

The straw-thatched cottage on the estate of Thomas Mellon II is a replica of the ancestral home in Ireland of the banking family.

Hurst said his last job of thatching was in Ireland 29 years ago.

HAS NO FORMAL TRAINING BUT WORKS AS ENGINEER

Petersburg, Pa. (AP)—Mrs. West Holden, a housewife without formal training, is supervisor and assistant landscape engineer of a WPA project here which is employing 30 women relief workers, in converting 1,500 acres into a bird sanctuary.

Mrs. Holden, whose interest in wildlife and horticulture began in garden clubs, learned her new profession as she worked and now has taught her corps of workers to distinguish the more than 40 varieties of birds that have been attracted to the sanctuary.

Wake Forest Considering Four-Year Medical Study

Reflector Bureau, S. Walter Hotel, By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—If the 1937 general assembly does not vote to establish a four-year medical school as a part of the University of North Carolina, with the last two years located in Raleigh, there are indications that Wake Forest College may establish a four-year school as a private venture, according to reports current here. Those familiar with the situation maintain that Wake Forest could establish a four-year school and maintain the last

Figures Indicated As of Condition On October 1

NORTH CAROLINA EXPECTS 576,000

Ginnings to First Of Month Total 6,030,940 Compared With 4,232,068 in 1935

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The department of agriculture reported today this year's cotton crop as indicated by October 1 ginnings would be 11,609,000 bales of 500-pound gross weight.

A crop of 11,609,000 bales was indicated August 1 this year and 11,121,000 bales were indicated on September 1. Last year's production was 10,638,000 bales and that of 1934 was 9,636,000 bales.

The condition of the crop on October 1 was 61.8 per cent normal, compared with 72.3 per cent on August 1, and 59.1 on September 1 this year, 64 on October 1 last year and 56.2 the 1923 through 1932 October 1 average.

The indicated yield of lint cotton on October 1 was 195.9 pounds per acre, compared with 199.7 pounds on August 1 and 179.2 on September 1 this year, 186.3 produced last year and 169.9 the 1923 through 1932 average.

Ginnings to October 1 this year were reported by the census bureau, to have totaled 6,030,940 running bales, compared with 4,232,068 to that date last year and 4,962,384 in 1934.

The October 1 condition and indicated production by states included: North Carolina 68 per cent and 576,000 bales.

Ginnings this year by states to October 1 included: North Carolina 118,706 bales.

COTTON CROP ESTIMATES HIGHER THAN EXPECTED

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The futures market on the New York Cotton Exchange took in its stride today the monthly government crop report showing an increased production of nearly a half million bales.

Trading was suspended during publication of the report but on the reopening prices were only 15 to 35 cents a bale lower than the suspension, but comparatively little change from Wednesday's close.

Cotton traders said the figures indicated a crop of about 10,000,000 bales more than private estimators had calculated but felt the differences were not sufficient to affect values materially.

BLACK LEGION 'TRIGGER MAN' IS SENTENCED

Dayton Dean Ordered Spend Rest Of Life in Jail

TESTIFIED FOR STATE AT TRIAL

Judge Expresses Regret Over Fact That He is Unable to Give More Severe Penalty

Detroit, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Dayton Dean, confessed "trigger man" in the Black Legion murder of Charles A. Poole last May 12, was sentenced today by Circuit Judge Joseph A. Moynihan to life imprisonment in the State prison of Southern Michigan.

Dean, who pleaded guilty to a murder charge and testified for the state when 11 other Black Legion men were convicted last week on murder charges, told Judge Moynihan:

"I'm glad it's over. I hope no one else gets in the same jam. I'm glad also that the organization was broken up."

Judge Moynihan announced he would pronounce mandatory life sentences tomorrow on the seven defendants convicted of first degree murder in the Poole case.

Four other men convicted of murder in the second degree will be sentenced later, the judge said.

Reviewing briefly the shooting of Poole, a young WPA worker, and testimony that Black Legion men were incited against him by false gossip that he beat his wife, Judge Moynihan said:

"It is unbelievable that such a crime could be committed in cold blood and without emotion in this so-called enlightened age.

"It is a sad commentary on our form of civilization. It would be my more severe sentence for you and some of the other defendants. I can only sentence you to spend the balance of your life in the state prison of Southern Michigan at hard labor and solitary confinement.

"Charles Poole was a martyr to the cause of civil and religious liberties."

Bjorkvall on Way To France After Deserting Airplane

Flier Escapes Suffering Serious Injury After Fall in Sea; Plane Damaged by Rough Water

Valencia, Irish Free State, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Kurt Bjorkvall, rescued near this Irish island after being forced down on a New York to Stockholm flight, sailed today toward LaRocheville, France, leaving his plane in a rough sea.

The French trawler Imbrin, which picked up the flier yesterday afternoon, changed its course from Valencia to its home. French port after its crew failed in an attempt to salvage the flier's plane. Bjorkvall was aboard the trawler—uninjured and in good health. The plane was seriously damaged by a rough sea.

The airplane and trawler made contact on a moderate sea during a moonlight night about 100 miles off the island's west coast. "Bjorkvall saved," the trawler radioed.

Scout Drive For $2,000 Near Final Goal at Noon

At noon today $1,572.50 of the $2,000 goal had been reported Johnnie Overton, treasurer of the Greenville District of the Boy Scouts. All of the workers had made at least a partial report at that time, but only eight of the twenty-two workers had reported on all of their cards.

Roy Campbell was the first solicitor and team captain to turn in a complete report. A. W. Fleischman was a close second. The other six of the eight complete reported before noon.

It is hoped that the goal will be reached by the time set, but it probably will be impossible to get a complete report on all of the cards by that time. "If a worker has been to see you about making a pledge remember he is not only giving of his time but he too is making a liberal contribution in a material way," declared a campaign official.

Britain Moves Swiftly In Attempt To Bolster Non-Intervention Pact

Europe Is Stirred by Flat Ultimatum from Russia

SAYS COUNTRIES AIDING FASCISTS

Warnings Made That Other Nations are to Neutrality Treaty

(Copyright By Associated Press) London, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Great Britain turned a swift diplomatic hand today to patch a menacing break in the alliance of European non-intervention in Spain.

Stirred by a flat Russian ultimatum threatening to aid the Madrid government if fascist states do not "stop" helping the insurgents allegedly with guns, planes and other sinews of war, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden broke off his Moscow holiday and turned toward home to personally direct Britain's policy.

In the wake of the Moscow warning came reports that other countries, as yet unnamed, would question alleged breaches of the "hands off Spain" pact at tomorrow's London meeting of the European non-intervention committee.

There also was the latent threat of open hostility in the Mediterranean should Russian ships seek to land supplies at Spanish government ports guarded by fascist warships.

The Moscow ultimatum was delivered to representatives of countries signatory to the non-intervention pact in London last night. It detailed alleged shipments of arms, planes and even poison gas to Spanish insurgents specifically naming Germany, Italy and Portugal.

Captain Eden, on route home from Monte Carlo, will confer in Paris tomorrow with Premier Leon Blum of France concerning Franco-Spanish action in the war crisis.

(By Associated Press) An ultimatum from Soviet Russia threatening open support of Madrid unless fascist states bear neutrality in the Spanish civil war gave new and grave concern today to worried Europe.

Informal observers viewing the flat Russian demand, that Italy, Germany and Portugal stop their alleged military backing of Spain's insurgents, feared collapse of the carefully built international non-intervention agreement.

They saw the international situation surrounding war-torn Spain as entering its most serious phase.

On the war front fascist insurgents tightened their lines around Madrid at many points and demanded immediate surrender of the capital under threat of destruction by bombardment from land and air.

They were within striking distance of Madrid. Madrid's weary militiamen fought to defend their shrinking territory with unflinching stubbornness. In the countryside about 25 miles southwest of the capital, they held out manning, but had battered positions.

Moscow declined to extend its neutrality ultimatum deadline come to believe immediate Soviet aid was forthcoming for Madrid, others thought the warning was only a gesture.

Capus M. Waynick Delivers Address at Party Meeting

Prominent Democratic Leaders Held Session and Outline Campaign Strategy for Pitt County

Approximately 75 prominent Pitt county Democrats, including the various precinct chairmen and others high in the party's ranks, met at Respass dining hall last night for an inspiring address by Capus M. Waynick, chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

Also appearing on the program was Charles Ross, attorney for the commission.

Mr. Waynick declared that it was important that this section, overwhelmingly Democratic, tide up a substantial vote to "show under" the Republican vote which will be rolled up in the Piedmont and Western part of the state. The speaker recalled that when he went to High Point some 15 years ago the section was overwhelmingly Republican.

He said he did not have any fear of the state-wide Republican of the November election, but declared he wanted the Democrats of the state (Continued on Page Eight)

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

WASHINGTON (By Ray Tucker) TIDE: Chairman Farley's, state-by-state blueprints—which none sees except himself, Wizard Emil Hurja and President Roosevelt—are not behaving prettily this year. They forecast a victory for the President as of October 1. Under certain circumstances they fore, shadow a landslide, but not even the smartest seers can foresee what conditions will be on Election Day. Only a slight change in voters' temperament, in the campaign strategy, even in the weather, may transform the contest into an extremely close race. Here's the situation: If the President carries the states credited to him by the polls, and tips over a few which veer to Mr. Landon by a small percentage, Mr. Roosevelt will get to bed early on election night. But if a tiny Landon tide sets in, particularly in the East and Middle West, the G. O. P. will have a better chance than even its most optimistic leaders proclaim in their private talks. INSURANCE: If you ask why lights burn till midnight in certain corners of the State Department structure, you will get the answer that the experts are staying up to await the latest word on the Spanish crisis. Perhaps they are, but that isn't the real reason. (Continued on page four)

Round Table Meeting.
On Tuesday afternoon the Round Table was graciously entertained by Mrs. Milton White at her home on Main street. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Kinchen, Cobb Mrs. B. L. Harris and Mrs. Wyatt Brown.

After a short business session and summer reminiscences from members and guests, the year's study, "Science in Everyday Life" was continued by Mrs. W. B. Tlghman in the form of a paper on "The Economic Importance of Birds and Insects." A vast amount of material and study was condensed in this carefully prepared instructive paper and pictures added to the interest of many of the topics. Special attention was given to those birds and insects in our immediate vicinity.

For the current event Mrs. Wiley Brown called attention to a timely article on the subject of the bonus by Oswald Harris in the September issue of Harper's Magazine.

During the social hour the hostess invited all to sit at beautifully appointed tables where delicious chicken, mayonnaise on lettuce, beaten biscuit and tasty accompaniments were served. Kisses and cheese rings were passed and Mrs. J. W. Charles poured tea, after which the hostess cut and served a very tempting large fresh cocoanut cake which had centered the large table.

Lovely fall flowers added much to the festive air of this occasion. —Reported.

Miss Smith Honored.
At a meeting of the Southern Club at Columbia University, New York, last Friday evening, the following officers were elected: President, Eugene Haines, Atlanta, Georgia; vice-president, Miss Katherine Smith, Greenville, North Carolina; secretary and treasurer, Willard Faight, Waco, Texas.

Miss Smith is a member of the faculty of the University.

Troop 30 Boy Scouts.
Members of the troop will meet in the basement of the Methodist Church tomorrow evening at eight o'clock for the regular weekly meeting.

Presbyterian Choir.
Mr. Muelberger has returned to Greenville and will resume his duties at the Presbyterian Church. The choir will meet tonight at 7:30.

Here From Winston-Salem.
Miss Katherine Utley has arrived from Winston-Salem to be with her mother, Mrs. R. A. Tyson, who is ill.

Miss Utley is a registered nurse. She recently completed her training at the Baptist Hospital.

Freshman Week at College.
Meeting with their faculty advisers on Tuesday was the final thrill the college freshmen had for their "Freshman Week" which came to an end on that day, for yesterday started the second week of college life for them.

The class had been previously divided into groups of six to eight and some member of the staff had been appointed as counselor for each group. Each boy or girl had received a slip giving him the name of his counselor and the place of meeting for his group. When they met at 6:30 o'clock in the Austin Auditorium, Dr. McGinnis, chairman of the Freshman Counselors gave them final instructions and dismissed them to go to the designated meeting places.

Reports from various groups show that freshmen and faculty had a good time getting acquainted. The students filled out questionnaires giving information about themselves, their homes and communities, which will prove valuable later to those who have their welfare in keeping.

The system of having faculty advisers or counselors was inaugurated last year and proved to be very successful, so that it has become well established already and will perhaps be a regular feature every year hereafter.

Atlantic Christian Homecoming Day Set

Wilson, Oct. 8.—Final arrangements have been made for the annual Homecoming Day at Atlantic Christian College to be held on Saturday.

The day's program formally begins at 11:00 a. m. with an assembly in the auditorium. President H. S. Hilley will make an address of welcome. This will be followed by a response from an alumnus. An interesting program has been planned for this meeting.

From 11:45 until 1:00 o'clock there will be a general fellowship period for the alumni. At 1:00 o'clock the alumni will be entertained at luncheon in the new Ber L. Hardy Memorial dining room. Following the luncheon, the annual business meeting of the alumni association will be held in the college chapel, with John Winfield of Kinston, president of the association, as the presiding officer.

Celebration Planned at Mars Hill College

Mars Hill, Oct. 8.—Saturday, October 10, Mars Hill College will celebrate the eightieth anniversary of the founding of the college with an all-day program and a special home coming of alumni.

The founders day program will begin with exercises in the college auditorium at 10:30 Saturday morning with the Rev. Sankey L. Blanton, pastor of the First Baptist church of Wilmington, as principal speaker. Others on the morning program will be E. F. Watson, of Burnsville, chairman of the board of trustees; Hoyt Blackwell, director of the enlarging and endowment program; Gilbert H. Morris, chairman of the advisory committee; Rev. Broadus E. Wall, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hendersonville. Music will be provided by the college glee club and members of the music department.

Farm Women Visit Homes in Johnston

Smithfield, Oct. 8.—Johnston county home demonstration club women find that a visit to a beautiful home helps them make their own homes more attractive.

It is an inspiration for them to see what others have done and it increases their desire to have beautiful homes, too, said Miss Rachel Everett, county home agent.

In visiting other rural homes, she continued, country women also get new ideas for making their homes more comfortable, attractive, and home-like.

With this in mind, she took a group of 45 club women on a tour recently to visit eight rural homes that are outstanding examples of how attractive a farm home can be made.

WHEN DOES AUTO TRAILER BECOME A HOUSE?

Pontiac, Mich. (AP)—The question of when an automobile trailer becomes a house—if it ever does—has come into court here.

Some property owners frowned when several families settled down for the winter in their trailers on vacant lots nearby.

When one family removed their trailers' wheels and jacked it up, the nearby home owners brought

BOY SCOUT FUND STILL SHORT

No one will deny that the Boy Scout movement is good for this or any other community. Everyone knows that it takes money to carry on this work but that the money is a worthwhile investment on the part of the community.

Considering the value of the Boy Scout work in this community it should not be necessary to let a drive for funds lag over a period of several days. Out citizens should come across gladly to aid in this great work and it is to be hoped that they will act now.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Continued from "See One" Secretary Hull has discovered that the United States is wholly unprepared for war but to keep out of war. The neutrality act banning loans and shipments of goods to belligerents was passed so hurriedly, and Europe has boiled over so frequently since, that it was impossible to set up a permanent diplomatic agency for selling our business and borders against the contagion of conflict.

GUARDING: The White House has become extraordinarily secret about FDR's campaign plans as a result of the series of "leaks" that have marked the 1936 presidential contest.

OPPOSED: The trucks and the railroads have locked horns over federal regulation of motor transport vehicles. Their feud has forced the ICC to postpone promulgation of motor regulations until December 1st.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony is determined to bring Ambrose Landon and his gang of kidnapers and dope runners to justice. He walks deliberately into a trap and is almost killed by an Irish bully who mistakes him for a mysterious Mr. Brown. Now Terence and the Irishman, alone for the moment, are both fleeing from the police. And the flat roof of the house securely padlocked.

Chapter 22

"DAMN!" said Mahony. "Here, let me come," said the Irishman.

He sprang up beside Mahony on the ladder, and seized the lock. His ugly features twisted in a ferocious scowl. He braced himself, setting his feet firmly against the sides of the ladder, took a deep breath, and flung himself backwards, tugging the lock with all his immense strength.

There was a sharp, splintering crack of woodwork and a heavy crash as the Irishman fell bodily from the ladder to the floor below. But in his hand he held the padlock, still securely locked.

Mahony pushed the door open and mounted to the roof; the Irishman made haste to follow him. From where they stood a line of flat roofs collided with a chimney stack, and came to rest.

Immediately after him came the Irishman. He, too, cleared the distance, but only just: had not Mahony grabbed him, he would have slipped back and fallen. And then, with a defiant yell, the foremost of the pursuing policemen essayed the jump.

It was a plucky effort, but it did not succeed. As Mahony and the Irishman turned to the right, the policeman struck the edge of the roof with his knee, grabbed frantically at the hard stonework to try to save himself, and then fell with a heavy thud to the ground thirty feet below.

MAHONY and the Irishman did not see the policeman fall; their backs were towards him, and they were intent on getting away. But other people saw him; there were cries of horror from the street below, and a crowd began to gather. Policemen forced their way through the crowd, and a couple of them laid their comrades on an improvised stretcher. He was unconscious and obviously badly injured, but he was still living.

stretched away on either side of them. They began to make their way quickly along the roofs away from the trapdoor.

The police were not far behind them; as they were crossing the roof of the house next door the foremost emerged from the trapdoor.

"There they go," he shouted, and started in pursuit. Three other policemen came hard on his heels. From the street below came a continued sound of excited shouting; police whistles were blowing shrilly.

They crossed about six roofs at top speed, gaining slightly on the pursuing policemen. Then Mahony stopped suddenly, and the Irishman gave a shout of dismay.

In the darkness of the housetops, it was not possible to see far ahead. But even in that darkness their eyesight carried far enough to show them that a couple of roofs farther on the line of houses finished with the end of the street.

With the police behind them, and a drop of thirty feet to the ground about twenty yards ahead of them, it seemed that their escape was entirely cut off.

ONE chance of escape Mahony saw—a slim chance. At the end of the line of roofs along which they were running, and at right angles to it, was another line of roofs covering the houses in another street. Between the end roof of the row on which they stood, and the nearest roof in the row running at right angles to it, was a wide gap. Mahony turned to the Irishman.

"Are you game to take a chance on it?" he asked.

The Irishman nodded.

"I'm game," he answered.

From behind came an exultant shout; the pursuing police had seen the predicament in which they stood. Mahony laughed; he hurried himself forward at top speed, reached the extreme edge of the roof, and jumped for his life. For a moment he felt himself rushing through the air; below him he could see dimly the outlines of an untidy garden. Then his feet landed safely on the edge of the roof; he staggered a couple of paces.

versed four or five roofs, and then paused. There was no sign of pursuit on the housetops now, though the street below was in a tumult; from every house people had rushed out to see what was happening. The Irishman started to the side of the roof to look over, but Mahony laid a restraining hand on his arm.

"Don't let yourself be seen from the street," he said. "Listen, no one can see us at the moment; beyond knowing that we're somewhere on these housetops, no one can be quite sure exactly where we are. If we can only get down into one of the houses without being seen, and then get out of the front door and mingle with the crowd in the street, we stand some chance of slipping away in the confusion."

"There's sense to that," said the Irishman.

"What we have to do is to find a trapdoor that we can break open from the outside pretty easily," went on Mahony. "Come on, and keep your eyes open."

Luck was with them; the next house they came to had better than a trapdoor leading to the roof; it had a skylight. The Irishman put one massive foot down hard on it twice; with a sharp tinkle the glass caved inwards, falling down into the house. Mahony and the Irishman dropped through the opening to the landing at the top of the house.

Swiftly, but cautiously, they made their way down a dark, narrow staircase towards the ground floor. Luck was still with them; all the inhabitants of this house except one had gone out into the street to see the fun.

The one person left in the house was a very old woman, crippled with rheumatism; she came hobbling to the door of a downstairs room just as they gained the hall. Her feeble shriek of alarm was lost in the clamor from outside. They opened the front door quietly and slipped out, mingling with the excited crowd in the squalid, ill-lit street.

Tomorrow, Terence and his Irishman find a friend in the street.

is beginning to feel concern over preservation of the Soviet system rather than propagation of communistic ideas.

Originally Moscow's soldiers were to serve as agitators and propaganda in a war with Germany, Poland, Japan, etc. They were to carry pamphlets as well as hard-luck in their knapsacks. The idea behind the strategy was that invading or conquering Russians would soon convert warriors and populations to the Soviet theory of rule by the proletariat. Naturally, such a training led to some neglect of military fundamentals.

With dictators seizing power in Poland, Germany, Italy, Spain and the Balkans, and with these peoples seemingly satisfied with fascism or Nazi regimes, Moscow has become disillusioned at the prospect of small order victories over prospective foes. Stalin now places his trust in airplanes instead of argument.

BULLS: Colorado's high altitude seems to undermine visiting statesmen's oratorical health.

When Al Smith campaigned there in 1928, he delivered a thrilling address on Boulder Dam at Boulder Colo., thinking that the structure was a nearby project. It cost him thousands of votes in that section. A few weeks ago Col. Frank Knox promised that a Republican administration would strive to restore Colorado's copper industry.

It was a swell speech, but it happens that there isn't a handful of copper in the State. Silver and gold—mostly silver—are Colorado's major mineral products.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN

TIMED: For obvious reasons, the Landon-Hamilton forces had to deny any special interest in the nomination of William F. Bleakley for governor of New York.

But New Yorkers in a position to know insist that the denials were diplomatic and that Hamilton and his aides did everything they could behind the scenes to encourage the Bleakley candidacy.

What's more, these sources privately express the positive conviction that—curious though the hook-up seems—Bleakley was sold to Alfred E. Smith by none other than John Hamilton by name other than Alfred E. Smith by person. Circumstantial evidence strongly supports this contention. Bleakley was certainly the best G. O. P. candidate in sight from the viewpoint of attracting Al Smith's followers. And Smith's dramatic entry into the campaign on Landon's behalf was beautifully timed—right after Bleakley's nomination—to give impetus to the Republican drive to round up the votes of conservative Catholic Democrats in New York.

MONEY: There's a lot of inflation talk floating around Wall Street again. So-called "hedgestocks"—metal companies and especially gold-mining shares—are enjoying renewed popularity with the professional trading fraternity.

Discussion centers on the widely held belief that the Anglo-Franco-American agreement for de facto stabilization will not work and that the world will be plunged into a currency war of competitive depreciation before the end of the year. England is supposed to be ready to seize the earliest opportunity to undercut American trade by further cheapening of the pound against the dollar. The theory is that our government must then retaliate by using its discretionary power to cut the gold content of the dollar from 90 to 80 cents.

This might happen—especially the part about England going off on her own. But the keenest financial observers cannot visualize Roosevelt resorting to further dollar devaluation except under the heaviest economic pressure. He has indicated plainly that he is fed up with monetary tinkering and there is no reason whatever to suspect that European developments have caused him to change his mind.

PENNSYLVANIA: New York political sharps are becoming more and more convinced that Pennsylvania is likely to hold the key of a close election. The situation in that state is getting the most careful attention of anti-New Deal headquarters.

Leaders privately concede that a Roosevelt majority in the western end of the state is almost a certainty. John Lewis has done a comprehensive job there. Republican chiefs, however, are planning a last ditch battle even for the labor vote. It is hoped that John P. Frey—Federal Labor leader who hates Lewis—can arouse enough sentiment among his metal trades craft unionists to at least partially neutralize the overwhelming pro-New Deal vote of the United Mine Workers.

Keen analysts figure the Philadelphia vote may be decisive. Republican higher-ups are definitely worried about the city that used to be impregnable theirs. Reports are current in well-posted New York quarters that Mayor Wilson is likely to come out for Roosevelt at the psychological moment. It is not inconceivable that he can carry the city—and possibly the state—for the President if he does.

PREJUDICE: You'll hear a lot about "America Forward" in the next few months. This organization—financed indirectly by anti-New Deal funds—is scheduled to stage an aggressive and colorful anti-Red campaign, which will be launched in a big way at Chicago in December.

The movement is headed—at least nominally—by the Reverend Ralph E. Nollner of Texas. He is rated as a preacher of no outstanding distinction even in his home town. He was picked for the job by Vanece Mize and John H. Kirov.

It will be recalled that Kirov helped promote Gene Ta'madge's abortive "grass-roots convention" at Mason. Mize was chief publicity man for the grass-roots party. In view of the efforts at Mason to stimulate race prejudice for political purposes, "America Forward" will be watched by many New Yorkers for developments along similar lines.

NEGLECT: For the first time in many years, the New York State Democratic platform contains no plank in praise of cooperative marketing for farmers.

This oversight, trivial though it appears, may have important political repercussions. Leaders of orthodox agriculture in this state have soured somewhat on Governor Lehman in the past year and to their views than New York governors make a practice of doing. Neglect of one of their pet themes in the platform, whether intentional or not, adds fuel to their discontent.

LOCALS READY DUKE-CLEMSON MEET AHOOSKIE BATTLE LOOMS

Fans in for Expected Football Treat Here Tomorrow

Local pigskin fans are in for another treat Friday afternoon at the Third Street stadium here at 3:30 o'clock, when the Greenville high school's football aggregation enters the eleven of the Ahooskie high school, bringing about the second in a series of home games slated to take place before the season ends.

The Ahooskie outfit has one win and a loss to their credit thus far. Their team as a whole is considered an aggressive one, but they still have a sign of weakness in their line, it is said.

When the locals erected the New Bern Bears in a tilt here last Friday afternoon, several defects were detected by Coach Hermon Dally and he said today that this week's practices had been devoted mainly to correcting these defects.

Coach Dally hinted that there would be several changes in the starting lineup tomorrow over the one used in the clash with the New Bern Bruins, who roused a 7-6 wire over the Greensies.

Edward Conway has been showing up for practices this week following an illness, and Coach Dally expressed the opinion that Conway would more than likely see action Friday, as he was being eyed as a possible starter.

According to Coaches Hermon Dally and Leroy Blumhinedle, some of the substitutes used in last Friday's game showed up as well as the starting gridsters, and may replace them.

Kenneth Henderson, a back, and Jack Moye, a linesman, who did not receive an opportunity to take an active part last week are among the possible starters for tomorrow. Jack Moye's neck was in a stiff condition today after being stepped on by Jimmie Wells during a practice. A possibility exists that he may have to refrain from playing because of this, however, when the time for the game nears here tomorrow, Jack may banish all signs of a stiff neck and play anyway.

Hubert Roberts and Victor Cozart, who warmed the bench and played some in last week's tilt, are also stated as possible starters.

Wants Longer School Day
Augusta, Ga.—(AP)—S. D. Copeland, superintendent of Richmond county, Ga., public schools, advocates lengthening of the school day and discontinuance of home work assignments for students.

Then there should be a fine showing of young centers when Dan Hill, Jr., of Duke and Charlie Woods of Clemson, both sophomores, battle it out for honors in the pivot position.

There are certain to be many fireworks. Since the two coaches know each other's systems so well, it is likely that they will work out many tricky plays and formations. That has been the case in their meetings of the previous two years. Both Wade and Neely coached their teams to use laterals—something they do not use to any great extent in their straight-football attacks.

Two individual duels loom as headlines. The captains of the two teams—Duke's Ace Parker and Clemson's Joe Berry—promise to put on a real show. Berry has been one of Clemson's main offensive threats in the three games this season, being one of the leaders of the Tiger's 20-0 victory over V. P. I. Parker, along with Honey Hackney, has led the Blue Devils' offensive.

If State can beat the Jaspers to the jump; as it did last year, there is a chance that the North Carolina boys might win. A victory over such a powerful team as Manhattan would do much to put the "Pack back in the football picture.

WOLFPACK OFF TARS TO MEET TOMANHATTAN

State College Team to Meet New York City Eleven

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—Following a brief workout late this afternoon, 33 members of the North Carolina State College football squad will entrain at 9 o'clock for New York City. The squad will arrive tomorrow morning and Friday evening will meet the Jaspers of Manhattan College in Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

With Manhattan possessing an undefeated team and the State Wolfpack anxious to get back on the victory wagon, the game looms as a battle from start to finish. The Jaspers have been looking to the State game for the past month as they hope to turn back the Pack for having beaten them, 20-0, last year.

Chick Meehan has developed Manhattan's greatest team. The fullback, Dick Tuckey, is regarded as one of the best in the New York area. Tuckey has two brilliant running mates in Vic Pusia and Jim Whalen. The quarterback is Al Caruso, 180 pound triple threat back.

This backfield combination works behind the biggest, smartest, and most powerful Jasper line in history. From end to end, it will average almost 215 pound to the man, and every player is a veteran of from one to two years experience.

If State can beat the Jaspers to the jump; as it did last year, there is a chance that the North Carolina boys might win. A victory over such a powerful team as Manhattan would do much to put the "Pack back in the football picture.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 8.—Saturday's outstanding attraction between the Universities of Maryland and North Carolina, carded for Kenan Stadium at 2:30 o'clock, may either make or break one of the teams as far as their Southern Conference status is concerned.

The Tar Heels are both undefeated and are both virtually eliminated from the 1936 picture so far as title hopes are concerned. A victory would put them in a commanding challenge for Conference supremacy.

Maryland opened its season beating St. John's of Annapolis, 20-0 and then followed it up with a 6 to 0 win over V. P. I., a Southern Conference member. Carolina downed Wake Forest, a new entry to the loop this season, 14-7, and then beat an old Inter-Conference foe, Tennessee 14-6.

The Tarps have an old score to settle with the Tar Heels. Last year Carolina's brilliant 1935 outfit, rated eighth in the nation by the Associated Press, smashed the Old Liners 33 to 0. Excepting a loss to Indiana, 13-7, the Tarps completed a highly successful season, without losing another game.

Carolina and Maryland are ancient rivals. Their first grid argument came in 1879, Carolina winning 6-0. Since that time the Tar Heels have measured off their old foe nine times. The last Terp victory was back in 1926. The score was 14-6.

The Tarps are bringing another strong outfit, headed by Bill Guckeyson. All-Southern triple-threat, and a host of fine backs and linemen. The first eleven is a big, veteran one and is made up entirely of lettermen.

The 1936 Tar Heel edition, not quite as experienced as last year's representatives of the University, is composed largely of lettermen and reserves from the 1935 team.

The ticket sales have been moving briskly since the Tennessee game last Saturday. But there were plenty of good seats available today. Ducaes are being sold at the University Ticket Office and at leading drug stores all over the state.

Student enthusiasm here is running high. Plans for another big pep gathering are underway. Head Cheerleader Hoge Vick is in charge of the rally. The Tar Heel band will strut its stuff Saturday as these teams renew an old acquaintance.

E. O. P. LINES UP NEGRO VOTERS

Raleigh Republicans Seeking Votes For Candidates

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Oct. — Some concern is being felt in Democratic circles here over the report that the Republican leaders in the city are making an intensive effort to line up the large negro vote here for William Grison, the Republican candidate for Governor, especially in the fourth and sixth wards, which are almost entirely negro.

There are indications, however, that in the general election many of these negroes will become Republicans again and vote for Grison for Governor instead of the Clyde R. Hoey, the Democratic candidate. It is being currently reported that one of the "purported" white "bosses" of one of these negro wards has already offered to deliver the negro vote to Grison.

The better class negroes here, however, are Democrats and vote the straight Democratic ticket in the general elections and these are expected to vote for both Hoey and Roosevelt on November 3. But there is a younger and more radical element among the negroes here, which maintains contact with the Association for the Advancement of the Colored People in New York, which wishes to go along with the older negro leaders here and who switch about from one party to the other depending on which they think will do the most for them, informed political leaders here point out.

Princess Silhouette In Style Again As Fall Season Opens

An American designer's 1936-37 version of the princess silhouette beloved by Edwardian belles is carried out in black silk crepe at left. It is marked by intricate seamings at the waistline and shows the twentieth century variation of an old theme in a sash girde of deep blue crepe. Blue embroidery on the sleeves adds an almost military touch. The black velvet hat is finished with a stitched triangle of blue and silver lame.

There is a hint of the days of Queen Victoria and King Edward VII in the afternoon frock of black canton silk at right with its vestee and gored skirt trimmed with dusty pink bands. Notice the "bird on Nellie's hat"—dove grey and dusty pink on a black felt tone soque. The black suede shoes are cut with the high front line favored this season. Both frocks are of silk.

Talks To Parents

Habitual Teacher By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Mrs. Brown was a teacher before she was married, and carried the habits of the classroom over into family life. The first baby was scarcely able to talk before he was receiving instruction.

The trouble lay not so much with the instruction itself as with Mrs. Brown's insistence on finding out how much she was accomplishing. She could not resist the temptation to ask questions and set examinations.

And for all her efforts she seemed to get nowhere. Her children did not seem interested in learning, subjected to being told stories or read to, or even to going to the movies with mother. They found that it was not much fun to be asked to repeat what they had heard or seen and then get scolded if they had forgotten something.

The pleasure of books and pictures and music was gone when they became a task. They even stopped asking questions lest they forget their mother's careful answer.

It is the school's business to make the labor of learning if labor it must be. The contacts between the minds of parents and children should not be so exacting. The child remembers what he needs and can assimilate, and no one can say how much or what it is to be. Schools have programs and set standards to which the children must conform if they are to enter high school or college.

Only at home can the child acquire joyously and painlessly the general information and culture which give fullness of life.

It is the parents' privilege to answer questions, read to the child, introduce it to a broad and treasure of the mind with no thought of what the child learns. They are not responsible to a school board for results, and so can be companions instead of instructors.

GOOD SEASON PREDICTED FOR VIRGINIA TRAPPERS

Richmond, Va. (AP) — Chairman Carl Nolting of the state fish and game commission forecasts a prosperous winter season for Virginia trappers, whose incomes from furs annually aggregate from half to three-quarters of a million dollars.

The bulk of the furs taken in Virginia is muskrat, found in the swamps of the coastal regions. Nolting said these animals were expected to be plentiful, as they have about recuperated from the effects of the 1935 hurricane waters and had not been much injured by last year's severe cold.

Paul Huet, famous French landscape painter and lithographer, was born in Paris in 1803.

The Illinois is a group of North American Indians belonging to the great Algonquian linguistic tribe.

LABOR AGREES ON ROOSEVELT

Officials From 34 States Convinced of His Re-election

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Oct. — The labor officials of 34 states attending the 22nd annual convention of the International Association of Governmental Labor Officials in Topeka, Kansas, almost without exception agreed that the bulk of the labor vote, both organized and unorganized, would be cast for President Roosevelt and that he would without doubt be re-elected. A. L. Fletcher, Commissioner of Labor in North Carolina, and newly-elected president of the International Association of Governmental Labor Officials, said today on his return from the Kansas meeting:

"I am more convinced than ever that President Roosevelt will be re-elected after talking with these labor officials from 34 other states," Commissioner Fletcher said. "Although quite a number of these labor commissioners were Republicans and from normally Republican states, most of them frankly said they believed most of the labor vote in their states would go to President Roosevelt and that he would without doubt, be re-elected. Commissioner of Labor Durkin, of Illinois told me that in his opinion there was no doubt about Illinois going for Roosevelt.

"I stopped in Missouri for a day or two to visit my brother there, and he told me that without a doubt Missouri would give Roosevelt a majority of at least 400,000, despite the fact that most of the newspapers in the state were supporting Landon. In fact, most of the people out there in the middle west are expecting almost all of the western states there except Kansas to go for Roosevelt, including Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas. For while big business and the big corporations are fighting him, the rank and file of the farmers and the people who work for their living are backing Roosevelt one hundred per cent.

"The fact is, that Governor Landon is going to have a hard fight right at home in Kansas, since a lot of people there are for Roosevelt. In a newspaper poll being conducted by one paper in Topeka while I was there, Landon had 1,187 votes and Roosevelt 963—only 224 votes apart. I thought that was pretty close for Landon's home town, in his home state."

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE Caused by Tired Kidneys Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 2 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. # Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

Dripping anecdotes of fistiana from every pore, Gunboat Smith, the old heavyweight, recalls the once great Joe Jeannette's aversion to being disturbed during his pre-battle slumbers. After dressing for a bout, it was Jeannette's custom to sprawl out on the rufing table and sleep half an hour before going into the ring. This ritual was almost a fetish with the big ebony mauler, who flourished on shut-eye and fighting.

Shuffling off to Buffalo for a melee with a jittery negro, Jeannette learned that he had no private dressing room. Both pug got into their fighting kits in the same quarters, Jeannette was still determined to get his sleep however. But after stretching out on the table, his antagonist, who was a friendly cuss at heart, began to chatter.

"Sho had me some fine chicken fo' dinnah. Fricasseed chicken. Sho wish ah had some mo'."

This talkative one, a home boy, was probably nervous, and he attempted to relieve the strain by making more conversation with the annoyed Jeannette.

"Ah sleeps before each figt," said Joe bluntly. But Joe's opponent missed the point. His voice ran ever and anon like the brook that is never done, talking of fricasseed chicken.

When the gong rang, Jeannette entered the ring without having enjoyed one wink of his pre-battle nap. This was too bad. Throwing into his terrified rival, Joe battered him into a state of quick insensibility.

"Ha," snorted Joe, glancing at the prostrate back form. "there's one chicken that is fricasseed."

Fifty-ninth street between Fifth and Sixth continues to be a thoroughfare of celebrities. On a recent evening I counted Margaret Sullivan (here to do a play), Lillian Gish, Fother Montgomery, Clifford C. Fischer, Eva Le Gallienne, Clifford Odets, George S. Kaufman and Lew Ambers, the newly crowned king of the lightweights.

Bound around as a police reporter gave James Sloan all the experience he needed to become a successful mystery novelist. Sloan has had only one book, a failure, published under his own name. Now his eerie blood-curdlers come out under noms-de-plume.

In the old days managers used to try out their new productions at Atlantic City before undraping them for Broadway's scrutiny, but now they travel to the major cities along the Atlantic seaboard. Washington is a favorite place with most stars, and Katharine Cornell probably will return there for the out-of-town premiere of "The Wingless Victor."

Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Detroit are others courting the managerial favor. Sam Harris almost invariably chooses Boston. George White likes Philly. Helen Hayes doesn't particularly care, unless it be Washington. The capital has something more than a sentimental attachment for her. She was born there.

would not be difficult to find enough additional doctors to act as instructors.

It is regarded as certain, however, that an effort will be made in the forthcoming general assembly to establish the last two years of a four year medical school for the University of North Carolina here in Raleigh, in order to prevent the abolition of the present two year medical course offered at Chapel Hill. For it is generally agreed that unless Carolina or Wake Forest expands its medical school into a four year school that the American Medical Association will insist upon the abolition of both the two year schools. In fact, the rating committee of the American Medical Association turned thumbs down on both the Wake Forest and Carolina schools a little over a year ago and this ban was lifted, it is understood, only to give time for one or the other to go to a four year school.

At one time there was talk of the establishment of a combined Carolina and Wake Forest medical school here in Raleigh which would permit the continuance of the present two year pre-med schools at both Wake Forest and Chapel Hill, and into which both of these would feed their medical students. But now most of those who have studied the question agree that such a school year would have to be either a part of the University or of Wake Forest; and that public money could not be appropriated to help a private, denominational college, such as Wake Forest. Accordingly, indications now are that an attempt will first be made to get the legislature to provide an appropriation for the establishment of the last two years of medical work here in Raleigh so the University may have a standard, four years medical school. If this move fails, it is believed that Wake Forest will then undertake to establish a four years school, with the final two years of work here.

That Raleigh is the logical place for the establishment of the last two years is generally conceded by doctors and laymen alike, since it offers more facilities for clinical work than any other city. The State Hospital for the Insane, with some 1,600 patients, is located here, as is the prison system hospital in the Central Prison with an average daily population of some 350 patients. This prison hospital handles all the hospital cases in the prison system of some 8,500 prisoners. In addition to these two large and fully equipped state hospitals, there are two other hospitals in the city which undoubtedly would be willing to cooperate with the medical school and in which the medical students could work as internes. If paired simply astounded when witnesses testified that the anthracite operators had purchased $17,000 worth of tea and vomiting gas to dump into the "bootlegger mines" operated by unemployed miners (Little was used, for reasons to be explained).

To get a clear picture of what was involved, it is necessary to recall that during a period of years anthracite production has dwindled for lack of market. That has meant unemployment. In some instances closing of mines left whole communities without support.

Unemployed miners in the worst affected areas in the southern section of the anthracite belt in Pennsylvania began at first to mine coal for their own use from "rabbit holes" which they dug by hand 50 feet or so down to shallow veins. Presently they found they could sell some to a neighbor or trade it for groceries at the neighborhood store.

The thing began to grow. Soon trucks were hauling coal from the "bootleg" mines to nearby towns, sharply underselling the regular dealers. Now it is moving into New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and even Washington. The regular operators informed the committee that 4,000,000 tons a year or $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 worth is "bootlegged." That is roughly ten percent of the "legitimate" production.

The "bootleg" industry is developed along "capitalistic" lines, although at first it was strictly a "production for use" proposition. Middlemen act as receivers in the big cities, while other middlemen clean and grade the coal, each taking a cut.

Back at the "rabbit holes" informed sources say, working conditions are almost the ultimate of "bad. Miners hack out the coal with picks, following the seam under the most primitive and dangerous of coal mining conditions.

CONSTITUTION CAMPAIGN DUD

Candidates Having Little to Say On Amendments

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The definite submergence of what once appeared the paramount issue of the political campaign could not be more positively demonstrated than by what happened—or failed to happen—on "Constitution Day," 1936.

It is not long since that political prophets were agreeing almost unanimously that this would be a year made forever memorable by a terrible political struggle over the preservation of constitutionalism.

By late summer, said the forecasters, the country would be on fire with discussion over this tremendous question and the day set aside to observe the anniversary of the constitution was certain to produce as grand a burst of forensic pyrotechnics as the voters had seen in many years. It seemed a natural.

Now Constitution day has come and gone, and it may be doubted whether more than a small percentage of American citizens even knew of its passing.

Neither of the principal nominees for President took any notice of it. A scattering of lesser political orators mentioned it, but mostly their remarks were tucked away on the inside pages of the newspapers.

In the country's largest city the chief address was delivered by the president-general of the national society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

This occurrence of an early favorite among the issues is doubtless due in large part to the somewhat different attitude of the populace.

With a few exceptions, it has been difficult throughout American history to interest the average voter greatly in anything as abstract as fundamental law. This year, especially, a large section of the public seems disinclined to feed on what it might regard as legal technicalities, when more easily digestible arguments are available on such subjects as relief and government spending.

The candidates and managers of the two major parties, however, have fallen in with this tendency with apparent willingness, and helped it along.

Although President Roosevelt had been hinting for months about a possible constitutional change, and some of his cabinet members had talked of it openly, not much came of it at convention time. The Philadelphia platform committee did do a little more hinting, but wound up by proposing to "reaffirm the letter and spirit of the constitution."

The Republicans at Cleveland toyed with the idea of pivoting major emphasis on maintaining the constitution as it, but the latest occasion Supreme Court decision on minimum wages greatly complicated the situation. They knew that Governor Landon would propose a labor amendment, as he subsequently did in a telegram to the convention. In their platform they "wrote around" the subject.

Since then, not so much has been heard about the constitution. Both nominees have, of course, reaffirmed their allegiance to "constitutional government" (without detailed definition) but neither has made any effort to start the fire which was to have swept the nation.

So far as both candidates are concerned, the situation seems fairly ho-hum.

Mr. Roosevelt is content, either from choice or necessity, to let the matter drift, hoping by a Supreme Court reversal or otherwise to establish his policies without an amendment.

Mr. Landon is not inclined to stake his campaign on anything as involved as a constitutional argument. He prefers, in the words of one of his confidants, to "talk bread and butter issues."

All precinct chairmen were called on, only two being absent. Each was urged to get busy to get out as strong a vote as possible at the election next month. J. C. Galloway, secretary of the Pitt Democratic committee, called the meeting and had charge of the program.

W. I. Bissett of Grifton and Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, head of the Roosevelt Electors club in their respective communities, reported that they were meeting with much success in their campaign to raise funds to help re-elect President Roosevelt.

Major M. K. Blount, head of the organization in Greenville, said he, too, was meeting with much success. The drive was started in this city only yesterday, but many contributions were made. Mr. Blount asked that anyone desiring to make a donation telephone him direct if any canvasser called on him.

Only one-fourth point separated the first, second and third place teams in the annual high school track meet at Birmingham, Ala. this year.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, two to six lower but disappointing Liverpool cables and under heavy selling and pre-bureau liquidation. December and the first half hour futures December had reacted from 11.81 to 11.85 and May from 11.84 to 11.87 leaving the market generally six points higher to one net higher.

The government report indicating production of 11,600,000 bales was slightly above expectations and when the market reopened prices were about three to seven points under levels prevailing at the 10:55 a. m. closing.

Considerable replacement buying developed however, and prices very quickly rallied to new gains of 11 to 20 points with December advancing from an early low of 11.81 to 12.14.

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The stock market today scrambled to a new five year perch after an early tussle with profit takers that sapped some of the vitality of the leaders.

It was the fourth consecutive day advance to new peaks.

While foreign affairs were a bit cloudier, buying inspiration was again found in a bright budget of domestic economic news.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood — James Cagney will be a "great guy" in the picture of that title, parking a further step in his screen regeneration. He will play a clerk in the department of weights and measures of a large city, and will lead the righteous battle against crooked work which is robbing babies of milk and the poor of bread.

"Time was when Jimmy was the 'tough guy' who socked women ungalantly and was not above the dirty work himself. Those roles, not of his own choosing, did not help his popularity in the South where they don't believe women should have grapefruit crammed in their faces. In person as pacific and actually as the next man, Cagney is actually as guileless as a child in his crudeness toward the sex in only three films—but the fame stick.

In "G-Men" Jimmy swung over to law and order which, strangely, paid better returns than previous efforts on the wayward side. The film outgrossed all its Cagney fore-runners.

Cagney, who began work recently, has a new boss in the recently formed Grand National company—but for one picture only. His status with the old "major studios" since his victory over Warner Bros. in court last spring is uncertain, so far as he knows. He says he suspects an unofficial "black listing" because several negotiations for his services have ended abruptly this side of the dotted line.

Norma Shearer, bereft of the guidance of Irving Thalberg, still will be able to fend for herself, her friends say. The brilliant young producer, in a position to lavish every care upon the Shearer career, did so and generously, but Norma had to prove her ability even to her husband.

Norma's first talkie was "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Her role was utterly unlike those ingenue assignments she had been drawing, and she won it only after she had persuaded the author, Bayard Veiller, to make screen tests of her in the part. The tests, according to one friend's story, were made without Thalberg's knowledge — and the results delighted him the more for that.

Frank Caldwell, Austin, Tex., traveling salesman, has a library of 1,000 books on Texas history collected over a quarter of a century.

The howitzer is a piece of artillery fired at a high altitude with a low charge; a field gun is fired on a low trajectory with a high charge.

"If a man comes into a liquor store and buys 15 or 20 pints or quarts of assorted liquors only once in two or three weeks, he is probably merely buying it for his own use," a man who has been in close contact with these county liquor stores said here today. "But if a man comes into a store and buys 15 or 20 pints or quarts of these four principal brands two or three times a week, the chances are that this man is bootlegging it. Most of the clerks can learn to spot these bootlegger purchasers in a very short time and distinguish them from those buying for their own use. If the county ABC boards are striving for any sort of control and want to eliminate bootlegging, they should instruct their store managers to refuse to sell liquor to those whom they have reason to believe are buying it for purposes of resale. For while they may lose some sales volume by doing this, they will gain the respect of the people in the community and show they are not operating the stores merely for the revenue the counties are getting from them." Reports have been current here for some time that in some counties the bootleggers are not being bothered provided they buy the liquor they bootleg from the county liquor stores, but no proof has been presented, but this is the case. It is agreed by a good many, however, that some of the stores are not very particular in making sales.
