CIVILIAN ARMY JOINS SPANISH DEFENSE LINES

Reinforced Troops Battle Desperately Near Madrid

DEFENDERS IN BOLD ATTACKS

Informed Sources Say Moscow Immediate Dispatch of Arms Only Hope for City

(By Associated Press)
Reinforced by a wild civilian "army" from Madrid, socialist troops battled desperately on a 10-mile front today to halt the sweep of fascist legions toward the capital, 20 miles distant.

The fresh "white collar" forces—store clerks and mechanics, young and old—lunged into the raging conflict with the shrill "to arms" exhortations of Madrid women folks

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A terrific battle has been raging on all fronts around Madrid since daylight, dispatches to Diario Lisbon said tonight. Fascist artillery opened a violent bombardment of government lines south-southwest and northwest of Madrid.

At high noon cavalry men on all fronts began a charging advance. Navalcarnero, 18 miles from Madrid on the Maqueda highway to the Southwest was encircled. The town itself was resisting desperately.

still ringing in their ears. "So far we have halted the rebel advance on Madrid," exulted General Jose Asensu, socialist commander.

These two developments monopolized the Spanish situation outside of the peninsula:

1. Moscow, informed sources said, has decided only the immediate dispatch of munitions will save Madrid and its determined to force aid for the besieged government. It charged Italy, Germany and Portugal continue to aid the fascists.
2. Great Britain, pressing both belligerents for the exchange of hostages, especially women, ordered its fleet to stand by for a "mission of mercy."

The government line ranging southeast from Ilescas to the Madrid highway, withstood a flailing insurgent bombardment and countered with deadly attacks on fascist positions.

General Asensu predicted the fall of Ilescas, captured by insurgents Sunday, was "imminent."

Squadrons of fascist bombing planes dived over the battle area raining death amid the ranks of socialist fighters.

On the northern front four fascist columns consolidated their mountain positions ready to swoop down on historic Escorial, 24 miles from Madrid.

WPA Public Forum Affairs to Be Conducted in Eastern North Carolina; Pitt Among Participants

Raleigh, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Twelve county and city school superintendents from seven counties in Eastern North Carolina today named Ray Armstrong, superintendent of the Goldsboro city schools, as administrator for a WPA public forum project to be conducted in the area as one of ten in the United States.

The forums would be started about the first of next year. Counties to participate in the program will be Wayne, Wake, Lenoir, Greene, Pitt, Wilson and Johnston and Armstrong said $23,625 in WPA funds had been allocated for the project. It is a part of the program in adult education.

The federal office of education will direct the project: A director will be named later as the superintendents of the school will advise with the director concerning proper subjects and meeting places for the forums.

Armstrong said the project would bring speakers to the state and usually each speaker would conduct a series of discussions throughout the area.

DATE NEARING FOR PITT FAIR

Report on Progress Made to Local American Legion

With the Pitt county fair less than a week off, a report on the progress being made was given in detail last night at the regular meeting of the Pitt County Post No. 39 of the American Legion, which organization, along with the Farmville post, is sponsoring the exposition.

D. J. Whitchard, Jr., president of the fair association told the post members that everything was rapidly taking shape for the event, to be held during next week, and added that citizens of the county could expect the best fair offered here in years. He added the affair would be strictly a county project.

The grounds are taking on the appearance of a real fair. A tent is being erected today just in the entrance of the grounds to display electrical household appliances, automobiles and various commodities for the home. Local merchants are co-operating in making this an outstanding feature of the exposition.

At a meeting Monday night of the Farm agents, the judges and entry clerks were appointed, and will be on hand Monday morning to take over active duties in their various departments.

The Kaus Greater Exposition Shows have been engaged for the event, and come highly recommended as providing one of the "gladways" on tour, comprised of shows, rides and side attractions.

A new grandstand has been erected and 12 of America's premier circuses will probably be a few weeks (Continued on page six)

FILES APPEAL IN BEHALF OF MARTIN MOORE

Attorney General Declares Court Rules Not Observed

SAYS DOCUMENT IS OUT OF ORDER

State Contends Record Was Due to Have Been Filed by 10 O'Clock Yesterday

Raleigh, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Defense counsel for Martin Moore, Asheville negro under sentence to die for the murder of Helen Clevenger, of Staten Island, N. Y., in an Asheville hotel on July 16, filed the case on appeal in the Supreme court here today, but Attorney General A. F. Sewell said the rules of the court had not been complied with.

The appeal record, filed by Sanford W. Brown, did not bear the signature of Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles, who prosecuted Moore, as the solicitor had declined to accept service when the papers were not served on him until October 20. In Supreme court the defendant had been granted 45 days, which expired October 6, in which to prepare the appeal.

"The state does not regard the document filed today as having properly presented the appeal," Attorney General Sewell said.

"The record was due to have been filed by 10 o'clock yesterday morning and was not here. The solicitor, to protect his rights, refused to accept service of the papers when they were not presented to him during the prescribed period of time.

The Supreme court has the power to grant the defendant any extensions it may desire, but the state has a motion pending before the court to dismiss the appeal as it had not been properly prosecuted under the rules of the court.

Only one exception was noted on the document filed today by Brown. It contended that the ruling of Judge F. Donald Phillips, presiding, was in error in finding "as a fact that statements made by the defendant to the witness, Dr. Griffin, in the presence of the witness, Mr. Bridgewater, were made without fear or compulsion, reward or hope of reward and are admissible in evidence.

Soil Improvement Payments to Come In Installments

Farmer Must Have Signed Work Sheet in Offices of County Agent by Oct. 30 in Order Qualify

Soil-improvement payments will be divided into two installments to speed up distribution of the bulk of the money to participating farmers, R. R. Bennett, county farm agent, said today.

In order to be qualified to make application for the payments, Mr. Bennett said, a farmer must have his signed work sheet in the offices of the county agent not later than October 30.

The initial installment will be 90 per cent of the payment due each grower in the East Central Region, which included North Carolina, the agent added.

The checks will be mailed out as soon as possible after the growers' applications have been prepared, signed and accepted, he said. Application blanks are in the hands of the county agent, who is now filling in the required data.

It will probably be a few weeks (Continued on page three)

ANOTHER HIGH POWERS READY LEAF AVERAGE FOR NEW RULE

Season's High Average Mark of $29.61 Set Tuesday

The Greenville tobacco market yesterday again set a new high mark for the daily average, offerings having brought an average of $29.61, as compared with the previous high mark of $28.20 set Monday.

Offerings of 957,950 pounds yesterday brought a total of 254,014.27 in setting the new high mark for this season.

So far this season 31,183,212 pounds of tobacco have been sold, bringing $7,417,445.61 to set a general season average of $23.79. The general average has shown a steady climb for the past several weeks.

It has been estimated that 75 per cent of the crop has been sold, but despite the fact the market is drawing to a close, prices continue to advance with new high averages being struck the first of each week recently.

Offerings continue to run 5,000,000 pounds behind those of last year, but the money paid out this year is greater than the amount paid out last season. Farmers selling their tobacco here this year have appeared satisfied with prices being paid. They seem pleased that their short crop is bringing them as much money as their large crop did last year.

Fountain Democrats Hear Warren Speech

A large number of Pitt county Democrats turned out last night at the Fountain rally, at which time Congressman Lindsay Warren delivered the principal address.

The congressman was introduced by Judge Dink James of this city. Congressman Warren urged Democrats of the county to turn out in full force at the November 3 election. He will speak at Winterville Wednesday night, October 28.

Largest Contribution of Progressive National Committee Is Made by United Mine Workers

Washington, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Total receipts of $419,282 and expenditures of $461,851 since January 1 were reported today to the clerk of the house by national headquarters of the American Liberty League. The report contained transactions to October 19.

The report showed loans and contributions totaling $30,764 in amounts over $100 between September 1 and October 19.

Expenditures during this time were $57,515. Receipts included $5,000 loans from R. M. Carpenter of Wilmington, Del., and Edward F. Hutton of New York City. Prior to September 1 Carpenter had lent $5,000 and Hutton $10,000.

Lamont du Pont, Wilmington, Del., who previously had contributed $10,000, donated an additional $100.

The progressive national committee, supporting President Roosevelt, reported receipts of $50,059 between September 19 and October 19. Disbursement during the same period were given as $11,434.

The largest contribution was $35,000 from the United Mine Workers of America. Other unions donated $100 to $1,000.

The Roosevelt agricultural committee, with headquarters at Chicago, reported contributions of $125,300 and expenditures of $125,300 from September 1 to October 18.

The report showed $114,085 had been received from the Democratic national committee.

Other contributors included Secretary Wallace, $500; Chester C. Davis, $500, and Milo R. Perkins, assistant to Wallace, $350.

The Southern California Republican campaign committee reported contributions of $143,018 from August 21 to October 18. Its expenditures for the same period were listed as $120,464.

Floral Tribute at Funeral Services of Mrs. Laughinghouse One of Largest Seen in County

Mrs. Carrie Dall Laughinghouse was buried in Cherry Hill cemetery by the side of her husband, Dr. Charles O'H. Laughinghouse, this morning following funeral services conducted from the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Jr., with whom she had lived for the past several years.

The floral tribute was one of the largest and most elaborate ever seen in this section.

The funeral was conducted by Dr. Gilbert R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, of which Mrs. Laughinghouse was an active member. He was assisted by Rev. Worth Wicker, rector of the local Episcopal church, and Rev. Walter Patton of Wilmington, a former pastor of Mrs. Laughinghouse.

COUNTY COURT ENDS SESSION

Local Dealer Fined For Violating Milk Ordinance

M. E. Byrum, white man who lives on the New Bern road, was convicted in County court yesterday afternoon of delivering ungraded milk without a permit and fined $50, costs to be deducted. A four-month sentence was suspended upon provision the defendant pay the $50 and refrain from violating the milk ordinance. An appeal was noted to Superior court and bond was set at $100.

Byrum was indicted for violation of the United States Public Health service milk ordinance adopted by 105 municipalities in North Carolina. The Pitt County Board of Health has adopted the ordinance.

A number of other cases were aired at the afternoon session of the regular weekly term of court, the last until November 16 due to two weeks of Superior court to get underway here next Monday.

Ruby Roberson was acquitted of a charge of removing crop without permission of the landlord, but A. L. Puryear was ordered to turn a check over to the landlord following his trial on a similar charge.

Alonso House was given an eight-month term on the roads upon conviction of abandonment, but appealed to Superior court.

Hattie Stackhouse was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, but judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs.

Dora Green was convicted of disorderly conduct and given a 90-day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of the costs and upon provision she remain of good behavior.

ROOSEVELT ON NEW ENGLAND CAMPAIGN TRIP

Delivers First Address of Tour in Rhode Island Capital

SPEAKS AGAINST REGIMENTATION

Declares Government Will Not Again Allow People to Be Regimented by Few Selfish

Providence, R. I., Oct. 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt opened two days of New England campaigning today with a declaration that "we will not again allow people to be regimented by selfish minorities in to bankruptcies and bread lines."

Standing on the steps of Rhode Island's capital and addressing his remarks to industrial populations especially, the chief executive said: "You have been told of regimentation. I am opposed to the kind of regimentation under which you labored and suffered in the days of false prosperity and in the days of great depression."

Asserting that people are "even more important than machines," he added: "We believe that the material resources of America should serve the human resources of America."

"When this administration came to Washington March 4, 1933, the machine of our national economy had completely broken down. For 12 years it had been neglected by those who believed that machines did not need tending. We tried to rebuild that machine, to modernize it and turn on the purchasing power."

"It was the biggest peace time job ever attempted. It called for energy in a hundred directions, not once for imagination, for willingness to face facts."

"How much can we spend, enough to get results—enough to be sure not to fail. There would have been no second chance if we had failed once."

BOTH MAJOR CANDIDATES SWING CAMPAIGN TO EAST

(By Associated Press)
"Eastward Ho!" became the unofficial slogan of both major party nominees today.

President Roosevelt traveled into New England for a series of talks from the rear seat of his automobile, beginning with a speech at Providence, R. I. A more formal address will be given in the auditorium at Worcester, Mass., tonight.

The "Sun Flower Special" started across the continent from Los Angeles, where Governor Landon told an audience last night that "if we are to preserve our form of government this administration must be defeated."

Sharp fighting broke out between Landon and Secretary Ickes, FWA chief. The latter said in a radio broadcast at Washington last night that in 1934 and 1935 Landon was a "state socialist" seeking federal funds for state-owned telephone and gas distribution system but that recently the Kansas Governor became a "rugged individualist over night. Ickes questioned Landon's "sincerity."

Landon replied in a statement that the New Deal was like a losing team "throwing the ball around wildly attempting to score." He said he favored "public ownership as a (Continued on page six)

White Man Being Held Under Bond Following Wreck

Only Two Defendants Tried in Morning Session of City Court; Negro Held on Assault Charge

Two defendants, one a white man and the other a negro, were bound over to County court under bonds following preliminary hearings in Municipal court this morning. No other cases were tried at the session.

Willie Daniel, negro, was charged in separate warrants with carrying concealed weapons and assault with a deadly weapon, a pistol. He was ordered held under bond of $500 each for his appearance in County court. The negro is alleged to have assaulted another negro, Charlie Moore, with the weapon.

R. E. Blount, white man who said he came here from South Carolina, was bound over on a charge of driving while drunk. Bond was set at $250. The defendant was alleged to have driven into an arterial highway without stopping and causing a wreck on Fifth street. Following the wreck he jumped from his car and ran, but officers soon apprehended him.

Total Of 88 Persons Die Over State In Accidents

Reflects Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, brings the total number killed so far this year to 889 as compared with 757 through September of last year.

On a percentage basis, the number of persons killed in September this year was 24 per cent less than the number killed in the corresponding month a year ago, while the total number of persons killed so far this year is 9 per cent less than the number to the same date a year ago.

In August, North Carolina was listed by the National Safety Council as one of only seven states in which there has been a reduction in automobile accidents and fatalities this year instead of an increase, showing that accidents had decreased 7 per cent in this state so far this year. CAPITAL FACES OWN TROUBLES

Campaign Tends To Obscure Many Of Smaller Shows

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington — So much stress is laid upon campaign issues during a Presidential year that Election Tuesday in November takes on, for a time, the semblance of a closing curtain upon a national play.

To that extent the campaign tends to obscure ever so many smaller shows, playing on the same street. Although drawing smaller houses, these plays will run on long after this year's November 3 is filed away into history.

For instance, stroll into a state department bureau, into the federal reserve board, into the department of justice, or into any number of places. Earnest mental sweat neither Republican nor Democratic, is being shed over problems that perk you up short from worrying over whether Mr. Roosevelt is supported by communists or Mr. Landon by the Liberty League.

Just to mention a few:

This country's neutrality law requires that as soon as the President recognizes a state of war existing between two nations no munitions may be shipped to either side. It was applied against Italy and Ethiopia. It was not in effect when Japan drove back the Chinese forces and set up the puppet, Manchoukuo.

What if there should be a repetition of China-Japanese fighting in which there were battles but no actual declaration of war? Recall that this country is far more deeply concerned about conditions in China than in Ethiopia, then pose this question to yourself: Would you quickly proclaim that a state of war existed and thus shut off American munitions from both sides? It might mean quick victory to one side. The outcome might imperil United States' interest in the Orient.

Take another instance: So many of the big shot criminals brought down in recent years had long prison records that much police sentiment was generated against paroling prisoners before their terms expired. Yet prison officials look to the parole system as their best means of repairing wrong-doers. Because of this condition there seems to be a certain amount of cross-hauling even within the justice department because of the interests of the G-men on the one hand and the prison bureau on the other. How would you solve the problem?

Again: The federal reserve board has certain "brakes" which can be applied to check movements toward a harmful boom. Where would you begin to draw the line between recovery and boom?

Foreign news correspondents who have been in Russia—and may go again—look keen interest in an announcement by Mr. Mikoyan, soviet commissar of food supplies, that he was in America to buy improved American ice-cream making machinery.

It was, he said, to conserve products now wasted. Good enough, said the correspondents. It was their recollection that ice cream served to them in Russia was still a waste product.

SCHOOLS SAVE ON FUEL BILL

Portable Gasoline Filling Stations Put Into Use

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

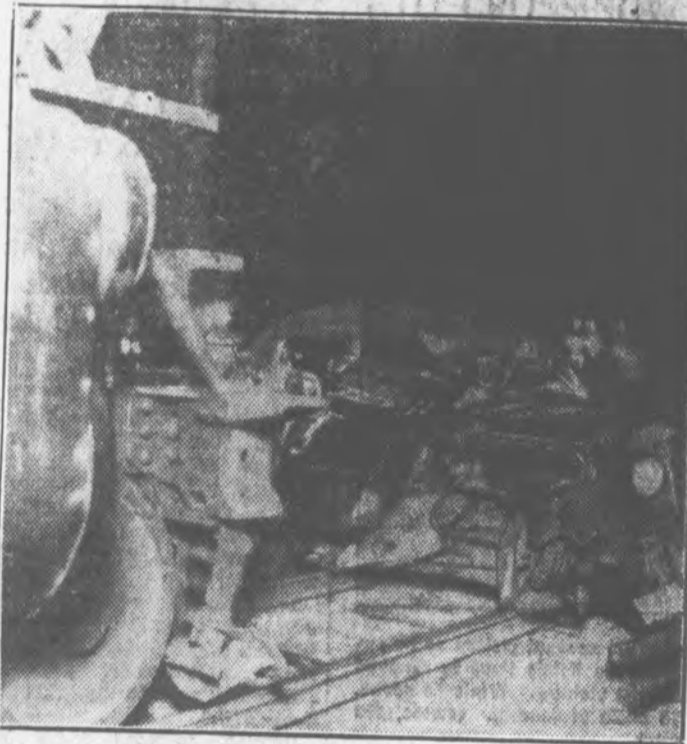

Raleigh, Oct. 21.—The cost of operating school buses, as well as of maintaining them, is being greatly reduced by the use of portable filling and service stations which bring gasoline and oil to the school buses at the various schools, thus eliminating trips to filling stations. C. C. Brown, acting director of transportation for the State School Commission, said today. These combination gasoline, oil and greasing trucks are now being operated in some 20 counties and ten more trucks are to be put into service within the next few weeks, Brown said.

In the 20 counties where these motorized service stations are used, the use of gasoline tanks at the various schools has been abolished and instead one of these trucks visits each school every other day, fills the gasoline tanks of all the trucks, checks the oil in the motors, adds any oil needed, checks the air in the tires while a mechanic also checks over the trucks to see if any need mechanical attention. Each bus is equipped with a gasoline tank that holds enough gas for two days.

"Not only does this system save a great deal of gasoline and oil, but it helps greatly in keeping the buses in good mechanical condition," Brown said. "For in addition to filling each school bus with gasoline and checking the oil and tires every other day, a mechanic and helper make the rounds with the tank truck at least once a week and the trucks are greased every two weeks and checked over by a mechanic every week. The result is that there is a minimum amount of mechanical trouble with these buses. In one county where this system was used last year, only six buses had to be brought into the county garage for mechanical work the entire school year."

Each of these tank wagons is equipped with a gasoline meter, so that the amount of gasoline put into each truck is measured and recorded. In the 18 counties in which this system of servicing school buses was used last year and in spite of the severe winter weather,

WILL AGENCY DEFEND SUIT?

Johnston Co-op Needs Support of Electric Body

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Oct. 21.—Now that the Johnston County Electric Membership Corporation must go into court into what promises to be a long drawn out legal battle likely to end up eventually in the U. S. Supreme Court and involving the legal authority of the Federal Rural Electrification Administration, the question being asked here is whether er, there was a decrease of 21 per cent in the amount of gasoline used and a decrease of 60 per cent in the amount of mechanical repair work done, Brown said.

lines, in assisting one of its cooperative offspring to defend itself in court.

Accordingly, a good many here are wondering if the Federal REA may not turn out to be a plague and a burden upon the people of Johnston county, instead of the blessing which it represented itself as being. For while the members of the cooperative have the promise of the $310,000 loan, it cannot spend any of this money or build any electric lines as long as the present temporary injunction is in effect or if a permanent injunction is granted, as now seems likely. In addition, it seems likely that the people of Johnston county who are members of the cooperative will have to put up the money to defend the pending suit out of their own pockets—and that even then it is doubtful if they will ever be able to build any rural electric lines.

One of the reasons the Johnston

County Electric Membership Corporation is in its present predicament and has this rather slippery kettle of fish on its hands, is because the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington refused to follow the advice of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority and of the State Utilities Commission to require county membership corporations to secure certificates of convenience and necessity. It is generally agreed here.

MRS. LAUGHINGHOUSE LAID REST BESIDE HER LATE HUSBAND

Charles James and W. W. Lee sang "My Eternal Home" and "The Old Rugged Cross" at the funeral services. Mrs. Laughinghouse had requested that the former song be sung at her funeral, it having been one of her favorites and had been sung at the funeral of her mother. At the grave the quartette sang "Abide With Me".

Mrs. Laughinghouse died at 11:45 o'clock Monday night after an extended illness.

Prior to her illness she took an active part in various women's organizations, especially in church affairs and in the American Legion Auxiliary organization.

She was born December 7, 1869, the daughter of the late W. H. and Mary Virginia Sugg Dail, of Snow Hill. She was married to Dr. Laughinghouse on June 10, 1896, and had made her home here since that time, except for the few years she lived in Raleigh while Dr. Laughinghouse served as State Health officer.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Stokes; two sons, Charles O.H. Laughinghouse, Jr., H. Dail Laughinghouse, all of Greenville, and seven grandchildren. Three brothers and five sisters also survive.

Among out-of-town relatives and friends here for the funeral were: Mrs. Pascall Boyd, Mooresville; Mr. and Mrs. Gariand Holden; Mrs. G. A. Rouse, Miss Mary Frier Rouse, Mrs. J. W. AAA can determine the exact amount that will be available for all participating farmers.

Before complete payments can be made, the exact number of farmers participating, and the amount of payments they have earned, must be determined, as the AAA cannot pay out more than the amount that has been appropriated for this purpose, it was pointed out.

But 90 per cent can be paid in the first installment, and any necessary adjustments can be made with the remaining 10 per cent, thus averting the need for holding up the entire amount of the payments until adjustments are completed.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has been given "protection" by Lee-Ramsden in a vacant house the latter owns. But the protection actually is an ambush contrived by Lee-Ramsden and his vicious ally, Ambrose Lawson, leader of a kidnaping gang. Mournful Ruth Fraser, Lee-Ramsden's ward, has warned Terence's gang, with whom he is fighting Lawson. But the chief difficulty is that Mahony is suspected of a murder, and must dodge the police as well as Lawson.

Chapter 23 KENNEDY AGAIN TERENCE still had to decide what he was going to do. If, as Lee-Ramsden had told him, there was a warrant out for his arrest, the sooner he obtained a disguise the better. The best place at which to obtain a good disguise would be Clarkford's, the theatrical costumier, in Wardour Street.

He decided to get to Clarkford's as soon as possible. The quickest way to get there was by car, and the nearest car was that belonging to the two crooks. He entered it and drove away from the house.

Wardour Street was crowded with traffic. He stopped as near to the shop as possible, and walked along the pavement towards the shop. Just as he was turning into the doorway a hand tapped him on the shoulder and a well-known voice said: "I want a word with you, Mahony. I've been looking for you for some time."

The voice was that of Inspector Kennedy.

Mahony cursed under his breath. "I was told you wanted me," he answered calmly. "But before we go any further, let's have a look at your warrant."

It was his intention, as soon as the inspector put a hand into his pocket, to kick the inspector's feet from under him and make a dash for it. But the inspector did not put his hand into his pocket.

"Warrant?" he echoed in a surprised tone. "Who told you I wanted you, or that I had a warrant?"

"Whoever he was, you informant was quite correct. I have got a warrant for your arrest. I've had it in my possession since yesterday. And it will depend on the manner in which you answer one or two questions whether I put it into execution or not."

Now it was Mahony's turn to be surprised. He stared at the inspector, frowning.

"One moment, Inspector," he said. "Let's just get things right. Did you leave Mr. Lee-Ramsden's house at about lunch-time this morning with the intention of arresting me?"

THE Inspector shook his head. "I wasn't at Mr. Lee-Ramsden's house at all this morning," he answered. "Somebody's been pulling your leg. I was there this afternoon, though, enquiring about Miss Fraser. Mr. Lee-Ramsden seemed to have an idea that you were going to try to get out of the country."

"Lee-Ramsden said that," exclaimed Mahony.

With the Inspector's words the full realization of Lee-Ramsden's treachery had come to him. It was Lee-Ramsden who had given him away to Lawson; it was Lee-Ramsden and Lawson between whom he had had those two men to lay him out in the house in St. John's Wood. But why?

"What's the excitement about Miss Fraser?" he demanded. "Why were you enquiring for her?"

"I am enquiring for her because she may be charged with being an accessory to a murder," replied the Inspector grimly. "She was in a house in Pennyfields this afternoon where two men were killed. She was seen to enter the house, and her car was still outside after the murders were committed. The house is in Royal Road and belongs to a man named Bassett."

Mahony was accustomed to receive shocks, but this was about the biggest shock he had received so far that day.

"Miss Fraser—in a house in Pennyfields," he repeated incredulously. "But what the devil was she doing there?"

"Crossword puzzles, I suppose," replied Kennedy sarcastically. "Are you trying to pretend that you don't know she was there?"

"So that's your line, is it. Mr. Know-Nothing?" he said. "All right, Mahony, I'll be seeing you again." He nodded and walked away.

Mahony went to the nearest pub and ordered a stiff drink. He felt he needed it. This new turn in the situation was altogether startling and unexpected.

From the pub he rang up Bassett's number and had a brief conversation with him. The result of that conversation was that he and Bassett met in a bar near Charing Cross, and Bassett told him in detail all the events of the afternoon.

"But don't the police suspect you of being mixed up in all this business this afternoon?" asked Mahony.

"The cops 'ave been suspecting me of things for the last ten years," replied Bassett, grinning. "So long as it don't get no further than suspecting, I ain't worryin'. I told the cops my 'ouse was broke into by persons unknown while I was sitting in Eli Solomon's back parlor, and I didn't know nothing about it till someone came in and told me there was a shemuzzle goin' on in my place, and bodies fallin' out of windows, and 'ell to pay generally. I ain't sayin' they believe me, but I've got witnesses that I was in Solomon's, and they can't do nothin'."

The point is, wot's your next move goin' to be?"

MAHONY'S face was grim and set while he considered his answer.

"That rather depends on you," he said slowly. "Do you think you could find me half a dozen men, real tough, wot'd be willing to take a chance of a pretty long stretch of imprisonment for fifty pounds apiece? I shall want 'em tonight, at about half past eleven."

"I could find you the men all right," answered Fatty Bassett. "I wonder... How long are you goin' to want these men for, mister?"

"Not more than a couple of hours," answered Mahony.

"Well, see here," said Fatty Bassett, with the air of a man who puts forward a brilliant idea. "The 'Amy Roberts' is sailing from the port of London at six in the mornin'. I know the skipper an' I know the crew; there's not one of 'em as wouldn't sell 'is soul for fifty quid down, and they're as tough a bunch as I know. Wot about 'aving arf a dozen of 'em, and they do their job, and you gives 'em their money, and they gets back to the ship in time to sail first thing in the mornin'?"

"That's a damned fine idea," said Mahony. "About the time the police are beginning to look real earnestly for them they'll be somewhere out in the North Sea. And now there are some other things I want. Listen carefully, Fatty; you've got to get this right."

"I want a couple of those men in evening dress—the most presentable two, because I'm going to take them into society. I want a couple of big cars. I want some drink—some good drink; I should think champagne would be about the mark, and I want enough for about fifty people."

"That'll mean about fifteen bottles, if you're goin' to give 'em a good drink each," put in Bassett.

"Yes. A Jeroboam holds about the equivalent of six bottles; three Jeroboams would do it, I should think. And I want enough knock-out drops put into that drink to put the whole fifty people to sleep for a good couple of hours. One more thing. I want a place where I can hide a prisoner, if necessary. Can you manage all that?"

"I can manage it," said Bassett. "But wot's the idea? Wot are you goin' to do?"

"With any luck I'm going to stage a hold-up at the Golden Centipede Club that will set London talking for a week, and Lawson swearing for a month," answered Mahony calmly.

After parting from Mahony, Inspector Kennedy returned to Scott and Yard. From there he rang up Elsa Little.

"Terence Mahony is dining with you this evening, I believe, Miss Little," he said. "Are you going on with your original plan of trying to fool him into committing himself?"

"Yes," answered Elsa.

"Right," said the Inspector. "I didn't think much of the idea at first, but perhaps it may come in useful. Would you mind if I send along a couple of men to fix up a microphone so that I can listen in the next room to what you say?"

have sold in small quantities to retailers at lower prices than were given to purchasers of large quantities.

ANXIETY: Some business men with manufacturing plants are fearful that government power development will lead to establishment of competing plants in new power areas, which will put out of business their own factories. Charges that the Tennessee Valley Authority has held out inducements to business concerns to move into the TVA power area have been made and denied.

Business men are discussing these questions with an eye on possible action by Congress. They wonder where the line will be drawn between private enterprise and government mercantilism.

Underneath campaign hurrah and whoopee is the deep anxiety of American business over possible "socialization of industry." The fear may be vague but it exists.

UNREST: Another cloud on the business horizon is the threat of strikes and labor drives that may choke down factory operations. The San Francisco situation interests business men everywhere, judging by comments of industrialists coming and going on government errands. A showdown between open-shop and closed-shop battle forces is ahead.

Analysis of the new shipping act gives color to the allegation by San Francisco labor leaders that the Maritime Commission is stretching its authority in undertaking to settle the San Francisco dispute. The act authorizes the Commission to adjust working conditions on ships, to fix minimum wages of seamen, etc., but only in the future, after investigations that have not yet begun. No authority is given to adjust the waterfront disputes.

Increased wage demands are newly reported in several industries, notably textiles.

PROTECTION: French peasants are one leap ahead of American farmers in the matter of tariff protection. The United States government can reduce duties on farm products and has done so by trade agreements. But French law prohibits the government reducing duties on cereals, livestock, meats, dairy products, wood and lumber, sugar and products containing sugar. The government can raise these duties but cannot lower them by trade agreements or otherwise.

Proposed revision of the French tariff affects American producers, but close study of the official announcement from France indicates that quota restrictions will more than offset reductions of duty. A surtax on imports to equalize the changes caused by devaluation of the franc is minimized in the official announcement.

French tariff revision will be made in conformity with the new "international tariff nomenclature" proposed by a League of Nations committee of experts.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN ONLY: A snappy game of legal checkers between TVA and the 19 utilities which are challenging its authority in a lawsuit preceded Judge John J. Gore's decision that the federal district court in Tennessee has jurisdiction over the case.

This ruling was a bigger triumph for the private power companies than it looks on the surface—even though Judge Gore did not comment on the constitutionality of the TVA act itself.

The low creating the Tennessee Valley Authority specifies that legal actions against TVA should be brought in the northern district of Alabama. This is the background of the checker moves. The nineteen plaintiffs originally filed duplicate suits in the federal court of northern Alabama and the state court at Knoxville, Tennessee. Lawyers for TVA applied to have the Tennessee suit transferred from state to federal court, presumably on the theory that the government stood a better chance of winning in federal court.

court. This application was granted. Shortly thereafter the utility plaintiffs called off their Alabama suit—which of course was their privilege at any time—leaving only a suit in the Tennessee federal court to be contested.

SHARP: Then TVA asked for a dismissal on the ground that its legal domicile is in northern Alabama and that no other court has jurisdiction. It is this application which Judge Gore has just refused. The main reason he did so was because TVA's attorneys had already tacitly admitted the jurisdiction of the Tennessee federal court by asking this very court to take the case away from the state court in which it was first filed.

As a result of all this maneuvering, the suit will be tried where the utility plaintiffs wished it to be. The northern Alabama federal court—which TVA would have much preferred—is completely out of the picture.

Legal experts comment that this was an instance where the government lawyers were so sharp they cut themselves.

LOSERS: Financial insiders are keeping an eye on budding hostilities between the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads on one side and the Baltimore and Ohio plus the Keeshins Highway Transport Company on the other. It looks as if an expensive little railroad civil war is in the making.

Baltimore and Ohio has been very unpopular with other eastern railroads for some time. It has been regarded as a sort of teacher's pet of the administration. Its enthusiasm for the two-cents-a-mile passenger fare was bitterly resented by its neighbors, which unanimously yelled ruination. Nor have the indications of greater prosperity as a result of the cheap fare abated this resentment. B. and O. is disliked the more for having been right. On top of this, arrangements Baltimore and Ohio has made with the Keeshins trucking people are regarded as a menace to the freight rate structure.

New York Central is the aggressor in the current skirmish. Through its subsidiary—Universal Carloading and Distributing Co.—it has changed the routing of Baltimore traffic which has hitherto gone to B. and O. and given this business to Pennsylvania, I. B. & O. decides to fight back via its Keeshins connection it could raise plenty of Cain. While financial sources are generally in sympathy with New York Central, backstage efforts are being made to promote a peaceful outcome. Otherwise the scrap might end with all the participants losers.

CRITICISM: Many leading New Yorkers, including ardent anti-New Dealers, agree that Smith's radio contributions to the Landon cause are probably doing Roosevelt much more good than harm.

This conviction is based on the premise that FDR's voice rates tops in radio appeal the country over, whereas AI's is figured far down in the list. There was plenty of evidence at the time that Smith's "radio" personality contributed heavily to his own defeat in 1928. His rather raspy accents just didn't go over in the South or the Middle West, no matter how well he registered in his native New York, and there are signs that the old dislike was revived.

"There's no sense in featuring memories of '28 with their deep undertone of prejudice," says a New York leader whose views are widely shared, "nor in reminding people of the Liberty League. We ought to recognize the vital difference between face-to-face contact with an audience—at which AI excels—and electioneering on the air waves. Smith has a host of loyal friends—but there are also thousands who heartily dislike him and automatically oppose any cause he is for. And his radio mannerisms are hardly likely to go over big with the new voters who may decide this election."

But despite this widespread criticism, AI will continue his public appearances on the air right up to the Election Day deadline.

THE ROAD TO "Fitter Fifties" Middle life will be healthier and happier for you if you'll be moderate now... Live sensibly. Don't burn up your physical fuel... If you drink, turn to a whiskey that is easy on you.

WHY are certain forms of whiskey easier on the average man? This mystery has now been cleared up. A nationally known group of trained, fact-finding men were engaged by the House of Seagram to investigate this subject. They have given a conclusive answer. Seagram's Crown Whiskies—blended in the particular Seagram way—were shown to be kinder, more considerate, and to agree better with most men. In fact, this report proves them "A Most Wholesome Form of Whiskey." Men who look to the future will choose Seagram's Crown, not only for their fine, rich, mellow taste, but because these whiskies, taken in moderation, are more likely to agree with them.

Seagram's Five Crown Blended Whiskey. The straight whiskies in this product are 5 years or more old, 25% straight whiskey, and 75% neutral spirits distilled from American grains. Bottled under this formula since May 1936, 90 Proof. Seagram's Seven Crown Blended Whiskey. The straight whiskies in this product are 8 years or more old, 37 1/2% straight whiskey, and 62 1/2% neutral spirits distilled from American grains. Bottled under this formula since May 1936, 90 Proof.

(Continued from "See One") will "consent to revision of this law" if it appears that corporations in debt must meet the requirements, or if inequalities are proved. The other law is the social security act. Its defects are acknowledged. Its tax burden on employers and workers looms up ominously. Movements originating from separate groups are converging upon Congress to force amendments. But nobody knows that relief will be granted. Hence this anxiety. Developments point strongly to eventual judicial test of the Robinson-Patman and the Walsh-Healy acts. The Robinson-Patman act seems to attempt to regulate business practices in transactions wholly within states. The Walsh-Healy act as enforced by the Labor Department may run afoul of established rights and immunities. DISCRIMINATION: The first complaints of violation of the Robinson-Patman act have been issued by the Federal Trade Commission, and hearings have been set for Nov. 6. Charges are made that discriminatory discounts were made in the sale of cheese and salad dressing; another that a manufacturer of floor coverings gave special prices to a mail order house, in discrimination against other customers; and another that the mail packers on the ground that they

UNC UNDERDOG IN NEXT GAME

Green Wave of Tulane Given Edge Over Tar Heels

Chapel Hill, Oct. 21.—Undeclared and untied, the University of North Carolina football team will enter Saturday's game with Tulane at New Orleans in the role of underdog.

For the first time this season, the advance dope does not favor the Tar Heels for this game, but the players and coaches will be all the more determined to upset the old bucket.

A smart, versatile attack, utilizing both power and speed is that the Tar Heels must stop when they engage the powerful Green Wave. Coaches Bob Fetzer and Bill Lange had a ringside seat last Saturday when Tulane crushed the Colgate eleven 28-6. The two Tar Heel observers spoke highly of the grid prowess of the Southerners. "One of the most powerful elevens I've seen in a long time," opined Coach Lange.

Bucky Bryan's off-tackle running and Johnny Andrews' line plunging were the bright spots in the Greenie's offense. Bill Matz's punting was another feature, while Porter Tull and Norman Hall at guard, Captain Bill Moss at tackle, and Freddie Preisser at end, turned in spectacular line performances and frequently broke up the tricky Colgate reverses before they could get in motion. The Maroons were badly outclassed except for five minutes of the first quarter when they tallied their only score.

That about sums up the situation which the Tar Heels will encounter Saturday—a big, aggressive, hard-charging line and a speedy, elusive backfield.

The Green Wave, under new coaching hands, has three wins and a tie to its credit this season. The University of Mississippi was upset 7-6 in the season's opener, Auburn, ranked No. 1 in the South Eastern Conference in early September, was held to a scoreless tie. Centenary was easily beaten 19-0. Last Saturday the New Orleans team turned in its greatest exhibition of the campaign against Colgate.

The Tar Heels have four victories to their credit in six starts, featured by a 14-6 victory over Tennessee and a 14-13 win from N. Y. U. Maryland was defeated 14-0 and Wake Forest fell 4-7.

North Carolina had its hands full in three of these contests. It took a two-touchdown spurt in the final quarter to beat Wake Forest. The Tar Heels struck early to beat Tennessee, but were outclassed in the second half. A two-touchdown margin over New York University was practically wiped out by a brilliant fourth-quarter Violet rally.

Tulane has turned in consistently good exhibitions in each contest, improving vastly each game. But North Carolina hasn't played sixty minutes of good football in any one game. The Tar Heels have looked extremely good "in spots" and bad in others.

The general opinion of Tar Heel supporters and observers is that Coach Wolf's team will have to be good all the way to stand a chance against the Green Wave.

Long Runs Mark Games

The second Saturday in October—the 10th—produced enough long runs which decided important grid battles to mark it a red-letter day on the football calendar. Minnesota protected its string of victories when Andy Uram ran 79 yards to a touchdown in the last minute of play to beat Nebraska.

Fordham scored over Southern Methodist when Johnny Lock intercepted a Mustang pass in the fourth period and raced 77 yards to the only touchdown of the game. Previous to that, Fordham had been unable to get closer than mid-field with its attack.

Holy Cross turned back Dartmouth with a single scoring run. Bill Osmański, substitute fullback for the Crusaders, intercepted one of the Big Green's passes on his own 29 yard line and galloped 80 yards to score. Nine minutes later the game ended with Dartmouth on the short end of the 7-0 count.

Kilgore of Alabama beat Mississippi State with an 83-yard run from a fake punt formation. Florida was beaten by South Carolina when Hinson reeled off a 63-yard run that ended over the Florida goal line. Texas beat Oklahoma on a 55-yard pass and Michigan State beat Carnegie Tech with a toss that carried about half the length of the gridiron. Pittsburgh beat Ohio State on Stebbins' 35-yard run to pay dirt.

CALL RALLIES IN PRECINCTS

Democratic Speeches Planned for Night of Oct. 30

Reflector Bureau, S. R. Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 21.—The biggest and most extensive oratorical barrage ever laid down in a political campaign in North Carolina will bring the Democratic campaign to a close the night of October 30 when a Democratic rally, with a local Democrat or several local Democrats as speakers, will be held in almost every one of the state's 1,853 precincts. Secretary D. L. (Libby) Ward of the State Democratic Executive Committee, announced today, Secretary Ward is in charge of the speakers' bureau in Democratic Headquarters here.

"We are writing to every county Democratic chairman and to every precinct chairman, asking them to begin making plans right now for these precinct rallies on Friday night, October 30," Ward said. "In those communities where there are unavoidable conflicts, we are asking them to hold these rallies on Friday night if possible. We believe that if we can have more than 1,800 Democratic rallies going on the same night in every precinct in the state, they will have a very fine effect in arousing interest and enthusiasm and help get out the vote on election day."

In the larger cities and towns, the local chairmen will be given the option of holding the precinct meetings or of holding one large mass meeting for all the precincts.

Colored Scout Troop Holds Court of Honor

Boy Scout Troop 31, (colored) of Greenville held their first Fall Court of Honor at the Flemming Street Assembly Monday morning at nine o'clock.

Scoutmaster W. H. Davenport in charge of the program. After singing of America three of the Scouts gave a demonstration of their first aid they had learned in their Scout work. Assistant Scout Executive R. H. Maza gave a brief review of the work recognized as outstanding by the Troop and gave them a challenge to win honors at the annual colored Scout rally, that is to be of Camporee style this year in Washington, North Carolina. At least one boy will be expected to represent Troop 31 in the National Boy Scout Jamboree that is to be held in Washington, D. C. in June and July of 1937. P. C. Harding, chairman of the Greenville District Court of Honor then took charge of the meeting and after a brief talk introduced Dr. G. R. Combs, chairman of the Greenville District, who made the presentation of the badges of advanced rank.

Those receiving awards for advancement were: Melvin Williams, Second Class and Willie Tule, Robert Teale, and Robert Shivers, First Class.

The meeting was then turned over to Principal Egan who told of the history of colored education in Greenville.

BAN ON OPIUM COSTS INDIA $30,000,000

India, India, (AP)—Government officials announced here that the ban on opium exports, directed against dope smoking, is costing India about 6,000,000 shillings ($30,000,000) through reduced revenues.

Except for a small amount destined for medical and scientific purposes, no opium had been exported since January 1, when the ban became effective.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

Erin O'Brien - Moore, returning to Broadway after a highly laudatory interlude on Hollywood movie lots, was greeted by about half the Irish literati of the town. Since the season when she played, and played so beautifully, the Irish girl in "Street Scene," all the Irish playwrights have been writing roles for her. Critics are pretty well agreed that the topmost Irish contribution to the theater would be a play by Sean O'Casey or Liam O'Flaherty with Miss O'Brien-Moore, naturally, in the leading role.

Another star which the town has taken to heart with gusto is Robert Montgomery, who declines to follow the usual Hollywood gesture of seeking a down front aisle seat at Broadway opening nights.

When he came here to see Emily Williams open in "Night Must Fall," a play Montgomery wants to do in the movies, he was given an excellent seat on the aisle. But Bob didn't like that too much. He wanted to devote his full attention to the play, but he was so beset by autograph fans that, from where I sat across the aisle, it seemed that he wasn't left alone a moment. He took it good-naturedly—he is too smart a showman to ever evidence displeasure at the antics of fans—but it is no secret that he would enjoy an occasional evening of obscurity.

Inherently conscious of the appropriate thing, New York has housed a museum of science and industry in a structure which, in itself, is an epitome of the modern in physical science. Walk through to Sixth avenue entrance of Rockefeller center and you run smack into it.

Ever see square gears mesh perfectly? They do there. Ever see the nerves and arteries and veins of a human being built to life size within a transparent skin? You will there. Ever see black light? They have it there. Name your passion and the museum will satisfy it, whether it be 15th century looms or 20th century locomotives.

Admirers of Edison can satisfy their curiosity about the inventor of Menlo park within the modernistic, high-ceilinged museum, which starts from a ground floor and is banked back on three sides to accommodate thousands of exhibits. Those who wonder what makes a dial telephone work can see its parts x-rayed.

As you look at miniature models of early communications—the smoke signals of the American Indian, for instance—high above you in the same building an announcer for one of the big broadcasting chains is sending words by modern magic to the far corners of the world.

That, too, is appropriate. Sheila Barrett, who mimics famous people, has returned from a tour of the cabaret belt—New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Her latest impersonations are of W. C. Fields, Szeppin Fetchit, Fannie Brice and Mary Boland.

Frederick Lonsdale, the British playwright, has written but one play. Of all his hits, I am most partial to "The Last of Mrs. Cheney."

A total of 850 freshmen matriculated at the university of North Carolina this year.

Florida births showed a thousand decrease the first seven months of 1936.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Selective demand appearing in motors and specialties today helped to steer the stock market into a smoother channel. Business news was a stimulating influence for the favorites, but cloudier foreign affairs apparently had effect on most traders. After a fast opening further selling appeared in the steels and a number of the recently advancing leaders. Light offerings accompanied a dwindling volume and near the four hour activity was comparatively small.

CALL MEET OF STATE AGENCY

Conservation Board to Hold Session in Game Refuge

Raleigh, Oct. 21.—The State Board of Conservation and Development will hold a special meeting at the Mount Mitchell State Game Refuge at Busick in Yancey county on October 22-23. R. Bruce Etheridge, director of the Department announced today. This meeting, will give members an opportunity to inspect activities of the department in that part of Western North Carolina and to plan for future developments in the section, Mr. Etheridge declared. Five of the six state fish hatcheries, the director pointed out, are located in the mountains of North Carolina. These include a new hatchery which has been developed recently as an adjunct of the Mt. Mitchell game farm. Other matters expected to receive attention at the board meeting include proposed legislation for submission to the general assembly of 1937.

Why wasn't Columbus looking for America? Fine flavors of India's spices! Luring Columbus westward... westward... into the unknown. Looking for a new and shorter route... never dreaming there was an America. Today, as in 1492, everybody... everywhere... is looking for a delicious flavor. You get it in Budweiser... distinctive... highlighted with the snap of costly Saazer hops. Look for it in no other beer, because only Budweiser tastes like Budweiser. MAKE THIS TEST! DRINK Budweiser FOR FIVE DAYS. On the sixth day try to drink a sweet beer. You will want the Budweiser flavor thereafter. Order a carton for your home—NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED. ANHEUSER-BUSCH ST. LOUIS. AS YOU LIKE IT In Cans - In Bottles. EVERYWHERE. Copyright 1936, Jos. S. Finch & Co., Inc., Schenley, Pa.
