ITALIANS HEAR 'PEACE' TALK BY MUSSOLINI

Says Country Intends to Live at Peace with World

ITALIAN POWER IS SET FORTH

Premier Speaks Near Spot Where He Was Fired On by Fanatic 10 Years Ago

Bologna, Italy, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini "launched" what he proclaimed as a "message of peace" from this city this afternoon.

He spoke not far from the spot where almost exactly 10 years ago a young fanatic fired at him, splitting the sash on his breast.

This was his first visit since that day and he cried out to a hundred thousand Bolognese that, although Italy can count on "8,000,000 bayonets," she intends to live at peace with the world.

In an earlier speech at Corridonia the premier, avoiding direct mention of the Spanish civil war, had picked out the troublesome word "intervention" and discussed it at length.

In this old city Il Duce declared: "While the European horizon darkens under a cloud of uncertainty and disorder, Italy offers to the world the admirable spectacle of calmness and discipline, the civic Roman virtues."

However, he told the cheering multitude: "People like the Italian people, heirs to an ancient and magnificent civilization, have certain rights on the surface of this earth."

Il Duce shouted as he mounted the rostrum he desired to "launch a message which goes beyond the mountains and the seas."

"It is a message of peace," he cried. "Peace in work and work in peace."

Legion Operated Pitt County Fair Set Open Monday

Everything To Be in Readiness For Opening of Exposition; Exhibits Being Placed On Display

The Pitt county fair, under the operation of the two American Legion posts in the county, will open its gates Monday for what is expected to be the best fair presented here in years.

The grounds have been put in shape, light wiring and buildings remodeled in preparation for the opening of the event.

Already a number of the free-act entertainers have arrived in the city and have set up their equipment. The fair is expected to offer one of the best programs of free entertainment presented here since fairs have been staged in the county.

Farm and home exhibits have been placed on display and the best products of the county are expected to vie for honors. Premiums will total $1,000 in cash prizes.

Several special attractions have been arranged during the week. Wednesday will be observed as children's day and all school students will be admitted to the grounds free of charge. A public wedding has been scheduled for Thursday night.

The Kaus United Shows will "play" the midway and will offer shows, rides, concessions, etc., for the entertainment of all.

A tent has been provided for commercial exhibits and a number of local business firms have engaged space and are busy preparing their booths.

The County farm and home agents are working in co-operation with the association in their respective fields.

The advance sale of tickets indicated that there is much interest being manifested in the fair and large crowds are expected to visit the exposition, to be held on the old fair grounds.

This is the first year the American Legion has ventured into this county and both the Pitt County Post No. 39 and the Farmville Post No. 41 are anxious to provide a good fair this year.

Weather For The Week. Some likelihood scattered rains northern portion early part of week and possibly local showers near coast. Otherwise fair. Temperatures mostly near normal, but changeable over northern portion.

CROONER'S MARRIAGE BACKFIRES

Claiming he never remembered his wedding which followed a night of drinking last June, Frank Tennille, orchestra crooner from Montgomery, Ala., petitioned the New York supreme court to annul his marriage to Alice Foy, hatcheck girl in a night club. They are shown together at a happier moment. A published report that Tennille wanted to marry Dixie Dunbar, the movie dancer from Atlanta, Ga., was denied by his attorney. (Associated Press Photo)

Major Party Candidates Prepare For Final Drives

LEAF AVERAGE HOLDS STRIDE

Best Week in Past Two Years Observed On Market

Offerings continued heavy and prices good on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday to close the best week in the past two years.

High averages were recorded for each of the five sales days during the week. Offerings, too, were heavy throughout the period.

The quality was somewhat firmer on the market yesterday however.

Yesterday 1,099,183 pounds of tobacco were sold for $291,148.38 pounds, an official average of $26.49.

Continuing the steady incline it has made for the past several weeks, the season's general average now stands at $23.95—much higher than any mark reached last year.

So far this year 34,038,278 pounds have been sold on the local warehouse floors for a total of $8,151,336.59—a sum slightly under that paid out up to this date last year although approximately 5,000,000 more pounds were sold in the 1935 period than have been auctioned off during the current season.

Funeral Rites For Winterville Man Set For Tomorrow

D. C. Davenport, 72, died at home at 3:10 o'clock this morning following extended illness.

D. C. Davenport, 72, died at his home near Winterville at 3:10 o'clock this morning after having been in declining health for the past several months.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Reedy Branch church at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by Rev. M. A. Woodward of Winterville, assisted by Rev. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill and Rev. R. F. Pittman of Ayden.

Mr. Davenport was born and reared in the Bethel community. He was married to Miss Margie Ella Shivers in 1889 and within a few years moved to the Winterville section of the county.

He had been a member of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist church for many years and at one time served on the board of deacons. He took an active part in affairs of the church until he was forced to retire on account of ill health. He was well-known in his community and respected throughout the county.

Nominee Face Heavy Schedules During Next Week

Proclaiming that this campaign is one for "good government," Gov. Alf M. Landon sped into the Hooper state today, while President Roosevelt, after declaring that he aimed at strengthening the foundations of "a lasting Democracy," prepared for next week's final presidential drive.

Going to Indianapolis to speak tonight, Landon issued a statement saying: "We want a government that is concerned about the economic rights and the opportunities of the average man. We want a government that is also concerned about the pocketbook of everybody."

Last night he declared that an unnamed member of President Roosevelt's "immediate family" had made an "utterly untrue charge" that 8,557 children in Kansas had been deprived of common school education because of the clothing of their schools. He said this was "deceitful vilification."

Next week's campaigning will take Landon to Baltimore, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Trenton, N. J., and New York.

President Roosevelt devoted this week-end to rest preparatory to swinging next week through New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

In an address last night that was broadcast to business men's dinners in a number of cities, he declared his aims to strengthen Democracy and said "we seek to guarantee the survival of private enterprises by guaranteeing conditions in which it can work."

The New Deal, he said, has freed government from the control of a "handful" of business monopolists and now seeks to free business itself from the same control.

"We are resolved," he asserted, "to keep politics out of business, but at the same time we ask that business refrain from coercion in politics."

Drunkenness Charges Heard In City Court

White defendants were in the majority at this morning's session of Municipal court, when charges of drunkenness, assault and speeding were disposed of.

William Cannon was taxed with the costs on a drunkenness charge. C. W. Jordan, convicted of speeding, was ordered to pay the costs.

Daniel Sumrell, negro, was sent to the roads for 30 days following his conviction on charges of riotous and disorderly conduct.

EUROPE FEELS ANXIOUS OVER WAR THREATS

Dark Tempest of New Charges Engulf Countries

SPANISH STRIFE CENTER OF FEAR

Several New Developments Stand Out in Relief From A Stormy Background

(By Associated Press) A dark tempest of grave new charges and ominous words, with bloodspattered Spain at the vortex, engulfed Europe today.

These cyclic developments stand out in relief from the background of political storms:

1. Spain, its capital cringing beneath the echoing roar of fascist bombers, charged authoritarian Portugal with the death of 40 Spanish government sailors in a naval battle during which it charged, a Portuguese motorship, painted like a German vessel, sank the motorship Fernando Po.

2. Soviet Russia, following up its cryptic announcement it will not be bound by the European "hands off Spain" agreement any more than any other nation, renewed its demand before a non intervention subcommittee for a blockade of Portugal to "stop" Italo-German arms shipments to Spanish insurgents.

3. Portugal suddenly broke off diplomatic relations with the Madrid government.

4. Madrid, in new charges against Germany, declared 15 German submarines had entered the Mediterranean nine days ago and that on October 3, 160 German youths reached Seville in an open boat with 13 anti aircraft guns for insurgent use.

Germany granted recognition to Italian-Ethiopian won by a war which the League of Nations stamped as "aggression."

Body Pulled From Waters Near Spot Woman Discovered

Boston Police Officers Attempt to Link Discovery With Baffling Graye Asquith Case

Boston, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Police pulled a man's body from the Fort Point channel today not far from the spot where yesterday they found the head of slain Graye Asquith, dismembered blonde photographer's model.

Police dragging the waters of the harbor inlet for parts of Miss Asquith's body made the discovery.

They could not immediately link the body with the Asquith case, although investigators seeking to solve her death have frequently expressed the belief that John Lyons, missing friend of the blonde widow, had met a fate similar to hers.

Neither was ever seen alive, police asserted since the night of September 19, when Oscar Bartolini, Quincy odd job man, says he left them alone in Mrs. Asquith's lonely Weymouth cottage.

Bartolini is under $50,000 bail as a material witness.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By IRA BENNETT SET: Hawk-eyed political sharps are putting emphasis upon a unique feature of this campaign. They notice that while Roosevelt supporters are eager to advertise their allegiance, men who are known to be working and voting for Landon are not "sticking their necks out."

Srom many parts of the country this phenomenon is reported. It causes careful political students to go slow in their predictions. It tends to confuse popular estimates of the trend of sentiment. Perhaps it leads Landonites to overestimate the size of the silent vote—but its significance is not lost upon the upper New Dealers who remember how Hoover drew greater crowds than Roosevelt in 1932, and Bryan greater crowds than McKinley in 1896 and 1900.

Another point upon which most experienced observers are agreed is that the great majority of voters have made up their minds. The whoopee of the last few days of the campaign, they say, doesn't change many votes.

great disadvantage in trying to make political capital against the New Deal on account of the tripper currency agreement. They suspect that Britain or France might make a raid on American gold under this agreement, but until a raid happens they shrink from predicting one for fear the arrangement may turn out to be advantageous to Uncle Sam.

There's talk of the possibility of a sudden cashing-in of foreign held securities, thus causing a collapse of the market just before election day. Against this stands the strong probability that foreign holders of American securities will hold on and profit by the rise. Again no one explains why foreigners should try to defeat Roosevelt by raiding the market.

HOW EUROPE SPLITS ON SPANISH SITUATION

With Hitler and Mussolini reportedly demanding a Franco-German pact and the ousting of Soviet Russia from any future meetings of the Locarno powers, this map indicates the attitude of various important European powers towards the Spanish Civil War. The Spanish revolution has led to such a tense situation between Germany and Soviet Russia that observers fear the 14-power non-intervention pact may be broken by one side or the other. Washington, Oct. 24.—(AP)—After a turbulent demonstration during which three leaders were arrested, a delegation from the Workers Alliance of America today was successful in arranging to deposit at the White House a demand for higher wages for WPA workers.

The presidential secretary agreed to receive a delegation from the alliance. Backed by between 3,400 and 4,000 representative delegations earlier had been turned back at the White House gates.

Resolution Adopted Favors Church Union

Salisbury, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Western North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, adopted a resolution today asking the College of Bishops to urge all conferences to vote by 1937 on the proposal for union of the Northern and Southern church and the Methodist Protestant church.

Bishop Edwin F. Lee, of Singapore, representing the Methodist Episcopal (Northern) church, presided at the session and put the motion for the resolution. He said indications were the three churches would move over in favor of the merger which he said represented a fine spirit toward a movement which would prove a blessing.

Hundreds of Thousands of Tar Heels Due to Start Receiving Benefits From Reductions Rates

Raleigh, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Hundreds of thousands of North Carolinians are due to start benefiting Tuesday from lower freight rates averaging about seven per cent which the state first started fighting for November 1, 1936.

New rates lower for most of the state but slightly higher for Charlotte and some other points near the South Carolina line have been ordered effective October 27 by the interstate commerce commission to apply to all classes of rate shipments to and from "officials" territory.

Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne said that some railroads have already asked suspension of the reductions on some articles until November 1.

The scheduled book at state headquarters included the following speakers and meetings: Monday night: Hoy at Goldsboro; Friday night: H. S. Wald at Washington at Smithfield.

Frank Capps, 41, member of the legal division of the Veterans' bureau in Washington City, died suddenly yesterday afternoon in that city after having been stricken with illness while attending the Wake Forest-George Washington football game.

Mr. Capps was a native of Lenoir county, and a former citizen of Raleigh, where he served as State college librarian and as a member of the faculty.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina, he served the government in Guam during the World War as lieutenant in the air corps. Funeral services will be conducted in the Parkville Episcopal church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. Jack Rountree, rector of that church, and Rev. Worth Wheeler, rector of the Greenville Episcopal church, in charge. Burial will follow in the Wilson cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Novella Horton of Farmville, and one daughter, Miss Novella Capps. Two brothers, Clarence Capps of Akron, Ohio, and Carl Capps of Washington City, also survive.

ground. Various alloys are entering more and more into construction of machinery where steel was once universally used. Locomotives and passenger trains, buses, automobiles, trucks and all kinds of vessels both water and air, are using light metals.
Hundreds of specialists in research laboratories are working on evolution of new alloys. Some of these metals are marvels of strength as well as lightness. Extravagant estimates are made of the development of aluminum and kindred products out of abundant domestic raw materials.

Yet a few engineers are skeptical of this trend. They fear it will be overdone, and that serious accidents may occur before the final balance is reached. They insist that weight is often a safety factor that must not be ignored.

EXEMPTION: Diligent inquiry fails to reveal that the New Deal, if continued in power, will embrace the consumers cooperative system. At any rate, the study of European cooperatives not seem to have yielded fruit as the basis of an American system.

The business done by American consumers' cooperatives is relatively insignificant—perhaps one-half of 1 per cent of the country's retail trade. Efficient distribution of goods by private enterprise makes it difficult for cooperative stores or filling stations to compete.
If the cooperative system should be taken up seriously with government backing, business men fear it would result in an attempt to exempt cooperatives from taxation. They are on the alert against this kind of competition.

TIP: Speeches by southern statesmen in support of the New Deal have a back-acting effect upon the northern negro voters, as the Democratic high command is beginning to discover. An eloquent negro speaker, a member of Howard University faculty, trailed along after Vice President Garner's speech and drew frantic applause in Pennsylvania when he accused Garner of having sponsored a resolution in Congress to repeal the fourteenth amendment.

The usual charge is made by G. O. P. speakers before colored audiences that the South deprives negroes of the ballot and blocks national anti-lynching legislation. Vice President Garner is held up by colored speakers as typically southern in his attitude toward the colored race.

The great bulk of the negro vote in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois is believed to be for Roosevelt. But the tip goes out that southern statesmen should confine their speeches to the South.

NOTES: Some of Secretary Ickes' critics wonder how he had been to the Hearst income tax—by thought the pink slip had been signed. . . . Many states are putting before voters complex proposals to amend state constitutions, even to the extent of inserting detailed laws in their charters. . . . Ingenious schemes to trade votes usually fail in a national election—voters let the tail go with the hide. . . . After studying American electoral methods, President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia made voting compulsory in his country.

CONCESSION: The fencing match between the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization has reached a point where one side or the other needs only to retreat slightly to make possible reasonably hopeful negotiations for a peaceful settlement of their dispute.
As matters stand now, John Lewis says he is perfectly willing to talk things over as soon as the executive council lifts its suspension of unions belonging to the C. I. O. A committee representing the executive council replies that it will gladly discuss the matter of lifting the suspension if the C. I. O. people will meet with it first.
This in itself is quite a surprising concession by the bitter-end craft politicians on the executive council in the interest of peace.

DESIRE: Who's going to give that final inch which will make it possible for the rival groups to trash things out by direct negotiation? John Lewis remains adamant in his insistence that the suspension order must be cancelled before anything else happens. But David Dubinsky, one of his right hand men, is trying hard to persuade his chief that some slight softening for the sake of peace would benefit the cause in the long run.
On the other side, George M. Harrison of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks heads the committee named by the executive council to dicker with the C. I. O. He's an excellent choice—an able diplomat who knows the value of a timely compromise. Harrison never did believe in this bitter-end stuff, and did everything in his power to avert an open breach.

The fact that such a committee has been designated and that he heads it is significant of a real desire by the executive council to heal the wound. The resignation of William O. Hutcherson of the Carpenter Union—a specially fierce enemy of Lewis—from the council has simplified matters. It remains true that no final settlement is possible unless Lewis gets most of what he wants.
SMALLER: Up to now bankers have consorted themselves about the "starvation cheap" interest rates promoted by the government with the thought that these were a temporary expedient to promote recovery, and that money rates would snap back to "normal" as soon as the Treasury no longer needed to keep interest down for its own re-funding purposes.
But trusted scouts with excellent Washington contacts report that this view is altogether too optimistic and that it is part of the New Deal's permanent program to keep interest rates cheap. Sources close to the White House insist the "easy" money is necessary to continued recovery, to further corporate re-funding, to corporate financing of plant expansion and modernization, to stimulation of home construction, to keeping the cost of government operations cheap, to raising the level of employment, etc.
The Treasury can exert enormous influence on money rates whenever it chooses. So here's one more cogent reason why banks and other investing institutions feel that Roosevelt's reelection would be bad news to them. If such a policy were made permanently effective, it would mean that such institutions would have to adjust themselves to continuing and very noticeably smaller incomes. On the other hand, it's admitted that business in general might benefit from the lower cost of borrowing.

TRUST: If you are a corporation and offer a bond issue of more than $25,000,000 to the public, you will find the big New York banks competing eagerly for the privilege of acting as your trustee. The competition will include offers to handle the job for incredibly small fees (in order to land your general banking business)—and these offers will vary widely from each other.
But if your bond issue is a paltry $25,000,000 or less, you will find that every bank makes you an identical offer so far as the fee is concerned. The reason for this might be called a "trustee trust"—a gentleman's agreement among the trust officers of banks not to cut each other's throats over small game, but to save their competitive energies for big-time trophies.

SIDE LIGHTS: Columbia Broadcasting's partial suppression of Senator Vandenberg's "debate" with a phonograph records of FDR was a sweet break for the G. O. P. It netted them hundreds of times as much publicity as the "debate" itself would have done. . . . The rotation of stock market leadership from group to group looks like strong-arm stuff. . . . Most big banks are privately satisfied with Federal Reserve margin regulations.

Governor of North Carolina, are in favor of the adoption of the constitutional amendment to be submitted at the November election which would authorize the General Assembly to increase the membership of our Supreme Court by adding two Associate Justices.
We believe that the amendment should be adopted, and we urge our friends in all political parties to vote for the amendment.
This is a non-partisan measure, which has no political significance and it should be carefully considered by each voter upon its real merits.

because he heeded the counsel of his publicity expert.
That's why top flight anti-New Dealers are rejoicing as they have not rejoiced since the battle began about son James' "boner" in allegedly prophesying a constitutional amendment to restore N. R. A. if his father is reelected. It may be too late for the opening to do them much good, but they intend to make the most of it in the scant time remaining.
TRUST: If you are a corporation and offer a bond issue of more than $25,000,000 to the public, you will find the big New York banks competing eagerly for the privilege of acting as your trustee. The competition will include offers to handle the job for incredibly small fees (in order to land your general banking business)—and these offers will vary widely from each other.
But if your bond issue is a paltry $25,000,000 or less, you will find that every bank makes you an identical offer so far as the fee is concerned. The reason for this might be called a "trustee trust"—a gentleman's agreement among the trust officers of banks not to cut each other's throats over small game, but to save their competitive energies for big-time trophies.
SIDE LIGHTS: Columbia Broadcasting's partial suppression of Senator Vandenberg's "debate" with a phonograph records of FDR was a sweet break for the G. O. P. It netted them hundreds of times as much publicity as the "debate" itself would have done. . . . The rotation of stock market leadership from group to group looks like strong-arm stuff. . . . Most big banks are privately satisfied with Federal Reserve margin regulations.

DOCTORS FIND ANEMIA ORIGINATES IN STOMACH
Minneapolis (AP)—A new explanation for pernicious anemia is reported in the Journal of Medical Progress by Doctors Samuel Morrison and Raymond E. Gardner of the University of Maryland. They find its source in the lower part of the stomach, called the pylorus, and in the failure of that part of the stomach to manufacture a secretion which stimulates the manufacture of red blood cells.

Schedule for Next Week

Falkland H. D. Club—Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. Place to be announced. Littlefield H. D. Club—4 p. m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Herbert Garris.

September activities in the home garden determine to a great extent the quantity of vegetables we shall have during the fall months. It is too late for planting most of the tender crops, but there are quite a few hardy crops which should be planted at this time.

The lettuce seed you were advised to sow last month should produce plants which ought to be set early this month. Lettuce requires warm days, cool nights, a fertile soil, and an abundance of moisture for the production of large hard heads.

We need more of a variety of "greens." Collards and turnips are good and should be planted, but we are inclined to overwork these two. Kale is quite hardy and will give a welcome change. The Curled Scotch variety is considered of better quality by some, but the Siberian is more hardy and will withstand severe freezing. Tendergreen, or mustard spinach is a very good leafy vegetable and many are using it in the place of mustard. Some of this should be planted in order that you might be able to compare it with mustard and spinach which should be planted at this time. Tendergreen is handled in the same way as mustard.

Turnips should furnish our root crop. Purple top White Glove turnips should be planted immediately. Purple top Strap Leaf will usually make edible roots when lanted as late as the 15th of the month.

Radishes should help out the fall menu. Some of the small round varieties mature in four or five weeks. Winter varieties require eight to ten weeks.

Onion sets of White Pearl or Norfolk Queen should be planted the last of the month. These will produce early green onions next spring. For large bulbs next summer seed are sown in beds the last of September and transplanted to the field in December and early January in the milder coastal areas. In the colder sections the plant bed should be protected and transplanting delayed until early February.

Cabbage seed should be put in outdoor beds during the last week of this month and transplanted as outlined for onions.

Christian prophesies in all centuries warned the stabilized churches not to forget their period of emigration, of persecution and underground-life. The fighters for the rights of man and social justice always challenged the settled classes, which made them refugees and prisoners, that they have forgotten their own unsettled and fighting period.

This, I think, is the ultimate point of view, from which an emigration such as the present one from Germany has to be considered. There are also other possible and very serious considerations.

First of all, the actual situation of tremendous emergency which challenges Christian love; then the special causes of this situation, the merely natural fact of racial differences in the one group of emigres, the struggle for peace, social justice and the rights of man in the other group, both challenging the Christian conscience, the former by their innocent suffering, the latter by their defense of indispensable elements of Christianity.

Prophetic Word

As an emigre with emigres I confess frankly that I feel much more the tragic complexity of a real destiny in the present emigration than a simple and one-sided immorality. And just this feeling that moral categories are insufficient for understanding the world situation generally and our own situation especially drives me and should drive all of us toward the ultimate, the religious, meaning in understanding the fate of emigration.

Emigration today, especially emigration produced by the demonic power of nationalism, can become a prophetic word to the Christian churches. The fact of separation from their homeland, experienced by thousands and thousands of people can become a manifestation of the limited meaning of nation and homeland compared with the unlimited meaning of the kingdom of God.

Emigration by itself is a protest against the nationalistic distortion of Christianity and defamiation of humanity. The support of emigres is a support of this prophetic protest against the demony of religious nationalism.

Emigration can become a symbol for humanity beyond national and racial divisions. It can become a sign for the Christian churches to resist the rather irresistible temptation of nationalism in our period. There should live the consciousness that emigration is a religious category concerning every Christian indicating the majesty of God and the exclusiveness of his command, separating us at times from home and family and soil and nation and every other thing on earth.

Reminded of Emigration

But man likes to forget the human and Christian fate of emigration. The fore-fathers were exiles

How's Your Health?

Vein Trouble The "engineer mind" quite often finds medicine and all its involvements an earnest trial. By the engineer mind, we mean that type of mentality which likes to organize its thinking in well ordered sequences of cause and effect, and which is ever impatient to get at the heart of the problem.

Medicine has a great respect for the engineer mind and it, too, is eager to get to the heart of the problem. All of which is by way of introduction to the problem of phlebitis. The condition, according to our term "phlebitis," means an inflammation of the veins. But here we are at once run into difficulty, for the disease is not always of an inflammatory nature, and infection is not always its primary cause.

The nature of the condition and its cause or causes have a vital bearing on its treatment. Until these are well established we must perforce wander about in our therapy. Also they have an important bearing on prevention, with which medicine is becoming ever more concerned.

Aschoff, one of the world's leading pathologists, believes that phlebitis, with its associated condition of thrombus formation (the formation of small clots within the lumen of the veins) is the result of the combined operation of several factors. These he lists as slowing down of circulation, disturbances in the vital functions of the cells lining the blood, and finally, bacteria and their toxins.

Slowing down of circulation may result from numerous causes, among which the lack of exercise is an important and remediable one. General body nutrition influences both the state of the lining cells of the veins, called the endothelium, and of the blood. The cells which line the blood vessels are important mediators between the blood which they contain and the tissues which form the blood vessels. Should the endothelium be damaged, the nutrition of the underlying vessel tissues is likely to be affected. Such damage would encourage the formation of thrombi, or blood clots which in turn would offer convenient centers for the lodgment and growth of bacteria.

The prevention of phlebitis is indicated by its postulated causes, and calls for adequate exercise, the avoidance of everything that may hamper blood circulation, and good nutrition.
