Executive Speaks At Statue of Liberty Anniversary

HIGH OFFICIALS IN ATTENDANCE

LaGuardia Acts As Chairman and Secretary Ickes Makes Address

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Standing near the base of Bartholdi's famous statue of liberty, President Roosevelt today praised the nation's settlers for their love of freedom, and said, "we shall continue to build an even better home for liberty."

On the 50th anniversary of the beacon, which France gave to American freedom and American peace by making them living facts in a living present described as rededication of the statue to the ideals of freedom, the ceremony attracted a number of men well-known in public life. Andre de La Boulaye, French ambassador and grandson of Edouard de La French historian, who proposed the statue originally, was a guest of honor.

Major LaGuardia acted as chairman and Secretary Ickes made a speech declaring: "the significance and importance of an unflinching beacon light of liberty can not be over emphasized at a time when at many points of the horizon one can see enigmatic sparks that threaten to destroy much of the progress gained by mankind at so great a cost and sacrifice."

In a speech described by the White House in advance as non-political, Mr. Roosevelt declared that the discovery of America was mankind's second chance—a chance to create a new world after he had almost spoiled an old one.

For over three centuries," he said, "a steady stream of men, women and children followed the beacon of liberty which this light symbolizes. They brought to us strength and moral fibre developed in a civilization centuries old but sired anew by the dream of a better life in America."

"How well their hopes were justified," he said "I proved by the record of what they achieved. They not only found freedom in the new world but by their effort and devotion that made the new world's freedom safer, richer, more far-reaching, more capable of growth."

"To the message of liberty which America sends to all the world," he said at another point, "must be added her message of peace."

Additional Funds To Aid Roosevelt Reported In City

Chairman M. K. Blount Issues Report on Electors Club Showing Contributions of $15.45 More

M. K. Blount, chairman of the Roosevelt Electors club for Greenville today reported additional contributions amounting to $15.45 and urged anyone wishing to make a donation to the only fund used expressly for the purpose of financing the campaign to re-elect President Roosevelt would have to act quickly.

Contributions will be received throughout the week and forwarded to headquarters. Already some $150 have been raised in Greenville alone, with an estimated $600 or $700 having been contributed by Democrats throughout the county.

Mr. Blount called attention to the fact that this is the only fund used expressly for the purpose of sending the President back to the White House for another four years and said citizens in this area should welcome an opportunity to aid in this campaign. He said the benefits reaped by this community from the New Deal program were countless.

Anyone wishing to "join" the Electors club may do so by getting in touch with Chairman Blount. Contributions since the last report was issued include: Dr. M. T. Prizzelle and W. W. Lee, $5 each, and H. L. Jenkins, J. M. Fleming, C. W. Worthington and W. S. Galloway, one dollar each. An additional $1.45 was contributed in smaller sums.

WILSON GETS FUNDS Raleigh, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Works Progress Administration allotted $10,840 to Wilson county today for re-indexing of old county records.

Hermann Reuter has written still another opera around the Faust legend. Meanwhile, Gounod's more famous version approaches its 300th performance at the Paris Opera.

STATUE OF LIBERTY'S 50TH BIRTHDAY OBSERVED

LOCAL WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH

Funeral Services Tomorrow for Mrs. Lineaus Merritt

Mrs. Lineaus Rackley Merritt, 77, mother of V. A. Merritt, was burned to death about 11 o'clock this morning at the home of her son at 209 Columbia avenue.

Mrs. V. A. Merritt and Miss Letha Merritt left the home about 10:30 this morning and returned about noon, leaving Mrs. Lineaus Merritt alone in the house. Upon their return to prepare lunch they found Mrs. Merritt lying on her back on the dining room floor, burned to death. Her clothing had been burned off and the body was almost in a charred condition. From all appearances she had been dead one hour.

Members of the family said they thought Mrs. Merritt's clothes caught fire as she was fixing a fire in the kitchen and that she was unable to extinguish the blaze. She is nearly blind and a cane she uses around the house was found besides the stove. The fire stick also was found besides the stove.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at S. G. Wilkerson and Sons funeral home at 625 Dickinson avenue, with Dr. G. R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, in charge. Burial will follow at Epworth Methodist Episcopal church five miles from Clinton.

Little Damage Caused By Fire Early Today

Firemen were roused from bed early this morning by a fire at the home of Frank Atkinson, negro, at Cotanche and First streets, but the blaze was soon extinguished and little damage was suffered.

The fire originated in a flue, firemen said, but the blaze was put out before it spread.

Possible Future "Queen" Awaits Absolute Divorce

London, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Herald-ed as possibly the future queen of England, 42-year-old Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson today began a form of "matrimonial parole" under which six months must pass before she will be eligible to marry anyone—be he king or commoner.

Six grumbled words—"oh, very well, a decree nisi"—testily voiced by Justice Sir John Anthony Hawke at Ipswich assizes, provisionally released Mrs. Simpson from her second unsuccessful marriage.

Today, behind drawn curtains, the smartly-groomed American who may become "Queen Wallis" secluded herself in her huge white-fronted new mansion resting from yesterday's brief, but nerve-wrecking ordeal. For half a year she must act with

James A. Mollison Off Across Ocean

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Attired in a dinner jacket, Capt. James A. Mollison, the trans-Atlantic flier, took off at 8:44 a. m. today in a one-stop flight to London, via Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, hoping to establish a mark of 17 and one-half flying hours from Floyd Bennett Field to Croydon airdrome.

"I do my best flying at night," explained the Englishman, "so don't you know I have to be properly dressed."

Mollison, intending to fly at 15,000 feet altitude, figured he could reach Harbor Grace with his initial load of 420 gallons of gasoline in five and one-half hours.

Just before the take-off Mollison received a cablegram from his wife, Amy, wishing him luck on his voyage. She announced in London last week she and Mollison had separated.

LEAF AVERAGE SO FAR $24.15

Offerings on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday totaled 1,032,686 pounds and brought an official average of $25.99 per hundred weight.

The day's sales brought season's offerings to 36,296,084 pounds, which brought $8,765,914.95. The general average struck for the year's auctions to date was $24.15 at the close of sales yesterday afternoon.

Prices on the local market continue to hold up good and offerings remain heavy. In comparison with other markets in the state, the local market shows up good, with the average being higher here most every day.

The Greenville market has shown up better in the past few weeks than during the early weeks of the season and, although the crop is short this year million pound offerings have held up with few daily exceptions.

Fifty-one thousand dollars was paid for the only extant signature of Button Gwinnett.

WASHINGTON (By Ira Bennett) CONFIDENCE: G. O. P. candidates for election or reelection to Congress are coming and going. The G. O. P. Congressional campaign committee is very active. It helps candidates by information and cash. Candidates (especially in Pennsylvania) complain that there's a flood of information and drought of cash. But with 435 districts to look after, the committee does the best it can.

These candidates shake their heads when they get together in private. Their hopes are based upon something that they can't see. What they see indicates a New Deal victory. They try to convince themselves that an undertow will sweep London in.

Democrats running for Congress are in a far more confident mood. Among them are members who if reelected will remain chairmen of important committees. These committees are carrying on exactly as if they had been reelected.

BIG SUMS WON BY AMERICANS

Controversy Over Owner of Winning Sweepstake Ticket

New Market, Eng., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Sir Abe Bailey's Dan Bulger won the renewal of the Cambridgeshire in one and eighth-miles today.

Sir George Bullough's Daytona was second and M. H. Venson's Laureate, II, was third.

Dan Bulger won by two lengths, while a head separated Daytona and Laureate.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Nine Americans won top prizes of $150,000 each from the 19th Irish hospital sweepstakes draw today when Dan Bulger the prime favorite won the Cambridgeshire.

The lucky ticket holders included one who signed himself "Hooker," 400 Swift avenue, West Durham, N. C.

There were two American winners on Daytona, the second horse, each getting $75,000 and five Americans held tickets on Laureate, II, the third horse. They are worth $50,000 each.

Prior to the actual running of the race Americans had won approximately $1,650,000 in horse residual and consolation prizes.

Durham, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Percy H. Hooker of this city, holder of a $150,000 prize winning ticket on Dan Bulger in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes, received the announcement of Bulger's victory today with a full measure of joy.

"I hardly know what to say," she exclaimed. "We are so happy."

Mrs. Hooker whose husband is an employe of a local furniture store, had placed the ticket in a downtown safety deposit vault last week following the announcement of the (Continued on page six)

LANDON PLEDGES TO CLEAN HOUSE

Three Speeches On Roosevelt's Program Within New York City

(By Associated Press)—The campaign paths of both President Roosevelt and Governor Alf M. Landon led today to the New York Metropolitan area with its vast voting population, while throughout the country their friends and foes hammered away in the hottest kind of fighting.

Three speeches were on Mr. Roosevelt's program as he devoted himself to a tour of the metropolis. The dedication of a new PWA financed gymnasium at Brooklyn college, an address at the 50th anniversary at the Statue of Liberty and a short talk at Roosevelt Park on the east side combined to give him a full day.

Recalling recent controversy over James Roosevelt's remarks concerning the future of NRA principles, a reporter asked the president late yesterday whether he would favor reviving NRA.

The Chief Executive referred the interrogator to his present and past speeches. A check of his addresses to date showed that he has praised NRA, but has not indicated whether he contemplated any new moves to revive some such undertaking.

Gov. Landon, before reaching New York, where he will spend tomorrow night, decided to stop at Trenton, N. J., and Newark. After a speech in the latter city he planned to reach New York late in the day.

In a national broadcast address at Pittsburgh last night, the Republican nominee asserted the New Deal was guilty of the "most open, the most crude and the most brutal use of the spoils system this country has ever seen." He pledged "a good old fashioned house cleaning x x x when I am elected."

Several Cases Aired At Police Court Term

A fairly large heavy court calendar was disposed of by Mayor M. K. Blount in Municipal court this morning, with a number of the defendants being white residents.

Arthur Scott was taxed with the costs on a drunkenness charge; Dave Hoots paid the costs for being drunk and disorderly; Jack Clark was fined five dollars and taxed with the costs for being drunk and disorderly; and W. H. Freeman paid the costs upon conviction of drunkenness.

John Green, Earl Jenkins and William Henry Burroughs, negroes, each paid a five dollar fine and court costs upon conviction of disorderly conduct, and Dave Jackson, negro, was ordered to pay the costs or spend 30 days on the roads following his conviction of disorderly conduct.

Richard Strauss, at 72, is at work on two new operas.

as to say that they fear voters will size up Landon as a good man, but "not big enough."

One of them recalled Vice-President Marshall's remark in which he told why he had been chosen Vice-President. It was because he was from Indiana, he said, "a state that produces more first-class second-rate men than any other state in the country."

A G. O. P. stalwart said he didn't think Landon was helped by Gifford Pinchot, when Pinchot assured the country that Landon was his own boss, and a really big man, after all, and a rarin' Progressive.

SOVIET RUSSIA IS DENOUNCED

Italy Demands Investigation of Alleged Breaches

London, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Italy, denouncing Soviet Russia for 20 alleged new violations of the "hands off Spain" agreement, today demanded an investigation to establish the facts.

Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador to London, made the charges and demands to Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the committee, as it went into session for an afternoon meeting.

Dates and details of the alleged Russian violations were included in the Grandi protest, and he asked that the Soviets be called upon for an immediate explanation.

The questions uppermost in the minds of committee members, who arranged to hold a full session of the group during the afternoon, was whether Soviet Russia, Portugal or both would quit the neutrality agreement and leave the committee cold.

Portugal last night served notice on the committee she may withdraw at any moment.

Russia, ready with new charges against the fascist states, also was on record before the committee with what amounted to notice she would withdraw if she did not get her own way.

A double desertion, committee members said, undoubtedly would mean collapse of the non-intervention group.

Negro Returned Here Face Murder Charge

A negro, Perry German, who allegedly admitted killing another negro, Jerman Slade, here two years ago and escaped jail before he was tried has been returned and is being held in jail without bond pending trial in Superior court here, probably next week.

The negro was arrested in Washington, D. C. last Friday and Chief George Clark was informed and went to the capital for the slayer.

German is charged with slaying Slade on the night of November 21, 1935, two days after he had been beaten up by the negro he later killed. Chief Clark said the negro admitted killing Slade and re-enacted how he went to the window of the man's house, shot him and returned home.

Dr. Crisp To Preside Over Dinner Meeting

Dr. S. M. Crisp of this city will preside over a dinner which will precede the sixth in a series of meetings of Eastern North Carolina physicians to be held in Goldsboro tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock.

To Speak Here

Dr. John Barclay, minister of First Christian Church of Wilson, will deliver the address in the High school auditorium on Friday night under the auspices of the Greenville Council for Peace Action and other sponsoring groups.

JOHN BARCLAY PEACE SPEAKER

Minister to Deliver Address Here On Friday Night

John Barclay, minister of the First Christian church of Wilson, will deliver the special message of the Emergency Peace campaign in the local high school auditorium Friday night of this week.

A World War veteran, Rev. Mr. Barclay is described by sponsors of the meeting as "an ardent peace worker who sees a need for fundamental international economic and psychological changes as necessary preventatives of war."

A member of the international and inter-church Fellowship of Reconciliation and of the Disciples Peace Fellowship, Dr. Barclay has spoken for peace in Virginia and Kentucky and all over North Carolina before churches, Lions Clubs, college chapels and American Legion posts. He served as State Chaplain of the American Legion Department of North Carolina in 1932-33 and was district governor of the Lions Club in 1933-34. He was a representative to and spoke at the International Convention of the Disciples of Christ in San Antonio, Texas in October of last year.

Dr. Barclay has been a resident fellow in Union Theological Seminary in New York City and took an M. A. degree in 1923 from Columbia University. He saw service in France as a captain of infantry and then studied at the University of London in the year following the war.

A near neighbor and a valued speaker for the Emergency Peace Campaign, his coming to Greenville is heralded with much interest and enthusiasm by the Greenville Council for Peace Action and other sponsoring groups and individuals.

Pitt Fair In Full Swing With Big Crowds On Hand

With the grounds in good condition, a large crowd visited the Pitt county fair last night and even more patrons were out today for the exposition being sponsored by the two American Legion posts in the county.

The fair was going in full swing today with the many rides and shows offered here by the Kaus United Shows attracting a large number of patrons.

FASCISTS TAKE FIVE VILLAGES

Government Officials Mobilize All Able-Bodied Spaniards Between Ages of 20 and 45 to Bolster Yielding Defense Lines

(By Associated Press)—The Spanish fascists shoved their outposts today within 10 miles of Madrid—almost within range of their heaviest artillery.

While the capital struggled to organize for its defense against a rising tide of confusion and disension within and an encroaching wave of fascists on its outskirts, the insurgent command jubilantly drew plans for a triumphant entry.

Fascist leaders, having taken five new villages and having advanced their vanguard to a point 16 miles south of beleaguered Madrid, announced they were ready for the final thrust.

Government officials meanwhile ordered mobilization of all able-bodied Spaniards between the ages of 20 and 45 to bolster their yielding lines of raw recruits hurled against the man power and armaments of the fascists.

Their committed the difficult problem of a roaming army of war refugees in the city, littered, cold, hungry and penniless, who added thousands of mouths to be fed from the city's dwindling supplies.

The insurgents hoped they could array such a formidable force against the capital, that it would submit without battle. They relied principally on a fleet of 300 swift, tiny tanks and armored cars to charge the capital's streets.

The date for the attack—rumored imminent—remained a military secret, however, and the extent to which the city itself would be shelled was left for the future to decide. It was to depend on the effectiveness of fascist strategy which seeks to foment a mass panic with threats and evidence of irresistible strength.

University Asked By Charlotte Man 'To Clean House'

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Dr. Roy W. McKnight, president of the Mecklerburg chapter of the University of North Carolina Alumni association, issued a statement here today calling upon the university administration for "a general house cleaning" after being advised that one of its professors had attended a dinner at Durham with Negro Communist leaders.

Dr. McKnight, who spent nine years at the university as undergraduate, post-graduate and associate professor, said he was informed Prof. E. E. Ericson of the university faculty had attended a public meeting in Durham addressed by James Ford, Negro Communist candidate for vice-president of the United States, and that after the meeting Prof. Ericson was among a few other white persons at a dinner with Negro Communist leaders in Ford's hotel suite.

"I believe a university professor should enjoy the right of freedom of speech and liberty of thought," said Dr. McKnight. "As a matter of fact, it is his duty to do so, but when a faculty member's conduct and philosophy of life becomes so opposed to American tradition, especially to Southern tradition, as to be offensive to the sensibilities of the thousands of alumni, and to the tax-payers of the state, then it is time for the university administration to start a general house cleaning."

Dr. McKnight was joined in his criticism by Dr. Henry Sloan, another prominent doctor here, and a university alumnus.

In Chapel Hill Prof. Ericson declined public comment. Dean R. B. House of the university declined to make a statement, and Dr. Frank Graham, president, was absent from the State.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 27.—Mister Average American hasn't missed or gained a hair's breadth over problems which some statesmen profess to regard as the most fateful ever to confront the nation.

Mister Average American does not believe that his vote on November 3 will determine whether the United States will remain a democracy or become a dictatorship ruled by Washington.

not share the feeling that his country faces a crossroads of history. He thinks the politicians who warn of revolution and communism and dictatorship are hollering "Wolf" against him. He thinks politics is mostly "baloney" anyway.

The 1936 voter is a new kind of man. He is extremely cynical, unutterably hardboiled, hypercritical. He learned some tough lessons during the depression—economic and political. He lost faith in many things he had once prized—hard work, laying by for the future, individual initiative.

He saw a lifetime of labor and savings swept away overnight. He may have seen his wife and youngsters go hungry—or worse. So spellbinders who now—again—outbrave those ancient virtues, and assail the Roosevelt administration for undermining them, make no hit with him. His economic disillusionment affects his political thinking—distorts it.

This nonchalant attitude, on the part of the mass of voters—there are exceptions, of course—may discourage serious, thoughtful people without regard to their political attachments. But it's reality, and the deepest impression one has received after an 8,000 mile survey through the hinterland.

The average voter is not concerned over the sanctity of the Constitution or the President's supposed plans for packing the Supreme Court. Not once was the Court-or-Constitution question raised except when your correspondent brought it up. It usually provoked a shrug of the shoulders or silence.

The ordinary voter has no fear that the President—or his successor—will seek to establish a dictatorship at Washington. The effort to headline communism as an issue has fallen flat. Nobody will discuss it seriously. More practical problems arouse the voters' interest. They don't seem to object to the administration's "spending" proclivities. They aren't afraid of high taxes for few pay them directly. It's almost impossible for them to discern a connection between federal taxes and indirect levies on the things they buy.

Mister Average Man isn't frightened by the prospect of more federal regulation of business and industry. Most of his genius think it might be a good idea. To them N. R. A. is only three letters—not a threat to their liberty.

The fact is that the average man is living—and voting—in the immediate present. He is working, eating and providing for his family better than he was four or three or two years ago. Whether he keeps his family in food or clothing with a private or WPA job makes no difference. All he knows—or cares to remember—is that a short time ago he was in or on his way to the bread lines.

He doesn't know—or give a hoot—whether recovery has come thru the operation of natural forces or from New Deal planning, as the President insists. He doesn't know—or care—whether the system of relief and similar experiments are undermining the self-reliance and fortitude of himself and his neighbors. He doesn't think it is, though he's rather vague about it.

Mr. Roosevelt's hold is the public belief that he is "for the common man." You hear that expression everywhere. No matter what else the President may or may not have done, he has sold himself as the great sympathizer.

This cynical, mercurial people could turn on Mr. Roosevelt, as quickly and as savagely as they did on Mr. Hoover. They don't like many of his policies and advisers. Sometimes they're inclined to be skeptical of him. They have been let down—sold out—so many times in late years. But up to now they feel that he fights on their side.

That's the present state of the public mind. Key anti-New Deal forces recognize and deplore it. Alfred P. Sloan of General Motors denounces the New Deal, as 25 per cent of the men in his shop are for it. E. T. Witt, who smashed N. R. A. by giving thousands of dollars to the G. O. P. and the Liberty League, but his workers are dropping dime and quarters into the Democrats' cash box.

America may go up in smoke—in a New Deal conflagration—as Messrs. Sloan and Witt contend. But so long as the smoke twists upward through the chimneys of their factories, their workers will let tomorrow take care of itself and vote for the smoke they can see.

DUAL HIGHWAY IS PREFERRED

Parallel Roads Favored by State Engineers

Raleigh, Oct. 27.—The construction of dual roads, or rather of another road parallel to an existing roadway, is going to be preferred and recommended by highway engineers from now on instead of the widening of existing highways wherever the flow of traffic indicates a need or a three-way or four-way highway, Chief Highway Engineer W. Vance Baise of the State Highway and Public Works Commission said today.

The cost of the dual highways will be somewhat more than the cost of widening a two-way into a three-way highway, Baise agreed. But he indicated that the extra cost is justified by the increased safety of the dual highway over the three-lane roadway. But whether or not the state highway department will ever be able to build any dual roads or even widen any existing ones, depends entirely on whether it can ever get the money to build them with, Baise said.

"The reason we have not been able to build any dual roads in North Carolina so far, with the exception of one semi-dual road now under contract, is because we have not had the money to build them with," Baise said. "We have known all along, of course, that the dual roads are safer than the three-lane roads."

But we have done well to get enough money to widen some of the two-lane roads into three-lane highways. Another factor is that when the surfacing of an old road is worn, it is cheaper to widen it and resurface it than it is to build an entire new road and then resurface the old one. Hence it is not economic to build an additional road unless the surfacing of the other is still in first class condition.

The only semi-dual highway in the state is now being built from just above China Grove to Concord. The new highway will almost parallel the present highway from China Grove to Concord but it has not yet been decided if the traffic on each highway will be limited to one-way traffic, or whether two-way traffic will be allowed on both stretches of roadway.

Crosland-White Mrs. Nannye Fleming White announces the marriage of her daughter Mary Lou to Mr. David Bailey Crosland on Wednesday, October the twenty-eighth.

After November the tenth Charlotte, North Carolina No announcements were sent in the city.

The home of Mrs. Nannye White was the scene of a beautiful wedding today at high noon, when her younger daughter, Mary Lou, was married to Mr. David Bailey Crosland.

The entire lower floor of the home was resplendent in dahlias and chrysanthemums. The music room, where the ceremony was performed, was decorated in green and white. An altar was improvised in the bay window against a background of ferns with tall standards of white chrysanthemums, flanked with tiers of burning white tapers.

Just before the ceremony, Mrs. Charles A. White sweetly sang "Because," by Guy d'Hardelot, and Miss Bessie Brown sweetly sang "Uptill" by Sanderson. They were accompanied at the piano by the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. L. Fleming. All three of them were comely attired and wore shoulder corsages of sweetheart roses.

The bride is the younger daughter of Mrs. Nannye Fleming White and the late James Benjamin White, also the grand-daughter of the late Captain C. A. White. She was educated in the city schools and St. Mary's College in Raleigh.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Louisa Evans Crosland and the late William Edward Crosland, of Charlotte. He attended school at McCallie in Tennessee and V. P. I. in Blacksburg, Virginia.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests were invited into the dining room for a wedding breakfast. This room was most attractive in its appointments and carried out a pink color scheme. The dining table was covered with a cloth of Venetian lace and centered with a crystal bowl of pink roses on a reflector. Tall pink tapers in crystal holders flanked the centerpiece.

Streams of pink tulle were draped from the electricier above the center of the table and tied with large bows at the corners of the table. Mrs. S. T. White and Mrs. M. I. Fleming, of Rocky Mount, were seated at either end of the table, serving salads and pouring coffee. Other delicacies were served from the buffet and serving table which were also lighted with pink candles in crystal holders.

Those attending from a distance were: Mrs. Nana Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dillon and family, of Statesville; Dr. and Mrs. M. I. Fleming, of Rocky Mount; Rev. and Mrs. George Matthis, of Durham; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown, of Whitakers; Mrs. Louisa Crosland, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crosland, Mr. and Mrs. John Crosland, Mr. and Mrs. John Huske, Dr. John G. Myers, of Charlotte; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Crosland, of Rockingham.

Meeting Held For Farmers In Areas Near Winterville Many Important Facts Brought Out at Semi-Monthly Discussion Held at High School Building

Winterville, Oct. 28.—The farmers of Winterville community are meeting twice a month to discuss their farm problems in cooperation with the agricultural teacher, J. H. Mobley.

On Monday night they held their second meeting in the high school building. Harvesting and storing sweet potatoes was the subject for discussion. Some of the most important facts brought out are as follows: Do not leave sweet potatoes in the ground until frost bites them. The sap from the frost-bitten vines goes down into the potatoes, causing them to rot.

Temperature for storage houses should be 80 to 85 degrees Fahrenheit for fourteen days, then reduced to 40 to 50 degrees F. for the remainder of the time. Plenty of ventilation is necessary to take care of excess moisture. In bank storage, a great loss can be prevented by proper ventilation and sufficient covering. Tobacco barns, if made tight, make a good storage. Do not put bruised, cut or damaged potatoes into storage.

R. R. Bennett, farm agent of Pitt county, met with the group and explained the farm program. He showed the farmers how they could receive additional money by following certain farm practices, which would also improve the fertility of the soil.

To remove the vines, use a cultivator disc with the center blades about twelve inches apart, not going deep enough to cut the potatoes. To plow up the potatoes use a two-horse turn plow, throwing the dirt all the same way. This will prevent covering up a lot of potatoes. Don't throw potatoes from one row to another. Three rows may be plowed together since potatoes from the outside rows may be laid over in the middle row without throwing.

QUESTIONS THAT SOME FOLKS ASK ABOUT CARDUI

BENEFIT FOR MAL-NUTRITION Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them to overcome mal-nutrition and to ease many of the functional pains of menstruation.

"What is meant by helping to overcome malnutrition?" Cardui contains extracts of two plants which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices—to improve digestion—so there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (strength) is obtained from the food eaten.

The food, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as the means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system.—(Adv.)

PARTISAN: "What if Landon should win?" was asked of a dozen or more of these candidates. The answers were quite varied. The Democrats predicted chaos, because of Democratic opposition in the Senate.

On regular governmental business a President and Congress must and do harmonize their differences. The G. O. P. idea is that a more economical House, even if Democratic, would cooperate with Landon to hold down public spending.

Both sides agreed that Landon would lock horns with the Democratic Senate over many appointments. The Senate rarely fails to confirm personal appointments like Cabinet members, but if the majority and politically opposed to the President they try to block confirmation of other appointments.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: By the amusing ruse of putting everybody in Amrose Lawson's night suit to sleep with drugged champagne, Terence Mahony has given the police a great amount of evidence about Lawson's dope and kidnapping ring, and has captured Lawson himself.

Chapter 22 LAWSON DELIVERS

IN A few seconds Lawson stirred feebly and opened his eyes. For a moment he stared at Mahony stupidly, as if he could not understand where he was or how he got there.

"You—you —!" He spat an unmentionable word. "By God, you'll pay for this," he said.

Mahony wasted no time beating about the bush. "I want to know where Ruth Fraser is," he said.

Lawson's swollen lips drew back from his teeth in a horrible sneering grin of defiance. "I dare say you do," he said jeeringly. "But do you think I'm going to tell you?"

"If you don't I shall kill you," replied Mahony in a matter-of-fact tone that left no doubt that he meant exactly what he said.

"I've no doubt that it would give you great pleasure to do that," he said sarcastically. "But I don't think you'll do it, and I'll tell you why. If you kill me tonight, you'll never see Miss Fraser again.

"My evidence against Ross is in his handwriting; it shows quite clearly that he was engaged with me in my criminal activities," he said. "My evidence against you is in my handwriting. To be exact, it takes the form of a diary.

"In it I relate how Ross introduced you to me as a promising recruit to my organization, how we quarrelled over a question of money, and that instead of kidnapping Miss Little properly as we had planned, you double-crossed me by taking her back to her own house.

"There her uncle recognized you, and you had to kill him to get away. After that the entries are all quite true; I simply relate your various efforts to fight me, and my efforts to fight you—quite a simple story of criminals falling out among themselves.

"Naturally, when the police find that diary, they'll know that I was the power behind all the dope and blackmailing activity, but that won't worry me if I'm dead. They'll also be quite sure that you are a crook and a murderer. It would be amusing, wouldn't it, if you were to kill me, and then be hanged for killing old Little?"

"Terribly amusing," agreed Mahony impassively. "But diary or no diary, I'm going to kill you tonight unless Ruth Fraser is restored to me safe and unharmed."

Lawson shrugged his shoulders slightly. "I'm not particularly anxious to die tonight," he admitted. "In the circumstances I suggest that we should strike a bargain. You let me go and I'll have Miss Fraser brought to you here. After all, it will only be a matter of time before I have my hands on her, and you, again."

MAHONY had never underrated Lawson's courage; he had anticipated that some such bargain would have to be struck between them.

"You have Miss Fraser brought to me here, and I'll let you go," he agreed. "You can go after she's safely here."

"It seems that you don't trust me," remarked Lawson in a tone of ironic surprise. "But you expect me to trust you. Well, I'll take your word for it that when Miss Fraser is safe here you'll let me go. I shall have to telephone."

"You can telephone, but don't try any funny business," Mahony warned him. "If a car-load of your toughs turns up here instead of Miss Fraser, you'll be the first person to go west."

"If a car-load of 'is toughs comes along, they're likely to get more than they bargain for," put in Bassett. "I've got about a dozen blokes 'anging about this garage and them as 'asn't got guns as got blackjacks. You don't need to worry about no car-load of toughs turnin' up, Mister."

"That's all right, then," said Mahony. "Here you are."

He held the telephone close to Lawson so that he could speak. Lawson called a number, and when he was in touch with the man he wanted, he gave a few curt directions in German. Then he turned to Mahony.

"What is the address of this place?" he asked. "Whitaker's garage, Dale Street, Canning Town," answered Mahony. Lawson repeated this address through the telephone, and nodded as a sign that the conversation was ended.

SEN. REYNOLDS SEES VICTORY

Enthusiasm Increasing in Behalf of Hoey, Roosevelt

Raleigh, Oct. 27.—Enthusiasm for the reelection of President Roosevelt and for the election of Clyde R. Hoey, the Democratic candidate for Governor, as well as for the entire Democratic ticket, state and local, is growing steadily in every part of the state.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville said while passing through here today between speeches. Senator Reynolds has been making from one to two speeches a day for almost two weeks now.

"The biggest danger we have to guard against in a general election here in North Carolina is lack of interest and the belief that the Democrats will win anyway, with the result that the Democratic vote is often not as large as it should be—sometimes much smaller than the vote in the Democratic primary," Senator Reynolds said.

"But this is not going to be the case in this election. For the Democrats in every section of the state—in the eastern counties as well as in the west—are going to get out and vote as never before. There are two reasons for this. One is that they relieve in President Roosevelt and the fundamental principles of the New Deal and have confidence in his leadership.

Chances are the pill will be swallowed without too much protest. Mussolini's calling of Britain's bluff on Ethiopia was a terrible blow to British pride, and current international tension over the Spanish situation is a good sales argument for speeding up rearmament.

BUZZING: The British Air Ministry probably will deluge American manufacturers with orders for military airplanes before long—but it hasn't done so yet. Even the widely circulated announcement that 300 planes have already been ordered from the Boeing Canadian branch factory in Vancouver is called premature by insiders.

The big splash of publicity along this line is rated a trial balloon to test British public sentiment. The British government is confronted by the problem of rushing construction of it projected new air force without offending too flagrantly the patriotic sensibilities of British manufacturers and unemployed citizens.

HE WENT forward quickly to meet her. At that moment he was only conscious of one thing—a feeling of tremendous relief and thankfulness that she was saved. "Ruth!" he exclaimed.

She stopped, looked at him for a moment, gave a little gasp of astonishment. Her face looked pale and tired, and there were dark lines beneath her eyes. But at the sound of Mahony's voice her face seemed to light up; her drooping figure straightened. For a moment she stared at him; then, with a little exclamation of happiness she stepped forward quickly, holding out both her hands.

"Oh, Terence, it is you, isn't it? Terence, I knew you'd help me. I didn't see how you could, but I knew you would somehow. Terence . . ."

He took both her hands in his and pressed them hard. The sight of her pale, tired face, in contrast with the happiness shining in her eyes, the accents of complete and utter trust in him in her voice, affected him strangely. At that moment he had no thought for Miss Little or anybody except Ruth.

Deep in his heart he knew that, though he might search the whole world, he could never find anybody else who would stand by him more loyally, trust him more completely, be a better friend and companion for him than she would. Nothing mattered just then except that she was safely with him again.

As if it were the most natural action in the world he drew her close, put one arm round her, and held her close to him. She sighed, and let her head rest for a moment on his shoulder.

"I'm so tired . . . and so glad to be with you again," she said. "I'm glad, too," said Mahony. There were dozens of things that he wanted to say, but he could find no words to say them. There was no need to say them. The grip of his arm encircling her, the expression in his eyes as they looked down into hers, were all she wanted at that moment. She smiled.

"I'm in an awful mess," she said happily. "Most likely the police are after me—I expect you know all about that. But I don't care. I don't mind what happens now."

"All this is very pretty and touching, but, if you remember, you promised to let me go when Miss Fraser was restored to you," came Lawson's cold, sneering voice from the office behind them. "At the risk of interrupting this charming scene, may I ask you to keep your promise."

His words brought Mahony down to earth with a sudden jerk, reminding him of the position in which he and Ruth were placed. True, they were together again, but their outlook could hardly be called bright. Every policeman in London was on the lookout for Ruth, while he himself was by no means cleared of suspicion in the murder of Mr. Little.

For the moment he ignored Lawson's interruption and spoke to Ruth; he spoke with a deliberate purpose, meaning Lawson to hear. (Copyright, 1936, Hugh Clevely)

Lawson gets a painful kick in an appropriate place, tomorrow.

"But this is not going to be the case in this election. For the Democrats in every section of the state—in the eastern counties as well as in the west—are going to get out and vote as never before. There are two reasons for this. One is that they relieve in President Roosevelt and the fundamental principles of the New Deal and have confidence in his leadership.

Chances are the pill will be swallowed without too much protest. Mussolini's calling of Britain's bluff on Ethiopia was a terrible blow to British pride, and current international tension over the Spanish situation is a good sales argument for speeding up rearmament.

BUZZING: The British Air Ministry probably will deluge American manufacturers with orders for military airplanes before long—but it hasn't done so yet. Even the widely circulated announcement that 300 planes have already been ordered from the Boeing Canadian branch factory in Vancouver is called premature by insiders.

HE WENT forward quickly to meet her. At that moment he was only conscious of one thing—a feeling of tremendous relief and thankfulness that she was saved. "Ruth!" he exclaimed.

She stopped, looked at him for a moment, gave a little gasp of astonishment. Her face looked pale and tired, and there were dark lines beneath her eyes. But at the sound of Mahony's voice her face seemed to light up; her drooping figure straightened. For a moment she stared at him; then, with a little exclamation of happiness she stepped forward quickly, holding out both her hands.

"Oh, Terence, it is you, isn't it? Terence, I knew you'd help me. I didn't see how you could, but I knew you would somehow. Terence . . ."

He took both her hands in his and pressed them hard. The sight of her pale, tired face, in contrast with the happiness shining in her eyes, the accents of complete and utter trust in him in her voice, affected him strangely. At that moment he had no thought for Miss Little or anybody except Ruth.

Deep in his heart he knew that, though he might search the whole world, he could never find anybody else who would stand by him more loyally, trust him more completely, be a better friend and companion for him than she would. Nothing mattered just then except that she was safely with him again.

As if it were the most natural action in the world he drew her close, put one arm round her, and held her close to him. She sighed, and let her head rest for a moment on his shoulder.

"I'm so tired . . . and so glad to be with you again," she said. "I'm glad, too," said Mahony. There were dozens of things that he wanted to say, but he could find no words to say them. There was no need to say them. The grip of his arm encircling her, the expression in his eyes as they looked down into hers, were all she wanted at that moment. She smiled.

"I'm in an awful mess," she said happily. "Most likely the police are after me—I expect you know all about that. But I don't care. I don't mind what happens now."

"All this is very pretty and touching, but, if you remember, you promised to let me go when Miss Fraser was restored to you," came Lawson's cold, sneering voice from the office behind them. "At the risk of interrupting this charming scene, may I ask you to keep your promise."

His words brought Mahony down to earth with a sudden jerk, reminding him of the position in which he and Ruth were placed. True, they were together again, but their outlook could hardly be called bright. Every policeman in London was on the lookout for Ruth, while he himself was by no means cleared of suspicion in the murder of Mr. Little.

For the moment he ignored Lawson's interruption and spoke to Ruth; he spoke with a deliberate purpose, meaning Lawson to hear. (Copyright, 1936, Hugh Clevely)

Decreased Number Of Forest Blazes During September

Only 45 Fires Shown For Period in Contrast With 71 Previous Month and 117 in July

Raleigh, Oct. 27.—Forest fire fighters of North Carolina who have been hard pressed virtually throughout the year were given a "breather" in organized counties in September when the smallest number of fires and the least damage since the first month in the year were recorded, according to a report issued today by the Department of Conservation and Development.

Only 45 fires were shown during September in contrast with 71 the previous month and 117 during July. A record number of flames in the forests of cooperating counties was shown in May when wardens were called upon to suppress 1,067.

Damages to woodlands from fires amounted to only $11,817 in September compared with $24,798 in August and $26,576 in July. Heaviest forest fire damage for the year was the $144,988 reported in May while the lightest was $4,315.

Area burned over by the "Red Demon" in September was 5,558 acres, somewhat higher than the 3,177 in January but materially lower than the peak for the year of 84,350 in May.

As judged by the report, recreationists are gaining a greater appreciation of the ill effects of forest fires. Of the 45 flames in the woodlands experienced in the 57 cooperating counties in September, none are charged against campers, hunters, and fishermen. Careless smokers are blamed with the greatest destruction of forest lands during the month, being charged with 23 of the 45 fires.

TAR HEELS HOLD BIG EDGE IN ANCIENT GRID SERIES Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 27.—The University of North Carolina, which plays host to North Carolina State's eleven in the Tar Heel's Homecoming Day feature here Saturday, holds a big edge in the ancient rivalry which dates back to 1894. The Tar Heels have won 20 games, lost three and tied five. There were two games played in 1894 with Carolina winning on both occasions, 44 to 0 and 16 to 0. State's first win came in 1920. The score was 13 to 3.

for nothing but empty Republican promises. "A second reason is that they want to make the Democratic majority so large this time for both the state and national tickets that the Republicans will no longer be able to persuade Republican National Headquarters that there is a chance for them to carry North Carolina, even if Hoover did carry the state in 1928.

"The result is that both the state and national tickets are going to get one of the biggest Democratic majorities ever cast in North Carolina."

OIL-PLATING DONE HERE (BUT BE SURE YOU READ ALL THE OTHER WINTER OIL ADS, TOO) You will find most of the emphasis these days, on oil that flows freely. Well and good. You SHOULD use your correct Winter grade, but . . . You can see that the more freely any oil flows, the more freely it FLOWS DOWN OFF the pistons, cylinders, and other parts when you stop. Then in starting up cold, where is mere free-flowing oil? It is waiting to be pumped up on the job. And even in much warmer weather than this—according to engineering opinion—those oil-starved waits can cost you more engine wear than all the rest of your driving! But this Winter with free-flowing Germ Processed oil, you can have your engine Oil-Plated . . . much more than a change to OUR Conoco Germ Processed oil . . . really a change to unbroken Winter lubrication for YOUR engine. It may stand cold for hours—days—weeks. Yet the slippy Oil-Plating formed only by patented Germ Processed oil, will always be UP IN ADVANCE. Pistons slip easily. Starter spins. Oil-Plated engine obliges—and lives the good life, on a stingy diet of Conoco Germ Processed oil, Continental Oil Company GERM PROCESSED OIL

Farm Bureau Federation Expected To Show Power

Reflector Bureau, Six Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Oct. 27.—The North Carolina branch of the American Farm Bureau, though it has not yet made much noise in the state, is likely to be one of the big forces behind the scenes of the coming general assembly and to make plenty of noise and news before the next session of the assembly ends, according to those who have been following its activities for the past few months.

For if the Farm Bureau continues to gather in members and cash during the next few months as it has in the last five or six, many believe that it will not only be one of the most potent, political organizations in the state but that it will also be one of the best financed and hence be able to maintain one of the biggest and most expensive lobbies here during the general assembly, just as it does in Washington.

It is generally conceded that the lobby maintained by the American Farm Bureau in Washington is one of the largest and most powerful in the nation and that Congress has a very healthy fear of its ability to "crack down" if and when it does not do what the Farm bureau wants it to do.

Latest reports concerning the American Farm Bureau's progress in North Carolina is that it already has a membership of 12,000 farmers—at $2 a head—which means that it already should have in its coffers some $24,000 ready to spend in lobbying activities during the forthcoming general assembly.

Other reports, however, are that it hopes to have from 20,000 to 25,000 members by the time the general assembly convenes, which in turn should provide it with between $40,000 and $50,000 for use, if needed, during the coming session of the general assembly. Those who know how sensitive legislative sessions are to the desires of the farmers, even when unorganized and without money to spend for expensive lobbyists, agree that the Farm Bureau, even though it has only 12,000 or 15,000 members, should be able to apply the "heat" when and where needed during the coming general assembly, especially if it is equipped with any where from $25,000 to $50,000 to spend in employing high-powered lobbyists. Political observers here already agree that the Farm Bureau lobby this coming session should equal in power and influence the school lobby, the power lobby, the tobacco lobby, the moving picture lobby or the motor truck lobby, if not surpass them.

Reports are also current that the Farm Bureau is having unusual success in collecting membership fees as well as in getting members, since it not only permits but solicits tobacco warehousemen, merchants and others interested in its objectives to pay for the membership; of many farmers who either cannot or do not want to pay membership due.

"Cover crops" are divided into two main classes: small grains such as wheat, oats, rye and barley, and winter legumes such as clover, vetch and Austrian peas.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

From ootieing highjacker to comic strip piracy—that's the experience of one Tenderloin character whose shady practices have kept him on the alert for detectives for years.

It's an amazing undertaking and, so far, a successful one, and it entails so much gall that one finds it difficult to believe.

I was properly startled when the story was outlined to me. It seems that a certain unethical party has appropriated the characters out of America's most widely read comic strips and had a group of artists transpose them into brochures of erotic literature. The heroes of adventure strips are the prize loot.

These artists fashion their borrowed adventures in all manner of eye-opening affairs, depicting episodes of the most unsavory nature. A racy scrip accompanies the illustrations, and the completed work—one that would wretch the vitals of a Paris peep artist, are hawked to likely-looking customers for a dollar.

The approved method of distribution calls for a staff of "salesmen" to scatter through the streets and approach such individuals as they feel would relish such fare. They rarely are in error, for one slip and the salesman is slapped into jail. Peddling obscene literature is a serious offense in New York. Perhaps it's this fact—the thrill of evasion—that prompts so many to undertake it. It's a "pick-me-up" similar to the stimulus they obtained by highjacking liquor in the pre-repeal era.

The English colony, now gathering in force, is having a season of brisk entertaining on Broadway. Most of the visitors are of the theater and are following tradition by stopping at the Gotham or the Piccadilly. These taverns have long been favorites with guests from London, and almost nightly, after theater hours, you'll find the lobbies reminiscent of any typical hostelry on the Thames.

Linda Watkins' favorite authors are P. G. Wodehouse and Stephen Vincent Benet, and one of her most prized possessions is the former's autograph.

Jack Whiting, who owns a shock of red hair and an even more bountiful supply of freckles than Sinclair Lewis, continually receives Jack Whitney's mail, and Whitney is eternally being handed letters addressed to Whiting. Although an actor, his favorite player is Doug Fairbanks, Jr., which is keeping it in the family. Whiting is married to young Fairbank's mother.

Earlier in the year it seemed as if pinole had staged a comeback, but the flurry has passed and the old standbys—bridge, poker and chess—are the only games that are socially safe. A few die-hards play pinole in the older districts. David Warfield, one of the wealthiest actors in the world, likes a game now and then, and William Keefe, the playwright, gives it an occasional whirl. But it is doubtful if it will ever exercise the influence it did a decade ago. It has gradually retreated until now it is a rarity, such as good fellowship or gratitude on Broadway.

College Students Hear Address On Spanish Conflict

Dr. A. D. Frank Discusses International Aspects of Civil War Waged Throughout Spain

"The Spanish Revolution and Its International Aspects" was the subject of Dr. A. D. Frank's talk to the student body at the assembly period yesterday.

"The Spanish revolution is a major revolution, he said, as it has been estimated that the death rates reaches two hundred thousand and that Spain's losses financially run up into billions of dollars. It is also a very peculiar revolution, since most revolutions are brought about by radical elements and the Spanish Revolution was brought about by conservative elements, and this makes a counter-revolution—a revolution against revolution.

He explained the change through which Spain's government has gone during the last few years, showing how, with every change the government has made, it has become more radical. Many feared that if it changed any more it would become communistic like that of Russia. This was alarming especially to the property-holding classes, and as a result, they conspired with the military leaders, and most of the troops came over to the side of the revolutionists.

Dr. Frank explained the difference between the terms "communism" and "fascism." The former is one that gives that lands and property of a country over to the government, and the latter as a government that is run almost entirely by one person.

The greatest danger at present, he believes, is the possibility, that other nations will be drawn into the war and that it will develop into another world war, and he thinks it probable that the next war will be between ideas instead of nations.

So far as the United States is concerned, he thinks it is very fortunate that the present administration has stated clearly its neutrality and that the press and the public seem to be neutral also.

PAGEANT OF STYLES TO BE GIVEN AT STATE UNIVERSITY

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 28.—The fashion pageant to be presented by members of the Alpha Kappa Gamma sorority at the University of North Carolina Thursday and Friday nights of this week will include powdered wig, hoop skirts, and the bustling Gibson girl in addition to the exhibition of modern fashions.

Various genres of the pageant will include dress, dances and songs from 1776 to 1936, with a later presentation of fall and winter styles by ten Carolina coeds.

Nancy Smith, of Chapel Hill, pianist, and Albin Pikuti, of New Britain, Conn., violinist, will furnish the music for the minut, Virginia Reel, and square dance, while a radio will supply the rhythm of syncopation for the 1936 scene.

Minneapolis (AP)—Things usually turn out for the best—or Bernie Bierman, Minnesota grid coach, should think so. Julius Alfnese was ineligible last season, which would have been his last year to play. So things looked dark for the Gophers. But the Gophers went through the 1935 season unbeaten, anyway. Now Halfback Alfnese is back—and is one of the most important members of the 1936 Gopher machine.
