South Carolina Chairman Says Tar Heel Board Chiefly Interested in Temperance

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Four members of the North Carolina state commission to study the control of alcoholic beverages conferred with the state tax commission today on South Carolina's liquor law enacted in 1935.

Chairman W. G. Query said the South Carolina commission explained the merits and workings of the state law as fully as possible. The North Carolina board is investigating comparative features of several state liquor control systems.

"The North Carolina chairman, Query commented, 'seem to be concerned primarily with the promotion of temperance. They seem to put this foremost in their study of the situation as well as of course, consideration of the revenue factors.'

The four commissioner chairman: Victor S. Bryant of Durham, R. F. Beasley of Monroe, Donald Gilliam of Tarboro and Charles A. Hines, of Greensboro, intimated that they were finding their quest a difficult one.

Under the South Carolina system the state licenses private liquor dealers and keeps their stores under strict supervision. Revenues exceeding $1,000,000 a year and is divided among the states, counties and municipalities with the state getting 65 per cent.

Local Party Chieftains Expect Big Vote In Pitt

No Precinct Meetings To Be Held in County Tonight

Although more Democratic oratory is expected to spout and flow in North Carolina tonight than ever before in political history, Pitt county officials agree that they already have their Election Day plans well mapped out and a heavy vote was expected next Tuesday.

W. E. Hooks, chairman of the Pitt county Executive committee, said that he expected from 8,000 to 8,500 Democratic tickets to be cast in the county. He added that he did not figure the Republicans would garner more than 500 ballots.

In 1932 approximately 8,000 votes were cast for President Roosevelt, while about 7,800 Pitt county Democrats supported Governor Ehringhaus.

Decision not to hold meetings in each precinct was decided by the county committee since a number of prominent men in Democratic ranks, have visited various sections of the county and urged the voters to go out to the polls.

Chairman Hooker said the committee decided to leave with each township the task of arranging to get voters to the polls next Tuesday. He said each community would provide transportation and urge voters to cast ballots in support of the national, state, county and township tickets.

While Pitt Democrats feel that they have their own county in order, meeting will be held in precincts of most other counties tonight.

J. Wallace Winborne, State chairman, said one of the principal reasons for holding the meetings was so that people in their own communities could hear the issues of the campaign explained and discussed in terms which they understood. Chairman Hooks said he felt the Pitt county Democrats already understood the campaign and would turn out in large numbers on Election Day.

Mrs. Darden Goes Fishing; Husband Just Tags Along

Another Greenville citizen—this time a woman—makes a grand slam at the popular sport of fishing and in so doing left her husband behind the eight ball.

Judge W. A. Darden is a close follower of the sport and while he has closed his summer home at Atlantic Beach, every time he gets a chance he motors down to Morehead and enjoys a few hours of the pastime.

Yesterday the judge persuaded his wife to accompany him and Judge L. G. Cooper on a fishing expedition. Mrs. Darden was not so enthusiastic over the trip, but finally consented to join the party—probably to keep peace in the family.

Now Judge Darden respects the abilities of his wife for many professions, but he has never known to have gone around bragging about her fishing ability.

LEAF AVERAGE HOLDS GROUND

Steady Incline in Season's Figures Is Maintained

Offerings were light on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday, compared with recent auctions, but prices continued strong and the season's general average made another gain.

Wednesday's offerings of 535,638 pounds brought a total of $140,479.92, an official average of $262.22 for the day.

The sales brought offerings for the season to 36,831,722 pounds. Money paid out by the 10 warehouses this fall now stands at a total of $8,906,394.37. The season's average, which has shown a steady incline without a single daily exception for the past several weeks, now stands at $24.18.

It was estimated that three-quarters of a million pounds of tobacco was on the floors today with prices appearing to be strong.

Money paid out on the market this season—$2,906,394.37—is nearly equal to the amount for last year, despite the fact that offerings continue to run approximately 5,000,000 pounds behind those of last year, due to the much shorter crop.

President Suggests It Might Be Well For Some Dissatisfied to Leave Nation

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt reiterated today that a "handful" of employers were spreading pay envelopes "propaganda" against the social security act and linked with it a suggestion that it "might be well for them to move to some other nations in which they have greater faith."

Speaking in Wilkes Barre's miners park on John Mitchell day—set aside to honor the leader of the union movement among miners—the President said:

"Today we aim to make the public conscious that the welfare of labor is the welfare of all."

But for the most part he spoke of the social security act and its system of old age pensions and unemployment insurance, contending that some employers were trying to "mislead and coerce labor" with regard to it.

"They seek repeal of the act the President said, because under it they have to put up three dollars to the workers' one to pay for the pensions and insurance."

"These propagandists," he added, "are driven in their desperation to the contemptible, unpatriotic suggestion that some future congress will steal these insurance funds for other purposes."

"If they really believe what they say in the pay envelopes they have no confidence in our form of government or its permanence. It might be well for them to move to some other nation in which they have greater faith."

The President was making his second drive for Pennsylvania's 36 electoral votes. From Wilkes Barre his route led to Harrisburg.

Attorney Insists School Test Case To Be Heard Here

Eli Bloom Says Hearing Set For Burgh November 2 Does Not Affect Case Regarding His Child

Eli Bloom, local attorney, said today that his case against the State School Commission will be heard following another test case against the Commission scheduled to take place in Burgh, November 2.

The case to be tried at that time is one of J. H. Burnette, who secured a temporary restraining order prohibiting E. M. Thompson, Burgh school principal, from preventing the Burnette child to enter school.

Bloom pointed out that the State School Commission expects to settle his question by the test case of Burnette, and added that his case would be heard regardless of the decision made on the Burnette case. Bloom continued that his case and the Burnette case are individual and entirely different.

In discussing the variation of the cases, it was brought out by the local attorney, that after his child, who was six years old on Monday of this week, started to school, a temporary restraining order had to be secured before his child could remain in school, and concluded by saying that school authorities tried to keep the Burnette child from entering school.

New Jersey Republicans Reply to Hopkins' Statement

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Treasury and Works Progress administration were charged with giving out false information about the operation and expenditures of the WPA in a statement filed in Federal District court here today by New Jersey Republicans.

In a "reversé" filed with the court by way of reply to statement by Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, the Republicans who are seeking access to WPA records said that regardless of whether the reports are "incorrect and misleading or no, the petitioners are entitled to access to such information as will permit them to check such reports and statements."

The New Jersey group, led by former ambassador Walter Edge, is seeking a court order to compel Hopkins to make public the records including the payroll on which the administrative statements have been based.

In their plea they said "the real issue in the case is whether the public has the right of access to the sources upon which reports and statements of a division of the government are based" or whether the public must "rest content with whatever statements and reports are made by those who have control of the sources of information."

Largest Crowds in History Visiting Pitt Exposition

The strains of Merdelsohn's wedding march will be heard at the Pitt county fair grounds tonight when a couple will be married on the stage in front of the grandstand immediately after the regular program of stage attractions.

The largest crowd of the fair is expected to be on hand tonight when the couple is united, with the American Legion sponsored fair association paying all expenses.

The largest crowd ever to attend a fair in this county was on hand last night and today the grounds were filled to even greater capacity than last night.

The agricultural exhibits are attracting much attention this year, the best displays being exhibited in the history of fairs in this county.

The Kaus United shows are presenting one of the best midways offered in the entire state this year. A number of rides, including some never before brought to this city, are busy right and day taking grown-ups as well as children for rides.

A variety of shows also are entertaining to both young and old, cover the midway. The show are receiving much favorable comment from patrons this year, with the monkey show one of the best on the road.

The stage attraction in front of the grandstand each afternoon and night present a program of daring and skillful feats.

Officials of the two American Legion posts in the county already are expressing satisfaction at having gone into the fair business to provide Pitt county with a good fair by and for the people of this section.

Spanish Official Warns Europe Of Serious Conflict

Secretary Holds Charges Unsound

London, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Sounding firm on Spanish non-intervention, foreign secretary Anthony Eden told the British House of Commons today "not a single one of the Soviet charges against the Portuguese government" has been proved.

Rus's, contending Portugal has been a base for Italo-German shipments of war materials to Spanish fascist insurgents, has asked for a neutral naval blockade of Portuguese ports.

The young foreign secretary faced down bellicent opposition to defend his government's stand for non intervention with the declaration that any other policy might have set Europe on fire.

Eden, as the bitter Spanish issue shifted from the cloak room to British House of Commons hall pointed out the "hands off Spain," was still functioning and that its chief complaint, Russia still was a member.

Spanish Embassy At Paris Announces It Has Confidential Information That Italian Submarines Are Awaiting Orders To Establish Blockade

(By Associated Press)

Paris, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Spanish embassy announced today it had confidential information that a fleet of Italian submarines were awaiting orders at Gaeta, Italy, to establish a blockade of the Catalan coast and perhaps attack the Spanish government stronghold.

An embassy spokesman, warning that the civil war on the Iberian peninsula might at any moment break out into a grave international conflict, said the information came from "an absolutely trustworthy source."

Eight submarines, he contended, had been painted with the red and gold colors of the Spanish insurgents at Gaeta, 40 miles northwest of Naples.

"We do not know what pretext will be used to put the fleet into action," said the spokesman, "but our information is that the action will start within a week."

He said the submarines may join in a combined sea and air attack on autonomous government supporters.

Earlier the newspaper L'oeuvre said Italy and Germany were supporting Spanish insurgent plans to attack Catalonia, the "second seat" of the Spanish socialist government in case Madrid falls.

The newspaper said preparations for the attack were being hastened at Mammora, "largely supported by Italian and even German forces. The newspaper also declared the insurgents had recently received 112 bombing and pursuit planes.

Fertilizer Plant Destroyed By Fire Will Be Replaced

J. H. Blount, President of Firm, Announces New and Modern Factory to Be Completed Shortly

J. H. Blount, president of the Blount Fertilizer company, announced today the company was going ahead with plans to erect a new plant to replace the factory which burned down three weeks ago.

The new plant will cost approximately $50,000 by the time it is completed and equipped, Mr. Blount estimated. Only new and modern equipment will be installed, he added, "so we can provide farmers of this section with the best fertilizer mixtures available."

Construction of the plant is expected to get under way in the near future as the president of the firm said he wanted to be ready to take care of farmers by the time they need their first order of fertilizer.

It was predicted that the plant would be in full operation within two months as farmers soon would be needing fertilizer for their plant beds.

The new factory will have a capacity of from 15,000 to 20,000 tons per season. None of the old equipment will be used, it was announced, as everything in the plant will be new and strictly modern.

The organization was formed four years ago and has enjoyed a good business since it began operations. The destroyed plant was said to have been one of the best little factories in the state.

College Heads To Confer On Criticism Of Ericson

Pending these conferences, which he planned immediately upon his return from a trip to the western part of the state, Dr. Graham declined to comment on the situation which aroused complaints by alumni and some caustic comment in the state press.

MADRID FEELS ON EVEN TERM

Government Says It Has Everything It Needs for Victory

Paris, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Informed Spanish sources tonight said a new government army, equipped with Russian tanks and planes, has been gathered at the southeastern cities of Albacete and Alicante to attack the rear of insurgent armies in time to save Madrid.

With the vanguard of the fascist V-shaped thrust within 10 miles of Madrid, insurgent commanders girded today for the final attack.

But at Madrid Spain's government announced cryptically it had "everything necessary for victory," a phrase generally interpreted to mean the defenders of Madrid had obtained sufficient tanks, airplanes and other war materials to meet insurgent besiegers on even terms.

Premier Larga Caballero, in a proclamation to the militia forces, called upon the troops to make a supreme effort to drive the insurgents from the Madrid area and said: "The government now has tanks and aviation."

The premier's assurances imparted a distinct atmosphere of optimism to residents who had feared the insurgents so far superior aerial equipment.

Heavy artillery, field pieces and anti-aircraft batteries were being wheeled to the front lines by the insurgents to hammer Madrid fortifications when the "big push" starts.

On the highway between Madrid and Navalcarnero advance squads of insurgents reached the vicinity of Alcorcon, eight miles southwest of the beleaguered city after seizing Mostoles, last "vital" point in the

PACK HOLDING SECRET DRILL

Four Regulars Hurt in Battle Against V. P. I.

Raleigh, October 2.—A battered Wolfpack of North Carolina State will work behind closed doors this week as it labors to shape its attack for Saturday's Southern Conference and Big Five game with the big and powerful Carolina Tar Heels in Kenan Stadium.

State's freshmen will work with the varsity as Coach Hunk Anderson has had them familiarize themselves with the Carolina plays that they might run them against the varsity. The Techlets used Carolina's own offense to score a 41-0 win last week over the Tar Heel freshmen at Chapel Hill.

Anderson said this morning that he might call for a short scrimmage this afternoon if his players are in condition for rough work. The game last Saturday with V. P. I. put five monogram players—four of them regulars—on the shelf.

The injured men are Eddie Entwistle, Cowboy Robinson, and Nick Hayden, halfbacks, and Cecil Browne and Dan Pilgrimo, guards. Their absences have greatly reduced State's strength and Coach Anderson was found wondering today how many touchdowns these injuries to a spotted Carolina. It is true, Anderson said, that all of the players except Entwistle may play, but none of them will be at their best as it will be several days before they can report for work if they report at all.

HEELS EXPECT TOUGH BATTLE

Coach Says N.C. State Has Improved 100 Per Cent

Chapel Hill, October 29.—The Wolfpack of North Carolina State, hitting the comeback trail with decisive victories over Furman and V. P. I., is coming to Chapel Hill as Carolina's Homecoming Day grid antagonist, determined to spoil the Tar Heels' clean state in State and Southern Conference competition.

The Techs looked as good as they did against Duke last fall, commented Coach Chuck Erickson, who scouted the State-V. P. I. game in Raleigh Saturday, which the big Red and White team won 13 to 0.

"They have improved a hundred per cent since the season started," said Coach Erickson. Their blocking and tackling were consistently good and their running and passing of high caliber.

"I was particularly impressed with the play of their two ends, Captain Mac Cara and Connie Mac Berry," Coach Erickson continued. Cara was one of the best linemen on the field and his defensive performance was particularly brilliant. Berry's pass snagging was another feature of the State offense.

The punting of Barde, Gadd, and Entwistle was as good as I have seen this year. It is unfortunate that Entwistle, their regular right halfback will not be able to play Saturday. He's a fine ball player. Yes, Carolina will have its hands full Saturday and you are going to see a real ball game," Coach Erickson concluded.

The Tar Heels came out of the Tulane scrap, which the Greenies won 21 to 7, in good shape. However, Coach Wolf announced that only Cernugie, sophomore star, suffering from injuries sustained in the Tennessee game, would still not be available for Saturday's game.

Local Colored Eleven to Meet Craven Team

The Greenville Industrial High School grid team will meet New Bern High on the Fifth Street Gridiron at 3 o'clock Friday.

The locals are determined to break New Bern's lucky streak of games. The locals have gained new strength and determination after holding the strong Williamson High school team of Wilmington to a close score Friday.

The probable lineup for the locals: C. Edwards, Guard; Barnhill and G. Bell, tackles; J. Garrett and I. Garrett, ends; S. Payton and R. Maye, backs; Hill, G. Maye, C. Cherry and J. Godette.

The following players will be ready to do their part when called upon: B. Cherry, S. Harris, F. Bell, W. Wilkins, Wm. Ebron, "Ball-O-Fire."

This will be the last game played until Thanksgiving when the locals will meet the Greens County Training School team from Snow Hill.

OUTSTANDING KICKERS TO OPPOSE EACH OTHER SAT.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 29.—Two of the state's outstanding kickers match boots here Saturday when the Wolfpack and Tar Heels clash in Carolina's Homecoming Day attraction. Howard Barde, the chap who outpunted Duke's brilliant Ace Parker last fall, is State's kicking artist while Tom Burnette, who averaged 45 yards per kick against Tulane Saturday, is the Tar Heels' punting leader.

The combination of a perfect play under dramatic circumstances to produce a cherished victory comes rarely in the life of a football coach. But Leonard (Stub) Allison, head coach at the University of California, had that experience a couple of seasons ago, and says it will remain the brightest spot in his store of gridiron memories.

The play, a 42-yard dash for a touchdown by Arleigh Williams, sparking Golden Bear halfback, produced a 7-2 victory for California, the first in five years over the Trojans of Southern California, one of the Bears' bitterest rivals. To add to the drama of the occasion the victory in a way was a message of courage from the players to "Navy Bill" Ingram, then California coach, who had been called away suddenly by the death of his mother.

"I was picked to take charge of the team in Bill's absence," says Allison, who was then Ingram's first assistant. "I tried to impress upon the boys that our off-tackle play might be stopped at the line of scrimmage or might go for 10 yards but that if it was perfectly executed that everyone did his part it would go for a touchdown."

"The perfect play came after Williams had tried a number of end runs."

"On this play, Arleigh took the ball in the 'tailback' position, running to the right. One back and the end blocked the U. S. C. tackle in; another back and guard blocked the end out; the other back went thru to block the secondary."

"Our linemen on the side, away from the play held their blocks just long enough before releasing them to go down the field. Because we had been using end runs right along the Southern California secondary swung over rapidly to meet such a play."

"But this time Williams cut back sharply and literally passed them running in the opposite direction behind the screen of linemen who had released their blocks."

"It was 42 yards to a touchdown, and hardly a tackler was within 10 yards of Williams after he crossed the line of scrimmage."

Theft of the ball right from the hands of the passer and the subsequent dash for a touchdown gave Lawrence (Stu) Lewis, youthful coach of the San Francisco Dons, his big thrill.

"The play was so unexpected and startling I almost fell off the bench," recalls Lewis, one of whose boys performed the feat. His description is told in the light of what actually occurred.

It happened in 1933 when his San Francisco eleven was battling Stanford, Lewis' alma mater, where he played quarterback and halfback under "Pop" Warner, and that added to the thrill.

"Stanford was on about its 40 or 45-yard line," Lewis describes the play, "and Bill Sim, playing half for Stanford, dropped back to pass."

"Jim Barber, one of our tackle," and Hennie Goldberg, another lineman, broke through into the backfield. Instead of tackling Sim, Barber grabbed the ball right out of his hand and ran to a touchdown. That was in the second quarter, enabled us to tie the score 7-7 and put us back in the middle of the ball game."

In point of fact, it put San Francisco so far back into the ball game that Stanford, then on its way to

DUKE TO PLAY W. AND L. TEAM

Devils to End Card with Four Conference Teams

Durham, October 29.—Duke's Blue Devils go back into the battle in defense of their 1935 Southern conference football crown at Richmond Saturday when they meet Washington and Lee's Generals, 1934 champs and undefeated in loop competition this season.

Starting with the Generals, the Blue Devils face conference foes for the remainder of the season. After Saturday's clash they meet Wake Forest at Wake Forest, North Carolina at Chapel Hill and N. C. State at Durham in order.

Both the Generals and the Blue Devils are unbeaten in conference games this season. Duke holds wins over Davidson, South Carolina and Clemson while Washington and Lee turned back Virginia last Saturday in its only conference clash of the year.

Things line up for a fine battle at Richmond Saturday. Washington and Lee has improved and some early setbacks and should be ready to play its best game against Duke. While the Wademen will enter the game as favorites, it is to be remembered that Duke has had two terrific battles during the past two weeks.

Ryeneska has scored four touchdowns for a total of 24 points in six contests. Ditt has tallied three touchdowns or 18 points at the halfway point of Carolina's ten-game schedule.

Norfolk Division Engages Local Eleven Tomorrow

The East Carolina Pirates will outweigh the eleven from the Norfolk Division of William and Mary 7 pounds to a man when the two teams meet here tomorrow.

The Division starting lineup will average only 155 pounds, against the Pirate 162. The reserves of the Eastern Teachers will outweigh the starting lineup 12 pounds to the man, averaging 174.

Coach Farley uses his fastest men on the Pirate's first string. He believes that Primrose Carpenter is one of the speediest guards in the state, and that he would hold a first string position on any of the Big Five teams.

The Norfolk eleven, will be a slight favorite for tomorrow's contest because of their three victories against one defeat this year. The Pirates bowed to W. C. T. C. 6-7 in the only game they have played this fall.

Last year the Pirates edged a 10-6 decision over the William and Mary eleven, for the Division's only defeat, in eleven games last year.

His first cartoon to appear in a New York newspaper had Ekanor Holm Jarrett, a childhood friend, as its subject. Pap likes to draw pictures of girls—"makes life worth while," he says.

Football is his favorite subject for action, boxing and swimming for the opportunities to depict anatomy. Horses are liked, too.

"To most people horses look alike," he says. "To me a thoroughbred has more expression than the average athlete has. Trainers and handlers of horses can't be fooled. They go by markings, confirmation and so on."

Babe Ruth, roly-poly body, thin ankles.

Primo Carnera, satchel feet and snaggle teeth.

Gene Tunney, close-cropped hair in style started by Corbett.

Benny Leonard, slick hair.

Jack Dempsey, beetle brows and badger haircut.

Dozens of requests come to Pap for original drawings, usually from youngsters.

But he finds hard-bitten professionals, like Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, are just anxious to obtain pictures of themselves.

An office boy who begs the original of his heroes and has them autographed once presented a Pap cartoon of Babe Ruth to the Bambino, who liked the drawing so well he kept it. Nothing to do but draw another one for the youngster—which Pap did.

Returns from Charlotte

The finest Chevrolets in the country's quarter-century of automobile manufacture will make their bow here and throughout the country on November 7, W. S. Stafford, manager of the White Chevrolet Co., Chevrolet dealers, announced today upon his return from Charlotte, where one thousand dealers, sales managers and salesmen from North Carolina obtained official news of the new product from T. D. Hunter, manager of the Charlotte zone and members of his staff.

Mr. Hunter has just returned from Detroit, where 1,000 members of Chevrolet's wholesale organization from coast to coast spent four days inspecting and driving the new car and reviewing with factory executives the program to be followed in presenting it. The new models adhere closely to time-tried Chevrolet engineering principles, he reported, but combine greater power, economy, safety and durability with striking new beauty and grace.

M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of Chevrolet, announced during the convention that the company had shattered all previous records, during 1936, selling more cars and more trucks than in any previous year in its history, and leading the world in sales for the seventh time in the last 10 years. The total for the year will exceed 1,125,000 units, he said, and the object for 1937 is 1,200,000.

End of the Century Club

Mrs. J. L. Little, in her usual charming manner, entertained the members of the End of the Century Club Tuesday afternoon, October 27th at her home on West Fifth street. Dahlias in beautiful fall colors decorated the rooms where the members gathered for the second meeting of the club year.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. A. D. Frank. After the routine business was disposed of the president, in a very touching way, expressed the sorrow of the club in the loss of a most valuable member, Mrs. Charles Laughinghouse.

The book committee added a feature to the program which was most enjoyable. In order to give the members a little glimpse into the new books and their authors, Mrs. C. A. White gave a short preview of some of the books selected by the book committee.

After the business session the program committee presented Mrs. L. R. Meadows whose subject was "Historic Places in North Carolina." In her interesting manner Mrs. Meadows told of the settlement of Roanoke Island and the building of Fort Raleigh. After telling many interesting things about various historic places in the East, she passed to the parts of the State and carried her listeners as far west as Kings Mountain.

The paper by Mrs. Meadows aroused so much interest that the listeners joined in a regular round table discussion of historic places near Greenville.

After a delicious salad course and a most delightful social hour, the club adjourned.

AGENCY AIDING EHRINGHAUS IN LARGE NUMBER PENNSYLVANIA

More Than 800,000 Families Receiving Help

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Oct. 29.—The Resettlement Administration is now assisting more than 800,000 rural families through the various divisions of its organization, it was announced here today by Regional Director George S. Mitchell, in charge of Resettlement activities in North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky. A total of 765,000 farm families are receiving loan and grant aid under the rural rehabilitation service, while 55,000 heads of families are employed on various works projects under the supervision of the Resettlement Administration. The rehabilitation aid extended to date has amounted to $106,000,000.

The land reclamation program of Resettlement Administration is also providing employment for a large number of men, with approximately 40,000 persons, including 3,500 Civilian Conservation Corps workers now engaged in clearing up forests, checking land erosion, building wild life refuges and developing recreational areas. It was pointed out that some 16,000 men are employed in the construction of Resettlement homes and farm buildings, thousands of which have been completed and are now being lived in. Director Mitchell said. These figures do not include the men who had been working on 46 Resettlement projects which were transferred to the National Park Service on August 1. It was pointed out. Approximately 15,000 more persons were working on those projects.

Here in North Carolina, the Resettlement Administration is employing about 4,000 people and this will be increased to 5,000 within the next few months to 5,000 or more. Director Mitchell said. Two large farm units are already well under way and one nearly completed, which will provide homes for 550 farm families while several other large farm homestead projects are in contemplation. If all of the projects now contemplated Administration in North Carolina are carried through to completion, they will provide for 1,132 farm families.

Dr. Meadows Attends Meeting in Charlotte

President L. R. Meadows, of East Carolina Teachers College, accompanied by Mrs. Meadows went to Charlotte today to attend an educational meeting at which plans will be laid for the development of the State schools and colleges in the State for the next biennium. A number of the college presidents are attending the meeting.

Dr. L. R. Meadows will speak at the Gardner high school Friday evening, October 30. Doctor Meadows talk will be addressed to the parents and the high school students of the community.

Oliver Goldsmith, author of "The Vicar of Wakefield," was held prisoner by his landlady while Dr. Samuel Johnson peddled the novel—and sold it for him.

Oliver Goldsmith is referred to as the only author in English literature who has written a great novel, a great play and a great poem. The titles are: "The Vicar of Wakefield," "She Stoops to Conquer," and "The Deserted Village."

matters," says Baker, as the others attempt to take the play away from the president. "A lot of girls who marry the light of their lives find that the light goes out every evening. What is to be done?"

"I move we adjourn," says Colonel Stoopnagle brightly.

"I second the motion," echoes Budd Hulick.

"I move we ask Stoopnagle and Hulick to hand in their resignations," suggests Eddie East.

"Just to make it unanimous," calls Ralph Dumke, "I move the club disband."

Baker finally restores order. "It is now time for our annual gag-of-the-week contest. The winner will receive two traveling bags. For the person who submits the poorest gag, we offer two tickets to my next broadcast—and the winner MUST attend!"

"Have you heard," Eddie East inquires, "about the amateur radio operator who was stranded on a raft at sea? He signalled passing ships via the short-wave system! 'Haw, haw!'"

The room is strangely silent. The lights go out. When they come on again, East is not present.

"Now it's my turn," cried Budd. "Have you heard about the prize fighter who quit the ring and got a job in an office? They fired him after the first week because he couldn't get up before ten . . ."

The judges are bitter, but Budd is allowed to stay.

This goes on for hours. Only Dumke, Budd, Baker, and Fred Allen are left. They ballot for first prize, but as everybody votes for themselves the contest is called a draw.

"I know," pipes up Baker. "Let's give the president a dinner set."

"Fine," Allen agrees, "one knife at a time."

There is a roar of approval as the boys eagerly reach for specimens of the hotel's best silverware, but it goes for naught. Phil Baker has taken the air.

Noel Coward has been asked to contribute a skit for the Beatrice Little show, and may do it. Which recalls that skit about Coward two years ago which the dapper Englishman came over from London just to see. He had agreed to pose for photographers on the stage, but after seeing the skit, Noel was peeved. Nor would he permit his photograph to be taken. "I think I shall attempt to cultivate dignity," he remarked dryly. "The trouble with me is, I read Peter Pan when I was too young."

When Eugene Ormandy strolled down the gangplank of the Manhattan recently four unknown young men, hardly out of their teens, stepped forward to greet him. Ormandy has been signed to direct the Philadelphia Symphony for the series of Youth Concerts held annually there and the youthful enthusiasts, at their own expense, came to New York to welcome him. Maestro Ormandy was singularly pleased.

money, but how and when the move will come into the open is a mystery. No Italian loan can be floated in the United States. The new ambassador to Washington, Fulvio Suvich, is supposed to be skirting around the question of adjusting the war debt. If a deal should be made which would show that Italy was no longer in default on its obligations, "or any portion thereof," the way would be open to lift the ban on a flotation of Italian bonds.

A more probable step, according to some observers, is an arrangement whereby American interests will help Italy in exchange for concessions in Ethiopia. This could be done without violating the Johnson act—if the private interests have the money. But if they should attempt to draw the public in they would bump into the Johnson act and the Securities Exchange Commission.

Standard Oil of California is operating not far from Ethiopia. Its experts know that country superficially, and they believe it contains petroleum. James A. Moffett, vice president, recently visited Bahrein Island, Persian Gulf, where the company is operating.

TENURE: The Spanish embassy in Washington is shot to pieces by the home conflict. Its late ambassador was in sympathy with the rebels, and so he was displayed by Mr. de los Rios, who is filling the staff with loyalists. The United States maintains relations with the existing Spanish government, but commerce is almost suspended and there is little to do, now that most Americans have been evacuated.

Overturn of the Madrid government would give rise to the question of recognizing the victors. Normally this would occur without much comment, as the overturn would not be subject to the charge that the new government has gained ascendancy by conquest, as in the case of Manchukuo.

Diplomats, fully expect, however, that European powers will clash over Spain and that possibly war will determine the question of a new government there. In that event Mr. de los Rios may hold his ambassadorship a long time, as the Kerensky ambassador did while Russia was throwing its fits.

ELECTORAL: Gov. Fitzgerald of Michigan probably can find somebody willing to fill the unexpired term—until January 20—of the late Senator Couzens. The appointee would serve fifteen days, while Congress will be in session. But they will be important days, for in that period Congress will canvass and declare the result of the electoral vote.

CONTROL: The motor and bus division of the Interstate Commerce Commission has made considerable progress in evolving regulations covering interstate operations of these utilities. Gradually the railroads are coming under restraint.

Experience in regulating railroads is applied to bus and truck operation. This fact points to much more close supervision than operators have expected. Drivers are to be subject to examination and rates will be standardized. Rebates are ruled out.

Truck concerns operating under contract are allowed to continue, of course, and if genuine—not in the common carrier category—are exempt from certain regulations. On the other hand, they are prohibited from doing business outside their contracts.

Standardization of size and speed of buses and trucks in interstate commerce is in the offing. Questions of taxation are coming up.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has arranged for the police to find out a good deal about Ambrose Lawson's gang of kidnapers and dog runners; he also has captured Lawson, but Terence is not free of suspicion of having killed Vincent Little, whom Lawson really killed. And he fears for the life of Ruth Fraser, his friend. So he bargains to release Lawson in return for Lawson's surrendering Ruth. Ruth has arrived; Terence is speaking to her for Lawson's benefit.

Chapter 33
FATTY KICKS
"WHAT the devil do we care if the police are after us, so long as we're together again," Mahony said. "They haven't caught us yet, and I'm going to take good care they don't catch us."

He turned towards the little office and made a motion to Fatty Basset. "All right, let that man go," he said.

Reluctantly Fatty cut through the cords that bound Lawson; from his expression as he did so it was easy to judge that he would rather have cut Lawson's throat. Lawson stretched his cramped limbs and rose somewhat unsteadily.

"Thank you," he said. "That's much better."

He turned to Mahony and Ruth, who had just entered the little office. "You two seem rather pleased with each other," he observed. "Well, make the most of it while you have the chance, because I don't think your pleasure will last very long. If the police don't get you both, I shall."

With that he turned away with the intention of walking out. But he had only taken a step when a heavy hand fell on his shoulder; he felt himself twisted round to stare into the red, enraged features of Fatty Basset.

"Arf a mo', mister Big Boss," he said thickly. "You fancy yer chance like 'ell, don't yer? You reckon yer're the great big noise 'oo gives the orders to other people obey. Maybe there was something in that a fortnight ago. But that's all finished now. Your number's up, see? An' now 'op it, an' take that for a keepsake."

With that he gave Lawson a shove forward towards the office door, and at the same time thrust out his large right foot in a hearty kick. Lawson shot through the office door as if propelled from a large catapult, pitched forward on his hands and knees, and rolled over twice on the oily garage floor. Then, his face contorted with rage and pain, he rose slowly to his feet.

"I'll—I'll have you killed for this!" he gasped.

"We've 'eard that sort of yarn before, an' it don't cut no ice with us at all," said Fatty Basset jeeringly. "Op it now, before I kick you really 'ard."

Lawson withdrew, with what dignity he could muster. Ruth and Basset and Mahony were left in the office.

Basset sat down on the edge of the table, dangling his legs. He had recovered his temper and was looking cheerful now.

"I reckon we handed Lawson a good old jolt tonight," he remarked. "I don't mind tellin' you I've 'ad one or two anxious moments today. Some of my blokes was a bit windy about buckin' up against the Big Boss. Now they know 'e can be knocked about an' kidnapped, just like anybody else, they won't be scared of 'im no more."

"And his own people won't be so convinced that he can't be beaten, and they may start getting a bit windy in their turn," added Mahony.

HE turned to Ruth. "What happened to you, Ruth?" he asked.

Ruth's story was brief. She had gone to the house in the St. John's Wood Road, and had found the two men Mahony had left there tied up on the floor. Rashly, without bothering to ask questions, she had cut their bonds.

"Wot's that?" exclaimed Fatty Basset. "You've got to go to the Yard in the mornin' and tell 'em wot you know about Miss Fraser? 'Ave you got to take 'er with you?"

"The Inspector didn't say I had to, answered Mahony.

"Right," said Basset promptly. "If you don't know where she is, you can't tell 'im, can yer?"

He turned to Ruth. "You trust yerself to me, Missie I'll hide yer away so that the cops will never find yer."

Ruth shook her head. "Thank you very much, but I'll stay with Terence," she said. "If Inspector Kennedy hadn't let him go tonight, he wouldn't have been able to rescue me; I'm grateful for that. I don't want the Inspector to think that Terence and I have cheated him after he did us a good turn."

"I shan't actually take you with me to Scotland Yard, Ruth," put in Mahony. "But if the Inspector wants to know where you are, I shall have to tell 'im."

She smiled at him. "I'll do exactly what you tell me to," she said.

Fatty Basset shrugged his large shoulders. "Of course, if you blinkin' well insist on givin' yerself up to the cops, there's nobody can stop yer," he remarked gloomily.

Mahony lit a cigaret thoughtfully. "No," he answered. "But things may not turn out so badly as you seem to think they will. Kennedy is clever, and a pretty decent chap too, and I've got a proposition to put to him that may make things a good deal better for us. Anyway, it's no good arguing about it now. We'll have to see what happens at ten to-morrow."

MAHONY was still in disguise when he presented himself at Scotland Yard. Inspector Kennedy looked tired, as if he had spent a sleepless night.

"So you've turned up," he remarked. "You've got a nerve. That was a hell of a show you pulled off at the Golden Centipede Club last night."

"The Golden Centipede Club?" echoed Mahony innocently, as if he had never heard of the place. "Why, what happened there?"

The Inspector smiled with an air of grim satisfaction. "You know damned well what happened there," he replied. "And incidentally that club will not be opening again. We found evidence on the premises that it was one of the principal dope distributing centres of London, and we've made six arrests."

"Good," said Mahony. "Did you find any evidence against our friend Lawson?"

"Still harping on Lawson, eh," commented the Inspector. "No, we didn't find any evidence against him. So far as we're concerned, we haven't any evidence, except your word, that Lawson is not an entirely blameless citizen. What's happened to Miss Fraser? Any news of her?"

"Yes," answered Mahony. "I suppose you'd like me to tell you where she is?"

"I certainly should; I'm very anxious to get hold of that young woman," said the Inspector.

"She won't tell you anything you want to know if you get hold of her," said Mahony coolly. "And if you arrest me I shan't tell you anything you want to know either. So that won't do you an awful lot of good. Listen; are you willing to take a sporting chance, Inspector?"

DIRIGIBLES: Negotiations to interest American capital in a transatlantic dirigible service (first made public through this column) are progressing slowly but satisfactorily. Most of the obstacles are of a technical nature which can be ironed out easily with time and study. Investors understand that the federal government is prepared to cooperate.

It will take 8 or 9 airships of the Hindenburg type to carry out plans now under discussion. The first two or three of these at least are sure to be made in Germany. After that, Goodyear may get a crack at construction of commercial dirigibles, which would be a sweet break for that company. Since the Akron and Macon disasters, it has looked as if Goodyear's expensive investment in plant and equipment for Zeppelin manufacture might as well be written off as a total loss.

The U. S. Navy is also watching developments closely. Quite a few officers still have faith in dirigibles and would like to see more of them built for naval use. Up to now they haven't had a ghost of a chance of getting a Congressional appropriation for the purpose. But the Hindenburg's success has reawakened public interest and a practical transatlantic commercial airship service would give them the opening they are working for.

KNOWS: Keen New York observers rate Henry Cabot Lodge a 3 to 1 shot to defeat Jim Curley for the job of Senator from Massachusetts. They also prophesy a brilliant political future for the grandson and namesake of Woodrow Wilson's senatorial nemesis.

Mr. Lodge decided he wanted to be Senator about a year ago and began quietly touring the state to build a following. This year the leaders of the state G. O. P. intended to pick Sinclair Weeks—son of another former Senator—as the nominee. Great was their surprise to discover that Mr. Lodge had other ideas and a strong enough backing to put himself over. It is clear that he knows what politics is all about.

Also they are timing their offerings more intelligently. Instead of rushing to market with securities issues the moment registration with the SEC becomes effective—which was the customary practice before

MUCH TALK ON AMENDMENTS

Interest Steadily Increasing on Proposed Changes

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Oct. 29.—Interest is growing steadily in the five proposed new Constitutional amendments which will be voted on November 3 and the public generally is talking more about them and thinking more about their provisions than at any time so far, political observers here agree.

The proponents of the new amendments are convinced that this increase in public interest is a good sign and that as the people know more about them, the more likely they will be to vote for them and are predicting that all or most of the amendments will carry. The opponents of the amendments, on the other hand, are convinced that this increased interest is merely an indication of a better understanding of the dangers contained in some or all of the proposals and are more than ever convinced that all or at least some of the five amendments will be defeated.

The outlook for the adoption of the four tax reform amendments is becoming increasingly bright and we are more hopeful than ever that all of these amendments will be adopted when the people of the state vote on them at the polls November 2. Dr. Clarence Poe, chairman of the Committee for the Tax Reform Amendments, said today.

The fact that the leaders in both parties have endorsed the amendments and are urging the people to vote for them and that most of the civic and business leaders are favorable to them is helping greatly. The fact that more and more people are thinking about and talking about these amendments means that they are becoming better informed concerning them, which we feel is an indication that a great many more people are going to vote for their adoption than had at first seemed likely. For if the people really understand these amendments and what they are supposed to accomplish, we feel certain they will vote for them.

A vigorous campaign in opposition to the adoption of all the amendments is still being carried on by the State Association of County Commissioners, however, and especially in opposition to the $1,000 homestead exemption amendment, while the North Carolina League of Municipalities is also making a determined fight against the homestead exemption amendment.

Although normally a non-partisan association representing 146 cities and towns in the state, the League of Municipalities has become very active in its opposition to the $1,000 homestead exemption amendment. A statement issued today by Patrick Healy, Jr., executive secretary of the league and by Mayor George A. Iseley of Raleigh, President of the league, declares that "higher taxes, higher rents and higher cost of government will be the result if this exemption is put into effect." They point out that the league adopted a resolution in opposition to this amendment at its annual convention in July.

School Age Cases Appear Be On Way To Supreme Court

State's Highest Tribunal Expected To Be Final Arbiter on Ruling Regarding Age Limit

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 29.—The state supreme court is expected to be the final arbiter in the controversy as to whether the State School Commission has authority to fix a definite date for the admission of six-year-old children to the first grade to exclude them from the schools after that date and a test case will probably be started on its way to the Supreme Court next week.

Injunction proceedings have already been brought against two school principals enjoining them from enforcing the regulations of the School Commission and temporary restraining orders granted the plaintiffs, with the result that the children of these two plaintiffs are now in school, the regulations of the School Commission notwithstanding.

The first temporary injunction was sought and obtained in Greenville, Pitt county, and the second in Burgaw, Pender county. No date has been set as yet for the Greenville case but the Pender county case is set for hearing before Judge Henry Grady in Burgaw on Monday, November 2. The belief in informed circles here is that Judge Grady will make the injunction permanent, in which case the school principal is expected to appeal to the State Supreme Court so that it may decide definitely whether the School Commission has the authority to fix the school age dates for first grade children.

These two cases resulted from the ruling by the school commission that no children could enroll in the first grade of the public schools this year who were not already six years old by October 1 and who did not enroll in the first grade during the first month school was in session. This ruling automatically excluded from the public schools this year

How's Your Health—

Tooth Cleanliness and Tooth Decay
Not so long ago, the saying "a clean tooth never decays" was common gospel to the health instructor. Hundreds of thousands of children and adults were drilled in the technique of mouth cleanliness, in the conviction that frequent and thorough cleansing of the mouth would inhibit if not completely prevent the development of dental decay. Unfortunately, experience did not validate this conviction, and many found themselves afflicted with dental caries, despite meticulous brushing of the teeth and religious use of mouth washes.

Today the worth of the tooth brush is frequently disparaged and some even condemn it violently. Dr. V. Suk, professor of anthropology of Masaryk university, writes, "The most tooth brushing and mouth washing races have the worst teeth."

"The maltrated oral mucosa, besides boiling hot and icy cold drinks has to suffer all the thousand antiseptics that the busy chemical industry has invented and in addition to that, is every day scratched and lacerated by means of brushes with very sharp bristles which collect all the bacteria to keep them at room temperature to the next day (a fine incubation!)"

It is unquestionably true that the individual who believes that the regular habit of brushing the teeth and the use of some dentifrice containing this or that antiseptic will in itself confer immunity to dental disease is the victim of a fallacy. But even Dr. Suk does not advocate "the primitivism of the Papuans or Botocudos." Mouth cleanliness, as all cleanliness, has its esthetic as well as its health conserving values. If brushing the teeth does not of itself contribute much to their conservation, it is still a highly desirable practice.

And yet Dr. Suk's arguments are of real merit in that they compel a shifting of emphasis from tooth drills to nutrition.

But in addition to nutrition, which means the consumption of a diet adequate in the basic food elements, in mineral salts and vitamins, there are the factors of biting and chewing to be considered. The function of the teeth is to bite, and present day food is generally too soft and mushy to require much biting or chewing.

Everyone knows that organs used normally thrive, while those that are disused, suffer. It is reasonable therefore to suppose that exercise for the teeth may contribute as much to their health as vitamins, and certainly more than three minutes brushing a day.

State Has Advantage In Hog Production

Raleigh, Oct. 29.—In hog production, North Carolina has many distinct advantages over other states, said Earl H. Hosteler, professor in animal husbandry at N. C. State College.

Three of the biggest factors, he added, are its temperate climate, nearness to market and abundant supply of protein supplements.

In this climate, sows can farrow two litters of pigs a year without difficulty and without the owner having to spend large sums to properly house and care for them during these critical periods.

Of course, Hosteler pointed out, some housing should be provided to protect the sows and their young from cold and rain in February and March and from the heat in August and September, the two best farrowing periods.

Small Cotton Crop Should Bring Bonus

Raleigh, Oct. 29.—North Carolina's cotton crop, the smallest in more than 25 years, but running exceptionally high in quality, should bring farmers a bonus of approximately $3,000,000 in grade and staple premiums, M. G. Mann, general manager of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association, estimated here today.

The estimate was based on the government report on grades and staples of the State crop gained to date and on premiums being paid by the State Cotton Association on cotton better than middling 7-8.

Mr. Mann pointed out that nine out of every ten bales are running 15-16 or better in length and as such deserve a premium. "Premiums for better grades and staples," he said, "are higher now than at the opening of the season and the Cotton Association is paying to farmers premiums ranging as high as $12 per bale on cotton being delivered to it."

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is engaged upon one of the longest seasons, ever played by an American orchestra. It has played every month since September, 1935, and will continue the record until August, 1937.

All children who might become six years old on or after October 2.

In the Pender county case, the father of Mary Elizabeth Burnett, who did not become six years old until October 12, obtained the temporary restraining order against the principal of the Burgaw school, with the result that Mary Elizabeth is now in school in the first grade there. In Greenville, a similar order was obtained by the father of Joan Bloom, who was not six until October 26, so that she is also now in school.

The School Commission is expected to defend both of these cases.

LABORERS GET PRIVATE JOBS

Business Enterprises Reducing Nation's Relief Load

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 29.—The rapid rate at which former relief workers are obtaining jobs in private industry is greatly reducing the relief load in North and South Carolina and Virginia, as well as in almost all of the other states, with the result that many WPA projects which had been planned and approved are being cancelled for lack of WPA labor. Mr. Elen S. Woodward, assistant administrator of the Works Progress Administration in Washington, told the various WPA executives who have been attending the Tri-State WPA Conference in session here.

Mrs. Woodward also told of some of the definite results of the WPA program in these three states and lauded both the spirit of the workers and the work they have done and are doing.

"The return of relief workers to private employment has been very rapid during the last few months," Mrs. Woodward said. "In the city of Charlotte, several projects which had been approved will not be started because the workers for which the projects had been planned have now obtained jobs in private industry."

Here in Raleigh a private firm recently started a construction job and of the 37 men employed, 31 were from WPA rolls. All through the tobacco growing sections of North Carolina, and in a large number of former WPA workers have found work in the tobacco industry.

"This is also true in Virginia and South Carolina. In the city of Richmond alone, 299 persons on WPA rolls found private employment in the month of August while in four counties in the northern part of Virginia in which projects had been asked for 1,024 WPA workers, who had been certified as eligible, the projects were cancelled because they were approved because 637 of these workers had already found jobs in private industry. During the last 60 days, 300 women who have been employed in sewing room and other projects in South Carolina have found private employment."

Mrs. Woodward also pointed out the many lasting public improvements which have resulted from the WPA program in North Carolina, including the 2,600 miles of farmer-to-market roads which have been built in this state, also the new airport in Greensboro, Charlotte, Winston-Salem and other places.

Talks To Parents

By Brooke Peters Church

Voices
"What a nice voice Mr. Jones secretary has!"

"I don't like that radio announcer, he has such a rasping voice." "I'd like to give you the part, Miss. You're just the type, but your voice is no good."

"You'd be good for the silent film, but you haven't the voice for the talkies."

And so it goes. Never were voices more important than today, when half the world seems to be doing public speaking of one kind or another.

Some are born with good voices some achieve them, but only once in a lifetime can a good voice be thrust upon one, and that is in infancy and early childhood. The baby who is surrounded by pleasant voices and hears English, or American if one prefers to call it that, correctly and carefully spoken, will probably develop good habits of speech unconsciously. Parents cannot be too careful about these early impressions. Even if their English is imperfect they can control the tone of voice they use. To learn to speak the language correctly in later life is easy, but to change the pitch and quality of one's voice is extremely difficult.

When the child begins to go to school and to play with other children he must be made voice-conscious. He must be taught the value of a good speaking voice, and how it is produced. Local peculiarities such as nasal twangs, flat vowels, sounds, slurred consonants and unpleasant burrs slip into a child's speech with alarming ease. If his attention is called to them at the outset he may avoid them.

If parents would consider how many good jobs are dependent on the applicant's tone of voice and manner of speech, they would make every effort to insure their children's futures by giving them the best possible voice advantages.

STEEL BEAD 'DIET' SAVES BABE

When Baby Robert Fowler of Washington, D. C., accidentally swallowed lye and scar tissues threatened to close his esophagus, doctors ran a linen thread down his throat and out through a rubber tube inserted in his abdomen. And each day for 26 weeks a steel bead was threaded on the line and Robert swallowed it. That kept his esophagus open and now he is on the road to recovery. The child is shown taking his daily bead under the watchful eyes of his mother, Mrs. Tyrus Fowler. (Associated Press Photo)

Tar Heels Contributing Liberally To Fund

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Oct. 25.—Democrats of North Carolina are contributing more and more liberally to the national and state campaign fund and to date approximately $30,000 has been given by Democrats in North Carolina towards the quota of $45,700 set for this state by the National Democratic Campaign Committee, A. D. Folger, National Committeeman from North Carolina and Director of Finance for the national committee in the state, said Wednesday.

Most of the funds contributed so far have been in small contributions, although recently several quite large contributions have been received, Director Folger said. Finance Director Folger has devoted most of his time the past six weeks out in the field raising funds for the Democratic campaign and expects to remain out until the day before election. He is confident that the quota will be reached, if not exceeded.

"I believe that when we finish our campaign and total the donations we have received that the figures will show that the people of North Carolina have contributed as never before to the success of the Democratic party, both national and state," Director Folger said.

"While it is true that most of the donations are of small amounts, ranging from $1 to $10 and that the number of contributions will break all records, it is also true that a large number of very substantial donations are being received from business men and manufacturers over the state, in spite of the general belief that most of the manufacturers and business men are opposed to the reelection of President Roosevelt. This is not the case however, since some of the biggest industrialists and business interests in the state are backing President Roosevelt and making heavy contributions to the campaign."

Interest in the campaign is increasing every day in all sections of the state and Director Folger believes that the biggest vote ever cast in North Carolina will be cast November 3. He is confident that the Democratic majority in the state will be between 250,000 and 300,000.
