DEMOCRATS ON STATE TICKET GAIN VICTORY

State Gives New Deal Ticket Overwhelming Victory

11 CONGRESSMEN ARE RE-ELECTED

Five Amendments Proposed to State Constitution Seem To Have Carried

Charlotte, Nov. 4.—(AP)—North Carolina voters piled up sweeping majorities for Democratic candidates in Tuesday's election on the face of returns from more than half of the state's 1,855 precincts.

With 1,162 precincts reported the Roosevelt-Garner ticket had 406,066 votes against 107,798 for Landon and Knox, a majority of more than 250,000.

All but 17 of the state's 100 counties were included in the tabulation but because of the heavy vote cast only a few had reported complete returns.

Indications were that approximately the same ratio of Democratic and Republican strength was maintained in other contests. Reports on these races, however, were far less complete than for the presidency.

Clyde R. Hoey, Shelby Democrat, was leading his Republican opponent for governor, Gilliam Grissom by three to one. Reports from 525 precincts gave Hoey 150,566 votes against 53,485 for Grissom.

In the contest between Sen. Josiah Bailey, Democrat, seeking re-election and his Republican foe, Frank Patton, the former was leading by almost a four-to-one margin with 515 precincts accounted for. Bailey's vote was 170,904 against Patton's 47,085.

No returns were reported in the contest for other state offices. Information from county seats in general was that the Democrats had about the same as in the presidential race.

Available returns indicated the re-election of the 11 incumbent Democratic members of the house.

With only scattered returns tabulated from the State on the five amendments to the state constitution all five of the amendments were being approved by a rather large margin.

Local 4-H Club Boys Win Prizes At Fair

Seven 4-H club members in Pitt county earned premiums totalling $60 with their exhibit of seven Guernsey heifers at the Pitt county fair last week.

Homey Hall of Farmville took grand prize and was awarded a cash prize of $18.

The club members already are making plans to enter their herds at county and state fairs next. It was pointed out that it was necessary for the herds to be registered by 4-H club boys to be eligible for competition at the state fair.

Free Will Baptists Hold District Meet

The North Carolina central conference of the Free Will Baptist church convenes today for a three-day session with the Rose of Sharon church in Martin county.

Rev. C. J. Harris of this city was scheduled to deliver the introductory sermon at 11 o'clock. After the sermon a business meeting describing the vital importance to church members and to the future progress of the denomination was scheduled.

The moderator, Rev. D. W. Alexander of Bethel, will preside over the sessions.

MARKET HOLDS HIGH AVERAGE

Decreased Offerings on Tuesday Average $25.29

Offerings on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday showed a sharper decline, but high prices maintained here during the past several weeks continued to leave farmers apparently satisfied with the auction of their product.

Sales yesterday were the lightest for any day this season, but followed a Monday break of more than a million pounds. While it was evident that the market was nearing its close, prices paid here have held their high stride.

Common to medium grades brought the highest prices of the season the first sale day of this week and continued about in line yesterday.

Offerings of only 179,426 pounds yesterday brought a total of $45,378.03, for an official average of $25.29.

The season's average has continued to climb since the early weeks of the season and the figure now stands at $24.35 per hundred weight. So far this year 39,847,882 pounds of leaf have been sold on the local market for a total of $9,701,381.99 in setting the general season average of $24.35.

Next Governor

Clyde R. Hoey, Democratic stalwart, received an overwhelming victory in yesterday's election and will serve as North Carolina's chief executive for the next four years. All other Democratic candidates rode to victory in the Democratic landslide in the state and nation.

KANSAS GIVEN TO ROOSEVELT

New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio Aid in Piling Up Possible Electoral Vote of at Least 519 for New Deal Compared with Only 12 for Landon

(By The Associated Press)—The people have returned the New Deal to office for four years more by an electoral plurality which may be the greatest in American history.

Riding a great flood tide of ballots Franklin D. Roosevelt was leading for re-election early today in 45 of the 48 states. A possibility remained that he might capture the 46th.

His Republican opponent, Governor Alf M. Landon, conceded defeat and congratulated the victor in a message declaring, "every American will accept the verdict and work for the common cause—for the good of our country."

Early returns indicated a majority of 10,000,000 for President Roosevelt in the popular vote.

As the Governor's message ticked over the wires eastward, his electoral fortunes were at the lowest ebb touched by the candidate of a major party in generations. He had less than Hoover had in 1928—just comfortable in the states of Maine and Vermont and a more precarious margin in New Hampshire. At that moment, if the indicated state totals held, Roosevelt would have 519 electoral votes, and Landon 12.

The great states of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio—a block whose weight is usually decisive—were helping pile up the Democratic ticket's impressive margin of leadership. Westward to California the story was the same.

The New York American, one of a group of newspapers published by William Randolph Hearst, declared that Roosevelt is elected in its edition on the streets there at 9:30 P. M. (EST).

Mr. Hearst continuously throughout the campaign urged the election of Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee.

Roosevelt and Garner rolled into the lead in early returns with a nip-and-tuck battle for the electoral vote of governor Landon's home state of Kansas commanding attention from the start.

When returns were still fragmentary, the Democratic nominees were leading in such important states as Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, Governor Landon maintained a slight margin in Massachusetts and Rhode Island at the start.

As the Kansas count came in—the first state to report any really sizeable block of votes—President Roosevelt held a slender lead amounting to approximately 1,000 votes.

The first Pennsylvania city to report its full complete returns gave Landon 2,700 and Roosevelt 2,778—a difference of only 10 votes in favor of Roosevelt. The town was Meadville.

A. E. Howman, who died recently, became a "classic" with his book of poems, "A Straggle Lad."

Pitt County Joins With Nation In Backing FDR

State and County Tickets Swept Along As Local Residents Turn Out in Large Numbers to Support President Roosevelt

With interest in yesterday's election so much greater in the presidential voting throughout the United States, than in Pitt county, local citizens evidenced little interest in the city and county tickets.

The county voted overwhelmingly for Roosevelt, Hoey and the entire state and county Democratic tickets, but local expression on the five proposed amendments was not so pronounced. Votes on the amendments had not been tabulated to an extent early this morning to say definitely how Pitt voters felt on the proposed changes.

A large number of Pitt county citizens appeared to prefer Roosevelt for president who did not vote for Hoey for governor.

The Republican vote in the county was only negligible for either the national or state ticket.

With only fourteen out of the 19 precincts having reported early this morning, Roosevelt had seven thousand and sixty-six votes against Landon's three hundred and twenty-six in the county.

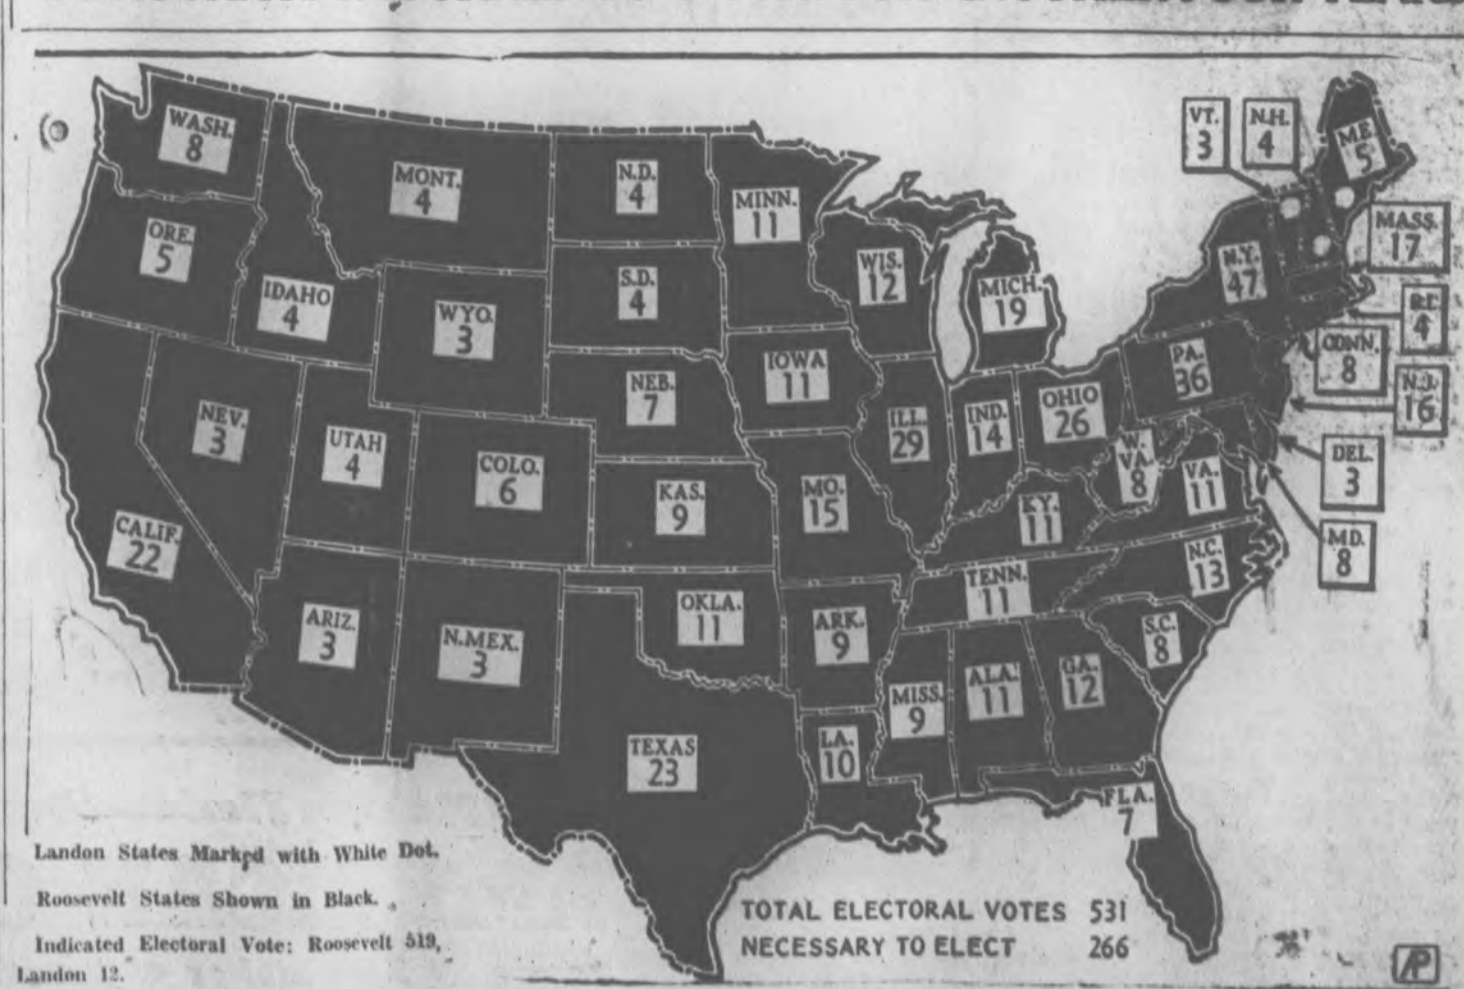

Fourteen out of 19 precincts in Pitt County gave Hoey 5,328 ballots and Grissom only 497.

W. E. Hooks, chairman of the Pitt county Executive committee, had estimated that approximately 3,000 Democrats would vote in yesterday's election. Whether this mark would be reached was problematical.

Every precinct in the county gave Landon a vote, but several of them refused him more than 10. Chicod Number 3 voted only two ballots for Landon. Chicod Number one only four and Fountain only five.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Elsa Little does not believe Terence Mahony killed her uncle Vincent, and has persuaded Ambrose Lawson to help her kidnap Terence before the police get him, and run him out of the country. But Lawson, the ostensibly worthy head of a vicious kidnapping and dope gang, plots to keep the rendezvous with Elsa, kill Terence and kidnap Elsa. Now Lawson, who had engaged Terence to spirit away his ward, Ruth Fraser, is approaching Lawson because so far Terence has been able to keep Lawson at bay.

CHAPTER 44 STRUGGLE

"ARE you threatening me?" Lawson asked in a cold, quiet tone. "Do you think that is wise? I have my own ways of dealing with people who threaten me, you know."

It was quite the wrong thing to say, and Lawson realized it almost as soon as he had spoken. He ought to have calmed Lee-Ramsden down, reassured him, and then dealt with him swiftly and unexpectedly.

There was no hope of that now. Lawson's tone of cool contempt had added fuel to Lee-Ramsden's rage, destroying any hope of even a temporary reconciliation. The old man's face became suffused with a flush of violent rage; that little vein, which betrayed his temper, was beating strongly in his forehead.

"Deal with me, will you," he said thickly. "You'll deal with me, you bound. I'll damned soon deal with you."

His eyes had become slightly bloodshot. For a moment he gazed round the room wildly, as if seeking something. His glance encountered a bronze statuette standing on a small table. He sprang forward, snatched it up in his right hand, and hurled himself at Lawson.

The statuette came down in a vicious blow aimed at Lawson's head, and it was only Lawson's swiftness which saved him.

He dodged quickly, sprang out of range, and then, as the old man lumbered after him, sprang forward to meet him, snatching at the wrist of the hand that held the statuette.

For a few seconds the two men struggled at close quarters. Lawson trying to push the old man over and pin him down in an arm-chair, the old man striving vainly to brain Lawson with the statuette.

Actually the struggle should have been quite unequal, for Lawson was by far the younger and immeasurably the stronger of the two, but rage lent the old man strength, and, try as he could, Lawson could not master him.

A sudden spasm of fierce impatience seized on Lawson; he felt he must end this struggle quickly. Shifting his grip, he released Lee-Ramsden's wrist, clutched at the statuette, snatched it out of the old man's hand, and brought it crashing down on his head.

That ended the struggle all right. The old man's body suddenly went limp; he staggered back a pace, and then fell crashing to the floor. Lawson, breathing heavily, was left standing in the middle of the room. Lee-Ramsden lay quite still. The flush had faded from his face, and his complexion had taken on a curious grey tinge. From the left side of his head ran a small trickle of blood.

"Oh, damn!" said Lawson. He threw the statuette down, stepped quickly across the room, poured out a glass of brandy, and bent over the old man. But one moment's inspection showed him that brandy could do no good at all. Lee-Ramsden was dead.

LAWSON rose slowly to his feet. All his impatience and anger had left him; his mind was cool and alert to deal with this new situation which had arisen.

The chances were that his house was being watched by some of Mahony's friends; Lee-Ramsden would have been seen arriving; and it would be impossible to explain Lee-Ramsden's death.

Lawson frowned, and meditatively slipped from the glass of brandy which he was holding in his hand. Lee-Ramsden's car was outside the house; his hat and overcoat were in the hall. He slipped his keys again and nodded slightly. He knew what he was going to do.

He finished the brandy and rang the bell for the butler. The man entered and stood waiting; he betrayed no astonishment whatever at the sight of that still body lying on the floor.

"I've got a job for you," said Lawson curtly. "Mr. Lee-Ramsden's hat and coat are in the hall. Put them on, and then make your way quickly out to his car and drive away. If anybody's watching, I want them to think it's Lee-Ramsden driving away."

"Go on driving about until you're quite certain you're not being followed, and then abandon the car in a quiet place, and bring the hat and overcoat back here in a parcel."

"Very good, sir," replied the man, and left the room.

That was that, thought Lawson; if Lee-Ramsden had been seen entering his house, he would also be seen driving away from it. So far as the body was concerned, that could remain in the house for the time being till a convenient opportunity occurred to dispose of it.

In a corner of the room stood a big cupboard containing unimportant books and papers. Lawson cleared them out, piled them in a quiet corner of the room, thrust the body into the cupboard and locked the cupboard door.

FATTY BASSETT was very worried. Things were happening which he did not understand in the slightest. He sat frowning, staring at the fire-place, and occasionally drinking beer from a large tankard. Barney Flynn, who was with him, noticed his preoccupied air.

"What's the trouble with you, this evening, Fatty?" he inquired.

Fatty shook his head. Ordinarily he was not a communicative person, but on this occasion he felt the need to confide in someone.

"It's the guv'ner," he answered. "I'm thinkin' he's gone orf 'is rocker. But you know wot 'e's like; it's no use arguin' with 'im."

"And what's he after doin' now?" asked the Irishman.

"E's made an appointment to meet Miss Little in a lonely house to Clapham in an hour's time. E told me 'isself 'e reckoned there was a trap in it—that that bloke Lawson was isyin' for 'im with some dirty scheme. An' 'e's gone orf on 'is own, and when I asks wot I was to do abart guardin' 'im, or settin' an ambush to catch Mr. Ruddy Lawson, 'e says, 'do nothin'."

"What's that yere sayin'?" You mean he's gone orf to that house where he expects to find a trap; an' there's nobody from our side gone with him at all?"

"That's what I mean," answered Fatty grimly. "I tried to talk it out of 'im, but 'e wouldn't listen. Don't worry about me, Fatty, 'e says, I know wot I'm up to, an' orf 'e went."

"And you let him go like that, all by himself?" said a voice just behind them.

Ruth Fraser had just entered the room and was standing, pale and indignant, looking at the two men.

"You let Terence go off by himself, knowing he was going into a trap?" she repeated.

Fatty had an uncomfortable air. He fidgeted uneasily in his seat.

"There was no stoppin' 'im," he protested. "E told me petticularly 'e didn't want any of my blokes mixed up in this, an' 'e didn't want to be followed. I tried to argue with 'im, but it was no good."

"Tell me exactly what happened—the whole story," said Ruth imperiously.

Fatty hesitated. He looked more uncomfortable than ever. It seemed that he did not know what to say.

"Well, Miss... it's a bit awkward like, because 'e petticularly told me I wasn't to say nothing abart it to you," he blurted out.

"Oh, did he?" said Ruth. "Then you can just forget that. You've already told me something about it, and you're going to tell me the rest. He's gone to meet Elsa Little, I think I heard you say."

Her expression was set and determined. It was evident that she meant to learn all Fatty knew. Had she been a man, Fatty would have had no hesitation in telling her to go straight to hell.

But he was unaccustomed to dealing with young society women; he did not know how to begin to argue with her. Also, in a way, he sympathized with her. He did not approve of Mahony changing his life in order to see a beautiful young film star who was probably setting a trap for him.

Not that he disliked Miss; he had admired her immensely in "The Silent Stranger." But he disapproved of Mahony getting mixed up with film actresses when he could have a real woman for the asking.

"Orf right," he said in a resigned tone. "But there'll be 'ell to pay when 'e finds out I've told yer. This was 'ow it was."

PLAN SESSION AUTO DRIVERS DISTRICT D.A.R. BEING GYPED

State Regent to Preside Over Meeting At Wilson

Farmville, Nov. 3.—The annual meeting of the eighth district, Daughters of American Revolution, which comprises the towns of Farmville, Halifax, Rocky Mount, Terboro, Washington and Wilson, will be held at the Woman's club in Wilson, Thursday, November 5, with Mrs. T. C. Turnage, of Farmville, district chairman, presiding. Mrs. E. K. Johnston, of Washington, is district secretary.

Featuring the addresses, scheduled for the day by prominent daughters, will be that of Mrs. W. H. Bell, of Charlotte, state regent.

A round table discussion of timely topics will be conducted by Mrs. Isaac Manning, state vice regent, and reports will be given by Mrs. J. Dozier, Mrs. Major Benjamin May chapter, Farmville; Mrs. Helga Daniel Marshall, Elizabeth Montford Ashe chapter, Halifax; Mrs. Armistead Gill, Michaela Petway chapter, Rocky Mount; Mrs. P. D. D. Miller, Harvey chapter, Terboro; Mrs. Harvey S. Gutzman, Reading Bount chapter, Major Washington; Mrs. Ashe J. Hines, Thomas Hadley chapter, Wilson; Mrs. I. M. Meekins, of Elizabeth City, and Mrs. G. J. Sawyer, of Windsor, who organized chapters in these places, will give reports also.

This district, the eighth, rich in history, forward and foremost in performance and progress, and affording inspiration and potential achievement for all patriotic and civic organizations, has a special appeal for the Daughters of the American Revolution for it is the district of the historic Albemarle section, where "America was born." "Here 'Aviation was born." John Paul Jones, father of the American Navy, lived here; it is a great educational center and the largest tobacco markets in the world are situated here; and was the scene of the signing of the Pitt County Resolves a document of equivalent import as the famous Mecklenburg paper by ninety-three leaders of similar courage and valor.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

College Freshman Gets Broken Nose During Initiation

Irish Confetti Spills Schemer of State Student, R. quired to Carry Brick With Him All Day

Raleigh, Nov. 3.—Irish confetti which was a part of the initiation of State College freshmen into the Ceramics fraternity there, spelled the "chance" of one of the freshmen at work it was learned here today. The result is that E. H. Sayer of Tryon is this week nursing a rather painful and battered proboscis, which was the immediate portion of his phylogony with which the brick came in contact. For in plain English, E. H. Sayer's nose was broken by a brick.

It all happened as a result of part of the initiation ritual which is a week-long affair, during which the freshmen are taken to various places, to picture shows—since a brick is perhaps the best known product of the ceramic engineer's art—or to a lecture, so the freshmen pledges to Ceramics, which may be the Greek word to brick, if the Greeks had a word for it, and they probably did not.

built and to build new ones, $1,757,462 was spent for other purposes. Thus the motorist taxpayers were shortchanged because they received only 93 cents worth of road building for each tax dollar they paid the state. In 1934, a total of $1,682,951 was diverted to other uses."

No one wants to argue that these "other purposes" to which highway funds were diverted last year and the year before are not worthy, Johnson agrees, but maintains that the spending of motor tax revenue for highway is so generally beneficial that there can be no argument either as to the advisability, the common sense or honesty of doing just that, especially since these taxes were levied with the understanding they would be used for road purposes only and nothing else.

Another argument against any diversion of road funds whatever, is that dollars spent in road construction go farther than in almost any other type of work, Johnson said. Every dollar spent on road work generates $3.15 worth of trade and wages in 24 different industries and every $100,000 spent on roads provides full time employment for 103 workers for one year, he pointed out.

YOUNG AMERICAN PIANIST HEARD IN DUKE RECITAL

Durham, Nov. 3.—Helen McGraw, young American pianist, who is gaining an enviable reputation in music circles of both the United States and Europe, was heard Tuesday night in a recital sponsored by the Duke university. Y. M. C. A. She is a pupil of Alexander Skarevski, and is a graduate of the Peabody conservatory. Her large audience was well pleased with her versatile program and performance.

"Approximately 1,800 workers were prevented from getting employment they otherwise could have had and approximately $5,600,000 in wages and trade failed to materialize because this money was not spent for highway work," Johnson said. "For out of $24,973,000 collected from North Carolina motorists last year from state gasoline sales tax and registration fees, ostensibly to pay for roads already built and to build new ones, $1,757,462 was spent for other purposes. Thus the motorist taxpayers were shortchanged because they received only 93 cents worth of road building for each tax dollar they paid the state. In 1934, a total of $1,682,951 was diverted to other uses."

No one wants to argue that these "other purposes" to which highway funds were diverted last year and the year before are not worthy, Johnson agrees, but maintains that the spending of motor tax revenue for highway is so generally beneficial that there can be no argument either as to the advisability, the common sense or honesty of doing just that, especially since these taxes were levied with the understanding they would be used for road purposes only and nothing else.

Another argument against any diversion of road funds whatever, is that dollars spent in road construction go farther than in almost any other type of work, Johnson said. Every dollar spent on road work generates $3.15 worth of trade and wages in 24 different industries and every $100,000 spent on roads provides full time employment for 103 workers for one year, he pointed out.

LAKE'S FEAR FROM DEAD DESPITE IT'S NAME
Tallahassee, Fla. (AP)—State Geologist Herman Gunter says the mystery of Florida's Dead Lake isn't a mystery at all. The subject has been debated for years, so Gunter was asked to clear up such questions as "When did the lake die, and why?" "Well, in the first place, I don't know if it's dead," Gunter said. "It's one of the best fresh water fishings spots in Florida. It probably got its name because of the hundreds of dead eels which he was janitor."

Talks To Parents

By Brooke Peters Church

Memory
A child's memory is very short, and the younger the child, the shorter his memory is. Memory is in large part a matter of association, and a child has very little experience on which to hang associations.

It is true that a good many industries are seeking locations in southern states and that some of these are turning to North Carolina, Fletcher said. "Some of these are bona fide industries and are greatly to be desired. But a good many are fly-by-night industries which have been run out of other states because they either would not or could not abide by the state labor laws setting forth both working hours and wages. They know, of course, that there is no law regulating wages in this state and that the only law regulating hours is that limiting the working hours of women to 5 1/2 hours a week, with the exception of the child labor laws regulating the employment of persons under 16 years of age."

"We have reports already on two industries which have recently come into the state—both shirt factories—whose promoters painted beautiful pictures as to how much these new industries would mean to the town. One town took up a subscription from the business men and raised $15,000 to help bring the factory there. But since these factories started operating, it has been found that they are paying the women and girls who work in them only from $3 to $3.50 a week as a maximum."

Master Noel still has plenty of shekels, but since that time he has written a couple of bad plays—well, plays which the public refused to receive too enthusiastically. Now he is back with a series of plays which Broadway shall see in November.

But we were talking about Coward's first day. It wound up with a group of close friends discussing the new season and talking of the old days of the theater.

There were in this small assembly a couple of playwrights, a famous lawyer, a producer or two, and a newspaper man. This in itself is revealing. In the old days the stylish British phrase fancier used to surround himself with the admiring throngs that always tag after celebrities. He doesn't relish that sort of thing any more. "I'm growing up," he says, half seriously, half in jest.

One of the things Coward dined on was a piece of ham when he strolled down the gangplank. The manuscript of his autobiography, "Present Indicative," Don't ask what the title means. But already this manuscript has a glamor and a history. Half of it was lost once in a shipwreck in the Mediterranean. Part of it was composed on the deck of a tramp steam drifting lazily through tropic seas. Some of it was written in his London flat, and at least a chapter was set down in a New York hotel room. Somehow it wouldn't be typically Coward if an aura of adventure didn't surround it. For he is always going off on long voyages, heeding the call of far shores, and then bobbing up with a saucer full of what you wonder whether he has really been away at all.

What now, Mr. Coward? . . . "Well, I'm going to have some fun. I have a couple of weeks in which to do nothing but go to the theater, and see my friends, an dink. . . . And then? . . . Well, there is the matter of those six playlets welded into one evening's entertainment. This, for Broadway, should prove an interesting experiment."

Commissioner Says Sweatshops Seeking Enter State

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, November 3.—Cities and towns throughout the state should beware of promoters seeking locations for new industries and should carefully investigate both the promoters and the industries before making any move to provide factory space or to waive taxes, Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher said today.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
As usual, Noel Coward did the unexpected when he breezed nervously into New York this time. Instead of going to his favorite hotel, he checked in at Alexander Woolcott's 32nd street apartment, stowed his 14 pieces of luggage away, and journeyed out to participate in the howdy-dos that are inevitably a part of reunion in Manhattan.

There was, first, dinner with Charlie MacArthur in 21. Later he went to see Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine in "Idiot's Delight," after which he glided back stage to renew associations with these old friends whose careers have been so indelibly linked with his own.

It is a mistake to give a little child long and complicated directions or to ask him to remember something over a long period of time. He is quite capable of looking after the baby if the kettle is boiling or the baby is asleep, but if he is asked to remember to look in half an hour the chances are that when the appointed time comes he will have forgotten all about the request, and will let the water boil away, or the baby get into mischief.

How's Your Health—
Substitution by Addition seems to be a favorite ruse of nature with those who make the overweight who are gullible.
It appears to work well in the case of many lake reduction remedies. The old line runs "Add this to your food for your baby or your drinking water and you will lose pounds and pounds of weight without dieting, or exercise."

Even After Midnight —A CLEAN TASTE
Though you've been smoking them from morn 'til midnight, you'll find that Luckies leave a clean taste... a clear throat. They're a Light Smoke.

How's Your Health—
Substitution by Addition is simply using the same old, old, or a quite worthless, and will do nothing to reduce the weight of the individual, or cause any of the dangerous and annoying side-effects.
This argument may be extremely persuasive, the terminology and the "scientific" tone, quite impressive, but the fact remains that they are a fake and a swindle.
Reduction remedies which are composed of inert matter are likely to contain saline purgatives which induce diarrhea, and effect a temporary loss of weight to the extent of the body fluid lost. Within a short time, however, the body returns to its normal weight, for the lost fluid is soon replaced.
Thyroid extract is another common ingredient of reduction remedies. The danger in the use of such a remedy is manifold. To begin with the functionary of the gland of internal secretion is interdependent. The intake of thyroid extract may disturb the entire endocrine system.
Also, this extract acts as a metabolic whip, stimulating the burning up of the body fat. Such acceleration of metabolism throws a burden on the heart, the blood vessels and the kidneys. In many an overweight person, these are already overworked.
This reputation is the latest weight reduction drug that has been put on the market under a variety of names. This drug, medical experience has shown is dangerous and can be used, if at all, only when the weight, condition and reactions of the patient are carefully studied and watched.
To the overweight person who desires to reduce the physician's advice should be that he cannot hope to attain his objective safely, or effectively, by adding anything to his regimen, except moderation in his food intake, and exercise.

New 1937 Chevrolet To Be Shown Nov. 7

Although the new 1937 Chevrolet will not be presented to the public until Nov. 7, several residents of Greenville will have the distinction of being first on the streets with 1937 models.
The fact came out this week when Mr. W. S. Stafford of the White Chevrolet Co., announced the name of Miss Hatzelov of E. C. T. C. as recipient of the first 1937 model delivered locally.

Another Question About CARDUI

MOTHERS RECOMMEND IT
"Why do so many MOTHERS recommend Cardui to their daughters?"
Isn't it but natural that any good mother should tell her daughters about Cardui if the mother herself felt that she had been benefited by this medicine?
It is impressive that so many women report having taken Cardui on the advice of their mothers. Cardui has been found to benefit women when weakened by malnutrition (poor nourishment); and it helps to relieve much discomfort at monthly periods.
Thousands of women testify Cardui helped them. Of course, if it does not help you, consult a physician.—(Adv.)

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON (By Ray Tucker) YOUTH: President Roosevelt intends to shake up his cabinet so violently that the back teeth of at least eight members of his present household will rattle.

REWARDS: Those close to the President know the qualifications which he has set up for cabinet-level substitutes. Though not guaranteed as absolutely authentic, Henry Morgenthau will be sent to London as Ambassador (his lifetime ambition since he apprenticed his father when the latter was Ambassador to Turkey).

MISSED: President Roosevelt's Statue of Liberty play in the last hours of the campaign almost broke some throbbing hearts when he chose to headline domestic rather than international politics.

voles more comment among his aides than any other phase of the campaign, and they're wondering what effect it will have upon his policies and personality. Though I escaped general comment, the President kept aloof from local forces and figures in his drive for re-election.

JELLED: The inside story of the sensational Roosevelt-Smith clash places the two old comrades in an altogether different light. It explains why the President's friends were so bitter at Al's campaign conduct.

RIDES: "Steve" Early gets credit for the nearest political bonnet of the 1936 campaign. When the President's secretary noted that two duPont brothers had ridden about 140 miles on the London train—from Wilmington to New York—he figured up the total of their contributions to the G.O.P.—about $100,000.

By JAMES McMULLIN MONEY: Financial insiders get word that managed paper currency advocates are working hard on a new plan to further their objective. Their immediate target is the opening of a free gold market, wherein the price of gold would be determined purely by world supply and demand.

CRITICS: There was no effective opposition from sound monetarists when the Warren theory of devaluation was sold to the administration and the public in 1933. But they will not be caught napping this time.

GROOMING: Several months ago we reported that Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana was trying to persuade President Roosevelt to name Senator Sherman Minton of the same state to fill a vacancy on the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. The idea was that McNutt would then resign the governorship in order to be designated by his successor to take Minton's place in the Senate.

The Indiana governor plans to be very much in the presidential picture by 1940. He has proven himself an able—if somewhat ruthless—political organizer in his sphere of action. He is also a brilliant speaker. He is eager to have the Senate as a sounding board in order to attract national attention.

There were reasons why it was not expedient for FDR to grant McNutt's request when it was made. But exceptionally informed New Yorkers prophesy that the whole plan will be put into effect as outlined before the end of 1936. This would be in plenty of time so far as Governor McNutt is concerned. CHALLENGE: The Securities Exchange Commission is seriously considering a rather sensational innovation. If adopted, it would compel all security underwriting houses to make known their financial condition.

The Commission has been somewhat bothered about putting its okay on contracts to sell securities without convincing evidence that the underwriter can make good on his part of the performance under any circumstances. Several small and comparatively unknown investment firms have participated lately in "new money" offerings as distinct from refunding operations. Their financial responsibility has not been put to the test, but there is always a chance that it might be—and if anything should go wrong the SEC would catch hell from the victims.

Plainly the Commission cannot require proof of financial standing from one investment house without requiring it from all. A general order of this nature would blast the privacy of the great investment firms along with the small fry. You can imagine how the big fellows would love that! The SEC is well aware that it is inviting a last-ditch legal challenge of its authority if it goes through with this move—hence a careful study of all angles is being made before any irrevocable decision is reached.

DEEP INTO THE BIG WOODS on a hunting trip. No luxuries here, as "Herb" Welch—famous Maine Guide—makes noon camp and serves up beans, Johnny-cake, and coffee hot from the camp-fire coals, winding up with Camels all around. Hearty outdoor appetites welcome the sense of digestive well-being that smoking Camels encourages. "Herb" says: "Anything that goes into the woods with me has to earn its way. Camels more than earn theirs. Camels are a swell thing to have on the trail... a pleasure and a necessity. I've lived on one meal a day—just dried meat and water at that—and I've dined on the best that the state of Maine offers—but no matter what I'm eating, it always tastes better and digests better when I smoke Camels. And I like Camel's cheery 'lift'." WHEREVER...WHATEVER...WHENEVER YOU EAT—For Digestion's Sake—Smoke Camels! YOU eat over a thousand meals a year! Many kinds of foods. At all times and places. Sometimes you are free of care—at others, worried and nervous. Yet, thanks to Camels, you can help digestion meet these conditions easily. Smoking Camels speeds up the flow of fluids that start digestion off well and keep it running smoothly. Tension eases. Alkalinity increases. You enjoy your food more—and have a feeling of greater ease and contentment after eating. Mealtime or anytime—make it Camels! To millions of men and women, Camels are the last word in cigarette enjoyment. Camels are so mild, they do not get on your nerves—or tire your taste—facts that steady smokers especially appreciate. ANOTHER CHAMPION SMOKES CAMELS. Dorothy Holderman set a glider record for both men and women. "Imagine how binding affects digestion!" she says. "But a few Camels at mealtime bring my digestion right back."

STATE ELEVEN BUSY ON PASS

Wolfpack to Meet Boston College on Saturday

College Station, Raleigh, Nov. 4.—Boston College can look for a tighter pass defense when it faces North Carolina State in Fenway Park, Boston, Saturday afternoon than that which collapsed against Carolina in the second half of the State-Carolina game Saturday.

Coach Hunk Anderson began drilling the Wolves on Monday for a pass defense for Boston as the Eagles are reported to have one of the best aerial attacks in the East. Mike Koken, State's backfield coach scouted the Eagles Saturday in their 13-13 tie with Michigan State and says their pass plays are mystifying.

Additional pass defense practice is on today's schedule and there will be similar work on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, Anderson says.

State's pass defense collapsed completely in the second half of the Carolina game Saturday and the Tar Heels used the air to take the Wolves. Anderson could not give a definite reason for the failure of his backs to knock down the Carolina passes other than they were worn out from constant playing.

State's backfield reserve strength was at a low ebb Saturday because of the absence of three backs—Eddie Entwistle, Cowboy Robinson and Ren Hoek. They are injured. There is a possibility that all three will be ready for Boston.

Coach Anderson announced yesterday that the club would be without the services of Howard Bardes, halfback; Jess Tatum, and Odell Smothers, center, for the remainder of the season. They were asked to turn in their equipment for "the best interest of the team." Bardes and Tatum were regulars.

'MUSIC AS WE GO' PLAN IN GERMANY

Berlin (AP)—Like the legendary lady with "rings on her fingers and bells on her toes," Germany's strength-through-joy vacationers henceforth will have music wherever they go.

They go far, some of these subsidized vacationers—up toward the arctic circle on Northland cruises or down to Portugal and Madeira—and a whole fleet of additional ships is being built to take more of them traveling.

To provide them with plenty of songs to sing on their wanderings the "strength-through-joy" movement has published a special songbook entitled "We Wander and Sing."

Many of the selections are martial while the rest are folk songs.

Thirty-six Chilean chinchillas, famous fur-bearing animals valued at $200,000, recently were transported by aircraft from Chile to California. It is believed to be the first shipment of this nature made by air.

DEACONS SEEK UNC TO MEET UPSET DEVILS WILDCAT TEAM

Baptists Expected to Put Up Good Fight Against Duke

Durham, Nov. 4.—Wake Forest's potent Demon Deacons, defeated only twice this season and by last minute rallies in both cases, are planning to kill the hopes of Duke's Blue Devils for their second State and Southern conference titles in a row.

The Baptists have shown clearly that they have one of the best teams in the Southern conference this season. They have won four and lost two games in a hard schedule, topping Clemson, N. C. State, Wolford and Presbyterian, and losing by the narrowest of margins to North Carolina's powerful Tar Heels and George Washington's strong Colonials.

In both the games they lost, Wake Forest led until the final minutes of play. They har North Carolina 7-0 until the final period when the Tar Heels slipped across two touchdowns to take the verdict. George Washington scored in the final minutes for a 13-12 edge.

The Deacons downed N. C. State 9-0 and Clemson, victor over Georgia Tech, 6-0, and rolled up large margins over Wolford and P. C. With a bevy of fine backs headed by Walter Klischen, Hobo Daniel North Carolina and North Carolina and Dallas Morris, the Deacons State.

Carolina Scouts Predict Hard Game For Saturday

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 4.—With its best eleven in six years, Davidson College is said to be preparing for the University of North Carolina, unbeaten and undefeated in the State and Southern Conference.

The Wildcats will play host to the Tar Heels in their Homecoming Day battle Saturday on Richardson Field.

"The Wildcats didn't play their usual game against the South Carolina Baptists and that is largely the reason they were beaten," said Coach Starnes.

"Even at that, you can see in the statistics that Davidson outclassed Furman in running and passing, gaining 100 and 167 yards in two departments against 35 and 28, respectively for the winners. Davidson had three punts blocked, one of which was converted immediately into a touchdown, and five passes intercepted. That's enough to demolish any club," Coach Starnes added.

"The running and punting of El Armfield, quarter, and the passing of Teehey Lafferty, halfback, were outstanding for the Wildcats on offense. The play of Bailey Williams, end, and Captain Dick Johnson, guard, was spectacular. The team is fast and powerful."

"Of course, Furman should be given just credit for winning. Their boys played heads-up ball, took advantage of the breaks, and capitalized on them. But Carolina is going to find a different Davidson team next Saturday and the game will be close," the Tar Heel mentor concluded.

Head Coach Ray Wolf added timely remarks to the effect that the Tar Heels, who had to come from behind in the second half to beat State, would not stand a chance against the Wildcats if they played ball like they did against the Wolfpack in the first game.

Less than a week after New York's big... was opened to the public, $43,000 in tolls had been collected.

HIGHS TO PLAY ON HOME SOIL

To Engage Farmville Eleven Here Friday Afternoon

By JAMES L. WHITFIELD
The fourth home football game of the season by the Greenville high school will be played Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on the Third street school field against the Farmville high school's "Red Devils."

Reports indicate that the Farmville eleven boasts a fast, fighting team that never quits. Two of their players, Judy, quarterback, and Teal, center, are as good as any players Greenville has played against this year.

Teal, Farmville's center, is a small chap, but is judged by some of the fellows who know their football as a natural-born football player.

The Farmville coach and team have been looking forward to the game with the Green Phantoms all season, and have promised the local gridsters a tough combat.

Owing the interest the Farmvillians are showing toward Friday's clash, a large crowd of Farmville fans are expected to motor to Greenville to witness the game.

The local bunch have been undergoing a heavy and strenuous practice this week, and emphasis is being placed on line and running plays.

The lineup for Friday will probably include: George Loureaux, L. E.; Melton Wilson or Robert Earle Clark, L. T.; Wayland Tucker, L. G.; DuBoise Simpson, C.; Jack Moye R. G.; Earl Kittrell, R. T.; Howard Hodges, L. E.; Bernice Eilers, Q.; Baxter Clark, L. T.; Thomas (Parson) Parrish, R. H.; and Harold Forbes or Kenneth Henderson, P. B.

Jack Moye and Baxter Clark have been substitutes all season, but due to the fine spirit and ability exhibited in recent workouts and games, makes them sure-participants in the firing line for Friday.

The locals have four wins and one loss to their credit for the season. In a couple of instances, they have blanked their opponents.

PITT COUNTY JOINS WITH NATION IN BACKING FRD
Landon received his highest vote in the precincts reported in Ayden and Greenville Number Three, each polling place giving the Republican 35 ballots.

Gilliam Grissom received 97 votes in Farmville, but citizens in that area cast only 20 votes for Landon. Roosevelt received 1,642 ballots and Hoey 900 in that precinct.

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

Those who are talking of building new political parties for 1940 will find cause for serious reflection in the lessons of 1936.

Only a few months ago things were so badly mixed, and signs of revolt were so widespread and convincing within both of the old parties, that one experienced political leader predicted that five or six Presidential tickets would divide this year's electoral vote amongst them.

Figuring that the established order of alignments was definitely on the rocks, leaders of the Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota and of the Progressive party in Wisconsin devoted many intensive hours to considering what they might do on a national scale.

Preparations for a brand new coalition party, to include conservative Democrats and Republicans, reached a stage where serious thought was given to methods of selecting a candidate.

The socialists, communists and other perennial "also rans" thought they saw a golden opportunity to strengthen their positions. A group of labor leaders pondered formation of a labor party. The Townsend-Long and Coughlin organizations caused a lot of genuine worry among the oldliners.

Yet what did it all amount to in terms of votes?
Just one newcomer, the Union party, finally got on the ballot in an appreciable number of states, but before the campaign was well under way it settled back into the ranks where voting strength is computed in minor percentages.

Some of other lesser parties decided not to put up tickets of their own. Others nominated Presidential candidates who spent much of their time advising the voters how to choose between Roosevelt and Landon.

Apparently not one of these groups except the Union party benefited in the least from the wholesale bolting from the old parties. And even the Union party failed to attract outstanding bolters. Every promi-

Education Needs Realized As Far Back As In 1695

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 2.—There has been a definite record of interest in education in North Carolina for 241 years, as the first recorded public utterance in favor of public education in this state has been found in the court records of Albemarle county—now Chowan, Perquimans and Pasquotank counties—at the term of court which met on February 26, 1695, it was pointed out here today by Lloyd Griffin, executive secretary of the State School Commission.

This first public evidence of interest in education in North Carolina is found in the order of a judge in an indulture proceeding, in which he ordered the man to whom the boy was bound must teach him to read, Griffin said.

"The copy of the court order is to be found on page 449 of Book One of Colonial Records, and was found and called to my attention by Richard Dixon, of Edenton, Clerk of Court in Chowan county," Griffin said. "This order was handed down ten years before the accepted beginning of educational history in North Carolina, with the coming of the first school teacher to North Carolina in 1705, when Charles Griffin arrived in what is now Pasquotank county from England and started holding schools in the churches and homes of the Albemarle country."

The order handed down on Feb. 26, 1695, and regarded as showing the first official interest in education in North Carolina, is as follows: "Upon petition of Thomas Harvey, it is ordered that William, son of Timothy Pead, late of this county, deceased, being left destitute, be bound to Thomas Harvey, Esq., and his wife, Sarah, until he be at the age of 21 and that the said Thomas Harvey teach him to read."

Thomas Harvey was a large landowner and lived in what is now Perquimans county at or near the place now known as Harvey's Neck, Griffin said.

"The interesting part of this court order is that the judge who issued realized the need for more education in the colonies and officially ordered Harvey to teach the boy who was being bound to him, to read," Griffin said.

enough record as treasurer and was re-elected ahead of the rest of the ticket in 1934. In 1936 he decided he was the man to be governor.

At this point Horatio Alger moves out and realism moves in. Sam didn't get the nomination, will go out of office in January, and unless somebody finds something for him to do politically he won't have things so nice from now on for a while.

Temperamentally he is unfit now for his old forest service post or any lowly job, even if he could get it. It is hard to be seen talking to the parent-teachers' association one month and be sweeping out the schoolhouse next.

Perhaps he can satisfy himself with the memory of four grand years, although the pay wasn't much. Now the question is: Who can use a second-hand state treasurer?
