REFORMS FOR LABOR URGED BY PRESIDENT

Sends Message to National Conference On Labor

HOLDS ELECTION TO BE 'MANDATE'

Declares Nation Expects Its Legislators And Executives To Adopt Legislation

Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—In a message to the third National Conference on Labor Legislation, President Roosevelt said today he believed "the country has this last week given a mandate in unmistakable terms to its legislators and executives" to adopt needed labor legislation.

The president said he believed the mandate had directed the legislators "to proceed along these lines until working people throughout the nation and in every station, are assured decent working conditions, safe and healthful places to work; adequate care and support when incapacitated by reason of accidents, industrial disease, unemployment or old age; reasonably short working hours, adequate annual income, proper housing and elimination of child labor."

The conference was urged by Mr. Roosevelt to "give serious consideration as to how these objectives may be achieved" and that "when you return to your state you will assume the leadership in your communities for putting the necessary legislation on the statute books."

"I assure you that the federal government is willing to do its part in making these standards effective and in supplementing the efforts of the states when problems assume an interstate or a national character."

The conference was called by Secretary of Labor Perkins to study uniform standards of labor legislation in the various states.

Governors of 39 states sent delegates. The president's message was read by Secretary Perkins, who presided.

Move Inaugurated To Provide Wood For Curing Weed

Program Which It Is Hoped Will Preserve Timber Lands in County Discussed Here Today

A plan which it is hoped will lead to the preservation of forest lands in Pitt county through the use of scrap lumber in curing tobacco was discussed here today.

R. W. Graeber, extension forester at N. C. State college, is working today and tomorrow with county farm agent officials and with the Bureau lumber company in working out a program through which the company will take out its waste lumber and cut it up to sell farmers to cure their tobacco.

R. R. Bennett, farm agent, said other lumber companies in the county would be asked to co-operate (Continued on page six)

Local County Court To Resume Hearings

After having been in recess two weeks, County court will be resumed tomorrow with a large number of cases scheduled to come up for hearing.

Two weeks of Superior court were scheduled to have been held here during the past two weeks, and despite the fact they were called off because of the illness of Judge N. A. Sinclair's daughter, the county court did not convene on either Tuesday.

Two and possibly three days probably will be required to dispose of all of the cases that have been docketed since the last term.

STRIKE DELAYS HULL'S TRIP TO PEACE PARLEY

Many hours after they had expected to be on the high seas en route to the Inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires, Secretary of State Hull and other United States delegates were "becalmed" aboard their ship, the Munson liner American Legion, in lower New York harbor as a consequence of the maritime strike which prevented the vessel from mustering a full crew. PUSH EFFORTS TO AID FARMER

Farm Group to Return to Capital Interest Peanuts

Farm Bureaus from several states who lead the nation in peanut production, namely Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, and North Carolina, represented at a conference with the Department of Agriculture at Washington and Friday of last week with reference to the peanut price situation, will again send a delegation to the nation's capital city on Thursday of this week. E. F. Arnold, Executive Secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, said today.

The delegation at the conference was demanding a diversion payment on the basis of not less than four cents a pound on a sound 67 per cent meat content basis.

Arnold said that a meeting of North Carolina Farm Bureaus will be held in Jackson, either tomorrow or Wednesday to make further discussions of the peanut price situation which has alarmed growers in several peanut producing areas, before the delegation presents its views to Agricultural authorities at Washington Thursday.

The North Carolina Farm Bureau has advocated a peanut test farm, and have appointed a committee from their body, who are slated to appear before the State Budget commission Tuesday and urge that $25,000 be included for the purpose of establishing a peanut test farm in the center of the peanut producing area.

Arnold said that on Wednesday of this week a government report will be presented showing the peanut crop estimate. This is expected to be a deciding factor in aiding agricultural officials to reach a decision concerning the Federal diversion payment.

Sees Man Steal Auto, Unable To Stop Him

Having an automobile stolen is nothing so unusual, but it is a rather provoking incident to watch someone drive off in your car and not be able to do anything about it.

The automobile belonging to S. I. Dudley was stolen last night when his daughter parked it on Fourth street for a moment. As she returned she saw someone drive off in it. Officials were immediately notified but no trace of it was found immediately.

Officers Of Patrol To Meet Wednesday

Lieutenant Lester Jones, head of Troop A of the State Highway patrol, today called a meeting of all ten commissioned officers of the force here Wednesday. The officers will meet in the patrol officers' club to discuss a number of problems facing the force.

The regular monthly division meeting will be held at a later date, to be decided on by officers of the patrol.

Barrymore Is Wed To Elaine Barrie

Yuma, Ariz., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Graying John Barrymore flew to his fourth marriage altar today, signed his age as 48, although records credit the romantic actor with 55, and wedded 21-year-old Elaine Barrie, of whom he once said "a man can't get along with a gal like that."

Sparkling-eyed and gay, the dark haired Elaine was a contrast to the person who only last August said in a statement "it would be impossible for us to plan a happy marriage life together."

Exchanging light hearted repartee, the two climaxed a stormy courtship by dashing here from Los Angeles last night to be made man and wife by Yuma's marrying justice, Earl A. Freeman, whose 25,000 ceremonies have included many of filmland's most noted.

HEARST LOSES IN LOBBY CASE

Court Holds Bar Has No Right Enjoin Committee

Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The United States court of appeals ruled today in a suit brought by William Randolph Hearst against the Senate lobby investigating committee that courts are without authority to enjoin a congressional committee.

Hearst appealed the case from a ruling by Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the federal district court, refusing to enjoin the lobby committee from retaining and making use of Hearst telegrams taken from the telegraph company files.

The appellate court said, however, that the federal communications commission, which furnished the Hearst telegrams to the committee, had acted illegally in copying them to the Senate body.

What the committee did after receiving them was not a matter for the courts, the opinion held.

First petitions sought to enjoin the commission from giving any message to the committee and to restrain the committee from using the messages it had received or from receiving others.

Attorneys for Hearst announced immediately they would appeal their case to the Supreme court.

SEEKS HIGHER STATE WAGES

Department Heads Ask Increase For Office Workers

Raleigh, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Heads of the administrative departments asked the advisory budget commission today to grant their employees salary increases, ranging from 10 to 15 per cent for the 1937-1938 biennium.

Only three members of the commission were on hand when the annual series of budget hearings started.

A. S. Brower, director of the division of purchase and contract outlined his expected needs from July 1, 1937 to June 30, 1939 and asked a 15 per cent pay boost for workers in the division while secretary of state Stacey W. Wade proposed a 10 per cent raise for this in his office. Quickly Attorney General A. F. Cassell and Treasury Charles M. L. Johnson also proposed salary boosts.

Ercow and Wade explained their projected increases were included on the assumption that the budget commission would recommend a general salary increase to the legislature.

Eighteen defendants, most of them charged with drunkenness, were convicted or bound over to higher court in City court this morning in provide one of the largest hearings in several weeks.

CHANCES GOOD FOR REVIVING OLD AAA PLAN

Farm Leaders Favor Adopting Chief Principles

ORIGINAL SET-UP GIVEN SUPPORT

Officials Who Deplored Invalidation of Program Given Encouragement

Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The prospect that the New Deal may seek to revive AAA principles of crop control appeared today to have been strengthened by developments over the week-end.

While there was no official announcement of intentions, officials who deplored the death of AAA at the hands of the Supreme court were believed to be highly gratified by the unanimity with which a meeting of farm leaders on Saturday demanded a return to the original agricultural adjustment program.

This development combined with recent forecasts by the agriculture department that possible farm surpluses may lead to declining prices next year was taken as an indication that the administration may make some new move along the lines of production control.

The farm leaders had been called here to talk over an administration proposal for federal crop insurance designed to bolster the present soil conservation program. The farm men were lukewarm in their discussion of this, relegating it to a distinctly secondary status.

But they left a resolution with President Roosevelt's crop insurance committee calling for "strengthening of present programs" and asserting that no farm program could be "permanently effective" unless it included "means of controlling production and distribution of farm products."

Search Continued For Pitt Negroes Wanted In Bethel

Man and Wife Alleged to Have Falsely Shot Another Negro Continue to Evade Officers

Officers today continued their search for John Phillips, alias Tom Phillips, negro, and his wife, Alice Phillips, who are charged with fatally shooting James Pitt, another negro, in Bethel Saturday night.

According to members of the sheriff's office, the negro and his wife entered a Bethel lunch room and opened fire on Pitt. A load of buck shot penetrated the negro's arm and entered his side. Lonnie Barnes and another negro were shot in the scrape, but neither is thought to be seriously wounded.

After they killed Pitt, Phillips and his wife are alleged to have gone through his pockets, taking all his money, and even cigarettes.

Sheriff's officers were informed of the fatal shooting and immediately went to Bethel to begin their investigation. They began a widespread search or the alleged assailants, but were unable to get any definite information as to their whereabouts immediately. The search is being continued by the officers, however.

The officers said their information was to the effect the two charged with the murder were not drinking and advanced no reason for the slaying.

Many Take Advantage Of Clinic Held Here

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, today described the orthopedic clinic being conducted here each month for cripples in this section of the state as doing a great service.

Six white children took advantage of the clinic Friday and two negro cripples received the examination. Dr. Hugh A. Thompson is conducting the clinic with the co-operation of the County Health office. The clinic is being provided by the United States Public Health service, the State Health department, the Roosevelt birthday fund and the local Rotary club.

Dr. Ennett said health and welfare officials in several counties were taking advantage of the clinic and bringing or sending a number of patients here.

Estimated Cotton Yield Set At 12,400,000 Bales

Increase Shown Over Figures Released For September

Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—An indicated cotton crop of 12,400,000 bales of 500-pounds gross weight was reported by the agriculture department in its November report. A month ago 11,600,000 bales were forecast. Last year's production was 10,638,000 bales, and the five-year (1928-1932) average was 14,667,000 bales.

Cotton of this year's growth ginned prior to November 1 was reported by the census bureau to have totaled 9,889,068 running bales, counting round as half bales, compared with 7,743,612 bales to that date a year ago, and 7,917,671 bales two years ago.

The indicated yield of cotton was reported by the agriculture department as 199.7 pounds per acre on the 29,720,000 acres estimated as of September 1 to be harvested this year. The acre yield last year was 186.3 pounds to the acre and the 1923-1932 average was 169.9 pounds.

The crop by states as indicated November 1 included: North Carolina 625,000 bales, Ginnings by states this year to November 1 included: North Carolina 348,025 running bales.

COTTON MARKET DROPS AFTER MARKET RESUMES OPERATIONS

New York, Nov. 9.—Cotton for future delivery fell off $1.00 to $1.25 a bale today following publication of the Department of Agriculture's estimate indicating a yield of 12,400,000 bales, or at least 400,000 more than generally had been expected.

There was active liquidation and hedge-selling, but offers appeared to be well taken and traders were of the opinion the large crop figures were being offset by the present activity in textiles and the general industrial improvements.

Negro Thought Victim Hit and Run Driver

A negro named Gay was found on the highway near Gardner's Crossroads this morning, evidently the victim of a hit and run driver.

Highway patrol officers were summoned to investigate the death, but little information was available. The slaying was across the Craven line and the investigation is being carried on from New Bern.

BOMBS WRECK POWER OFFICE

Moors and Fascist Foreign Legionnaires Advance On Socialist Defenders in Spite of Withering Gunfire and Close In On City

(By Associated Press)

Fascist aerial fleets spilled great bombs on the city limit fortifications of Madrid in four vicious waves today while insurgent shells ripped business streets and buildings.

Determined grimly to open a path for the Moors, legionnaires and fascist regulars, stopped by the last-ditch defense of the capital, five bombing planes and a half dozen pursuit ships flew low over the new line of fortification just inside the city limits shortly before 3 p. m.

Red Cross data said at least 20 were killed and many wounded in the newest assault. Three casualties were added to 50 wounded in morning bombardments and between 100 and 200 killed or wounded Sunday by shells and air bombs.

ATTEMPTS END COAST STRIKE

Tie-Up Spreads Despite Negotiations Under Way

(By Associated Press)

San Francisco's maritime strike spread into the shipyards today, while Edward P. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, made desperate efforts to bring ship interests and workers into a new conference to end the 10-day tie-up which has spread to Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Anti-aircraft guns blazed away at the daring raiders, but the fascist planes flew away unhurt, dropping six bombs on government fortifications.

Twenty-three persons were killed Sunday when six workers apartment buildings collapsed under an insurgent bombardment. Many others were injured.

Moors and fascist foreign legionnaires advancing in the face of withering gunfire, waded into the shallow waters of the Manzanares river on the South side of the city. The extent of their penetration was not immediately known.

Thousands of fascists poured into the front lines of the insurgent army, indicating a desperate attempt would be made to capture the city today.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 8th.

The Golden Text was from Romans 8:8. "They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish over the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good." (Gen. 1:26-27, 31) (to first period).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is, always has been, and ever will be, independent of matter; for Life is God, and man is the idea of God, not formed materially but spiritually, and not subject to decay and dust." (Page 200:9-13).

Vesper Services at College

The beautiful and impressive annual installation service of the Junior Cabinet of the College Y. W. C. A. was held at the vesper hour last night. The candlelight ceremony was used. The president, Miss Catherine Wallace, challenged them with a quotation from the Scriptures, "Many are called, but few are chosen." Each member of the Senior Cabinet had heretofore chosen some Freshman to serve with her on the general cabinet. After the president of the College made a talk, she directed the Seniors to tap the girls in the audience whom they had chosen to serve.

There was a dramatic moment as each Senior went out into the audience, tapped the girls whom they had chosen, and presented to them a candle. At each girl's name was called by the secretary, she mounted the stage and her candle was lighted by the president.

The members of the Senior Cabinet are as follows: Miss Catherine Wallace, president; Margaret Norman, vice-president; Mildred McDonald, secretary; Juanita Davis, treasurer; Marie Gregory, social service; Naomi Newell, chairman morning worship; Frances Curran, chairman vesper services; Elizabeth Dixon Johnson, Student Government representative; Nettie Brett Sewell, publicity chairman; Frances Edgerton, chairman world fellowship; Elizabeth Copeland, Teo Echo representative; Edna Earl Perry, music; and Marion Dawson, chairman social committee.

The members of the Junior Cabinet, as are follows: Misses Jane Copeland, Marjorie Heath, Isabelle Pollard, Millie Gray Dupree, Mary Parker Johnson, Adeline Harp, Jennie Mae Brinkley, Truie Newby, Magdalene Powell, Jean White, Evelyn Aiken, Kathleen Strickland, Annie Bee Dean, Helen Gray Gilliam and Maude Evans Phelps.

At the close of the services the new cabinet met and chose Miss Mildred McDonald as their sponsor.

"Shall War or Peace Reign?"

"Shall War or Peace Reign?" by R. L. Thorpe, the pageant presented at the Pitt Theatre on Sunday evening, made a large, thoughtful audience feel strongly how immediate and momentous is the question. In three stirring episodes, a number of Greenville young people (representatives of the Christian Youth Building a New World), helped by the local Council for Peace Action, and the Ministerial Association, gave an impressive dramatization of a frequently recurring problem. This brought to the audience an emphatic realization that the question must be answered by the nations of the world—some of them repeatedly disturbed, bitterly resentful, and almost undone. Every phase of the production—acting, music, and costumes—contributed much to the success of the program.

In the major roles of War and Peace, the Rev. Robert C. Grady and Mrs. J. H. Rose did excellent acting; and in the minor parts, the young people of the churches of Greenville supported them well.

Perhaps the true nature of War was most powerfully revealed when, from his throne, he expressed diabolical delight because "Soldiers, Wealth, Freedom, Education, Church, Science, Morality and Death were all under his control. The wisdom, the sanity and the strength of Peace seemed most likely to be triumphant when, aided by Truth and Justice, she banished War, found guilty of breaking every promise and of being responsible for every kind of loss to the victorious as well as to the conquered.

The disillusioned representatives of the nations and their lonely widows, helpless orphans, disabled soldiers, distraught Freedom, Morality, Science, Education, and the Church—all these explained graphically the cost of the Great War: yet at the end of the third episode, "The Present," the question still is

Question About CARDUI

HOW IT HELPS WOMEN

"Who takes Cardui?" Women who are run-down, weakened, nervous, from not getting sufficient strength from the food they eat. — Thousands and thousands have found that Cardui increased their appetite, improved their digestion, thereby promoting better nourishment, and the consequent strengthening of the whole system. And women who have suffered from functional pains of menstruation have found that, by taking Cardui just before and during the periods, this purely vegetable sedative and antispasmodic seemed to save them much discomfort. This action of Cardui is highly esteemed because the relief credited to it comes in an entirely beneficial way. Cardui is purely vegetable; nothing in it to be afraid of. — (Adv.)

The annual freshman-junior dance at East Carolina Teachers College, took place in the Robert H. Wright auditorium Saturday night from 8 to 10:30.

Elizabeth Copeland, junior president, acted as hostess and master of ceremonies. Stage features included Miss Alice Alligood, a freshman from Fayetteville, who sang, "Shoe Shine Boy" and tap-danced! Alva Page, who sang "When I'm With You"; and James and Marie Smith, talented Greenville duo, who did a soft-toe tap specialty. Miss Marion Wood, at the piano, accompanied the performers.

The auditorium was decorated with paper ribbons of many colors, which the dancers apparently enjoyed winding round themselves. Colored lanterns shed a soft light on the gay assembly.

Ice cream and cake served in the "breadline" style for which Teachers College entertainments noted, made up the refreshments.

See the New Chevrolet
More than 2,500 residents of Greenville and vicinity thronged the showroom of the White Chevrolet Co., Inc., Saturday and Sunday to inspect the new 1937 chevroleto which made their bow all over the United States on Saturday.

Mr. Stafford, head of the firm, reported twelve local sales in that period.

Mr. Stafford reported advice from Detroit to the effect that advance orders for the 1937 models totalled more than 100,000. The message, signed by W. E. Hollar, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, asked him to than local residents for the confidence which had prompted them to invest in Chevrolet's new models "sight unseen."

"The fact that more than 100,000 persons, in all parts of the United States, felt sufficient faith in the institution and its product to take so important a step before they had even seen the car, is a tribute of which any company might well feel proud," Mr. Hollar wired. "And these owners' experience with their cars, throughout the months to come, will justify that faith to the utmost. It is the finest product Chevrolet has ever built."

He added that production in the Chevrolet company's assembling plants from coast to coast was proceeding at a rate which assures prompt delivery in the various models and colors.—Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Honored
Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Parker delightfully entertained last evening at their home in Belvoir, honoring their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Parker, of Richmond, Va., who were married Saturday.

The home throughout was beautifully decorated in pink and white chrysanthemums, carrying out the color note of the wedding.

The dining room was especially pretty. The table was centered with an artistic arrangement of pink and white carnations and fern, flanked by tall white candles.

A pretty wedding cake was placed at one end of the table. Mrs. Mattie Hearne and Miss Effie Hearne of Wilson served a delicious buffet supper. They were assisted in serving by Miss Ernestine Parker. After supper the bride and groom were given pink and white ribbons which led them to the living room, where they found a shower of lovely gifts from the guests.

Punch was served by Miss Bertha Parker. About sixty guests enjoyed the affair.

Mrs. Merritt Entertains
Mrs. R. C. Merritt graciously entertained at luncheon and bridge Saturday at the country club.

Guests were invited for one o'clock, when a delicious turkey dinner was served.

Following luncheon, bridge was played. At the conclusion of the game Mrs. Frank Jolly was awarded a double deck of bridge cards for high score, and Mrs. C. M. Warren a cookie jar for low score.

Miss Hunter Kech was given silk shoes for bingo. Mrs. James Little was remembered with a linen luncheon set and Miss Mary Warren, bride-elect, with lingerie.

The club rooms were very pretty with marigolds and yellow chrysanthemums.

Talks To Parents By Brooks Peters Church

DISCONTENTED BOARDERS
The Smith children treated their home like a boarding house or overnight camp. They used it for sleeping, eating, changing their clothes and studying. They never stayed at home if there was any place to go. They were not interested in its care and upkeep, and seemed to have no affection for it.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith looked upon it as their home. The children were living there temporarily, but as it were, on sufferance. They had no share in its management or arrangement. Even their own rooms were decorated and furnished according to their mother's taste. No child could be expected to love and feel interest in a place in which he had no share, and so the Smith children looked on home with indifference.

It is, of course, quite true that the home belongs primarily to the parents who founded it, and who will probably continue to live in it, long after the children are gone. But as a matter of expediency, the parents cannot afford to insist on their own exclusive possession of the home if they want the children to love it.

If the owner of a boarding house insisted on his rights to the exclusion of the tenants, he would soon have to look for new boarders.

The nesting instinct begins in a child long before he is physically or financially able to build his own home, and it needs expression. Furthermore, customs change from time to time and place to place. What suits father and mother may not be satisfactory to the children. They may even be shy of bringing friends into a home which they realize is in some way different from those of their friends. Generally some compromise can be made.

Necessary Adjustment By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Some houses are run by such hard and fast rules that any adjustment to the needs of its inhabitants is out of the question. Meals are at hours so fixed that to ask them changed turns the whole mechanism of the home topsy-turvy. Of course routine makes the management of the home easier for the housewife. She can plan her time and budget her hours beforehand with the assurance that there will be no slip in the order of the day to upset her arrangements. In most cases, the original schedule made early in marriage takes the husband's hours into account, and so suits his convenience. When the children are babies they can be fitted into the scheme, since they are helpless and have no say in the matter.

As the children grow up, however, there is bound to be trouble. Children do not run by schedule, and have no sense of time. For a while they can be hounded into promptness, or allowed to take the consequences of their tardiness. It is when they reach their middle teens that trouble really begins. Other children sleep late after parties, during vacations, over week-ends. Other children can have the supper hour changed if it interferes with an early show at the moving pictures.

In fact many other children are badly spoiled and have no consideration for law and order. Children should accept a certain amount of rigidity in the hours of meals; they should consider the comfort and conveniences of their parents as well as of themselves. They are far more apt to do so however, if they feel that their parents are willing to come part way and make a compromise.

PROGRESS Last week before teachers in Raleigh there was a discussion of the question: Has North Carolina made progress in education in the last century?

That is an interesting question, but one not half so important as the query: Is there any room for improvement in education in North Carolina today?

This last question has the virtue of being far more easily answered. Consider the facts:

Only South Carolina exceeds this State in the percentage of its population enrolled in the public schools. The percentages are: in the nation, 23 per cent; in South Carolina, 31 per cent; in North Carolina, 30 per cent.

North Carolina's teaching load is 33.7 pupils per teacher, the highest in the United States. The national average is 26.9.

North Carolina's average teacher's salary is $576 (white, $604.50) as compared with a national average of $1,227.

North Carolina's per capita school cost is $28.56, as compared with a national average of $78.55.

North Carolina's percentage of white illiteracy is the highest in the United States, except for Kentucky.

North Carolina's length of term in days is 180 as compared with a national average of 171.5.

Is there room for progress in education in North Carolina? There is only one answer to that question unless the people of North Carolina are not only incapable of progress but even incapable of understanding its need. — Raleigh News & Observer.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker New York. — It's a pathetic, rather hopeless ambition that persuades a girl to strive for success on Broadway. He odds against it are a thousand to one, and even then it is apt to be a temporary thing.

Worrying how best to keep star dust out of her hair, and convinced that her name will soon be in lights, she haunts the casting offices and remains cheerfully optimistic even when the signs say, "No Casting Today—Come Back Tomorrow." Unfortunately, tomorrow rarely comes.

It is a most precarious business, the show business, even after prominence is attained. Only a handful go on from there to added achievements. For the others it's a swift trek down the back track to oblivion. Ask Bernard Sobel, who used to be Ziegfeld's press agent. He helped write the Ziegfeld tradition and he can tell you how fierce a thing fame is on the rick. Ask him where most of Ziegfeld's girls are today.

There was Helen Lee Worthington, lovely daughter of a Boston business man, and "Bubbles" Wilson, who later became Mary Nolan of the films, who brought a new type of beauty to Broadway and gained quick footholds on a street where condescension was a drug on the market. Yet both were tragic failures.

Miss Worthington became the wife of a negro physician who attempted to carve a career for her in Hollywood, and Miss Wilson became the girl in the Frank Tinney scandal. After the episode she dropped out of sight and then reappeared as a new film personality. But success in Hollywood was only temporary and she finally returned to the street where her greatest triumphs and defeats were scored. Her life hasn't been particularly happy in the last few years. I ran into her the other day in a cafeteria, warbling plaintive songs for coffee and cake money.

Helen Walsh's career also came to a tragic end, but not via scandal or the divorce courts. She was burned to death on Harry Richman's yacht when it exploded in Long Island Sound.

Joyce Hawley was another of those lovely, doll-like girls who aspired to the laughter and champagne of Broadway. She went into Earl Carroll's "Vanities" and emerged as the nude in the bathtub of wine at one of Carroll's parties. The attendant publicity earned a prison term for Carroll and a notoriety for Miss Hawley that killed her chances on Broadway. She too dropped out of sight and became

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

Chapter 49 "IF YOU INSIST..."

"FRANKLY, I shouldn't care a hoot if she thought I'd massacred battalions of her uncles," Terence stated. "What the devil did she want to come butting in for tonight? There was no need for her to be there at all. She'd arranged with Lawson to have me kidnapped, and instead of letting him get on with the job, as any sensible person would have done, she had to come barging in herself, turning the whole business into the last act of a film play complete with fair-haired heroine registering lots of emotion. That's the trouble with actresses; they must have scenes."

There was a pause. Then "I think you are an utter pig," said Ruth in a tone of deep conviction.

"What!" exclaimed Mahony. He looked at her and saw, to his surprise, that she was on the point of tears.

"What's the matter, Ruth?" he asked in a concerned voice. "I think you're beastly," answered Ruth, a little indistinctly.

"But... why? For heaven's sake, why?" demanded Mahony hopelessly. "What have I done?"

There was another pause, while Ruth collected her dignity. "I'm sorry I came barging in, turning all your nice, neat little arrangements into a film play," she said in a cold, haughty voice. "However, you won't be bothered with me any more."

"Stop it, Ruth," said Mahony rudely. "Stop being all temperamental."

"I'm not being all temperamental," answered Ruth angrily. "You said that Elsa came barging in, turning everything into a film play, and as I came barging in, too, I must have done the same. Do you think I couldn't see what you meant?"

"I didn't mean anything of the sort," protested Mahony. "You well, you're different. You, didn't barge in—that is, not really barge just a memory in the Broadway bauble. Through the records you go, and time after time you find similar instances. True, in rebuttal, there are the stars like Marian Davies, Gladys Glad, and Mariynn Miller who reached the top and stayed there. But for every one of these there are scores who never got anywhere at all or if they did are remembered now only because they were failures!

New York—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff: Sinclair Lewis calls Paris the Casanova of cities. Does anyone know what became of Leone Sousa? Two years ago she was selected by five noted artists as the prettiest girl in the "Follies."

My idea of a heroic epithet is the one Joseph Conrad (sure, I've been hanging around the waterfront again) wrote for a group of sailors who died in a hurricane off Madagascar. It was "La mort sans phrases."

Walter O'Keefe recites the one about the absent-minded professor who came to New York and, to keep his car from stalling in traffic changed his oil every day and his shirt every 500 miles. Add intriguing personalities who come and go: Hans Stengel, noted German artist, who was known as the star's most affable and picturesque political prisoner. He killed himself in his Greenwich Village studio.

Guy Hears Himself When Erle Oberon gives parties in her New York apartment she likes to wear low cut yellow hostess gowns. Mary Pickford continues to be disconcertingly vague about her reported romance with Buddy Rogers.

Guy Lombardo deserts his band at the Roosevelt Grill for 10 minutes each night. He slips out to hear himself on the radio. A familiar sight: Charlie MacArthur drifting through the raucous, amiable mob at Twenty-one, grinning. Signs in 42nd street: "Trousers torn?" We rewrote them while you wait? "In His love take strength—Jesus saves."

Lotte Lehmann's idea of heaven is a daily swim in the ocean near her villa at Cap d'Antibes. Question: Why must all operatic stars be known as Mme.?

Fanny Hurst doesn't like to give lectures before women's clubs. After one such adventure she asked the audience if anyone would like to put forward any questions. Finally one timid soul arose and timidly began: "What we're really concerned about, Miss Hurst, is the marvelous way you do your hair in the back."

That's just one of 20 reasons why this authoress looks the other way when people beseech her to make

by BAILEY WOLFE

Chapter One Breakfast At The Warrens

R-R-R... At the harsh jangle of the alarm clock, Sally Warren started wide awake. For a moment she stared with dream-clouded eyes at the pink roses on the wall-paper, while the bell wrangled persistently. Then, as the familiar objects of her room began to emerge clearly, she reached for the clock and turned off the alarm with a practiced finger.

She did not get up immediately, for this was the moment Sally loved, the time between waking and rising when she lay quietly in the old walnut bed, with the blue and white patchwork quilt drawn up under her chin. From where she lay, she could look straight into the upper branches of the apple tree, spreading out pink and white and green over the side yard.

But this morning Sally had more exciting prospects before her than the brightness of the April day. She was going to work. At nine o'clock she would walk into the editorial room of the Warrenton Courier and sit down at her own desk to begin her first real job.

Already she had been to the newspaper office and gone over her duties with Miss Della Cotton, the spinster society editor, who was at last giving in to ill health and retiring. Sally had been "helping out" with "the society page" for some time, but this morning she would actually begin to edit the society page—weddings, teas, card parties and all.

The odor of frying bacon made Sally jump out of bed with guilty haste, for that meant her stepmother.

Sally was taking over the society page at the Warrenton Courier.

Adelaide, was beginning breakfast. And breakfast had hitherto been Sally's job.

Briefly she considered her three presentable spring dresses, and decided on the green linen. As she stood before the chest of drawers for one last peek at herself before she went downstairs, she thought, "I'm at least neat and businesslike." Miss Della Cotton would have said that she looked "like a perfect lady," and so she did with her trim figure and small hands and feet. Above the faint collar of her blouse, Sally's face rose clear and came-out, her skin healthily warm, eyes bright and alive.

"I Was Just Plain Lazy" ON the way downstairs, Sally stopped to knock at the twins' doors. Her own room separated theirs from each other just as she stood between the twins themselves in their squabbles—a sort of friendly no man's land. She had to rap twice for each of them and she was late at that. Ray always had some last minute studying to do and Tip had to be called and threatened for at least half an hour. Perhaps, Sally mused, she wouldn't be calling the twins at all this time next year. In less than two months they would be finished with high school, and next year Ray would go off to college all went well. And Tip—who would pretty fly-away Tip do when she no longer had even the slender ties of high school to bind her down to seriousness? Sally didn't know, but at least she didn't have time to worry about Tip this morning.

As she went through the dining room, she noticed that the table was set. Her stepmother must have risen much earlier than usual because Sally was starting to work.

"Mother" she cried, at sight of Adelaide Warren bent over the table cutting out dough in a flurry of flour. "You're making biscuits. You must have got up terribly early."

"Somebody had to get up," said her stepmother sharply.

Lecture tours. Broadway Defined. SIMILE: As pretty as a hostess on an air liner. One of the prettiest is Miss Rhule—who made her last flight just the other night. The boys at the airport were kidding her mercilessly—not because she was getting married and retiring into domesticity, but because her prospective groom was a pilot on a rival air line.

Arch Selwyn, the producer, owns a fancy speed boat and may be found at any hour tuning her up and skimming the white caps of the sound.

Definition of Broadway: "It is a noisy, awkward, often false, and even feverish stretch of highway, overlaid with bunk and showing only here and there a green patch of genuineness."

There is a roadhouse on the Pompton turnpike named the Clark Gable. Gregory Taylor is not only a successful impresario of hotels, he is also an authority on Turkish rugs. Right now he is trying to get away on a fishing trip to Florida waters.

"Your mother, Sally," said Robert Warren, "was a charming woman, a Christian, and a lady, though she didn't know what work was in the sense that you use the word. She presided over her house, she had her social life, her child, her charities—she was a woman who graced her home."

"I'm sorry, Robert, if you feel it necessary to speak to Sally in this way, I've no made you a good wife—the kind you expected, then I'm sorry for it, but as God is my witness I've done my best. Even though you and Sally have made it hard for me. Her voice trembling with anger and hurt, Mrs. Warren turned away and fumbled in the china closet.

"I beg your pardon, Adelaide," said Robert Warren. "You've been all that—that you should be to me. It's I who haven't done my best. I'm a failure. Every day brings it home to me more and more as I see you and the children doing without things and working when you should be enjoying yourselves."

"Of course," said Mrs. Warren, rallying to an argument. "I know you'd be well enough pleased if I went gallivanting off to every teaparty I was invited to."

"And that reminds me," interrupted Sally, "that you must be sure to tell me of any tea-parties or any other kind of parties you hear about, because that's what my page in the paper's made up of."

"Thought you were going to be a real reporter," said Ray, coming into the dining room with a book in his hand. "That kind of stuff ought to be left out of newspapers."

"You better be glad it's in 'em, or I wouldn't have a job." She served Ray's plate with omelet while he opened his book.

PIRATES PLAN MEET QUAKERS

Local College to Engage Guilford Team Next Saturday

The E. C. T. C. Pirates, fresh from their 14-6 victory over the Duke "B" Devils, will be handicapped by injuries when they go to Guilford College Saturday to encounter the Quakers.

The Teachers paid heavily for their muddy victory over the "little devils" Friday. In addition to Shelton, Northcutt, and McGlohon, who were already out with injuries, Sinclair, Ridenhour, Pittman and Ferabee were added to the list. Sinclair suffered a hip injury; Ridenhour, a cut above the eye which required four stitches; Pittman, a chest injury; and Ferabee, a shin injury which resulted in a blood clot. Six of the men injured are first-stringers.

Coach Parley thinks that Northcutt, Shelton, Pittman and Ferabee will be able to start against Guilford Saturday.

The Pirates have lost one game this year, a 7-6 contest with the Western Teachers. Feeling is running high in the Eastern Carolina student body, and two buses have already been engaged to take a cheering section to Guilford.

SAY ANDERSON TO HOLD JOB

State Mentor Declared Sure of Being Re-Hired

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Nov. 9.—Football fans who say they know vouchsafe the information that Coach Hunk Anderson is sure to get another year's trial at State College and that he may get three more.

With the tip comes another that so well do Dick Reynolds of Winston-Salem, and Dave Clark of Charlotte like the coaching of State's head trainer that Mr. Reynolds may feel moved to splice the stadium and make a horseshoe that will seat 24,000 footballists. The certain over-sell-out at Carolina for Saturday's game with Duke renews the story that William Rand Kenan is again offering to put an arc in his beautiful gift and make it as big as Duke's playing field which has some 10,000 on the Tar Heel's present capacity.

News-rearers do not pretend to know that the authorities have acted on the Anderson case. The disfavored coach who lost a hard one to Carolina has convinced the leaders that dissensions on the team have lost games to their lesser rivals. Having Mr. Reynolds about on a short season is quite a break State has had hard competing attractions and the home season closed before cool weather began.

As for the Tar Heel constituency it does not seem to wish for that other 10,000 seating, fearful that any touches put upon the stadium will mar its natural beauty. It was not built for horseshoe shape and Duke's was. But nobody living at the time it was erected ever expected to see either playing field filled, a spectacle already belied by infants.

BITTER FIGHT ON WEDNESDAY

"Beat Washington" Slogan of Local High School

Many citizens of Greenville and Pitt county are looking forward to next Saturday and the Duke-Caroline game. Some are most enthusiastic and are preparing to lose money by betting on the game. But they are not a bit more excited over the Duke-Caroline than the students of the Greenville High school are over the Washington - Greenville game which is scheduled to take place at Washington on Armistice Day. This game, undoubtedly, brings out more rivalry and school spirit in Greenville than any other athletic event. Every year so far Greenville has been so well represented in Washington that they filled up the bleachers on one side of the field. The Greenville High school band will play in Washington and a large cheering section is expected to be present.

The local tea mis in tip top condition and they hope to outshine the Washington eleven.

About all that will be heard around the Greenville High school for the next two days now will be: "Beat Washington," "Beat Washington."

SPORT SLANTS

Tuffy Leemans' sensational debut in professional football is not exactly a surprise. Plenty of reports concerning his prowess have been drifting in for the past few years. When Tuffy was the outstanding griddler at George Washington university the G. W. publicity department put on a determined drive to have him named on everybody's all-American team.

They flooded the sports desks of the nation with 3-sheet blasts that left the sports writers dizzy. So great was the effort in Leemans' behalf that it caused considerable suspicion. The result was that Leemans failed to get the recognition due him.

There can be no doubt about Tuffy's ability to carry a football for long gains. Not after the way he has been ploughing through the bulky lines of the National football league. He's a real football player—make no mistake about that.

Steve Owens, coach of the New York Giants for whom Tuffy has been carrying so nobly, rates the former G. W. U. star as the best ball carrier he ever has had on the Giants' roster.

With the National league's season at the half-way post, figures show that Tuffy has an excellent chance of equaling or bettering the league record of 1,004 yards gained in one season set by Beattie Feathers of the Chicago Bears in 1934. Up to mid-season Leemans had gained a total of 502 yards, exactly one-half of the record. Since Leemans had played in just slightly over four games his record is all the more impressive.

Tuffy's mark already-betters the entire-season figure which enabled Doug Russell of the Chicago Cardinals to earn top ground-gaining honors last year—499 yards in twelve games.

The speeding up of the game in the National league has been responsible for the disappearance of the names of many pro veterans from the lineups. Speed and more speed is the cry in the pro ranks. To that end National teams signed one of the youngest groups of rookies ever to be rounded up.

The result is that the move out two years off the average age of the professional football player. Last year the average pro griddler was 26, but with one freshman college entry only 20 and seven others only 21, average for the circuit now is down to slightly more than 24, the youngest in the history of the league.

To Danny Fortmann, guard of last year's Colgate eleven, goes the distinction of being one of the youngest players to see service with the pros. He is 20, weighs 210 pounds and is 6 feet tall. Fortmann was one of the outstanding linemen for the college all-stars in the two 1936 games against Detroit and the Giants and is playing a stellar game for the Chicago Bears at present. He was a Phi Beta Kappa in college.

The professional football player rarely is seen in action after passing his 30th birthday, but there are three "old men" in the National league today who still command starting posts. Bill Owen, Giant tackle, is the oldest at 33 and has seen 10 years of service in four cities. Walt Kiesling, Green Bay guard is 32 and in his eleventh season. Jules Carlson, in his seventh year at guard for the Bears, is 31.

These players, who have not given us yet the theory that youth must be served, have one thing in common. They are all heavyweights, but have retained enough speed to satisfy the demands of their coach-

For Safety's sake PAVE THE GAPS WITH Concrete

Why do state highway departments warn the public: "Concrete pavement ends"? Because it is universally accepted that speeds which are reasonable and safe on concrete become dangerous on other surfaces. To save lives, to prevent accidents... demand concrete all the way. True and even, it has no high crown—is usable to its full width. Brakes are at their best on its gritty non-skid surface. Its light gray color and sharply defined edges give high visibility at night. Any car is a better car on concrete. And concrete saves money for motorists and for taxpayers. Insist on concrete for your roads.

Governor Praised For His Speeches During Campaign

Ehringhaus Gets Many Messages From Pennsylvania and Ohio Thanking Him For Work

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Nov. 9.—Governor Ehringhaus who gave two weeks to the national campaign, particularly in Ohio and Pennsylvania, is quickly rewarded by many letters and telegrams thanking him for his speaking contributions.

Some of the places at which Governor Ehringhaus appeared were Democratic for the first time since 1860. The Governor does not like himself about his speeches, but he merely claims credit for his sensitiveness to the popular feeling as to have been able to propose the Democratic victories in both Ohio and Pennsylvania. When he telephoned a week before the election from Pennsylvania to Ohio and Pennsylvania would go Democratic his neighbors laughed, and went further when he said that Governor Martin Davis' administration would be upaid and the Democrats would recapture Ohio in the state election.

Notwithstanding the big stake in North Carolina, a vote which would back up what Ehringhaus has done during his four years, the executive went to these states and gave them such speaking as won the applause of everybody. Two North Carolinians who have been attacked for lacking sympathy with the New Deal, showed up big in that campaign and both were Governor. One was Max Gardner who gave a great portion of his time to the national organization, and the other Bucher Ehringhaus who spoke for it, while their accusers remained at home.

There have been post election goings on that look for one of these North Carolina governors to land in the Roosevelt new cabinet. The attorney generalship is the post which Tar Heels would pick for them. Governor Ehringhaus has not planned even his residence after he leaves office, but in the light of his national campaign he could find some mighty good law openings outside if he desired them.

MOVE INAUGURATED TO PROVIDE WOOD FOR CURING WOOD

The plan being worked out here, according to Mr. Bennett, will go a long way in leading to an economical supply of timber for curing the leaf and leave the better timber for other purposes. He said the plan especially would prove beneficial if all lumber companies in the county would join in.

The lumber supply in Pitt county and throughout Eastern North Carolina is diminishing rapidly. Meetings have been held in the section in efforts to devise some method to solve the problem. Already many farmers have purchased furnaces and oil supplies to use in curing tobacco.

The schedule calls for local American Legion members to journey to Washington in the afternoon to help the Washington post celebrate the day with a football game between the high schools of the two towns. The Greenville High school band will take part in the exercises. Miss Kuykendall of the teachers college will have charge of other phases of the musical entertainment.

Veterans of all wars are invited to attend the ceremonies and also at the dinner. Others invited include members of the Legion Auxiliary, all Gold Star mothers, members of the George B. Simgletary chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The local schools will celebrate the day with appropriate ceremonies at their assembly periods Wednesday morning. All schools will be given a half-day holiday.

The Second Term

THEY NAMED THEIR HEIRS

WILL HE?

If President Roosevelt has a successor in mind, he is guarding that secret carefully. No lieutenant yet stands above the field in 1940 prospects.

New Deal 'Crown Prince' Not Yet In Sight For '40

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Will President Roosevelt, like four of the most famous to-term presidents of the United States, "pick" his successor to the White House?

So far no one apparently has been singled out in such fashion as to suggest that Mr. Roosevelt was attempting to develop a New Deal "crown prince" and to build him up in public opinion for the 1940 Democratic Presidential nomination. What might happen in the next four years, however, promises to be a matter of considerable speculation.

The two men hailed as the patron saints of the Democratic party, Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, openly designated their choice of "heir." Theodore Roosevelt virtually dictated Republican selection of William H. Taft. James Madison, "timid little husband" of the famed Dolley Madison, put on pressure for James Monroe as his successor.

Jefferson Over-Rode Protests Many members of Jefferson's Republican-Democratic party were opposed to Madison. Several Republican congressmen joined in issuing a formal protest against his selection as the party's standard-bearer, but the prestige of the sage of Monticello easily prevailed. Jefferson also was said to have arranged that Monroe follow Madison in the White House, and it was understood between the latter two that the Madison administration would exert all of its influence to perpetuate "the Virginia dynasty."

Andrew Jackson, idol of the "plain people," has been rated by some historians as the most brazen dictator in the White House succession. Besides naming Martin Van Buren of New York as his heir apparent, "Old Hickory" was reported to have laid down a program of succession for 24 years—Jackson himself, 8 years; Van Buren, 8 years; and Thomas Benton, 8 years.

Jackson Dynasty Died

That report was never verified, however, and the Jackson "dynasty" lasted only 12 years. Van Buren falling of re-election. There had been considerable opposition to Van Buren's first nomination and election, but Jackson's extraordinary popularity with the electorate put him over.

The next president to be re-elected was Abraham Lincoln, assassinated less than six weeks after his second inauguration. Whether he would have indicated a possible successor is unknown. Sensational revelations of graft and corruption, involving members of the cabinet and congressional leaders, brought disrepute to the second administration of war hero Ulysses S. Grant. The Republicans were split into three groups at the end of the term, and President Grant made no overt effort to clarify his choice for the 1876 nomination.

Panic Upset Cleveland.

Grover Cleveland ran into the 1893 business panic in his second term. The Bryan-free silver element, dominating the 1896 "cross of gold" convention, repudiated Cleveland's leadership of the Democratic party, particularly because of his right advocacy of the gold standard. William McKinley, first of the "front porch" candidates, was assassinated six months after his second inauguration. He had evidenced no preference for a successor. To the dismay of Mark Hanna and other old guardsmen, Vice President Theodore Roosevelt stepped up to the Presidency and was elected to that office in 1904.

As his second term was drawing to a close, the popular Teddy picked the similarly popular "Bill" Taft for the 1908 nomination. With Roosevelt's support Taft won the nomination "in a walk" on the first ballot. Their subsequent estrangement became one of the most dramatic chapters in American political history.

Wilson Remained Silent

Woodrow Wilson was a second-term President who spurned importunities to indicate his preference of party leader in 1920. He adopted a hands-off attitude although probably because—his son-in-law, William G. McAdoo, was one of the leading candidates for the Presidential nomination which went to James M. Cox. Calvin Coolidge maintained a characteristically discreet Coolidge silence when Republicans got down to the business of choosing a potential successor to him in 1928. However, he did make campaign speeches for Herbert Hoover after the latter's nomination.
