FARMERS PAID FIRST MILLION ON 1936 CROP

Payments Under Soil Conservation Program

OFFICIALS PLAN TO ALTER SET-UP

New Dealers Hope to Abrogate Provision Which Calls for "48 Little AAA's"

Washington, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Payment to farmers under this year's soil conservation program passed the first $1,000,000 mark today while New Deal officials laid plans for changes in future agricultural programs.

The first million dollars going to farmers for shifting lands from major crops to soil building growths is only a small start in the flow of $470,000,000 payments under this year's program. A total of 6,000,000 farm owners and operators are expected to receive checks before the 1936 payments are concluded.

New Deal leaders, an authoritative source said, have already decided on one change they will ask congress to make in the present farm act. The existing law contemplates that by 1938 the states will have set up "48 little AAAs" to take over administration of the program, but New Dealers hope to have this provision scrapped, it was said by informed persons.

Through a number of farm leaders recently informed a presidential committee that they want a revival of the old invalidated AAA, under which the federal government levies taxes on processors to pay farmers for joining in production control plans, officials said secretary Wallace did not plan to go that far. Such a decision must come from the White House after cabinet discussion, if at all, it they said.

Part Holiday For City And County On Armistice Day

Complete Program For Exercises Sponsored by Local American Legion Post Announced Today

All city and county offices in the city will close from 10 to 3 o'clock tomorrow in order that employees may attend the Armistice Day exercises to be held here under the sponsorship of the local post of the American Legion.

No general holiday will be observed by business firms, but activity is expected to slacken during the ceremonies and a number of veterans will leave their posts temporarily to attend the exercises.

The complete program of the Armistice Day exercises to be held at the college, beginning at 10:50 were announced this morning.

The program will be opened formally by the local post as follows: advancing the colors, taps, silence (in memory of departed comrades), invoking divine guidance by Rev. R. C. Grady, and reciting the preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion.

The entire group will join in singing "America," after which a college chorus will render Kipling's "lest we Forget."

Julius H. Rose will introduce the speaker of the occasion, A. D. (Lon) Polger, who has just been named to the Superior court bench to succeed Clayton Moore, who resigned.

Following the address, the program calls for a solo by Mrs. J. H. Waldrop. After announcements are made the audience will join in singing "The Old North State," the high school band will play the "Star Spangled Banner" and formal closing by the post will conclude the program. The closing will include retiring of colors and dismissal by the post commander, S. M. Woolfolk.

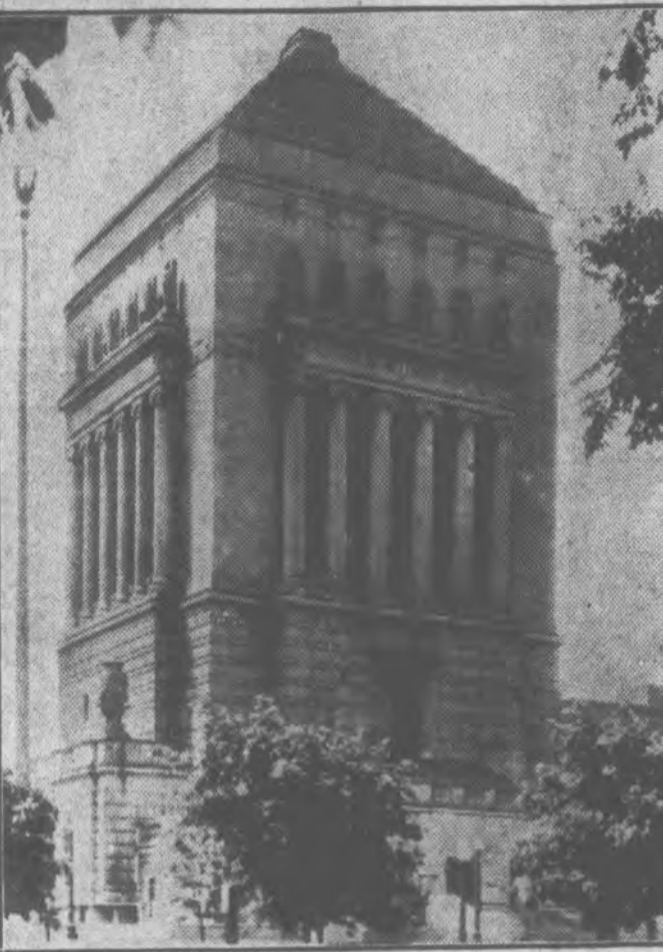

A barbecue dinner will be served in the basement of the Austin building at 12:30 o'clock, with veterans of all wars and members of a number of associated auxiliaries invited to attend.

In the afternoon a large number of Greenville citizens are expected to motor over to Washington to witness the football game between high schools of the two places. The grid contest is an annual affair and claims more attention than any other sports event on the local school's card.

MEDIUM LEAF COUNTY COURT SELLS HIGHER

Number of Farmers From Distant Counties Sell Here

A number of farmers from South Carolina and North Carolina border counties sold their tobacco on the Greenville market yesterday and apparently left with a good impression of the city and well pleased at the way their product sold on the Greenville market.

Sales yesterday were satisfactory, in general, as medium grades sold at what was said to have been the best prices of this season.

Despite the fact the market is nearing the close of the season, the general average continues to maintain its steady incline. So far this year 42,512,566 pounds have been for $10,343,649.40, to set an official average of $24.33 per hundred weight.

Another million-pound day was experienced on the market yesterday, when 1,053,307 pounds were sold for $259,737.57, an average of $24.66.

A comparison of the local market with those of any of the others in this area shows that tobacco is selling stronger in Greenville than elsewhere.

Statement Shows Record Deposits In Guaranty Bank

Total For Institution, Counting Branches, Over $7,000,000; More Than $4,000,000 Here

The condensed statement of the condition of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company issued today shows deposits in excess of $7,000,000, a new all-time high for the institution.

Deposits in Greenville, exclusive of all branches in other cities, also are at a new high—$4,206,401.29.

The statement shows that, in addition to the $3,981,062.95 on hand and in banks, the bulk of the resources is in United States, North Carolina and municipal bonds.

The bank is considered one of the strongest in Eastern North Carolina and was one of the few which weathered the depression without any serious results.

In recent years the institution has grown until now it has a branch here and also has spread into several other towns in Eastern Carolina.

E. G. Flanagan is president of the institution, W. H. Woolard executive vice-president, and J. H. Waldrop is cashier.

"And I wish here and now to advise the Literary Digest to keep all of its books, papers ballots and every other fact connected with the poll intact so that the committee conducting the investigation shall be able to get full, accurate and true information concerning the entire poll."

The Literary Digest predicted the election of Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican presidential candidate, who actually carried but two states—Vermont and Maine.

Johnson Attends Regional Meeting Of Planning Board

Conference Called Today in Knoxville, Tenn., to Map Long-Range Program for Number States

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—Prof. Theodore S. Johnson, Consultant of the State Planning Board who is mapping the long-range program for the board, is in Knoxville, Tenn., today attending a regional conference of state planning board executives with officials of the Tennessee Valley Authority, with a view to working out both an immediate and long-range regional program for all the states in the Tennessee valley or adjoining it.

The states participating in the conference are North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, West Virginia and Virginia.

The program is expected to grow up around the development of recreational and scenic areas in these states, together with the general and systematic development of other natural resources. Prof. Johnson indicated yesterday before leaving for Knoxville.

"This is the first regional meeting and will probably be devoted to a general discussion of ideas rather than to the formulation of any definite program, although the ultimate objective is, of course, the development of a regional program that will include all the states invited to it."

GRAHAM ASKS WAGE BOOSTS

U. N. C. Head Seeks Pay Increase For State Employees

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—(AP)—President Frank P. Graham of the University of North Carolina asked the advisory budget commission today to recommend to the 1937 legislature that all state employees, professors, public school teachers and others, get their salaries restored to the 1930 level.

"It would be sound economics and social policy to restore the salaries, which would be a 15 per cent restoration, not increase," President Graham said.

The highway and Public Works Commission earlier in the day had added its request to those of other state departments for 15 per cent pay increases.

President Graham asked for $1,612,559 for the University of North Carolina for mix funds with the Chapel Hill unit to get $819,210; N. C. College, $411,500; and the Women's College at Greensboro, $381,840.

Other educational institutions were heard this afternoon. The Highway and Public Works Commission's request for state appropriations called for $27,971,922 for 1937-38 and $27,230,539 for 1938-39.

Open Arguments In Supreme Court On Electric Plant

Constitutionality of PWA Funds for Buzzard's Roost Project Challenged by Duke Power Co.

Washington, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A government attempt to furnish money to a publicly-owned hydro-electric project was assailed as unconstitutional today in arguments before the Supreme Court.

Under attack was a $2,852,000 public works administration loan and grant to Greenwood County, South Carolina, for a project at Buzzard's Roost, operated by the Duke Power Company. The decision in this case was expected to control similar government activities.

Representing Duke were Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson administration, and W. S. O'B. Robinson, Charlotte attorney. Ready to speak for the government in defense of the project were Solicitor-General Stanley Reed and Jerome Frank.

Robinson, the first speaker, asserted that the proposed construction was "illegal, unlawful and inflicted special injury by setting up subsidized government competition which would take from the petitioners their business."

"One of the principal purposes of the project," he said, "is to coerce and force private companies to reduce their rate."

The government won in the circuit court of appeals at Charlotte, Queen Of The Coop Washington, Pa. (AP)—Old age overtook a hen that ruled Mrs. L. M. Swihart's coop for 16 years. She said the reason it escaped early death was that it was a special hen—it had 17 toes instead of the usual eight.

Tabulation Shows Record N. C. Vote

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Tabulations completed today from 96 of the state's 100 counties showed North Carolina gave President Roosevelt 591,598 votes, to 211,563 to Governor Landon.

On the basis of the returns already in and the 1932 vote cast in the four missing counties, Secretary Raymond Maxwell estimated the total vote would run close to 840,000, up 18 to 20 per cent from the previous record of 711,000 in 1932.

BARS COUNSEL IN COURT CASE

Attorney Disqualified As Counsel for Representative

Richmond, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Judge Robert N. Pollard barred Jesse C. Duke, an attorney for representative John W. Hoepfel of California and his son, Charles, from further participation in federal district court here today in proceedings by which the government seeks to remove the Hoepfels to Washington to begin serving jail sentences.

The court's action delayed a hearing on the request for removal of the congressman and his son and in order to give the defense time in which to employ other counsel.

They were denied freedom yesterday after a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus and remanded to jail where they have been since their arrest here last Saturday.

Judge Pollard said "Duke's action in this case borders on the crime of harboring criminals."

Congressman Hoepfel and his son are fugitives from Washington, where they were convicted of conspiring to sell an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point. They were arrested in Richmond and were placed in jail to await the hearing on their request for a writ of habeas corpus.

Gastonia Laborer Signs Confession In Wife's Murder

Raymond Edwards Quoted by Sheriff as Admitting That He Killed His Wife After Quarrel

Gastonia, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Sheriff Clyde Robinson announced today he had obtained a signed confession from Raymond Edwards, 29-year-old textile worker detained for investigation in connection with the axe murder of his young wife.

The sheriff quoted the prisoner, held since the slaying five nights ago, as saying he came home drunk, engaged in a violent quarrel with his wife and killed her with an axe after she hit him with a coal shoveler.

"I don't remember much about it," the sheriff quoted the prisoner as saying. "I was tanked up on beer when I got home."

Prior to the confession Sheriff Robinson said Edwards had denied any knowledge of the crime.

NEW CONFLICT PRODS STRIKE

Assistant Labor Secretary Continues Negotiations

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A new conflict between maritime workers and ship owners arose in Honolulu today to harass government efforts to end the strike on the Pacific coast maritime strike.

In a mass meeting 1,000 maritime workers in Honolulu agreed today to return seven strike-bound ships to the Pacific coast from 23-31, but if union longshoremen were used exclusively and if Hawaii waterfront workers are included in further negotiations.

Agents for the Matson line, which owns five of the ships, immediately replied:

"That is out of the question." "A majority of the dock workers here are not union men and don't want to join. This is an attempt to force unions down their throats."

Hawaiian ports of Honolulu and Hilo have been the only major Pacific non union longshore ports since the coastwide 1934 strike.

The deadlock threatens to prolong the tie-up indefinitely.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady said he hopes to bring employers and union leaders together for settlement negotiations by tonight, at the latest.

CAPITAL FATE DESPAIRED OF BY LOYALISTS

Socialist Officials Huddled in Madrid Cellars

FASCIST LINES BLAST AT CITY

Spearhead of Insurgent Forces Advanced Into Limits From Toledo Road

Madrid, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Huddled in cellars, Socialist officials despaired of the capital's fate today in the face of an insurgent advance within 500 yards of the city proper.

Artillery behind the fascist lines showered Madrid in repeated bombardments. Squadrons of low flying insurgent planes blasted at government ministries and fortifications.

Socialist militiamen were forced to retreat into the capital streets.

"At Seville General Gonzalo Quintero de Liano, one of the insurgent high commanders, declared the fascist troops will enter Madrid when the command is given."

The spearhead of the insurgent advance pushed northeast along the Madrid-Toledo highway into the city limits territory around the Toledo bridge.

Insurgent gunners sent shells crashing into the city's central district, driving terrified residents to cover and disrupting business.

The bombardment destroyed many light and telephone lines. In many sections the city was dark during the night.

From concealed positions inside the city, insurgent snipers carried on a shifting gun battle with socialist guards.

Socialist troops scurrying into the city proper under attacking fascist planes today were in the night. Clothing and stores of bread were left behind in the disorderly rush for safety.

American residents in Madrid sought shelter in the United States consulate where 23 nationals were housed.

Hold Up Contract On Five Buildings For Radio Patrol

Bids on Houses Deferred Pending Revision of Specifications and For Possible Rejection

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—The awarding of the contracts for the construction of the buildings for the highway patrol radio stations—five in number—is being held up pending a revision of the specifications and for possible rejection by the board of award Director A. S. Brower of the Division of Purchase and Contract said today, although the bids were so much higher than they were expected to be that they are all being held up for the time being.

"We had estimated that the bids for each house and tuning station, a second small house underneath each radio tower, would run about $8,000 but instead the bid averaged about $12,000, which is more than we have to put into them," Brower said.

"The buildings are of an expensive type—hollow tile with brick exterior—and some of the interior construction called for is costly, especially the room for the transmitter. But we are hoping to be able to make enough changes in the plans and specifications to reduce the cost some what."

The buildings on which bids were asked are 33 feet 6 inches by 27 feet 4 inches and will contain an office and control room, a room for the radio transmitter, a bedroom, bath and kitchen for the operators, and a workshop and store room, with a basement for the heating plant and for additional storage and work space. It is necessary to have a type of building where the temperature can be controlled and maintained at the same level, Brower said, in order to get the best efficiency from the transmitters.

Final decision as to whether new bids will be called for is expected to be reached this afternoon.

Schools To Provide Information On Hogs
Raleigh, Nov. 10.—In a series of schools to be held in 66 of the State's 100 counties this winter, North Carolina farmers will be given advanced information about the raising and caring for hogs. The schools will be conducted by H. W. Taylor, extension swine specialist at State College, in cooperation with county farm agents and other agricultural leaders in the various counties. At present, he said, the schedule calls for schools in 66 counties. A few others may be arranged a little later. Every effort will be made to have all schools report and to the point, he added. "Each school should be completed within a period of two to two and a half hours."

Demography is a branch of the science of statistics, dealing mainly with vital statistics.

A Home That's All Your Own

It's Within Your Grasp—Now!

HOME ownership is a great thing. Since prehistoric times when man wrested the protecting cave from the sabretooth tiger, proprietorship has been a powerful factor in human advancement.

Today it is as strong as ever. You may assert halfheartedly that you are satisfied with rented quarters—hotel rooms or apartments that belong to others—but come now! wouldn't you rather live under your own roof, independent of rental payments, in a home all your own? And your family—?

We helped 72 families to own their home last year, our aim is 100 this year.

Come in today and find out how easy it is to own your home—the building and loan way.

How's Your Health?

Infantile Paralysis Vaccination
With the approach of cold weather wanes the likelihood of the development of infantile paralysis, for it is most common, at least in epidemic form, during hot seasons.

While formerly attention was centered on the use of immune serum (the liquid portion of the blood derived from individuals who had had the disease), efforts to conquer this dread disease have lately been concentrated on the development of an effective vaccine.

Infantile paralysis is caused by a filterable virus, an agent too small to be seen even under the most powerful microscopes. Against other virus diseases, notably smallpox and rabies, we have been able to develop vaccines which, when administered to susceptible individuals cause the mto become resistant to these diseases.

The production of such vaccines was achieved mainly by the attenuation or weakening of the given virus to such a degree that it was no longer capable of producing disease, though it remained sufficient potent to induce the development of immunity (resistance).

Such attenuation was variously achieved in different diseases by exposing their viruses to different chemical agents, by heating or drying them. "Passing" the virus through some other animal in certain instances so changed its nature that it lost its disease-producing potency for human beings.

It was natural, then, for scientists to follow similar procedures in their attempt to attenuate the virus of infantile paralysis, and thus to produce an effective vaccine. During the past two years several vaccines have been brought forth. The problem seems within the range of solution.

Another line of attack has been developed which may prove of real value in the prevention of the disease. This one aims at the creation of a barrier to the entrance of the virus.

It is believed that the portal of entry of the virus of poliomyelitis is the lining membrane of the nose. By spraying a solution composed of one-half of one per cent each of picric acid and alum in a physiological salt solution on the membranes of the nose, in sufficient quantity to reach the back of the throat, it is believed that the virus can be prevented from entering the nerves of smell.

It is recommended that the spray be applied three or four times on alternate days and later weekly, as long as the epidemic lasts. The effectiveness of this prophylactic treatment is as yet undetermined.

Barefoot Boy
The barefoot boy has been a favorite theme for artists and poets ever since the "cult of the commonplace" started a hundred and fifty years and more ago. Unquestionably he is a charming person when met in poems and pictures, perhaps at one time he was charming in real life. Today he is more than apt to have athlete's foot, and no one can be charming under such conditions.

How prevalent the disease was before the "public bathing" habit started no one knows. Today nearly every other person has or has had athlete's foot, and generally the sufferer caught it in a bath house or a public shower or a swimming pool or on the beach. It is highly infectious, and may be caught in one's own home if some one suffering from it has been wandering about barefoot.

In its early stages many people do not recognize it. Children especially, and most of all those who have been permitted to go barefoot, are seldom aware that there is anything the matter until they once more put on shoes and socks, and experience the itching which is characteristic of the complaint.

Allowed to go unattended for any length of time, athlete's foot is very hard to cure, and even when it seems eradicated it is apt to reappear in a few months. If a child is really suspected of athlete's foot he should be taken to a physician for expert diagnosis and care.

The best defense is prevention and this is made possible only by constant watchfulness. Some public pools provide disinfectants for use before and after bathing, and children should be warned of the danger of neglecting the precaution. For the rest, the most one can do is to make them shoe and slipper-conscious, and not let them wander about the countryside barefoot, even on the hottest days.

Civilization with its crowds and its infections demands a price. The passing of the barefoot boy is part of it.

Foodstuffs Canned For Use This Winter

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—Thousands of North Carolina farm families will have well supplied tables this winter if entries in the state-wide canning contests are representative of work done this year in conserving foodstuffs for home consumption.

A total of 4,601 farm women participated in the two canning contests conducted by the home demonstration division of the State College extension service, Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, extension specialist in food conservation, who had charge of the contests, announced today.

The purpose of the contests, she said, was to stimulate more interest in the better canning of fruits, vegetables, and meats produced on the farm to help balance the family diet during cold weather months.

IT SHOULD BE A HOLIDAY

Tomorrow is another anniversary of the armistice that marked the end of the world war and according to reports the day will be observed less as a holiday here than during the eighteen years since the war ended. When one takes into consideration what the armistice meant, not only to the men in the service, but to the world as a whole, the day should be observed as an international holiday. When the tobacco markets in this section decline to observe the holiday, the banks paying off tobacco sales cannot close up and as long as the tobacco markets and the banks do business, naturally the other business houses feel compelled to remain open to take care of their trade.

Armistice Day should be observed throughout this and other lands and we would like to see the day designated as a complete holiday the same as Thanksgiving and Christmas. If the matter is left to the individual communities or states there will never be a general observance of the day.

URGES PREVENTION OF CRIME

Editor Daily Reflector: As a citizen of this community I feel it my duty to arouse the interest of the members of my group concerning the rapid growth of crime, especially on First, Evans, Colaciche, Allen's Alley and other streets and parts of this community. The disrespect for law and order, the loss of life, crippling and disease of human beings, hatreds, and general evil, moral effects of crime, is a problem that should be of interest to every citizen, and the billions of dollars that are spent annually as a result of crime might go into productive labor, building of industry, beautification of cities and country, arts and culture, the elimination of poverty and discomfort and the promotion of peace and happiness.

I am urging the colored citizens to become more active in cooperating with the law-enforcing officers in the prevention and apprehension of crime and the just conviction of criminals. These officers are our protection and need and appreciate our assistance and we must suffer in proportion to our neglect or refusal to aid them. The youth of today are the men and women of tomorrow and their status in society will have its bearing upon our American Democracy. Therefore, it be-

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Sally Warren seeks with the exciting prospect of starting her new job as society editor of the Warrenton Courier. Always thoughtful of others, she calls the twins, vivacious Tip and studious Ray, and trips down stairs to find her stepmother reluctantly getting breakfast—ordinarily Sally's duty. Taking over the biscuit making, Sally deftly finishes the breakfast preparations. Her father, a respected small town lawyer whose income has dwindled sadly, joins them and the conversation veers to Sally's job as 18-year-old Ray comes to the breakfast table.

Chapter Two In The Editorial Room

RAY WARREN gulped down his second cup of coffee and folded the rest of the egg into a sandwich, while his mother looked on disapprovingly.

He was a dark, handsome boy, rather slight as yet and full of promise, if his high spirits could be turned into the right channel. He was studying hard now for a scholarship which would take him away to college and a pre-medical course. Watching him eat and read, Sally thought he might as well be eating sawdust as biscuits and omelet.

"You ought to eat more, Ray," Mrs. Warren complained. "You need plenty of good food while you're growing." "Don't worry about me, Mom. I'm always stuffing from morning till night. I've got my pocket full of peanuts now. So long—"

He gave his mother a hasty kiss and ran out. Adelaide Warren's eyes followed him adoringly.

"Don't you think he looks thin, Sally?"

"He's just growing fast," comforted Sally. "I think he's handsome and fine—going to be a good doctor one of these days if we keep him on the track, and a heart-breaker besides."

"I hope he won't marry for a long time, if ever," said Mrs. Warren sadly.

"Well, I'm going to, and you might as well get used to the idea," said Tip Warren, coming in unexpectedly and lifting her mother clear of the floor in a quick hug.

"Tip, you little wretch, let mother go!" said Sally, coming to Adelaide's rescue. "Go and play with Dad—you know he likes it."

"Of course he does," said Tip, kissing Robert Warren's bald spot, and taking away his paper. "How much money have we made while we slept, Dad?"

"None—none at all," said her father with a sigh.

"Never mind," said Tip, attacking the breakfast with good appetite, "I'll no one handsome come along, I'll marry a rich man and save the family."

"Tip," murmured her mother disapprovingly, but the look she gave Ray's twin was anything but harsh. Nobody could ever be very cross with Tip, who was dark like Ray, but small and vivid, like some of the pictures of the Warren women, who had been belles of Warrenton for generations.

"Forbid Tip To Fly!"

"WHILE you're horrified, I may as well tell you I'm going up with Duke Adams in his new plane this evening," said Tip calmly.

"You're not!" said her mother. "Robert, forbid her to go."

"If Sally goes up with Terry Maynard, I don't see why I can't go up."

"If no one handsome comes along, I'll marry a rich man and save the family," said Tip.

with Duke," pouted Tip.

"Of course you want to do what Sally does," said Mrs. Warren angrily. "I knew something would come of Sally's going about with that garage man."

"Come, come, now, Adelaide," said Mr. Warren mildly. "Young Maynard's a schoolmate of Sally's and a fine fellow. I can't say I want either of you two flying, but Sally is old enough to pick her own friends, I'm sure."

"Yes, Sally can pick her friends."

When we seriously consider the burdens of our peace officers, especially the Juvenile Court Judge, and Truant, and probation officers, we will see a great need for more probation, Juvenile Court Reporters, and other workers as well as a greater cooperation on the part of all citizens, as the basis of most crimes can be very easily traced to either the neglect of the parent, guardian, or society and is a problem that seriously affects every citizen.

and lead Tip, who's not old enough to know better, to that old garage to take what's left."

"Mother!" Sally's face was stricken. "You don't—you don't think that about me!"

"Of course she doesn't," said Tip, pushing back her chair. "She's only mad with me and she's taking it out on you. By—by—"

Tip blew them a kiss and went off cheerfully. Family rows never worried her, so long as she had her way.

"Don't you bother with the dishes," said Mrs. Warren, without looking at Sally. "I'm sorry I said what I did about you and—that boy. I'm sure I didn't mean any harm."

"That's all right," said Sally, warming toward her stepmother, for Adelaide Warren rarely admitted that she was in the wrong. "But I will run along. I don't want to be late the first morning." She started out, then turned back impulsively. "Mother, if it will make you feel better, I'll promise not to go up with Terry any more—without asking you and Dad first."

"If you would, Sally," said Mrs. Warren, looking relieved. "I declare, Tip worries me so. I know that Duke Adams is not a fit person for her to be with, and she's too young to fly anyway."

"Tip was born with wings," said Sally, laughing, "but the rest of us have to work for 'em."

Enter: The Society Editor

SALLY was glad to leave the house behind and go to the dusty old brick building on Main street which housed the Warrenton Courier. The clock struck nine as she climbed the stairs and paused timidly in the doorway of the big editorial office. There was no one there except the city editor, who had the largest desk, in one corner of the room.

"Good morning," said Sally uncertainly.

"Good morning," said the editor absently, without looking up. He had already gone over Sally's duties with her and had promptly forgot that there was to be a new person in the office. Sally knew him well at eight and her father had known him for years. Hugh Johnson was a competent newspaper man and everyone knew that old Mr. Wingate, who owned the paper, had long since turned over all the editorial work to him. Mr. Wingate rarely came to his office for more than an hour a day, and his editorials grew fewer and less vigorous all the time.

Sally crossed to the big desk that had been Miss Della's. There were already some items on her desk, and there was a copy of the evening paper with several bits of local news marked for her. She was busily pecking at the typewriter when the sports editor, Mac McCullom, came in. He sauntered over to Sally's desk and watched her progress with interest.

"Where'd you learn to type?" he asked presently.

"I—I learned at home by myself," said Sally, startled.

"Pretty good," said the red-haired Scotchman. "You're just what this

Mr. Broughton could have been on the spot, but he doesn't get caught often. During the panel discussion of education, he took the position that teachers applauded from the floor. When one of the fiery prohibitionists animated upon the morals of a state which first puts a textbook condemning alcoholic drinks, then opens ABC stores and brags about the taxes that they pay," there was applause. but Mr. Broughton reminded the excited lady that the book in question deals with the effects of liquor, not with the buying, selling or making. He fancied that if a football player foregoes the poison, not because it is sold by blind tiger rather than by the county, but because the stuff hurts footballing, education has made some gains.

The Second Term

F. D. R.'s Victory Raises Query On Third

By ALEXANDER GEORGE

SET PRECEDENT When the question of a third term comes up, folks always point to George Washington, who considered two term enough.

TRIE TO BREAK IT Theodore Roosevelt headed the unsuccessful Bull Moose ticket in 1912 after having served from 1901 to 1909.

FOUND TWO ENOUGH Calvin Coolidge might have been nominated in 1928 but he did not choose to run — after two terms.

JUST ONCE AGAIN? President Roosevelt is headed to ward his second inaugural. He has not indicated whether or not he would like a third.

Washington (AP) — Precedent-smashing Franklin D. Roosevelt will begin his second administration with the American tradition of "no third term for Presidents" still unbroken.

One of the questions which immediately bobbed up with his re-election, was whether he might be inclined four years from now to brush aside the no-third-term custom as he has already shattered several political party and Presidential precedents.

Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated that he is no respecter of tradition merely for tradition's sake. His first four years in office have in no way committed him, so far as the public knows, either to the candidacy of anyone else for the Democratic nomination in 1940 or to refrain from seeking it himself.

Unwritten Law

Since George Washington set the fashion, there has been a sort of unwritten law that eight years be considered the limit of any man's service at the head of the government. Only two men, Ulysses S. Grant and Theodore Roosevelt, have been candidates for third terms. Their candidacies, however, followed intervening administrations and Grant failed of third-term nomination.

Washington, who was the only President unanimously re-elected made known to intimates early in the last year of his second administration that he would decline a third term. He had not been the candidate of any particular party, and there is little doubt that he could have been re-elected again if he had desired.

Jackson Favored One Term

Jefferson announced after his second inauguration that he would not be a candidate again. Andrew Jackson, in his first message to congress, expressed the opinion that it was advisable to limit the service of the chief executive to a single term of four or six years. He repeated this recommendation in several messages.

An idol of the masses, General Jackson acceded to demands of his followers that he seek a second term. He made no effort to obtain a third term although some of his enthusiastic supporters maintained he could keep on being re-elected as long as he lived. However, he stepped out of the office just in time to escape "the terrible panic of 1837."

Grant Movement Killed

Two years before Grant's turbulent second term expired, it was rumored he would be a candidate for a third term. In a letter to a Pennsylvania Republican, he said: "I do not want a third term any more than I did the first." But he added that the people were not restricted to two terms by the constitution.

President Grant said that the time might come when it would be unfortunate to make a change at the end of eight years and that he would not accept a nomination "unless it should come under circumstances as to make it imperative—circumstances not likely to arise."

This "leaving the door open" to a third term stirred heated public discussion. Then congress virtually killed a possible Grant third term movement at the time.

A Democratic member from Illinois offered a resolution that "in the opinion of this house the precedent established by Washington and other Presidents in retiring universal concurrence a part of our Republican system of government and any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

The resolution was adopted by the huge majority of 234 to 18. It was supported not only by all Democratic members but by 70 out of 88 Republican representatives who voted. Four years after the completion of his second term, Grant was again proposed for the 1880 Presidential nomination. His name led for 36 consecutive ballots but the convention finally chose Garfield.

T. R. Might Have Been First

When it became certain that he had been elected for a second term by an overwhelming majority in 1904, Theodore Roosevelt announced he would not seek a third term.

"On the fourth of March next, I shall have served three and a half years—and three and a half years constitutes my first term," Teddy said. "The wise custom which limits the Presidents to two terms regards the substance and not the form, and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination."

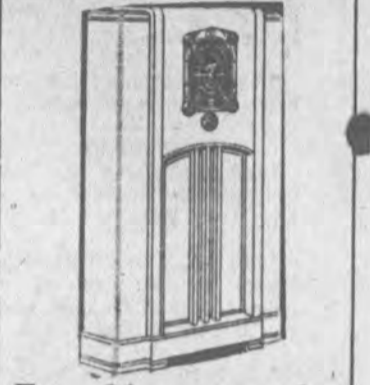

But in 1912 he came the Presidential candidate of the Bull Moose Progressives in the famous campaign which split the Republican party and resulted in the election

STATE CLASSIC SET SATURDAY

Duke and Carolina to Risk Conference Records

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 10.—The Carolina football squad has already begun intensive preparations for the crucial Duke game here Saturday.

The Tar Heels and the Blue Devils are both undefeated in State and Southern Conference loops, but Duke will rule the favorite in Saturday's contest.

Carolina's athletic director, Bob Fetzer, who scouted the Duke-Wake Forest game Saturday, and has seen Duke play several other times this season, reports Coach Wallace Wade's charges to be even better than they were a year ago when they crushed the brilliant Shavelly-coached outfit, rated eighth best team in the nation, by the decisive score, 25 to 0.

"The Blue Devils have everything that characterizes them as being one of the outstanding teams in the country," said Coach Fetzer. Blocking, passing, tackling, punting and running, they excelled in all of these departments over a hard fighting but outclassed Baptist eleven.

"And talk about reserve strength! Duke put two fine teams on the field and both showed marked ability in speed, cunningness and elusiveness. Captain Parker, Tipton, Smith, Hackney, Johnston, Gardner O'Mara—they all performed well."

"Captain Parker ran, passed and kicked as well as he did against Tennessee two weeks ago. And you know how good he was against the Vols."

The Blue Devils have outdistanced the Tar Heels in running, passing and punting this season. Including the week-end tilt with the Deacons, Duke has massed 1749 yards on rushing in eight games as compared to 1112 for Carolina in seven contests.

In passing the Blue Devils' total is 503 yards in eight games against 387 yards for Carolina in seven games. In punting Parker has a 3-yard edge on Burnette per boot. But while Duke holds an edge over Carolina, the Tar Heels will be striving to repeat their upset 7 to 0 of Duke in the 1934 game.

STATE DEFEAT TO HELP TEAM

Wolfpack Confident Over Chances To Defeat Catholic

College Station, Raleigh, Nov. 10.—There are times when a defeat is about as helpful to a ball club as a victory. Such was N. C. State's defeat by Boston colleges on Saturday.

The game showed the Wolves that they had at last reached the point where they were a great ball club. Their running attack, with Joe Ryneska and Eddie Berlinski setting the pace, clicked. Their pass plays worked. Joe Schwerdt completed six out of twelve. Their defense against Boston's aerials was almost perfect, and Charlie Gadd's kicking and pass receiving was great.

The Pack seems to have but two major worries now—injured men and a hard luck game jinx that has made the ball club the Anthony Adverse of Southern football. Nothing but two unfortunate breaks kept State from beating Boston.

The first came when Eddie Berlinski's 60-yard run that put the ball in scoring position was nullified when officials ruled Joe Ryneska tripped a Boston player. According to Ryneska, the Boston man admitted there was no tripping, but Berlinski's gain was lost.

The second State loss resulted when Charlie Gadd, after taking a pass from Schwerdt, ran to Boston's seven yard line where in spinning out of the arms of a Boston player, the ball was knocked from his arm and recovered by the Eagles. It was a tough break for State and Gadd as he would have scored.

The Boston game has given State confidence and if the hard luck jinx can be left behind Saturday when State meets Catholic University at Washington the Pack is confident it will win the ball game. The team is in the best frame of mind it has been in all year and with Captain Max Cara, Mason Bug, Alex Regan, and Louie Mark playing bril-

Game Warden Back From Wildlife Study

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—Chief Game Warden C. N. Mease of the Mt. Mitchell Game Refuge in Yancey county, at the base of Mt. Mitchell, is expected to return today or tomorrow from a trip to Pennsylvania where he was sent by the Department of Conservation and Development to study the methods of raising wild turkeys used there.

The Conservation Department has already authorized an extensive program for the propagation of wild turkeys in an effort to replenish the fast-diminishing supply of these birds in North Carolina. An effort will be made to raise a large number of wild turkeys on the Mt. Mitchell game refuge, where Mease is chief warden. Various species of pheasants and ruffed grouse have been raised and liberated at this refuge for several years.

INFORMAL ALUMNI LUNCHEON AT CAROLINA-DUKE GAME

Chapel Hill, Nov. 10.—Arrangements to take care of the big crowd expected here Saturday are being rushed at the Carolina Inn, University alumni headquarters in Chapel Hill. The customary dining room and cafeteria service will be augmented on the day of the game with an informal barbecue luncheon on the lawn.

Alumni and other visitors are to be accommodated at this gathering, at which barbecue secured from a well known Eastern Carolina barbecue chef will be served buffet style, from 11 o'clock until game-time. Informal alumni reunions and get-togethers will be the order of the occasion.

DICK BUCK AND 'ACE' PARKER DUKE-CAROLINA CAPTAINS

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 10.—All Southern captains lead the Tar Heels and Blue Devils into action Saturday in the crucial meeting between the two elevens. Dick Buck, end, is Carolina pilot while Clarence "Ace" Parker, is the Duke grid captain. Both were named on All-Southern mythical elevens in both 1934 and 1935. At the present time the two are being prominently mentioned for All-American honors. Parker hails from Portsmouth, Va., while Buck comes from Brackenridge, Pa.

"YOU KNOW HOW one ride feels," says Al McKee, scenic railway operator. "I do it all day long and digestion is no problem with me. I smoke Camels during meals and after. They promote good digestion. I get a 'lift' with a Camel. And they don't bother my nerves." Sir Hubert Wilkins, the Famous Polar Explorer, After Rugged Arctic Fare—Seeks the Comfort and Cheer of Camels! He is one of the world's most famous explorers. He knows the Arctic and the Antarctic. He has crawled over treacherous ice, fought his way through howling blizzards. He has lived on pemmican and biscuit. "Where I've gone, Camels have gone," says Sir Hubert. "An explorer needs good digestion. I take what I can get to eat and like it. Smoking Camels adds gusto to my meals and brings me a great feeling of well-being. Camels set me right!" "MENTAL WORK often affects digestion," says Miss J. O'Neill. "Smoking Camels helps my digestion and makes food taste better." C. V. DAVIS' JOB is plenty tough on digestion. He says: "Camels seem to be just what I need to keep my digestion in working order."

ENJOY CAMELS OFTEN...FOR A CHEERY "LIFT"... FOR A SENSE OF WELL-BEING...AND "For Digestion's Sake...Smoke Camels!" COSTLIER TOBACCOS Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS...Turkish and Domestic...than any other popular brand. IT'S NOT alone what you eat that's important. How you digest it counts for a lot too. Camels at mealtime help in two special ways. They ease tension and stimulate the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—so necessary to normal, healthy digestion. Join the Camel smokers! Camel's mildness and finer flavor—Camel's energizing "lift" and aid to digestion—add pleasure the whole day through. Camels set you right! NEW HOLLYWOOD RADIO ATTRACTION!
