ANOTHER CASE FILED AGAINST MORTGAGE ACT

Constitutionality Of Frazier-Lemke Bill Challenged

JUSTICES HEAR ORAL ARGUMENT

Government Permitted to Intervene in Case Pertaining to Recent Gold Clause

Washington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Another case involving constitutionality of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act was filed in the Supreme Court today by Robert Page Wright, of Bedford county, Virginia.

Attorneys filing the appeal included Representative Lemke, of North Dakota, co-author of the legislation and the Union party's candidate for president in the November 3rd election.

Under the act farmers were given a three-year moratorium before their mortgages could be foreclosed.

The petition arrived after the court had held a session which produced no opinions, and then started on another week of arguments, including three New Deal controversies.

Wright appealed from a ruling by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals dismissing his petition on the claim by the Vinton branch of the Mountain Trust Bank of Roanoke, Va., that the legislation took their property without due process of law.

In its session, which lasted only a few minutes, the court permitted the government to intervene in a case intended to determine whether the "gold clause" resolution barring payment of obligations in gold applies to rental contracts.

LaGuardia Favors Federal Operation Of Security Act

Expresses Opinion States Should Make Financial Contribution To Carry On Its Operation

Washington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A recommendation that administration of the social security program be taken over completely by the federal government with states making financial contribution only, was made today to the United States Conference of Mayors by its president, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York.

LaGuardia also suggested creation of a federal agency through which municipalities could do their financing, establishment of an inter-city civil service to help train heads of municipal departments, and formation of a bureau in the federal trade commission to deal with violation of fair trade practices involving municipalities.

"Instead of the Federal government making contributions to the states," he said, "the states should make contributions to the Federal government and have it administer the program uniformly."

Farm Land Demand Greatest Since 1928

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Demands for farm land is at the highest level in eight years as a result of rising agricultural commodity prices and loans have increased accordingly, Gov. W. I. Myers of the farm credit administration told the 70th annual meeting of the national grange today.

"An 80 per cent increase in farm income since 1932 and more advantageous farm credit terms have set a premium farm ownership," Myers said.

"Voluntary transfers of farm land are now at the highest level since 1928."

BEGIN SET-UP SECURITY ACT

Federal Government Undertakes Gigantic Task

Washington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The federal government began today the most gigantic task of its kind ever undertaken—the job of setting up social security accounts for some 26,000,000 workers.

From 45,000 postoffices throughout the country postmen set about with forms to be delivered to 5,000,000 business establishments. Thus, began the unprecedented operation of collecting the basic data for the old age pension system applying to workers in factories, mines, mills, offices, stores and other business establishments.

The time for the creation of the mountainous files of information was growing short, for the old age pension taxes—starting at one per cent on each dollar of workers' earnings up to $3,000 a year and one cent for every dollar of the employer's payroll—will go into effect January 1, 1937.

The taxes will increase gradually until, beginning in 1949, they will be three per cent of wages and three per cent of payrolls. The money is being collected to finance pensions ranging from $10 to $85 a month to which the workers will be entitled on reaching the age of 65.

PUSH EFFORTS TO END STRIKE

Labor Official To Present Proposal To Employers

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady thought another peace proposal today to present to employers in the Pacific coast far-reaching maritime strike.

The labor department's age trouble shooter called a meeting of sailors and engine room workers, believed by observers to be the key unions in the peace efforts.

He indicated he hopes to obtain at least a tentative acceptance of proposals "along lines suggested by employers" who rejected McGrady's negotiations formula Saturday.

Rank and file seamen leaders, who picketed the trans-Atlantic liner George Washington by airplane and motor launch when it docked at New York Saturday, claimed the decks and engine rooms would refuse to sign on for the scheduled sailing Wednesday.

Seventy of 7,000 ship passengers stranded in Honolulu when the strike was called October 29 obtained passage on a Japanese liner. Those still stranded started negotiations with union leaders and ship owners for release of one vessel to bring them to the mainland.

Harry Bridges, whose longshoremen are backing the sailors and demanded continued control of their own hiring halls, told a western writers congress unless a settlement is reached soon the walkout "may spread to another 150,000 or 200,000 workers."

Group To Recommend State-Wide Liquor Plan

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A state-wide liquor control law, placing all liquor stores in the state under centralized state control and supervision, but leaving most of the profits from the sale of liquor in the counties, will be recommended by the State Liquor Fact Finding Commission, of which Representative Victor S. Bryant of Durham is chairman, according to those who have been following the work of the commission.

The commission has completed its public hearings, has held one or two executive sessions and is now at work on the report it will submit to the general assembly, it was learned from an authoritative source today. There are intimations that the report of the commission, together with its recommendations and the sample bill it is expected to draw up, will be submitted to Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus soon after December 1.

While no member of the commission has made any public statement or given any indication of what the commission will recommend, there are intimations that the commission may avoid making any definite recommendation that any law legalizing the sale of liquor in North Carolina be enacted, but rather say that if the general assembly decides to enact a law legalizing liquor in

REICH PROTEST DISPATCHED TO SOVIET RUSSIA

Objects to Arrest in Madrid of 23 Germans

FOURTEEN HELD FOR CONSPIRACY

Objection Declares That No Serious Reason Given for Arrest of Citizens

Moscow, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The German government protested sharply to Soviet Russia today against the arrest of 23 German citizens.

The protest followed Soviet announcements to the German government that charges of espionage and conspiracy had been lodged against 14 of those arrested.

Accusations against the other nine Germans had not been disclosed. Previously they were reported detained with a number of persons of other nationalities in connection with an alleged fascist plot against the Soviet government.

The German protests, delivered by the German Charge de Affairs, said the Reich considered that "no serious reason has been given for the arrest of its nationals."

It felt further, the protest added, that their arrests were extremely aggravating to a certain strain in good relations between the two governments.

The German asked additional information concerning the detentions, together with whatever proof of wrong doing had been gathered against those held.

Suspended Unions Asked To Return And Take Places

William Green Calls Upon John L. Lewis' Group To Recognize Principles of Democracy

Tampa, Nov. 16.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today urged John L. Lewis' rebel unions to "come back and take their seats" in the federation's annual convention.

"I ask them to recognize the principle of democracy," Green said in his opening talks.

"I ask them to come back and take their seats with us and fight out our differences in many fashion in the conventions of the American Federation of Labor."

Greene previously had insisted, however, that the Lewis rebels, suspended two months ago for "insurrection," would have to give up their committee for industrial organization, before peace could be made.

"I ask you," he roared, "would you tolerate in your unions a minority organization—organized to put into effect a policy lost in your union conventions."

Group To Recommend State-Wide Liquor Plan

the state, it will "suggest" the type of law which it thinks would operate most satisfactorily.

So instead of making a definite set of recommendations, it is regarded as likely that the commission will merely present a draft of a bill which in its opinion will set up a state-wide liquor control and liquor stores system best adapted to conditions in North Carolina. Some also believe that the commission will not attempt to touch upon the question of whether a state-wide election or county-wide election should be held in determining whether liquor shall be sold in the state and where, but that the commission will leave this matter entirely up to the general assembly.

It is agreed, of course, that the commission will submit an exhaustive report on the results of its various hearings and investigations and that it will set forth in considerable detail both the advantages and disadvantages of the two principal systems of liquor control, namely (1) The state monopoly system, such as in effect in Virginia and (2) The state license system, such as is in effect in South Carolina. It is also expected that the commission will devote considerable wordage to the county control system in effect in 18 counties here in North Carolina, also that it will have some very critical if not caustic comments on the present law.

Automobile Wreck Fatal To Two Greenville Men

Dr. F. Marion Davis and C. Heber Forbes, Jr., Victims

Two prominent Greenville men, Dr. F. Marion Davis, 35, associate surgeon at the PMA General hospital, and C. Heber Forbes, Jr., 29, who was connected with his father in business here, were killed yesterday when their automobile dashed from the highway, turned over several times and landed in the yacht basin just beyond the Edgewater club entrance this side of Morehead City.

Nathan Woodard, negro orderly at the hospital and driver of the car, died about three hours after the wreck from injuries suffered in the accident.

Miss Alma Lee of the Greenville schools and Miss Lucille Norton, teacher at East Carolina Teachers college, who also were in the car, suffered injuries, but their condition was not considered critical. Miss Lee was released from the hospital at Morehead before six o'clock. The wreck occurred shortly after three o'clock.

Hospital attaches at the Morehead hospital said today Miss Norton's condition was better than it was last night. She did not suffer any broken bones and it is thought she escaped internal injuries, although a complete examination had not been made this morning.

Miss Lee, who returned here last night, was said to be resting as well as could be expected. Her condition was not considered serious as she did not suffer any broken bones or internal injuries, so far as been determined.

The party was on the way to Morehead. Eye witnesses said the car was travelling at a rapid rate of speed. It is thought that a rear tire blew out, causing the wreck.

Dr. Davis died immediately, while Mr. Forbes lived an hour or so. Death in both instances was thought to have been caused by blows on the head.

Mr. Forbes, the only son of Mr. (Continued on page six)

Japanese Planes Bombard Fort Of Chinese Province

Three Thousand Infantry Troops Assist in Assault Against Suiyuan Provincial Defenders

Peiping, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Eight Japanese fighting planes bombed provincial fortifications in Eastern Suiyuan province in an attack near Taolin, Chinese sources reported today.

Three thousand infantry troops, composed of Manchoukuo and Mongol irregulars, assisted in the assault against Suiyuan defenders, the reports declared.

The attack was reported to have occurred yesterday at the Suiyuan city, 125 miles northwest of Kalgan. Message accounts said the attackers, launched six drives combining infantry, aviation, heavy artillery and tanks.

Suiyuan provincial troops repulsed the offensive, the reports asserted, inflicting "heavy losses on the invaders." Suiyuan commanders acknowledged slight losses.

BATTLES RAGE ACROSS RIVER NEAR CAPITAL

Insurgents Seek Foothold in University City

REBELS DEVELOP STRONG POSITION

Main Fighting Rages Between Opposing Groups on Madrid Banks of River

Madrid, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Violent fighting raged today for control of a crossing of the Manzanares river and "Frenchman's bridge" as insurgent troops struggled to gain a foothold in University City.

(Insurgents have announced officially that Moors and foreign legionnaires had occupied a position in University City, a northwestern section of Madrid proper.)

University City itself was under the heaviest shell fire of the night, now in its 11th day.

But the main battle lay between the insurgent forces on the other side of the Manzanares and government forces on the Madrid banks.

The civilian population on the fringes of University City was swarmed as shells dropped into the side streets, smashing house fronts and pavement.

At the Princess bridge the fascists were reported a mile and a half on the other side of the bridge with their lines converging toward the river to a point just before the "Frenchman's bridge," where the insurgents were about 500 yards from the river.

Steady rifle and machine gun fire was exchanged between the entrenched forces.

It was apparent the insurgents were developing a strong attack for positions at the edge of Madrid itself.

However, one officer said: "The enemy isn't in University City. They are making a strong attack, however, to enter in force. We are repelling it."

Police Officials Require Theatres To Close Sunday

Management of Local Theatres Withheld Announcement of Anticipated Next Moves, If Any

Operation of theaters in Greenville on Sunday was halted yesterday when the police department ordered the management of the cinema houses to discontinue or else face possible arrest.

Those who already had entered the houses were allowed to see the entire picture. Officers advised managers not to sell any more tickets, however, and the theaters were closed after the show were completed.

Management of the picture houses have not announced what course they will take, if any. The managers can appear before the Board of Aldermen and ask for permission to run Sunday shows, or contest the ordinance under which the shows were closed.

The ordinance prohibits any business house from remaining open on Sunday for the purpose of buying or selling any article and prohibits any sale.

There was much discussion today as to whether the theaters came under the act. Police officials held the opinion, however, that the sale of tickets constituted a violation of the ordinance.

CONGRESS NOW FREE TO BALK

Party Labels Do Not Mean As Much As In Past

By BRYAN PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

The almost unbelievable dimensions of Mr. Roosevelt's election victory raise one extremely vital question: Has the American electoral process, regarded for generations as a guarantee of democracy, suddenly created a one-man government at Washington?

Certainly there are arguments to support such a thesis. The President himself was, in far more than the ordinary sense, the issue of the campaign. His policies, running so directly toward concentration of power, were well known to the people. And the answer was an almost unanimous electoral college, and a Congress in which only a corporal's guard of the opposition party survives.

More than that, the candidate had openly expressed his opposition to the logic of important decisions of the supreme court. He had openly asked for the passage of legislation, regardless of doubts of its constitutionality. And his fellow-citizens re-elected him by the biggest popular plurality in history.

Looking at these facts, as they stand unembellished and unqualified, it is easy to conclude that the people have given Mr. Roosevelt a mandate to rule, and that he will proceed to carry that mandate into effect with vigor.

This may be, indeed, the correct conclusion. Yet there are certain qualifying circumstances, which really should be noted carefully.

One is the circumstance that party labels do not mean what they once meant. The new Congress will be overwhelmingly Democratic in the sense that the vast majority were elected on the Democratic ticket. But it will be much less overwhelmingly New Deal.

Even under ordinary conditions, it would be remarkable if one man could dominate a party made up of such numbers, and including such varying types of opinion. A generation ago, when the Republicans began to have great congressional majorities, they split into groups and worked. The natural supposition would be that any other party so situated would do the same.

The conditions are not, furthermore, ordinary. Some of the most influential members of Congress, within the Democratic party, have been openly against most of the New Deal. They supported Mr. Roosevelt for re-election with the specific reservation that they would oppose henceforth those policies with which they disagreed.

Possibly the devastating character of the 1934 majorities may convince them that they must go along. The general character of these men themselves, however, argues strongly to the contrary. The balance of proof is indicative of far more trouble on capitol hill than the election returns remotely hint.

The expectation that congressional lines will stiffen is upheld by two additional circumstances. One is that Mr. Roosevelt now is in his second term, not his first. The other is that the emergency which led to creation of the New Deal appears to be passing.

A President, who faces a re-election campaign, and who is certain to head the ticket again, has a strong leverage over members of his party in Congress. They know they must themselves run on that ticket, and they do not want to be out of step. But when they do not know who he next Presidential nominee will be, they begin to look out for themselves. That is human nature.

Similarly, emergencies increase a President's hold on Congress, a return toward normal weakens it. During the great war President Wilson was vested with many of the powers of a dictator. Congress not only stripped them from him, but turned definitely against him when peace came. Cannot this happen also to Mr. Roosevelt?

A great deal more might be said on both sides. The thoughtful will reach no hasty conclusions, either way.

SOYBEAN MEAL AND MILK USED AS BEE FOOD

St. Paul, Minn. (AP)—Soybean meal mixed with powdered skim milk has been discovered by University of Minnesota scientists to be a good tree and flower pollen substitute for bees.

In certain seasons shortage of natural pollen for active brood rearing in the spring is an acute problem among Minnesota beekeepers. Unless bees begin raising their young early in the spring colonies will not reach maximum size by the time the main honey flow comes in, consequently honey production is reduced.

Acting on the desire of beekeepers for a food substitute which could be fed inside the hive Dr. Mykola Haydak of the university made several experiments.

Orchids From Kentucky

St. Matthews, Ky. (AP)—Here in Kentucky they raise tobacco, race horses and orchids. The humid tropics where orchids are most adaptable are reproduced during Kentucky's 15-below winters in several acres of hot houses, at a cost of several miles of hot water pipe and a hundred and fifty tons of coal a year.

Waterfront Walkout

THESE MEN MAKE THE NEWS IN SHIPPING STRIKE

ABANDON SHIP!
When a two-year agreement with ship owners ran out last month, dock workers and seamen of the Pacific coast quit work to put leverage behind their demands for union control of hiring halls, cash instead of time off for overtime and an eight-hour day for coasts and stewards. The strike took on national proportions when a fraction of longshoremen and sailors in Gulf and Atlantic ports walked out in sympathy with their west coast brothers.

WEST STRIKE LEADER      EAST STRIKE LEADER
The strike vote of the Maritime Federation north of the Pacific thrust into the spotlight Harry Lundberg (left), secretary of the Pacific sailors' union, who had urged immediate action when Harry Bridges, leader of the great west coast shipping tie-up in 1934, conceded further delay. In New York Joe Curran (right), ordinary seaman nine months ago, led his insurgent Seamen's Defense Committee in a "sid down" strike of sympathy.

ALL QUIET ON THE WATERFRONT
As the strike spread up and down both coasts and across the Gulf, sailings were postponed or cancelled. Though the tie-up was far from complete, it was effective enough in New York to delay for several hours the departure of the liner American Legion bearing Secretary of State Hull and other members of the United States delegation to the inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires.

RECRUITS CREWS      NOT MUCH BOTHERED
The International Seamen's Union and the International Longshoremen's association with the longshoremen's president, John Ryan, (left), as spokesman, branded Curran's sitters-down as outlaws and attempted to help ship owners recruit crews to replace strikers. R. J. Baker (right), president of the American Association of Steamship Owners, issued statements which said the strike wasn't very effective anyway. Whereas the strikers claimed 231 ships tied up in Atlantic and Gulf ports, Baker said only three ships had been prevented from leaving New York by lack of full crews.

UNCLE SAM'S GO-BETWEENS
On the Pacific coast, meanwhile, Edward F. McGrady (left), trouble shooter for the federal department of labor, and Admiral H. G. Hamiet (right), representative of the new U. S. Maritime commission, shuttled between strikers' and owners' representatives in an effort, to bring reconciliation. McGrady's son reported the "two groups had agreed to renew negotiations."

Man About Manhattan

New York's Freddie Rich, in a slack moment between dance numbers, recalls the time George M. Cohan attended a dressingly dull Sunday afternoon musical. The reception was in the home of a dowager whose friends were of the bit too lively variety, and the orchestra ground out a sad group of tunes that would have made a brass monkey cry "uh-ho!"

"This was too much for the actor and he fell into a beautiful slumber. His coma ended, however, when a confederate nudged him just as the hostess beaming benignly, waddled up.

"Would you believe it," gushed the dame, "these wonderful musicians have been playing together 33 years?"

"Impossible," exclaimed Cohan. "I haven't been asleep that long."

Rocke Lives On
Then there is the eye-pitcher who doesn't think Roosevelt won a clean-cut victory in the polls. "It was just a lucky punch," he maintains.

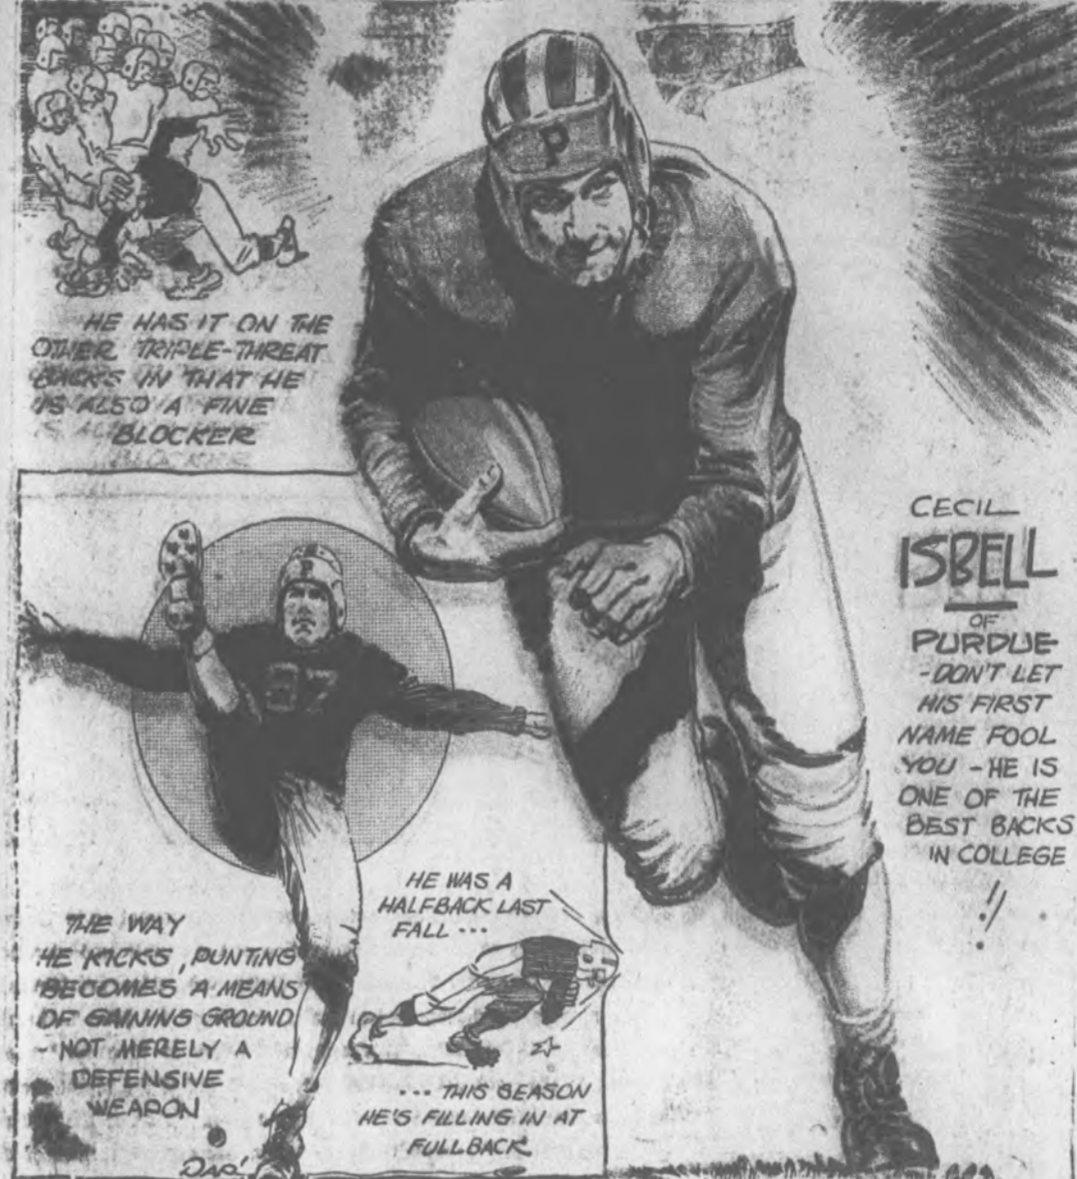

Jed Harris, although a youngster, is an impressive, temperamental director. He is forceful and even-gal-like when putting an actor through his paces.

One wonders whether George E. Keuffman was thinking of Katherine Cornell when he wrote "Stage Door," a drama about an actress who spurs Hollywood because she prefers the New York stage. Despite multiple offers, Miss Cornell has remained firm in her intentions to forego motion pictures.

Hank Harris, ex-Yale athlete and now a Wall street broker, thinks Laurence Olivier a better Shakespearean actor than John Gielgud. He saw them on alternate evenings in London and much prefers the actor-playwright to Mr. Gielgud. Harris' most vivid recollection of London was the night he was tossed out of a theatre for laughing at John Barrymore. His most gratifying experience in Hollywood was the time, when attending an opening at Gramercy Chinese theatre, he was mistaken for James Cagney.

A traveler who journey out to South Bend, Ind., for a recent Notre Dame game reports that the town still rejects of Rockies in the present tense. "Rock doesn't like this," or "Rock thinks sound fundamentals are much more important than trick plays," they say, although it has been six years since the old bald eagle died in an airplane crash.

Jacocks-Burnette
Characterized by beauty and simplicity was the wedding of Miss Helen Mae Burnette to Francis Atherton Jacocks, of Tarboro, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in the Memorial Baptist church. The vows were taken before the Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, the bride's pastor.

Palms and pines interspersed with graduated white tapers, formed a lovely background for the wedding party. Placed on the altar was a large basket of white chrysanthemums as a central arrangement.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming presided at the organ and her selections included "Romance," by Lieurance, "Cantilena," by Gottermann, and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint Saens. The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played for the professional and Mendelssohn's wedding march from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" for the recessional. During the ceremony, Mrs. Fleming played "Lincenstraum," by Liszt. Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee Perry, of Rocky Mount, a cousin of the bride, sang "Sweetest Story Ever Told," by Stults, and "At Dawning," by Cadman.

Attending the bride as bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Winslow and Miss Helen Fleming. They wore identical gowns of King's blue velvet fashioned along Grecian lines, and carried arm bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums tied with bronze ribbons. Their hats were of tulle and velvet, the tulle crown having a plaited velvet band with the tulle extending beyond and forming a tiny veil. They wore slippers that matched their gowns.

Mrs. Guilford C. Smith, sister of the bride, attended her as dame of honor. She wore a model of autumn leaf brown and it was fashioned identically with those of the bridesmaids, as was the maid of honor's also. Mrs. Smith's slippers and hat matched her gown, and she carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Margaret Hassell, of Washington and this city, attended the bride as maid of honor. Her gown was of emerald green and her hat and slippers were of the same shade. She carried yellow chrysanthemums tied with bronze ribbons.

Master Bobby Smith, nephew of the bride, and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Smith, was the ring-bearer. He carried the ring in a huge white chrysanthemum.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, R. Troy Burnette, by whom she was given in marriage. Her gown of duobonnet velvet, was fashioned along extremely simple lines, being corded in Grecian key design on the full sleeves that were gathered to the wrist and on the collar. Fullness in the back of the skirt ended in a short train. Her hat, the same shade of her gown, was similar to those of the bridesmaids, with a longer and fuller veil that stood away from the face. The bride carried a beautiful arm bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies, and in her hand she carried a lovely lace handkerchief, carried by her mother in her wedding.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Tom Baker Jacocks, of Washington, D. C., as best man. The groomsmen were Chalmers Marrow, Martin Carstarphen, and Henry Palmer, all of Tarboro, and Charles V. Sink, his brother-in-law, of Lexington.

Immediately following the wedding the bride and bridegroom departed for a wedding trip to unannounced points, and upon their return will make their home in Roanoke Rapids.

For traveling the bride chanced to an attractive grey and duobonnet wool model with duobonnet accessories, and to this she added a grey kid skin coat. She wore a shoulder corsage taken from her wedding bouquet.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Robert Troy Burnette and the late Robert Troy Burnette of this city. She received her education from the city schools and East Carolina Teachers College. Since the announcement of her engagement she has been extensively entertained.

The bridegroom is the youngest son of Mrs. Tom Baker Jacocks and the late Mr. Jacocks, of Tarboro. He attended the University of North Carolina, and while there was made president of the Glee club. He holds membership in Zeta Psi social fraternity. He is now connected with the bridge department of the State Highway commission, and is now located in Roanoke Rapids.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were: Mrs. T. B. Jacocks, Sr., the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John Jacocks, Mrs. Margaret Shaw, Mrs. Jim Symmons, Miss Martha Simmons, Mrs. Sam King, Mrs. E. H. Lewis, Mrs. Robert Walker, Mrs. Howard Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Carstarphen, Miss Sue Louise Lane, Mrs. L. P. Hornthall, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Darrow, Miss Jean Darrow, Mrs. W. B. Bryant, Mrs. Brinkley Howell, Mrs. Sam Jenkins, Mrs. Ed Simmons, Chalmers Marrow and Henry Palmer, all of Tarboro; Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Sink of Lexington; Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee Perry, George T. Burnette and A. W. Burnette, of Rocky Mount; Mrs. Effie Charles, of Richmond; Tom Baker Jacocks and Miss Margaret Hassell, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. John Hardy, of Columbia; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Smithwick and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Capehart, of Windsor; Miss Emily Smithwick and George W. Capehart, Jr., of Edenton.

Kr. Koch at College
Dr. Frederick H. Koch will appear on the stage for a short time tonight, when the Carolina Playmakers present their bill of three plays in the Robert H. Wright auditorium at 8:30.

The three one-act plays to be presented are "Quare Medicine," by Paul Green; "New Nigger," by Fred Howard; and "Tooth or Shave" by Josephine Niggett.

There will be no reserved seats for tonight's performance and a ticket will entitle purchaser to any place in the auditorium.

The Playmakers, under the personal direction of "Prof" Koch, arrived this afternoon, and have already started arranging scenery and properties in preparation for tonight's show.

In 1908, Dr. Koch founded The Dakota Playmakers at the University of North Dakota and laid the foundation of his work which has grown to national and international importance. In 1913 he came to the University of North Carolina and inaugurated the famous Carolina Playmakers. This September he assumed the duties of the head of the newly organized Department of Dramatic Art at North Carolina. In addition to his university work, Dr. Koch is regional advisor for Virginia and the two Carolinas in the recently established Federal Theatre Projects, a member of the Council of the National Theatre Conference, and he holds important offices in many state and national organizations. He is also editor of the four published volumes of original plays, "The Carolina Folk Plays."

Dr. Koch is known throughout the United States for his dramatic work with the Carolina Playmakers. He is especially noted for his creation of the folk drama, Walter Pritchard Eaton, written by Frederick Koch. Koch is more important to the future of the American stage than is Belasco or Arthur Hopkins.

SUNDAY PICTURE SHOWS

The matter of Sunday picture shows came to the fore in Greenville yesterday when both the local theatres opened for business and a shot time later were notified by the chief of police that they must close. The order to close was issued under a city ordinance that prohibits the buying and selling of merchandise in the city on Sunday. According to information the matter of the Sunday shows had been discussed with individual members of the Board of Aldermen and it was the general impression that the city ordinances did not prohibit the shows, hence the theatres opened for business yesterday afternoon without an official permit from the governing board.

It is understood that official application for permit will be made to the Board of Aldermen at once and, if the board is consistent, the permit will be granted in view of the fact that other lines of business are operating here on Sunday under special permits.

For some time local filling stations have been operating on Sundays except during church hours. All drug stores are permitted to stay open on Sundays under cafe licenses, and likewise the eating places, beer stands and soda fountains are operating. Since the building of a municipal swimming pool here three years ago the pool has been operated on Sundays during the summer season and two years ago this paper favored the granting of the permit for Sunday baseball in this city on the ground that other lines were operating here on Sunday, and there should be no discrimination; also the fact that other towns all around us were playing Sunday baseball and our people were taking to the highways on Sunday to find their recreation in the nearby towns. For the same reason that we favored the granting of the permit for baseball, we likewise feel that the city board should take favorable action on the petition for Sunday picture shows. Certainly the shows offer no greater evil than the other things now going on here on Sundays, if as much, and since our people are taking advantage of the shows in other nearby towns they might as well be able to see them right here at home.

To be consistent with its past actions the Board of Aldermen should permit the shows to operate on Sundays. If the shows are not to be permitted to open, then the board should withdraw the permits now outstanding to other lines of business and clamp the lid down tight on the city.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover
By PRESTON GROVER
Washington — Every once in a while organizations in litigation with the government get caught in a squeeze play that adds a little squeeze play that adds a little edge drama to the issues actually presented to the court, even though the squeeze may be entirely involuntary on the part of the government.

One "squeeze" is "playing currently" before the supreme court while constitutionality of the public utility holding company act is tested.

Under terms of the act, public utility companies must register with the securities and exchange commission and submit for commission approval any securities they wish to issue. The act does many other things but the above is enough for the "squeeze."

Many companies sought to test the constitutionality of the act, but the government designed a suit of its own against the Electric Bond and Share company which it contends will test the act more completely than other cases. In order to get supreme court action on the Electric Bond and Share case ahead of the others, the government obtained a lower court order holding up the cases brought by the utility companies.

The companies immediately appealed from the lower court's order. Meantime, however, they can issue no securities. A utility attorney told the supreme court that even if the companies sought to issue securities in defiance of the securities commission, the public would not buy them in fear they would be later branded invalid.

The squeeze lies in this. Many companies have securities outstanding at high interest rates. They want to refund them now at current low interest rates but can't. The attorney insisted that as a result they were daily suffering "tremendous and crippling" losses.

But nothing much can be done about it until the litigation ends, which may be months, at a time when the cheap money market has gone.

The oil production control legislation, since invalidated, provided another sample.

A Pacific-Northwestern independent oil distributor bought two shiploads of gasoline from the east Texas field which the government contended was "hot," that is, illegally produced. An injunction was obtained by the government preventing unloading of the gasoline at Seattle.

Then started the squeeze. The ship owners began charging demurrage for every hour the vessels were compelled to wait in harbor. This ran up a bill of about $2,000 a day. The litigation last several weeks.

The independent oil company, not too strongly financed at best, had to foot the bill and ultimately pleaded for a compromise.

How's Your Health—

The Health Of The Modern Woman
It calls for no little courage to challenge the earned advantages of the liberation of womankind, and to maintain that it is not all to the good. Yet such is the thesis of Dr. Geoffrey Theobald propounded in an article entitled "Some Effects of Emancipation on the Health of Women."

Dr. Theobald believes that the economic independence of woman has played, and continues to play, a distinct role in the causation of maternal mortality, and of other morbid conditions.

Maternal mortality is increased, Dr. Theobald believes, because women continue in unsuitable occupations late into pregnancy; also, that independence has probably resulted in a marked increase in the number of abortions.

Competitive sports carried to excess, have a deleterious effect on the health of women, for while exercise in moderation is as desirable for women as for men, the nervous strain of competitive sport is probably greater on women.

Dr. Theobald finds that few of the picked British female athletes had really good chest expansion, and that many were anemic.

As important as the purely physical effects of emancipation are the mental and the emotional, and these stand out when the "emancipated" young woman marries. The demands and responsibilities of domesticity call for an adjustment of behavior patterns and the expenditure of energy to which the woman is frequently unaccustomed, and for which she is not fully prepared.

The preparation and training afforded the young woman by her participation in the activities of her parental home in the days before it was common for her to be away from home, either at school or at work are now denied her. In consequence she comes to marriage practically without any preparation. The loosening of family ties has had still another effect. It has made it difficult for the younger person, male as well as female, to witness and to know the problems of family association and their effective solution. In the days when the family was a more closely integrated group, the experiences of the older members of the family could not but serve as instructive examples for the younger.

No phase of this consideration can be considered as a yearning for a return to the past. But experience teaches that every period brings with itself new problems, and it were a conceit to imagine that the so-called emancipation of women proves an exception to the rule.

A government campaign in Kansas to eliminate diseased dairy cattle reduced the percentage of tubercular cattle from five per cent in some counties to less than one half of one per cent in every county within a year.

King Carol Bows Again To 'Hitler Of Rumania'

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (AP) — Rumania's powerful and much-feared fascist Iron Guard—belonging to the pro-Nazi, swastika-wearing variety of fascism—is showing renewed strength and aggressiveness in its anti-Semitic and anti-communistic campaign.

For the second time within less than three months King Carol has had to bow his dictatorial head to the disciples of Hitler and Mussolini.

Again Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, the 36-year old leader of the guard, and fiery exponent of direct action, is much in the public eye in the role of "strong man," although there are other influential factions of fascism in Rumania.

Threatens Carol's Life
The Itesi d'aring of Codreanu, who has twice stood trial in connection with assassinations, has been to serve rotine on Carol in the name of the Guard that if the policies of the Rumanian government involve Rumania in war on the side of communism or international Jewry, then the ruler and his cabinet will pay for it with their lives.

Codreanu appeared to have got away with this extraordinary challenge, too—at least temporarily—because the government forthwith arrested some 50 prominent persons who are alleged to form links between communistic influences in France and Rumania. The threat of the Iron Guard was in reality aimed at the Little Entente—of which Rumania is a member—which is a French protege. France not only has an alliance with Soviet Russia and has been anti-German since the war, but has been leaning heavily towards the left politically.

Force Cabinet Shuffle
It was only the latter part of August that the growing fascist (or Nazi) influence compelled Carol to reorganize his cabinet so as to drop his famous foreign minister, Nicholas Titulescu. The latter, a great friend of France and supporter of the Little Entente, had complained that anti-Jewish and pro-Nazi activities at home had hampered his work abroad. Besides that he was said to fear death at the hands of the Iron Guard.

Prior to that time the guard had been fairly quiet after the assassination of Premier Ion Duca in 1933. Duca had suppressed the organization because of its anti-Semitic campaign. His murder followed and was laid at the door of the Guard.

In 1934 the actual killer, Nicholas Constantinescu, a student, and two confederates were sentenced to life imprisonment. All three were alleged to be members of the Guard.

Codreanu Acquitted
At the same time Codreanu and

FASCIST BOSS
In native costume, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, 36-year-old leader of Rumania's powerful Iron Guard, gives the party salute at a demonstration.

45 others were acquitted after a sensational trial. This was interpreted as a victory for the Guard and its comparatively youthful leader.

The fascist Premier George Tatarescu removed the ban on the Iron Guard and allowed it to resume activities under the name of "All for the Fatherland." It is, however, the same old Guard—said to be stronger than ever.

Codreanu has made himself felt as a personality and leader since his youth, many of his followers having been university students. At the outset his activities were largely anti-Semitic.

Enemy of Lupescu
One of his earliest sensations was in 1924, when he was only 24 years old. He shot and killed the police prefect of Jassy for suppressing anti-Jewish student riots with great severity. The "Hitler of Rumania" was acquitted, and this won him many followers. Codreanu always has been for direct action. The Rumanian police in 1933 declared that they had discovered a "heads shall roll" list, which they attributed to the Iron Guard. This list allegedly contained the names of prominent socialists and Jews.

Codreanu long has been credited with being an enemy of King Carol's friend, Madame Magda Lupescu. She is a Jewess and is said to exercise great influence over the ruler politically.

As an admirer of the Nazi dictator, Codreanu went to Germany in 1933 to study nazism at first hand. The Iron Guard arrays itself like the Ily of the field. The uniform consists of black knee-breeches, green flannel shirts, yellow belts and a white arm-band with green swastika.

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Attractive, thoughtful Sally Warren becomes society editor of the Warrenton Courier to boost her family's dwindling income. She feels responsible for Ray, headstrong Tip and L. Adicus Ray, the 18-year-old Warren twins. Terry Maynard, boyish blond aviator, flies Sally to Greensboro, lands a job with South American prospects. They become secretly engaged. Riding home from the airport, they encounter Tip with Duke Adams, an irresponsible flier whose car has broken down. Sally gets Tip to promise to fly henceforth only with dependable Terry.

Chapter Seven

A New Boss For Sally

EARLY in June, soon after the twins' graduation from high school, a change came to Warrenton, a change that was to have far-reaching effects on Sally's life. Sally walked into the office one morning and found Lola Hopkins perched on the edge of her desk, haranguing a deeply interested audience, including the city editor himself.

"Hullo! Lola hailed her. "What about old Wingate's selling the paper?"

"I didn't know," said Sally quickly. "Does that mean we lose our jobs?"

"They say he's going to reorganize the old sheet," said Lola. "But I guess you've got the best chance to stay. He won't be much interested in your kind of stuff. It's us that'll be on the spot."

"You said it!" The sports editor looked grim.

"I can't lose my job—I just can't," said Sally.

"That's the way they all feel about it," said Lola. "Want to know who he is?"

"Who?"

"Mr. Philip Hadley Page of Washington, formerly of Warrenton."

"Old Phil Page's son." The city editor kicked his spittle to a more convenient position. "Used to live down your way when you were a kid, Miss Warren."

Sally remembered instantly. She had played bare-and-bounds with this boy Philip Page in the days when he had lived with his father, old Judge Page, across from the Warrens. The Judge and Robert Warren used to play chess evenings while their children, so early made motherless, ran up and down the gardens and streets, playing bare-and-bounds and hide-and-seek. Robert Warren had been the first to marry, and then, when Sally was 11, the judge had married again—this time a rich widow, who took him and Philip off to Washington where things were more lively. Sally remembered her own grief a year later when news came that the kindly judge and his wife had both been killed in an accident. By that time she had lost interest in young Philip.

"They say he's dark and romantic looking," Lola was saying, "but he's got a vile temper. He's been working on a Baltimore paper and they say he's bought the Courier to try and reform the town."

"That sounded like the boy Philip whom Sally remembered. He had been dark and sallow, full of restless energy, and impatient if he could not have his way and lead in everything.

"Sounded bad for us." The city editor shook his head. "Ought to offer a little excitement, though." He went back to work and the others took their cue from him.

But Sally was not reassured by the cheerful clacking of typewriters. Good old Mr. Wingate had sold the paper to a young man with radical ideas. She was in danger of losing her precious job, and she felt that, even if she kept it, there would be disagreeable changes. She would not like Philip Page, she felt sure.

Besides, he was probably a snob and would scorn to remember his family's friendship with the Warrens.

"He won't fire you"

AS SHE was walking home, Sally was struck by a sudden thought. Philip Page might open his father's house, which was directly across the street from the Warren house!

She hurried as if she could prevent it by getting there sooner.

Tip came to meet her, and even before she had reached home ahead of her.

"Philip Page is going to be your new boss," cried Tip, "and what's more he's going to live across the street from us and Aunt Dorra's going to keep house for him!"

Supper at the Warrens' was more lively than usual and everyone was intensely interested in the new neighbor for reasons of his own. Robert Warren warmed to his reminiscences of the days when he and Judge Page had been boys together.

"Judge was a fine old gentleman, one of your real southern gentlemen," he told his children.

"He wasn't doing a thing till he married that woman and got all his money," said his wife. "The boy's probably smarter."

"I bet he's a good dancer," said Tip speculatively. "But I bet he's not any better than Terry Maynard. Sally, he'll be mine, since you've got Terry."

"I probably shall have nothing to do with him except at the office," said Sally coldly. "He may fire all of us at the Courier."

"He won't fire you because you're too pretty," said Tip. "They always keep the pretty ones."

"Theresa Warren!" Mrs. Warren was forever being shocked by Tip's frankness.

"I hope he plays a decent game of tennis," said Ray. "This town's certainly dead in the summer."

"I'll bet the Morris won't go away if there's going to be a new man in town," said Tip. "Mary will make them stay."

The Morris family belonged to the small town's new aristocracy of wealth. They had made their money in local cotton mills and were not finding it too easy to marry into the older, poorer families in Warrenton. Philip Page, Sally decided, would become one of their crowd.

In A Moonlit Garden

TERRY was out of town and Sally, when the housework was done, settled herself in the hammock to read by the porch light. But the moon was full and the book proved tiresome. When her father and mother went upstairs at ten, Sally was wide awake than ever. She got up and took a turn about the garden, but that, too, seemed empty without Terry.

Sally stopped at the wall and looked across the way at the old Page house, half hidden by trees and unpruned shrubs. She had always loved the gardens. She had played there after the old judge had moved away. She wanted to walk in the garden once more, before the place should be beyond her reach.

Sally looked up and down the street to be sure that no one saw her who would laugh at her sentimental notions, then went in quickly by the iron gate. Her sandals made no noise on the brick walk, overgrown with grass, and soon she left it for a small path that led to a seat under some magnolia trees. There she sat down, leaning against the broad back of a tree, a white figure in the moonlight that dappled the grass. There was the familiar heady fragrance of the magnolia blossoms, and the thousand little insect noises that sounded so loud in the darkness.

How many times she had pretended on this very bench that she was a captive princess, shut in a walled garden! Sally dreamed deeply, with closed eyes. When she opened them, a man stood a few feet from her, staring at her.

"Copyright, 1936, Bailey Wolfe"

Tomorrow Sally enters the old Page house with its owner.

"the public has stood for us for 22 years and it must mean they like us—or something."

"Or something," chimes in Johnson, who does not have that idiotic laugh off screen but uses it generously.

"We started out working our heads off for applause," continues Olsen, who still plays the violin (and it's a Strad when he plays), "and then—then we started killing ourselves for laughs. Anything, anything for a laugh!"

John Sivgaard ("but don't print that," he says) was 20, and Harold Oden ("but don't print that," he pleads) was 18 when they met. They were a habit to each other now, about the only thing on which they

BIG INCREASE IN PRISONERS

Prison Population Passes 9,000 Mark During October

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 15.—The population of the state prison system passed the 9,000 mark this month with 9,075 prisoners in its custody on November 1 and having handled 10,839 prisoners during October, according to the October report of the prison division made public today by Acting Director Oscar T. Pitts. A year ago the population was approximately 8,500.

The number of escapes continues to drop in spite of the increase in population, the figures show, since there were only 32 escapes in October and 36 recaptures—four more than the number of escapes—while in October last year there were 76 escapes and 61 recaptures. The percentage of escapes to the total number of prisoners handled in October of this year was only .629 per cent or 2.9 hundredths of one per cent or 8 hundredths of one per cent.

The increase in the prison population is partially due to the coming to fall and the approach of winter and cold weather. Director Pitts said, since there is always an increase in the prison population in cold weather. Another reason for the increase is due to the fact there is more crime and consequently more convictions.

"There is always a certain class of people who seem to make it a point to commit some crime that will be sufficient to send them to a prison camp during the winter months," Pitts said. "They know they can be sure of three good meals a day and a warm place to sleep at night—probably more than some of them would have if they were not in prison. But most of the increase in the prison population is undoubtedly due to a general increase in crime or else to a large number of convictions in the courts. A very large proportion of those in the state prison system have been convicted of some violation of the liquor laws."

The average daily population of the prison in October was 8,994. Of the 10,839 prisoners handled during October, 623 were new 30 day prisoners, while 747 30 day prisoners were discharged during the month.

disagree being the climate.

And even that is a matter in which their wives have the say. Mrs. Olsen likes California, but Mrs. Johnson wants to live in the east, coming out just for pictures. Or maybe it's the other way around. Olsen and Johnson, on behalf of their respective wives, had quite an argument about it, but didn't settle anything.

Johnson, whose friends call him "Hi," is Swedish and Olsen is Norwegian. Chicago and Peru, Ind., are their respective home towns. From those two points they have traveled the globe, practically, with their act, including performances before royalty. They don't change their act (that is, try to "elevate" it) for dukes and princes. They figure dukes have the same sense of humor that commoners have.

Once, participating in a dual entertainment, they thought they should brush up on cultural topics and current events in order to hold their own when formally presented, but all the duke wanted to know was to quote Olsen: "I say, where do you keep that pigeon that flew from your hat?"

Both Olsen and Johnson feel like grandfathers to many of today's film stars, who were on vaudeville bills just getting started, when the team was headlining. Both are practically "grandfathers"—that is they have children of college age and children in the nursery. Johnson has a daughter, June, 18, a stock player at Republic studios, and a daughter, "Chickie," nearly 5. Olsen has a daughter, Moya, 21, who is his secretary, a son, J. C., at Ohio State, and a daughter, Joy, 17 months old.

Six years ago they made three pictures, but "Country Gentlemen" for Republic is their first since then. It is a comedy about a couple of swindlers, one of whom goes sentimental over the pretty widow played by Lila Lee. Its preview reception was good enough to warrant a follow-up, and they'll be back after another road tour.

Their one regret about the picture is that "we had more gags than they'd let us see—but they'll keep."

Film Prop Man's A Hero To Sons Of The Studios

WHAT'S THAT NOISE, MUMMY? Wesley Ruggles, Jr., haunts the studios where his mother, Arline Judge, makes pictures and—like most film kids—he's crazy about the men who work there. He's exploring the mysteries of a studio sound control box between takes on Arlin's new picture.

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—The earliest ambition of little boys in most places is to be a fireman, engineer, street sweeper, milk man or policeman. In this place those fascinating professions seem all right, too, but your true son of the studios nourishes the desire to emulate his favorite prop man, electrician, furniture-mover or cameraman. To be a studio gateman and wear a uniform is a pleasant prospect, and wearing overalls and climbing the beams over a sound stage while you tamper with sound-ars is a literal seventh heaven.

Arline Judge, at least, is sure one of these is the ambition of Wesley Ruggles, Jr., her three-and-a-half-year-old son. Young Wes counts that day lost on which he is not permitted to accompany his mother to work, or at least to the studio and through the make-up room.

Occasionally, as a special treat, he is invited to join her on the set, where children ordinarily are not welcome because they constitute a hazard to sound. Young Wes has an ingratiating way, however, and even directors, especially Dave Butler, throw down a miniature welcome mat.

"It's all the machinery on a set, of course, as well as the way the men treat him, that holds the fascination," says proud mama Arline. "And makeup—you'd think familiarity would breed contempt, but not! The make-up room is a high spot in his day. All those tubes and jars of goosy creams and pastes to get into, if he can, and smear around."

Arline is not afraid the frequent studio visits will turn her boy to acting. She hopes they won't, not that she has anything against actors.

"They get good money while they last," she says, "but I'd rather he did something that lasted longer."

The only time Wes has come near to spoiling a scene was while Arline was on "Valiant Is the Word for Garrie."

"Any other director," chortled Arline, "would have been furious, but that one couldn't be—it was Wes's dad!"

They changed Fernand's surname to Gravez to avoid cracks about Mervyn LeRoy's "bringing home the Gravez" from Paris.

Ross Alexander swears he once lived in a theatrical boarding house where he had to chase a couple of seals out of the bathtub every Saturday night.

It's a small-world note: The first song Dixie-Dumbar ever sang on Broadway was by Harry Revel. He and Mack Gordon are writing songs for Dixie's new picture now.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady three lower to one higher with steadier Liverpool cables offset by liquidation and hedge selling.

March recovered from 11.56 to 11.61 and prices by the end of the first half hour were ruling net unchanged to two higher.

March reacted from 11.62 to 11.60 with deliveries generally one point net higher to two lower at midday.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—With domestic business news cheerful and fears waning of extensive curb selling, the market today got back on its feet and recovered a portion of previous losses.

Steel, copper, motor, aircraft, merchandising and specialty issues swung upward for gains of fraction to around two points. Some of the rails, utilities and oils were a bit hesitant near the fourth hour and the action was not pronounced.

COMMISSION TO RECOMMEND STATE-WIDE LIQUOR CONTROL

tic remarks to make about the county system. Several members of the commission are understood to have expressed very decided dissatisfaction with what they have learned about county control and county liquor stores in the state.

"In spite of the exhaustive hearings held in the eastern part of the state in 'wet' counties and in spite of the effort made by these counties and their liquor control boards to convince the members of the liquor commission that county control was superior to state control and working beautifully in the 18 counties which have it, the commission most decidedly has not been impressed by the county systems," a man known to be close to the commission told this correspondent before the commission had found a number of very unsavory things in connection with county control and county stores and which it is likely to point out and oppose.

After its exhaustive study of various liquor sale systems and control laws in other states and after visiting both Virginia and South Carolina to study the operation of the state monopoly and the state license systems first hand, it is expected that the commission will recommend or "suggest" the following type of law for North Carolina, if the legislature decides to permit the sale of liquor in the state:

1. A state monopoly liquor control system.
2. Uniform state-wide rules and regulations to govern the operation of liquor stores in whatever counties may want and authorize such stores.
3. The creation of a state board with a full-time chairman whose duty it will be to administer the law and enforce the rules and regulations in those counties having liquor stores.
4. Authorize the appointment of county liquor control boards in each county having liquor stores, composed of three county officials but with the state administrator as ex-officio member of each county board, with power to veto any acts of the county board, these county boards to have general powers to select store sites, personnel, store buildings and so forth, subject to the approval of the state administrator.
5. Provide severe penalties for bootlegging and other violations of the control laws and set up strict regulations to prevent the selling of liquor by the liquor stores to persons suspected of being bootleggers.
6. Provide for strict enforcement of the law by the county law enforcement agencies, but without the creation of any centralized state law enforcement division.
7. Leave most of the revenue derived from the sale of liquor in the counties where the liquor stores are located, possibly with some of this revenue going to the cities and towns, with only enough revenue going to the state to pay for the cost of administering the law and supervising the stores.
8. Permit any county that does not want liquor stores to remain "dry" and to prohibit the sale of liquor.

In addition to the above provisions expected to be contained in the law the commission is regarded as sure to "suggest" there is a possibility that the commission may get more revenue from the sale of liquor than it now gets from the 3 per cent sales tax. It might increase the rate of this tax to 5 per cent, but to make this change in the Revenue Act and not impose any tax in the liquor control bill, it is understood.
