EXPECT BREAK IN COLD WAVE GRIPPING EAST

Many Eastern Communities Report Record Frigidity

WARM WEATHER ON WEST COAST

South in General, Escapes from Bitter Cold Which Strikes East and Midwest

(By Associated Press)
The East and Midwest, gripped by a cold wave which tumbled temperature generally to sub freezing marks, received predictions of slowly rising temperatures today with hope of relief within the next 24 hours.

Many Eastern communities reported record seasonal lows for the date as the penetrating cold dipped as far South as Virginia and several Midwestern counties found roads blocked by heavy snowdrifts.

Severe storms at sea impeded shipping and the arrival of at least four liners in New York was delayed by heavy weather.

In short contrast to the Eastern weather, unseasonable warmth prevailed on the Pacific coast. San Francisco's 81 yesterday marked the highest reading for the date in that city in four years.

The South generally did not suffer from the bitter weather that struck the East and mid-West.

GREENVILLE EXPERIENCES

SEASON'S COLDEST SPELL
While residents of Eastern and mid-Western states were shivering in bitter cold today, Greenville citizens experienced the coldest weather of the season.

The official reading at 8 o'clock this morning showed that the mercury dropped to 27 degrees during the night. It was standing at 30 degrees at 8 o'clock.

It was in evidence this morning for the first time of the season. The weather bureau forecast warmer weather tomorrow.

College Observes It's Homecoming Here On Saturday

Varied Program Announced Includes Barbecue Luncheon, Football Game, Dance and Addresses

A barbecue luncheon, a football game, a dance, speakers, sponsors, and bands will be featured at the first Homecoming celebration at East Carolina Teachers' College Saturday.

A barbecue luncheon on the campus at 12:45 will be the meeting place of the alumnae and alumni, who will assemble at 1:45 in the Austin auditorium where L. R. Meadows, president of the College, will greet the "old grads."

Mrs. J. B. Spillman, vice-chairman of the State Democratic executive committee and guest speaker of the day, will be introduced by Mrs. Charles M. Johnson, of Raleigh. Mrs. O. K. Joyner, of Woodland, president of the alumnae association, will preside at the meeting.

The kick-off for the game between the E. C. T. C. Pirates and Louisiana College is set for three o'clock. The Greenville and Rocky Mount high school bands will play and sponsors for the captains of the teams and for the Colleges will be presented during the intermission between halves.

Freddie Johnson and his University of North Carolina orchestra will play for the Homecoming dance which will last from 8:30 to 11:45. Johnson and his band played at Myrtle Beach last summer.

Several hundred teachers are already in Greenville for the northern district meeting of the North Carolina Education association and many of these are expected to stay for tomorrow's celebration.

Judge Small Refuses to Transfer Hearing

Raleigh, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Judge Walter L. Small refused in Wake Superior court today to remove to Johnston county injunction proceedings of the Carolina Power and Light Company against the Johnston county electric membership corporation.

Judge Small overruled a defense contention that the rural electrification cooperative was a governmental sub division and entitled to a change of venue, holding that it assumed the status of a public utility. The issue will be appealed to the Supreme court, attorneys said.

CALL OFF TERM OF CIVIL COURT

Jurors Summoned for Duty Next Week Advised Not to Appear

A civil term of Pitt county Superior court scheduled to be held here next week has been called off, but Judge F. A. Daniels will be here on Wednesday to hear motions, resolutions and possibly hear a number of divorce cases.

Announcement was made by J. Frank Harrington, Clerk of Court, that all jurors summoned for duty next week need not appear as no jury cases will be tried, even on Wednesday.

Chief reasons for calling off the court were the facts that Thursday Judge Daniels's son is getting married, leaving only a part of the week in which court could be held.

The high court having been called off, the weekly session of County court will be held as usual, Judge Dink James said.

A special term of criminal court is scheduled to be held the week beginning November 30, with Judge Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill presiding.

The criminal docket is crowded and a large number of defendants are in jail awaiting disposition of their cases. Solicitor D. M. Clark has announced that jail cases will be given preference and these are expected to take up the entire week, leaving bond cases for a later court.

The next term of civil court will be held the week of January 11, 1937, with Judge E. H. Cranmer of Southport, presiding.

Terms of criminal and civil court scheduled to have been held during the past month were called off because of the illness of a daughter of Judge N. A. Sinclair of Fayetteville, who was scheduled to have presided over both. This left the criminal docket especially crowded.

Mauck Chunk, Pa. (AP)—William Gombert, Mahoning Valley farmer, has a horse 33 years old. He bought the animal as a five-year-old and has worked him 28 years. "Old Dobbin" still does occasional odd jobs. The average life of a horse is 15 years.

Record Number of Prisoners In Jail

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst today said the county jail held approximately as many prisoners as at any one time since it was built.

The jail, constructed to house adequately 48 prisoners, now contains 60, the sheriff said.

The situation was brought about chiefly because a term of criminal court scheduled to have been held this month was called off.

Sheriff Whitehurst took occasion to declare that the county was in need of a new jail to replace the present one he declared inadequate to take care of the needs.

Educational Campaign to be Waged in County

In an effort to stem the ravages of tuberculosis in Pitt County, a group of public spirited citizens recently met in the offices of the County Health Department and organized the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

The officers and directors elected were: President—J. W. Holmes, Farmville; 1st Vice-President—W. J. Smith, Bethel; 2nd Vice-President—J. R. Turnage, Ayden; Treasurer—J. Vance Perkins, Greenville; Executive Secretary—Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Greenville.

Directors—County-wide: Roy T. Cox, Winterville; J. H. Coward, Ayden; K. T. Futrell, Greenville; D. H. Conley, Greenville.

Towns: Ayden—Mrs. J. C. Andrews, Mrs. W. A. Quinley, F. M. Kilpatrick, Dr. M. T. Frizzelle, chairman Pitt County Medical Society Tuberculosis Com.

Bethel—Mrs. J. A. Stator.

Farmville—Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, J. T. Thorne, Mrs. J. L. Shackelford, Mrs. Tabitha DeVisconti.

Fountain—Mrs. J. L. Peck.

Greenville—Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Rev. R. C. Grady, R. M. Garrett, Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, J. H. Rose, Dr. S. M. Crisp, Pres., Pitt County Medical Society.

Griffen—J. R. Harvey.

Townships: Ayden—Mrs. Frank Hart; Beaverdam, Mrs. Mack Smith; Belvoir, Mrs. W. R. Tyson; Bethel—D. T. House, Jr., Carolina—Mrs. Jim Conzleton; Chiles—G. S. Porter; Falkland—Dr. E. B. Beasley; Farmville—B. M. Lewis; Greenville—Walter Cherry; Fayetteville—J. P. Davenport; Swift Creek—Mrs. H. T. Stokes; Winterville—Mrs. A. D. McLawhorn.

The stated object of the association is to carry on an educational campaign, informing the public as to the prevention and the cure of tuberculosis, with emphasis on prevention as the first step looking to control measures.

It was decided that, at present, there would be no membership dues. This action was taken with the idea of enrolling as many interested citizens as possible in this tuberculosis campaign. A certificate of membership will be issued to all persons ready to actively enlist in the war on tuberculosis.

According to Dr. Frizzelle, one of the directors, "the organization of this association marks a milestone in the health work of Pitt county."

GROUP PUSHES FOR PROPOSED CHURCH UNION

Conference Asks College of Bishops To Make Decision

GRANT SELECTED AS SECRETARY

Bishop Paul Kern Informs Session That College in Favor of Proposed Merger.

New Bern, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The North Carolina conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, voted today to ask the college of Bishops to push through a decision in 1937 on the proposed union of Northern and Southern Methodists and Methodist Protestants.

The action followed a similar vote by the Western North Carolina conference its meeting in Salisbury three weeks ago.

The resolution was offered by Dr. M. T. Plyler, editor of the Christian Advocate, and there was no dissenting vote.

Bishop Paul B. Kern informed the conference that Bishops in both the Northern and Southern churches were overwhelmingly in favor of the merger, but that the Southern college had made clear its attitude that action must be left entirely to the various conferences. Those which have voted so far have been overwhelmingly in favor of the plan.

T. M. Grant of New Bern, a presiding elder, was named conference secretary. Included among his associates was the Rev. A. J. Hobbs of Wilson.

Double Execution Scheduled Friday At State's Prison

Willie Tate, Convicted Here of Murder of Alexander Warren, One of Pair to be Executed

Raleigh, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Warden H. H. Honeycutt and other officials at State's Prison completed plans today for execution tomorrow by gas of two condemned murderers, which will set a new record for legal executions in a year in the state.

Willie Tate of Pitt county and Evans Macklin of Halifax, both negroes, will go to their death shortly after 10:30, one at a time, and when the second is pronounced dead the state will have put 22 men to death this year. The previous high total in a year was 20 in 1934.

Tate was sentenced to die for the murder of Alexander Warren, young white man of Bethel and was also charged with attempting criminal assault on Warren's young woman companion.

Macklin was convicted of the murder in Scotland Neck of Police Chief A. T. Moore.

Both men lost appeals to the supreme court.

Officers Seeking Pair Who Robbed Marion Physician

Bandits Holdup Doctor and Steal Car, Leaving Victim Bound and Gagged at Tourist Camp

Hickory, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Hickory police today were on the lookout for two bandits fleeing in a stolen automobile after reports were received that armed men held up and robbed Dr. J. F. Jones of Marion, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, leaving him bound and gagged at a tourist camp in M-Dowell county.

Police said they were informed the bandits took about $30 from Dr. Jones, and escaped in his automobile. Several hours later, a report was received that a young couple had been held up at Newton, presumably by the same men, and locked in the luggage container of a car, said to have been identified as the one he stole from the Marion physician.

The armed pair then fled in the car belonging to the couple, whose names were not learned immediately.

Lumberton Police Chief Found Dead In City Hall

Accident Theory Discarded by Investigators

Lumberton, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A coroner's jury investigating the death of Vance R. McGill, Lumberton, 39-year-old police chief, today postponed until Friday its hearing after an examination revealed McGill's gun, fully loaded, in his holster.

Earlier Coroner D. W. Biggs had said he was convinced the death of McGill, whose body was found last night in the Town Hall, a single bullet wound in the head, was accidental.

The body was found by night policeman Randall Stephens, who went to a supply room to get a knife that had been taken off a negro prisoner, Chief McGill lay face downward on the floor, and the pistol nearby.

With 37,000 maritime workers on strike, the number of strike bound vessels reached 181, including the big liner President Coolidge. Operators of another liner ordered her to dock at a Mexican port to avoid a tie-up.

King's Daughters State Convention Ends Here Today

Reports of Committees, Including That on Resolutions, on Program for Final Session

The state convention of the Order of King's Daughters and Sons continued here today with a devotional service this morning and the final session of the meeting this afternoon.

Reports of various committees, including that on resolutions, was submitted to be made at the final session.

At this morning's session the meeting was opened with a devotional service which was led by Mrs. T. W. Young of Durham.

Mrs. Ely then gave a brief, but interesting and instructive talk on "Bible Study." She told about the various books on Bible study and recommended them for the various Circles of the King's Daughters and Sons throughout the state.

Following this a short talk was made by Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers' College. He was introduced by Mrs. Hortense Moyer, president Dr. Meadows chose as his subject "Conservation of Human Power." He said that we were very careless about human power when we conserve all our other powers. He said that the greatest human possibility was in our public schools.

Following this was the reports on the Biennial Convention held at Richmond, Virginia, on last May. These reports were presented by Mrs. C. H. Shipp and Mrs. B. L. Tyree, delegates to the convention.

Mrs. Hortense Moyer, state president, then introduced C. E. Boger, superintendent of the Stonewall Jackson Training School at Concord.

Mr. Boger in turn presented Miss Pearl Valentine and the boys from the school in a musical program.

Mr. Boger made a short talk in which he brought greetings from the 475 boys at the school and also told at length of the work being done by the boys at the school. When referring to the chapel, Mrs. Moyer, then assured Mr. Boger that the entire state branch was behind the structure and that everything (Continued on page four)

President Offers Course For Study

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—In a letter read to the business advisory council today, President Roosevelt suggested that the group of business men study "the problems of improving wages and working conditions of employes in industry."

As other problems for study, Mr. Roosevelt also suggested consideration be given to "further absorption of workers by private industry" and to "improving living conditions of low income groups through low cost housing and slum clearance."

KING PLEDGES HELP JOBLESS

Welsh Jobless Direct Letter to Monarch on Conditions

Dumfries, Wales, Nov. 19.—(AP)—An open letter in Welsh jobless asking "will an impoverished people be able to joyfully celebrate your majesty's coronation" was given to King Edward VI of England today.

The letter, first handed to one of the king's aides in Dumfries before the start of his second day tour of the bleak Wales mining district, came to Edward's personal attention when after lunch the chairman of the Blaenavon town council told him about it.

"Where is it," the king demanded? "I want to read it."

The letters appealed for a higher living, standard work and wages for "thousands of willing hands so eagerly waiting."

Inspecting headquarters of the committee for the jobs at Blaenavon, the king promised an attempt to ease the unemployment situation.

Sheriffs Discuss Number Problems At Meeting Here

Seventeen Counties Represented by Office Holders at Discussions Headed by Dillard Gardner

Seventeen sheriffs from North-eastern North Carolina attended a meeting here yesterday of a branch of the sheriffs' division of the Institute of Government. Sheriff Whitehurst is president of the State Sheriffs Association.

The Pitt county sheriff declared that those attending gained some valuable information which will prove beneficial in their line of duty.

Dillard Gardner, who for the past three years has spent much time working with sheriffs, studying the practices of the various offices and the laws governing sheriffs, headed the discussion at the meeting, in the grand jury room at the court house.

Handling civil process, such as summons, attachments, claims and deliveries, arrests and bonds and executions, was the chief subject discussed at the sessions.

The district is composed of 25 counties and the representation, 17 having been present, was considered a good average. In addition to the sheriffs of the various counties, deputies were invited to attend, but only the sheriffs were on hand.

BLASTS CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

Early Morning Aerial Bombardment Responsible for Estimated 90 Dead; Defense Authorities Estimate Victims of Bombings in Last Two Weeks Number 'Thousands'

Madrid, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Relentless fascist aerial "punishment" spread new and untold death and damage through Madrid today.

The explosion of at least a score of huge bombs in the black early morning hours claimed a total estimated as high as 90 dead and 300 injured.

But the defense authorities, declaring the victims of two weeks of intense bombing and shelling had reached "thousands," said the real toll may never be known, since dozens were buried deep under charred and smoking wreckage.

"They declared 'many' refugees of Tuesday's bombardment, huddled in the Puente de San subway station in the heart of Madrid, had been appalled when one bomb landed the Carmen street entrance and another landing at the Alcala street, end of the platform, filled the station with dense fumes.

"The projectile was, but a gas bomb, however, the officials asserted.

A squadron of insurgent bombers, appearing over the city early this morning, spilled most of their bombs in the vicinity of the telephone building, nerve center of Madrid's communication with the outside world.

However, the building was not hit.

In the early morning sunlight Madrid's broad grand via was a scene of ghastly devastation.

The pavement was covered with broken glass and splinters of wood and stone. Most of the windows of one side of the telephone building were broken by a blast which wrecked a nearby structure. This building still was smoldering.

AGED BAYBORO BANKER FREED

W. J. Swan Case One of Most Unique in North Carolina

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 19.—W. J. Swan, former president of the Bank of Bayboro, Pamlico county, walked from the State Prison today a free man as a result of a parole granted by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus. Swan, about 60 years old and unmarried, formerly one of the most influential men in Pamlico county, was convicted in 1933 of technical violation of the state banking laws, especially with making a false report of the condition of his bank and with receiving deposits after he knew it to be insolvent.

Swan, through his attorneys, appealed to the State Supreme Court and his appeal hung there for many months. Finally last spring the Supreme Court handed down a per curiam decision upholding his conviction by a vote of two to two. Justice Michael Schenck declining to participate in this decision since it had come to the court before he was appointed to it and while the late Justice Brogden was still a member.

As soon as the decision of the court was announced, Swan and his attorneys started an immediate effort to secure a parole or a pardon on the grounds that the case had been given to Justice Brogden to review and write the opinion, that Justice Brogden had been convinced that Swan was not guilty and that if he had lived, the court would have either dismissed the case or ordered a new trial by a vote of three to two.

But under the law, the Governor is not permitted to go behind the record in any case or to take into consideration anything that may have transpired among members of the Supreme Court when they are in conference. So in order to uphold the courts and the law, the Governor declined to intervene, with the result that Swan went to prison some seven months ago to start serving his sentence. Since that time he has made an excellent prison record.

There are definite indications, however, that Swan and his attorneys were correct in their contentions that if Justice Brogden had lived, he would have held in favor of Swan and that accordingly Swan would never have gone to prison. There were also indications that the evidence on which Swan was convicted was very meagre. So now Swan is a free man, but on parole.

State Holds Lead In Total Acreage For Resettlement

Five Projects Totalling 152,000 Acres Already Set Up In 7 States; Number Options Closed

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 19.—North Carolina is leading the five states of Region Four in the extent of total acreage on which the federal government has made legal commitment for purchase on the various land use demonstration projects of the Resettlement Administration.

Five such projects totalling 152,000 acres have been set up in this state and to date options have been closed on a total of 146,000 acres, according to a report issued today by the regional office here.

The North Carolina Land use demonstration projects are:

- Sandhills, Hoffman, N. C., 60,000 acres;
 - Jones and Salters Lakes project, Elizabethtown, 30,000 acres;
 - Lake Matamuskeet, 50,000 acres;
 - Appalachian Parkway, 7,000 acres;
 - Crabtree Creek Park, Wake county, 6,000 acres.
- Crabtree Creek Park and Appalachian Parkway are being developed by the National Park Service and Lake Matamuskeet is being developed by the U. S. Biological Survey.

but the land was purchased by Resettlement to show how "problem areas" may be converted to good uses.

In the other states of Region Four the optioning progress on land use demonstration projects is as follows:

Tennessee, 95,000 acres accepted of a total of 103,000 acres to be purchased; Kentucky, 72,000 acres accepted of a total of 90,000; Virginia, 78,000 acres accepted of a total of 90,000; West Virginia, 6,650 acres accepted of a total of 10,000 acres.

By BYRON PRICE, Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

While it is only natural that the floodlights of publicity should center now on the Democrats, and make news of their every activity, no wise student of politics will lose sight entirely of what happens during the coming months among the Republicans.

The Democratic victory was tremendous. Its magnitude grows as it is viewed in retrospect, as its implications become plainer. Yet it was not, after all, unanimous. The opposition was shorn of its prestige and most of its public offices, but both numerically and spiritually, the losses fell far short of annihilation.

More than sixteen millions voted with the loser. Some of them unquestionably were taking only temporary shelter in the Republican party. The number of these, counting both the bolting Democrats and the various leftist factions which could not accept Mr. Roosevelt, never will be known exactly although it must have been considerable. Allowing even six million as an outside estimate, more than ten millions would be left to be counted as out-and-out Republicans.

That is, indeed, a respectable nucleus for a political party. On no account can it be reckoned a negligible force in American public opinion. With effective leadership, its possibilities would be almost unlimited. With effective leadership—cut that's the rub.

As matters stand today, it would require far more than the space available to survey all of the elements which share in the control and conduct of the Republican party. Four principal groups, however, are worth special mention:

1. The old guard, repudiated and discredited in the eyes of many party men, the old guard still is a long way from extinction. In a surprising number of important states, it either controls or strongly influences the state organization. Never having accepted fully either the Hoover leadership or the Landon leadership, it unquestionably dreams now of returning glory.
2. The western liberals. Their party influence is less than formerly, since many of their number evidently have withdrawn from the party for good. Those remaining—such figures as Borah, McNary, and Johnson—nevertheless hold a power which cannot be discounted. Incidentally, they constitute the most numerous group of surviving Republican officeholders after two Democratic landslides.

3. The Hoover element. That the only living ex-President still hopes for a return to party authority is doubted by few in inner political circles. It is no secret that many of his friends—and he built up a far flung organization while he was President—accepted the Landon candidacy reluctantly and never completely recognized the Landon leadership.

4. The Landon bloc. Spreading its influence from Kansas, it now has titular control of the party machinery nationally—an important consideration. It apparently has no intention of letting go in the near future.

Is it possible to conceive of any one of these various elements providing the sort of leadership the party will need in 1940 if it is to win?

In these times, it is hard to imagine any Republican hope of victory under the old guard. Equally, in view of past antagonisms, an effective leader of the Borah type might easily build for himself a personality equal to

Mr. Hoover or Mr. Landon engaged as high commander of the party four years hence, after all that has happened, it would constitute a reversal of all of the lessons of political history.

The one alternative is new leadership entirely. It would seem that an opportunity seldom equalled in American politics is waiting for someone, with better than ten millions of votes to start with, the right sort of forceful personality might easily build for himself an effective leader of the Borah type mighty political empire. Will such a personality appear?

Talks To Parents

By Brooks Peters Church

Compromise
"The Smiths have collies on their table. Why must we have table-cloths? The Joneses eat in the dining room for all their meals. Why don't we? The Browns use their solid silver at the time. Why do we keep ours put away for when we have company? Most people have dinner later than we do. I don't like to bring my friends home, because we have our meals at such funny times."

Parents are more apt to resent their children's criticisms of home than to listen to them. They look upon the attitude of the children as sheer impertinence. What they do, and how they live, is their own affair, and better than the way others do. And yet a compromise here and there would make the wheels of home life run much more smoothly.

Of course if there is a real reason for one's domestic peculiarities, all right. If the table is worn and ugly, dollies are probably out of the question, and the children must bow to the inevitable. If the housekeeper's life is greatly simplified by breakfast in the kitchen, the youngsters can be made to see the point.

Often, however, the parents' objections are based on nothing more than habit. It is a nuisance to change one's mode of life; it involves new motions, new ideas. But parents must change. Change is essential if one brings up children. They are always in contact with new ideas, new conventions, new ways of living. They want to try out a few of the novelties themselves, and their home is the one place where they can do it.

A little yielding on the parents' part will find them eager to cooperate in working out what can and cannot be done.

And it will not hurt the parents to make a few adjustments. Middle age is apt to grow set in its ways. A little shaking up may rejuvenate the parents, and in the long run do them good.

But there is plenty of room for enterprising vote-getters. Even the extraordinary vote this year falls far short of reaching the nearly 60 per cent of the population eligible to vote—that is, above 21 years old. In 1930, of a population of 122,861,000, the census records 72,943,000 aged 21 or older.

Incidentally between Presidential election years more than 8,000,000 voters come of age. The census estimates the number of 2,200,000 yearly. That, for electors, is a prize worth going after. Realizing that, campaign managers for many years have set up divisions in national headquarters for young voters. Young Republican clubs and young Democratic clubs are organized in every state, operate nationally, and are given campaign jobs to do.

But evidently between 1932 and 1936, President Roosevelt and the New Deal presented a program more attractive to young voters than the one the Republicans presented. The New Deal got more of the 8,000,000 than the Republicans, if proportionate spread of the vote may be taken as a guide. In the eight-year span covered by two administrations, the 8,000,000 possible votes would swell to 16,000,000, far more than the margin of difference between the two parties.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Crover

Washington — A larger per cent of the population went to the polls in the last election than at any time in recent years and probably in the history of the country.

That is healthy for democracy, as most anyone will concede, since the voters go voluntarily, and not by decree.

The total vote cast has been projected from unofficial tabulations to total 45,000,000 to 47,000,000. That would be 35 or 36 per cent of the population.

Part of the marked increase since 1920 has been due to the women's suffrage amendment which went into effect in August, 1920, just in time for polling that year.

Figures since 1916 on the population of the country, the number and

Year	Population	Voting Pop.	Vot.
1916	100,000,000	18,500,000	18.5
1920	106,000,000	26,700,000	20.4
1924	113,000,000	29,000,000	25.6
1928	120,000,000	36,800,000	30.6

Let Us Escape Pneumonia.

Pneumonia stands forth among the leading causes of death, largely because it is preventable to an appreciable degree. Pneumonia takes about 100,000 lives a year in this country. It is the most devastating of the respiratory infections and ranks third among the leading causes of death. For generations, about 25 of every 100 persons ill with lobar pneumonia have died.

In various states and in a number of local communities, campaigns sponsored either by the local medical societies or by public health organizations, have proved effective in reducing the pneumonia death rate. In Massachusetts such a campaign has yielded particularly good results. In New York state the medical society has undertaken a wide campaign against pneumonia.

Yesterday and today, Greenville has been host to the annual convention of the King's Daughters. Not only is it a pleasure for our city to be host to these fine women, but the ideals of the organization as set forth by the various speakers of the convention should be an inspiration to all. Among the objectives of the organization for this year is the procuring of a new chapel at Stonewall Jackson Training School. The work of the school—that of reclaiming the youth of the state, making upright citizens out of wayward boys—is something that should have the whole-hearted support of every citizen of the state and if a new chapel is needed at the school it is hoped that our people will respond to the plea for funds to erect this new chapel.

The Pitt County Bar yesterday unanimously endorsed Judge Albion Dunn for one of the new posts of Justice of the Supreme Court to be created by the legislature under the recently adopted constitutional amendment to increase the North Carolina Supreme Court. Judge Dunn is not only one of the outstanding lawyers of this section but when he served as Superior Court Judge he was considered one of the most competent jurists on the bench. When the legislature does act in this matter and the time comes for the governor to make the appointments we believe he will do well to name Judge Dunn for one of the posts.

While motorists in this city as a whole are obeying the traffic lights at the busy intersections, it is noticeable that few pedestrians pay little attention to them with the result that it creates a serious situation. When a motorist approaches a green light at an intersection he naturally thinks the way is clear and proceeds on his way, and when a pedestrian without regard for the traffic lights steps into the path of the approaching car, it is short of a miracle if an accident is prevented. The traffic lights were erected in this city as a safety measure and if they are to prove worthwhile pedestrians as well as motorists must obey them. When pedestrians cross an intersection in the face of a red light they are inviting accidents that might cause injury to themselves or others.

Wings For Sally by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: To boost the family income, Sally Warren, who is 22, attractive and unselfish, joins the Warrenton Courier staff as society editor. She wants to help Ray and pretty, headstrong Tip, the 18-year-old Warren twins. Terry Maynard, boyish blond aviator, lands a job with South American prospects and asks Sally to marry him. They become secretly engaged. Philip Page, dark and handsome young man whom Sally hasn't seen since childhood, bumps the Courier. He asks Sally to take his letters, and promises to give Ray a job.

Chapter 10 Trouble in Milltown

SALLY was in the midst of her morning work when the office boy came to say that Philip Page wanted her to take some letters. Sally got her tablet and pencil and knocked at his door. A curt voice bade her come in. Philip Page's black brows were drawn together in a frown, and with hardly a word of introduction he plunged into rapid dictation. Sally followed him as best she could, but she was relieved when the task was over. She rose, undecided whether to thank him for his interest in Ray. But Philip Page spoke of something else entirely.

Sally, dancing away with Terry, thought of Philip Page.

"You know the Morris family pretty well, don't you, Miss Warren?" he asked suddenly. "I went to school with Mary and Joe," said Sally. She could not add that the Morris set had too much money for the Warrens to belong to it.

"What about the old man—old Joe Morris—do you know him?" "Yes, of course. But not very well. He's always too mixed up in his business to have much time for Mary and Joe's friends."

"You've been reading about the trouble over at the south end of town, I suppose?" "No," Sally was too honest to pretend. "You mean at Milltown?" "Didn't you read Miss Hopkins' story on the front page of the Courier yesterday?" Philip's voice was sharp. "No, I didn't."

"Good Lord! I hope that isn't indicative of the way the rest of the town reads the paper!" "I've never known much about Milltown or the mills either," said Sally a little resentfully. "You should," answered Philip Page promptly. "In brief, the trouble is this: Mr. Morris made an agreement with his workers not to reduce wages further in the mill village. He's broken the agreement and tomorrow the workers plan to strike. We're giving Mr. Morris a good deal of publicity that we hope will be unpleasant to him."

"I see," said Sally, although she didn't entirely. "Mr. Morris would be about the worst person in town to fight," she added slowly. "I'm not afraid of that," retorted Philip Page. "But this party at the Morris house—in my honor. That's a little awkward."

"Old Mr. Morris probably doesn't approve of the party," said Sally, "but Mary can do anything with him she chooses. She'll be terribly disappointed if you won't come. She probably knows all about your fight with her father, and it just amuses her. Mary won't mind. Neither will young Joe."

"I'll remember that." His own dark face lighted with a smile and Sally thought how much it changed him. Back at her desk when she reviewed her interview with him, she found she had not come out so well. To have been caught ignorant of a front page story was humiliating.

"He probably thought me sentimental that first night in the garden," Sally said to herself. "Now he thinks me stupid."

For some reason, she wanted very much to earn the respect of Philip Page.

Party At The Morrises' MARY MORRIS was one of the few persons in Warrenton who could afford to give a big party, and she had spared no pains to make the affair a success. There were plenty of cocktails and the music was persuasive.

When Sally and Terry arrived, Mary Morris was making it perfectly plain that there would be no ill feeling between her and Philip Page on account of his newspaper's attitude toward her father's business. "I think it's perfectly marvelous," she was saying to a group around the bar, "the way Philip is getting under Dad's skin. Why poor Dad simply froths at the mouth every time he reads the Courier. I'm actually afraid he'll have Phil waylaid some dark night."

Sally, dancing away with Terry, thought that Philip Page would soon drop his campaign against old Joe Morris and the mills. Philip was dancing with Mary now, and apparently finding it very pleasant. Mary was certainly stunning in a yellow organdy that emphasized the contrast between her platinum blond hair and her large dark eyes. "Sally's got a beautiful coat of tan," Sally said aloud to Terry. "She's easily the best looking girl in town."

"Don't like the hair," objected Terry. "Looks as if she had a hard time keeping it that color." He looked past Sally at a couple across the room. "Know who's got the edge on Mary for looks?"

"Who?" "That little black-eyed devil of a sister of yours."

Sally, looking at Tip, was glad to agree with him. Tip had got her new dress, a gay cross-barred organdy in vivid shades of scarlet, blue and gold. Her piquant little face was flushed with the pleasure of dancing, and her pretty mouth laughed at the least pretext.

"Your boss has got an eye on you," said Terry suddenly. Sally glanced around quickly and saw Philip Page making his way toward them.

Just That Shade Of Blue "HE'S only doing his duty," said Sally. "Call it duty if you want to," said Terry. "He certainly looks like a man who's made up his mind to dance with you."

"May I?" "As she danced away with Philip Page, Sally was amused and chagrined to find that she was self-conscious. When she met his eyes, he was smiling at her mockingly.

"Am I such an ogre of an employer that my hired girls are afraid of me?" he asked. "Not exactly afraid," Sally retorted. "Just—shall we say, impressed?"

"I doubt it," said Philip Page. Then, in a different tone he added, "Do you mind if I tell you that you remind me a little of my mother? I was so young when she died I have very few memories of her, but one of them is a picture of her as she looked when she was leaving for a party once—she had on a dress just that shade of blue you're wearing. I've always liked it."

"I'm glad," said Sally. (Copyright 1936 Bailey Wolfe)

Terry shocks Sally tomorrow with news about Tip.

UNC-GAMECOCK BATTLE ON TAP

Memories of Thrilling Contests in Past Recalled

Chapel Hill, Nov. 19.—The Battle of the Carolinas, which is to be played in Columbia Saturday as a Homecoming event for the Gamecocks, brings back vivid memories of many colorful, hard fought games between the Tar Heels and Gamecocks.

Among the outstanding contests between these 33-year-old rivals were those of 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927.

Followers of the birds will remember that 1924 conflict between the sister institutions, for it marked South Carolina's first win over its old foe since the series was inaugurated. In the end, it was Boatwright's educated toe that decided the ding-dong battle, the score being 10-7.

When the Gamecock ground attack bogged on the 20-yard line, and booted a perfect field goal Boatwright calmly stepped back through the uprights. The Tar Heels racked up seven first downs for the opposition and threatened to score twice but lacked the punch to take it across.

North Carolina encountered a bit of hard luck when Jack Merritt, capable halfback, broke loose around his left end and scampered 85 yards for a touchdown. The officials called the play back and ruled that Merritt had stepped out side on the 40-yard line. Boatwright ran a Tar Heel punt back 75 yards to put the ball on the 15 where Jefferson passed to Swink for the marker. The Fetzer-Coached team tallied its lone score when Devin raked 12 yards around end for a touchdown.

The Tar Heels avenged that setback in 1925 with a 7-0 decision. South Carolina was the victim of bad breaks this time. The Gamecocks outgained their opponents on running and passing but a blocked punt in the first quarter was recovered over the goal line by the alert Bill Dodderer, Tar Heel end, for lone score. North Carolina's defense resisted stubbornly in the danger zone to check three Bird threats.

In the 1926 game Tom Young, brilliant North Carolina halfback, scooped up a fumble and breezed 75 yards down the sideline to give North Carolina a 7-0 victory. The boys from the Palmetto State did most of the running again that day, but the Tar Heels fought courageously to ward off all threats.

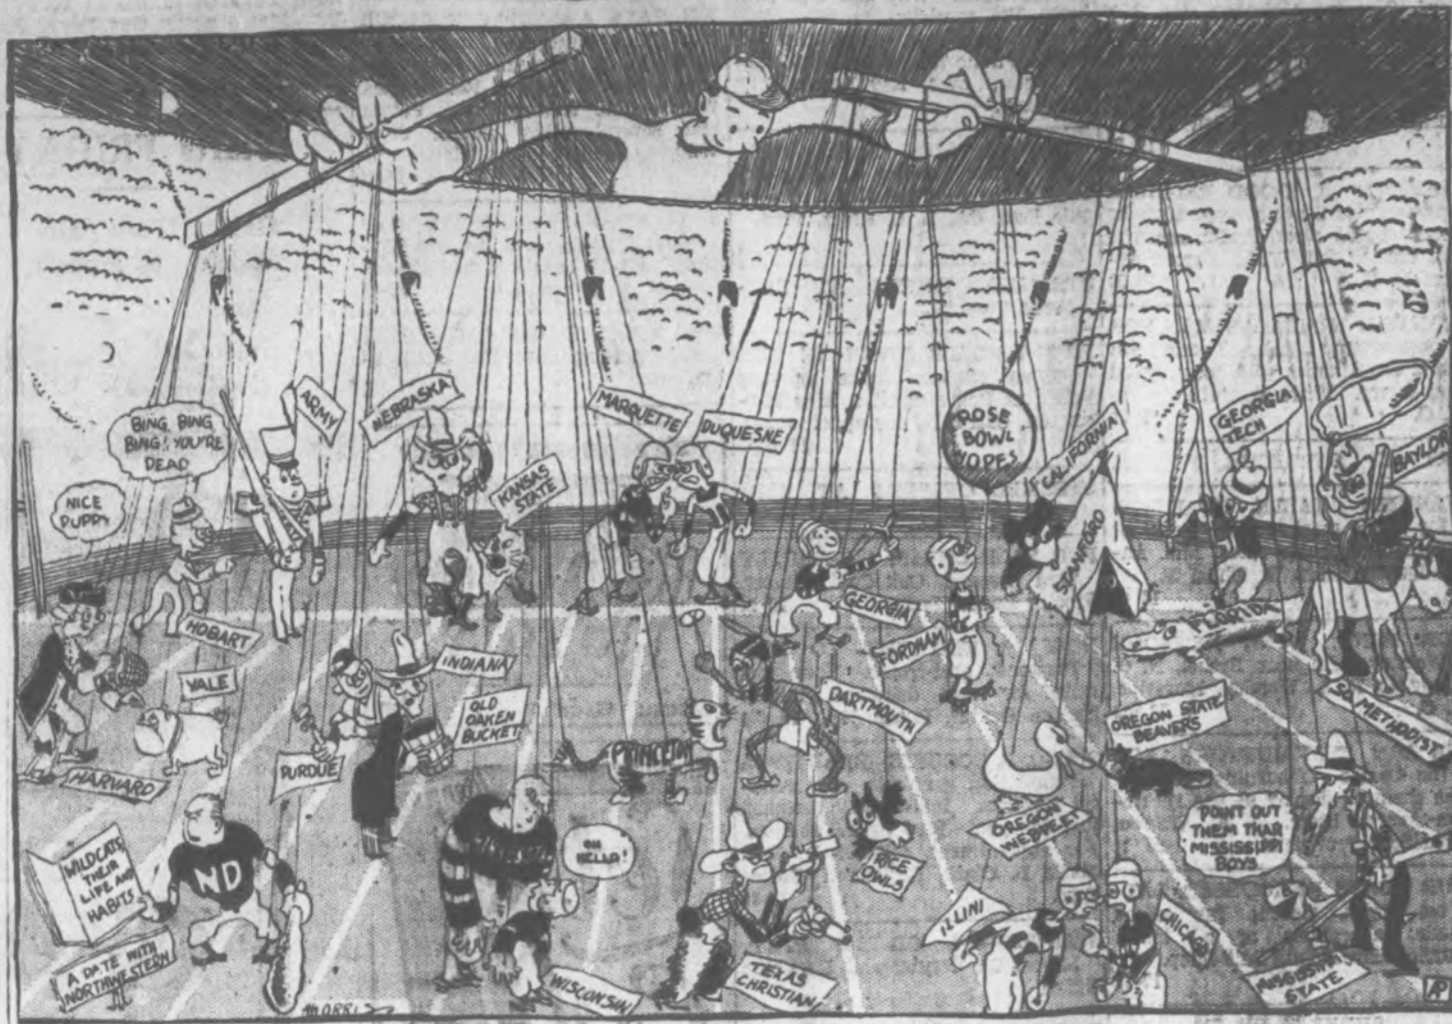

Garry Schwartz, capable center; Garrett; Morehead; star tackle, and Young dominated the play of the winners.

The tide turned in South Carolina's favor in 1927 when the heavily-favored Tar Heels were upset 14-6. As one spectator so aptly remarked, "North Carolina played All-American football between the ten-yard stripes." Coach Chuck Collins' charges pushed within the 10-yard stripes three times but were turned back on every occasion. Swink intercepted a Tar Heel pass and raced 45 yards for a touchdown for the game's feature play.

This year the Tar Heels seem favored again but the Gamecocks will be doing their utmost to upset the dope before a Homecoming crowd.

The Birds depend heavily on their brilliant sophomores, but they have 15 lettermen as compared to 12 for the Tar Heels. It is also recalled that they held Duke scoreless for three prides.

'PIRATES' GIRL FOR BIG GAME

College Team to Play Eleven from Louisville Saturday

The East Carolina Teachers will meet the Louisville College eleven in a Homecoming game here Saturday. In last year's encounter the Pirates defeated Louisville's Trojans 13-8.

Coach Boley Farley has given his Teachers a program of hard work for this week, and has warned the players against the danger of over-confidence in the game to be played before the Homecoming crowd.

On the basis of season records to date, the Pirates have a slight edge. Last Saturday E. C. T. C. lost to the Guilford Quakers 6-0 while Louisville bowed to Campbell 13-0. The Eastern Teachers have lost one other game this year, an early season contest with the Western Teachers which the Pirates dropped 7-6.

The Greenville high bands will play for the Saturday game and sponsors for the two Colleges will be presented in the intermission between.

flames an interesting technique is involved. Doris stands before the camera, beside which is a firepot in front of a big light. A workman fans the fire with a leafy bough, the light throws the shadow of the twisting, leaping flames on the wall behind Doris, and (in the camera's eye at least) she is in a hot spot.

"Let's Make a Million" is the new title for "One Man's Bonus." Director Ray McCarey got reactions of his workers, including many veterans, to the bonus title and decided it would not go. All the veterans on the set had spent their bonus, and they argued many others would have done likewise, so the former title would arouse only memories and regrets.

Today Edward Everett Horton, playing a veteran who sponsored an oil enterprise that was a dud, is sitting along Main street, greeting friends he had persuaded to invest. He is getting plenty of cold shoulder. First man he meets is Roy Brent, who blasts him with emphatic frigidities. Brent is Horton's stand-in, who occasionally enacts bits in his pictures.

After the scene Eddie reveals, rickety: "Roy has played many parts in pictures, but this is the first time he ever had a chance to sneer openly—sneer—at me!"

McCarey, Leo's brother and getting along fine as a director himself, comes up with an "I remember when."

One day on the old Pathe lot he decided to make a college comedy "short" with a young chap he knew who was singing at the Coconut Grove.

And the singing chap was Bing Crosby, and McCarey got him to make the picture for a fee of $20.

SPORT SLANTS

Ben Enis, Louisiana State university's end coach, is a quiet and reserved fellow who seldom speaks for publication. Yet he is willing to go on record to the effect that his boy Gaynell Tinsley is the greatest end he ever saw—and that creates a lot of territory and includes quite a few all-America ends.

Last fall Tinsley was unanimously named all-America wingman—the experts called him the "perfect end." As a junior in 1935, Tinsley was almost impossible to circle and gave inches on an outside tackle smashes grudgingly.

If Tinsley was a "perfect end" last year, this fall he is a "super-perfect end." As Enis points out: "Tinsley was a brilliant end last year, yet he is even greater this season. He has more polish and more poise and he's better on defense and every bit deadly on offense."

In proving his point that Tinsley had improved on offense, Enis recalled that Gaynell scored a touchdown in the season's opener against Rice Institute when he tossed a Rice back behind the goal line and then recovered the Texans' fumble. He caught a pass and raced 35 yards to a touchdown against Ole Miss that Tinsley really stepped out. He took a pass from Pat Coffee, shook off Ray Hapes, the safety man, and outran another Mississippi back for 45 yards. He ran up his fourth touchdown in the Auburn game when he took a flat pass from coffee on the 2-yard mark and stepped over the goal line.

Share Top With 'Bama. Louisiana State earned its fifth consecutive Southeastern conference victory when the Tigers scored, 19-6, over Auburn. That victory just about insured another conference title for Coach Bernie Moore's charges.

The Tigers are rated as one of the two best teams in the Southeast, sharing the honor with Alabama's Crimson Tide.

Coach Bernie Moore has a pair of husky guards who would warm the heart of any football coach in Wardell (Sheep) Lels and Marvin Baldwin. Both have been playing a smashing brand of ball all year. Much of Louisiana's success this fall can be traced to the successful operation of the Tigers' forward wall in general, and to the manner in which this pair of huskies have spread despair and destruction in the enemy's ranks in particular.

Nickname Fits. Baldwin, the regular right guard since the Vanderbilt game of 1934, is rated one of the outstanding performers at that post in the conference.

As his unsavory nickname of "Bullfrog" might indicate, Baldwin is a tough-looking customer when viewed across the neutral zone. He is stockily-built, with massive shoulders. He is 5 feet 11 and weighs 210 pounds.

Coach Moore's pet guard was quite an athlete in high school, if the wholesome manner in which he collected school letters is any criterion. He gained an even dozen mermen by one. His efforts in top Tulane's immortal Don Zimcluded football, basketball, baseball and track. He was always big
