ADMITS JAPAN IDEAS IN LINE WITH GERMANY

Reich Spokesman Says Countries Have Much in Common

DENIES HOWEVER ALLIANCE EXISTS

Official Sources Describe Themselves As Worried Over Report from Moscow

Berlin, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Japan and Germany have "much in common" in their governmental ideas, a Reich government spokesman acknowledged today.

He denied, however, there is a hard and fast alliance between the two.

"It is quite conceivable Germany and Japan—opposed as both are to Bolshevism—may in given situations decide to proceed jointly," he added.

"It is also possible if either should become involved in a war with Soviet Russia the other would exercise at least a benevolent neutrality."

"It is also clear Japan and Germany have much in common in their authoritarian conception of government."

Official sources described themselves frankly puzzled and worried by persistent reports from Moscow of a German-Japanese pact aimed against Russia.

Stoutly maintaining that "nothing is known here," one official, however, declined to be pinned down to an absolute denial.

Methodist Church Condemns Liquor Drinking in State

Resolutions Opposing "Permissive Drinking at Football Games" Passed by Conference

New Bern, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Resolutions condemning the liquor traffic generally and opposing "permissive drinking at football games" were passed by acclamation today at the 100th annual North Carolina conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

Both resolutions were presented by L. M. Hall of Aberdeen, the general indictment of the liquor traffic being offered in February of the board of lay activities, of which Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke university is chairman.

The football resolution described conduct at some football games as "disgraceful" and called on Duke university and the church administrator to "take its rightful place in the forefront" by endeavoring to decrease such drinking.

The resolution commended Dr. Frank P. Graham and other officials of the university of North Carolina for their efforts in this direction before the Duke-Carolina game.

The resolution presented on behalf of the lay members of the conference condemned a North Carolina movement looking toward use of liquor revenue and termed it "blood money."

Chairman Reports Democratic Fund Left in Treasury

Final Statement Filed With Secretary of State Charles Powell Shows Balance of $2,372.11

Raleigh, Nov. 21.—(AP)—J. Wallace Winborne, state Democratic chairman, reported today that $29,801.23 was spent through his organization during the recent campaign and that a balance of $2,372.11 remained in the party's state treasury yesterday.

The final report of the chairman, filed this morning with Charles G. Powell, state secretary, listed contributions by around 2,800 persons to make close to $6,000 individual contributions this year.

A. D. Folger, who was finance director in the state for the national Democratic committee, turned over $7,600 to the state fund which received a total of $31,173.24.

James A. Gray and S. Clay Williams, both of Winston-Salem each contributed $1,000 and Cameron Morrison and Mrs. Morrison of Charlotte gave $1,000. B. Hampton Ellington of New Bern sent in $400 and most of the other gifts ranged from $100 down to a few cents each.

PROFESSOR GETS FIRST BAG IN WILD BOAR HUNT

Dr. Graeme A. Canning, middle-aged professor of zoology at the University of Tennessee who had fired a gun in 14 years, won the distinction for killing the first beast during the annual wild boar hunt in the Cherokee National Forest near Tellico Plains, Tenn. He is shown (right) with the horns of his prey. Four others who participated in the hunt are shown above. Left to right: Mrs. W. W. Stanley of Knoxville, Edith Hass, champion boar hunter and guide; Jim Matoy, also a famous hunter of the vicinity, and W. W. Stanley. (Associated Press Photos)

OLD STUDENTS HOLD REUNION

More Than 2,000 E. C. T. C. Graduates at Homecoming

More than 2,000 students, alumnae and faculty members were served at the barbecue luncheon which was the opening feature of the Homecoming celebration at East Carolina Teachers College today. For more than forty minutes a steady line of people passed before the picnic tables on the back campus of the College and fifty girls served twelve barbecued pigs and more than a hundred gallons of punch.

The students and alumnae sat down on the leaf covered ground under the trees to eat, laugh and talk over old times. The day was clear and warm, and the cut-door luncheon was pleasant.

At 1:45 the alumnae moved into the Austin Auditorium for the program.

Mrs. O. K. Joyner, president of the alumnae association before introducing President Meadows, spoke of the appropriateness of having their first homecoming of the twenty-fifth year of the Alumnae Association. The homecomings heretofore have been at commencement time, but the Alumnae felt that they wished to come during the year, an idea the regular college life of the students. Today they have come to dine, yell, and dance with the students, thus, they feel they are again taking part in college life.

Dr. Meadows most graciously welcomed the Alumnae home in an informal, cordial way saying that the sweetest thing to him about going home was that it did not have to be formal. He gave them the invitation to go where they pleased, visit their old rooms, mix and mingle with the students, and renew their college life. He trusted that they would be reinvigorated by the college spirit, and invited them to come often. He announced that he had appointed a committee of the faculty to work with two of their number to plan future homecomings.

Mrs. Charles M. Johnson could not be present today so Mr. Joyner introduced Mrs. Spilman in her place. "The place of the young woman in politics" was the topic of address which Mrs. J. B. Spilman, vice chairman of the State Democratic executive committee, delivered before the homecoming assembly.

Mrs. Spilman suggested that politics in a fertile field for the young woman of today, and pointed to the work Secretary Frances Perkins, among others, was an example of public service that the student should seek to imitate.

She emphasized the idea that the corruptness of politics should challenge women to enter the field rather than repulse them.

The committee of the faculty is composed of Dr. R. J. Slay, Miss Maria D. Graham, and Dr. Carl Adams.

Weather For The Week

Generally fair weather with temperature somewhat below normal at beginning, followed by rising temperatures until middle of week, colder Wednesday night or Thursday and warmer at end of week.

Japan's population increased by 1,000,000,000 in the year ended October 1, 1936.

President Tries Hand At Angling

Port-au-Spain, Trinidad, Nov. 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arranged an angling expedition in this tropical harbor today while the cruisers Indianapolis and Chester, carrying him and his party to South America took on fuel and supplies.

A plane from Florida bore a special punch of White House mail for the President.

British colonial officials arranged to board the Indianapolis, Mr. Roosevelt's flagship and extend a welcome.

The departure for Rio de Janeiro, the President's next stop, was scheduled for late afternoon. From there Mr. Roosevelt will continue to Buenos Aires to attend the opening of the Inter-American peace conference.

GEN. DENHARDT STILL IN JAIL

Counsel Defers Habeas Corpus Proceedings for Client

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Counsel for Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt, deferred today habeas corpus proceedings to release the soldier-politician from the Jefferson county jail where he is held without bond to await action of the Henry county grand jury on a charge of murdering his sweetheart, Verna Carr Taylor.

Rodes K. Myers, who argued in vain before Henry county Judge A. S. Morgan at New Castle yesterday that the commonwealth's evidence at the examining trial was insufficient to hold the veteran of three wars, said there was no immediate prospect of an application for a writ.

The former Brigadier General and Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky, who was cited for service on the St. Mihiel front in the world war, rested comfortably last night in his cell in the county jail.

Accustomed to position of honor in the past at state functions, the tall, portly, dignified general dejectedly walked into the lock-up here last night.

Pitt Farmers Urged Turn In Crop Forms

All Pitt county farmers who have not done so, are urged to turn in to the County Agent's office, at once, the forms, C. A. P. 3, "Receipt For and Report of Distribution of Cotton Price Adjustment Payment," in 1935.

These receipt forms were given to cotton farmers who had tenants sharing in the 1935 Cotton Price Adjustment check, and were instructed to return the forms properly signed within thirty days.

Three hundred and forty-two sets of the C. A. P. 3 form has not been turned in, and if this is not done by November 24, the producer's 1935 Soil Conservation check may be withheld or deductions made therefrom.

The County Agent is urging that all farmers who received forms, C. A. P. 3, turn them in properly signed, on or before November 24, if they have not done so.

GROUPS MEET FOR SESSIONS

Numerous Departmental Meetings Held by Teachers

Seventeen departmental groups met at nine o'clock this morning, each one having some prominent speaker or a program centering on an important subject.

G. B. Phillips of the University of North Carolina Department of Education, in his address to the high school principals pointed out that college teacher faces the danger of losing contact with the public school situation.

Mr. Phillips said that the schools are looking forward to a petition of the advance that took place in public education between 1920 and 1930.

He told the assembly that only a real, well-planned offensive drive can carry public education forward. Laymen's organizations with a chairman in each district; a long-time program of planning; a united front on the part of superintendent's, principals and classroom teacher's organizations; the relief of principals from teaching duties; and cooperation with parent-teacher, church, and social groups were suggested as methods and points of attack.

Miss Blackburn of the Greenville High School and East Carolina Teachers College opened the program for commercial teachers with a talk on the "High Lights of Commercial Education in North Carolina, giving the early difficulties the commercial teachers had in obtaining the same standards as the other departments enjoyed.

Rum-Runner Held For County Court Under Heavy Bond

James Elks, Sought by Local Officers for Some Time, Caught in Trap in City Yesterday

James Elks, alleged rum runner caught yesterday when local police officers set a trap for him, was bound over to County court under bond of $300 today following a preliminary hearing in Municipal court.

City officers said that they had suspected Elks for some time, but had never been able to catch him "with the goods on" until yesterday when he was caught while in the act of delivering illegal whiskey at a negro's house.

John Vines, negro, was bound over to County court on a charge of possessing illegal liquor for the purpose of sale. It was at Vines' house that officers said they caught Elks delivering the whiskey.

Ernest Jacobs, negro, was bound over to Superior court under bond of $300 on a charge of the theft of an automobile.

Mary Anderson, white woman, was ordered held for trial in county court on a charge of driving while drunk. The woman, not a resident of this city, posted a $100 cash bond.

Lincy Woodard, negro, was given 30 days on the roads, upon conviction of disorderly conduct.

El Brown, negro, was fined five dollars and cost on a disorderly conduct charge.

APPEALS MADE TO PRESIDENT TO END STRIKE

No Break in Sight for 23-Day-Old Maritime Walkout

TENANTS SAID BE UNABLE TO PAY

Purchasing Agents Association Wires Roosevelt Strike Is Costing Millions

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—(AP)—With no break in sight on the 23rd day of the maritime walkout, independent business organizations directed appeals for help to Washington today and figured in millions of dollars the strike cost to west coast industries.

Waterfront employers said three ships had been added to the number paralyzed in coast ports, bringing the total to 216 in the dispute which has thrown more than 37,000 union maritime employees out of work and affected tens of thousands in other industries.

Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady sought to attack the crucial hiring halt issue from new angles after ship owners last night rejected his proposal for "neutral port committee" for settlement of individual controversies.

The San Francisco apartment house owners and managers association telegraphed an appeal to President Roosevelt to end the strike.

"The financial losses to business are colossal" the organization said. "Tenants are losing their jobs and can not pay their rents. Conditions are beyond your conception."

The purchasing agents association of Northern California telegraphed the strike is "costing millions of dollars daily" and that "every citizen in this area is already bearing the extent of this unnecessary tie-up of business."

SCHOOLS GIVE PAGEANT HERE

More Than 2,000 Witness Feature of Teacher Meet

The historical educational pageant entitled "The Progress of Education in North Carolina for the Last Hundred Years" was staged in the Wright Auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College Friday night at a feature of the Northeastern district meeting of the North Carolina Education Association.

A capacity crowd of more than 2,000 saw schools of seven cities and the Teachers College, in the pageantry and drama of eight episodes, reveal the progress of education in North Carolina from the first apprenticeships of orphans in Perquimans county in 1698 to the socialized education and the modern high school in 1936.

The Greenville high school band and the Rocky Mount glee club furnished music between each of the eight episodes.

The Prologue was presented by the speech choir of Rocky Mount High School, and provided the preliminary background for the entire show. Thirty male and female voices were blended with perfect precision to tell the history of Virginia Dare and the early settlements in eastern Carolina.

The first episode as given by the Perquimans High School of Hertford and showed the early apprenticeship of orphans in the county. Costumes of the period added color to the event.

In episode two North Carolina's First Known School was presented by the Elizabeth City High school in three parts. A group of men in (Continued on page four)

Edward Harris Heard At Fraternity Meet

Edward Harris, Greenville native, was one of four speakers to appear on the Founders Day dinner program in celebration of the 102nd anniversary of Delta Upsilon fraternity held at the Town Hall club in New York city recently.

Mr. Harris, playwright formerly with the Columbia Broadcasting company, is a graduate of Washington and Lee university. He is the son of Mrs. Belle Harris of this city.

The occasion for which Mr. Harris spoke brought together Delta Upsilon from the entire metropolitan area.

LABOR HAILS SECRETARY PERKINS

The object of loud and prolonged applause from the delegates, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins is shown addressing the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Tampa, Fla. She outlined the Roosevelt labor program, as working toward "a national living wage, continuity of income, stability of employment and maximum utilization of natural resources." Clyde A. Erwin Addresses District Teachers Meeting

J. H. Rose Is Named New President of Association

The social emphasis in government has been decisively endorsed, said Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, State superintendent of public instruction, in his address at the third general session of the Northeastern district meeting of the North Carolina Education Association here today. Advocating federal aid for schools and curriculum changes, Dr. Erwin addressed the assembled teachers from 22 counties.

J. H. Rose, superintendent of the Greenville schools was named president of the district. J. P. Booth of Kinston was chosen vice president and Miss Erna Ward of Bethel, secretary. The new officers will serve from the present time until next year's meeting.

The convention adopted a resolution drafted by the Resolutions committee calling on the General Assembly, which "holds in its hands the destiny of this great state agency," to make provision for adequate program of education.

The resolution explained that it means by adequate a teacher load not in excess of the national average, provision for a curriculum broad enough to fit the talents of the students and free textbooks.

The resolution also extended to the people of Greenville and especially teachers here, appreciation for their cordial hospitality.

Mr. Erwin emphasized an increased salary schedule and a revised curriculum as the next forward step for public education in North Carolina.

After paying high tribute to the pageant shown in the Wright auditorium last night, which he termed "interesting and thrilling" he praised the work of the leaders portrayed in the pageant who have contributed so greatly to the North Carolina's century of progress in education.

"You and I think we have our problems," said Dr. Erwin, "but we don't have any problems as compared with those of past leaders."

"Our present system of public education is not yet adequately but it is moving in the direction of adequacy. It is our privilege to stand at the forefront of the next century of education."

"We are at the end of a period of transition," Dr. Erwin continued, "a period in which North Carolina moved backward in education."

Here Dr. Erwin advocated a salary schedule increased to the level of 16 years ago, as a minimum. At the present rate of pay, he further remarked, "we are facing a crisis when it becomes a problem to secure an adequate attractive salary which will secure better teachers and will safeguard the interests of the children of the state."

This financial backing should come from three sources, Dr. Erwin said: from the state, which should provide to its greatest ability for the maintenance of a minimum system for all the children; from local supplements which the communities should be privileged to vote; and from the Federal treasury which should equalize educational opportunity throughout the nation.

In speaking of curriculum reconstruction, Dr. Erwin said, "The curriculum must move forward as civilization moves forward."

"The building of the curriculum through the years has been largely (Continued on page four)

LOYALS CLAIM RECAPTURE OF PART OF CITY

Freezing Rain Halts Aerial Bombardment of Madrid

FOOD SHORTAGE PROVOKES ACT'N

Government Offers Free Transportation Out of Capital For Women, Children

Madrid, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Madrid's gunners rolled heavy batteries up to University City this afternoon and began a short range bombardment of the positions still held by fascists invaders.

They announced the recapture of the national institute of biology in the northeastern Madrid section and said withdrawal of their forces from Casa de Camp park, across the Manzanares river from Madrid on the west, had strengthened the University City corps.

Reports reached Madrid of the sinking of a Spanish merchantman off Palamo on the eastern Spanish coast by 40 fascist shells from the insurgent cruiser Canarias. (The reports were strikingly similar to those heard at Franco-Spanish border points four days ago and rebroadcast by insurgent radio stations last night.)

A day of heavy, freezing rain gave the grateful capital respite for aerial bombardment.

Pressed by an increasing food shortage, the government offered free transportation to the eastern regions of Spain for women, children and old persons of both sides.

Intense cold increased the hardships of the homeless.

The defense junta announced all entrances to Madrid were blocked effectively and promised the suffering of Madrilenos would be only "temporary."

Visiting Minister To Preach Sermon At Joint Service

Dr. Andrew Mutch, Minister Emeritus of Bryn Mawr College To Speak Sunday Night

The Greenville Ministerial Association has invited Dr. Andrew Mutch, Minister Emeritus of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian church, to be the guest preacher at a union service to be held in the Methodist church tomorrow night. Dr. Mutch has accepted the invitation.

While the guest speaker will need no introduction to an informed Christian community, it is perhaps well to remind the people of Greenville that Dr. Mutch is one of the most prominent men in the American ministry. A native of Scotland where he received his preparation for the ministry at the University of Edinburgh, after an assistant ministry at the Aberdeen Cathedral, Dr. Mutch came to the United States nearly five years ago and during that time has served the Bryn Mawr congregation. The service tomorrow night should prove of particular interest to the youth of the community, since the speaker is in constant demand for student groups and youth movements.

The students of Harvard, Yale, Stetser, and the Asheville School for Boys, to mention only a few, welcome him as a regular speaker. Dr. Mutch will be here for but one service and it is hoped that many will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his father, J. L. Branch, who lives about four miles from Greenville on the Cox Mill road. Rev. Walter Nobles of Winterville will officiate. Interment will take place in the family cemetery near the home.

Young Branch has farmed with his uncle and speculated in tobacco on the Greenville market.

Surviving are the father, J. Louis Branch, seven brothers, John A., David, Woodrow, Gentry, Ass. Dennis and Herbert Branch, two sisters, Misses Susan and Martha Branch, all of Pitt county.

Active pallbearers will be: W. M. Page, Robert Page, R. E. Rogers, Floyd McGowan, Russell Rollins, Bruce Tucker.

Honorary pallbearers: Will P. Moore, Johnnie Moore, C. H. McGowan, Arthur Elks, J. F. Harrington, J. C. Gaskins, Lee McGowan, Herman Garris, Sam Cox, Bernie Stokes, Clarence Stokes, C. H. Mills, Johnnie Harder, Tom Tyson, Guilford Evans, Mrekin McLawhorn Carroll Whitford, Furney Tripp, R. V. Keel, Wayland Sernious.

While the youth's condition was not stated definitely immediately after the operation, hospital attaches said his condition was satisfactory.

Parents Asked Keep Kids From Armory

O. G. Outley, superintendent in charge of construction work on the City-County armory today urged parents to keep their children away from the building while it is under construction in order to prevent possible injury.

The superintendent said it was dangerous for children to play around the structure as they were liable to be struck by a piece of timber or brick.

Name Omitted From Association Officers

The names of two members of the board of directors of the Pitt County Tuberculosis association were inadvertently omitted from the list carried in this paper earlier in the week.

Both men have signified their willingness to serve on the board of directors of the organization, the announced purpose of which is to combat the dread disease throughout the county.

The music will be given by members of the Presbyterian choir, assisted by Spruill Spain, and under the direction of Mrs. Guy V. Smith, organist for the occasion.

Altar flowers for the dedication service are being furnished by Mrs. W. S. Harden in memory of the late Rev. W. S. Harden, for eleven years, the former minister of the Greenville church.

Book Week

Nineteen hundred and thirty-six Book Week observance has been very satisfactory at Sheppard Memorial Library. The building itself was made the center of activities. Displays of new books, and book week posters were carefully arranged in the reading rooms. Efforts were made to bring new people to the building—those who did not come regularly—so that they might see that the service was worth while and desirable. This was done by invitations to families who had recently moved to the city, to the principals of the schools, local and rural, to club women, and others, and by notices printed in the Reflector. The building was open from 9 to 12 each morning in addition to the regular hours, 2 p. m. to 9 p. m.

The attendance has been very satisfactory. Many whole grades accompanied by their teachers have been in and spent a profitable half hour. Groups of school children who had never been to the library were brought in by teachers and members of Parent-Teacher associations. The new books and other features were shown to them, and they were invited to come again.

The daily circulation figures for the week are much larger than usual. This increase will grow, as it should. The purpose of the library is to provide suitable reading matter for Greenville and Pitt county.

Dinner and Musicals

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wilkinson entertained at an attractively appointed dinner last evening at the home of Mrs. Annie Quinerly, honoring Mr. Wilkinson's father, F. M. Wilkinson, of Washington. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ross and family, Miss Florence Bright and Miss Sallie Bright, of Washington; George V. Wilkinson, of Texas; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Herbert, Roanoke, Va., and Miss Imogene Ricks.

Following the dinner Mrs. Evelyn George Wilkinson gave a musicale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Smith on Pitt street. Mrs. Wilkinson has a beautiful contralto voice. Her program included German, French and English songs. She was accompanied by Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Wilkinson has appeared in concert and recitals throughout the country. She received her Bachelor's degree from Baldwin-Wallace Conservatory in Northern Ohio, has done post graduate work at Fontainebleau, France, School of Music, and coached with a prominent voice teacher of Chicago. She has also majored in organ and piano.

Mrs. Wilkinson's young son sang two songs and gave the Gettysburg address.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson, of Cleveland, Ohio, are spending some time in Greenville, en route to San Francisco from New England, where they have been spending the summer.

Tempting refreshments were served to about forty guests.

District Meeting Eastern Star

The Second District of the Order of Eastern Star, will meet in Greenville on Monday.

The meeting will convene in the Masonic hall at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Mrs. Jennie Potter, of A. Bayboro, District Grand Matron, will preside.

An interesting program has been planned. Distinguished guests expected to be here are Mrs. Alice Culpepper, of Elizabeth City, associate Grand Matron; Mrs. Athalea Brown, of Tarboro, Grand Conductress; and Mrs. Clyde F. Fitzgerald, of Raleigh, Past Grand Matron.

Raleigh, Nov. 21.—The three newly elected state officials who will take office in January—Secretary of State Thad Eure, State Auditor Baxter Durham and Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott—are not planning to make many changes in the personnel of their departments or offices immediately and will probably wait until after the 1937 general assembly adjourns or at least gets well under way before making any changes, it was learned here today.

Some few changes will probably be made right at the beginning of course. But for the most part these three new state officials are expected to retain most of the present employes for several months, at least.

It is understood that George Ross

THE WHOLE COUNTRY GOES WEST!

Mae makes hey-hey and the whole country goes West. Here we have Mae and Randolph Scott in a scene from "Go West, Young Man," feature attraction at the Pitt Monday-Tuesday.

Pou has already announced that he does not contemplate making any changes in the State Auditor's office right at first and that he probably will make very few changes until after the general assembly adjourns.

It is generally expected here, however, that Pou will eventually put in almost a completely new staff in the Auditor's office. Thad is also expected to retain most of the present employes in the office of the Secretary of State until after the general assembly meets, although it is believed he will make some drastic changes in the personnel of that office later on.

It had been expected that W. Kerr Scott would probably conduct a thorough house cleaning in the Department of Agriculture as soon as he took office in January and that most of the division heads and employes would be looking for new jobs, if they are not already doing so. But he indicated here this week that while he will make a few changes as soon as he takes office, he intends to proceed slowly and to give most of the present employes an opportunity to show him what they can do before deciding who will keep and who he will ask to resign.

Met observers here believe these new state officials are using good political judgment in deciding not to fire present employes on a wholesale basis before or during a session of the general assembly, also that it is good sense to give these old employes a chance to show what they can do.

The recent formation of Pitt County Tuberculosis Association should prove a step toward checking the disease in this county and the ultimate ridding the county of the disease. While the first work of the association will be that of disseminating information as to the disease with a hope of educating our people of its dangers and steps to be taken for treatment of the disease, it is to be hoped that eventually the association will be able to procure a county tubercular hospital where active cases of tuberculosis may be isolated and given proper treatment. Unchecked tuberculosis in this county will continue to spread and bring death to increasing numbers of people but if proper steps are taken in the way of isolation and treatment the disease can eventually be stamped out in this county.

Parents

Unadjusted children are largely the result of unadjusted homes. The difficulty is, however, not hereditary but environmental. Unhappy marriages and divorces tend to run in families, so does emotional instability, neuroticism, the inability to get along with others. Children growing up tend to repeat the pattern of life with which they are familiar.

The woman who is emotionally starved, or knows no emotion but temper, the woman who resents her husband and so distrusts all men, hands on to her daughter the legacy of her own failure to make the equation with life. She may hand it on unconsciously, but more often she does it by a remark which she lets drop at some unguarded moment. That one remark, perhaps because of the emotional intensity of the speaker, is never forgotten, and often affects the child's whole life.

Parents are apt to consider themselves grown up when they marry. Their faults and failings by some magic become fixed for all time, their educations are complete. Whether one marries at 19 or 30, the growing process stops at once. But marriage is not a magic charm which crystallizes people as they are. Parents are not so very much farther along than their children, and if they stop learning and developing when the children are born they will soon be behind the children. Life is a continuous, and should be a conscious process of self-education. One should analyze one's failings and shortcomings and seek to overcome them, even if one has children; one should continue to read and study.

Only by these means can one obtain the maturity and self-control which are essential, if one is to become adjusted to one's environment and to bring up normal and happy children.

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Sally Warren, attractive young society editor of the Warrenton Courier, becomes secretly engaged to Terry Maynard, boyish blond aviator who has been promised a South American job. Sally feels she can't marry at once because her family needs her financial help. While she works, her pretty, headstrong younger sister, Tip, is thrown with Terry who teaches her to fly. Handsome, dark Philip Page buys the Courier as a strike starts in the Morris mill. He backs the workmen. Building inspector Horton tells Philip many Morris-owned buildings are unsafe.

Chapter 13 Philip Rescues A Gird Sally

When Horton had gone, Philip turned back to Sally. "Know what it's all about?" he demanded. "I always read the paper, now," said Sally. "You won't catch me again."

"Don't read it for me," said Philip brusquely. "Read it for me, because I want to know what's going on behind the tea and dances."

"I didn't read it for you," said Sally coldly. "Why should I?"

"I beg your pardon," said Philip Page. "That's a pretty shade of blue you're wearing. I suppose you're going to say that you didn't wear that, either, because I said I liked it. Well, never mind. We've more important things on hand. Will you take a letter, please?"

Sally was too confused by this strange speech to do more than grasp her pencil and follow Philip Page's furious dictation. Letter followed letter, in rapid succession until Sally was too tired to have any thoughts at all. It was the office boy who rescued her by coming to say that she was wanted on the telephone.

"Let Miss Hopkins take it," said Philip Page impatiently. "It's a personal call, Miss Hopkins says," protested the boy.

"Very well," said Philip ungrudgingly. "That will be all for now, Miss Warren."

Sally hastened to the telephone. It was Terry, reminding her that she had promised to have lunch with him and go flying. It was to have been an afternoon off for Sally, who had so arranged her work that she could be free. Now everything was altered by Philip Page's demands on her time. Sally's desk was piled high with work for the paper and her tablet was full of letters to be got out that night.

"I can't go out to lunch," Sally told Terry. "I'll have to work all afternoon and tonight."

"A promise to me doesn't mean anything to you these days," said Terry angrily.

"I'm sorry, but the job comes first. You know that, Terry."

"I don't see where I come in at all," muttered Terry. "Listen, Terry, please don't scold. Go out home and get Tip. Take her to lunch and then take her with you this afternoon in my place."

"You're pretty good at finding somebody to take your place with me. All right—don't let me take up any more of your time."

Sally began to work, but without enthusiasm. When Terry misanderstood her refusal to go out with him and asked, Sally blushed herself. But that didn't help. She couldn't keep from thinking of Terry as another responsibility, like Tip or Ray or her father, someone to be humored and wheedled. That wasn't the way she wanted to think of Terry.

Until now, Terry had been a gay companion, someone with whom she could escape her work-a-day world, someone who could make her feel young and alive. Now she and Terry both seemed changed. Terry demanded more of her time than she could give.

The work was endless. Sally became so involved in it that she finally forgot Terry, forgot that she had eaten no lunch. At six o'clock her desk was orderly, but she had a dull, throbbing headache. In utter weariness, Sally put her head down on the desk and closed her eyes against the glare of the setting sun through her unshaded window.

Dinner in a Rural Retreat "TIRED?" It was Philip Page, standing in the doorway, hat in hand. As she lifted her head, he came toward her. "I'm sorry we had such a hard day—but we'll probably have more of them." Then he added abruptly, "I'm driving out to a farmhouse I know for dinner. Will you come along?"

"Like this?" Sally pushed back her untidy hair, and looked at the crumpled blue linen.

"I'm sorry, I haven't time to wait for you to dress," said Philip. "Not very gallant—but it's true." Then with a smile that made him seem so much less stern, "Look here, I'll be disappointed if you don't come. The drive will do you good, and the food's the best I know."

"All right," said Sally. "But I warn you I didn't have any lunch."

The drive past green fields of corn and through little strips of woodland was a delight to Sally. She had been too long in the office. She had forgotten how beautiful the countryside around Warrenton could be in early summer. When Philip Page turned the car into a small road lined on either side with old cedar trees, Sally was completely content. "Here we are," said Philip, stopping the car.

Sally had closed her eyes for a moment, rejoicing in the fact that the headache had quite gone. Now she opened them to see a long, low farmhouse, set between two enormous poplar trees. The house was weathered, but beautiful in line. At one end of the porch a mass of roses had climbed all the way to the roof.

The hostess greeted them at the door. She knew Philip Page, and as soon as Sally was introduced she began to talk at once of the Warrens she had known. Philip called her "Miss Trudy" but she was really Mrs. Snow. She lived with her two sons in the farmhouse, and while they tended the crops she helped to make a living by serving occasional tourists and parties of young people from neighboring towns.

Sally and Philip took their places at a long table, covered with a cloth of heavy embroidered linen, such as Sally's grandmother had once used. The food was all that Philip had claimed: ham and hot biscuit, a green salad, fresh and crisp from the garden, potatoes creamed to white smoothness, honey in a yellow bowl.

After supper they strolled about under the trees, eluding Mrs. Snow and the half dozen tourists, who were having coffee and small talk on the porch. Suddenly, Sally remembered about Terry. Terry was angry with her. She had broken her word to him, he had a right to be angry with her—and now she had been able to forget him completely.

Seeing Through My Windshield

4-H Clubs Griffon, Chicod, and Fountain 4-H clubs met this week. The Fountain Junior club was attended by fifty-one members and they gave an unusually good program. Two-part singing was well done. They voted to hem sheets for the sick room in their school. Good programs were given in the other clubs also.

Farmville No. 1

The Farmville H. D. club met Monday afternoon with Miss Ella Mae Bailey. There were seventeen in attendance. The subject was "Etiquette" and was ably given by Mrs. Herman Baker. A social meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. J. R. Lewis at Christmas time. The Farmville No. 2 club will be guests.

Winterville H. D. Club

The Winterville club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. D. McLawhorn. Sixteen were present. Their social meeting will be held the night of December 17 with Mrs. M. A. Woodard.

Achievement Day

A good number of Home Demonstration club members assembled Thursday morning in the Greenville Woman's club building for their annual Achievement program. We are just finishing the first year of home beautification. Therefore no certificates of merit were awarded. Next year there should be several eligible for the awards if they continue their progress as they have during the past few months. Professor J. G. Weaver, of State College, delighted the audience with his timely program on "The Care and Cultivation of Bulbs." Miss Bessie Brown sang "Coming Home," "Little Grey Home in the West" and "Thank God for a Garden." Three clubs: Farmville, Red Oak, and Red Banks had a hundred per cent of their reports turned in. The gavel will be given to each club for four months during the year. A number of scrap books were on exhibit.

Lawn Tour

The tour Thursday afternoon was enjoyed by thirty to forty women. The first stop was at the home of Miss Nan Loy Tucker, home beautification leader at Winterville. Miss Tucker showed some of her accomplishments in clothing, house furnishings, and home beautification. We were especially interested in the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Edwards of Stokesport, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Moore of Clay Root, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Tyson, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Tyson of Hollywood, and Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Tucker of Red Banks. There was a variety of accomplishments and types of places. Not all of these are completed, but plans show preparations for future developments. To make a really beautiful permanent lawn requires several years for several reasons: The soil must be right before being planted. Considerable time and effort are required for the work and for financial reasons it is better to plan carefully and cautiously.

Annual Reports

Thanksgiving week is here again and time to make annual reports. The entire week will be used for this purpose. Both statistical and narrative reports are required by the national and the State offices. Copies are also filed in the county offices which may be inspected by anyone interested.

Garden Notes

If lettuce seed have not been planted, sow them now in a cold-frame for early spring crop. Cover the cold frame with a cloth and give additional protection in very cold weather. Now is a good time to make a liberal application of stable manure to the garden in order to have early vegetables next spring. If vegetables are now growing in the garden the manure may be scattered between them. This should be worked in as soon as possible. A thorough planning in the early winter will improve the condition of the soil for early spring planting. Fruit trees are now entirely dor-

Teachers on "Newer Trends in Homemaking as Applied to the North Carolina Home Economics State Course of Study"

These methods of presenting them to class; the recitation, laboratory, problem, project and individual instruction.

Miss Jessie Schrupp, of the Greenville High School, showed that individual instruction and instruction are both important, but one is dependent upon the other.

Miss Catherine Dennis, State Supervisor of Home Economics Education talked on the vocational program—past, present and future.

She also talked on looking forward in vocational training in North Carolina, at the dinner-meeting Friday evening. Mr. Pope, agriculture instructor, talked at the dinner on "putting Culture in the Farm Homes Through Home Economics."

Harold T. Perry of Rocky Mount, chairman of the music section took charge of the meeting of that division.

A role song demonstration lesson was presented by Miss Ona Shindler, supervisor of music of the Greenville city schools. The children taking part in the demonstration were from Mrs. Burk Stancil's room at Third Street school.

Charles McCullers told about his work of organizing and financing banks in small communities in this state.

Miss Grace Van Dyke Moore of the Woman's College, Greensboro, gave a discussion on Creative Music in the schools. Mr. Perry gave some suggestions for school choir work.

Frank B. Kyker, of Woman's College, Greensboro, explained the development of commercial education, in North Carolina during the last hundred years giving changes that has taken place during that time and showing the need of a curriculum that will prepare the students to fit the positions that are available for them.

At the meeting of French teachers there was a large attendance who heard Professor Rene Hardre, of the Woman's College of U. N. C. discussions of textbooks and methods.

A demonstration lesson on high school science, supervised by Robert Sugg Fleming, of Greenville High School, showing students doing individual work in the laboratory, was the feature of the science meeting.

The chief speakers in the English Department meeting were Dr. D. E. Baughan, East Carolina Teachers College, who read a paper on what he called his facetious subject, "Creative Writers, Incorporated;" and Mrs. H. A. List, teacher of speech at Meredith College, who spoke on "Bad speech Habits and How to Break Them." Dr. Lucile Turner, East Carolina Teachers College, explained the English club room at the college.

"Social Science in a Changing Society" was the subject of Dr. A. D. Frank's address to social science teachers. Group action he said will dominate the individual, and social science teachers should not purposefully attempt to create types of citizens to influence group action, he said, because "we do not know what trait will be desirable in the future."

The Superintendents Club of the North Carolina Education Association dined in the faculty dining hall at East Carolina Teachers College at six o'clock Friday. Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of the College, Dr. J. Y. Joyner, one of North Carolina's greatest educational leaders for half a century, and Dr. J. H. Highsmith, state supervisor of education, were guests of honor.

Superintendents from twenty-two counties attended the banquet. J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, acted as toastmaster. Will Graham, Kingston superintendent, Frank Edmondson and A. D. Alderman, school superintendents of Beaufort and Greene counties respectively, were appointed to serve as a committee to nominate officers for the coming year.

After dinner, the department of superintendents assembled in the Austin Auditorium, where Ray Armstrong, Superintendent of Goldsboro schools, demonstrated the use of talking movies in teaching.

At the meeting of the Mathematics teachers, of which Miss Louise Williams was chairman, two general topics were discussed: "What are the vital topics in high school algebra?" and "How can we interest children in the study of algebra?" The discussion was carried on in the form of a panel discussion, in which Mrs. Herbert Uley, Greenville, was leader. Other participants in the discussion were: Miss Maria D. Graham, East Carolina Teachers College, Miss Ruth Blackwelder, New Bern, Secretary of Math Department, Mrs. H. B. Smith, New Bern, Miss Wita Bord, Rocky Mount, Miss Margaret Ricks, Rocky Mount, Miss Lucile Britt, Kingston, and S. B. Smith, Bath. Before the panel discussion Dr. ReBarker discussed "Problem Solving in Algebra."

ORDER OF PUBLICATION North Carolina, Pitt County. In The Superior Court Before The Clerk.

BEULAH JENKINS, WIDOW, vs. Alma Rodgers and husband Eli Rodgers, Pearl C. Carson and husband, E. Carson; J. R. Jenkins and wife, Lucy Jenkins, et al.

It appearing from the affidavit of Dink James, Attorney, in this action, that W. A. Andrews, W. A. Andrews, Jr., Frances Andrews, Elbert L. Andrews and Marguerite Andrews, defendants therein, are not to be found in Pitt County, and cannot after due diligence be found in the state; and it further appearing that a cause of action exists against the defendant and that they are necessary parties to this action for the purpose of having decrees allotted to Beulah Jenkins, Widow, in the lands of her late husband, B. E. Jenkins; and that this is one of the cases in which service of summons may be by publication as provided by section 484.

It is therefore ordered that summons be served on W. A. Andrews, Frances Andrews, Elbert L. Andrews and Marguerite Andrews by publication, and to that end for four weeks in the Daily Reflector, a newspaper published in Pitt County, setting forth the title of the action, the purpose of same, and requiring the defendants to appear at the office of the clerk of the superior court of Pitt County, in the courthouse in Greenville, N. C., on the day of _____, 1936, and answer or demur to the complaint of the plaintiff.

This 11th day of November, 1936. J. F. HARRINGTON, Clerk Superior Court, Pitt County. BLOUNT & JAMES, Atty's. 11-21-36-11wk-4wks.

CLYDE A. ERWIN ADDRESSES DISTRICT TEACHERS MEET

A cumulative process. We are trying to cram into the minds of modern children things for which they have no need at the expense of things for which they have a need.

"Strip the curriculum of all but the essentials and include the studies that modern life has forced upon us."

Mayor Marvin Blount at the opening meeting, welcomed the teachers of eastern Carolina to the town and expressed his appreciation of the spirit of the teachers and fine work.

J. H. Rose was made president. The panel discussion yesterday afternoon turned into a symposium as each participant made his speech and no discussion followed. Dr. M. R. Trabue led instead of Dr. Knight. The complete subject of the discussion was "Have We Made Progress in Public Education in North Carolina?" commensurate with the financial problems.

The high spots of the discussion brought out three very important points; unpopular taxation has been one of the causes of the unpopularity of schools which has caused their retrogression in the past few years; the great confusion that exists now is caused by the lack of professional leadership. The lack of a continuous school board that is not political, a statistical report giving this state in comparison with the nation and of states.

Dr. Adams gave a comparative statistics faking the years 1818 and eleven years later showing the growth in North Carolina in the decades and making comparisons.

Dr. Rebarber followed Dr. Adams and making his points the statistics showing progress made up to a certain period and then leaving the question as to whether we were better off than we were before the depression? He used the normal years before the depression.

Judge Dink James presented problems from the layman point of view. He stated that the school people had let the concrete crowd get on the inside track and made the suggestion that if the school people would make the public see what they would get from their investment. Perhaps it would not be so difficult to get sufficient funds.

Supt. W. A. Graham of Kingston showed that in years of most rapid growth the state had educational leadership.

P. J. Jennings, superintendent of Pasquotank schools, gave the sharp contrast between the old rural school and its small school houses and the splendid school today with good buildings and equipment, but found the weak spot as the others did in the small amount spent for education in comparison to what was spent for luxury.

Roy T. Cox spoke as a layman, but as one who understood thoroughly the tax situation and its influence on school progress and showed clearly why the people were resigned to the road tax and resented the schools because of the direct tax.

Arthur B. Corey contrasted the schools he went to with the schools now, showing unmistakably that there had been progress and placed the blame on an antiquated tax system.

JULE WARREN CLUB SPEAKER

Criticism of Schools Answered by Association Secretary

Answering criticisms of the North Carolina school system, Jule B. Warren, secretary of the North Carolina Education Association, last night told Greenville Kiwanians that money spent in educating children should be regarded as an investment and not an expenditure.

He compared the cost of education per child in this state with that of other sections and said that it would take a much larger appropriation to bring the system here up to the national standard. He said that the average man spent more on cigars and cigarettes per day than the state spends on a child a day for his or her education. He said that the per day cost of education a child was a little more than 28 cents.

Mr. Warren lamented the fact that the low salary schedule paid in North Carolina was not attracting all of the best teachers to the classrooms. He recalled that in the last few years a number of good teachers had forsaken the classrooms for more lucrative positions.

He explained that he was not talking for the teachers, but for the schools and the children, adding the students were the ones who were suffering.

Mr. Warren declared that the foundation of a "fine school system has been laid in North Carolina," but added we must go forward with this program to reap the benefits.

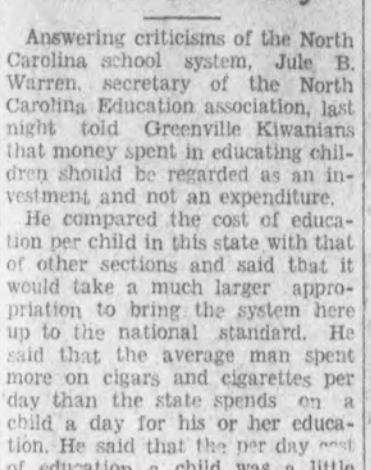

Federal aid for schools were advocated by the speaker, who said that large cities made big profits on merchandise, such as automobiles, sold to North Carolinians and added that some of these profits should be returned to the state through a federal tax to bolster the educational program throughout the nation.

Miss Loh Tsie, China's "Joan of Arc," visited the United States recently to seek aid against Japan.

Jack Col Blakeney, Monroe, N. C., was appointed junior forester and assigned to duty at Pineville, Ky.

eff to him in later years," he declared.

The program was in charge of Ralph Deal, chairman of the program committee.

Miss Iris Hooker entertained the club members with her singing and playing of the ukulele. Mrs. Ray Tyson, club pianist, provided the music for the club singing.

A committee composed of Dink James, Guy Smith and Ralph Deal was named to draw up a resolution of respect to the late Dr. Marion Davis, club member who was killed in an automobile accident last Sunday.

Jack Col Blakeney, Monroe, N. C., was appointed junior forester and assigned to duty at Pineville, Ky.
