FEARS OF THIS FELT IN GREENVILLE TODAY

As snow began falling here this morning and continued for some time, local residents recalled the bad winter of last year and feared that the above scene of snow in Cleveland last week would be reproduced here. Other North Carolina towns reported snow today ranging from light flurries to quite heavy falls. (Associated Press Photo.)

STRIKE ENTERS SECOND MONTH

San Francisco, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Maritime workers urged by an official to enter port today as food for Hawaii became the major problem for federal authorities.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady conferred with Samuel King, Hawaii delegate to congress, on possible means of getting needed products into the island.

Harry Bridges, executive president of the international longshoremen's association, told a Seattle mass meeting of maritime workers that the longshoremen were coming into politics and intended to continue their ever-widening inland march until every port is 100 per cent union.

Both he and Harry Lindbergs, coast sailors leader, urged the strikers to maintain their united front.

Mr. Ickes received a slight cut on one hand. Burlow's hand also was cut.

Mr. Ickes and his aide were brought to Richmond in another car.

Mrs. Eliza Lavietes, 49, of Brooklyn, was reported slightly injured in the crash which the cabinet member said was caused by a truck which forced his chauffeur off the highway.

The Greenville Kiwanis club will join the Wilson, Goldsboro and Kinston organizations in an inter-club meeting at the Hotel Cherry in Wilson Thursday night at 7:00 o'clock. The session will take the place of the regular Friday night meeting of the local club.

David Moore, club secretary, said that he expected approximately 30 members to attend and urged all members who could do so to be present. He said that enough Kiwanians had promised cars to provide transportation for anyone wishing to go who does not have a way.

Ten minutes will be allotted to each club to present any program it desires. It was not announced what the local club would offer.

At 8 o'clock this morning the mercury was standing at 20 degrees, after having reached a low during the night of 29 degrees. B. T. Clark, official of the local weather bureau station, reported that the mercury began to tumble as the morning wore on and the white precipitation continued. The flags held up just before noon, but began again soon afterwards only to cease again by 2 o'clock.

While it was the first snow of the season for this section of the state, Western counties already have had heavy falls this year.

As the snow fell, residents recalled that last December saw much snow and the week before Christmas the ground was covered and on several occasions another fall would visit the community before the previous one had melted.

France To Offer Settle Its War Debt

Paris, Dec. 1.—(AP)—France will offer to settle its war debts to the United States, parliamentary circles forecast today for one-eighth of the total due to date.

(This offer would amount to $1,286,000 as compared with France's $250,292,292 in default as of June 15, 1935.)

BISHOP WARNS KING EDWARD

London, Dec. 1.—The Bishop of Bradford warned King Edward VIII that he needs the grace of God as much as any of his subjects in a thinly-veiled public criticism of the King's private life.

"We hope he is aware of his need," Dr. A. W. F. Blunt said, concluding his address to the Bradford Diocesan conference.

"Some of us wish he gave more positive signs of such awareness," said the bishop.

It was the first time a bishop of the Church of England had publicly mentioned King Edward's personal affairs.

Reports have been current for some time that high clergymen were divided over the King's friendship for Dr. Walls Simpson.

Mr. Blunt saved his electrifying remark for the close of his speech in which he took the Bishop of Birmingham severely to task for suggestions that the religious ceremonies be curtailed.

Reward Granted For Eighteen Years Duty

Eighteen years of faithful service was rewarded yesterday when E. F. Tucker, who has served as deputy clerk of Pitt County Superior court, was promoted to the office of assistant clerk.

On December 1, eighteen years ago, Mr. Tucker took up his duties in the office of the Clerk of Court and has served since that time as deputy clerk.

His friends today were congratulating him on the promotion.

Firemen Answer Call On East Fourth Street

Firemen were summoned to extinguish a fire in the home of Mrs. Jones on Fourth street today, but the blaze had been put out when they arrived. The fire, which was started by the kitchen stove, caused little damage.

HOPE BALANCE FEDERAL FUND

Washington, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Substantial revenue increases during the first five months of this fiscal year today raised administration hopes that the seven year gap between income and outgo may be closed next year.

Administration leaders had forecast that improving business will boost revenue to the level of expenditures if the present tax structure is maintained.

Surveys made from last July through November 27 fiscal experts said today that continuance of the present upward trend plus some reduction in relief expenditures would balance receipts and expenditures next year.

Receipts for this period totalled $1,623,043,000, an increase of $171,581,000 over a year ago. In the forefront of individual tax increases were income levies which, at $418,598,000, gained $91,496,000.

Another Drug Store Entered And Robbed

Pleasant's drug store on Fifth street was entered and robbed last night of a sum of money estimated at between $4 and $5.

The robbery was similar to the one at Charles O'H. Horne's drug store Thanksgiving night. A window was broken at each place and the robber or robbers entered and stole what change could be found, but failed to take any merchandise, so far as could be detected.

Officers were working on both robberies, but were without any significant clues upon which to base their investigation.

"Uncle Jim" Dickey, owner of a bait stand near Port Isabel, Texas, caught an octopus recently, the first ever captured alive there. It measured about two feet across.

No Extra Session Likely To Enact Security Law

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Dec. 1.—No special session of the general assembly will be called between now and December 31 to enact a state unemployment insurance law which will meet with the approval of the Social Security Board, in the opinion of most observers here, despite the fact that Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus has not said as yet whether he will or will not call a special session.

But those who know the Governor best are convinced that he will not call a special session, for the following reasons:

1. Because North Carolina now has a state unemployment insurance law, enacted by the 1935 general assembly.

2. Because this law would be adequate and satisfactory to the Social Security Board but for the fact that its 26-year-old chief counsel disagrees on one word and has hence ruled the law out.

3. Because 31 other states are in the same predicament as North Carolina and hence have enough influence to secure the enactment by Congress of an amendment extending the effective date of the unemployment insurance section of the law so that these 32 states which do not yet have acceptable laws will not lose the millions of dollars in taxes for unemployment insurance they otherwise will lose.

"North Carolina already has an unemployment insurance law, which was enacted at my insistence two months before Congress enacted the Social Security Act," Governor Ehringhaus pointed out today. "Due to the fact that Congress had yet enacted any unemployment insurance law whatever, it was not possible to enact anything but a broad general law giving the Governor and Council of State power to set up, rules and regulations and to accept contributions from employers, instead of levying a direct tax on employers. I also think it is significant that when Congress later enacted its unemployment insurance law, it (Continued on page two)

SNOW FALLS IN WIDE SECTIONS OF CAROLINAS

Sub-Freezing Temperatures Accompany Snow, Sleet

BAD WEATHER IN EASTERN AREAS

Greenville, Washington, Goldsboro and Wilson Visited By Light Flurries

(By Associated Press) Snow flurries mixed with sleet and rain brought sub-freezing temperatures to the Carolinas today.

Thermometers registered as low as 21 degrees at Greensboro, where two inches of snow was falling and sticking at 10 a. m. The mercury was down to 27 degrees at Greenville, S. C., shortly after dawn. Temperatures generally ranged from seven below freezing up to 32 degrees.

Winter traced its icy finger as far east as Fayetteville, where it was sleeted heavily and as deep into the South Carolina low country as Sumter, where a reading of 30 degrees was registered early in the day as sleet and snow fell together.

A heavy drizzle fell at Columbia but the capital escaped the overnight freeze. The mercury hovered just above freezing.

Overcast skies sprinkled Asheville with a light snow fall and the thermometer reached a low of 25. Hickory reported a low of 24 with a quarter inch unmelting snow.

Raleigh and Rocky Mount recorded lows of 27 and 26 degrees, with a negligible snow at the capital early in the day.

Goldsboro, Washington, Wilson and Greenville reported slight snow falls and cold weather.

Du Ponts Reported To Have Given $144,450 To Republicans; Mrs. Davies Aided Democrats

Washington, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Campaign contributions totalling $144,450 by three members of the du Pont family, opponents of the Roosevelt administration, were announced today by the special senate committee investigating political expenditures.

In its first post-election report the committee also showed that Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, wealthy breakfast food heiress and wife of the recent appointed ambassador to Russia, had given $6,500 to Democratic campaign funds.

Her husband's contributions, understood to be at least as large, have not yet been compiled.

Charlie Sugg Again In Serious Trouble

Charlie Sugg, Jr., negro who was shot at a riot at a negro dance here several months ago and subsequently tried, convicted and sentenced for engaging in a disturbance, today found himself in more serious trouble.

The grand jury returned a true bill against the negro charging him with first degree burglary. His case will be tried this week, but Solicitor D. M. Clark has not announced on what day.

Roosevelt Cancels Tour Due To Death Of Friend

Chief Executive Decides, However, to Go on With His Address Opening Inter-American Peace Conference Despite Death

Buenos Aires, Dec. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, saddened by the sudden death of his friend and protector, August (Gus) Gennerich, cancelled a projected motor tour of the suburbs today, but decided to go on with his message of inter-American peace.

Except for sight-seeing rides, Mr. Roosevelt's program for the day was left unchanged.

Gennerich, the President's personal guard, died of a heart attack early this morning while dancing in a gay Buenos Aires cafe. He was 55 years old.

Delegates from all the republics represented, looking forward to President Roosevelt's opening address, called the inter-American peace conference today as bearing the "wholehearted support of citizens of all western world republics."

They gave full credit for the conference proposal to President Roosevelt.

The United States Chief Executive was to begin the session at 8 p. m. (4 p. m. est.) after the delegates were called to order.

Late in the afternoon, President Augustin Justo of Argentina planned to meet Mr. Roosevelt at the United States embassy and conduct him to the palace for the opening conference ceremony.

The official agenda of the peace conference was divided into six general sessions:

First, organization of peace; second, neutrality; third, limitation of armaments; fourth, judicial problems; fifth, economical problems, and sixth, intellectual cooperation.

NEGROES DRAW TO HOLD DANCE LONGER TERMS

Additional 5 Years Given for Lying During Trial

Two negroes tried, convicted and sentenced to four years each on charges of stealing tobacco at Farmville at yesterday afternoon's session of Pitt county Superior court were recalled by Judge J. Paul Frazier today and given an additional five years each for falsely testifying.

Each of the negroes, Henry Holly and James Williams, declared during their trial that he did not have a criminal record. Local officers last night checked upon the pair and discovered that each had a long record of convictions behind him.

Judge Frazier declared that it was useless to have to keep sentencing defendants time and time again for similar offenses. He also stressed the seriousness of falsely testifying in court.

Each of the negroes was given a four-year sentence on the roads and the additional five years, to run consecutively, put them on the roads for a total of nine years each.

It was discovered that the two had criminal records, most of them for larceny, in a number of places in this section.

Two other negroes, Joe Jones and David McKimmon, convicted jointly with Holly and Williams were given the four-year sentence, but the additional five-year period was not added to their sentence.

So Spencer, another negro, convicted just before court recessed today for lunch on three charges of larceny and robbery, was given two years on each, his sentence to total six years. In sentencing the defendant, Judge Frazier again emphasized it was useless to have defendants coming up at each term of court on similar charges.

William Hooks was sent to the roads for two years upon conviction of larceny. German Hicks and David O'Neal each were given a 10-month term upon conviction of the same charge.

Favorable Report Made By Workers In 1936 Roll Call

Chairman W. A. Ryan Issues Appeal For More Volunteer Canvassers to Clean Up Field

Rev. W. A. Ryan, chairman of the 1936 Red Cross Roll Call for Greenville, today sent out an appeal for more volunteer workers to aid in the canvass of the city, declaring that the present corps was unable to cover thoroughly the territory as promptly as desired.

Although a number of canvassers, who took to the field yesterday morning following a breakfast meeting, have not yet made a report, Mr. Ryan declared that more than $150 was realized from memberships on the first day. He added that this compared favorably with the sum raised on the initial day of the 1935 Roll Call.

Chairman Ryan said that cold weather handicapped workers yesterday and this morning, but had only praise for the work they were doing.

The campaign is later this year than in 1935 and officials are anxious to complete the drive as soon as possible. It was with this in view that the call for extra workers was sent out from campaign headquarters.

Any new workers will be assigned to districts to which no one has been sent to make a canvass.

Funeral Services For Dillon Forbes Widely Attended

Last Rites For 14-Year-Old Youth Conducted in This City Today; Burial Made Near Country Home

Attended by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives, funeral services for 14-year-old Dillon Forbes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Forbes, were conducted at the home of Mrs. J. S. Barr, aunt of the youth, this afternoon. Burial followed in the family cemetery near the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Forbes on the Falkland highway.

The youth died in the local hospital yesterday morning from injuries he received Saturday while hunting.

Dillon was a sophomore in the Greenville high school, where he took an active part in the various activities. He was a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church.

REBEL FORCES ARE THWARTED BY LOYALISTS

Government Claims to Have Thrown Back Attacks

STIFF FIGHTING IN NORTH SPAIN

Unconfirmed Reports Declare France and Great Britain Preparing Intervene

(By Associated Press) The Spanish government announced today it had thrown back a strong insurgent drive to smash the defense of Madrid, claiming strategic successes in the northern Bay of Biscay sector.

The military successes of the socialist army snatched some of the world's interest from the largest leftist-rightist conflict on the international diplomatic front.

Blasting their way through the University section in the northwest of Madrid, the socialist militia captured the longheld "climico" from the insurgents.

In insurgent attack in force along all the northern suburbs of the city socialist forces, was repulsed, thwarting a fascist attempt to encircle the capital.

In stiff fighting in the north of Spain government forces announced an advance of seven miles in two days and claimed the capture of numerous towns and villages.

Although officials refused to confirm the report, it was said in the Paris press that France and Great Britain were preparing an attempt to mediate the civil war.

London reports said that any move toward any armistice would be made by the League of Nations council when it convenes to discuss Spanish affairs that Germany and Italy were actively siding the Spanish attack.

Authoritative British circles meanwhile heard that "between 2,000 and 5,000 Germans" were concentrated at the insurgents' stronghold of Seville.

SPANISH GOVERNMENT MAPS PLANS FOR FORWARD PUSH

Bilbao, Spain, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Spanish government armies of the north pushed forward on two fronts today in a combined offensive directed at Burgos, seat of the insurgent junta.

Supported by tanks and grenade throwers the advance proceeded thus:

1. A "Santander army" of the west seized the village of Soncillo near a main highway to the insurgent "capital" and forged ahead.

2. East of this force Basque militiamen from Bilbao fought their way to within 10 miles of Vitoria which is about 70 miles northwest of Burgos and commands another main road leading to it.

The Basques hoped to take Vitoria, then push along the road to Burgos, arriving there in time to launch a simultaneous attack on the fascists' "capital" with the "Santander army."

The youth died in the local hospital yesterday morning from injuries he received Saturday while hunting.

Dillon was a sophomore in the Greenville high school, where he took an active part in the various activities. He was a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church.

Besides his parents, the youth is survived by two brothers, Gus Forbes, Jr., and Harold Forbes.

The funeral services were conducted from the home of young Forbes' aunt because of the fact the home of his parents is being rebuilt on the Falkland highway. The home was destroyed by fire last summer.

The youth and a companion, Otis Evans, Jr., were hunting near the country home Saturday when a .30 caliber rifle accidentally discharged, the bullet entering the youth's back and passing all the way through his body. He was taken to the hospital and operated on, but was unable to recover from the wounds.

Hermann Brehmer, a German physician who established a sanatorium for tuberculous patients in the Black Forest, believed that life in the open air together with rest and supervised exercise was beneficial. Dettweiler, his patient and pupil, stressed rest, but not until the twentieth century could physicians come to an agreement regarding the importance of rest in bed as the important factor in the treatment of tuberculosis.

N. C. LITERARY GROUP TO MEET

Thomas Wolfe and Gerald Johnson to Make Talks

Raleigh. — With Thomas Wolfe, the Asheville novelist, who started his native town with his first novel to such an extent that the Asheville Public Library barred it from its shelves, and with Gerald Johnson, another North Carolina whose editorial work on the Baltimore Sun has made him nationally famous, as headline speakers on its program, the annual meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association here Thursday and Friday of this week is expected to be one of the most notable and largely attended in its history.

The program arranged by Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the association and also executive secretary of the N. C. Historical Commission, has been attracting widespread attention for many weeks, with the result that the annual meeting this week is expected to attract more people than ever before.

The opening session of the annual meeting will be Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Woman's Club here at which Thomas Wolfe will make the principal address. A reception for members and their guests will follow. If Mr. Wolfe is as sensational a speaker as he is as a novelist, those attending this opening meeting can look forward to something new and different.

Gerald Johnson will be the principal speaker at the Friday night session and has selected as his subject "Proposals for a History of the Future." Johnson, a former North Carolina newspaper man, one time professor of Journalism at Chapel Hill, won national-wide fame during the recent presidential campaign by writing a signed editorial supporting the re-election of President Roosevelt; after the Baltimore Sun had publicly announced it was for Governor Landon, President Roosevelt quoted excerpts from Johnson's editorial in one or two of his speeches.

NO EXTRA SESSION LIKELY TO ENACT SECURITY LAWS

Governor Ehringhaus made it plain, however, that he had by no means closed his mind against a special session and that if and when it appeared to him that a special session was needed, he would not hesitate to call one.

"I am giving careful and constant consideration to the matter of a special session and all of the various questions involved and still have an open mind, so that if a special session later seems to be the only way to secure an unemployment insurance law and save most of the federal tax for North Carolina, I will call one," the Governor said.

There is one and only one point of disagreement between Governor Ehringhaus, Attorney General A. A. F. Stowell and the Social Security Board with regard to the present North Carolina unemployment insurance law, known as "the Cherry Act" which was introduced by Representative R. Gregg Cherry of Gastonia in the closing days of the 1935 general assembly, at the request of Governor Ehringhaus, it is agreed here. This is with regard to the meaning or rather the definition of the word "contributions" as used both in the North Carolina law and in the Federal law. The North Carolina law authorizes the board to be set up under it to receive "contributions" from employers, to be used for unemployment insurance, but nowhere in the law does it make it mandatory or compulsory for employers to make these "contributions."

In the Federal law, the word "contributions" is also used instead of taxes. But in another portion of the Federal law, the word "contributions" is defined as "payments required to be made by employers" for unemployment insurance, thus making it a tax.

But because the North Carolina law has no section defining the word "contributions" in it as payments "required" to be made by employers, thus H. Elliott, 26 years old counsel for the Social Security Board, has ruled that the North Carolina law does not levy any tax on employers and hence is not adequate. Both Governor Ehringhaus and Attorney General Stowell, however, have maintained that this law does give the Governor and Council of State authority to make such rules and regulations as would compel employers to make these "contributions" or else exclude them and their employees from the benefits of the unemployment section of the Social Security Act.

If Chief Counsel Elliott should change his opinion with regard to the one word, "required," the North Carolina law would be sufficient, it is agreed here. But if he does not change his opinion, a special session to enact a new law that will satisfy him will probably be necessary.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — This is one of those off-the-record things—a bit of backstage abracadabra involving a critic, a press agent, and a columnist. It would make a better story if their names would be used. At that, their identities aren't too deeply shrouded in mystery. Maybe you can figure them out for yourself.

Not long ago a glamorous film star was lured east to appear on Broadway. Most of the critics approved the play, but one lone dissenter (the one you're hearing about) gave it a severe ribbing.

All But One Laughed Being on excellent terms with the critic, the ballyhoo artist wrote a letter to his friend, amiably wondering whether the persons who had read his depreciatory review were aware that other reviewers had indulged the play. Why not, he suggested, pass that intelligence along?

It was a good letter, smartly conceived, and the critic recognized it in the germ of a swell essay. Pre-luding it with some remarks of his own, he printed the letter and agreed in print to advise his public how greatly the other critics enjoyed the show if they in turn would tell their readers how dull and inept it had seemed to him.

This was rare good humor and everybody chuckled. However, a columnist (the one I mentioned in the first paragraph) made it the subject of an attack on the press agent, calling attention to the "glove-in-the-face" which the critic had bestowed upon the "offending" ballyhooer.

Typical of Broadway Several days later I encountered the press agent in the Ritz bar. "What about that tiff between you and one of the critics?" I asked him. "I thought that letter was only a tiff."

He shook his head. "There was no tiff," he said. "The columnist was just giving me the knife. When his story appeared my friend, the critic, telephoned and apologized to me. He was dreadfully embarrassed."

I suggested that perhaps the columnist was nursing a grudge. "It's like this. Several days ago he telephoned and asked for an extra pair of tickets. I refused and that made him angry. This was his way of retaliating."

Well, that's one side anyway. Who's right, who's wrong, I wouldn't know. But it's typical of Broadway, and I thought you'd like to know.

BROTHERS BATTLE CANCER ON OPPOSITE COASTS

Berkeley, Calif. (AP)—On opposite sides of the country, Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence and Dr. John H. Lawrence are conducting twin experiments to find a cure for cancer.

Ernest, at the University of California, and John, at Yale, have just announced that their "neutron" radiations have proved four times as successful as X-rays in destroying sarcoma 180, a cancerlike growth in mice. They say the results of the experiment, while inconclusive in a broad therapeutic sense, are encouraging.

Gifts Galore Reflect Trend Of The Times

Utility And Decorations Merged For Moderns

By ADELAIDE KERR

Trees of shiny drinking straws make striking package accents.

New York—(AP)—The Christmas gifts which will deck sparkling trees this year reflect the front page news of 1936 and the modern trend of the times.

King Edward's coming coronation has produced glamorous seed pearl jewelry reminiscent of the old Edwardian epoch and a host of hemmed hair ornaments to tuck into Yuletide packages for women. "Spanish mantle" lace headresses for evening wear and lace-trimmed handkerchiefs show the effect of the rebellion in Spain. A wealth of new tricks in luggage show the traveling tendencies of a world that has begun to globe-trot again. The entire array of selections follows the modern demand for gifts which are both useful and decorative.

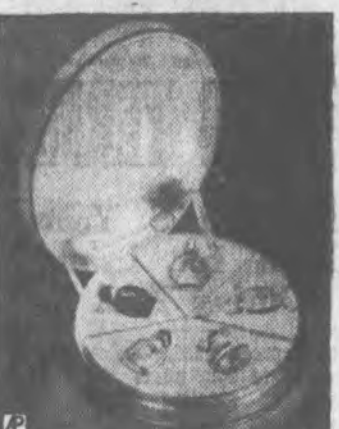

Perfumes for Every Gown The jeweled gadgets for women are the most colorful they have been in years. Besides the seed pearl jewelry (loquets, ear-rings and clips covered with the tiny pearls), there are clusters of gold flowers centered with turquoise, coral or pearl bead "seeds" to clip to the front of a frock, black enamel bracelets with detachable jewel fan clips at each end and gold starfish pins.

Seed pear ear-rings and pendant reflect the coronation trend.

New comports are made of dull finished metals designed on as clean-cut lines as the figures in a geometry textbook. Perfumes appear in both clear and colored bottles in scents for all types of gown and mood. One of the newest perfume gadgets is a set of five bottles providing scents for every kind of clothes in the wardrobe from evening gowns to sports togs.

For Traveling The gift luggage and travel accessories seem to anticipate every need. New bottle bags—iron little affairs lined with bottles and jars have replaced the older and larger "fitted cases." Sets of three silk envelopes in graduated sizes are ready to carry the lingerie, stockings and handkerchiefs of the woman traveler and compact manicure sets provide care for her hands. The same forefront has been given to travel accessory presents for men. Something new and different is a clothes brush with a removable lid top under which is fitted a shaving set. Leather boxes with hubberized linings provide the space for his toilet articles when traveling and another case holds the twin military brushes that have long been a favorite.

A perfume set provides scent for every type of costume.

Porcelain fish hide something new in perfume atomizers.

A cigarette lighter in a pencil for the writer-smoker.

Clothes brush and shaving set make a compact travel kit.

World's Most Persistent Flier Goes Up Every Day For 7 Years

IT'LL SOON BE 2,600 Dr. John D. Brock steps out of his plane after one of the flights he's been making daily since 1929. He celebrated the seventh anniversary of his daily trips on November 16.

Kansas City, Mo.—(AP)—On a foggy day here November 16, 1936, Dr. John D. Brock climbed into the cockpit of his private plane to start the most unusual record in aviation.

Daily since then, in foul weather or fair, the "flying Doc" has taken his plane into the air for at least half an hour. While Charles Lindbergh, Amelia Earhart and others were trilling the world with daring exploits, the quiet-spoken optical manufacturer was piling up a safety record unsurpassed anywhere in the annals of flying.

The Gehrig of Aviation What "Lou" Gehrig, New York Yankee first baseman, is to baseball, Dr. Brock is to aviation. Gehrig has played in more than 1,800 consecutive games—Dr. Brock has rounded out his seventh year of daily flights. On November 15 he took his 2,537th consecutive air trip.

By now as much at home in the air as on the ground, Brock shaves with an electric razor while piloting. He flies one of his three planes regularly on long business and pleasure trips. To keep his daily flights from conflicting with fishing, his other hobby, he purchased a 2,700-acre tract in the Ozark mountains in 1934 and built his own

Birthday Dinner
Little Miss Mary Cooper entertained twelve of her little girl friends at a delightful dinner party on Saturday evening at her home on Evans street.

The table was attractively appointed. The center piece was a crystal bowl of pink roses flanked by pink candles in crystal holders. Places were marked with small baskets filled with candy.

A tempting three-course dinner was served. A pretty birthday cake with seven burning candles, was cut and served with the last course. Following dinner a number of games were played.

The young hostess received a number of lovely gifts.

the Sunbeam chorus of our own church, which occupied the program. There were about fifty of these boys and girls who sang several numbers for us. Miss Minnie Ella Smith led the audience in singing "You Can Smile."

An unusual thing was experienced when a mother at the piano played for her four children. She was Mrs. James Allen, and her children are Virginia Lee, James Sidney, John Kirby and Joe Jenkins Allen. The father of this family was asked to say a few words, and later he merely stood and said, "Here is the father." His speech was short and to the point.

Several short talks were given by the following: E. W. Smith, Rev. M. A. Woodard, Rev. Gilbert Davis, Mr. Griffin, G. L. Allen, Mr. Craft of Walstonburg, Mrs. Fronia Hawkins, R. S. Allen, Paul Moore of Timothy, and Miss Inez Allen and Mack Smith, mayor of Bell Arthur, who said he certainly wished Red Oak had a mayor.

Billy May came mighty near singing a solo twice but he caught himself just in time, which caused much merriment, which was taken good-naturedly.

Mrs. Bessie James read with much expression, "God Holds the Keys."

We wish that all song lovers in Pitt county could have been there. This article is written in a very informal manner and our sing was conducted in a most informal manner. It will long be remembered.

We are planning to make this an annual affair. The next sing will be at Walstonburg on January 30th at 7 o'clock in the evening. Meet us there.

HARDING TALKS TO ROTARIANS

Declares No Need For Fear Of Immediate World War

"In my opinion there will be no World War, or any war of larger proportions in the immediate future than is now going on in Europe," stated F. C. Harding, local attorney, in an address before the Rotary club at its regular weekly meeting Monday evening.

"There are only three nations, Japan, Germany and Italy, preparing for a war of aggression, and they are not prepared to engage in a war of European or worldwide proportions, with a surety of success. England, France, Russia, and the other nations are merely going forward with armament plans to defend themselves and their possessions," he said.

Concerning the recent Japanese-German secret treaty, Mr. Harding observed that "the German mind, a scientific mind knowing that the secret treaty could not remain a secret, explained it as an effort to band the nations of the world against Communism." "But," he said, "England, with its traditions of state-manship, interpreted it as an attempt toward possession of Singapore. Singapore is to England in the Far East what Gibraltar is to her in Western Europe, and England warned Germany that she would defend her possessions at all costs."

Interpreting America's present attitude toward war as one who will not lend aid other than moral, or, if necessary, financial to warring nations, but would send no army overseas, he stated.

"There are those in Canada today who, remembering the heavy drain placed on Canada in the last war, will, if necessary, establish a government of their own to avoid war entanglements, thereby making the American continent a continent of peace, progress and prosperity."

In conclusion Mr. Harding said: "Mr. Roosevelt is now in South America cementing peace relationships between those countries and ours."

The program was in charge of the International Service committee, of which F. C. Harding is chairman.

After much debate it was decided to give baskets to the needy for the coming Christmas season, and a committee composed of Hayward Dall, chairman, and Carl Adams and Yoe Walker was appointed to draw up plans.

Yoe Walker was also appointed, chairman of the Boys' Work committee by J. B. Kittrell, president, to fill the place left vacant by Dr. G. R. Combs. Billy Nisbet was appointed chairman of the Public Information committee.

Guests of the evening included Staunton Harvey and V. A. Respass.

Three Roosevelt Sisters-in-Looks Seen As New U. S. Beauty Type

MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT MISS ETHEL du PONT MRS. JOHN BOETTIGER

NEW DEAL IN BEAUTY: In these faces, alike in 10 respects, Penrhyn Stanlows, portrait painter, sees today the kind of beauty which will typify the American girl tomorrow just as the Gibson girl did yesterday. They are the wife of the President's eldest son (left), the fiancée of Franklin Roosevelt, Jr. (center), and the daughter of the President.

By VOLTA TORREY
New York — (AP) — Miss Ethel du Pont, soon to be the sister-in-law of Mrs. John Boettiger, the President's daughter, and Mrs. James Roosevelt, his eldest son's wife, is his sister-in-looks.

Like Mrs. Wallis Simpson, American friend of King Edward VIII, these three represent the coming American type of beauty, says Penrhyn Stanlows, New York portrait painter and former motion picture director.

New Type
In appearance, he finds they are not typically American. Their faces — and Mrs. Simpson's — are more of a combination of English and Oriental features, but this is the type — more aquiline and more intellectual — toward which he thinks the feminine flower of the United States is evolving.

As an artist he sees 10 similarities in smiling, slender, blonds: Miss du Pont, Mrs. Boettiger and Mrs. James Roosevelt:

1. Well-balanced foreheads.
2. Widow's peaks at hairlines.
3. Double-curved eyebrows.
4. Well-formed, aquiline noses.
5. Prominent, shapely cheekbones.
6. Dimples.
7. Oriental mouths.

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Despite the engagement of attractive Sally Warren, society editor of the Warrenton Courier, to Terry Maynard, Loyalist blond aviator, love grows between Terry and Sally's pretty, headstrong younger sister, Tip, Philip Page, returning to his boyhood home, buys the Coates and backs the workmen of the Morris mill in their fight for better homes. He quietly admires Sally Terry destined to leave for a South American job in a week, is released from his engagement by Sally, but before he can tell Tip, she disappears.

Chapter 20 Scouring The Town

WHEN she reached home, Sally found her stepmother in the living room, weeping over the telephone directory, which she was searching for names of Tip's friends.

"I've called your father," said Mrs. Warren. "And Ray is out with Joe Morris, looking for her. I just know it. She never did anything like this before."

"Don't you fret, Mother," Sally comforted. "She's probably spent the night with some girl and sent you a message which someone forgot to deliver."

"She's careless," sobbed Mrs. Warren. "But she's not a bad girl. She wouldn't treat me this way on purpose."

Sally was moved. She had never seen her stepmother cry but once before, and that was when Ray had scarlet fever and the doctor had given him up.

"If anything had really happened to Tip, you'd be the first one to hear," she said practically. "It's a good sign that we've heard nothing."

"That's true," said Mrs. Warren, taking heart. "I called the hospital and she's not been taken there. Ray and young Joe Morris are making the rounds to see any of the girls that might know where she is. But I'm nearly crazy. I can think of a thousand things that might have happened to a young girl—one—"

"Don't let yourself imagine things," Sally's voice was sharp. She was remembering how Tip had looked when she left her the night before. Tip had been so crushed, so hopeless. She herself had been angry and sad what she thought for once. She had not spared Tip. She had said cruel, hard things. She had even suggested that Tip go and find a job for herself. For the first time since her mother had called, it came to Sally that she had been the cause of Tip's disappearance. Not daring to face her stepmother with guilt in her eyes, Sally left the room and went upstairs.

Tip's empty room haunted her with the memory of last night's scene. She opened the door of the closet. Tip's clothes were all there. Her weekend bag was on the shelf. Tip had left without even her light jacket.

For a moment, Sally thought wildly that Tip might have killed herself. But she forced herself back to reason. Tip was too fond of life to throw it away lightly.

Duke's Plane Smashes

THE telephone rang downstairs, and even before her mother called, Sally knew it was Terry. His voice was tense and anxious.

"Have you found out anything at all?" Your mother says—"

"We don't know anything. Just that she's not in the hospital—"

"Duke Adams is in the hospital at Ridgeview—fifty miles north of here. He had a smash-up last night. Terry's voice was taut.

"Maybe she was with him—and they didn't find her," said Sally weakly. "Terry—"

"It wasn't a bad smash. He landed in a tree and broke up the plane, but he's not much hurt. I'm calling the hospital now to see if they'll let me talk to Duke. It's only a chance—just a bare chance—she was with him."

"You're telling me the truth, Terry? You're telling me the truth?" Sally asked, her eyes wide.

"I'm telling you all I know," said Terry. "I'll call you as soon as I get through to the hospital. I'm hanging up now to make the call."

Sally was too weak to lie to Mrs. Warren. She told her what Terry had said, adding what comfort she could think of. Mrs. Warren took the news calmly, as if she had expected it.

"I knew something had happened to her," she said over and over. "I knew it. I knew it."

Sally, watching for Joe and Ray to come in, and waiting for the call from Terry, was surprised to find that it was only 10:30. She called the office and told Lola what to do with some copy on her desk. Then she tried to get her stepmother to lie down and rest. But Mrs. Warren sat by the telephone, quietly waiting.

To Sally it seemed an hour before the bell rang. Terry's voice came clear and vibrant with relief.

"She wasn't with him in the wreck, Sally. She went riding with him last night, but he brought her back home. He asked her to go up with him but she wouldn't go."

"Thank God for that," Sally smiled encouragingly at Mrs. Warren. "Now what shall we do, Terry?"

It wasn't altogether overlooked in Washington that price jumps followed close on the heels of the frenzy wage increase, like hounds after rabbits. One day's paper brought these headlines: "Wool apparel lines advanced as wages jump," and "Six more rug firms declare price increase." Another day brought: "Steel price boost initiated, up $2 to $4."

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Between now and Christmas be sure that every letter and parcel you sent out bears a Red Cross Christmas seal, and when you are about decorating your Christmas packages use the seals as a part of the decorations. When you use Christmas seals on your letters and parcels you not only add a decorative touch conveying the Christmas spirit but you likewise show that you are supporting the effort to stamp out tuberculosis in this area. The bulk of the money derived from the Red Cross Christmas seals is used right here locally to give aid to sufferers from tuberculosis to carry on a campaign to stamp out the disease. Spending your money for Red Cross Christmas seals is an investment in the future health of the community.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

Washington—Much fresh opinion is available in Washington on what to make of the Supreme Court's four-four decision sustaining the New York unemployment act. After all, when the court, in announcing its decision, gives no explanation with it, somebody has to.

About the most significant thing this column heard was the nature of the argument before the court when the case was presented. It was pointed out then, so a mention is enough now.

The argument skinned over the constitutional issues and went to bat on whether such an act was good and wise for New York state. If it could prove true that economic and sociological argument brought the evident switch of a conservative to the liberal side of the court, that would be immensely important.

Most guesses point to Justice Roberts as the conservative who changed position. If so, arguments can be arrayed from either side to justify his stand. It may have been economic argument. But equally it may have been his conception that legislation that is unconstitutional when enacted by the federal congress was constitutional under state enactment.

Roberts wrote the decision upholding AAA in which it was held that legislation governing certain aspects of the welfare of agriculture was a state domain, not federal. The same consideration may have swung him in the New York unemployment compensation case.

For all anyone actually knows, the justices may be good-naturedly juggling up the sleeves of their voluminous black cloaks at the brain labor they imposed upon the "inside guessers." Because of their decision, they escaped the need of writing any opinion on the case.

One thing about the court, its members have to come some time to a showdown. The decision they escaped writing in the New York case will be forced upon them in

COACH TO GET NEW CONTRACT

Hunk Anderson Expected to Get Offer for Three Years

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BARKERVILL

Raleigh, N. C.—Coach "Hunk" Anderson of the State College football squad is back on top of the heap here with the State College students, most of the faculty and almost all of the alumni, with the belief that the belief is current here today that Anderson will be offered another three-year contract by the Athletic Council when it meets the first week in December, instead of only a one year contract, as has been rumored would be offered Anderson anyway.

The fact that the State team held the Duke team scoreless longer than any team Duke has played this season and played as fine football as has been seen in the state this season in the Thanksgiving Day game, even though State was finally defeated 13-0, has greatly boosted "Hunk" stock in all quarters and has even convinced those who have been among his sharpest critics this season that he is a good coach, probably the best State has ever had.

Those who have been critical of Anderson are also beginning to realize that he has not been so much to blame for the admitted friction within the football squad this fall as many at first thought he was. In fact, a good many who at first were lambasting him and blaming him for conditions there have now switched to the other side and believe that Hunk has really been blamed for a lot of things this season for which he was in no way to blame. Anderson has stood up and taken a lot of cursing for things without striking back or saying a word when he could have said plenty, his friends maintain.

For most of those who have been keeping track of the State College football situation this fall are convinced that most of the friction which existed within the squad early in the season, was caused largely by friction within the athletic department, and that Athletic Director Ray Sermon had just as much to do with this as "Hunk" Anderson.

For while it is agreed that there is nothing definite and tangible to link Sermon with the admitted bad feeling which existed for a while among some members of the football squad, there is a deep grounded belief in many circles that Dr. Sermon was and still is the fly in the State College football ointment.

KAREN GETS BACK IN TRIM DESPITE FILMDOM'S ADVICE

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—No place in the world is as eager as Hollywood (Karen Morley is convinced) to hand out advice about health and looks or to inform an actress that she is "looking terrible."

Blonde Karen, who now could care for that traditional picture of health, gets rather indignant thinking about it, even now when eight months away from the cameras and from Hollywood have restored her to her old self.

"Why, even the galsman think nothing of passing the time of day by telling you what you ought to do—eat fat or get thin or get prettier or get smarter."

Anyway, this was one of the reasons Karen, deciding she needed more weight, got away from Hollywood to put it on. If you feel the jitters coming on, Hollywood is the place to help you get them and keep them.

Karen Morley disclaims the title of "hard luck girl." Her trouble came from too many pictures. Once she was doing three at once, wearing herself out. And then she took time out for a boy—Michael Kersey Vidor, now aged three—and after that the doctor took time out for an appendectomy.

So eight months ago, her weight down to about 100 pounds, Karen returned to the high-fenced estate in the Palms Verdes hills where she and husband, Charles Vidor, the director, make their home.

"I don't know that my regimen would work for anyone who was not radically sound," she says, "but I knew there was nothing to matter with me except overwork. I started by going to the desert and after a good rest there I went home and lived a good and satisfying life. I played outdoors, climbed trees, went, rode a bicycle, and slept enough. I ate when I felt like eating, and anything I wanted to eat. I felt like six meals a day I had, but I didn't try to eat more than I wanted. And most important, I was worried about weight. That's where Hollywood can be insidiously destructive: you can't go anywhere without hearing comments on how thin you are, or how "terrible" you're getting away from those helpful and sympathetic remarks was almost as good as nothing."

Karen, who has from Ottumwa, Iowa, and which Hollywood was closer to her small town so she could buy a farm and settle down

ALL-SOUTHERN FOOTBALL SELECTIONS OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duke University, headed by Clarence "Ace" Parker, placed five players on the 1936 All-Southern Conference football team selected for the Associated Press by coaches, sports and sports editors of the conference area. The spectacular Parker was the unanimous choice of the experts for quarterback and is designated captain of the mythical eleven. He was also a member of the 1934 and 1935 teams. Parker's running mates are Bill Guckeyson of Maryland and Elmore "Honey" Hackney of Duke, halfbacks; and Jim Hutchins of North Carolina, fullback. The linemen are Andy Bershak of North Carolina and Bob King of Furman, ends; Joe Cardwell of Duke and Joe Brunansky of Duke, tackles; Jim Farley of Virginia Military Institute and Dick Johnson of Davidson, guards, and Dan Hill, Jr., of Duke, center. Guckeyson and Farley were named on last year's eleven. (Associated Press Photos)

MEN BUILD UP FORESTS THEY HELPED CUT DOWN

Parsons, W. Va. (AP)—Braun men of the mountains who helped cut down West Virginia forests now are nursing saplings to build them up again.

Lumberjacks who followed the timber trails a decade or ago, swinging their axes, plod along now after rows of young trees at a federal forest nursery, swinging hoes.

They are employed by the government's forestry service in planting, cultivating and transplanting 700,000 saplings.

From the nursery—Ranger Donald A. O'Neil calls it the largest of its kind east of the Mississippi River—go red spruce, red pine and sugar maple to make timberland again out of what now are bare hills.

BARNEY GETS BUSY

SPORT SLANTS

In his Garden dressing room after outclassing Lou Ambers, the lightweight champion, Jimmy McLarnin bore no marks of the battle except a slight cut on the bridge of his nose.

"I wish Jimmy had been as good for Barney Ross as he was for the Ambers boy," said "Pop" Foster, McLarnin's manager. "The two fights he had under his belt this year made a whole of a difference in his timing and boxing. Too bad we can't get Ross next. But our time will come—and when we do meet Barney again it will be a different story."

McLarnin looked good in giving the lighter Ambers a sound lacing as well as an artistic boxing lesson. "I guess the showing Jimmy made against the speedy Ambers proves which we had a drawing of Elmer Oliphant, one of the greatest line-plungers in football. Oliphant was a great football player at Purdue before he donned the moleskins at West Point and wrote one of the most brilliant chapters in Army's priding history. His amazing deeds in the Army-Navy and Army-Notre Dame series 20 years ago won him a place among the Cadet gridiron greats of all time. The note carries an added thrill because Oliphant was one of our own boyhood heroes. Today Oliphant is an executive of a large insurance concern and, while the passing years have matured him, he still looks fit and capable of playing through a line for a long gain.

Paul Dee, captain of the Manhattan college cross-country team, takes time out from his studies to write: "A note of expression of my sincere thanks for your kindness in pressing in your recent drawing of me. This was one pleasure I had hoped for in a deep corner of my heart these seven years under Coach Peter Waters. Its fulfillment has been well received and appreciated; again—thanks, ever so much."

You're mighty welcome, Paul.

It is a pleasure to watch a boy like Dee develop into an athlete capable of leading his teammates in intercollegiate competition and to recall how, as a spindly prep school youngster, he reported to Coach Waters with ambitions to become a track star. He had little to recommend him seven years ago. Weighing slightly more than a hundred pounds, he looked so frail that his coach ordered him to take cod liver oil for a while before attempting any sport so strenuous as football. One would hardly recognize the body today—his athletic efforts have produced amazing results in his physical development!

A youngster in Fort Wayne, Ind., encloses a sample of his drawing talent with a note:

"My ambition is to become a cartoonist. I am enclosing a free-hand drawing which is a copy of the one you had in tonight's paper. I would like very much to have one of your drawings. I am 11 years old and in the 7-A grade. I like school, sports and stamp-collecting. I hope I hear from you. Sincerely, Bob Schick."

You'll hear from me, all right, Bob. There's a drawing in the mail for you.

MAKING STUDY NCREA POLICY

Authority Expected To Decide on New Set-Up Today

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

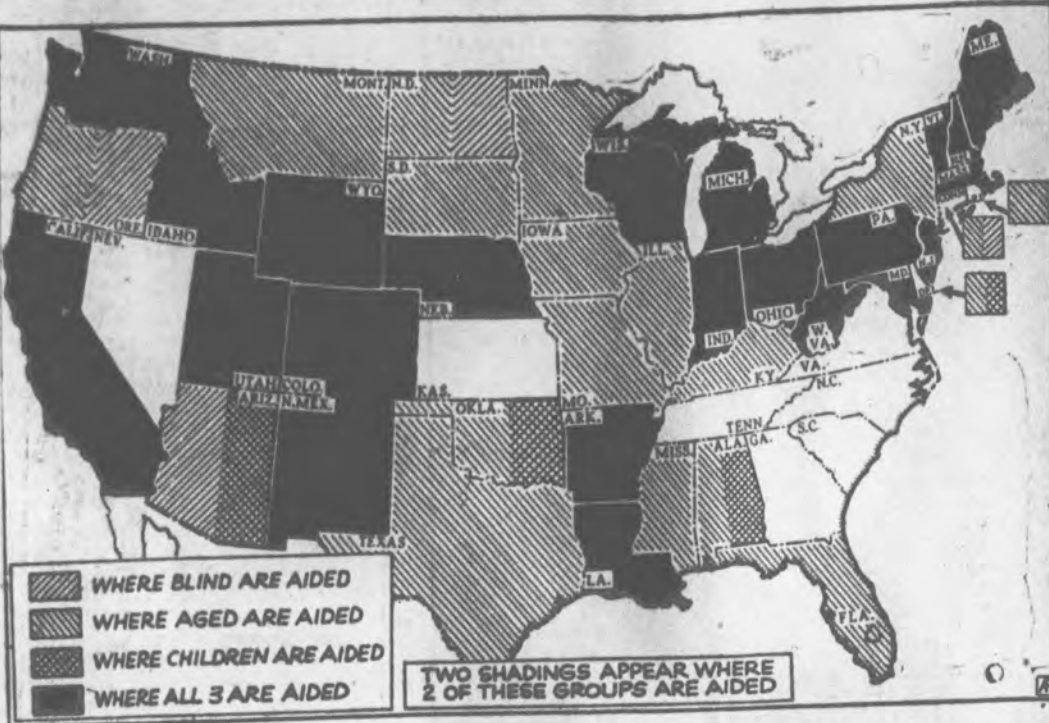

Raleigh, Dec. 1.—The North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority, in its meeting here today, is expected to decide on what new policy it will adhere to with regard to cooperative electric membership corporations in view of the recent decision in Wake County Superior Court by Judge Small to the effect that cooperative membership corporations are not public utilities and hence not subject to regulation by the State Utilities Commission, but come under the regulatory powers of the NCREA. The case is now on appeal to the State Supreme Court.

On the basis of Judge Small's ruling, it is generally agreed that electric membership cooperative associations do not need to secure certificates of convenience and necessity from the State Utilities Commission, as the NCREA had formerly held they must, but that they must secure permission from the NCREA before they can start building electric lines and that they are subject to regulation by the NCREA. This, as interpreted by most observers here, gives the state Rural Electrification Authority even more power than it has had, or rather than it has attempted to exercise, since it gives it the authority to say whether or not these local cooperatives may start building lines and where, also to regulate them.

But the State Supreme Court must eventually review the decision by Judge Small and it may either uphold him or reverse him.

In the mean time the NCREA may either sit tight and wait on the Supreme Court before taking any action with regard to local electric corporations, or it may exercise the new powers given it under Judge Small's decision, it is pointed out. If it exercises the latter option, it may either grant or refuse permission to those cooperatives which have applications for certificates of convenience and necessity pending before the Utilities Commission to go ahead with the building of electric lines, or they may hold up all further line construction by cooperatives until the Supreme Court acts. The cooperatives, on the other hand may decide to start building lines without asking permission either of the NCREA or the Utilities Commission, as did the Johnston county cooperative. But it was stopped by a law suit. So many hinges on this meeting of the NCREA today.

For Digestion's Sake ... Smoke Camels

Good digestion helps bring a sense of well-being and contentment

THE delightful effect of smoking Camels with your meals and afterwards has been proved again and again in the great laboratory of human experience. Explorers, champion athletes, people in hazardous outdoor work, as well as millions of men and women in homes and offices, find that Camels get digestion off to a good start and make the perfect ending to a meal. When you enjoy Camels, you are rewarded with an increased flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—so important to good digestion. And you can enjoy Camels as often as you like! Camels don't get on your nerves.

Deep in the jungle fastness of Central America amid the ruins of a lost city... Lawrence T. K. Griswold (right) has headed expeditions to Tibet, Komodo, the Amazon, and the lost cities of the ancient Mayas. He lists Camels as one of the necessities on the trail. "At best, eating in the jungle is no picnic," says Griswold. "I've found that smoking Camels is an aid to my digestion. Camels ease tension and give me a 'lift' in energy when I need it most. They never get on my nerves."

A FLIGHT DISPATCHER. "I often eat my meals on the job," says H. G. Andrews, TWA flight dispatcher. "Camels help my digestion behave itself. Being mild, Camels don't get on my nerves."

THIS CO-ED SAYS: "Camels set me right. Mental work often has an effect on digestion too," adds Miss Josephine O'Neill. "During meals Camels are a big aid to digestion. After meals they make food seem twice as good."

HOLLYWOOD RADIO TREAT! Camel Cigarettes bring you a FULL HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT! Benay Goodman's "Swing" Band...George Stoll's Concert Orchestra...Hollywood Guest Stars...and Rupert Hughes presides! Tuesday —9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm P.S.T., over WABC-Columbia Network.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand
