BREAK SEEN IN BRITISH CRISIS BY TOMORROW

Prime Minister Indicates Answer Is Forthcoming

EDWARD REMAINS AT RURAL HOME

Baldwin Spends Night in Seemingly Troubled Conference On Tense Situation

London, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin disclosed today that he had called the British cabinet into a sudden unexpected session tonight to discuss late developments in the constitutional crisis.

The government's whips instructed all members of the House of Commons to cancel engagements outside of London in preparation for the prime minister's expected pronouncement tomorrow on the king's decision to denounce either the British throne or Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

The summons for special session of the cabinet was interpreted to mean every faculty of the British government was being pressed into action to enable a final definite statement in commons tomorrow.

London, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin disclosed today that King and government still were hesitating on the answer to the empire's dilemma—Edward, VIII will marry Wallis Simpson and lose his throne.

The first minister, after a night spent in seemingly troubled conference with his sovereign gave hope, however, the crisis might reach its momentous climax tomorrow.

He told the crowded, worried members and galleries: "I regret I am not in a position to add anything today but I hope to make a statement tomorrow."

The members, increasingly concerned over economic and political aspects of the suspense, pressed him vainly for more.

King Edward remained at Rural Port Bolvedere, Mrs. Simpson, conferring at a villa on the Cote d'Azur with her London solicitor, announced through a spokesman she had "signed no document."

Thus far at least 24 more hours it seemed the breath-taking situation must hang in the balance.

Six More Persons Given Notices By New Commissioner

Employees of State Department of Agriculture Told Their Services Will Not Be Needed

Raleigh, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Six more employees of the state department of agriculture revealed today they had received notices their services would not be required after Commissioner-elect W. Kerr Scott takes office in January.

"The department of agriculture is demoralized," Commissioner William Graham commented. "Many have received notices of dismissal and many others wait anxiously to see if they will get notices."

"I hate to see my staff go as I consider my organization one of the most efficient in the state."

William Richardson, publication director for the department, received notice his services would be needed no longer, as did Mrs. Carl Hill in the bookkeeping department, Mrs. Polk Denmark in the statistical division, J. L. Burgess, head of the botany division, and Mrs. Catherine Haige, senior statistical clerk.

It was revealed yesterday Dr. A. H. Kerr, dairy specialist, for the department, had received his notice.

Defer Hearing Trial Negro In Wreck Case

The trial of Mack Pitt, negro, was postponed in City court this morning pending the condition of Annie Carney, negro woman, who was injured when struck by an automobile driven by Pitt yesterday.

The news was taken to the hospital, but she is not considered to be in a critical condition.

The only trial at this morning's session was that charging Adlan Smith, white man, with drunkenness. The defendant was given another chance when the court suspended sentence.

C. Gaskins Establishes Enviable Service Record

Begins 11th Successive Term as Registrar of Deeds

J. Claud Gaskins this week completed an even score of years in the office of Registrar of Deeds of Pitt county, adding another to his list of records of consistent service and punctuality.

Mr. Gaskins has served 10 two-year terms in his present position. At the last election he was elected to his eleventh term, which will be for four years in accordance with an act of the 1925 legislature.

In his capacity as Registrar of Deeds he acts as secretary to the Board of County Commissioners. During his tenure of office he has never missed a board meeting. Meetings are held once each month and special sessions are called occasionally, making more than 240 meetings at which he has been present.

During the time Mr. Gaskins has been in office he has never missed but three days on account of illness.

He has made a countless number of friends throughout the county and always has a cheerful word for court house visitors.

So well known is his popularity that on only two occasions has he had opposition in a primary. He was unopposed at the last primary and election.

Mr. Gaskins not only can boast of an enviable record in his capacity as Registrar of Deeds. He is a charter member of the Greenville Rotary club and attended the first meeting on February 4, 1919. Since that time he has neither been absent nor late for a meeting.

BETTER PLANS PROMISED FOR SOIL WORKERS

Secretary Wallace Says New Program To Better AAA

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace promised the American farmer a better program than the outlawed "triple A" today and a real economic security for those who live off the soil is the objective of the administration.

Addressing the 18th annual meeting of the American farm bureau federation he said: "You may have heard the idea advanced that the agricultural adjustment act should be re-enacted, that the programs carried out under its provisions were the best programs agriculture ever had. But good as that program was we want to see it improved upon. A better program can and will be built."

Some of the plans for greater economic security were listed as follows:

First, Opportunity for farmers to organize effectively.

Second, Fair prices that are fair and stable.

Third, Supply of farm products in line with adequate domestic consumption and foreign demand.

Fourth, Foreign policies that do all that can be done in conformity with peaceful relations.

Fifth, Conservation of natural resources.

Sixth, Retirement of sub-marginal land from cultivation and its use for purposes for which it is best suited.

Seventh, Crop insurance.

Eighth, Storage of reserve supplies of food and fiber.

Ninth, Increase security of tenure of tenants and owners operators and better possibilities for tenants to become owners.

Tenth, Increased opportunity for farm people whose standards of living is now barely on a subsistence basis.

Eleventh, Industrial policies encouraging abundance for wage and salary workers and farmers.

Opportunities In View For Turbulent Congress

Conflict Seen on Many Far-Reaching Proposals

Washington, Dec. 9.—(AP)—An abundance of opportunities for conflict and turmoil in the forthcoming session of congress was foreseen today by some members who have been surveying legislative prospects.

They pointed to such far-reaching measures as the Frazer-Locher bill to refund farm indebtedness with $3,000,000,000 of new money; the black-conner 30 hour work week bill and a bill to divorce manufacturing and retailing contemplated by Rep. Patman (D. Tex.).

There is also much talk of demanding the constitution to grant congress specific power to enact legislation of a social character.

His widow, reportedly an expectant mother, and her co-defendant pleaded guilty in federal court yesterday. Both were sentenced by Judge Johnson J. Hayes to serve two years in the industrial reformatory at Alderson, West Virginia.

Greenville Woman Member Of Party That Bagged Bear

Mrs. H. A. Thorsen and Son on Expedition in East Lake Section During the Past Week-end

Mrs. H. A. Thorsen and her son, Don Thorsen, were members of a week-end party which "bagged" a bear while on a hunting expedition during the past week-end.

Others in the party were Hunter Elliott of Wilson, Brooks Phillips of Charlotte and Ray Teague of Winston-Salem. They went to a camp on the Alligator river beyond Fort Landing, from which place they set out on their hunting trip.

The party crossed the river into the lake and was camping along the banks in search of ducks when the bear was spotted. Members of the group shot the bear from a tree, but the first shot did not kill him. Other shots were fired before the bear was killed.

The kill was taken to Wilson where it was dressed and members of the party are anticipating a bear steak dinner tonight.

Mrs. Thorsen said the skin was sent to New York to be made into a rug.

Funeral Services Conducted Today For Aged Citizen

Rites For Mrs. Harriet Jennie Hart, 90-Year-Old Aged Woman, Held at Home of Daughter

Funeral services were conducted in Aiden this afternoon for Mrs. Harriet Jennie Hart, 90, who died at the home of her daughter, followed in the family burying ground one mile east of Aiden. The services were conducted by Rev. R. F. Pittman, pastor of the Aiden Free Will Baptist church, of which Mrs. Hart was a member.

Mrs. Hart was the widow of W. P. Hart. She is survived by one son, J. E. Hart of Kingston, three daughters, Mrs. Celia Garris and Mrs. Smith of Aiden and Mrs. Allie Harrington of Greenville.

Active pallbearers were Quincy, Clarence, Ray and Frank Hart, Eugene Smith and Lonnie Harrington, all grandsons of Mrs. Hart.

Reach Agreement On Child Custody Favoring Mother

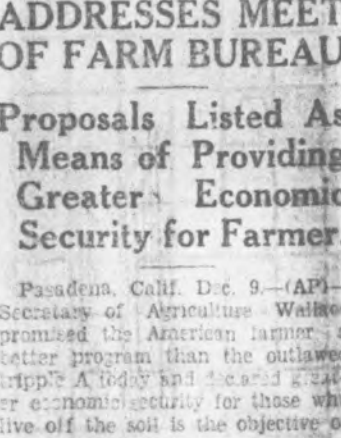

Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt to Have Her 13-Year-Old Daughter Longer Periods

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A settlement agreement giving Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt custody of her 13-year-old daughter for longer periods was approved today by Supreme court Justice Timothy A. Leary.

Custody of the child was awarded to her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, for all but week-ends and one month during the summer by Supreme Court Justice John Carew after a sensational hearing, two years ago.

Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen, a professor of mathematics and physics at Wurzburg university in Bavaria, found that certain light rays penetrate opaque objects. Used first to locate fractures, this almost magic invention with its improvements is now an important aid in making a more precise diagnosis of tuberculosis. Shadows that reveal the disease in its early forms appear on the X-ray plate of the chest.

ACROBATIC CAR DOES 'HEAD-STAND'

Wholly without intention on the part of Motorist Edward Kerin, his automobile plunged from a 15-foot wall and came to a perfect "head-stand" in Cherry creek at Denver, Colo. Kerin's shoulder was fractured but, strange to say, he crawled out and down without disturbing the remarkable poise of the car on its front end. A few moments after this picture was made, however, it toppled over. (Associated Press Photo)

Fourteen Persons Instantly Killed In Plane Tragedy

Dutch Airliner In Fatal Crash at Croydon, England Port

(By Associated Press)
Croydon, England, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Fourteen persons, among them Juan de la Viera, the auto-giro inventor, met sudden flaming death today in the crash of a "K. L. M." (Dutch) airliner, just four minutes off the runway at the Croydon air-drome.

Three survived with varying injuries. They were a German passenger, Walter Scuber, the wireless operator, Von Bommel, and the stewardess, Fraulin von Gertman. The condition of the men was grave. That of the stewardess, who leaped from the crash before it caught fire, was not dangerous.

Trapped by twisted steel and flames De la Viera died with the former Swedish secretary of state, Admiral Arvid Lindman, and 12 others, including two of the crew, No Americans were aboard.

The plane headed into a heavy fog which cut visibility to little more than 20 yards, ripped off the nose of two engines, nearly pulled away a large tree and struck and headed itself in an "uncontrolled" nose-dive, spinning from its moorings, crashing through the front wall.

John Blount was acquitted of a whiskey charge.

Seth Curry, L. E. Smith, Roy J. Sutton and Wilbur Sillmer were convicted of gambling, but judgment was suspended. Noah Post, indicted with the other "whiskey" answer when called and a verdict was issued for him.

Tom Langley was convicted of manufacturing whiskey and sentenced to the roads for six months. He appealed to Superior court and bond was set at $300.

Lyman Brewer, charged with driving careless and reckless, was fined $50 and costs and his license revoked for 12 months and given a four months suspended road sentence.

Willie Daniels was found not guilty on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Bright Moore entered a guilty plea of being drunk on the highway and was fined $25; costs to be deducted.

George (Buck) Jordan was fined $50 and costs and his license revoked for 12 months and given a four months suspended sentence upon entering a plea of guilty to driving while drunk.

Raleigh, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Members of the new state senate will Wednesday afternoon whether they would caucus tonight or organize for the special legislative session tomorrow while representatives prepared for their organization gathering at 9 o'clock.

LeRoy O. Martin, principal clerk of the 1936 senate who will be principal clerk for the special session, said it had not been decided this afternoon whether or not a senate caucus would be held.

Senator A. Hall Johnston of Buncombe county was still unopposed for president pro tem, but he did not know, he said, whether he will be nominated tonight or on the night of January 5 at a caucus preceding the regular biennial session.

In general the legislators expressed the opinion the special session to consider unemployment insurance would not last longer than 10 days.

Interviews Set For Scholarship Awards

Durham, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The North Carolina Rhodes scholarship committee has called six students to appear here December 12 for interviews when two candidates will be named for regional interviews at Atlanta, December 21.

Including in the six called, all seniors, were James S. Brown, Duke, from Gatesville and Thomas L. Perry, Jr., Wake Forest, of Wake Forest.

PITT COURT IN BUSY SESSION

Two Days Taken To Dispose of Regular Weekly Term

The weekly term of Pitt County court continued this afternoon after busy sessions yesterday and this morning, during which an unusually heavy docket was taken up.

John Scott, negro, was given 90 days on the roads on a charge of shoplifting, but Levy Eady was acquitted on the same count.

James Elks, Jimmie Harris, Benjamin Taft and Viola Jones, were called to trial on charges of possessing and transporting whiskey. The State took a nol pro in the case as to Elks and the other defendants were acquitted.

Herbert Cox and Charlie Dall were tried on charges of trespass but were freed by the judge who ruled they were not guilty.

James Edwards was sentenced to the roads for 60 days, suspended upon payment of the costs on a charge of operating an automobile without a driver's permit. W. J. Everett, indicted jointly with Edwards, was acquitted. The judge also recommended that Edwards be denied a license for 90 days when and if he makes application.

John Blount was acquitted of a whiskey charge.

Seth Curry, L. E. Smith, Roy J. Sutton and Wilbur Sillmer were convicted of gambling, but judgment was suspended. Noah Post, indicted with the other "whiskey" answer when called and a verdict was issued for him.

Revised Complaint Filed Against Robert Reynolds

Secretary and HOLC Also Included In Court Action

Mocksville, N. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A revised complaint was on file in Superior court here today in the suit of Dallas Kirby, local attorney, against Senator Robert R. Reynolds, his secretary, Wesley E. McDonald, and the home owners loan corporation, association for damages alleged to have been suffered by Kirby when he lost a position with the HOLC.

Judge John H. Clement yesterday heard attorneys for Senator Reynolds move to strike out certain parts of the complaint on the contention they were propaganda and parts of the documents were eliminated.

After the revision in the suit, for $7,500 and two years salary minus a few small credits, Kirby contends he was dismissed from the HOLC as a result of a conspiracy.

The senator's attorneys indicated after the hearing they did not plan to make an answer since they believed the complaint failed to establish a court of action.

M. W. Simmons, 80, Succumbs at Home After Long Illness

M. W. Simmons, 80, of the Stokes community died this morning at 4:30 o'clock after several weeks of critical illness.

Greenville To Hear Zimbalist
East Carolina Teachers College is included in the twenty-fifth anniversary tour which will carry E. Zimbalist from coast to coast this season. He will play at the Robert H. Wright auditorium here January 19.

Zimbalist was first heard by an American audience on October 27, 1911, when he appeared as guest soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On that occasion he played the Glazounov Concerto in A minor for the first time in America. He was immediately hailed as an artist of exceptional merit. In the twenty-five years that have passed since then, the name of Zimbalist has become synonymous with great violin music. He has played in practically every large city in the world.

In the period since his American debut, he has also established himself as a composer and more recently as a conductor. He is the composer of a symphonic poem, "Daphnis and Chloe," which was recently performed for the first time by the Philadelphia Orchestra with Leopold Stokowski conducting. He is also the composer of an operetta, "Honeydew," a sonata for violin and piano in G minor, three Slavic Dances and numerous short violin compositions. Two years ago he made his debut as a conductor, directing a performance of Tchaikowsky's "Eugen Onegin," which was presented by the Art of Musical Russia. More recently he conducted the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a performance of his "most recent work," "An American Rhapsody."

Local Citizens Hear Address By Japanese
One of the most delightful guest speakers to visit Greenville recently was Januchi Nakamura, student in the Graduate School at Duke University, who came to Greenville last Saturday as the guest of the Eighth Street Christian church.

Mr. Nakamura spoke at both the morning and evening services and remained over until Monday in order to speak to the Seniors and members of the Beta Club of the High school. In all of his messages Mr. Nakamura sought to impress upon his hearers that it was difficult to form adequate conceptions of conditions in other countries merely by reading what finds its way into the press notices, and made a plea for better understanding between races and nations.

His word pictures of his native country, Japan, were most illuminating and his contrasts between eastern and western conditions in America and Japan most informing. Visits from such intelligent and cultured representatives of other nations would do much to bring about mutual appreciation.

Scenery for "Smilin' Through"
The scenery for "Smilin' Through," the Senior play to be presented at the College Friday afternoon at 3:00 and Friday night at 8:30 o'clock, is under the direction of Roy Barrow, a College Junior.

Mr. Barrow was faced with the problem of building an English house and garden on the stage. With the expert assistance of James Johnston, of Greenville, Mr. Barrow built an appropriate framework, which he covered with canvas. Mr. Johnston painted the "house." Joe Braxton assisted in the arrangement of the set. Flowers for the garden were made by Miss Dorothy Williams.

But with all of the setting assembled, there was the problem of providing appropriate atmosphere by use of spotlights. John Crew, formerly of North Carolina State College, was given the job of creating the moonlight effects.

IF IN DOUBT SEND A CARD - NOT A GIFT

By JOAN DURHAM

"Shall I send Marion a Christmas present this year—or just a card?" It's easy enough to make out a list of people who ought to be remembered at Christmas. But the problem of deciding whether to send gifts to the Marions on our lists is sometimes very baffling.

There's one good rule to follow in gift-sending: When in doubt, don't. Send a card instead.

A wide variety of suitable cards is on the market today. The point is to take time enough to select something to fit everybody on your list.

Here are a few good rules to follow in sending greetings: Women use "Mr." or "Miss" on engraved or printed cards. Those prefixes may be omitted from cards bought at the local store, and signed in ink, however. For example: "Miss Jane Evergreen" or "Mrs. Robert Evergreen"—for printed and engraved cards; "Jane Evergreen" or "Marion Evergreen"—for store cards.

Men ordinarily omit "Mr." from all signatures—printed, engraved or inscribed. Husband-and-wife cards—engraved and printed—are signed: "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evergreen." Less formal greetings may bear both first names—"Robert and Marion Evergreen."

Write the name and address of the person to whom the card is going on the lower-half of the envelope. For example: "Master Thomas Evergreen, Miss Jane Evergreen," "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evergreen," or "Mrs. Robert Evergreen." (Never address a woman by her own first name.)

It is entirely proper to put return addresses in the upper left-hand corner or on the back flap of the envelope—especially if there's any doubt about the address of the person who's to get the card.

Large Number Deeds Recorded Past Week

He Must Have Had The Same Trouble

The man who conceived the idea of a Building and Loan Association must have been a person who knew how difficult it is to save for the future. We say that because the plan contains features which so conveniently help overcome the human tendency to "wait until tomorrow."

Each week or month you save a certain amount. Saving becomes a regular habit instead of a hit or miss proposition. The next time you are down town, come in and permit our officers to discuss the installment Thrift Plan. It costs nothing to join. Substantial dividends add to your investment.

ATTEMPT SEEN HALT BRIDGE

Efforts Feared in Regard to Albemarle Structure

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Dec. 9.—An attempt may be made by those who are still opposed to having the Albemarle Sound bridge built in the location decided upon by the State Highway and Public Works Commission, to block the building of this bridge in the special session of the general assembly which will convene here Thursday, according to reports current here today.

For while this session has been called for the express purpose of enacting an unemployment insurance law, so that state will not lose from $3,500,000 to $3,000,000 in payroll taxes, there is no way to limit the session to the consideration of this one matter if its members want to go afield and start chasing rabbits. For this is the only state in the union in which the Governor cannot either limit a special session to the issue contained in the call or in which he has no veto power.

If the opponents of the present Albemarle Bridge project try to bring the matter into this special session of the general assembly, they may be able to do something about and get the location changed—or they may succeed in getting no bridge at all, it is being pointed out here today. Most of those opposed to the present Albemarle Sound Bridge are opposed to the location, and want the bridge built either east or west of the present location. It is agreed.

But it is no secret that a great many people regard the expenditure of $1,200,000 or more for a bridge across the Albemarle Sound as a matter of money and that if the matter should be injected into this session of the general assembly, the members from the west and Piedmont would be inclined to pass a resolution prohibiting the building of any bridge across the Albemarle Sound and providing for the use of this $1,200,000 on roads in other sections of the state. There is not much to indicate that either of the factions opposed to the present proposed location for the Albemarle Sound Bridge would find much comfort or sympathy from the members of this general assembly.

Accordingly, most of the older and more experienced political heads here believe that the worst thing that could happen for the Albemarle Bridge would be to have it made an issue in this special session, unless those who are opposed to the present bridge site want no bridge at all.

How's Your Health?

Ear Complications and Throat Infections

Infections of the throat always threaten a number of serious complications. Among them are involvement of the middle ear and the head sinuses. Also, the case which may later turn out to be what is known as acute streptococcal infection of the throat, with numerous threatened complications, involving the immediate structures of the throat, as well as the heart and kidneys.

We frequently find preceding an involvement of the middle ear such illness as the common cold, influenza, tonsillitis or sinusitis. In summer time bathings in polluted waters may contribute to the development of the condition. Occasionally exposure to cold and damp may be the precipitating cause of middle ear disease.

In ear disease following respiratory infection, it is usual for the infection to extend along the Eustachian tube. This is the tube which runs from the back of the throat to the middle ear. The function of the tube is to allow air to enter the internal ear structure, so that the pressure against the eardrum from inside will be equal to that of the outside air pressure.

Those suffering from enlarged adenoids and enlarged and diseased tonsils, as well as those who have what are called septic foci in the nose and sinuses about the nose, are the more likely to suffer middle ear infection.

In acute streptococcal infection of the throat (streptococcal because the streptococcus germ is the most common organism responsible) we may find an inflammation of the tonsils and of more or less of the surrounding tissue. In the more serious form, the involved tissue may become gangrenous, that is, they slough (are killed) by the germ, and their toxins.

In the second form, we often also find constitutional evidence of toxemia and septicemia, that is, the germs and their toxins apparently succeed in breaking through the local protective barriers and enter the blood circulation. The second form of throat infection may develop out of the first. Such cases require very prompt and competent medical care.

Middle ear disease may extend and involve the mastoid, while the gangrenous form of throat infection, giving rise to toxic and septicemic symptoms, may cause irreparable damage to the kidneys and heart.

Throat infections are therefore not quite the simple conditions that many are inclined to think. Many a chronic nephritis, rheumatoid arthritis, and recurrent heart involvement date from an attack of acute septic sore throat.

Total Of 234 New Revocations Made During This Week

Many Automobile Drivers, Lost Licenses During Period, Bringing to 7,238 Number Thus Far

Raleigh, Dec. 9.—The driving permits of 234 automobile drivers were revoked this week by the highway safety division of the Department of Revenue, bringing the total number of drivers' licenses revoked to date to 7,238. It was announced today by Director Arthur Falk. Of these 234 revocations this week, 22 were revoked today.

Most of these 234 revocations were made following the conviction of the drivers for drunken driving, reckless driving or convictions of drunken and reckless driving, the official reports show.

Since the current license law was now in effect more than one year, the revocations of those whose licenses were revoked a year ago are now expiring every day. Accordingly, this week the revocations of 192 drivers whose licenses were revoked a year ago this week expired and they may now make application for new licenses. No new licenses will be issued to those drivers, however, unless they pass an examination issued either by a highway patrolman or a special examiner and pay the fee of $1 now required of all new applicants, Director Falk said.

PREVENT CHRISTMAS FIRES

Almost every Christmas season some community has its holiday spoiled by a disastrous fire resulting from faulty wiring in decorations or the use of inflammable materials in too close proximity to open flames. In going about your Christmas decorating try to use non-inflammable materials if possible. If you are using a Christmas tree be sure that you place it as far away from your fireplace or stove as possible because the heat dries out the tree and makes it a fire hazard. Under no circumstances use lighted candles on your tree or in any other spot in the house close to curtains or decorations. Be sure that the electric wiring you use carries the Underwriters' OK and if it has been previously used have it inspected before you use it again this year.

Also avoid over-loading your lines. Should you overload your lines with additional lights and cause the fuses to blow, don't take chances by using pennies or other means to restore your lights. The fuses are placed in the electric switch box in your house for your protection and the minute a fuse blows it is a sign that something is wrong. If your lights go out call the electrician and let him inspect your lighting and he will see to it that you do not take unnecessary chances that might result in a fire.

There are far too many Christmas fires resulting from the failure to observe some of the Don't's of fire prevention. Let's not take chances on marring our Christmas as a result of our carelessness regarding fire hazards.

Washington. — The social security board is suffering one of its worst pains trying to solve the question of exempting private pension plans from the federal system. Senator Clark of Missouri led a fight for such exemptions when the social security act was framed in 1935. But somebody got to him with a basketful of explanations of how difficult it was to make equitable exemptions and he agreed to work a while with experts to perfect an exemption plan.

That was in 1935. He worked with the experts all through the 1936 session and each time reports asked him what he planned to do he simply commented that progress was being made but the task was complex. It was so complex that Clark put nothing before the last session. Even now the social security board and its experts haven't much on hand to help him when the new congress begins, asking questions.

The purpose of exemptions was to permit sound private pension systems to exist without the added

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Philip Page, who is darkly handsome and serious, returns to his boyhood home and buys the Warrenton Courier. He backs the workmen of the Morris home. Occasionally he "squares" Sally Warren, the attractive, thoughtful society editor who has "cut her" sweetheart to her younger sister, Mary Morris, daughter of the wealthy property owner whom Philip is battling, risks her father's anger to pursue Philip. She tells him her father has hired a detective to investigate the fire which destroyed his Palace theater, killing 10.

Chapter 27

'Little Blue Room'

ANOTHER surprise was in store for Sally. She reached home to find Mrs. Morris in the living room, talking earnestly with Mrs. Warren. Mrs. Warren called to Sally to come in and join them.

"How do you do, my dear?" greeted Mrs. Morris. "You're looking a little thin, but very pretty."

Mrs. Morris was a plump, somewhat dowdy little woman, on whom expensive clothes never looked either trim or fashionable. She suffered a great deal from what she called "nerves" and spent much of her time at fashionable resorts.

"Mrs. Morris has come on an errand that concerns you, Sally," said Mrs. Warren. "She wants you to come and spend a month with Mary."

Sally looked from one to the other in amazement. "With Mary?" she asked.

"I know that sounds a little strange," said Mrs. Morris. "But it's Mary's idea. You see, I'm going away. Young Joe is taking me to a little place on the Canadian lakes that I find very helpful when my nerves are in dreadful shape. Mary absolutely refuses to go with us. The naughty girl pretends she's concerned about her father and won't leave home. Of course I don't want her putting around about the house alone, what with all the threats we've been receiving lately, so I suggested I'd get an elderly cousin of mine to stay with her. Mary refused to have anything to do with that suggestion. She wants you to move into the house for a month instead."

"What do you say to that, Sally?" asked Mrs. Warren.

"But I have my job—I can't give that up," protested Sally.

"No, of course not. But you'd be able to spend a good deal of time with Mary. She simply wants someone in the house."

"Are you sure Mary really wants me?" asked Sally slowly.

"She's coming by later to talk to you about it," said Mrs. Morris. "She does want you, indeed."

"I'll have to think about it and talk to Mary," said Sally. "What do you think, Mother?"

"I think it would be splendid for both of you," said Mrs. Warren. "You need to go out more, Sally, and Mary will see to that."

"We should consider it such a favor," said Mrs. Morris, patting Sally's hand with her own plump, ringed one. "Sally left them and went upstairs to her own room. She was frankly puzzled. Of course she and Mary had been friends for years, and since Philip Page's coming they had been together oftener, but Mary's choice of her to stay in the Morris house for company still puzzled Sally. Apparently Mary's refusal to go away for the hot month of August was easily explained by her desire to stay near Philip. Suddenly Sally saw that Mary's reason for wanting her must involve Philip, too. She expected to see and hear more of Philip by having Sally in the house."

The moment the thought occurred to her, Sally dismissed it from her mind. However true it seemed, she had no right to judge Mary's motives. Later, when Mary came to her room, Sally was glad she had banished the thought.

"I think I'm getting nerves, like mother," Mary confessed, as she perched on the edge of Sally's bed. "At night I wake up and imagine I hear people prowling about the lawn and porch. Once I was so sure there was someone on my balcony I went out there to see."

"Goose," scolded Sally. "You need to go away instead of your mother."

"No, I want to stay. But I want someone with me. You will come won't you, Sally? I've planned it all. I've even had Mattie get the little blue room next to mine ready for you."

"Of course I'll come," said Sally.

Like Cinderella

THIS is what Sally found herself established in the Morris mansion. The "little blue room" turned out to be twice the size of Sally's own bedroom. It got its name from the color of the deep turquoise rug that covered the floor, and the draperies that framed the tall windows. The furnishings were of walnut, massive and dark with the polish that age gives to fine wood. Sally liked the rich deep colors and the dark tones of the walnut better than the ivory and gold glitter of Mary's room.

Sally was amused at the sight of her small wardrobe, which the maid had carefully hung in the clothes closet. At least two-thirds of the closet was still vacant after all Sally's possessions had been established.

As she brushed her hair and put on the most festive of her voile dresses, Sally thought, "I am not Sally Warren any more. I have a maid to press my clothes, and I am driven to the office in state. I shall live in luxury a little while, and then one day I shall pack up and go back, like Cinderella, to my fireside. But by that time I shall be quite spoiled."

Dinner at the Morris house, Sally was to discover, was always a formal meal, with a manservant skillfully attending. Instead of her father, sitting at the head of the table, and telling bits of news from the office or the newspaper, there was Mr. Morris, who ate his dinner almost wholly in silence, and allowed Sally and Mary to do most of the talking.

Sally started at Mr. Morris a good deal those first few days. He was a man of more than average height, and somewhat heavily built. His voice was deep, and even in the simplest matters had a commanding note. He had heavy, iron-gray hair, and bushy brows. His eyes, dark like Mary's, were small but very piercing. Sally wondered if Mr. Morris knew that she worked for his enemy, Philip Page. She rather thought he did not know. He would not be very curious about any of Mary's friends.

Smooth Mr. Benton Arrives

ON the third day of her stay with Mrs. Morris, another guest arrived. Mary was introduced to him at dinner, when he sat opposite her. He was a Mr. Giles Benton, and had come down, so Mary informed Sally, to act as efficiency expert for Mr. Morris.

Afterwards, on the terrace, Mr. Benton made herself very agreeable to Sally and Mary, but for some reason which she could not explain to herself, Sally did not like him. She was glad when a servant came to tell her she was wanted on the telephone.

Philip Page's voice came to her over the wire. "I've got to go out of town on business. I'll be gone at least 24 hours, and there's something I want you to look into for me."

"I'll be glad to," said Sally, pleased and proud that he relied on her.

"McDonald's in trouble. Go down tomorrow after you're through at the office and talk to them. Give me a full report when I get back."

Sally went back to the terrace to find Mr. Morris gone, and Mary talking with Giles Benton.

"Do you have to go to the office?" demanded Mary eagerly. "I'll take you if you do."

"No, not tonight. Just an errand I have to do tomorrow," said Sally. She knew Mary wanted to know if her message was from Philip, but Sally determined to be secret with Philip's affairs.

"Miss Warren works for Philip Page," said Mary to Giles Benton. "For Mr. Page, eh?" said Giles. He rubbed a hand over his smooth hair, and Sally saw the gleam of a ring on his finger. "I was about to ask you, Miss Warren, if you wouldn't show me something of the town tomorrow."

"If I have time," said Sally. "I'll be glad to."

Why, Sally wondered afterwards, as she got ready for bed, did he want her to show him the town when Mary was the logical one to do it? Mary had not offered. Perhaps she had deliberately shunted the duty to Sally.

"Perhaps that's only of my duties as a companion," Sally said to herself. She stood looking out of her window at the long shadows of a clump of cedars. While she watched, Mr. Morris and Giles Benton emerged from the shadows and paced up and down the moonlit stretch of lawn. They were in earnest conversation. Sally could hear the murmur of their voices and see their animated gestures. Once Giles turned and stared up at her window. Sally drew back. It was only idle staring. He could not have known it was her window, much less have seen her. Yet Sally had a strange feeling that the two men had been talking about her.

She wondered, as she got into bed and pulled the cool linen sheet over her, if she, too, were getting "silly" after only a few days in the gloomy Morris mansion.

Democratic House Members To Name Officials Tonight

Can be Set For Hall of Lower Body at 8 o'clock; R. Gregg Cherry Slated For Speakership

ing clerk and a sergeant at arms. It is expected that R. Gregg Cherry of Gastonia will be elected speaker with little or no opposition and that the various other days, with the exception of the principal clerk, will also be elected in short order. It is expected that no more will be made to elect a principal clerk, since Tread Eure, who was principal clerk in the 1935 session, was elected for a two year term and hence is automatically principal clerk in this special session. He will have as his chief assistant Bill Baker, who is a candidate for principal clerk when the regular session convenes in January, and who is not expected to have any opposition.

Since it is customary for the oldest ranking member of the house to call it to order, it is expected that Representative C. Wallace Tatem of Tyrrell county, will open the Democratic caucus, after which it will elect a chairman, usually the man who calls it to order. R. P. Tatem has served in every session of the house since 1923, this being his seventh consecutive session. It is not believed that the Republican members of the house, of whom there are only seven, will hold a caucus. The selection of the candidates for speaker and the other house officers in the caucus is equivalent to election, although the formal election of these officers will not take place until after the members have been sworn in Thursday morning. The mimosa blossom, temporarily collapses when touched by human hands. Sir Jagadis Bose, Indian scientist, has shown that metals' qualities may be damaged by poison and restored by antidotes.

BIG GAME SET FOR THURSDAY

Red Headed Girls To Meet All-Star Quint Local College

Everything is set for the big game Thursday night, December 10th, at the East Carolina Teachers College gymnasium when Olson's All-American Redheads take on the Greenville All-Stars.

College officials stated today they had enlarged the seating capacity of the gymnasium to accommodate 3,500 spectators, and further stated that they expected the game to be a sell-out. The crowd is expected to be a record breaker. Over a hundred reserved seats were put on sale Tuesday morning and have already been sold. In addition, nearly 400 tickets have been sold to East Carolina Teachers College students. There will be plenty of room for everyone, but spectators are urged to come early if they wish to obtain choice seats.

The Redheads, greatest girls basketball team in the world, will arrive here Thursday afternoon about three o'clock and make their headquarters at the Proctor hotel. They will come to Greenville from Greensboro where they were to have played a game against the Greensboro Y. M. C. A. tonight.

Fans are divided in their opinion as to the outcome of the game. Some think the boys are too strong, but the majority believe the girls will take 'em in stride. They base their prediction on the great record compiled by the Redheads. In five games against men's college teams the Redheads have emerged victorious in four, only the University of Indiana beating them. In their last ten games played through Alabama and Georgia against men's teams, the Redheads have won them all.

There is another angle to the game that will interest Greenville fans almost as much as the game itself. What is that angle? The fact that "Ace" Parker, Duke's All-American quarterback, and "Chubby" Dean, star first baseman for the Philadelphia Athletics during the past summer, will appear in the All-Star lineup. Greenville fans will never forget these two boys for their wonderful playing on the local baseball club during the past summers and will be more than glad to see them in action again.

CARRIER BOYS TO MEET FOES

Second Contest With Scout Troops Set For Saturday

All of the local football fans who are sorry that the grid season has ended, can "park up their troubles" for the grim teams of The Daily Reflector carrier boys and that of the Boy Scouts of Troop 30 will meet next Saturday in another encounter.

This game is expected to be a much harder fought battle than that of last Saturday because the 32-32 score of the last game has created much rivalry between the two organizations.

This will be the second game between these two teams. They have arranged to meet again in several more games between now and the first of the year.

Both teams will have eleven men eager to take part in the battle, whereas last week they presented eight-man teams.

at the Courthouse Door in the Town of Greenville the following described tracts of land, lying, being and situate in Carolina Township, Pitt County, State of North Carolina, to wit:

1) Beginning at J. S. Overton's and J. S. Fleming's corner; thence nearly south with a line of marked trees with J. S. Fleming's line to a corner about 20 or 30 yards below the new road; thence nearly west with a line of marked trees to John F. Whickard's line; thence with his line nearly north to a gun, Sarah Perkins' corner; thence with her line to the beginning, containing 50 acres, more or less, and being the same parcel of real estate that was conveyed by G. M. Mooring and wife to J. S. Fleming by that deed recorded in Book C-11 at Page 520 of the Pitt County registry.

2) Beginning at some small oaks in Susan E. Mooring's line, running N. 77 1-2 W. to a pine, G. M. Mooring's corner; thence S. 2 1-2 W. 176 poles to the Chinquapin Island tract; thence E. 72 poles to Susan E. Mooring's line; thence with Susan E. Mooring's line to the beginning, containing about 90 acres, more or less, and being the same parcel of land that was conveyed to J. S. Fleming and wife (the latter being now dead) by that deed from G. S. Mooring and wife recorded in Book R-10 at Page 147 of the Pitt County registry.

3) Beginning at the head of Hunting Run Canal at the road and runs N 59 1-2 W. 35.88 chains to G. T. House's corner; thence with House's line N. 3 3-4 E. 15 chains to the corner; thence with the line of the E. B. Moore tract N. 2 1-4 W. 17.05 chains to Whickard's corner; thence with Whickard's line S. 43 1-4 E. 27.45 chains to the corner; thence N. 23 E. 14.87 1-2 chains to J. S. 201 1-3 acres, and being Lot No. 5 in the division of the lands of the late G. M. Mooring, which was conveyed by deed from J. S. Fleming and A. W. Baker, Executors of the Will of G. M. Mooring, to J. L. Perkins by deed bearing date December 9, 1916, and being the same parcel of land that was conveyed to the said J. S. Fleming by J. L. Perkins and wife by that deed duly recorded in Book V-11 at Page 359 of the Pitt County registry.

Said three tracts of land being the first three tracts of land referred to be sold by the judgment above referred to, and being the first three tracts of land described in the complaint filed in the above entitled action, and being the first three tracts described and conveyed in that deed of trust from J. S. Fleming et al. to James E. Gay, Jr., Trustee, recorded in Book S-18 at Page 12 of the Pitt County registry.

A deposit of ten per cent on the amount of bids will be required at said sale of the purchasers, and upon failure of any successful bidder to make said deposit, such tract of land will thereupon immediately be re-sold. And this re-sale is subject to confirmation by the Court.

This December 7, 1936.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

A NATIONAL DISTILLERS PRODUCT

They all look alike...but one is a CHAMPION!

The smoothness and ease of a champion fencer in action is a thrilling treat for anyone to experience. In whiskies, too, smoothness counts for a great deal. Windsor, a champion in its price class, is wonderfully smooth and easy. It has a rich, round, ripe flavor that distinguishes it as one of the soundest of all straight bourbons. Yet it is mild and light. Judge Windsor by the standards that you apply to a champion. You will not be disappointed!

HOUSES WOULD PASS ON BILLS

No Committees Likely to Be Appointed At Session

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Dec. 8.—Indications are that no committees will be appointed for the special session of the general assembly which will convene here Thursday morning. This means that neither the Lieutenant Governor nor the Speaker of the House will make committee appointments until the regular session convenes January 5 and that the unemployment insurance bill, for the consideration of which this special session was called, will be considered by each house, sitting as a committee of the whole, instead of by smaller committees.

If this plan is followed, it will also act as a safeguard against the consideration of any bills that may be introduced by members in addition to the unemployment insurance bill. For if any other bills are introduced, the presiding officers can inform the members who introduce them that there are no committees to consider them and ask that they be held over until the regular session convenes. In order to override the ruling of the speaker or the Lieutenant Governor, it will be necessary for a member to suspend the rules, which requires two-thirds vote—and such a vote is not likely to be had over the objections of a presiding officer. In addition, it is believed that most of the members will be so anxious to wind up the special session and get home before Christmas that they will not be inclined to take up any other matters.

Lieutenant Governor A. H. Graham told this bureau over long distance telephone that he did not expect to name any committees whatever and instead would recommend the consideration of the unemployment insurance bill by the senate sitting as a committee of the whole.

Representative R. Gregg Cherry of Gastonia, who is expected to be elected speaker of the house, could not be reached for a statement today, but the belief is that he will agree with Lieutenant Governor Graham and not appoint any committees, insisting instead that the whole of the session be spent on the unemployment insurance bill before turning it on the readings.

The belief here is that if this procedure is followed it will greatly speed up the special session.

Talks To Parents

By Brooke Peters Church

Free Will
It is not fair to put upon a child the burden of fulfilling his parents' ambitions. Every man must accept his own failures and shortcomings. He cannot hope to redeem them in his children. Each child is an individual in his own right, and must be permitted to choose and follow his own bent.

Mr. Smith had not been able to go to college, and to him a college education was of paramount importance. He planned to send his son to a university, and hoped in this way to live vicariously the life that he had missed. His son, however, had different views. When he finished high school he went out to find a job. The father's relationship with the child was for years embittered by his second disappointment.

Mr. Smith had given up an acting career when he married, and now set her heart on seeing her daughter on the stage. The child was taught dancing, elocution, languages, anything that would equip her for acting. But Susy was a hobbyist and wanted nothing more than marriage, a home and babies. At the first opportunity, she married and lived happily ever after.

There is no use in planning children's lives for them. They must be permitted and encouraged to choose for themselves. The very eagerness with which one pushes them in a given direction or towards ambitions which one has set up for them, is more apt to make them go in an opposite direction.

MAN A SUICIDE? NO—JUST A JOKE

Springfield, Mo. (AP)—When Policeman Lee Jones sped to the rear of a garage to check reports of a suicide, he found E. J. Wallace, unemployed truck driver, lying beside his car moaning. His breath, Policeman Jones decided, smelled of acid.

The officer tried desperately to feed him milk and raw eggs while a group of frustrated neighbors suggested other remedies. When an ambulance arrived, however, Wallace calmly arose and said:

"This is a joke." At headquarters he explained: "I pretended I had taken poison to get a neighbor who was threatening to beat his wife. The plan worked, too. He was in the crowd that came to see me. That was mouthwash you smelled on my breath." He was released.

Santa and the Viking

BY SIGRID ARNE

He put the whistle to his lips and blew.

THE STORY SO FAR: Santa has a surprise visit from Nils, a Viking who was blown to Toyland by the North Wind. Nils is seeking his daughter, Gudrun, who has been lost for 300 years.

Chapter Three

THE MAGIC WHISTLE
Santa took out his pen-knife and thoughtfully carved a whistle as Nils, the sad visitor, stared silently into the fire after telling the story of his search for his little daughter.

Santa wasn't just whittling idly. He was trying to think of a plan to help Nils.

"Wonder if the child went east or west?" thought Santa to himself. "Wonder if she grew old or stayed young?" When he finished the whistle, he put it to his lips and blew. A strange thing happened. The whistle sang a tune:

West, west with the hun,
Her trip was only done
Where the moon and sun are Always die,
And rivers sleep and never run.

Santa nodded his head with a pleased smile at Nils who jumped to his feet and shouted, "Can it mean Gudrun? It's the first news I've had of her in 300 years."

"Easy As Snuffing a Candle," Santa blew the whistle again, and again it hummed the tune. Santa nodded gravely at Nils and said:

"The whistle must mean your daughter. I have carved hundreds of whistles but none like this." "But what does it mean?" asked Nils in great anxiety.

"Ho, that's easy as snuffing a candle," laughed a tin soldier. "Rivers never run when they are frozen."

"Right, my little friend," smiled Nils. "I should have known that. And rivers are frozen in the north so she can't be far. But what does it mean. Where sun and moon are one?"

"That's less easy," said Santa. "It's somewhere in the North. Once each year they are both in the sky. They meet far from the eyes of everyone but the wild spirits of the ice kingdom. I can see in your eyes you are going to search for the place, so take the whistle. It may help you."

"Take Me Along!" Nils clasped the whistle to a gold chain on his left wrist. As he did so, Captain Buttons, of the tin soldiers, tugged at his boots, shouting, "Take me along, sir!"

"Me-woo-coff!" growled Mister, a white woolly pup.

Santa chuckled at Nils' surprised expression. "Take them along," said Santa. "They know the fairy kingdom, any may help."

So, after much excitement, Nils

CYSTERS ARE PLANTED ON CAROLINA COAST
Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—No plowing under—but deep planting—was the policy in this government program.

To revive a once-thriving North Carolina oyster industry, the WPA employed 387 persons to plant 7,000,000 seed oysters in the Atlantic. According to findings of oyster culturists, the oysters will multiply one-fifth each season.

COLLEGE SUGGESTED GOOD SPIRITUAL FIELD
Pittsburgh, Pa. (AP)—College is a great plan by which youth may gain a spiritual outlook upon the world. Dr. Joan G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, says.

Commenting on the aims and purposes of higher education, Dr. Bowman says that ideals of nobility, of kindness, of tolerance, and of faith are important ends.
