AGENTS BLAST CRIME CAREER OF DESPERADO

Harry Burnette Captured Following 45-Minute Siege

WIFE WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE

Criminal Declared to Be on Way Toward Being Another Alvin Karpis

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Federal agents blasted an upper west side apartment with a 45-minute siege of gunfire early today capturing Harry Burnette, 25-year-old desperado, and wounding his wife, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, who led the attack, said Burnette was wanted for the kidnaping of a New Jersey state trooper and for a number of bank robberies in the middle west.

Burnette's wife, with a bullet wound in the back, was taken to Bellevue hospital where her condition was reported not to be serious. An area just off Riverside Drive was thrown into a panic by the gun battle as Burnette fought back against the surprise raid with two pistols.

The rattling gunfire aroused hundreds of sleeping residents of brown stone houses bordering the West 102nd street apartment house, where Burnette and wife had taken residence several weeks ago.

"This man is a desperate character," Hoover said after the capture. "Although we never rate criminals, he certainly is one of the worst in the country. The capture of Burnette was more difficult than that of John Dillinger, for Burnette fought back until his guns were empty."

Burnette was on his way toward being another Alvin Karpis.

The crime exploit for which Burnette was wanted most was the kidnaping November 11, last, of William Turnbull, New Jersey state trooper seeking to arrest two men and a woman in a speeding automobile near Somerville, N. J.

Local Men Attend Divisional School Of Kiwanis Clubs

Greenville Club Represented by Past President Sugg, Secretary Moore, Director Harrison

The annual divisional training school for officers of the Seventh Kiwanis Division was held at Goldsboro yesterday afternoon. Clubs represented were Goldsboro, Greenville, Jacksonville, Kingston, Wilmington and Wilson. The meeting was held at Hotel Goldsboro and was presided over by Lieutenant Governor elect, Dr. A. G. Woodard. Among the speakers were the retiring Lieutenant Governor, Rev. T. C. Johnson, of Kingston, who gave an outline of his year's work. Also on the program were former Lieutenant Governor W. Frank Taylor, discussing Education and Vocational Guidance, and Rev. A. J. Smith, who discussed "A Working Program of Personal Service for the Underprivileged Child."

At six-thirty, immediately upon conclusion of the training school meeting, the representatives of the several visiting clubs were guests of Dr. Woodard at the regular meeting of the Goldsboro Kiwanis Club held in the hotel dining room. Guy Whitman, president of the Goldsboro Club, presided. The program was in charge of the committee on "Church Appreciation." The speaker was Rev. Peter McIntyre, of the Presbyterian Church, of Goldsboro.

Kiwanian Bruce Sugg, of Greenville, made an urgent appeal to the Kiwanians and business men of Goldsboro for cooperation with the farmers in a movement for the control of the tobacco crop in 1937. On motion of Past President Frank Jones, a resolution was passed by the Goldsboro Club endorsing the crop control movement.

The Greenville Club was represented by Past President Sugg, Secretary Dave Moore, and J. Nat Harrison, of the Board of Directors for 1937.

Secretary Moore of the local club was one of the winners of attendance prizes.

Old Industry Revived

YOUNG WOMAN ENDS OWN LIFE

Fashioned Slender Fashions Noose From Pajamas

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Sheriff Allen McDonald said today Hope Morgan, before she hung herself in a jail cell this morning, had scribbled a confession on pages of a magazine that she killed her best friend because of "jealousy."

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Miss Hope Morgan, 25, who confessed to a homicidal impulse caused her to kill a woman friend just a week ago, hanged herself today with a noose fashioned from her pajamas in the county jail at Mason.

She executed the self imposed death sentence while awaiting the report of a sanity commission that examined her last week after the fatal shooting of Miss Elizabeth Giltner, 25, daughter of a Michigan college dean.

A woman inmate of the jail noted her absence from her cell about 3:30 a. m. She summoned Mrs. Alvin McDonald, sheriff's wife and madam of the jail. Mrs. McDonald found the body suspended from a shower bath fixture in a room adjoining the women's quarters. Coroner Ray Gorsline said she probably had been dead an hour.

Spanish Fascists Renew Attacks on Government Lines

Madrid, Dec. 15.—(AP)—German troops led Spanish fascists in renewed attacks on government positions near suburban Boadilla del Monte, the socialist high command charged today.

The roar of a distant battle apparently centered on the western side of Casa del Campo park, penetrated to the center of the capital. Government commanders, using binoculars, observed troop movements.

It decided without dissent to: First, continue Chiang Kai Shek's domestic and foreign policies.

Second, carry out the bandit suppression campaign in the north.

Third, "Never relax" operations against subversive elements in Suiyuan and other districts.

This seeming spirit of non compromise with the communist-supported Chang Hsueh-Liang, who seized the generalissimo at Sianfu last Friday, coincided with overwhelming pledges of loyalty and military assistance to the national government from nearly every province of the republic.

New York city consumes water at the rate of 142 gallons a person a day, says the magazine Power. The London rate is 43 gallons.

Farmers Advised Produce Special Types Of Tobacco

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—The growing consumption of cigarettes in recent years has increased the demand for tobacco leaves of greater width and thinner texture.

The broad leaf variety will produce more pounds of bright tobacco to the acre than will the narrow leaf varieties, said E. Y. Floyd, extension tobacco specialist at State College.

To meet this demand, Floyd urges farmers to raise White Stem Orange, Virginia Bright Leaf, Jamaica Wrappor, Gold Dollar, Bonanza, and other broad leaf varieties.

But the selection of good varieties is only a part of producing a good tobacco crop. Floyd pointed out.

He has prepared a bulletin giving suggestions on the selection, preparation, and fertilization of seed beds and fields, the care of plants in the seed bed, proper methods of transplanting and cultivating the crop; control of insect pests, toppling, and suckering; selection of seed plants, harvesting, curing, grading and marketing.

PANIC SPREADS DUE TO CRISIS OVER GENERAL

Fears Grow That Japan Might Have to Take a Hand

DEATH OF RULER STILL UNCERTAIN

Nanking Government Resolves to Crush Subversive Forces in North China

(By Associated Press) Shocking radio messages from the rebel fastnesses of Shensi province told China today its generalissimo and chief of state Chiang Kai Shek had been slain by a mutinous war lord.

The hot headed revolt leader, Chang Hsueh-Liang, announced with cold blooded drama he had executed General Chiang and a number of his loyal generals.

The Nanking government shortly before heard from W. T. Donald, its negotiator, that he had seen Chiang at Sianfu alive and in good spirits. But he did not state the time when he was permitted to view him.

Marital law was proclaimed immediately through all the Chinese republics. Demonstrations were forbidden. Political gatherings were banned.

"The grave situation arising from multiple assassinations" in the bleak northern interior area was cited as the reason for the drastic action.

(By Associated Press) A feeling of panic rose in China today—fed by countless conflicting reports of the fate of Chiang Kai Shek and the end to which his strange imprisonment may lead.

Japan's foreign minister, Hiroshi Arima, told his cabinet he believed China's powerful overlord was slain at the hands of Chang Hsueh-Liang in Shensi province between sundown last Friday and sunup Sunday.

Pears grew Japan might have to take a hand in the crisis. The "Young Marshal," allied with communist armies, wants war with Japan, return of the Manchoukuo he once ruled as Manchuria and recognition of communism as "ransom" for his dictator.

Offsetting these to some extent was a report that W. H. Donald, advisor to the Chinese government, had reached Loyang from Sianfu with word for the national government that Chiang Kai Shek was safe.

Nanking, China, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Nanking national government resolved unanimously tonight to crush subversive and rebellious forces of the north whether Chiang Kai Shek, China's captured chief of state, is dead or alive.

The national executive Yuan met for the first formal session under the chairmanship of Mung who temporarily is replacing the generalissimo.

It decided without dissent to: First, continue Chiang Kai Shek's domestic and foreign policies.

Second, carry out the bandit suppression campaign in the north.

Third, "Never relax" operations against subversive elements in Suiyuan and other districts.

This seeming spirit of non compromise with the communist-supported Chang Hsueh-Liang, who seized the generalissimo at Sianfu last Friday, coincided with overwhelming pledges of loyalty and military assistance to the national government from nearly every province of the republic.

DANGER SPOTS IN CHINESE CRISIS

This map indicates the locale of the crisis that has brought China near the brink of civil war following the kidnaping of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, dictator of the Central government, by rebels under command of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang. Some observers believe the abduction was executed by Chang in a plot to force the Central government to declare war on Japan. (Associated Press Map)

Edward Thought Planning To Fly To Mrs. Simpson

Reunion Seen as Possibility Within Immediate Future

Enzesseld, Austria, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Officials of a Vienna airport late today measured the golf links of Chateau Enzesseld for possible use of a landing field, giving weight to a feeling there may be a reunion near Vienna for Edward, Duke of Windsor, and Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The former king, feeling miserable from head and caraches, spent a few moments on the links and returned to the castle. His host, Baron Edward Rothschild, said, however, "The Duke is not especially ill."

James Case was convicted of driving drunk and fined $50 and costs, had his license revoked for 12 months and was given a 90-day suspended road sentence.

Herbert Daniel was acquitted of a charge of driving drunk.

Sylvester Atkinson, charged with possessing whiskey for the purpose of sale was called and failed to answer and a capias was issued for him.

Ray Hardee was convicted of non support of his child and was given a six-months road sentence, suspended upon provision he pay the costs of court and pay $55 now and $22 each month for the upkeep of his daughter, the monthly payments to run until the child reaches 10 years old. The defendant appealed to Superior court and bond was set at $500, the same amount he was required to post to insure the payments.

Lewis Adams failed to answer when he was called to answer to a charge of maintaining a common nuisance and a capias was issued for him.

J. T. Hill was convicted of operating an automobile while drunk and was fined $50 and costs, had his license revoked for 12 months and given a suspended 90-day road sentence.

Early Mae James entered a plea of guilty to carrying concealed weapons and was given a four months sentence.

Roosevelt Jacobs was sentenced to the roads for six months on two charges of possessing whiskey for the purpose of sale. Judge James ordered the defendant examined by the county physician to determine if he was physically able to serve the term.

Frank Davis, indicted jointly with Roosevelt on both counts, was acquitted.

Johnnie Jones was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, but his case was transferred to Superior court. Jesse Andrews, charged with aiding and abetting, also will be tried in Superior court.

Joseph Vines, charged with reckless driving, also will be tried in the higher court.

John R. Rogers entered a plea of guilty to driving to the left of the center of the highway and was ordered to pay the costs of court and also to pay the damages sustained by Ben Vines in a wreck.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 15.—(AP)—An airliner carrying seven persons, including Gladys Witt, the stewardess whose recent romance was widely publicized, disappeared today in the snow-fringed fastnesses of Utah on a regular flight from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City.

At noon the transport was approximately eight hours overdue here.

Famous physicians and laymen from various parts of the country organized the National Association at a meeting in Atlantic City 32 years ago. The objects were "to study tuberculosis in all its forms and relations, to disseminate knowledge about the causes, treatment, and prevention of tuberculosis, and to encourage its prevention and scientific treatment." EVENTFUL TRIP IS COMPLETED BY PRESIDENT

Departs from Charleston at 9 O'Clock This Morning

SECRETARIES WELCOME PARTY

Body of Gus Gennerrich, Who Died During Trip to South America, Returned

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt landed from the cruiser Indianapolis here today, completing an eventful 28-day round trip cruise to the Buenos Aires peace conference.

The President, attired in a light gray suit and without top coat, stepped ashore at 3:30 a. m. followed by his son, James, and other members of his party. A cold rain was falling.

Met by two secretaries and Mrs. James Roosevelt, Jr., the President greeted them heartily. Then he motored a few blocks to the railway depot and left at 9 o'clock for a 12-hour ride to Washington.

Hundreds of Charleston citizens cheered him.

The Chief Executive had said goodbye shortly before to Captain Henry Hewitt of the Indianapolis and thanked him for an enjoyable voyage.

The two cruisers and destroyer Phelps fired 21 gun salutes after similar honors crashed over the harbor today from army guns at Fort Moultrie.

The body of Gus Gennerrich, presidential bodyguard who died during the trip, was taken from the ship and carried to the railway station.

Patrolmen Unable To Locate Owner Liquor-Laden Car

Man Thought to Be Owner of Car Found With 100 Gallons of Whiskey Disclaims Ownership

The State Highway patrol is in possession of an automobile for which they can find no one who will claim it, and there is a good reason—the vehicle, containing 100 gallons of bootleg whiskey, was abandoned about two miles from the city by its driver as Corporal L. Jackson and Patrolman C. R. Williams attempted to stop the driver to warn him he had only one head light.

The two officers "spotted" the car while on duty during the week-end and started to stop the driver to tell him about his lights. The driver, according to the patrolmen, stepped on the gas and fled. Before the officers could overtake the car the driver had jumped from it and fled. When the officers reached the car they found that it contained the whiskey.

They immediately started an investigation to determine the owner. They said they had reason to believe L. C. Boykin of Wilson was the owner and that they had sent him word they were holding the car. Boykin, they said, advised them over telephone this morning that he knew nothing of the car. The officers are continuing their investigation.

Boykin, it was stated, was convicted in County court here recently for reckless driving, but appealed from the sentence.

The officers said they saw the driver enough to tell that he was a white man. They also said that they did not believe that Boykin was the driver.

TRIO HELD FOR ROBBING STORE

Two in Jail and One Under Bond For Farmville Theft

Two men are being held in jail here and a third is out on bond of $10,000, charged with the robbery two weeks ago of the Turnage company, Inc., of Farmville. Officials of the company said that more than $400 was taken in the robbery.

Randolph Marshburn and Tom Potter are the two in jail, the former in default of $15,000 bond and the latter of $10,000. Paul Marshburn, brother of Randolph, is out under $10,000 bond. Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst said that Randolph Marshburn had admitted his part in the robbery, but did not implicate the others.

The three were arrested in the Greene county courthouse in Snow Hill, near which place the Marshburns are said to live, following an investigation by Sheriff Whitehurst and L. T. Lucas, chief of the Farmville police force. The three men were said to have been in the court room as spectators during a term of court.

Sheriff Whitehurst said an investigation showed that the trio had been together most of the time just immediately before the robbery and also afterwards. He said that when arrested Paul Marshburn had money in his pockets which was identified as some of that taken in the robbery.

Bond for each of the trio was set at a preliminary hearing in Farmville.

Randolph Marshburn was said to have recently completed a term in a California prison for a similar offense. He was quoted by Sheriff Whitehurst as saying that he got up with some men from that state and they conducted the robbery.

Wholesale Discharge by Commissioner-Elect Scott

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—A state civil service law which will protect state employees against the loss of their jobs whenever a new department head is elected and prevent the wholesale firing of efficient employees at the whim of politicians, may be enacted by this general assembly, according to talk being heard here.

The manner in which W. Kerr Scott, who will become Commissioner of Agriculture on January 7, has been notifying employers in the Department of Agriculture that they will not be needed after he takes office, is adding impetus to this talk. Still another factor that is directing interest towards a state civil service law is that all the employees in the new social security organizations to be set up in the state, will be under civil service.

State employees and a good many members of the general assembly are beginning to be of the opinion that all state employees should have the same protection and the same assurance of security as those in the social security agencies.

It is agreed, of course, that newly elected state officials and department heads should and must have the right to discharge those who are inefficient or who are unable to cooperate with the new regime. But it is also maintained that those who are efficient and do their work properly and well should be assured of a certain degree of security in their jobs, even though a new official is elected by the people to head their department. If after the new official takes charge, he finds some employees who are not efficient and who do not cooperate as he thinks they should, he can get rid of these, even though they are under civil service, it is pointed out.

The manner in which Agriculture Commissioner-elect Scott has been dismissing employees of the department, many without a chance to present their side and apparently without cause is causing something of a sensation in state government and political circles here. A good many observers believe that Scott may be unwittingly setting legislative wheels in motion which may place all the Department of Agriculture employees under civil service and take them out from under his control and deprive him of authority to hire and fire.

SENATE RUSHES SECURITY BILL TO ENACTMENT

Tomorrow at Noon Set for Adjournment Sine Die

LOWER HOUSE BIDES ITS TIME

Measure Passed To Allow University Until June 1st To Match PWA Grant

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The general assembly set noon tomorrow for adjournment sine die of its special session after the senate passed the "administrative" unemployment compensation bill on second reading this afternoon, 47 to 0.

The senate also passed unanimously a measure amending a 1935 law to allow the University of North Carolina until June 1 to issue bonds for its share of money needed to match PWA grants for an athletic building and women's dormitory at the Chapel Hill unit and for improvements at State College.

Senators adjourned to meet at 11 a. m. tomorrow to pass the unemployment bill on its final reading and set noon for the hour of sine die adjournment.

Senator J. W. Neill of Person county told the senators he saw no need to take up the PWA extension bill "and break faith with one another as he pointed out the legislators had agreed to consider nothing but social security legislation."

Senator Lee Gravelly of Nash said he understood the position of the senator from Person, but thought the bill should be passed as the university stood to lose around $400,000 if it was not.

Adjournment of the house until 11 o'clock tomorrow was taken in memory of Edgar Fisher of Charlotte, speaker of the 1935 house, who died today.

Much Talk Heard Of Civil Service For N. C. Workers

Plan May Be Adopted as Result of Wholesale Discharge by Commissioner-Elect Scott

8 DAYS to SHOP Behind the CHRISTMAS SEAL 1904 National Tuberculosis Association founded

MAY ATTEMPT END GAG RULE

Number of Solons Would Like Intro- duce Legislation

Reflector Bureau,
Six Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Dec. 15.—An effort may be made today or tonight to abrogate the resolution adopted by the special session of the general assembly to limit this session only to consideration of the unemployment insurance bill. It was learned from an authoritative source today. If such an effort should be made and it should succeed, the chances are that the assembly would remain in session all of this week and that it might run over into next week. There are indications that Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus knows of the possibility of this move and that he is strongly advising against it, although he has no power to limit the session to the consideration of any one matter, neither does he have any veto power.

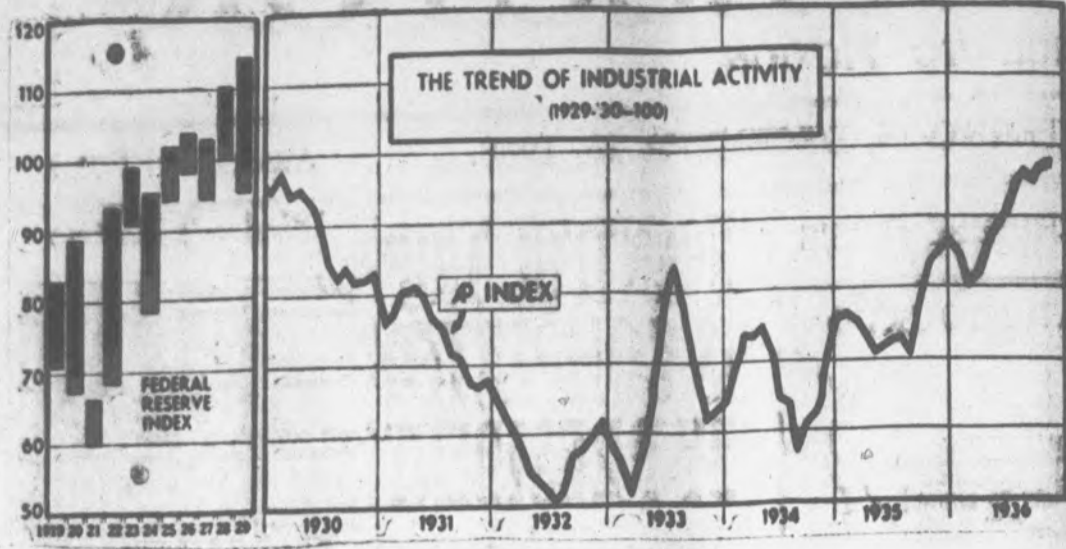

It is understood that the move to abolish the "gag" rule which both houses imposed upon themselves at the beginning of the special session by the adoption of the resolution limiting the session to consideration of nothing but the unemployment insurance bill, may come from two sources.

One such move may come from a group interested in State College and which wants to have a resolution introduced extending the expiration date of a bill enacted by the 1935 general assembly permitting the college to issue bonds to participate in any possible PWA projects which might be approved for the college. This act expires January 1, but this group wants the date extended because of the belief that one or more PWA projects for the college may soon be approved in Washington.

Another move to abrogate the "gag" rule which this session of the assembly imposed upon itself may be made by Senator L. L. Gravelly of Rocky Mount. It is understood that Senator Gravelly has a bill he very greatly wants to introduce in this session, affecting the western North Carolina Tubercular Sanatorium, now nearing completion in Buncombe county, to straighten out some tangles in the original law passed in 1935, and of which Senator Gravelly was the author. It is regarded as very doubtful whether the assembly will agree to whether either of these bills.

Business Activity Trend

(By The Associated Press)

Beating at 97.8 per cent of the 1929-30 average, the industrial pulse quickened in November to the best point since the same month seven years ago, according to the count taken by the Associated Press index of industrial activity. Only residential building slipped back among the indices. A automobile production, railroad freight loadings, cotton manufacturing, electric power output and steel mill operations all did better than the normal season expectancy.

DEPLORES LOSS OF EVERGREENS

Extension Specialist Says Destruction Is a Crime

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—Ruthless destruction of wild evergreens and shrubs during the Christmas season is a crime, declares Miss Pauline Gordon, State College extension specialist in home management.

Holly is fast disappearing from North Carolina woodlands, and other evergreens are shamefully mutilated by thoughtless people who go to the woods for Christmas decorations, she stated.

However, she added, there is no harm in gathering a few evergreens and berries when only moderate amounts are collected here and there, and care is exercised not to damage trees from which sprigs are taken.

Home-made wreaths and other decorations add a note of gaiety to the home during the holiday season, she pointed out, and should be used when the materials for making them are available.

Most North Carolina woodlands still have some holly, and in many places laurel, cedar, pine, southern smilax, running cedar, mistletoe, pine cones, spruce cones, and colorful berries can be found.

In making decorations, one needs wire for wreath foundations, wire cutters, pliers, twine, a sharp knife, and a pair of garden shears.

To make a frame for a wreath, entwine vines or long, flexible boughs around a circular wire. Then clip evergreens in not even-sized pieces and fasten them securely into the frame until the wreath is formed.

The wreaths may be trimmed with pine cones, red berries, mistletoe, cranberries, kumquats, grapes, other fruits, or bright colored objects, Miss Gordon stated.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

CHRONIC BRIGHT'S DISEASE. Chronic Bright's disease differs from the acute form in that it is a progressive destructive process of the kidneys which results, as Osler phrased it, in their letting out material that should be kept in, and keeping in material that should be passed out. The chronic condition may follow an acute attack. More frequently, however, chronic Bright's disease has an insidious onset and develops without any preceding acute attack.

The causes of chronic Bright's disease parallel closely those of the acute form. They are principally the infectious diseases, including syphilis and tuberculosis, the toxemia of pregnancy, and contact with organic and inorganic poisons employed industrially.

Chronic Bright's disease, or as it is technically designated, chronic nephritis, is frequently associated with other organic disease conditions, principal among which are diseases of the heart and diseases of the arteries. The latter relationship raises certain interesting medical problems, namely, whether the kidney disease is primarily due to the disease condition of the heart and blood vessels, or vice versa. Quite frequently, as in the case of syphilis and arteriosclerosis, the heart, the blood vessels and the kidneys share the evil effects of a body-wide morbid condition.

Chronic Bright's disease may occur at any age, but its incidence increases progressively with advancing age. The highest rates prevail among the oldest age groups.

In the past the subject of chronic nephritis was surrounded with a pall of pessimism. The condition still remains in which the prognosis is serious, but because of our better knowledge of its causes and a more complete understanding of the functions of the kidney, the outlook for the Bright's disease sufferer is brighter today than it was in the past.

rate rom chronic Bright's disease declined in the United States approximately 31 per cent. Much of this decline can be ascribed to the prevention of such infectious diseases as typhoid, tuberculosis and malaria. The markedly lower prevalence of the infectious diseases of childhood has also contributed to the decline in the incidence of both acute and chronic Bright's disease.

But chronic Bright's disease still remains a major cause of death. The further reduction of its incidence would be appreciably promoted if more individuals had themselves examined periodically, and made certain that the examination included a thorough analysis of the urine.

The animals of Colombia include the peccary, tapir, sloth, armadillo, nutria, porcupine and opossum.

THE NEW CARS ARE OUT

Last month the automobile shows were held throughout the country. The new cars are more beautiful in design and finish than ever before. They offer much in the way of improvements and gadgets. Their power plants deliver staggering performance—you can push the throttle down and run up to eighty or ninety m. p. h. without trouble—so far as the mechanics of your car are concerned.

However, the emphasis placed on speed has been productive of one of the gravest national "troubles" America has known—the growing accident toll. And the driver who thinks that seventy is safe because it seems as slow as thirty used to, should think again.

Silent engine performance won't help if we encounter a cement guard rail at high speed. Effortless steering won't make a head-on crash less destructive. Lack of vibration won't help the undertaker patch us together after the wrecking crew gets the body out with blow torches.

But these modern cars are magnificent examples of safety engineering—blue-print safety. Brakes stop a hurtling machine in amazingly short distance, without sway or shock. All steel bodies will take a lot of punishment without serious damage. Steering mechanisms are next to fool-proof. And the tire manufacturers have done their bit by reducing the blow-out hazard to a minimum.

Yet each year's safety improvements have been followed by more accidents, not fewer accidents—and by more serious accidents, not less severe accidents. Why? Because we, the motoring public, have overestimated the safety factor of the new cars, just as we have overestimated the safety factor of wider, better surfaced highways. The cars and the roads are improved—and so we take the chances that lead to disaster.

The new, super-performing cars are out. Maybe you are lucky enough to be able to buy one. Have a good time with it—but treat it with respect and remember that 36,000 people die and many times more are injured and maimed on our highways and streets every year. Don't add to that list.

Western irregulars, merely tolerated in more prosperous days, may at last have the voice they have sought in formulating Republican policies in the senate. The hard pressed Republican minority finally has come to them with more than a casual hint of new liberalism.

That is an important concession. The irregulars, or progressives, are offered a definite place in party councils, and it would seem that more than organization matters are involved.

The offer of a truce comes at a time when most of the "black sheep" of other years are out of the party. Some of them (Norris of Nebraska, for instance) have aligned themselves openly with Mr. Roosevelt. Others have virtually no party ties. They are free agents and one no political party dubs.

Is it that the Republican senators—there are 17 of them of varying degrees of regularity—have a program of their own for rehabilitation of the party, and are making a special bid for support in the west? That territory, once a mainstay, has been especially barren of Republican votes in the last two Presidential elections.

It is significant that the senators sought to pour oil on their own troubled waters before the December meeting of the Republican national committee in Chicago. They say they want the left liberals back in the party as equals, and they also agree to temper their former conservative stand in legislative matters.

Will the committeemen see eye to eye with them? Representative Snell, minority leader in the house, already has said that he does not. He is against a coalition of house Republicans, farmer-laborites and progressives such as is suggested for the senate. Nor does he think house Republicans would approve of such a move. The minority there, he said, would stand on its own feet.

The tentative senate proposal is that all senators whose political origin was Republican would be invited to attend the party caucus which Senator McNary as minority leader will call just before congress convenes. Thus Norris, an independent, now, La Follette, a progressive, and Shipstead and Lundgren, farmer-laborites, are included. Not one of these men supported Mr. Landon; they opposed him vigorously.

The bid for support emphasizes the plight of the minority senators. They truly are the "have nots." Without aid from the irregulars they will not even have adequate representation on the thirty-three standing committees. The Democratic minority is so large that a few recalcitrant senators will make no difference, and Vice President Garner is an old hand at holding party lines. Minority senators can find little encouragement in the Democratic lineup.

The minority situation is complicated further by last November's election. Of the 17 senators, 10 are R. publicans, several campaigned for Mr. Roosevelt. Johnson of California supported him also in 1932. Finner was for Landon. Borah deviated himself to his own campaign. Mr. Landon did not carry Idaho, but Mr. Finner was re-elected. Even McNary, the voice of his party in the senate, paid but slight attention to the national ticket.

It can be seen that the Republicanism of many of these men is nominal. They no longer can be certain of the minority that does not take into consideration their purposes.

Two new Republican senators, Lodge of Massachusetts and Bridges of New Hampshire, enter the caucus with their party regularly unquestioned. They arrive at a time that suits well for their personal affairs, and they will also immediately announce positions that under ordinary conditions would not be available to first timers. Both are young men.

It seems evident that regardless of the rest of the party the Republican senators will test a liberal path before trying anything else. Some months must pass before the practical results of their harmony proposal can be determined. In any event, an effort to solidify the Republican and progressive forces of the senate has been made.

A welcome home sign has been tacked up for the bliters. Is a new definition of the word Republican in the making? Only a few years ago not a voice was raised in defense of the progressives when George Moses derisively called them "sons of wild jackasses." That would not happen now.

COLLEGE NEWS

Cantata at College

The College Glee Club sang their annual Christmas Cantata in the Austin auditorium last night before an audience of 700. "The Adoration" by George B. Nevin was well selected and afforded the forty College women an excellent opportunity to show their choral ability.

The professional "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful" sung by the entire group. Other numbers on the program were the divisions of the cantata were "Behold! A Virgin Shall Conceive," a chorus with solo by Elizabeth Ferguson; "In Reverent Awe and Solemn State," chorus with solo by Rosalyn Massey; "Then Sweeping through the Arch of Night," chorus; "Softly the Starlight," chorus; "And Lo, the Angel of the Lord," chorus with solo by Rosalyn Massey; "Glory to Go in the Highest," chorus; "Hushed at Length the Gracious Song," chorus with solo by Helen Sawyer; "Amen, Lord We Bless Thee," chorus.

The solo parts were sung sweetly and the voices of the soloists were well adapted to the songs. In the choral work, the singing brought out beautifully the theme of adoration. Subdued voices suggested reverence and at times the well-blended voices rose to a note of exultation. In phrasing, tone, harmony, and spirit, the Glee Club showed the results of the excellent work that precedes an artistic performance.

Those who sang were:
 First Sopranos; Misses Martha Hamilton, Lena Mae Elberidge, Sara Rayne, Bonnie Mae Hall, Margaret Wyckoff, Mary Lois Sturdivant, Rosalyn Massey, Doris Dunne, Mirard Boyce, Ann Fisher, and Julia Hildreth.

Second Sopranos were: Misses Nettie Britt Sewell, Catherine Wallace, Madeline Eakes, Evelyn Jennings, India Hill, Elaine Call, Emma Auillard, Nancy Sperling, Barbara Green, Esther Leske and Mildred Howell.

First Altos were: Misses Helen Foley, Jessie Britt, Agnes Davenport, Eoline Sawyer, Annie Lee Wood, Nell Lee, Dorothy Lassiter, Edna Crawley, Edna Earle Perry and Blanche Weldon.

Second Altos were: Misses Helen Sawyer, Elizabeth Ferguson, Josephine Wade, Mayo Lee, Catherine Creek, Nell Perry, Alice Alligood and Louise Tutin.

Miss Gussie Kuykendall was director of the Glee Club and Miss Mary Evelyn Thompson, the accompanist.

A. A. U. W. Meeting

Christmas Story and music delighted the forty members, active and prospective of the A. A. U. W., gathered last night around the fire-side in the College "Y" Hut, which was lighted only by candles and the freight, and was decorated with a tree, greens, and modernistic Santa Claus cards. Small, lighted candles on each refreshment plate added a beautiful touch. The violin ensemble of the College played Christmas music, and accompanied Misses Marian and Ruth Wood, College seniors, who sang a beautiful duet. They also played for the informal singing of the carols which followed the program.

Mrs. P. W. Picklesimer read impressively a beautiful Christmas story, "The Lost Star," by David Burrell.

The hostesses, Misses Plumb, Snyder, Schnopp, and Spangler, and Mrs. Jack Spain, served the refreshments, hot punch and decorated cakes.

Mrs. Ficklen Arthur, the President, who has been ill, was present, for the first time this fall, but she will not resume her official duties until the next meeting.

Mrs. Winslow, acting president for the fall has been doing double duty. As vice-president, she is chairman of the membership committee and the great increase in membership is evidence of the good work that has been done.

The other committee reports show that interesting things are being planned. "Communism against Fascism" will be the topic of the study group sponsored by the International Relationship Committee, under the leadership of Miss Laura Rose. The first meeting will be on January 14, and on every Thursday thereafter for six weeks. Any persons who are interested may join the group.

Miss Turner read a letter from

Dr. Delano, the guest speaker of last month, in which she expressed appreciation for courtesies extended her on her visit here.

Mrs. E. L. Hillman, who was the first president of the Greenville chapter, remaining in office three years, was a guest. She has recently moved to New Bern, and as there is no chapter there, will perhaps be able to organize a group that will affiliate with the chapter here.

BLACK AND WHITE LOOK GOOD FOR SPRING

New York (AP)—Unless Mrs. Simpson's favorite green intervenes, black and white promise to be the most popular spring colors. Already a number of black and white prints have been introduced. New materials include dimities of the finest quality, printed linens and smooth wool fabrics.

The bronze statue of the sun god Helios in Rhodes—the Colossus—was thrown down by an earthquake about 224 B. C.

BOLERO JACKETS ARE POPULAR AGAIN

New York (AP)—Boletero jackets have staged a "come-back" in mid-season fashions, they vary all the way from the extremely short type, trimmed in Dalmatian embroidery, gold-braided loops and elvet, to somewhat longer, plain-colored jackets edged in printed silks. Designers predict great popularity for them in the spring.

IRVIN MORGAN CLUB SPEAKER

Others Called on For Talks at Regular Weekly Session

"The four friends of Rotary, though of a different friendship than man to man are vital to the organization and advancement of Rotary," declared Irving Morgan, guest speaker of the Rotary Club last night.

"The first of these friends is the Boy's Work Committee or the Club Service. To realize the importance of this work is to realize that some day one of those boys whom we have helped may make a violin better than ours, and with a sweeter tone."

"Too often, men who know their books do not know their means, and they are maladjustments in this world. They need the encouragement of the Vocational Service that Rotary gives them."

The International Service has a scope that extends beyond the seas and its friendship is world-wide. In my travels in Mexico City last summer, I had occasion to find the animosity which surrounds an American there, and that is the feeling of one nation have for people of another nation have the world over—and there the Inter-

Wings for Sally

by SAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Buying the Warrenton Courier, dark, handsome Philip Page campaigns for better living conditions. He backs the workmen of the Morris mill in their fight for better homes. Helping him is Sally Warren, attractive society editor. Sally's friend, wealthy Mary Morris, in whose home she is staying, pursues Philip despite her father's battle with him. Giles Benton, a detective employed by Mr. Morris, is revealed in his true colors when McDonald, a discharged mill worker, tells Philip how someone is trying to frame him.

Chapter 32 Love, Not Friendship

Now do you believe what I told you about your friend Giles Benton? Philip demanded of Sally as the door closed behind McDonald. "I don't know Mr. Benton," said Sally. "It's easy to convince me that he's not what he says he is. But Mr. Morris—I've known him all my life. He's not such a bad man. Surely he couldn't want to—make up lies about an innocent man like McDonald. He couldn't want to see him in prison something he didn't do."

"Morris knows nothing about McDonald," said Philip, "except what he hears from Giles Benton. He'll take Giles' word for all this because he's hired him to find the guilty man. It's very easy to believe anything of a man you distrust, and Morris distrusts anyone who wants to better himself at Morris' expense."

"Then if Mr. Morris knew the truth he might fire Benton and put a stop to all this—this deceit and trickery?"

"Mr. Morris wouldn't believe the truth," said Philip.

"And what about Giles? Why should he risk so much?"

"He'll get several thousand dollars out of this," said Philip, "if he finds a scapegoat for Morris. And he's found one."

"I'm having lunch with Giles tomorrow," said Sally. "I can't face him. He'll know that I've found out about him."

"I don't like your going out with the man," frowned Philip, "but you may be able to help McDonald if you keep quiet and get all you can out of Benton."

"What about the night we found McDonald in the Morris driveway?" asked Sally, suddenly remembering.

"I don't know. Of course there's a chance that McDonald isn't being square with us."

"That I don't believe," said Sally. "McDonald's honest."

"I believe that," said Philip. "That I mean to fight for him." He frowned, went to the window and stared out. Suddenly he turned to Sally. "There's one thing more. I've dragged you in on this affair because I had to, because I wanted to. I hadn't any right to do it. I've put you in an awkward position. The Morris family are your friends, you're staying in their house as a guest, and if this thing goes on, as I think it will, you may find yourself in a curious position. Now's your time to get out if you want to. Friends you know nothing of the whole affair. I won't refer to it again, or use you in any way."

"I can't do that," said Sally. "I'm in now, for good or bad. Besides, I don't want to get out. It's important to me, to help find out the truth."

"Is it, Sally?" Philip's eyes searched her eagerly.

"Yes," Sally was confused by Philip's look, which caught and held her own eyes.

The Most Important Thing

"SALLY," Philip began, and then stopped, as if at a loss to go on. "Sally—I must know how I feel. A moment ago, when McDonald knocked at the door, I was about to tell you what I can't seem to find words for now."

Sally knew now what he was trying to say. She clasped her hands tight together. She did not want him to say it. She did not want to lose this best friend. But he went on.

"I didn't know myself until I went away, how much you have come to mean to me. I could hardly wait to get back to see you every day, to have you beside me, in the same office with me, seems the most important thing in the world."

"You're my best friend, Philip," said Sally steadily. "I couldn't do without you, either."

"But—you don't care for me—the way I care for you," said Philip. "That's what you're trying to tell me. I knew it already. I meant to wait longer, to give you time. I'm a stupid fool to blurt it out. But I couldn't seem to hold back."

"You're deceiving yourself," said Sally. "What you really feel for me is what I feel for you—friendship."

"No," said Philip in a low voice. "I know—I love you."

"But you, yourself, told me that love is less important than work and friendship." She did not mean to be cruel. It was true. In her own worst moments of suffering over Terry's loss, he had helped her with his gospel of work and friendship. But Philip could not take his own prescription.

"I deserve that, Sally," he said with a wry smile. "Perhaps it's true. I'm

Santa and the Viking

BY SIGRID ARNE

She tip-toed slowly to her ice-couch.

THE STORY SO FAR: The Fairy Queen has enticed the cruel Ice Queen from her palace so that Nils, a Viking, can enter it and rescue Gudrun, the daughter. He has been seeking for 300 years.

The three hunted the whole palace for fire-wood to melt the ice around the little girl. But naturally the Ice Queen had no such thing around her palace. She fears fire as we fear witches.

There wasn't even a stout stick with which Nils could have chipped the ice, hoping their warm breaths would melt it. But their breath only turned to small smoky clouds.

"Oh, we must do something, we're so near," groaned Nils. "Mister Runs For Advice."

"Wait here," said Mister, the pup. "I'll run back to Santa for advice." He turned on his fat paws so fast that his hind legs slipped on the ice. He ran and ran for hours and hours until his paws were leaking sawdust. Finally he fell limply outside the door of Toyland, with just enough strength left to "Woof!" in a whisper.

Santa was fitting together a new toy train, but he heard the faint bark and ran to the door delighted. He had been worrying about Nils and the two toys.

"Hurrah!" he shouted, picking up little Mister in his arms, and carrying him to the fire. "Where's Nils?"

Mister woofed out the whole story, and Santa immediately set to work on a plan about which I will tell you tomorrow.

As if to confirm this thought, Mary rose and stretched her arms above her head and laughed.

"What a cry-baby I am tonight," she said. "It's trying to go to bed early that gets me. I'm not used to it." She yawned and went toward her own room. "Don't feel too sorry for me, Sally. I mean to have Philip. He hasn't a chance if I really set my mind to getting him." She paused at the door. "You don't, by any chance, want Philip for yourself?"

"I'm not in love with Philip," said Sally slowly. She heard the door of Mary's room close behind her. She felt, somehow, that Mary's whole purpose in visiting her had been to ask that question, and she was glad to be able to answer it honestly.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 15—(AP)—Many stocks climbed fractions to a point or more in today's stock market but a number of soft spots through the day tended to keep buying within bounds. With little change in the generally satisfactory industrial scene broke attributed special demand largely to idle funds in the pockets of the public resulting from the recent record blow of dividends trading got off to a fast start with the "lucker" tape behind frequently on the first hour. Offerings became more prominent, later and near the fourth hour the pace was comparatively slow.

Talks To Parents - By Brooks Peters Church

First Flights To his parents Sam seemed a rather shy and awkward boy at the hobbledoboy stage. The first time his mother had a glimpse of him in his relationship to the world outside is home, she was surprised—even a little shocked.

To her it seemed that Sam lacked respect for his elders. He spoke to older men and women as though he and they were of one age. His manners amazed her. They were easy, even a trifle too easy, and here and there perhaps overdone and affected. He was smoking and unsmokingly smoking too much. She could scarcely tell him all this in public but as soon as she got the boy home she gave him a detailed catalog of his faults, so spoiling an evening which Sam had found delightful. It is hard for mothers to see their little boys as grown men. Often boy is actually held back and kept awkward and shy by his mother's attitude. If this same mother could see her son among other boys and in other nooses, she would scarcely recognize him as her own. Sam's mother would have been wiser and far kinder to comment on his behavior. Away from his parents Sam lost form. He would try on manners, was proud of speaking as a man among men and blushed accordingly. The danger men to whom he spoke with such assurance far from being affronted to his attitude, were probably flattered by it, or even remembering some other boy's blushed and sympathetic. Of course the boy smoked more than was good for him. Underneath all this weakness was still the little boy frightened at his own temerity and bolstering up his nerve and deceiving his over-conspicuous hands with cigarettes. Sam has emerged from his cocoon. His mother didn't know it.
