SEEK LOCATE MINE VICTIMS

Rescue Workers In Search for Bodies of Five Men

Eagle Pass, Texas, Dec. 23.—(AP)—An explosion - torn mine which yielded at least 34 bodies was searched today by digging rescue crews 30 miles to the South, in Mexico for five miners believed entombed.

Thirty-five injured miners were treated, several for severe burns which may prove fatal.

This border town's information Coahuila, failed to confirm a report from Torreon, Mexico, that the recovered bodies totaled 47.

About 700 miners were scattered throughout the underground shaft of the Rosita coal mine company's number six operations when the blast occurred yesterday about a mile from the entrance and 400 feet below the surface.

Reports received here said all of the victims were Mexicans.

Backers Of Gomez Obtain Passports; May Leave Nation

All Pro-President Congressmen Offer to Resign When Leader Ousted by Impeachment

Havana, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Congressional champions of Miguel Gomez obtained passports today in an emergency ploy to Cuba's army-imposed government of the seven months period.

Representative Radio Cremata, disclosing the legislators' action while Gomez was pleading for a chance to defend himself against ouster before the Senate Court of Justice, said all pro-Gomez congressmen had offered to resign when the president was ushered out of office.

Gomez, however, urged the congressmen to keep their seats and representative Radio Cremata said it was likely the president's supporters in the House of Representatives—numbering 45 on the impeachment vote—would not have to use the passports.

The secretary of the presidency announced he was ready and anxious to turn over his papers to his successor and the secretary of public works left his desk with his personal effects, planning not to return.

BEARS GOBBLE FOOD BUT LEAVES DISHES INTACT

Estes Park, Colo. (AP)—Bears with a sweet tooth handled Mrs. Oakie Straub's chinaware with care. She left the door of her home open while she went to visit a neighbor and a bear or two entered. When she returned they had disappeared after eating cake, ice cream, peaches and other delicacies she had prepared for "company dinner." They even made a trip to the basement store room but not a dish was broken.

Let-Up Allowed At Request of Madam Chiang Kai-shek

NANKING TROOPS CLAIM VICTORY

High Government Officials Named to Take Over Duties of Chiang, Indicating Preparations For Long Delay Before Generalissimo's Release

Nanking, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A three day armistice halted China's civil war today at the urgent request of Madam Chiang Kai-shek and her brother, Dr. T. V. Soong, after their flight to Sianfu to rescue the national government's captive leader.

Shortly after Chiang's wife and her brother arrived at Chang Hsueh Liang's rebel stronghold, Dr. Soong telegraphed Nanking asking for a cessation of hostilities.

After a hasty conference with other nationalist leaders, Dr. H. H. Kung, acting civil head of the government, granted an armistice until December 25.

The proposal to end hostilities came on the heels of a reported strategic victory for the Nanking troops of the punitive expedition pressing to rescue Chiang.

Aid for the rebellion was seen in reports Marshal Chang had effected an alliance with communist leaders further to the Northwest and was actively cooperating with them.

The central executive committee of Chiang's nationalist party, indicating preparations for a long delay before the Generalissimo's return, named high government officials to take over two of Chiang's offices.

Plan To Seek Law Governing Trade In North Carolina

Fair Trade Statute Similar to California and Illinois Acts May Be Asked For This State

Statesville, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A fair trade law similar to California and Illinois statutes recently upheld by the Supreme court may be sought for this state in the 1937 legislature, Secretary Paul Leonard of the North Carolina fair trade association said here today.

Leonard said the subject would be considered by the association directors and state advisory committee at a meeting in Raleigh just before the general assembly meets.

His statement was issued just after he had conferred with David Owens, director and former president of the national retail dry goods association in Charlotte yesterday.

ONE DAY to SHOP Behind the CHRISTMAS SEAL 1907 Pirquet modified tuberculin test

Clemens Pirquet modified the tuberculin test, previously devised by Koch, so that it could be applied safely on large numbers of persons. The test shows whether or not infection with tuberculosis germs has occurred. One may have this first infection, however, without having the disease and to find this out the X-ray is used. The test is especially valuable in detecting tuberculosis in its early forms when a cure is more easily effected. Christmas Seal funds are used to test thousands of children annually.

BATISTA FIGHTING TO OUST CUBAN PRESIDENT

Led by the powerful Col. Fulgencio Batista (upper right), former army sergeant who rose to political heights, a far-reaching movement is under way in Cuba to impeach President Miguel Mariano Gomez (lower right) because he opposed the army-sponsored sugar tax bill as a means of raising funds for public schools. Some of the 60,000 persons, who staged a gigantic demonstration for the sugar tax bill, are shown parading through the streets of Havana. (Associated Press Photos)

NEGRO HELD ON FOUR CHARGES

William Tucker Is Bound Over To Superior Court

William Tucker, 22-year-old negro, was bound over to Superior Court under bond of $500 each on four charges of breaking and entering local stores following a preliminary hearing in City court this morning.

The defendant admitted his guilt. Owners of stores he is charged with, and admits, entering and robbing, were called as witnesses.

The four warrants charged him with entering Nichols' market, Hill Home drug store, Pleasants' drug store and Baker-Davis hardware store.

The negro was caught Monday night in Nicholls' market by local police officers who had been attempting to identify and apprehend the person responsible for a number of robberies here for the past six weeks.

Hill Home, former employer of the negro, said he valued the property and money stolen from his store at $80 or $85.

Lawrence Corey, negro, was bound over to County court under bond of $200 on a larceny count. He is charged with taking a hat Monday afternoon from a local store while clerks were busy and walking out without paying for it.

Randolph Ennett, negro, was taxed with the costs on a charge of destruction of personal property.

Abel Tucker, white man, was ordered to pay the costs upon conviction of drunkenness.

Declare Fighting To Be Continued On Christmas Day

Militiamen at Front in Spanish Conflict Wistfully Express Desire to Cease Battle

Madrid, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The crash of enemy shells in the trenches northwest of the Spanish capital today foreshadowed a grim Christmas tide for the city's socialist defenders.

Militiamen at the front wistfully expressed the hope some of them might be allowed to return to Madrid for the day, but the ever present fear of insurgent attack on the strategic communications with El Escorial held them to their posts.

Edward Is Praised By Churchman

London, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The Bishop of Manchester paid warm tribute today to former King Edward, VIII, in distinct contrast to the criticism of other churchmen.

"Both as Prince of Wales and King, he used his many gifts in the service of the empire and he deserves a great deal," the Bishop said in a letter to his diocese.

DEATH CLAIMS SENATOR FESS

Succumbs Unexpectedly in Washington Hotel Room

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Former Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio died unexpectedly in a hotel here today of a heart attack.

He was 75. Hotel officials said Fess arrived only this morning from Ohio and went directly to his room. The end came suddenly a few minutes after 10 o'clock.

A son, Charles Fess, who lives in the capital was summoned immediately.

Fess, who served 10 years in the House and two terms in the Senate, was defeated for reelection in 1934.

He served as chairman of the Republican national committee and in 1923 delivered the keynote address at the convention which nominated Herbert Hoover.

Doctor Hires 'One-Half' Employee

Tonkawa, Okla. (AP)—This social security proposition has its stumblers for Harry J. Barclay, postmaster.

A physician here, whose office girl also works for another doctor, debated sometime before filling out the security blanks sent to employers. When the doctor turned in the blank, Barclay found written under the space captioned "how many persons employed" the words "one-half." Postmaster Barclay decided to leave the solution to Washington.

TWO BURGLARS ALLOWED LIFE

Governor Commutes Death Sentences To Life in Prison

Raleigh, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus commuted to life imprisonment today the death sentences imposed in Gaston county on Frank and Grier Armstrong, negroes, convicted of first degree burglary.

The men were charged with entering the home of Rev. W. Earl Armstrong at Gastonia in an attempt to kidnap and criminally assault his 11-year-old daughter.

At the time of the conviction the trial jury recommended mercy, but under state law the verdict of first degree burglary carries with it a mandatory death sentence.

The presiding judge, T. B. Finley was quoted in the commutation statement as saying there was no serious injury done. He recommended a change in the sentence to life or 30 years in prison.

Work on New Lead In Effort to Locate Missing Air Liner

Los Angeles Turkey Buyer Reports Seeing Plane About to Crash in Southwestern Utah

Los Angeles, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Western Air Express officials said today a report its local transport was seen making a forced landing about 12 miles northwest of St. George, Utah, December 15 proved unfounded.

M. D. Talley, Los Angeles turkey buyer really saw an airplane in that vicinity but it was one of the searching planes.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A new lead, considered one of the most promising yet discovered, sent searchers for a wrecked air liner and its seven occupants into a new region, the extreme southwestern tip of Utah, for the first time today.

Operation Changes Sex State Institution Inmate

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Dec. 23.—A thirteen year old girl, formerly an inmate of Samarcand, the state's industrial school for girls, has been changed into a boy as a result of an operation, or rather a series of operations, performed in the Duke University hospital, with the result that Katherine has now become Frank.

The boy who is now Frank but who was formerly the girl Katherine, had been sent to the state industrial school from Forsyth county as an underprivileged child with improper environment and not because of any misconduct involving moral turpitude. It was learned. This boy who for 13 years had been raised as a girl and regarded as one, is now back at home and is expected to develop into a healthy and normal boy. This boy who was believed to have been a girl, really was a boy all the time, the surgeons who performed the operations maintain, according to the welfare authorities here familiar with the case. But due (Continued on page 13)

DEMAND MADE FOR INCREASED RELIEF FUNDS

Hopkins Threatens to Resign Unless Request is Granted

HIGH OFFICIALS STAND DIVIDED

Question Discussed By President and Relief Administrator in Washington

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A reported ultimatum from Harry Hopkins he will resign as Works Progress Administrator unless he gets $750,000,000 to carry the relief program next June threatened today to split the administration forces in the new congress.

One group was described as lining up behind Hopkins while another is counselling out in relief spending to pave the way for a "balanced budget."

At his press conference late yesterday the President said he had no idea whether he would raise his own $500,000,000 figure in a recommendation to congress early in January.

Washington, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Relief needs for the remainder of the current fiscal year ending next June 30 were discussed today by President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins.

The Works Progress administrator declined to say how much money he believed necessary for his program, but commented: "We have never had sufficient funds for unemployment relief."

Some quarters representing him as wanting $750,000,000—a sum half again as much as the $500,000,000 President Roosevelt said he would ask Congress to provide in a deficiency appropriation bill in January.

Floggers Active In Columbus County; Woman Is Victim

Brunswick County Sheriff Intended of New Activities by Band of Hooded and Robbed Men

Shalotte, N. C. Dec. 23.—(AP)—Sheriff J. A. Russ said here today he has been informed by a reliable source near the Waccamaw river valley section an unidentified woman of Columbus county has received two floggings recently at the hands of a hooded and robed band of men.

As the woman is a resident of Columbus county and the floggings allegedly occurred in that county, it is not contemplated that the sheriff will investigate except to determine if the floggings are the work of the same mob of "Christians" who lashed William Inman and Jesse Cox, Freeland farmers, Thanksgiving night.

However, Sheriff Herman Stanley, of Columbus county, told of the report today, said "I will investigate the case to see if I can find out anything about it. I don't know whether I can take any action or not, as the woman has made no complaint, but if I can, I will."

Meanwhile Sheriff Russ' investigation into the flogging of the two Freeland farmers, who said they were questioned about their church attendance before their lashings, necessitated his presence at Southport.

"A resident of the section near Freeland" has told me that of his own knowledge there is a woman who lives just across the county line who has received two whippings recently," the sheriff said.

Tired Lips Closed For Sufferer Of Unusual Malady

Man Who Had Been Unable to Cease Talking, Singing or Mumbling For 18 Days Succumbs

Ocala, Fla., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Death stilling the tired lips of Howard Stillman in a hospital here today.

The 44-year-old farmer died of a strange malady which caused him to talk, sing or mumble without stopping for 18 days.

His last words he died in a 418th hour of his uncontrollable flow of speech, were mumblings about the bible.

His physician said it was the second case of its kind in medical history so far as he knew. He explained there was a disorder in the portion of the brain controlling speech. The fresh-water dolphin of the Ganges, called susu, is blind.

Little Boy Ill
Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whichard will be sorry to learn that their son, Master Jimmie Whichard, is ill on Jarvis street.

Omitted From List
In the advertisement yesterday giving the names of the business houses that would observe holiday both Friday and Saturday, the names of Taft Furniture Store and Gloria Shoppe, and those of the barbershops in the city, were omitted through error. These business houses were among the first to agree to the extended holiday.

Husband's Night
The members of the End of the Century Club and their husbands and a number of other guests were entertained at a delightful dinner party on Tuesday evening, December 15th in the parish house of the Episcopal church.

Mrs. A. D. Frank, Mrs. Hortense F. Moye and Mrs. F. C. Harding, charming hostesses for the occasion, greeted the guests upon their arrival.

In the parlor a log fire burned and the room was attractively decorated with Christmas greens and glowing Christmas tapers.

When all the guests had assembled they were invited into the dining room where a beautifully appointed banquet table was laid. The table was festive with its holly, poinsettias and red Christmas cards. A delicious turkey dinner was served.

After dinner words of welcome were expressed by our president, Mrs. A. D. Frank, and a beautiful and impressive Christmas program was given in the parlor. Mrs. Worth Wicker, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Charles White, rendered several Christmas songs. Carols and anthems, were then sung by the Misses Sawyer, Spivey, Clark and Graves.

Mrs. E. W. Picklesimer read "The Three Magi," a lovely story of Christmas. At this time Mrs. J. L. Fleming, chairman of the committee in charge of selecting the portrait, presented to the club members and guests a beautiful oil painting of Mrs. W. A. Bowen, who gave so long and so generously her services as librarian when the library was in its infancy. The portrait will hang in the Sheppard Memorial Library above the Bowen book shelf.

Mrs. James S. Ficklen, chairman of the board of trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library, graciously accepted this lovely gift from the club.

When time came to say good-byes we left thanking our hostesses for one of the most enjoyable meetings of the year.—Reported.

Scout Meeting
Boy Scout troop 33 will meet tonight at the Christian church. All members are urged to attend.

Lobbyists Stand To Gain In Fight Regarding Relief

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

With the approach of a new year and a new congress the problem of what to do about federal work relief overshadows all others. It is likely to prove the most troublesome, too, for the depression years rooted the philosophy of aid for the needy deep in our economic system.

A study of the welter of rumors and statements dealing with the situation indicate President Roosevelt is trying to reconcile two campaign pledges which at first glance might seem to be irreconcilable. Mr. Roosevelt said during the fall campaigning that the needy would be cared for. He also said every effort would be made to balance the budget. These questions arise from that situation.

How much of his tremendous popular majority was rolled up because of his liberal relief policies? No one can say. Nor can anyone say with any degree of certainty what effect his pledges to balance the budget had in the total. Mr. Roosevelt, however, has not been blind to the improvement in business.

Perhaps he is trying to bring relief rolls into proper alignment with absorption of workers by private employers. That would be a good guess.

Harry Hopkins who could comment with some authority on what is to be done, shied away from at least one opportunity. He did not hold his customary press conference the Thursday after the President returned from South America. No reason was given. Is he waiting for Mr. Roosevelt himself to speak?

Hopkins has not attempted to say what will be done. Instead he has stressed the fact that WPA will not be completely demobilized. No one expected that it would. That leaves the details up to the White House.

Any way you look at it, congress is on the spot. The lawmakers will barely have time to settle comfortably in their seats before relief will come up to harass them. A delicate choice is in prospect.

Should they risk the ire of Mr. Roosevelt by opposing him, or should they bow to the many pressure groups which will squeeze them from the other side? Once before in a similar situation they bowed not to the will of the President, but to what the home folk said. That was when reduction of the civilian conservation corps was suggested. In the end Mr. Roosevelt found compromise necessary.

One must remember in weighing that congressional action that money spent on CCC camps aided many communities to keep afloat during the bad years. Relief money, too, has flowed into every section, even more generously than funds for CCC.

Last session congress appropriated $1,425,000,000 for work relief. That was to last until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1937. Two unexpected factors upset this estimate—the severe drought in the west and inability of private industry to absorb workers on the scale expected.

Now, with five months to go, the fund is down virtually to the last dollar. That makes it necessary for Mr. Roosevelt to act promptly. He cannot mark time for anticipated business improvement.

WPA workers sensed the impending crisis in their affairs some time ago, warned possibly by the December order to trim 425,000 persons from the work relief rolls. One group appeared in Washington and informed the Works Progress administration that the "whole policy of WPA represents, in our opinion, a betrayal of the promises made to the American people before November 3rd."

The workers are not alone in their protest. Siding with them are many mayors and civic organizations. It is easier to start than to stop draining money from the federal treasury.

Already Hopkins is at odds with Mayor LaGuardia of New York

City, who opposed the December reduction in the number of workers there. He has had to contend with "sit down" strikes, and the end is not yet in sight.

TOWN OF GREENVILLE
By J. O. DUVAL, Tax Collector

THE STORY SO FAR: Santa had made a doll for the Ice Queen in order to placate her for taking away Gudrun, the daughter of Nils, the Viking. The doll looks like Gudrun, but it won't stand up.

CHAPTER XV
The Fairy Queen Returns.
You remember, the last we heard of the Fairy Queen she was leading the Ice Queen a merry chase around the North pole by making roses pop up out of the snow.

After that trip she was so tired and cold that she slipped "way down South" until she found a lovely rose bush. She crawled between the petals of a sweet-smelling flower to sleep.

She woke when a drop of dew rolled down a petal and splashed right into her face. "M-m-m," she said. "That's sweet. More." So the rose shook itself and more drops of dew fell into a curled petal so the fairy queen could dip it up with her hands, just as we do when we drink from a brook.

Turn About
Then she stretched herself, smoothed her wings and sailed off for the North again.

"Santa, must need me by now," she thought. She flew so fast it was no time before she circled over the top shop roof and slipped in thru an open door. There sat Santa so puzzled, and there on the floor lay the big, new doll. There moped Nils by the fire, and there slept his little daughter, Gudrun.

"Why, everything's at sixes and sevens," said the fairy queen. Then her eye lit on the pretty, little boats that Nils had been making. Their sails stood up so straight and white, and the fairies had nailed the last tiny rope of their rigging in place.

"Gracious, I'd like a fleet like that for my people," said the fairy queen. Nils smiled happily at her pleasure, and said, "Gladly little lady."

"But what about me?" asked Santa. "I must have some toys for Christmas."

"Oh, I can make another fleet tonight, if you'll lend me some of your fairy helpers," said Nils. Santa said, of course he would.

Gudrun Wakes Up.
"Now watch your doll," whispered the fairy queen to Santa. She flew to where the new doll lay on the floor and blew gently on her eye-lids. The doll stretched an arm. Then it half sat up. Then it jumped to its feet, and did a little dance.

"Now, Nils, I'll help you," said the fairy queen, and she flew to Gudrun's bed and blew on the sleeping child's eye-lids. She stretched, sat up, and then opened her blue eyes the first thing she saw was her father and she flung herself into his arms.

But outside, the Ice Queen could be heard romping down the sky in another storm. "Hurry, hurry, what shall we do?" cried Santa.

Tomorrow: The Ice Queen Gets Her Doll.

COUNTY ROADS ARE DAMAGED

Excessive Rains Of Past Week Leave Results

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Dec. 22.—The excessive rains of the last two weeks have done a great deal of damage to the highways of the state, especially to the county roads that are not surfaced, Chas. M. Waynick, chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission said today.

But reports from division and district engineers indicate that the damage to the county roads which were repaired and worked over last summer and fall in the commission's extensive improvement program of the county roads in which it expended more than $3,000,000.

The kind of rains we have had for the past two weeks, especially in the eastern part of the state, are the worst in the world for any kind of roads, especially dirt roads," Waynick said. "For these were slow, steady rains that soaked down deep into the subsoil. Of course, all of the county roads have been muddy and there have been many hundreds of miles of county roads which we have not yet been able to improve which were very muddy and slippery."

"However, there has been one encouraging feature, according to our engineers out in the field. That is that the hundreds of miles which we improved this summer by adding gravel, crushed rock and topsoil and which we improved by providing larger ditches and better drainage, are holding up well and giving good service in spite of the rains. The engineers report that with a few days of sunshine, most of these roads will dry out enough to scrape down, after which they will be as good as ever."

The county road improvement program is going to be continued right on through the winter just as much as the weather will permit, Waynick said, with particular attention to be given to the roads used by school buses.

"We are determined to get these roads used by school buses in as good condition as possible as soon as possible and to keep them that way," Waynick said. "In fact, our entire county road improvement program is being built around the school bus routes."

TEN HENS TAKE PRIZE —LAY 2,900 EGGS

New Brunswick, N. J. (AP)—The ten Rhode Island red owned by E. B. Farmer of Franklin, Mass., laid the highest score of any egg-laying contest in the country during 1935-1936 in winning the last Pascataway county competition.

Prof. C. S. Platt, poultry contests supervisor for the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, Rutgers university, announced that the flock, in laying 2,900 eggs and scoring 3,046 points, outperformed 886 flocks entered in 15 official contests throughout the nation. Its mark shattered all previous records of New Jersey egg-laying trials.

Col. A. M. Hitch, Missouri educator who believes it is the business of universities to "educate students, not flunk them," says there are 50,000,000 potential college students in the United States.

THE REAL CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

It is gratifying to know that many needy families of this county will have the necessities of life along with a few extras for enjoyment of the Christmas season as a result of the generosity of the people of this community. The citizens of Pitt County as a whole have shown the real Christmas spirit in their response to the call for aid for the needy at this time.

Not only has everyone of the 45 needy cases that have been published in this paper been taken but there are a great many more cases in each community that are being cared for by individuals and organized groups in these communities.

This willingness to extend a helping hand to bring cheer and happiness to the less fortunate families of our community is certainly carrying the real Christmas spirit.

important productive years of life. Girls and young women between the ages of 15 and 25 have a mortality rate which is one and a half times that of boys and young men of the same ages.

From all of this it can be seen that the war against tuberculosis must be continued with unabated vigor.

Elementary Facts About the Common Cold

The common cold is a disease which occurs in practically all seasons of the year, but as a rule two major outbreaks take place each year, one of which reaches a peak in late October, and the other in mid-January. Of the two the mid-January epidemic is the more dangerous, for it is frequently followed by serious complications, among which pneumonia is outstanding. It is now definitely believed that the common cold is caused by a virus. By itself the common cold is a mild affection which runs its course in from three to five days, and which is not generally accompanied by fever of any degree, or by any serious malaise.

However, the common cold lowers body resistance to other disease agents, and in an individual who is chronically or otherwise ill it may fan into a flame the heretofore smoldering embers of disease. Thus the common cold may cause severe relapses of such chronic illnesses as rheumatoid heart disease, asthma and diabetes.

In treating a cold, therefore, we not only deal with the immediate condition, but also treat with an eye to its possible complications. For the cold itself there is no fail accompi. We can only hope to palliate its symptoms, to help clear the stuffed up respiratory tract, to ease the cough, to liquefy the secretions, to help elimination, to mitigate fever and to overcome whatever malaise may be present.

Many of these objectives may be attained by what are called simple home remedies. Rest in bed is of major importance. A nutritious semi-liquid diet and a large fluid intake are usually beneficial. Warm baths and humidifying the air of the room in which the patient stays, help to ease pain and cough, and facilitate the elimination of lung secretions.

Medicaments may be required by certain cases, but these should be prescribed by the physician who has charge of the case. It is unwise and unsafe to use unknown remedies which may contain depressing sedatives. They may mask symptoms which warn of serious complications.

These home remedies usually will prove beneficial in a simple and uncomplicated cold, but if the cold is not simple and the presence of complications is suggested by certain symptoms such as a high fever, pain in the chest, rapid pulse and a feeling of exhaustion, then it is folly to delay calling in expert medical help.

GREETINGS

In True Appreciation of The Patronage That You Have Extended to Us in the Past Year, Let us Express our Wishes to you for a

Merry Christmas

How's Your Health? Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine. By Dr. Iago Goldston.

50th Anniversary the Christmas Seal. To Francis Bacon is credited the saying, "Knowledge is power." But knowledge is power only as it becomes widespread, and that knowledge which is confined to a few closeted men or within books that are not read is impotent. The National Tuberculosis association, which was organized some 27 years ago, is an organization which may be said to have been founded on the belief, and dedicated to the conviction that knowledge is power indeed, and that it increases as it is spread. For this organization has waged a relentless war on tuberculosis by spreading knowledge of the disease, its early symptoms, its prevention and its cure. To this organization and its efforts is to be credited much of the progress which we have made in the war on the "great white plague." The National Tuberculosis association and its numerous subsidiary state and local organizations were the first of the modern voluntary health organizations. As unique as its purpose has been the means it has employed for gathering its resources. The great war against tuberculosis has been financed by the sale of Christmas seals, purchased by millions of men, women and children. Our great national anti-tuberculosis organization is witness of the intelligence of its founders, the zeal of its workers, and, most of all, the sound philanthropy of the American people. Here are some interesting facts on what has been accomplished and what remains to be done in tuberculosis. In the last 30 years 3,500,000 men, women and children have died of tuberculosis in the United States. An additional 2,500,000 would have died during that time if the mortality rate of 30 years ago had continued to prevail. Thirty years ago tuberculosis was the leading cause of death. Today it ranks seventh in order. But we must not in the light of the advances made, lose sight of the heavy toll which tuberculosis continues to exact. Tuberculosis is still the first cause of death during the age period from 15 to 45. Two-thirds of all the deaths from tuberculosis occur before the age of 45. Considerably more than half of all the deaths from tuberculosis occur during the

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Philip Page, young publisher of the Warrenton Courier, has told Sally Warren, the society editor, he loves her, but now he seems curt and imperious toward her. Wealthy Mary Morris pursues Philip, despite his campaign against her property-owning father to improve living conditions. Giles Benton, a detective engaged by Morris, accuses McDonald, a discharged millworker of firing the theater. He is tried for arson. Philip and Sally, believing McDonald innocent, fight to save him. Sally decides to plead with old Mr. Morris.

Chapter 39

'Blackmail! That's Serious'

DENISON was too well trained to look surprised, but Sally knew that he was wondering what she was about. She was almost as shocked as Denison at her own boldness. She crossed the hall and went down a corridor to the left. The lights were subdued, but far down the hall she could see a light beneath a door. That would be the study. She paused to listen by the door and finally nudged herself to knock.

"Come in," said a deep, gruff voice. Sally felt almost hysterical.

She opened the door and stepped in. Mr. Morris was seated at his desk, a cigar in his hand and a sheaf of bound reports in front of him. He rose immediately and placed a chair for Sally near his own.

"This is indeed a surprise," he said, staring at her keenly. "I'm not often favored by a visit from my daughter's friends. I thought you had left us for good."

"I have gone back home to stay," said Sally, seating herself on the edge of the chair. "I came to see you on business."

"I see," Mr. Morris rustled the papers before him.

"It's about a man who used to work for you," Sally plunged in boldly. "A man named McDonald."

"And what has a girl like you to do with McDonald?" Mr. Morris frowned.

"I've been interested in the family for a long time," said Sally. "He has a wife and several children. They're very hard working people and we've been trying to help them."

"But what has this to do with me?" demanded Mr. Morris impatiently. "I'm afraid I can't subscribe to charity for the McDonalds just now."

"It's not charity they need—it's justice," said Sally. "Mr. McDonald is innocent of the crime he's accused of. I've been interested in the case for a long time and I—we are certain he's not to blame for the burning of the Palace theater."

To Sally's confusion, Mr. Morris threw back his head and laughed heartily. He took out a handkerchief and wiped his eyes while Sally, crimson with embarrassment, looked on with angry eyes.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Warren," he said at last. "I couldn't help that. I suppose you're not to blame for coming here. Doubtless the man you work for, Philip Page, sent you as a last resort."

"He did nothing of the kind," said Sally. "He would have forbidden me to come."

"Very sensible of him," said Mr. Morris. "As you probably know, I have had a detective working on this case for some time. I doubt if you can tell me anything he doesn't know already. At any rate, the case is before the court. Surely you can rely on the court to get at the truth."

"But suppose your detective is not honest," said Sally eagerly. "Suppose he gets a high salary for finding and convicting someone, anyone, of burning the theater—especially someone who has been leading a demand for better working conditions and higher wages. Wouldn't it be possible for him to build up a case against his man? A case that was false?"

"Possible but not probable," said Mr. Morris, looking displeased. "But why should he? He's being paid to get the guilty man. If he can't find him, he's paid anyway."

"But not as highly paid," urged Sally. "Isn't that true?"

"What are you driving at, Miss Warren?" demanded Mr. Morris crisply. "Let's get to the point."

Tempted To Eavesdrop

"It's simply this," said Sally desperately. "There's a strong case against Mr. McDonald, but every bit of it is circumstantial evidence collected by—by Mr. Benton. I—we have reason to believe that Mr. Benton is not worthy of the responsibility you gave him. I—I came to beg you to stop the prosecution until you can look into the whole case yourself."

"Why, Miss Warren, you amaze me! The evidence against McDonald was adjudged sufficient for prosecution by persons other than myself or Mr. Benton. If you actually have any proof of McDonald's innocence, the best place to take it is to the defense lawyers."

Sally rose to go, feeling thoroughly miserable and ashamed.

"I'm very sorry to have disturbed you," she said, mustering what dignity she could. "I shan't bother you again. Goodnight."

"Goodnight, Miss Warren," said Mr. Morris kindly, as if he were speaking to a child.

Sally gritted her teeth with rage as the door closed behind her. She had been a fool. Both her father and Philip Page would be ashamed of her. Blinded by angry tears, she fairly rushed out the great front door and bumped squarely into two people who were just stepping onto the porch.

"Good evening, Miss Warren," said Giles Benton.

"Good evening," said Sally. She saw that his companion was the Mrs. Picard she had met at Hillcrest. So these were the visitors Mr. Morris was expecting. She hurried past them to avoid further conversation.

The dark driveway was a refuge and she paused to cool her hot cheeks before she went on down the street. Giles Benton and Mrs. Picard had gone in. How she wished she knew why they had come!

She remembered suddenly the evening she and Mary had stood outside the study window, flattered against the wall of the veranda, listening to the interview between Philip Page and Morris. Why not go back and listen now to what Giles Benton had to say? It was surely about McDonald. It might be of great importance to McDonald.

Sally stepped off the gravel path onto the grass where her footsteps were noiseless. She walked around the house until she was directly beneath the light in the study window. It was only a step from the terrace to the veranda, but the shrubbery was thick. The branches scratched Sally's face and hands as she parted the bushes and wormed her way through. She edged close to the window, where she could see half the room and hear the voices within quite plainly. It was not difficult to hear old Mr. Morris for he was talking in a loud angry tone, like the one he had used to Philip Page.

'Get Out, Both Of You!'

'BLACKMAIL!' said Mr. Morris. "That's a serious charge. Benton! I suppose it never occurred to you that I would prosecute you on the charge of blackmail."

"It's an ugly word, Morris," said Giles Benton in his smooth voice that Sally hated so. "I advise you to stop using the word."

"You're through advising me, Benton," said Mr. Morris. "Now get out, both of you!"

"You won't get rid of me so easily, Joe," said Mrs. Picard. "I have the letters with me here—in your own handwriting. If you refuse to be reasonable, we can take the matter to court."

"I'm quite sure you prefer to settle the matter out of court, in a friendly way," said Giles Benton. "Mrs. Picard is asking very little, considering the case she has against you. Fifty thousand is nothing at all to you. McDonald takes the rap, you get the letters, Mrs. Picard plans to live abroad and you will not have to see her again."

"Not so fast, Benton. I'll see neither of you again. You'll see my lawyer in the morning."

"With the McDonald case in court, you'll find it very awkward not to be agreeable to my proposal. If McDonald is freed of the blackmail charge, you will appear guilty of framing him on both the arson and the blackmail charge."

"Are you trying to tell me that you framed the arson charge against McDonald?" demanded Mr. Morris.

There was a moment of silence, straining to hear the answer. It came in level tones from Giles Benton, an answer that sent cold chills down Sally's spine.

"When I came here, you told me to get McDonald out of the way. He was a trouble-maker, you said. Discredit McDonald and your workmen would settle down and behave themselves. You were not so much interested at that time in fair play. Now I've got McDonald where you wanted him and you pretend you had nothing to do with the business."

"I paid you $25,000 to find the guilty man," said Mr. Morris, breathing heavily.

"You paid me $25,000 to find McDonald guilty," said Giles Benton. "You got what you paid for, what are you kicking about?"

"You damned yellow dog!" said Mr. Morris. "Not satisfied with what you got, you're trying to get another commission out of—out of this woman!"

"It was my good fortune to discover Mrs. Picard," said Giles Benton. "I found out in the course of my investigations that you were the victim of a blackmail plot very different from the one you suspected. I have been acting in your interests trying to settle the matter between you and Mrs. Picard in a quiet way."

"I'll settle it without any interference from you," roared Mr. Morris. "I've made a mistake—the mistake of hiring you, but it's not too late to correct that."

"You made a mistake some 10 years ago when you wrote Mrs. Picard those letters," said Giles Benton. "That's a mistake you can still correct—with $50,000. By tomorrow noon it will cost you $60,000."

"Get out before I call the police and have you both thrown out," said Mr. Morris thickly.

"You can reach me at the Gray Inn, Hillcrest, any time before noon tomorrow," said Giles Benton. "After that I shall feel free to communicate with Mr. Philip Page."

Candlelight Service Held at Negro Church

An impressive candlelight service was given at the A. M. E. Zion church Sunday at 5 o'clock. At the entrance of the church the candlelight procession of 50 voices began singing "Silent Night." The only lights visible were the candles.

Following the invocation by the pastor, Rev. McNeal, "O Come All Ye Faithful" was sung by the choir. The scripture lesson was taken from Matthew. A short talk on faithful hearts of the Home Missionary Society was given by Charlie Allen, and another talk was made by Mrs. L. E. Latham on "Thinking of Others" and the Rev. J. Kime spoke on the work of the missionary society. After the talks, "Away in a Manger" was sung by the choir.

An offering was collected for the benefit of the poor, and as its recreational, the Junior and Senior choirs sang "Joy to The World."

Carolina Students Pursue Studies In Rolling Apartment

Four lives in custom-built trailer while attending college: Solve Housing Shortage Problem

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 23.—Another alphabetical organization, the U. T. S. A. (not associated with the New Deal), now has representatives on the campus of the University of North Carolina.

Two affiliates of the United Trailer Students of America, L. H. Erwin and Ernest Honaker, both of Sparta, N. C., have located their trailer home one block off main street here.

The custom-built traveling apartment, which has now been taken into town circles and given an official street number, was an ingenious answer to the housing shortage here this fall.

Serving admirably as a home for the two Carolina sophomores, the trailer was built by Honaker's father, who was at the time foreman on Dick Reynolds' estate, who incorporated all modern construction methods in its make-up. The walls are lined and the floors are built of hard wood, cork and asphalt. The single door and seven windows are all weather-stripped with a stove providing heat.

Besides these conveniences, the rolling mansion, which cost in the neighborhood of $300, is equipped with electric lights, ultra-modern air conditioning and running water.

"These features," say the boys, "give us one advantage over the dormitory residents, but then they do have steam heat."

The structure is divided into two compartments; the combined kitchen and dining room and the bedroom, with most of the furniture built-in for convenience and for stability while rolling along.

Honaker, a science major in industrial chemistry, and Erwin, a pre-law man, are by no means ordinary Tin Can Tourists. While they attend classes, their two-dollar-a-week servant is at home cooking, cleaning or doing the laundry.

Perhaps the most unusual feature of the boys' bring-your-home-with-you existence is their solution of the food problem. Young Erwin's father owns a large farm, so the boys make periodic homeward treks to replenish their larder of canned food, fruits and vegetables.

Because he wrote a satire on Ptolemy II Philadelphia, the Greek poet Stratus was shut up in a leaden chest and thrown into the sea in the third century B. C.

FARMER LIVES OFF OWN FARM

This Farmer Really Follows Live At Home Plan

Lumberton, N. C., Dec. 23.—James Odum, industrious Robeson county farmer, meant business when he adopted a "live-at-home" slogan.

Getting his 1936 start with the aid of a rehabilitation loan from the Resettlement Administration he resolved to raise his own food supply. The result was that he rounded out the year with plenty of wheat, meat, lard and canned goods to run his family through next year, a cow to furnish milk and butter and a flock of chickens to furnish eggs. In addition, he raised good cash crops of tobacco and cotton.

H. C. Green, county rehabilitation supervisor, credited Odum with "one of the outstanding records in North Carolina."

According to the supervisor's report, all of Odum's workstock died last year and he was unable to obtain necessary credit for replacing the stock in the spring. His application for assistance was approved by the Resettlement Administration and he was given a loan of $150 for capital goods and $121 for subsistence on which to make a crop.

From one and seven-tenths acres of tobacco and four and one-half acres of cotton he realized a little more than $800 and, in addition, he produced fifty-two bushels of wheat, 180 bushels of corn, five and one-half tons of hay and 76 bushels of sweet potatoes. His wife canned 400 quarts of fruits and vegetables.

Odum's assets this fall also included 250 pounds of fat hogs, sixty white rock pullets and a good cow.

From the proceeds of his year's work he paid the installment due on his rehabilitation loan, paid $300 in back taxes on his farm, giving him complete possession, and built a new tobacco barn. Timbers for the barn was cut from his own wood-land. From his garden he not only harvested the vegetables which his wife canned but also saved enough seed for next year's garden. He also adopted soil improvement practices in arranging his crop.

OPERATION CHANGES SEX STATE INSTITUTION INMATES

(Continued from page one) to the fact that the male sex organs were concealed within a pocket in his — or her — abdomen, the boy was considered by his family and others to be a girl.

It was not until the boy believed to be a girl was taken ill while at Samaritan and then taken to the Duke University hospital for treatment, that it was discovered that she was not a girl and that he really was a boy. Welfare officials here agree. When it was learned that a series of comparative simple operations would transform the boy believed to be a girl into an almost entirely normal boy, permission was granted by the welfare department for these operations.

The operations are understood to have been entirely successful so that Katherine, who had lived for 19 years believing herself to be a girl, is now a boy and learning to live, think and act as a boy. For this reason the welfare authorities asked that his name not be used.

The operations performed by the Duke University surgeons revealed that this boy had always been a boy, since no trace of any female organs were found and that the only trouble had been the failure of the male sex organs to become liberated.

Robert Southey, the English poet, was expelled from school in the 1780's for writing an essay against flogging.

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Traders leaned to the buying side in today's stock market but gains of fractions to a point or more were notably selective. The unionization drive against the principal automobile makers served to inspire a wary attitude among the majority of commission house customers. There were frequent active flurries. Dealings were relatively slow near the fourth hour. Rail and industrial loans tilted forward in the bond division. Grains and cottons improved.

Kills Rats and Saves Stored Peanuts, Corn

Peanuts and corn, while held in storage, are subject to damage by rats. The principal damage may be by cutting the bags in which peanuts are stored, thus necessitating re-bagging. It has been estimated that 5 per cent of corn put into storage is destroyed by rats. Such losses, after crops have been made and harvested, cut into the feed supply, or cut down the sale price of cash crops. After the uncertainty of the growing season, after putting in hard work cultivating the crops and then harvesting, whether market prices are high or low, why chance heavy losses of the finished product through loss by rats?

Rat insurance for grain and feed is as practical as fire or storm insurance for house and barns, and the farmer can write his own policy. He can do this by making it a practice to "Build the Rats Out," and then "Starve Them Out." The premium or cost of such insurance is that of rat-proofing corn cribs and granaries. It will mean some cash for material, but mainly some investment of his own time as labor. One important phase is cleaning up rubbish that may serve as harbors for the pest. Keep a clean-

PITT

Christmas Forecast... MILD and MERRY

Let good taste rule the holidays. To give or to serve... choose Cobbs Creek, the whisky that has made men by the millions turn to Mildness. For in whisky as in cigarettes Mildness lets the taste come through, it means more enjoyment. Yet with all its mild ways, Cobbs Creek is a robust whisky... a full 90 proof.
