SALES TAX ON TOBACCO SEEN AS POSSIBILITY

Suggested in Commission with Cigarette Program

PLAN ADVANCED BY J. B. HUTSON

Method Is Discussed While Talking Informally at Steering Committee Meet

Washington, Dec. 28.—(AP)—J. B. Hutson, federal tobacco expert suggested today a federal sales tax on tobacco combined with a subsidy on crop control as a possible way to maintain profitable prices next year.

Talking informally with a nationally steering committee called here from 11 tobacco growing states, Hutson agriculture assistant administrator said three courses were open for possible agreement:

First, continuation of the soil conservation program along with "as much control as possible as a by-product."

Second, supplement with state commerce committee as authorized by congress last session.

Third, federal sales tax program possibly 20 per cent on the first sale of tobacco, with a separate act of congress appropriating 10 per cent of the federal customs receipts to provide additional payment to growers whose sales do not exceed their marketing allotment.

Hutson said the federal sales tax plan if adopted would replace the state compact plan. If compact is decided upon, he said, agreement should be made at once and would be necessary as follows:

Flue cured through Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina; burley through Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri; and fire cured, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Speaking for North Carolina were Claude Hall of Wooddale, chairman of the flue cured tobacco advisory committee; J. E. Winslow of Greenville and E. F. Arnold of Raleigh.

Jonathan Daniels, editor of a Raleigh newspaper, said any program adopted should take in consideration a just treatment for the greatest number of growers.

Farmer Held For Trial On Charges Mistreating Girl

Albert Shepard, 44, Bound Over to Columbus Superior Court Following Preliminary Hearing

Evergreen, N. C., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Albert Shepard, 44-year-old farmer of this community, was bound over to Columbus Superior court on charges of kidnapping and having carnal knowledge of Estelle Shaw, 14, local girl, after a preliminary hearing here before Magistrate W. T. O'Berry this morning.

A search for the girl's daughter of a neighboring farmer, who had been missing since November 3rd, led to O'Berry to Shepard's farm about two weeks ago. There the girl was found in a cave beneath the garage. Officers said Shepard was there with her, but escaped in the night half-clothed.

Bond was set at $3,000, and he had not posted it before noon today.

Parole Commissioner Explains His Stand

Raleigh, Dec. 28.—The principal reason no "Christmas paroles" have been issued to prisoners in a number of years is that under the parole system in effect in North Carolina, clemency is based solely upon merit or upon discovery of wrongful conviction. Commissioner of Paroles Edwin Gill pointed out today.

Another reason for not awarding any holiday paroles is that this custom, still adhered to by Governors of other states, has a very bad effect on prison morale, in that it tends to make the prisoners who failed to get paroles and who hence must remain in prison, sullen, unhappy and more difficult to handle, Gill pointed out.

"After studying the Federal parole system and the plans used in other states, Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and I have become convinced that the granting of paroles at Christmas time or at any other special season, merely on the basis that it is Christmas, was one of the worst things we could do," Gill said.

"In fact, we have reached the conclusion that paroles should be granted only after careful investigation of the record and past history of the prisoner."

Another Airliner Disappears After Nearing Its Goal

Rescuers Sent in Search of Plane and Twelve Occupants Following Report Which Indicated Liner Might Have Hit Power Line

Air Heroine!

She swam out and rescued Pilot Al Constance from the wreckage. Then she went back and tried to save McCoy Sanders, a passenger, but he perished under the debris. (Associated Press Photo)

Burbank, Calif., Dec. 28.—(AP)—United Air Lines announced today rescuers had sighted the wing of an airplane in the mountains north of here, presumably their missing air liner with 12 persons aboard.

The wreckage was seen from the air near Saugus, about 15 miles north of here.

Burbank, Calif., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A possible clue to a missing United Airlines plane and its 12 occupants—one of three large transports to vanish in the West this month—cent an automobile searching party to the Simi Valley, about 50 miles Northwest of here today.

A rambler's report a power failure occurred early Sunday evening at his home was related to United Air terminal here on the chance the missing air liner had crashed into a Simi power line.

The plane disappeared after reporting it was about to land at Burbank after a flight from San Francisco.

Paul Wright, air terminal president, two mechanics and a radio operator left to check the Simi report by motor.

Due at 7:37 p. m. (Pacific coast time) here, the plane's pilot, Edward Blom, radioed a minute ahead of time for a radio beam to direct him to the field. It was the last definite word. The plane then was believed within 15 miles of Burbank.

In Utah a search was continued for a Western Air express transport missing since December 15 with seven aboard and today in North Idaho the bodies of two pilots were being brought down from a mountain side where their Northwest Airlines plane crashed December 18.

EXPECT REICH TO SKIRT WAR

Will Not Resort to Actual Hostilities, However

(By Associated Press)
Germany will skirt the edge of war with Socialist Spain without resorting to actual hostilities, persons in authority in Berlin indicated today.

Berlin—The Reich probably will continue to permit volunteers to sail for Fascist Spain and may station warships at a Spanish fascist port to convoy German vessels.

There will be no armed rescue of the seized freighter Palos at Bilbao and whole units of the regular army will not be sent to the war.

Bayonne—Basque authorities supporting the Madrid-Valencia government said the master of the Palos had destroyed "compromise" documents before last week's capture, and that she carried contraband of war and that there was no question of her release.

London—Great Britain held growing hopes Spanish refusal to free Palos would be settled through diplomatic channels.

Only One Fire During Christmas Holidays

Greenville firemen were called to answer only one fire alarm during the holidays and the damage from the single blaze was less than $50, it was estimated by Chief George Gardner.

In answer to a telephone call Christmas morning, firemen went to the home of Charlie Blanchard on Jarvis street. Paper crammed into a fire in an upstairs room caught fire and fell on a trunk. The trunk was removed from the house before anything else caught.

RANSOM NOTE ASKS BIG SUM

Charles Mattson, 10-Year-Old Son of A Physician, Abducted From Living Room of Home While His Companions Threatened with Pistol; Parents Were Not at Home

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A police official who declined to allow the use of his name, reported today the Dr. W. W. Mattson family had been directed to make contact with the kidnapper of Charles Mattson some time this afternoon.

He said the instructions were included in the note left by the kidnapper when he abducted Charles from the Mattson living room last night.

He indicated the note demanded $28,000.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A masked, shabbily dressed man, the first major kidnaper of 1936, led searchers today after abducting the 10-year-old son of a wealthy physician from his home and leaving a crude ransom note.

The note, reported to demand $18,000 or $28,000 and apparently turned out on a child's ransom press, was the major clue in the seizure of brown-eyed Charles Mattson from the living room of his palatial home last night. Three other terrified youngsters were menaced by the invader's pistol in the absence of the parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Mattson.

Department of Justice agents refused to divulge the full contents of the note, but a reliable source said a Seattle rendezvous was named for payment of the money.

The masked intruder broke into the living room, searched the children for money, found none, then snatching the boy, cried:

"This is something better than money."

He threw the note to the floor, lifted the boy into his arms and fled toward the waterfront, through the same French window by which he entered.

Charles's sister, Muriel, and a friend were sitting on a davenport near the window when the man first appeared. William, 16, eldest brother of the kidnaped child, was seated in a chair at the other end of the room, back to the window.

The children said the man's must slip from his face while he was in the room, enabling them to see he had a dark complexion and heavy beard.

General's Captor May Be Restored To Former Place

Believed That Marshal Chiang Will Return to His Command of Armies He Led Against Chiang

Nanking, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Marshal Chiang Hsueh-Liang, who was believed today, will be restored to command of the armies he led in revolt against Chiang Kai Shek and the civil crisis his capture of the premier precipitated will soon be forgotten.

Chiang reportedly already has told his erstwhile captor he would be returned to Sianfu seat of the rebellion and his military post.

Legally the marshal is "guilty of treason and should suffer a traitor's punishment," a foreign minister said, "but his release of the Generalissimo unharmed has entitled him to consideration."

121 Signs On Bridge

San Francisco (AP)—Not the least task in finishing up the giant San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge was the installation of signs. It took 121 of them to direct motorists over the various approaches and insure their good behavior on the three-quarter mile, conspicuous as they are, warning: "No U Turn." Once started across the bridge, a driver is not allowed to change his mind and go back.

Murders And Accidents In Section Over Holiday

Sheriff Whitehurst Is Injured in Automobile Wreck

Two murders, one inside the city and the other in Ayden township, a number of automobile wrecks and several arrests for drunkenness were reported in this section during the holidays.

Booker T. Andrews, negro, was held on a charge of murder following a preliminary hearing in City court this morning. The negro was denied bond and will be held in the county jail until his case is called in Superior court, probably this week.

He is alleged to have shot his brother following an argument over their automobile. Police said he fired five shots into his brother's body. Andrews was quoted as admitting the slaying.

Charlie Evans, negro, is being held in jail without bond on a charge of shooting Eddie Jones, another negro. Jones was shot in the leg and bled to death. Coroner A. A. Ellwanger declared. Evans is said to have confessed the crime.

Highway patrolmen reported a number of accidents, but said that no serious personal injuries were sustained, although the wrecks resulted in heavy property damage.

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst suffered painful injuries and had to have several stitches taken as a result of an automobile wreck Saturday night at Cox's Mill cross roads when a car is alleged to have sped from a side road without stopping, running into the car occupied by the sheriff.

The car which ran into Sheriff Whitehurst was said to have been occupied by Lebnan Modlin, Beaufort county white man, and a girl friend whom he was teaching to drive. They were ordered to appear in County court here next Tuesday morning. Sheriff Whitehurst, who was injured about the head, said the couple apparently was drinking.

Another Pitt county peace officer, Constable Herbert Adams, of Swift Creek township, was injured over the holidays. He was said by the sheriff's office here to have been shot in the hip with a load of No. 4 shot when he went to serve a paper. John Exum, negro, is being held on the charge. The constable's condition is considered serious, but not critical. He is in a hospital.

Jasper Earl Lloyd was charged with driving careless and recklessly by highway patrolmen who investigated a wreck in which Lloyd is charged with running into a bridge abutment. H. S. Lloyd, father of Jasper, (Continued on page three)

SAYS NEW TAX IS INEVITABLE

State-Wide Levy On Intangibles Seems Certain

Raleigh, Dec. 28.—A state-wide tax on intangible property, such as cash deposits and savings in banks, notes, mortgages, stocks, bonds and possibly even on the cash value of life insurance policies, is regarded as certain to be proposed in the forthcoming general assembly, according to reports which have been current for several weeks.

A good many observers are already certain that such a tax may even be recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission in its recommendations to the new general assembly and that it will be included in the revenue bill recommended by the commission.

Those who have been studying the possibilities of a tax of this nature are already convinced that it would yield several millions of dollars a year and go a long way towards providing the new revenue needed for the various social security projects, especially old age pensions. It is maintained that the counties could not get much from a tax of this sort because of the difficulty in collecting it, but that the state can get much of it, because it can collect it so much better.

A tax on intangibles has not been regarded as practical before, since the constitution formerly made it mandatory to tax intangible property at the same rate as tangible property. But since the new amendment was adopted authorizing the classification of property and the fixing of different tax rates for different classifications, it will now be possible for the state to levy a tax say, of one-half of one per cent on bank deposits, savings notes, mortgages, stocks, bonds and other intangible property and require that the tax be deducted by the banks, mortgage companies and issuers of stocks and bonds and then be paid by them to the state. Since an effort will be made to keep the rate low, it is believed that very little effort would be made to evade this tax and that it would yield a large chunk of much-needed revenue.

In return for this long holiday the employees should now enter upon their duties with a vim that will show their appreciation for the consideration shown them by their employers.

While Pitt county had two violent deaths during the Christmas holidays, otherwise things passed off quietly and the number of arrests and accidents was at a minimum. After all, it was a right good Christmas and we believe it was enjoyed by the people of this county as a whole. Certainly a spirit of friendliness, charity and good will seemed to prevail throughout the holiday.

Washington—Long before the New Deal took hold, a New Deal of slightly different model was tried out in South Dakota. New Dealer-in-chief was Peter Norbeck, then governor, more recently senator, now dead.

Traditionally, the Dakotas have an abiding faith in the efficacy of government to solve the people's ills. So when Norbeck, the successful well-driller, became governor, he found a community willing to go with him in governmental experiments.

The state started a coal mine, a rural credit system, a cement plant and insurance and a bank guarantee law. These were still going concerns when Norbeck, immensely popular with progressives, was elected to the senate in 1920.

After that, the deluge. His rural credit system folded up with a $40,000,000 debt. Ten years after the program was undertaken, all had failed except the cement plant. These difficulties did not upset Norbeck. He was re-elected again and again as an independent Republican, coming through 1932 with a 25,000 majority. Democrats swept every other major office.

Nor did the failure of the governmental ventures within his state daunt Norbeck the senator. The New Deal crop control program won his unstinted support and he liked Roosevelt projects generally. His philosophy, much like that of the New Deal, seemed to be: "Do something. Even if it's wrong, do something."

Wagner Main Foe Senator Duffy of Wisconsin is not through with his war on ASCAP. That, spelled out, means the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and includes most "big names" in the field.

ASCAP successfully has fought off all efforts to revise the present law which imposes mandatory $250 minimum damages for violation of copyrights. Judges can award more, but not less. Duffy insists the threat of a $250 penalty is used to compel even the shine parlors and small res-

Wings for Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Philip Page, young publisher of the Warrenton Courier, loses Sally Warren, the society editor. Wealthy Mary Morris pursues Philip despite his campaign against her property-conditions. Giles Benton, a detective engaged by Morris, accuses McDonald, a discharged mill worker of firing up the theater. He is tried for arson. Philip and Sally, believing McDonald innocent, fight to save him. Sally pleads futilely with old Mr. Morris to halt the prosecution. Before leaving, she overhears Benton admit that McDonald was framed.

Chapter 40 Kidnaped

SALLY heard a chair scrape the floor. She pressed herself tightly against the wall. The study was silent. Giles Benton and Mrs. Picard must be on their way out. Sally edged closer to the window and peered in. Mr. Morris was alone, hunched in his big chair. He breathed heavily and his face was flushed.

The man and the woman were leaving the house now. She could see Benton's roaster parked in the driveway. There was no one else about. Why not go to the car, tell Giles Benton she had heard the truth, and demand that he see Philip and her father at once? Sally sped across the grass toward the car, before she should lose her courage. Mrs. Picard and Giles Benton were beside the car, talking together in low tones. Sally approached them noiselessly, the grass smothering her footsteps.

"Mr. Benton," said Sally timidly. "Miss Warren," said Sally calmly. "I came to ask you to go with me to Mr. Page and tell him the truth." "You must be mistaken. Miss Warren," said Giles Benton. He looked at Mrs. Picard. "How could you have overheard, as you say?" "I was outside on the veranda listening," said Sally shamelessly. "I heard you tell Mr. Morris that McDonald could take the rap."

A Wild Ride

SALLY was exultant. It had been so easy to bring Giles to reason. In another hour perhaps everything would be settled and McDonald would be free to go home to his sick wife. How proud Philip Page would be to find that she had solved the whole thing herself!

Giles Benton opened the door of the roadster and Sally climbed in. Mrs. Picard got in beside her. Although the single seat of the car was fairly large, when Giles Benton was in the car Sally found herself with little space to turn between the two. Mrs. Picard remained silent as Giles Benton turned the car and they sped down the driveway.

"I'll have to ask you to wait with me while I get some gas," said Benton. It's a little out of the way, but I always go to this particular station for gas. Do you mind, Miss Warren?" "No, indeed," Sally scarcely heard him, she was so busy planning the surprise she meant to give Philip Page when they reached the office.

Wedge in the middle of the seat, where she could scarcely see on either side of her. Sally paid little attention to the direction they were taking. Suddenly the car struck an uneven surface, and at the same time Giles Benton stepped on the accelerator so that the machine jerked violently and then shot ahead, bumping Sally violently against Mrs. Picard. The woman caught and held to Sally's arm, as if to steady herself. She tried to sit up and straighten her hat. The car continued to bump along the road, and a cloud of dust rose around them.

"Haven't you taken the wrong turn?" asked Sally, peering into the darkness. "Do something. Even if it's wrong, do something."

Politics at random

By BYRON PRICE Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington. What next for John D. M. Hamilton, now that the Republican national committee has rejected his resignation as chairman?

The action is open to many interpretations, not the least of which is that the committee did not hold Hamilton personally responsible for the election disaster. Hamilton himself admitted during the course of the meeting that "we made a lot of mistakes."

But it would be strange indeed if the committee was as nearly unanimous as the vote itself would indicate. The elephant was sorely wounded last autumn, and recuperation from such vital blows is slow.

There persists in some quarters the feeling that Mr. Hamilton wished off on himself one of the most difficult tasks in recent political history, and that he is welcome to it. Even when his resignation was before known aspirants for the job. Why? The scattered few who openly opposed Hamilton contented themselves by criticizing him.

The obvious—and intended—interpretation of the "vote of confidence" is that it is a mandate to put the party in "fighting trim" for the 1938 congressional elections. That alone might daunt a man of lesser physical vigor than Hamilton. But he does not start from scratch. That must be remembered in any analysis of his position.

There is an old score which must be settled first. During the campaign a deficit of more than $900,000 piled up, mainly for advertising and radio time. Hamilton was in charge then. He now will be in charge of efforts to liquidate that debt. Thoughts of these obligations might well have tempered the desires of committee members, otherwise anxious for a change in leadership.

Evils of Diversion. Gas taxes and license fees, paid by motorists for highway improvement, are being diverted to other uses. This is a breach of faith—double taxation. Motorists are subject to all other taxes, and pay gas taxes and license fees in addition for the specific purpose of building more and better roads and arterial streets. If highway funds are put to their proper use they come back to motorists in the form of lower car-operating costs. If these highway funds are diverted to other uses—there is not only obvious injustice, but evil effects felt by the whole public. Accidents on overcrowded and poorly improved highways cause death and injury and property damage. Business suffers from throttled traffic. Costs of car operation increase. Delays in personal and merchandise transportation are expensive. By stopping diversion of highway funds we can promote commerce, employ men, prevent death and injury, save motorists vast sums in car repairs, tire wear, gas and oil consumption. Appeal to your legislators to prevent any diversion of highway funds. CAROLINA MOTOR CLUB Charlotte, North Carolina

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Dr. Iago Galdston

Skin Applications

Between every man and the outside world there is placed the effective barrier of his skin. This envelope serves to confine the various liquid and jelly-like substances which make up the tissues and organs of the human body. Only a small number of elements are normally allowed to pass outward through the skin, and even a smaller number of substances are permitted during health to pass through the skin into the body. Impermeability is therefore the essential virtue of the skin.

Were these facts adequately appreciated, fewer persons would glibly smear their bodies with such a vast variety of lotions, salves, ointments and creams in the delusion that they can "feed the skin" or the roots of the hair, or the underlying tissues.

This must not be construed as meaning that no applications to the skin are of benefit. On the contrary, a variety of substances and agents can be beneficially applied to the skin.

The skin serves as an organ of excretion. It contains innumerable oil-secreting glands, whose function it is to pour out a fatty substance which serves to keep the superficial horny layer of the skin soft and pliable. The use of soap and water is one of the most important adjuncts to the proper care of the skin. Waste products and the excessive fatty secretion that may be deposited on the skin in its normal function can be thus effectively removed. When the skin is dry and the fatty secretions are inadequate, benefit can be derived by rubbing into the skin fats of animal origin.

Medicinally, too, different agents can advantageously be applied to the skin. Among these the most common are counter-irritants, which produce a local skin reaction of a mild inflammatory nature, drawing blood to the involved area, and helping to relieve pain, and at times to accelerate healing. Heat in various forms, that is, dry or moist, and in varying degrees, may also advantageously be applied to the skin.

Cosmetic applications, such as powders and rouges, are of course a matter of taste and style, but it should ever be borne in mind that the fundamental function of the skin is that of armor, and impermeability is its outstanding characteristic.

"Tissue foods" can only be supplied by way of the foods we eat, and not by means of any external application.

Talks To Parents

By Brooks Peters, Church

PEACE ON EARTH

"Peace on earth, good will to men." Why, when the earth seems torn with hatred and malice, would not this Christmas season be a good time to begin teaching the real meaning of these words to the children? Why make Christmas simply a feast of getting and giving the material things of this world? The Christmas spirit of love and kindness is the important part of the feast—the important part of the important part of all life. Only by teaching this to the children, and by expressing it in the example of one's own life, will it ever be possible to bring peace to the world. Mankind is not to be moved in the mass. It is a collection of individuals, and in the attitude of each separate man, woman and child makes the attitude of the world.

Parents do not mean to teach envy, hatred and malice to their children, any more than they wish to inculcate them to war and bloodshed. But unconsciously they are doing it every day. Of what use are peace conferences when every household is harboring rancor and ill will, when poor hate rich and rich fear poor, and Mrs. Smith resents Mrs. Jones' having more worldly goods than she has, and the Brown children and Jones children are not allowed to play together because they come from different social backgrounds? When Mr. Smith is telling malicious stories about Mr. Jones? It is the mass of all these petty individual spite and jealousies that makes the world wars. Only education beginning with the children of today can save the world from more and more such catastrophes. It was a child who brought the message of peace to the world nearly 2,000 years ago, and it will be children who carry it on in the future.

First Church of Christ, Scientist
"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Dec. 27, 1936. The Golden Text was from 2nd John 1:9: "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ he hath both the Father and the Son."

Among the ex-positions which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed; and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth. And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk. But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose and departed to his house. (Matt. 9:2-7.)"

STATE IN NEED NEW BUILDING

Legislature Likely To Authorize Such A Structure

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Dec. 28.—One of the greatest needs here now is a new state office building to provide space for both existing state agencies and for ones which have been recently created.

The belief in most circles here is that when the general assembly meets here next week and sees the lack of space for legislative committees as well as for state agencies, it will not be long before it takes some action to provide additional facilities. At the present time, the state is paying some $12,000 a year in rent for space in privately owned buildings here and this is expected to be increased to at least $30,000 a year by the end of this year, as a result of the new social security agencies which have already been created or which will be created by the forthcoming general assembly.

This amount would be more than enough to pay the interest and retire the bonds for a new state office building, it is maintained.

What the state really needs is about a 12 story office building, or even a 15 story building, since there is need for that much space already, in the opinion of Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher. The Industrial Commission, which now pays some $800 a month rent for space in a downtown office building, could use two floors of the new office building and the newly created Unemployment Compensation Commission, which had to lease space in an office building here last week, could use a floor of space immediately and eventually will need two or three floors, it is agreed.

The State Employment Service, which is now spending several hundred dollars a month for rent, could also use an entire floor in a new state building.

Right now existing state agencies need from six to eight floors of office space which is no available in any state buildings and for which the state or the Federal government is leaving to pay rent," Commissioner Fletcher said. "In addition, there are the various Federal agencies here, such as the WPA, the Reclamation Administration, and others, which would be only too glad to pay the state rent for office space, if it had such space available. For most of the buildings where these agencies are now located want them to move as soon as possible, since they can get more rent for the same space from private renters. As a result, I am convinced that the state could use a 15 story office building immediately, or at least a 12 story building. And I think this building should be constructed so that another ten stories can be added to it later, as more space is needed, since in another ten years I feel certain the state will need a 20 or 22 story office building."

Since there is strong opposition to building any state buildings around the Capitol Square of more than five stories and which would not harmonize with the present state buildings already there, Commissioner Fletcher thinks the thing to do is to build the new office building on the old blind school square, already owned by the state and only two blocks from the Capitol square.

That the state would not have to pay anything for new real estate and could put all its money into the building. This old blind school property, which now has the Board of Health building on one end, would also offer plenty of parking space both for employees and those having business in the building and would thus relieve the present parking congestion around the Capitol square.

There is reason to believe that the state can obtain as much as $600,000 in a grant from the Federal government towards the construction of a new $1,000,000 office building, according to those who have been studying the matter here, with the result that the state would have to put up only about $400,000 in order to get a new 12 story office building, provided it is built on land already belonging to the state.

It is also known that for the past two years Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus has been urged to instigate the construction of a new state office building.

Any move to build a new office building on the blind school property, however, is expected to meet with strong opposition from Raleigh real estate men and Raleigh and Wake county politicians, since they will want to sell the state new property, at very high prices, around the Capitol square. It is also expected that the contractors and architects here will oppose such a move, and favor the building of two or more new five story buildings adjacent to the square, since they will cost more, hence pay larger profits.
