FIRING ON SHIP IS BRANDED AS AN ACT OF WAR

Spanish Ambassador to Paris Condemns German Act

ENVOY PREPARES TAKE UP MATTER

Spanish Officials Plan to Consult French and British Authorities at Once

Paris, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Spanish government's ambassador to Paris today declared German warship shelling of the Spanish freighter Soton was "an act of war" and said Spanish envoys would at once consult French and British governments.

The ambassador, Luis Araquistain, conferred by telephone with his government at Valencia and prepared to visit the Quai D'Orsay to take the matter up officially with French authorities.

Previously the Basque government at Bilbao had brought the matter to attention of Valencia, demanding full support for the enlistment of foreign aid on preventing any German blockade of the Basque coast.

Sources close to the Spanish foreign office said the Soton incident and reports of the seizure of another Spanish ship by a German battleship bodied ill for German acceptance of the Franco-British demand for strict non-intervention in Spain by foreign "volunteers" or otherwise.

NAZI OFFICIALS INSIST ACT ONE OF RETALIATION

Berlin, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Nazi officials announced today German ships had "retaliated" against two Spanish merchantmen, seizing one and forcing the other ashore with their arms.

The propaganda ministry, detailing "two independent seizures" said the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, had seized the Spanish freighter Aragon and cruiser Koenigsberg, had forced the freighter Soton ashore on the Basque coast.

Officials professed not to know where the German ship had taken the Aragon.

Officers Continue Efforts To Locate Alleged Attackers

Two Young Men Wanted For Assault on G. Lem Pleasant Continue to Evade Police, However

The search for two young men, charged with attacking G. Lem Pleasant Monday night and driving off with his automobile, apparently has come to a temporary halt, all available clues having been run down with no success. Officers are continuing to work on the case, however.

Meanwhile Mr. Pleasant continues in a serious condition in Pitt General hospital, where attacks today reported no decided change in his condition.

A number of suspects have been investigated in the case, but so far the pair sought, Bernice Aspinwall and Bernard Moore, have not been apprehended.

Lines Already Drawn For Fight On Liquor Control

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Jan. 2.—Members of the 1937 general assembly are already divided into three groups on the liquor question, with the result that the outcome of the prospective fight over the liquor problem is regarded as being considerably in doubt, according to those who have been studying the situation. The three groups into which the general assembly is divided are as follows:

1. The county control group, composed of 17 eastern counties which now have county liquor stores under the control of county ABC boards, and the other eastern counties which want this system extended.

2. The state liquor control group, composed of most of the Piedmont and western counties which want liquor stores, but which want a joint state add county control sys-

While the automotive factories remained shut down for the New Year's holiday week-end, Rev. Charles Coughlin emerged from retirement to make a New Year's day radio plea for "industrial peace."

The Royal Oak priest called upon laboring men to be "sensible Christians" and upon industry to let Jesus Christ "sit as chairman of your board of directors."

Agreement Guarantees Status Quo of Mediterranean

REVEAL TREATY IN COMMUNIQUE

Only One Year Ago Bitter Friction Between Countries Threatened War

Rome, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Great Britain and Italy today signed a gentleman's agreement, an official communique announced, guaranteeing the status quo of the Mediterranean and drawing the two great powers to closer cooperation.

Only a brief communique was published to announce the important news friction between England and Italy, which at this time last year threatened to burst into open conflict, had been eliminated.

The text of the agreement allegedly will be published Monday. Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign affairs minister, and Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador, signed the document this morning.

Two Convicted Of Robbery Charges; Both Take Appeal

Paul Marshburn and K. L. Potter Given Sentences of From Four to Five Years on Charge

Paul Marshburn and K. L. Potter were convicted in Pitt county Superior court late yesterday afternoon of robbing the Turnage mercantile store of Farmville early in December and Judge J. Paul Frizelle sentenced each to term of four to five years.

The two defendants took an appeal to the State Supreme court and bond was set at $10,000 each. The special term of court called in an effort to clear the docket, was completed late in the afternoon, but a civil term will get underway one week from Monday and criminal sessions are scheduled for the weeks of January 17 and January 25.

The trial of the two men convicted of the robbery took more than two full days. A third defendant, Rudolph Marshburn, brother of Paul, escaped jail the night before the trial was started and has not been recaptured. If apprehended, he will be tried at a later term of court.

Insurgent Warships Bomb Port Of Musel

Gijon, Spain, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Two Spanish insurgent warships, the Espana and the Velasco, bombarded the port of Musel today, but were driven off by government air-planes.

Musel harbor settlement of Gijon, on the northern coast, was the scene of the Spanish firing on the U. S. gunboat Erie several weeks ago.

Negro Bound Over To Higher Court On Liquor Charge

Arthur Vines Thought by Police to Be Handling Liquor in Wholesale Quantities

Arthur Vines, negro whom police believe is shielding someone higher up in the bootlegging business, was bound over to County court under bond of $500 at a preliminary hearing in City court this morning on a charge of possessing liquor for the purpose of sale.

Officers testified that they found a 20-gallon barrel partly filled with whiskey under the floor of the negro's home. A hole was in the floor, presumably to enable the defendant to draw liquor out of the concealed container. In addition, an empty keg and other containers, as well as a small amount of liquor, were found.

Floyd Nichols, white youth, was found over to County court under bond of $100 on a charge of driving in a reckless and careless manner. James Keys, negro, was fined $10 and ordered to pay the costs on a drunkenness charge.

The three towns situated along the highway leading from Madrid northeastward are Algira, Abenques and Mirabueno, the war ministry reported.

The order was the first "extreme measure" by which the northern administration had hoped to halt attack by foreign vessels.

Barber Detained For Wife's Death Following Inquest

Durham, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Charlie Brown, a barber, was detained on a coroner's jury recommendation today while authorities continued their investigation into the death of his wife, Mrs. Lona Brown.

Mrs. Brown's body, partly submerged in a creek, was found under a bridge near here about 300 yards away from her abandoned automobile. An autopsy showed she had been hit on the head several times.

Negro Asks City Court For Sentence of 30 Days

James Thomas Edmonds, negro boot-black and janitor at a local barbershop, was denied a request in City police court this morning—but when James sobbers up he, no doubt, will be glad the court did not heed his plea.

At the conclusion of a case in the court, the negro walked up to the bar of justice and between sobs, asked that he be given a 30-day sentence to take him out of his trouble.

Apparently drunk, he was locked up in the city jail and probably will be given a hearing Monday morning on the drunkenness charge.

James had been sitting on the front row where defendants await their turn to be tried. Without a word to anyone, he walked up to Mayor Blount and Chief George Clark and made the unusual request.

CLUES STUDIED IN ABDUCTION OF YOUNG BOY

FORMER CONVICT IS QUESTIONED

Abandoned Camp Site Near Olympia Searched for Possible Clues in Snatch

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Searchers for kidnapped Charles Mattson today sought a new "suspect," held a former convict for questioning and experimented with inks in an endeavor to match the writing fluid used in the abductory $28,000 ransom note.

An Olympia man started officers on their newest quest when he told police a man resembling descriptions of the 10 year old boy's abductor had appeared at his home last Sunday night about an hour after Charles was seized here.

The man reputed drove to his home about 30 miles from Tacoma in a car which "made a noise like an old one."

After sitting in front of the home 10 minutes, the informant said, the man came to the door and asked directions to an abandoned turkey ranch.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Questioning of a former convict, examination of an abandoned camp site and study of ink coloration sent officers on new scents today in the search for 10-year-old Charles Mattson, kidnapped Sunday night.

The 33-year-old former convict, closely resembling Charles' kidnaper, was arrested by city police last night when he attempted to sell a cameo ring here. He was fingerprinted and questioned by Department of Justice agents, then remanded to jail for investigation.

Detectives reported the man claimed to be a striking seaman and said he had been on picket duty here the last two nights.

The camp site, littered with parts of boy's clothing, a detective magazine and food was discovered near Olympia, where residents reported seeing a boy and man Monday.

Roosevelt Will Control Reorganization Activity

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

For the last hundred years proposals for reorganization in the federal government have produced more talk than action.

Usually the results have been negligible, and the maneuvering, such as it was, superficial for the sake of effect only. More likely than not this suited the politicians involved.

Comes now the year 1937, with talk of reorganization and economy again in the van. Mr. Roosevelt himself has spoken with some directness on the subject. He said emphatically that his essential purpose was a sound business organization, and intimated there would be no drastic chopping off of agencies. Economy was to be of secondary consideration.

RETAIL SALES BEST IN YEARS

1936 Volume Hoisted to More Than $36,000,000,000

By SMITH REAVIS Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Farmers workers and coupon clippers, with the expanding revenues of the industrial upturn in their pockets, hoisted the 1936 volume of retail trade to more than $36,000,000,000, the best level since 1930.

Rising employment, augmented farm income and fatter wages for city workers played their part in the buying movement. The soldiers' bonus and increased dividends paid out by hundreds of industrial corporations were credited with a "pump priming" share.

The south, with its expanded industry and 12-cent cotton, led in percentage of increased purchasing. Following closely came the middle west, where farm income was some 8 per cent higher than last year.

To Investigate Death Of Football Player

Elizabeth City, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A coroner's inquest was called for this afternoon to investigate the death of John Rex Munden, 21, football player, who died last night four hours after participating in a game between the Cardinals, his team, and an all-star outfit.

Team-mates said Munden gave no indication of being hurt in the game in which he played about five minutes. One theory of his death was that acute indigestion was responsible.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 Monday afternoon in Mt. Airy.

SHIP FALLS IN ALABAMA WOODS

Although Three Bodies Reported Found, Only Two Known to Have Been in Plane

Atlanta, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Major John Patrick, United States air corps, said a searching party found a burned army attack plane "with two or three bodies" near Munford, Ala., today and a United States naval academy uniform on one of the victims bore the name of "Howard Shelton, Jr."

Naval Lieutenant Howard Shelton, Jr. and Colonel F. I. Eglin of Langley Field, Va., disappeared on a flight from Virginia to Maxwell Field, at Montgomery, Ala., in rain and fog early yesterday.

Major Patrick, Atlanta army air station commander, said it was not ascertained whether a third man made the trip with them.

Heflin, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Lieutenant Carey Clarke, commanding a C-OC camp here said today he had received a radio message from a forest service fire tower an army air plane with three officers dead was found wrecked in woods near Munford, Ala.

Clarke said he had sent four C-OC men to the scene of the crash.

The Maxwell Field dispatcher said Colonel Eglin's plane had only enough fuel to continue flying until 2:30 p. m. yesterday. Maxwell Field official had said their only theory was their plane was down in an isolated section.

Wings For Sally

Chapter 47 Philip Wins His Fight

ALL the next day, Sally tortured herself with the memory of Mary's midnight visit to Philip Page. To add to her unhappiness, she scarcely saw Philip all day. He did not come into the outer office, nor did he ring the bell for her.

When Sally reached home, the family were at supper and her stepmother was reading aloud a letter from her young half-sister, Tip.

"What do you think, Sally?" said Mrs. Warren. "Tip's expecting a baby! She's such a child herself. And to have a baby way off there in the wilds of South America—"

"There are a lot of babies born down there, Mother," teased Ray. "They even have real hospitals."

"She'll be all right," Sally agreed. "Here's a letter that concerns you, Sally," said Mr. Warren, looking up from the page he had been reading.

"Your uncle in Richmond writes that he has a vacancy in his publishing business that might interest you. He wants an answer immediately, since he has a good many applicants already."

Mr. Warren handed Sally the letter and she read it eagerly. The position interested her, the salary was larger than the one she was now getting. Her uncle added that he would expect her to live with her aunt and himself, and that her aunt longed to have Sally in the house.

"What about it, Sally?" asked Mr. Warren. "The change might do you good and the job seems to be a fine thing. Of course, your mother and I would hate to part with you, but we wouldn't let that stand in the way of your going."

"I'll be leaving in a month or less for college," Ray reminded his parents. "If Sally goes, that'll leave you two old fogies here alone with nobody to look after you."

"We'll have some peace for a change," said his father. He turned back to Sally: "Well, my dear, what do you think?"

"I think I may go," said Sally slowly. She got up and walked to the window, leaving her supper almost untouched. It had begun to rain outside, a soft, steady downpour that the parched ground drank eagerly.

"I'll call for you at 5:30," he was saying to Sally as Philip came out of the street door. Philip, after a hasty glance at them, nodded coldly and went on down the street.

"No luck," said Lola to Sally. "Never mind—it's going to be a swell party."

Sally and Lola both set to work with a will, anxious to finish and leave early. Sally finished first. Instead of putting on her hat and leaving immediately, she sat at her desk and played with a little paper weight Philip had once given her.

Despite his refusal, Philip came to the McDonald party Monday.

ed by the liquor control commission, but that they would vote to remain dry under a county control system without state supervision, due to the fact the county is just as likely to go Republican as Democratic in future elections.

The representatives from May county will vote to stay dry politically and to let those who want to buy liquor buy it from the bootleggers as they are doing at the present time, rather than vote for a county control system which would permit the Republicans to form a coalition with the liquor interests and get control of the county liquor stores," this man said.

"This is true of many other western counties and a good many Piedmont counties and a good many to see legal liquor stores supplant the present bootleggers, but who are not willing to see county liquor control systems set up which might and probably would dominate county politics."

The eastern counties, of course, have no fear of county control becoming so deeply involved in politics because they have virtually no Republicans, it is agreed, although there are reports that already different factions of Democrats are seeking to get control of wet counties by lining up with the liquor store forces.

But it is already very clear that most of the western counties which want state liquor stores will join forces with the dry counties which do not want any, before they will vote to extend the present county liquor control plan. They are not willing to run the risk of letting the liquor stores be used by rival factions in county politics.

As a result, a good many observers here are predicting a very bitter fight over the liquor control question in the forthcoming general assembly, especially if the eastern county control advocates refuse to play ball and to get together with the state-county control advocates in the Piedmont and the west. And if the fight becomes too bitter, it would not surprise many here to see a coalition result between the dries and the state controllers to clamp the lid down on the county controllers and break up the plan's house and gray train of the 17 counties now having liquor stores.

Washington Daybook By Preston Grover

Washington — by the way, you might like to know that: Applications for about 25 secret military patents are received by the patent office every year. Most come from the navy. The patents are never granted unless somebody else comes along with a similar patent, in which case the first application is put through to protect the inventor.

The reason patents are not granted at once is that when granted at once is that when granted, they immediately are open to the public, and so are no longer secret. The secret applications accumulate from year to year. Nobody in the patent office would tell us about any of them so it can't be said

They are opposed to county control without state supervision because so many of the Piedmont and western counties are class politically with the result that whenever the Republicans got control of a county they would also get control of the liquor stores by being able to get control of the county ABC boards. The Democrats in these close counties frankly fear that if the Republicans should ever get control of the liquor stores, they would use them in an effort to keep control of these counties.

A resident of a western resort county pointed out here this week that the people of his county are perfectly willing to legalize the sale of liquor in state supervised and county operated stores, such as are proposed in the model bill submitted whether they will revolutionize the next year. The commerce department is asking the next congress for $480,000 to set up a division of industrial economics. Among its jobs would be a study of business cycles and how to modify them, both on the boom end and on the depression end. Incidentally, some economists are guessing 1939 as about the date of the next depression. They say it won't be nearly so bad as the last one but will display all the symptoms, in half-pint dimensions.

There has been no publicity on the results of that famous Roosevelt poll of the views of ministers and pastors taken a few months before the election. Ministers with complaints rushed to print with their replies and created an impression of wholesale church opposition to the New Deal. It might make a good WPA white collar project to tabulate their views—if the White House approved.

President Roosevelt once squashed talk of tearing down the old horse-and-buggy postoffice building on Pennsylvania avenue (built 1897) and the even horse-and-buggy state and war department building, farther along the avenue beyond the White House. Among the gorgeous new gilded buildings that now hem them in they look as out of place as a hymn-book in a magazine rack.

"I love that old building," the President once said a press conference, referring to the state-war building.

Several, perhaps all, airlines carry crash liability insurance on their passengers to cover costs of accidents. On one major line it is $20,000 a passenger. A call to another major line brought the information that "the New York office" was not permitting that information to be given out. The bureau of air commerce says insurance is not compulsory.

Only three patents were granted during the first year after the patent act became effective in the United States.

Inventory Have you made an inventory of your home stead? Can you measure your accomplishments of 1936? Do you have your goals for 1937? Is there some home improvement you need badly? Let's plan now to accomplish the most necessary improvements first. Perhaps electricity can be installed, or perhaps there are labor saving conveniences you have waited so long for. Perhaps it is a piece of repair work that needs to be done. Boys and girls may be able to start college funds. If each of us has a real purpose and concentrates on some special activity no doubt the New Year will bring many rich blessings. If the home agent can help you in any way to accomplish these things she will be so glad of the opportunity.

Ralph Deal, former district lieutenant governor, had charge of the ceremonies and made a brief talk on the accomplishments and objectives of Kiwanis and called attention to the change in times and declared that the club must keep abreast of these. He emphasized the responsibilities of the officers of the organization.

Other officers inducted into office were: Immediate past president, Dink James, who will continue in the office due to the death of J. C. Galloway; vice president, D. H. Waynick's Chance For Appointment Seems Be Better Activity on Part of Guilford County Democrats Thought to Have Brought Results Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Jan. 1.—Chances for the reappointment of Capus M. Waynick as chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission are regarded as considerably better since committee of High Point and Guilford county Democrats motored to Shelby some days ago to urge Governor-elect Clyde R. Hoey to reappoint him, according to reports heard here the last two or three days.

If those friendly to Waynick should become half as active as those opposed to him, the belief is that there would be little doubt as to his reappointment. Reliable reports from the neighborhood of Shelby are to the effect that until the High Point delegation went to bat with Mr. Hoey for the retention of Waynick that most of the pressure brought up to that time had been from those seeking his removal.

It is no secret here, of course, that the highway contractors, road material salesmen, road machinery manufacturers and a group of politicians seeking jobs with the highway department, have been opposing Waynick for months and have been predicting that they would "get" him as soon as Mr. Hoey became Governor. Many of this group are known to have supported either Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham or Ralph W. McDonald for Governor because both of them promised they would oust Waynick if nominated and elected. Many of the followers of these two candidates now blame Waynick for the nomination and election of Mr. Hoey, since most political observers agree that the highway department, with more than 10,000 employees and 9,000 prisoners—and their families—is a tremendous factor in any election. It is no secret that Waynick supported Mr. Hoey.

The very fact, however, that most of the opposition to Waynick is coming from the highway contractors, machinery and materials, men or from the group who supported either that either one of them would oust Waynick is regarded by many as being to his advantage. For if Mr. Hoey should now yield to this "pressure" to get rid of Waynick, he would be bowing to the will and desire of those who fought him hardest in the primaries. And most of those who are opposed to Waynick admit that he is efficient and knows the highway set-up in the state as few others ever have.

APPOINTMENT SATISFACTORY

Naming of Price As Commission Head Meets Approval

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 2.—The appointment of E. W. Price as acting director of the Division of Compensation of the new Unemployment Compensation Commission and his selection for this post by the members of the commission after conferences with Governor-elect Clyde R. Hoey, of course, is being generally commended in both business and political circles here today.

For Price, who has been executive secretary of the North Carolina Industrial Commission since its creation several years ago, is regarded by many as one of the best informed men on compensation insurance in North Carolina, as well as an able executive. Much of the success of the Industrial Commission is frankly attributed to the work done by Price as its secretary, especially in the manner he has supervised the keeping of records and the collecting of statistics.

Since Price has been given the title of "acting director" of the compensation division of the new commission, the general belief is that his appointment has the complete and full approval of Governor-elect Hoey and that soon after Governor Hoey takes office the "acting" part of his title will be dropped. John C. Root, who has been chief claims examiner for the Industrial Commission, has been advanced to executive secretary to succeed Price.

The appointment of Price as the director of the compensation insurance division of the new commission is regarded as both good business and good politics, since most observers agree that Price was more or less drafted for this job because of his ability and experience. It is agreed that some of those who have been seeking this and other jobs with the new commission purely on a political basis, will grumble, the belief is that the public generally will approve the appointment because it is largely non-political.

It was believed for several days that Mrs. Mae Thompson was making a strong effort to secure this appointment. A delegation from High Point was here Wednesday to urge that some one other than Mrs. Evans be given the appointment. Mrs. Evans is still head of the employment division.

California Farm Income Up Sacramento, Calif. (AP)—Cash income of California farmers in 1936 was 10 1-2 per cent greater than the year previous. According to A. A. Brock, director of the state department of agriculture, the total of $22,880,000 makes California the richest farm state in the union.

Colleges Okay Co-Ed Smoking Chicago (AP)—Midwestern universities have reached the point of recognizing the co-ed's desire for a cigarette. All co-eds do not smoke, of course but for those wishing to light up between classes, it depends upon whose campus she attends.

Washington university at St. Louis has a faculty ruling prohibiting the co-ed to smoke in front of Brookings hall, in the woman's building or any place on the quadrangle. At the University of Chicago the co-ed is considered old enough to use her own judgment as to where she smokes.

The same rule prevails at Northwestern university. The girls have the privilege of lighting up when and where they desire—except in the class room.

De Paul university and Loyola university forbid girls smoking on the campus. Loyola, however, has provided a special room for this purpose in its downtown building.

STRIDES MADE IN STATE DEPT.

Much Progress During Year in Conservation Activities

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Jan. 1.—The year 1936, which came to a close at midnight, was a year of real accomplishment and progress in the conservation of the state's natural resources.

Real advancement was made in almost every activity of the conservation department, such as better forest fire control facilities, more acreage added to game preserves and refuges, more tourists and visitors brought to the state by the department's efforts and more facilities provided for the propagation of game, birds and game fish.

Some of the more outstanding and tangible accomplishments of the conservation department during the year 1936 were enumerated by Assistant Director Kelly as follows:

The establishment of some 75 miles of "natural fish hatcheries" along some of the state's best game fish streams by closing certain areas to all types of fishing in order to permit the development of young fish.

Expansion of forest fire control activities so that now some 15,000,000 acres of forest land in 59 of the 100 counties are now under the supervision and protection of the state forestry division, as compared with only 8,400,000 acres under its protection two years ago.

The facilities for the detection, reporting and suppression of forest fires have also been greatly expanded, with the result that 27 additional fire lookout towers, 370 miles of new telephone lines for the forest service and 690 miles of fire lines have been built within the past two years.

Arrangements have been made for the rearing of wild turkeys and the restocking of suitable areas with these birds, principally in the vicinity of Mount Mitchell, in Yancey county.

Further development of the system of state parks and improvement of these parks for recreational purposes.

The larger number of tourists brought into North Carolina as a result of the efforts of the conservation department, which issued many thousands of copies of a illustrated booklet, "Come to North Carolina," which was sent to travel bureaus and agencies in every part of the United States.

The special and detailed survey of the natural resources and industries of the state made at the request of Governor J. C. Brinkley but which has not yet been made public.

Extension of the State Forestry Division tree nursery near Clayton from 928 acres to 10978 acres and the distribution of 3,073,000 seedlings from this nursery in the past year—an increase of 200 per cent over any previous year.

The increased interest in the mineral resources of the state, especially in gold remains and the investment of more than $1,250,000 in prospecting, improving and opening gold mining properties, also in the development of clay deposits in the state. Indications now are that the ceramic industry is going to develop rapidly in the northwestern part of the state, where the finest china and ceramic clays in the United States are said to exist.

The erection of scores of historical markers, in cooperation with the State Historical Commission and the State Highway and Public Works Commission, to indicate spots of historic interest in the state, in order to make the state more interesting to tourists and to better acquaint them with its interesting places.

The list of accomplishments by the conservation department might be continued almost indefinitely, Assistant Director Kelly said, although he regards those already listed as among the more outstanding ones of the past year. He is hoping that this new year of 1937 will be even more noteworthy than 1936 and that it will show even greater progress and advancement.

BOWA GIRL GROWS UP, THANKS BRAKEMAN HERO

Cedar Rapids, Ia. (AP)—While riding in the engine cab of his freight train 24 years ago, Brakeman E. J. Byers saw a baby girl running down the tracks ahead. Byers climbed out to the cow-catcher and leaning far out over the tracks, snatched the terror-stricken child from death as the locomotive rolled upon her.

During the years since then he has received several letters from Gladys Aakre of Oaslan, Ia.—the little girl he saved when she was two and one-half years old. The other day Gladys, now 26 years old, visited his home and thanked him personally for the rescue.

Republicans Go For Landon Democrats Re-Name F.D.R. & Co.

By VOLTA TORREY AP Feature Service Writer Jubilantly the Grand Old Party trumpeted against the alphabet men in June, 1936.

"For more than three long years," boomed Keynote Speaker, "we have had a government without political morality."

"Three Blind Mice," the band chimed in, "See How They Run." Overnight the chant rang 'cross the nation: "Three long years!"

JOLIET INSTALLS 'ELECTRIC EYES' TO VOIL ESCAPES

Joliet, Ill. (AP)—Since the day two guards politely opened the gates of Joliet prison permitting Convict Henry "Midge" Ferneke to walk out posing as a visitor the state of Illinois has spent more than $200,000 to make the place more fool-proof. Ferneke, accused of five gun slayings, was captured in Chicago shortly after his successful ruse and he committed suicide before they could return him to Joliet but the ease of his escape moved the state to make improvements. "Electric eyes," designed to detect metal upon a person, new fences around the prison entrance and changes in the guard system are the major improvements. Ferneke's trick cannot be duplicated, Warden Ragan says, because a new double registry system has been installed. All visitors have to register when they enter and leave the prison, they have to record their name, address and the name of the prisoner they are visiting. The handwriting and information must tally in each instance or they don't get out.
