BILLS OFFERED FOR AMENDING PRIMARY LAWS

Measures Presented by Foes of Governor-Elect Hoey

WOULD ABANDON GAS EXECUTIONS

Bills Aimed at Election Laws Seek To Abolish Absentee Ballots in State

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Bills to abolish the absentee ballot and generally tighten election laws, as well as one to abandon the use of lethal gas in legal executions and return to the use of the electric chair, were dropped into the legislative hoppers today as the General Assembly opened its biennial session.

The House was convened by Speaker Gregg Cherry at 12:02 and the Senate by its retiring president, Lt. Governor A. H. Graham, of Orange, at 12:03.

The first three measures introduced reflected charges of irregularities in last summer's primary election when Clyde R. Hoey, of Shelby, defeated Dr. R. W. McDonald, of Winston-Salem, for the gubernatorial nomination.

Representatives Lumpkin, of Franklin, and Sprull, of Bertie, two McDonald supporters, sent them up

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The weather bureau today forecast "cloudy weather with rain at intervals" for Raleigh tomorrow on inauguration day.

Committees in charge of the inaugural ceremonies for Clyde Hoey of Shelby, who will become the thirty-first governor of North Carolina elected by the people, still predicted a huge crowd would be here.

in the House. Besides abolishing use of the absentee ballot, in primaries, they would also abolish the use of markers and assistants in primaries and would prohibit entrance of persons who are not actually voting into the voting booths.

Representative Dellinger, of Gaston, sent forward the bill proposing the lethal gas chamber, placed in operation last year, be abandoned and electricity again be used in legal executions.

Without opposition, W. A. Baker, former assistant clerk, was elected principal clerk of the House, and Ray Byerly received the same advancement in the Senate.

The Senate formally elected Senator Johnston of Buncombe again as its president pro tem. Speaker Cherry announced Representative Thomas, of Anson, 1935 chairman of the rules committee, would again head that group.

Included in the group serving with Thomas was Representative Blount, of Beaufort, and on the Senate rules committee with Chairman Johnston was Senator Flanagan of Pitt.

Many Officials and Private Citizens to Attend Inaugural Ceremonies Tomorrow

A large number of Pitt county citizens are expected to be in Raleigh tomorrow for the inaugural ceremonies of Clyde R. Hoey as governor.

Senator E. G. Flanagan and Representatives John Hill Paylor and John S. Moore are already in the state capital, the biennial session of the General Assembly having convened at noon today.

In addition, a number of other prominent Pitt county Democrats left early today to be in Raleigh for pre-inaugural events. But the general parade to the capital will not begin until tomorrow morning.

High officials of both the city and county governments are expected to attend the ceremonies, as well as many private individuals.

COUNTY JUDGE IN THIRD TERM

Installation Ceremonies Held; Court Concluded Today

Judge Dink James, with the opening of the present session of Pitt County court, began his third consecutive term as judge of the tribunal—the only time in the history of the court that any one person has been elected to the office for three consecutive terms.

Both Judge James and Solicitor Charles Wiedeb were installed in appropriate ceremonies just before the opening of the weekly session of court.

Hon. F. C. Hargis, dean of the Pitt County Bar, presided over the installation ceremonies. Mr. Hargis called on Judge E. M. Wooten, who stressed the importance of the court and the efficiency with which it has been operated.

Judge Wooten then presented Judge James and the oath of office was administered by Assistant Court Clerk E. P. Tucker. Solicitor Wiedeb then was presented and Mr. Tucker also administered the oath of office to the new officer-holder.

Cases tried yesterday afternoon and this morning included:

Chief Executive Sent Request to 'Personally Intervene' in Maritime Strike

(By Associated Press)

Hopes for settlement of the far-flung automotive and maritime strikes centered today in the national capital.

Government leaders considered ways of adjudicating employer-workers differences costing 90,000 workers employment in those two divisions of business and industry.

President Alfred Sloan, Jr., of General Motors corporation left New York for Detroit, where federal conciliators sought to bring company officials and union leaders together in an accord which would put 50,000 G. M. employes back to work.

Governor Frank Merriam of California wire a request to President Roosevelt for his "personal intervention" to help restore shipping operations on the strike-bound Pacific coast, where a 69-day maritime work-out made 40,000 men idle.

President Roosevelt and Labor Secretary Frances Perkins discussed the automotive strike with the cabinet and at a White House dinner last night.

In Detroit the Ternstedt Manufacturing company, makers of automobile hardware, laid off 7,000 workers. It was the twentieth G. M. unit to halt or reduce operations.

At Jonesville, Wis. Chevrolet and Fisher body plant officials agreed to close the plant after a sit-down strike affecting 2,500.

The WPA at Washington reaffirmed that federal relief rolls are open to strikers.

Greenville Police Report All Quiet So Far This Week

Regular Wednesday Morning Court Dispersed With No One Arrested Since Sunday

Activities of the various peace officers usually make good news, at least news which most people are interested in—and when the city police announce that not a single arrest has been made since Sunday, that seems to be better news, if not more interesting.

The regular Wednesday morning session of city court was not held today for the reason there was no one to be tried.

Chief George Clark announced that everything had been unusually quiet since the holidays. The sheriff's office also reported a slackening up in peace disturbances and highway patrol declared that no highway accidents have occurred recently.

A county court official jokingly remarked this morning that all the minor offenders were in jail awaiting trial in the court which was completed shortly before noon, and would be up to their old practices before the week was out.

The Corpus Christi, Texas, oil field, a year old in October, 1936, had 179 producing wells with an estimated total production of 1,650,000 barrels.

Plan Take Victim Of Brutal Attack To Eye Specialist

Hoped That G. Lem Pleasant Will Be Sufficiently Recovered to Make Trip First Next Week

Chief George Clark, father-in-law of G. Lem Pleasant, who was brutally attacked last week by two young white men, declared today the victim was showing improvement and added that it was hoped he would be able to be taken to an eye specialist, probably at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, the first of next week.

Mr. Pleasant lost his right eye as a result of a bullet wound and it is feared that he will lose sight in his left eye because of the severe beating he suffered about the head. Some hopes are held, however, that the sight in the left eye can be restored.

Meanwhile, the search for the two men alleged to have attacked the drug store owner and taxicab operator, Bernard Moore and Berrie Aspinwall, continued, but officers announced no new clues had been uncovered.

Pine May Depose Cotton As Southern 'King' Crop

By WILLIAM BORING (AP Feature Service Writer)

Sparksburg, S. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—"They're turning the 'land of cotton' for a crop which agriculturalists say may some day depose the staple as 'king' in Dixie."

It is pine—loblolly, slash, shortleaf and longleaf.

Lands denuded after years of one-crop cultivation today are being planted to millions of sturdy pine trees.

The Soil Conservation service is principal sponsor of the program for the three-fold purpose of checking erosion, emphasizing the pine's importance in industry and agriculture, and enriching timber sources.

Georgia Forester Elmer E. Dyal believes the versatile pine is destined to be fashioned into the nation's clothes.

"Evening dresses, fine underwear, hosiery and men's woolsen suits—all these things," says "will be made from pine trees in the near future. Not to mention the transparent paper bags in which the garments are sold and the price tags which are attached to them."

Legion Seeks Free Tuition

Rose Heads Committee in Fight for Orphaned Students

J. H. Rose, who has been designated chairman of a special legislative committee of the North Carolina department, American Legion, declared today the chief aim was to secure an act of the legislature which would enable children of deceased legionnaires free tuition in the State institutions.

Mr. Rose pointed out that North Carolina had done very little for its ex-soldiers, less than most other states.

"We feel that this is a small request we are making," declared Mr. Rose, who has been active in American Legion affairs since the beginning.

The committee chairman said determined efforts already were being made to secure the passage of an act which would enable orphaned children of ex-soldiers to attend any of the state institutions without having to pay the tuition.

It was pointed out that the request was for free tuition only and does not include free room, board or other necessities.

Others on the committee to serve with Mr. Rose follow: Lloyd E. Griffin, Raleigh; N. H. Sprull, Roper; J. G. Dees, Bayboro; (Continued on page two)

Night Watchman Gives Kidnap Clue

Search for the kidnaper of Charles Mattson, 10, from his home in Tacoma was pressed with renewed vigor after G. R. KIDNAP VICTIM STILL MISSING

Abductor Appears to Ignore All Chances to Negotiate

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 6.—(AP)—A visit by two southwest Washington men to kidnap investigation headquarters today revived speculation the abductor of 10-year-old Charles Mattson may be hiding the boy near Shelton.

The pair was identified as a Shelton business man and a Hoodport resident.

They were closeted with agents of the federal bureau of investigation's special office here for more than an hour and a half.

"Neither would... the reason for driving 50 miles over icy roads in early morning fog and darkness."

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 6.—(AP)—School children prayed today for the safety of frail Charles Mattson, whose kidnaper appeared to be ignoring all avenues left open for him to negotiate with the boy's agonized parents about demand for $28,000 ransom.

Of the 14 major kidnappings in the United States since 1933, in only five cases have the victims been held longer than 10-year-old Charles, abducted 10 days ago.

Authorities said all of the five but June Robies, the little Arizona girl who turned up in the desert 19 days after she disappeared, were better able to stand captivity than Charles. He was thinly clad and suffering from a cold when seized the night of December 27.

Pupils in 11 Catholic schools offered prayers for his safety. Authorities remained inactive to let the kidnaper deal with the boy's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Mattson.

Today there was no outward indication the kidnaper might return the boy soon.

Grange Organization Irked At Kerr Scott

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—Newly elected Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott of Haw River, former Master of the State Grange, is temporarily in disfavor with a good many members of the Grange because he is backing a rival candidate for chairman of the house committee on agriculture, according to the story going the rounds here today.

For while the Grange as an organization, is backing Representative W. W. Eagles of Edgecombe county for chairman of this committee, Commissioner Scott is supporting W. E. Penner of Rocky Mount, Nash county, for chairman, according to this story.

According to this story as heard here today, Scott was named a member of the committee appointed by the Grange to call on Speaker Cherry some days ago in Gastonia, to urge the appointment of Eagles as chairman of the house agriculture committee, but when the committee went to see Speaker Cherry, Commissioner Scott was not able to go.

After listening to the committee make its endorsement of Representative Eagles, Speaker Cherry is understood to have informed the committee that he was somewhat surprised at the request since Scott, former master of the Grange, had been to see him and had urged the appointment of Penner as chairman of the house agriculture committee.

This revelation is understood to have caused some of the members of the Grange to feel decidedly cool towards Scott, also to have been the explanation as to why Scott was unable to go to Gastonia with the committee.

LIBERAL COURT IS CALLED FOR BY ROOSEVELT

Asks for 'Enlightened' Interpretation of Constitution

NRA OBJECTIVES DECLARED SOUND

President Insists It is High Time for Democracy to Assert Itself

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called today for an "enlightened" interpretation of the constitution to harmonize Congress and the courts in meeting "present national needs."

Standing before a joint session of the overwhelmingly Democratic 75th Congress, Mr. Roosevelt, without mentioning the Supreme Court by name, said a "liberal interpretation" rather than "alteration" of the constitution was needed. He reaffirmed his belief the NRA objectives were sound.

"The statute of NRA has been outlawed," he told the assembled Senate and House. The problems have not been met, however. They are still with us."

The President, greeted with shouts and cheers by Congressmen elected in the November landslide that returned him to office, said it was "high time for democracy to assert itself" when militarism was leaping forward, adding:

"The progress of this democracy must not be impelled by the denial of essential powers of free government."

'No Error' Found In Two Sentences To Asphyxiation

Law Providing For Licensing of Real Estate Found Unconstitutional

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The State Supreme court found "no error" today on two capital cases and ruled unconstitutional a law providing for the licensing of the North Carolina real estate commission of real estate brokers and salesmen.

The licensing law had applied only in certain designated counties, not including Pitt.

In declining a new trial to Alfred Puckett of Richmond county, sentence to asphyxiation for first degree murder of Roy Rhyme, the court automatically set his death date at January 22, unless the governor intervenes.

Charles Smith, Columbus county negro found guilty of first degree burglary, who was refused a new trial, also will die on that date.

CIVIL SERVICE NEEDED

With all the uncertainty on the part of employees in the various state departments as to whether they will be rehired or fired, now that a new administration comes into power, it seems to us that in the interest of efficiency North Carolina needs a real civil service system for its employees.

Of course the high state officials should be elected by the people, and naturally there are a few of the major posts that must be filled by appointment in order that there might be some means whereby victorious candidates might pay off political obligations, but where the rank and file of employees (those who actually do the work instead of filling figurehead jobs) are concerned, these employees should be left free to do the best possible job without having to worry from one campaign to another about being on the winning side in order to hold their jobs.

A real civil service system for state employees based upon merit of efficiency and experience would mean greater efficiency in the departments of our state government. State employees do not have time to play politics and do their work efficiently at the same time.

FARM BUREAU FEDERATION PUSHING TOBACCO COMPACT

(Continued from page one) industries are untidily towards such legislation and urged the necessity for quick action. Several expressed the belief that unless they were able to put through the crop compact and control law within the first 30 days of the session, the chances would be increasingly difficult of passing it at all.

Because the Farm Bureau Federation and the Grange are expected to launch an intensive drive for the enactment of the tobacco compact and crop control bill right at the beginning of the session and because many of the tobacco warehousemen and manufacturers are expected to oppose the bill, a good many observers here believe that the fight over crop control may for a time, at least, overshadow the expected legislative battle over liquor control, the sales tax and even that over new revenue.

Certain it is that lines are already being tightly drawn, that the farmers are better organized than ever before—the Farm Bureau federation claims it already has 15,000 members in North Carolina—and that a real battle is in prospect. Several members of the Farm Bureau directors here yesterday advocated the employment of one or more full-time lobbyists to watch out for their interests here.

The Farm Bureau Federation, however, is interested in other matters than crop control legislation, although that is item number one on its legislative program. It will also seek an appropriation of $25,000 for the establishment of a special test farm for peanuts, for the help and benefit of the peanut growers in the state.

It has increased the increased budget for the county agents and home demonstration agents, will seek a better pure seed law or at least better enforcement of the present law, and will demand free use of school buildings for Federation and other farm meetings, according to Secretary E. P. Andrews.

No action has been taken to indicate the attitude of the Federation towards the present scrap tobacco law or any other, pending the action of the general assembly and of the Federal government with regard to the crop control and compact law. Observers here today, including members of the general assembly, believe that the Farm Bureau Federation is going to be a real factor in this session of the general assembly and that it is already one of the biggest and most powerful lobbies here. If the Federation has collected $2 from each member, the membership dues are $2 a year—the association should have at least $20,000 available in addition to operating expenses for use during this session of the legislature—which observers agree is a right potent amount of money.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — It was just 21 years ago that Alexander Woolcott, pursuing his duties as a dramatic critic, journeyed to the Empire Theatre to see Maudie Adams in a revival of "Peter Pan". He came away impressed by the ability of a young and obscure actress, and he wrote plainly of her in his review.

Last week, bounding into her dressing room before a performance of "The Country Wife," Ruth Gordon was delighted to find a package and a note from an old friend. The note said: "Dear Ruth, this is an anniversary present. This evening you will come of age."

It was in Woolcott's own hand, and the package contained a mounted and framed clipping of his review of "Peter Pan" 21 years ago—the first review in which her name ever appeared.

This is a round and about approach to a favorite story, but seeing Philip Marlowe the other night made me think of Gladys Cooper, the celebrated English actress, and mention of Miss Cooper always recalls that tale which W. Somerset Maugham loves to tell above all others.

He was meandering through London one night when he unfortunately encountered one of those social pests which ruin every party with their inane chattering.

"Why, Mr. Maugham," she gushed, grasping the playwright by the arm. "I've just seen Gladys Cooper and she is wonderful. Why don't you write a play for her—some time?"

"I have," replied the author "and she has played in all of them."

Ted Saucier tells of meeting an insomniac in front of the Waldorf-Astoria, at 11 p. m., gazing at the sky which hung like a lampshade over New York.

"It's just like it says," the insomniac declared. "What is like what says what?" Saucier demanded. In answer the fellow handed Saucier a clipping from an E. Phillips Oppenheim dissertation on New York:

BLACK-DRAUGHT

For Clean System Helps To Prevent Sickness

One of the advantages of Black-Draught is that, if it is taken at the first disagreeable feeling of constipation, one or two doses usually brings relief. Prompt relief, such as that is well worth while. Constipation is too dangerous to be neglected.

"A clean system for health" plan has saved thousands of people such useless sickness. They keep a package of Black-Draught in the family medicine cabinet and take this purely vegetable laxative at the first sign of constipation. They say the relief it brings is mighty hard to beat.

Find out by trying it, why so many people prefer Black-Draught when it comes to buying a laxative.

Talks To Parents

By Brooks Patti, Chicago

WELL-ROUNDED MINDS

Whatever form of work a child plans to undertake, it is acknowledged that his body must be completely developed. It would occur to no one that because he plans to go into a sedentary profession, his physical training should be neglected or one-sided.

Even specialized physical work like dancing or piano playing or painting, which depends on the cultivation of particular muscular aptitudes, is never used as an excuse for failing to develop the rest of the body. Parents and teachers know that to neglect one part of the body is to injure it all.

Why not follow the same plan in training the mind? Because a boy proposes to be an engineer is no reason to neglect his artistic training. An engineer who understands literature, knows history and can appreciate music and art, is not only a happier and more complete person, but will probably be a better engineer.

No real study is wasted if it goes far enough and is a search for truth. Knowledge is all related, and the true scholar knows, and the time spent on research of any kind, whether it be in Greek roots or algebraic formulas, is of value, if only to broaden and deepen the mind and spirit.

The desire to earn a living, and especially the eagerness to make lots of money quickly has blinded many of us to the real purpose of life. After the necessities of food, shelter and clothing have been provided, a well-furnished mind and an appreciation of the true and beautiful are far more important than cars and service.

The helpful idea we're talking about will give you extra protection against a freeze-up in your car's gasoline system. The smart thing to do first is to have your carburetor drained—a quick, simple operation for whoever takes care of your car. He will also empty the little glass filter bowl, or "trap." And if you want to be real careful, you will have a certain amount drained from the bottom of the gasoline tank. Thus you get rid of any water that might freeze on the first cold day. This water was not in the gasoline originally, if you are careful where you buy. But you know that the air always contains more or less moisture, which can gradually form water in your gasoline system. There is less chance of this when you keep too much air out of your gasoline tank, by having it filled close to the top. It is still just as important as ever to get a gasoline that always fires away lickety-split in any cold... not dripping and flooding wastefully... not draining your battery by a lot of "false starts"... not thinning your oil by needless choking. The most helpful thing you can do for yourself right there is to keep your tank full of sure-firing Special Winter Blend Conoco Bronze. Continental Oil Company

Martin, business manager of the Echo; and Thorneville Gibson, president of the Men's Student Government association, represented East Carolina Teachers College at the Twelfth Annual Congress of the National Student Federation of America, which met from December 28 to January 1 in New York City. School of Commerce of New York University, was the host college, and the headquarters were in Hotel Victoria.

Among the principal speakers for the Congress were Chancellor Harry W. Chase, now of New York University, formerly president of North Carolina University; Dr. Walter Kotschnig, former Executive Secretary for ISS; Charles W. Tausig, chairman of the Advisory Board of the National Youth Administration; Professor Jerome Davis, of the Yale Divinity School; Aubrey Williams, administrator of the NYA; Dr. Homer P. Squabble Has Political Tinge
Koenigsberg (AP) — A domestic drama with a political background was unfolded in the divorce court here.

The husband complained that his wife had developed communism in a rapid form, thus causing him to lose his managerial job in a local public concern.

The wife countercharged that the husband had always been a radical himself; that he had until now sympathized with her political views, but that he was now renegeing objecting just because he knew which side, his bread was buttered.

Evidence having been brought of the wife's active sympathies with communism, the court granted the husband a decree on the ground that "it was desirable to dissolve a marriage when an anti-Nazi wife ruined her husband's career; even though he had been a radical before Hitler took power."

Sans Souci Club

The Sans Souci Book Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. I. Wooten on Maple street, who was hostess for the afternoon.

There were twenty members present, with Mrs. Waldrop, of Hendersonville, being our guest.

The home was beautifully decorated with Christmas flowers amidst a lovely setting of crystal lights and Christmas decorations, carrying out a red and silver color scheme.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. J. L. Kilgo.

The roll call was answered with each member giving a current event. A brief business session followed, after which the program was turned over to Mrs. Bruce Sugg, who gave a most interesting and instructive paper on "The Negro in Contemporary Literature."

In referring to the subject Mrs. Sugg mentioned John Charles McNeil, our own North Carolina Negro poet, and his poem, "Mr. Nigger"; James Weldon Johnson, one of the best known negro writers of today; the sensuous poetry of Paul Lawrence Dunbar; the speeches of Booker T. Washington. She listed some of the best known negro poets and prose writers beginning Phyllis Wheatley of Colonial Days; Geo. Moses Horton, who appeared in 1829; Francis Watkins Harper, a contemporary of Horton, who published a volume of poems in 1852; W. E. Dubois, a negro poet of the nineteenth century; Countee Cullen, who wrote a volume of poetry entitled "Color" and "Copper Sun." She read several selections from the various poets mentioned.

Following the program Mrs. Wooten served a most tempting three-course turkey dinner.

After spending a most delightful afternoon, the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. W. L. Best on Evans street January 12th.—Reported.

RED OAK NEWS

Sunday was the time for election of officers in our Sunday School. We have had an unusually good Sunday School the past year, and little change was made in the officers.

We will have as superintendent, H. H. May, with James Allen as assistant. Mrs. James Allen will teach the adult class for the fourth year with R. S. Allen as assistant. Mrs. Bessie James will continue as the Sunshine class teacher with Mrs. Leon Tyson as her assistant. Miss Ella V. May will remain as teacher of the class she has taught since the Sunday School was organized about fifteen years ago and will have as her assistant, Mrs. Hazzard May. We have two splendid classes composed of boys and girls eight to fourteen years of age. Miss Rubelle Vandiford has charge of the boys' class and will be assisted by Mrs. Patrick Vainwright. The girls' class will be taught by Miss Inez Allen with Mrs. Clyde Bright as her assistant.

Last but not least is our beginners' class which has thirty-three tiny tots on roll. Mrs. Thurman Page will have charge of these as she has for the past three or four years. Mrs. H. C. Smith will remain as her assistant.

Our record for the past quarter showed an average attendance of approximately eighty-five. We want every officer and teacher to be present every time on time, and let's have the biggest and best Sunday School that we have ever had at Red Oak.

Don't forget these services: Sunday School every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock; our mid-weekly meetings every Wednesday night at 7:00 o'clock; services every third Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock and Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock by our pastor, Rev. Gilbert Davis. Won't you join us in these services?

GERMANS HONOR STONE THAT STOPPED HITLER

Salz, Germany (AP)—Because it stopped Hitler's car, a stone just bigger than a cobblestone has been lifted from the mud and put on a pedestal where it is worshipped now as a "sacred Hitler shrine."

"It will be an eternal relic for Germans and all generations to come," said the burgomaster of this village in his speech at the public celebration which marked the dedication of the stone hallowed by the touch of a tire of Der Fuehrer's car.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

SYNOPSIS: Plainly determined to remain aloof, Madame Karsnakoff, the Russian dancer, arouses great interest among her shipmates. Bigelow sees her as a striking looking woman with magnetism and charm. His old friend, Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, sees her as a guarded, watchful creature, waging life's battle ruthlessly. Bigelow is returning to New York, after many years in Paris, in response to his aunt's appeal that he check up on a Count Vronski whom her step-daughter Anne may marry.

Woody tossed one bottle upon the bed, and struck a posture with the other, swinging it like a club. "So that how it is, eh?" he said. "A right, put me out! Come on. Put me out!" Bigelow advanced, Woody swung a chance to rescue a damsel in distress these days. She laughed outright at that. "You make me feel delightfully young and helpless," she said. "And I have not felt that for a long time. Do you think he will sleep quietly, now, until you get him back to where he belongs?" "I'm sure of it."

"And you can carry him without assistance?" "Easily."

"Then—perhaps you will remove him—please—and afterward come back to my sitting room? It is just next door. And I will accept this little gift of the champagne and we will share it. So we shall be compensated for the bother he has caused us and she shall make amends. No?" "Yes," said Bigelow.

He picked up the unresisting body of young Taylor and carried him across the corridor. There he telephoned down for the number of Woody's room and got the steward to help him. Fortunately, they met no one on the way.

"You have been very kind," said Karsnakoff gratefully. "It was such a difficult situation. I did not wish to ring and have the whole ship gossiping tomorrow. And my maid would not arrive."

"You will remove him?" "Yes, he'd had much too much to drink, you know. I'll take him back to his room."

"You are an American, or are you French?" she asked, regarding him.

"I am an American, but I have lived in Paris since I was little."

"Ah, that is it," she nodded. "I have been watching you and I have wondered. Why is it you have not come to talk to me? Four days we have been on this ship, now, and all the others have come, but not you. Why?"

"Well—I noticed that you didn't seem to want to talk," said he.

"But to those others? Naturally not," said she. "They have not interested me at all. With you, it is different. Just because I find myself on this ship, must I make friends with many people who do not interest me and whom I would not know in Paris? No, I am nothing. I have nothing. Only the right to choose to whom I shall speak—that I shall always have. . . . Cigarette?"

"I'll smoke my own if you don't mind," said Bigelow smiling as she extended a huge silver box.

"But of course. These are Russian. Very strong if you are not used to them." She accepted a light and leaned back, inhaling. "This is very nice," she said. "The nicest moments I have had on this ship. Some more wine please!"

"Can I be of some service?" asked Bigelow.

"Yes, for God's sake, get this man out of my room!" cried the woman angrily. "I left the door unlatched so that my maid could come in. And when he knocked, I thought it was Mariushka and cried, 'The door is open, stupid one!' And he came in. And he will not go away. He insists that I drink with him!"

Chapter Two Champagne For Two

AS BIGELOW turned into the corridor that led to his room, he heard the row—a man's voice rumbling on in an undertone and a woman's voice excitedly rising above it.

He discovered, as he drew nearer, that the sounds were coming from Karsnakoff's room. And then he heard quite distinctly in what was evidently Karsnakoff's voice:

"Will you go at once, or must I call for help and make a scandal?"

He knocked softly on Karsnakoff's door.

"Come in. Come in!" she called distractedly.

Bigelow opened the door. The Russian woman—clapping a soft white negligee about her—stood facing Woody Taylor. He was very drunk and he had a bottle of champagne under each arm. Karsnakoff had evidently been in bed, for her feet were bare, and her dark hair—usually drawn in smooth shining bands over her ears—now hung loose in a dark cloud to her shoulders.

"Can I be of some service?" asked Bigelow.

"Yes, for God's sake, get this man out of my room!" cried the woman angrily. "I left the door unlatched so that my maid could come in. And when he knocked, I thought it was Mariushka and cried, 'The door is open, stupid one!' And he came in. And he will not go away. He insists that I drink with him!"

"I'll drink won't do you any harm," said Woody wheedlingly.

"Please—" cried the woman, looking at Bigelow.

As Bigelow advanced, Woody Taylor swung the champagne bottle.

the bottle, Karsnakoff screamed, but Bigelow had ducked the blow and Woody had lost his balance. He crashed to the floor of the cabin, lay there blinking stupidly for an instant and, with a long sigh, passed out.

Bigelow stood over him waiting. Woody began to snore. Bigelow lifted him a little and looked at him. But he was not faking; he was out.

"He sleeps, eh?" asked Karsnakoff.

"Yes, he'd had much too much to drink, you know. I'll take him back to his room."

"You have been very kind," said Karsnakoff gratefully. "It was such a difficult situation. I did not wish to ring and have the whole ship gossiping tomorrow. And my maid would not arrive."

HIGHS AT HOME FRIDAY NIGHT

Cage Team to Play Strong New Bern Bears Here

Coach Reynolds May's court squad went through a long scrimmage yesterday in preparation for their game Friday night with the powerful New Bern Bears.

Coach Alston of the Bears will bring a veteran quint to this city and the Greensies will have to turn in a top notch performance if they are to register a victory.

Running on the first team yesterday were four members of last year's Championship squad, Dubose Simpson at center, George Lautares and Carl Pierce at the forward posts and Tom Parrish at one of the guards. Only Joe Heston, who played the other guard with Parrish is missing and Coach May has two capable reserves to fill his place. Howard Hodges and Tom Cox are the two boys fighting it out for the other guard post and both boys are coming along fast. It is still undecided who will get the starting berth Friday.

The man the Greensies will have to watch Friday night is Fred Lockey, giant New Bern center. This boy was the spark plug of the New Bern team of two years ago that went through the season without losing a game. He didn't play last year due to ineptibility, but he is back this year as well as two other members of that team. It will be interesting to see whether Dubose Simpson can stop this 6 foot 1 inch dynamo.

The complete 1936 Greenville High basketball schedule which was to have been announced today will come out the first of next week. Season tickets are now on sale and are going fast. With the first home game only two days off, fans are urged to buy them quickly.

This ticket entitles a person to see all of the games the Greenville cagers play at home during the 1937 season. There will be eleven home games. It also entitles a person to see all of the girls' games.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Buyers were timid in today's stock market as prices shuffled along indistinctly.

Traders were still under the spell of automobile strikes, although prophecies brightened as federal conciliators attempted to bring about a settlement of the General Motors Corporation controversy.

The activity slowed appreciably near the fourth hour while Wall Street awaited the contents of the president's message to Congress.

Bonds emulated stocks and commodities moved unevenly.

PINE MAY DEPOSE COTTON AS SOUTHERN 'KING' CROP

pine trees as a basic product.

Dr. Herty also discovered a method for the extraction of fat from pines. This opened a new vista of profit for the pine farmer-trees for the finest grades of bond and book paper.

Experiments have shown that an acre of southern land will grow from four to 12 cords of slash pine a year. Slash is the fastest growing variety in the pine family.

Proponents say paper and cloth industries based on southern pine forests would be self-perpetuating since young forests are used and may be replanted to serve in a 10-year cycle.

Farmers themselves already have turned to planting pine trees as a crop.

C. M. Jordan, south Georgia planter, says he has planted 178,000 slash pines on 600 acres.

"Added to the agricultural crops," declares Jordan, "I think the growing of pines insures the southern farmer the brightest future ever."

Nurseries operated by states and the federal government are turning out millions of seedlings a year.

Georgia operates two nurseries and, officials say, despite distribution of 5,000,000 seedlings this year, orders of many farmers necessarily had to go unfilled.

Forester Dyal places the income the farmer may expect from a pine tree crop "conservatively at from $16 to $25 an acre for pulp alone."

With the soilconservation service, planting crops of pines in the south is big business.

This winter the service, aided by the CCC corps, will plant 50,000,000 trees, the majority pines, throughout the southeast; 175,000,000 over the nation.

Chinese Brides Carry Knives to Weddings

Canton, China (AP)—Belligerent brides who carry knives to their weddings are China's latest expression of the New Woman.

They are members of the Spinners' Society of Canton, sworn never to marry. When forced into marriage by old-fashioned families, they pay alimony to their husbands rather than live with them.

The alimony goes to hire concubines for the husbands.
