MUCH DISPUTE ON PROPOSALS OF ROOSEVELT

Reorganization Plan Occasions Capital Arguments

CONGRESS TEEMS WITH ACTIVITY

House Group Studies Relief Request; Senators on Van Sweringen Hearing

Washington, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Administration leadership in the House recognized opposition to President Roosevelt's vast reorganization program today, but predicted favorable action on it.

Speaking "naturally there would be a wide range of views on such a program" Speaker Bankhead said expected the House to "approve a program with possibly a few changes as to details."

The plan to create two new cabinet posts, abolish the Comptroller General's office and otherwise reorganize the executive set-up overshadowed in capital interest, resumption of a senate inquiry into railroad financing and the start of a hearing on relief appropriations.

First of a list of prominent financiers to appear before the Senate investigators in the renewed hearings Joseph Swan, former president of a New York investment firm, testified "we made a mistake" in underwriting a $30,000,000 real estate note issued for the late Van Sweringen brothers, railroad magnates of Cleveland.

Washington, Jan. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's government reorganization plan occasioned arguments today throughout the capital which for the first time this session turned with Congress' main activities.

With most of the organization preliminaries over, committees began studying legislation. A House group took up the president's request for a $790,000,000 relief fund and the senate inquiry into financing of the Van Sweringen railroads was resumed.

Everywhere the principal topic was Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to place the 100-odd government agencies under 12 cabinet departments, and virtually all federal workers under civil service and supply, the independent comptroller general and an auditor.

Administration leaders hailed the projected changes as bringing efficiency to the government, but Republicans and some Democrats were quick to voice objections.

Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Bridges (R-N. H.) took the lead among the opposition forces. On the Democratic side Senator Ford of Virginia called for a cut of $500,000,000 a year, through abolition of many bureaus. The president's plan would reduce expenses only about $30,000,000 unless Congress should curtail agencies.

Byrd's opposition was regarded as important by many of his colleagues. He is chairman of a special senate committee studying reorganization.

Little legislation will be enacted before the inauguration next Wednesday.

Wreck Last Night Will Cost Negro Sum For Damages

Henry Corbin Held Responsible For Accident at Intersection of Fifth and Green Streets

Henry Corbin, negro, was taxed with his costs and ordered to pay for damages to a car belonging to Miss Alice Corey in City court this morning as a result of a wreck at the intersection of Green and Fifth streets about dusk last night.

According to officers who investigated the wreck, the negro made a left turn directly in front of Miss Corey, striking her car head-on. Both cars were traveling on Fifth street.

Jim Pettus, negro, was ordered held for trial in County court on charges of possessing illicit liquor for the purpose of sale. Bond was set at $300 following the preliminary hearing before Mayor M. K. Mount.

Lucy Ellen Faircloth, negro woman, was bound over to County court under bond of $200 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. She is alleged to have fired a shot gun through the window of a room in which her husband was sleeping at the home of another negro couple. The charge from the shot went through the wall and scattered splinters over the floor of another room.

African Explorer Dies Of Injuries In Plane Crash

Martin Johnson Second Passenger to Succumb As Result of Air Mishap in California Yesterday; 11 Others Hurt

Los Angeles, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Martin Johnson, 52, famous African explorer, died in an airplane crash north of Los Angeles yesterday, died at Good Samaritan hospital today of his injuries.

The big game hunter, one of 12 hurt in the crash which killed another passenger, had suffered a concussion, fractures of both legs, multiple fractures of both jaws, fractured nose and severe shock. Johnson was the 29th victim of Western Transport crashes in a month.

He was brought to the hospital early today after receiving emergency treatment last night in a ranger lookout station near the spot where the Sal Lake City-Los Angeles airliner pancaked yesterday.

With his wife, Oca, his companion on many African sars with movie cameras, Johnson, a native of Rockford, Ill., was on his way to fill a series of lecture engagements in Southern California. Mrs. Johnson suffered concussions and a fractured right knee.

Describing the crash graphically, rescuers and survivors told of a pistol shot of a pilot to signal aid; a stewardess heroine; screams of the 12 survivors carried to the ear of a sanatorium patient.

Richard Gardner, deputy county surveyor quoted Pilot William Lewis as saying "the Burbank station seemed tied up with other calls," and he couldn't get through; also that ice formed on the wing; he lost his course and one motor sputtered badly."

James Braden, president of an ink company of Cleveland, was the first fatality. Using a six-mule team and wagon, rescuers toiled all night to bring out the injured during a snow storm. The ship struck a foothill in murky weather 16 miles from its terminal destination.

OFFICERS HUNT PREPARE HOLD FOR KIDNAPER ANNUAL DANCE

Search Spreads From Canada Down To Mexico Meeting Held Last Night to Plan Annual FDR Ball

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Armed with definite clues, officers hunted from Northernmost Washington to the California-Mexican border today for the kidnaped killer of little Charles Mattson, urged on by President Roosevelt's plea that the brutal crime be solved quickly.

A man who became frightened and ran away from a newsstand was sought in the vicinity of San Bernardino, Calif.

Federal investigators displayed some interest in an unidentified man reported to have acted "queer" while traveling on a bus ticket issued in Kelso, Wash., and whose frozen body was found. He was described, however, as being older than the age generally attributed to the kidnaper.

Department of justice operatives kept secret whether they sought one or two men for the brutal crime.

Dr. W. W. Matson, who tried in vain to pay the $28,000 ransom demanded, indicated in an anguish cry he believed there was more than one kidnaper.

MATTSON FAMILY PREPARES FOR FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Charles Mattson's flower-banked casket today shielded from the gaze of his sorrowing family the wounds he suffered at the hands of a kidnaper and slayer.

Hundreds of officers hunted through the Pacific-Northwest for the kidnaper of 10-year-old Tacoma boy as Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Matson prepared for the funeral services today.

Bathtub Staying Promptly Solved

Harlem Negro Seized and Charged With Murdering Pretty Mrs. Mary Robinson 36 Hours After Body Is Found

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The case of the bathtub slaying of pretty Mrs. Mary Robinson came to a swift and unexpected denouement today when investigators seized a 33-year-old Harlem negro and charged him with the crime.

Thirty-six hours after the 25-year-old housewife was strangled and beaten to death in her Jackson Heights, Queens apartment, District Attorney Charles Sullivan announced Major Greene, wire negro porter employed in the apartment building, had been charged with the woman's murder.

Greene who previously had been questioned and then released was arrested at his home in Harlem and taken to the apartment where Frank Case, 30, hotel supply company employee, found the battered body of his wife Monday. Later he was taken to Newton police station.

Greene was employed at a bathhouse club overlooking the Case apartment from an adjacent wing in the same building.

Gold Bullion Shipment Arrives At Destination

Fert Knox, Ky., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The first bars of golden bullion that are to make this army base the greatest gold depository were unloaded here today under conditions that smacked of world war days.

There was an estimated $200,000,000 of gold but nobody saw it. It was all wrapped up. The few spectators whose credentials had been scrutinized

LEGISLATIVE CHAFF and CHATTER

Raleigh, Jan. 13.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey is fast becoming known as one of the most democratic of chief executives. Sunday he was seen strolling down Fayetteville street with one other companion, no body guard or anything like it.

Monday night he drove down from the governor's mansion to the Sir Walter to attend the Fair Association banquet. Alighting from his car and entering the lobby he found the diners had reached the song-singing stage but had not quite completed their last course, and so he just waited around outside the door, looking rather lonely as he stood there all by himself.

Spied by a news man he laughingly said "I'm just waiting for them to finish eating. No use bothering them now."

When he finally entered the banquet hall the orchestra was playing "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" and it was some time before he was recognized. Then the musicians swung into

Man Wanted Here For Cruel Attack Caught In Georgia

Bernice Aspinwall Being Brought Back Here To Stand Trial With Bernard Moore, Arrested Near Here Last Friday

Bernice Aspinwall, one of two young white men who are alleged to have brutally attacked G. Lem Pleasant, the night of December 28, probably was on his way back to this section of the state today in the custody of Police Chief George Clark and Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst.

A telephone call from the sheriff at Jessup, Ga., at 8:55 last night informed officers that the young man had been arrested there. But Chief Clark, uncle of the victim, and Sheriff Whitehurst were already on their way to conduct a thorough search in the immediate vicinity in which he was apprehended. Word was sent on ahead of the two officers that the man had been taken in custody and they probably were informed of the arrest before they reached their destination.

At mid-afternoon this afternoon no word had been received from the

FINAL REPORT COUNTY HEADS ON LEAF SALES CALLED MEET

Offerings Over State Down From 1935; Average Higher Commissioners to Oppose Law Increasing Exemptions

Producers' tobacco sold in North Carolina to January 1 from the 1936 crop totaled 422,505,834 pounds, or only 81 per cent of the 522,646,845 pounds sold to that date a year ago, the crop reporting service of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture announced today in Raleigh.

The season's average price to date, however, was $22.65 per hundred pounds, or $1.93 higher than that of last season to date.

In 1936, North Carolina produced 464,895,000 pounds of tobacco valued at $105,504,000, as compared with 577,435,000 pounds in 1935 with a total value of $117,443,000. Estimates for all flue-cured tobacco show 1935 as one of the record years in yields. The total acreage harvested during 1935 was 874,000 with a total of 811,995,000 pounds produced, as compared with 881,000 acres in 1936 with 695,075,000 pounds produced.

Producers' sales throughout the state during December, as shown by the 194 warehouses reporting, amounted to 27,398,023 for an average price of $19.32.

Greenville markets were surpassed only by those of Wilson in season's producers' sales. The local houses sold 41,744,275 pounds as compared with 48,156,616 pounds by the Wilson markets. These were the only two markets in the state which reported producers' sales of more than 40,000,000 pounds for the season.

Record Year Enjoyed By Guaranty Bank & Trust

The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company was held in the Sheppard Memorial Library, yesterday afternoon, with E. G. Flanagan, who has served the bank as President since 1912, presiding.

The meeting was the most enthusiastic held in years with a large number of stockholders attending in person, and a substantial percentage of the stockholders represented in person and by proxy.

J. H. Waldrop, cashier, submitted a report of the condition of the bank as of December 31st, 1936 showing deposits of $6,068,739.72. Total Resources $6,779,993.88. In his report he stated that the year end totals of resources, deposits, capital and surplus and earnings were the highest of any year end report of the bank to date. He reported net earnings of $84,616.25 which represented 41 per cent of the common capital, $30,000 paid out in dividends, $50,000 was added to surplus account. He stated that the total dividends paid by the bank to date was 403.2 per cent amounting to $1,200,000.

STATE VOTE ON WHISKEY ISSUE ASKED IN BILL

Another Proposal Makes Kidnapping Capital Offense

SEEKS CHANGE IN PRIMARY DATES

Wets Quick to Offer Opposition to Bill Calling for State-Wide Referendum

Raleigh, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Bills to make kidnapping a capital offense in North Carolina, provide a state-wide referendum on liquor, prohibit the sale of fireworks, change the days and hours for primaries, and to reorganize the highway commission, reached the legislature today.

Senator Abernethy, of Caldwell, proposed a constitutional amendment to be submitted at the next general election to authorize the legislature to list kidnapping among the state's capital crimes.

Mrs. Hutchins of Yancey, and 11 other house members introduced the bill calling for a state vote November 2 on the question of prohibiting the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors, but permitting the setting up of central depositories to handle medicinal whiskey and wines for religious use.

Representative Cooper of New Hanover and Representative Williams of Pasquotank, author of the act under which 16 counties have liquor stores, expressed immediate opposition.

"It is a dangerous bill and it must be killed," Cooper said.

"I hope and believe the bill will be killed," Williams commented.

"We wets will have a better one to offer later."

A liquor study commission recently filed a majority report recommending a state supervised system of county operated stores approved by county election. The new bill provides no machinery if the state should vote "wet."

Representatives got one bill to prohibit the sale of fire works throughout the state and another to prohibit them in Buncombe county, where a Christmas Eve explosion in a fireworks store killed two and injured 11.

The new election law proposals would have primaries held Tuesdays instead of Saturdays from 7:30 and 6:30 instead of between sunrise and sunset.

Seeks To Nullify Scottsboro Case Results In State

Bill Introduced in Senate Would Empower Superior Court Judges to Dissolve Grand Juries

Raleigh, Jan. 12.—(Reflector Bureau)—Recalling successful nullification of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments by indirection, veteran political observers see a similar effort to nullify the U. S. Supreme court decision in the Scottsboro case in a bill introduced by Senator James A. Bell of Mecklenburg empowering superior court judges to dissolve grand juries at their pleasure.

Of course the bill cuts both ways, the same observers agree, as it would give judges the power to prevent discrimination against negro jurors by use of the same power of dissolution.

Senator Bell declined to commit himself definitely on the meaning and implications of his proposal, but smilingly offered no objections to the interpretation that it was an effort to nullify the Scottsboro decision.

It was recalled on all sides that negroes have recently served on Mecklenburg grand and petit juries for the first time since reconstructions days. It was pointed out at the time that the protesting judge had no course open to him other than to quash all indictments found by grand juries on which negroes had not been drawn.

But if the Bell proposal becomes a law, any judge could dissolve any grand jury whose composition he did not like and there are many who believe that the jurists would not hesitate to exercise this power in such a way as to prevent too many negroes serving as well as to prevent too gross discrimination against members of the negro race.

The measure does not extend to petit juries, observers believe. Because attorneys for the state or for the defense can always take care of the situation there by use of the challenges allowed by law.

GET THAT BOYS' DORMITORY

The recent report of the state budget commission makes no provision for the men's dormitory that is so badly needed at East Carolina Teachers College here, and unless our people can prevail upon the legislature to have such an item included in the appropriations, we will not get the dormitory.

During the past few years there has been an increasing number of applications from the young men of this section for admission to the college, but so far the number accepted has been very limited because of lack of facilities to care for them. The few men students living at the college are being quartered in the basement of one of the college buildings and there is no room to take care of more, even in this manner, so under the present arrangement male students seeking admission to the college must find places in town to live while they attend college.

Despite the fact that East Carolina Teachers College is a co-educational institution, and the male students are entitled to attend if they so desire, the state is making no provision to take care of the male students in the way of housing facilities. If facilities for male students are provided at the college, it will make it possible for many men of this section to attend the college. An increased number of male students at the college would be a great asset to the college and in the end to the teaching profession of the state for which the college students are trained, and it goes without saying that more men in attendance at the college would be a great asset to Greenville and this community.

Unless our people will get busy now in a united effort to get the legislature to provide the facilities for male students at the college they will not be provided and if they are not provided it will be a great loss to this community. Every organization and individual in this city should get busy now and place this matter before our own members of the legislature and through them before the entire membership in the hope that the state will make it possible for the male students, who so desire, to attend the college here.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

By FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Bigelow, young American-born Parisian, comes to New York at his aunt's request to check on a Count Vronski whom her step-daughter Anne may marry. Anne proves a charming, independent girl. They arrange a dinner party, including Vronski and Karsanokoff, the stunning Russian dancer whom Bigelow met on the ship. She had shown a vested interest when he mentioned Vronski. As the two Russians meet, Bigelow is sure Karsanokoff recognizes the count. At the night club, Vronski rudely neglects Anne to chat in Russian with the dancer.

Chapter Eight Murder At The Studio

BIGELOW wondered what game Karsanokoff was playing. He had interpreted that guarded look in her eyes when she had first glimpsed Vronski as an indication that she disliked or distrusted him. But had it meant that? Might not her excitement have been due to another cause altogether and the guarded look only an attempt to conceal her exultation? Might not the jewels she had mentioned be responsible for her keen interest in the man—those famous Vronski jewels about which she had so swiftly questioned him?

As the dance ended and they separated, a girl leaned forward from a table nearby and called out, "Don't forget you are lurching with me tomorrow, darling!" "Colony at one," nodded Anne. "Those are the Drydens," she murmured to Bigelow as they went back toward their own table. He had the impression of a piquant dark face. The man at the table, he did not notice at all. Afterward, he was sorry about that.

Their table was deserted. Karsanokoff and Vronski were gone. "Probably in the bar," said Anne. "The bottle here appears to be empty and with this crowd, the service can't be very quick."

As they sat down, the waiter arrived with their next course, but Karsanokoff and Vronski did not come back.

"Tell me about yourself—your life in Paris?" urged Anne. He talked more to distract her than to dispense information. When Karsanokoff and Vronski had turned toward Anne, Bigelow asked Anne to dance again. He had been watching for them and saw them in good time. Anne had seen them, too, and saw through the maneuver, but she made no comment. And this went on throughout the evening. Vronski did not once linger at the table to ask Anne to dance. He spent most of his time with Karsanokoff at the bar.

But at one o'clock, when Anne was thinking about going home, Vronski and Karsanokoff appeared bearing tidings.

"We are having a party," cried Vronski. "I have already asked people. I knew you would be charmed. He was flushed and a little drunk. "A party?" repeated Anne. "When?"

"Now. At once. At your studio," explained Vronski. "I am indeed charmed," said Anne rather dryly. "Let's go, then."

She rose, gathering up her bag and her cigarette case. The others followed her lead. . . . Bigelow thought that Karsanokoff was regarding Anne sympathetically. She had not been drinking, apparently.

In the car again, Vronski spoke to Karsanokoff in Russian. "Please—" cried Karsanokoff, "I like to make perfect my English. Besides when you speak Russian the others cannot understand."

"That is why I speak it," answered Vronski laughing. "Anne will not mind. We shall go our own ways even after we marry. It is—your understanding—a marriage of convenience. Her convenience as much as mine. And he laughed again. They all glanced at Anne.

"You can see what a convenient husband Count Vronski would make," said Anne, with a smile. But Bigelow noted that she did not deny his insinuation that they were to marry.

"If I Have To Kill Him" ANNE'S studio in 55th Street was over some shops. The house was in darkness as they drove up, but Anne dismissed the car for the night and let them in with her latch-key. Leaving the front door open for the guests who would be arriving, and the light in the hallway on, they mounted the stairs. The top floor belonged to Anne, and it was a roomier place than one might have imagined from outside.

There was first, the studio—a working studio—with a huge skylight and all a painter's equipment about it. It was rather scantily furnished with a couple of big couches, a table, a writing desk and a few chairs, but there were dozens of pictures. Next to the studio was a bedroom, and beyond that a luxuriously appointed bath. Beyond the bath was a large, well appointed kitchen. And the rooms as well as opening into one another, Bombshell" whose battles featured the 1925 assembly sessions has a good word to say about Lloyd S. Elkins, of Bladenboro.

"There's a fellow who came up where without a single voice raised against him," the Bombshell told news men Monday night.

Incidentally the 1937 session will probably prove more profitable, if not more pleasant, to Mr. Page. Defeated for re-election to the Senate he has been employed as a lobbyist against the Child Labor amendment.

Thad Eure, new secretary of state, is finding it hard to break old habits. Monday night just after the House session had adjourned, he was spied sitting in his old seat—that reserved for the principal clerk. It was entirely evident that the fair men attending the State Fair Association session here were being sweet to members of the legislative finance committees, hoping for a reduction in the tax on carnival and fair "Midways."

If J. C. Hobbs, of New Hanover, a member of the house money group is to be believed, they made little progress.

"No soap," he commented tersely. Mr. Hobbs is something of a pessimist, too. Shown the budget estimates he groaned: "We'll be here 'til August."

also opened into the small hall that ran from the studio to the kitchen. Anne switched on the lights and ushered them through, beaming at their approval. "It is a comfortable little place," she admitted with pride. "My very own pied a terre. . . . Make yourselves comfortable, won't you, while I go and consider the question of food and drink."

"I'll order food sent in," said Vronski, "if you can manage the drink."

"I think so," said Anne. "I'll see." "I'll come and help, too, if I may," said Bigelow. He followed Anne into the kitchen. Karsanokoff remained at the table looking at the examples of Anne's work as Vronski went to the telephone on the desk.

In the kitchen, Anne opened cupboards and began to set out bottles and glasses. Bigelow lent a hand. "So you are going to marry him," said Bigelow, breaking a long silence.

Anne turned and looked at him. "I am not going to marry him," she said with sudden intensity. "If I have to kill him to escape."

He stared at her, startled. "He has some hold on you," he cried, grasping the truth, at last. "Yes, isn't it obvious? I should have thought you would have guessed. Otherwise I shouldn't have spoken."

"Let's see," asked Bigelow, quietly. He had gone very pale and his eyes were burning. "Yes. A faint color rose in her cheeks and she dropped her lashes. "Don't think any more about it," said Bigelow, then. "I'll deal with him."

Anne caught her breath. "No!" she cried fiercely. "You don't trust me to handle the matter?"

"Of course, I trust you. It isn't that I got into this mess. And I'm going to get out of it. There's no earthly reason for you to become involved."

"But—I am involved," said Bigelow gravely. She stared at him. "You mustn't be. I shall handle this myself in my own way. I should never have mentioned it. I was a fool. Promise me you will keep out of it—do nothing. Promise me!"

"I can't promise," said Bigelow. She bit her lip. "Listen," she said then grimly. "I am quite capable of looking after myself. And I don't want any outside interference. It's very kind and chivalrous of you to offer and I appreciate your good intentions, but please don't meddle. It's my own business, after all, and I prefer to manage it in my own way. Is that clear?"

"Quite clear," said Bigelow slowly. She turned and dashed into the bathroom, slamming the door. Bigelow continued for a moment or two, mechanically taking down his glasses. Then he stopped, staring before him with frowning brows. . . .

A Shot, A Scream, Darkness SUDDENLY, there came the sound of a shot. It seemed to come from the studio. And an instant afterward, all the lights in the apartment went out. A woman screamed—but whether it was Anne or Karsanokoff, Bigelow could not guess.

When the lights went on again, they were all in the studio. Anne stood with her hand still on the light switch, but her face was colorless and her eyes were fixed with a kind of horrified fascination on the floor. Karsanokoff stood in the doorway leading from the bedroom. Her eyes, too, were on the floor but her face was enigmatic. Bigelow stood in the doorway leading in from the hall. And near the center of the big room, lay the crumpled figure of Vronski. He had been shot through the heart and he was dead. The automatic that had killed him lay on the floor beside him. But it was not suicide—Bigelow knew that. One of them had killed him. But which?

Madame Karsanokoff was the first of the three to recover from the shock of the discovery—if indeed she had felt any sense of shock. Without a noticeable change of expression, she advanced slowly to Vronski's body and knelt down on the floor beside it, examining it critically without actually touching it.

"Is he—dead?" asked Anne in a hoarse whisper. "Yes. He is quite dead," answered Karsanokoff, nodding her head. "He died instantly, I think."

She looked up through narrowed lids—first at Anne, then at Bigelow, waiting. "If we call the police," said Bigelow, "it means a scandal—and certainly the arrest of—one of us three."

Anne caught her breath sharply. Karsanokoff studied him as though her eyes sought to see into his secret thoughts. "They will arrest me, of course," said Anne. "That is my gun."

"Yours?" repeated Karsanokoff, looking at it. "Yes. It was in the bed—stand next to my bed. I kept it—for protection, you know. I spent so much time here—alone."

LOCALS DOWN WILSON QUINT

Boys Win 44-20 Victory; Girls Lose by Single Goal

Playing before a near capacity crowd in their auditorium, the local High School basketball teams triumphed in one game of a double header played with Charles L. Coon High School of Wilson. The Greenville boys, playing their first Class A contest, defeated the Wilson outfit by a score of 44 to 20.

Dubose Simpson, who collected the total of 13 points, led the locals and was followed up by Pierce and Parrish, who made 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The Wilson boys were led by Cockrell, who made half of their entire score.

The game was scoreless practically all of the first quarter. Afterwards both teams ran up their scores to 19-13 in favor of Greenville at the half.

NO MORE MOVIES' DECLARES PADEREWSKI

London (AP) — Paderewski will make no more films. The world-famous pianist was quite emphatic about it when he left for his home at Morges, Switzerland, after completing work in Lehar Mendes' "Moonlight Sonata" at the Denham studios in Buckinghamshire.

"I am going back into retirement to rest," he said, "but when I am fully rested and if my doctor thinks I am well enough, it might be possible that I shall do some further concerts in England and elsewhere."

LOCALS PRIME FOR PHANTOMS

Greenies to Journey to New Bern Tonight for Game

Fresh from their victory over Wilson High school, the Green Phantoms will journey to New Bern tonight to play the Bears in their return engagement.

They return to their local port Friday night to take on Coach Bob Eason's Rocky Mount Blackbirds. This game should give the Greenies their stiffest test of the season. Rocky Mount and Durham are the two teams that the locals will have to defeat, if they are to win the Class A championship. The fans will never forget the Rocky Mount-Greenville game of last year when the locals came from behind in the last minute of play to snatch a 27-24 victory.

Interest has been running high at all games played in the High School gym this year, and the game Friday with the powerful Blackbirds should draw the largest crowds to ever see a game on the Greenville court. The game on Friday will be a double header attraction with the boys' game starting promptly at 7:30, and the girls' coming on an hour later.

This is the second of a series of five discussions in the field of international relationships with special emphasis on the neutrality. These discussions are under the direction of the Greenville Council for Peace Action. Dr. W. A. Ryan, president of the Council, has issued a general invitation to all interested persons to attend these meetings. The time has been set sufficiently late so as not to interfere with the mid-week services of the churches.

Home Economics Club
Mrs. Adelaide E. Blount made a most interesting talk to the Home Economics Club of the College Tuesday evening on Williamsburg, her home town, describing the many points of interest and telling them about the restoration.

After the talk, they had a delightful social hour, the members participating in contests and dancing. Later refreshments were served.

To Speak in Rocky Mount
The Current Topics Club of Rocky Mount will have Dr. L. R. Meadows as its speaker at their meeting Monday evening, January 18. Dr. Meadows evidently has made a reputation in that county, as he addressed the members of the Edgecombe County Schoolmasters' Club on last Monday night. The chief point in this talk was that education leads to the economic security of the masses.

Kings Daughters Meet
On January 12 at 8 o'clock the Patient Circle of the Kings Daughters met with Mrs. W. M. Seales to celebrate the fifty-first anniversary of the organization. The history of the order was read. This showed that the organization was founded by ten women in New York City on January 13, 1886. The Kings Daughters work has grown steadily and now there are circles in every country in the world except Tibet. The motto of the order is "Lend a Hand" and the work, which is ministering to the poor, sick and needy, is done in His Name.

The regular business of the circle followed. Mrs. Richard Williams gave a report of the Christmas work done by the order. The circle was gratified to learn that many were helped and cheered at this time. Also the circle would like publicly to thank the Kiwanis club for their gifts, which consisted of an assortment of splendid toys wrapped ready for distribution.—Reported.

All who are interested in such a plan are cordially invited to attend the discussions.

Both last year and the year before the study group was successfully conducted under the leadership of Miss Rowe.

Mrs. H. L. Hodges was gracious hostess to members of her bridge club yesterday.

After luncheon they returned to the home of Mrs. Hodges where bridge was enjoyed for several hours.

Mrs. John Mitchell was awarded a pretty potted plant for high score.

Mrs. Hobgood Hostess at Bridge
Yesterday afternoon at her attractive home on Evans street, Mrs. A. E. Hobgood was a charming hostess at bridge.

Snappers, gladioli and potted plants in shades of yellow, pink and orchid, made an artistic background in the drawing room, living room and sun room, where tables were placed, and in the hall and dining room. At the end of several spirited games Mrs. L. H. Bowling was given a pair of vases for high score. Mrs. J. C. Lanier a white-note velvet salt and pepper set for low score.

Mrs. Hobgood, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Carroll, Mrs. J. H. Boyd, Jr., Mrs. S. L. Bridges and Mrs. Cecil Bilbro served a tempting salad course with Rurrian Tea.

Zimbalist Likes Golf
The golf virus several seasons ago attacked Zimbalist, the famous violinist, who will give a recital at the college on next Tuesday night, January 19. He had claimed that he disliked sports and preferred to take his exercise in long walks, until he began to manipulate a brassie and a putter. Before he realized it, he was playing golf and his interest increased until now he has one of the most elaborate bags and sets of clubs available, and plays golf just like everybody else. With one exception he is alone when he plays except for his little black terrier and the caddy who must carry the bag. When he has finished the last hole, Zimbalist carefully tallies his score. To date his very best record on a hole is seven.

Supper Club Meets
The Monthly Supper Club of the Christian church met on Tuesday, January 12, at which time was given to second in a series of programs on Racial Appreciation. At the previous month's meeting a very helpful interpretation of the life of Juliette Derricote was presented. At this meeting members of the club gave short biographical sketches of Mary McLeod Bethune, an educator; George Washington Carver, a scientist; and Charles Clinton Spaulding, a business man. The latter is a native and resident of North Carolina and Mary McLeod Bethune received part of her education in this state. ## RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Resolutions of respect: We, the members of the Pitt County Board of Education realize that by the death of Mr. Galloway this board has lost a loyal and valuable member and therefore resolve:

First: That aside from his family, home and church, our board will probably miss him most, however, we are grateful for the services that he rendered to the educational life of Pitt County during the time he has been a member of the Board of Education and during which time the whole school system has made splendid progress.

Second: That we bear testimony to his sincere interest and unflinching loyalty to the duties of the Board of Education and the schools of Pitt County during the time that he served as a member.

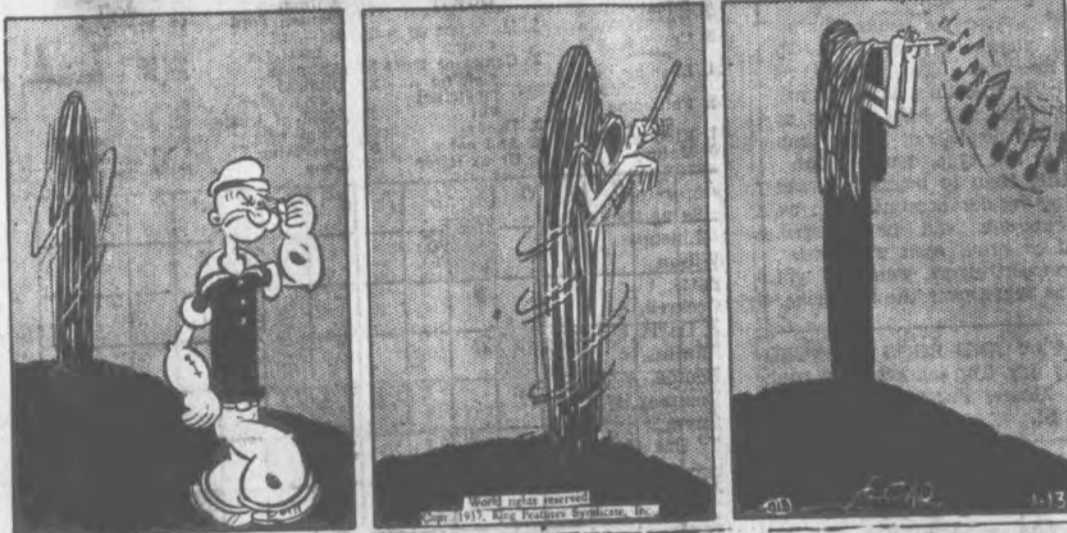

Third: We shall remember him for the good work he has done and the fine fellowship we had during the meetings of our board, and the other activities in connection with the school work. He always gave full consideration to any question that came up, and his attitude in expressing his opinion was always pleasant and at all times his manner was of the kind to build good feeling among his fellow members.

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of the Pitt County Board of Education, a copy mailed to the Greenville Reflector, and a copy sent to the family of the deceased.

Mr. Woolard stated that the bank had recently been examined by the State and Federal Deposit Insurance examiners. They reported the bank to be in excellent condition with the value of assets considerably in excess of the amount, carried on our books. He said that the bonds owned by the bank were worth $77,000 in excess of the book value. He commented on the sound condition of the loans and other investments in the bank, and stated that $200,000 of the loans were insured by Federal Housing Administration, and that the other loans were, in his opinion and the opinion of the examiners, safe and well secured.

He stated that the bank was reaping increasing business from the communities in which it operates branches and that all branches are operating on profitable basis.

MANY TAKE PART IN REVELS GIVEN BY PLAYMAKERS

Chapel Hill, Jan. 13.—Faculty members, students and members of the Carolina Playmakers, cavorted about the stage of the Playmakers Theatre at the University Saturday night when the "Twelfth Night" revels were presented.

Each year the Playmakers give an evening's entertainment in celebration of the 12th night after Christmas as depicted in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

The 1937 edition of the Playmakers' celebration consisted of a dramatization of the revel scene from Shakespeare's production and a modern skit, "You Can't Have It Here," written and directed by Bob Natchmann and Bob du Four.

Between scenes, individual acts by a number of Playmaker members and local talent were furnished.

Professors, students and townspeople attended as guests of the Playmakers.

Harry Davis, business manager of the group, acted as director-in-charge.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Another Question About CARDUI
Mothers Recommend It

"Why do so many MOTHERS recommend Cardui to their daughters? Isn't it but natural that any good mother should tell her daughters about Cardui if the mother herself felt that she had been benefited by this medicine?"

It is impressive that so many women report having taken Cardui on the advice of their mothers. Cardui has been found to benefit women when weakened by malnutrition (poor nourishment); and it helps to relieve much discomfort at monthly periods.

Thousands of women testify Cardui helped them. Of course, if it does not help you, consult a physician.
