OPEN HEARING TO BE HELD ON WHISKEY ISSUE

House Committee Postpones Consideration of Bill

STATEWIDE VOTE SOUGHT BY DRYS

John Hill Paylor Is Named on Committee to Study Proposed Liability Bill

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The House Judiciary committee number 100 postponed consideration of a bill proposing a statewide referendum on the prohibition of manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors in North Carolina today until it could hold a public hearing.

No one asked a public hearing, but the committee members decided some one probably would so they agreed action.

A sub-committee consisting of Representatives Horton of Martin, Pollock of Pitt and Thornton of Forsyth, was appointed to study measure introduced by Cooper of Cherokee requiring liability insurance of $5,000 by each owner of a motor car in the state.

No action was taken in the Delinger bill to abandon use of lethal gas and return to electricity for executions.

A pointment of Senators Eagles of Wilson and Ingram of Randolph and Representatives Rouse of Lee and Barker of Durham and Horner of Lee as a sub-committee to study the revenue bill section on motor advertising and possibly to file it was announced.

Renew Efforts On Drainage Project On Conetoe Creek

Committee To Be Asked by Health Officer to Alloit Sum For Preliminary Work

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer, said today he would request the county commissioners to appropriate $200 to be used in preliminary work leading up to efforts to secure a PWA project for major drainage control work along Conetoe creek.

The health officer will make the request with the approval of members of the Pitt Board of Health. Already Edgecombe county has allotted a similar amount for the preliminary work on condition Pitt do the same. It was pointed out that this money is not to be used to pay any salaries, but only in defraying the expenses of individuals who are contributing their time in the interest of the project. Dr. Ennett said the project was of vital importance to the county. He said that if Edgecombe goes ahead with its share of the work and Pitt does not join in the entire overflow from the part of the creek in Edgecombe would be dumped into this county, making a bad situation worse.

A move to drain the creek was started during the summer and a meeting was held in Tarboro with owners of property in the area in attendance. Since that time the Edgecombe county health department has been working on the project.

Lower Court Upholds Social Security Act

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Federal District Judge David Davis held in the federal social security act constitutional today and dismissed two suits asking injunctions to prevent collection of taxes levied under it.

More than 200 Alabama firms were petitioners in the suit. They pleaded "double payment" because the deputy collector of internal revenue refused to credit them with payments made under the Alabama social security act and attacked validity of the federal law.

Missing Man Found In Mountain Cave

Three weeks after his mysterious disappearance from his home at Rockwood, Tenn., a searching party found Tony Coston (above), 29, son of a doctor, in a mountain cave 10 miles from the town. He was in a serious condition from exposure and hunger and could not explain his presence in the cave. (Associated Press Photo)

SHIPS HALTED BY LOYALISTS

Bombs Dropped On Decks of Vessels Bearing Troops

(By the Associated Press) Bombs smashing on the deck of a Spanish insurgent warship stopped an attempted landing of fascist insurgent troops today in the south of Spain.

Spanish government planes routed a fleet of insurgent ships trying to land men at Estepona. Two 25-pound projectiles hit the deck of the cruiser Almirante Cervera. Fascist aerial bombers struck at three other points in southern and central Spain, wrecking trains bearing refugees from Madrid, and hitting a hospital.

Bent on complete neutrality, the United States federal government subpoenaed two American fliers returning from Spain and called them before a grand jury to tell of attempts to recruit Americans for fighting. The fliers, Bert Acosta and Gordon Berry, fought for a time with the Spanish government air fleet.

There were significant moves in the general European scene today.

Conley, county superintendent of schools. The superintendent was asked to accompany the inspector to aid him in locating the schools, advising as to the enrollment and number of teachers and also to help himself, would get first-hand information as to the sanitary condition of the schools.

Asheville Markets Complete 1936 Sales

Asheville, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Asheville burley tobacco market will close tomorrow after a record-breaking season. Sales through yesterday were 3,013,720 pounds at an average $38.50 a hundredweight.

Committee Unfavorable To Calling Referendum

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Jan. 14.—Advocates of a statewide liquor referendum admitted they lost their first skirmish in the House yesterday when they failed to take the measure away from Judiciary Committee No. 1 and have it referred to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances. "I was very much disappointed when the bill went to Judiciary No. 1," said Mercer J. Blankenship, of Mecklenburg, one of its sponsors. "For us, Propositions and Grievances would have been a much better group." This comment was made just after the House had defeated, with a roar of "naes" a motion by Mrs. Charles J. Hutchins, of Yancey, who introduced the bill, to take the measure away from Judiciary. Speaker Gregg Cherry's action in referring the bill to Judiciary, however, did not draw fire even from the driest of the drys as they recalled that the "Iron Major" was only following the precedent set in the 1933 session when Judiciary considered all liquor bills. "Wets—or controllers as they prefer to be called—were jubilant and freely predicted that the referendum measure would never see the light once it was buried in files of the committee. They counted noses and claimed 18 of the committee's 24 members. On the other hand they added up 15 dry members of the P. and G. group against no more than eight sure control advocates. Which goes to show how important the committee to which a bill is referred can be. Drys, as exemplified by Mr. Blankenship, contended the referendum bill is the "true expression" and "very essence of democracy." "I wish some regretted no control machinery is set up for the eventuality that the referendum might show a wet majority. "I think we should have waited (Continued on page six)

MATTSON CASE HUNT SPURRED BY NEW CLUES

Abandoned Car May Be That Used By Abductor of Boy

VEHICLE STOLEN ON FRIDAY NIGHT

As Search Continues For Kidnap-Slayer Officials Plan for Prosecution

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Federal bureau of investigation agents studied a blood stained tire chain today as the latest clue in their search for the kidnaper and slayer of Charles Mattson.

The bloody chain was taken from a stolen car recovered at Everett, Washington, near where the beaten body of the 10-year-old Tacoma kidnap victim was found Monday. A federal agent said tests had shown the substance staining the chain was human blood, but refused to say whether it had been provided to be Charles' blood.

Finding of a lipstick frozen in snow on the running board of the machine led officials to check the possibility of a feminine accomplice.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Red stains on an abandoned car, possibly the one into which a merciless kidnaper threw the body of Mattson, 10, spurred officers today along an apparently warming trail seeking the killer.

Uncommunicative justice department agents used the most modern science to determine whether the stains were blood which flowed from the little victim before his slayers' blows him battered, naked and stabbed in the back into snow covered brush lands near Everett.

The automobile, stolen last Friday night, was found in Everett. Authorities impounded it and stationed armed guards about it in a police garage.

While officers also sought a (Continued on page six)

Attorney General Quotes Greene As Confessing Guilt

Stocky Negro Porter Declared to Have Admitted Slaughtering Pretty New York Housewife

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—District Attorney Charles Sullivan announced today Major Greene, stocky negro porter, had signed a full confession to the bathtub slaying of pretty Mrs. Mary Robinson Case.

The 33-year-old porter broke down and admitted his guilt at 5:25 a. m., Sullivan said, after he had refused for 24 hours to admit complicity in the crime.

Three minutes later authorities had booked him at the Newtown police station in Queens. Greene answered questions freely when he was being charged.

He was transferred later to Manhattan police headquarters. Sullivan said the porter, who was employed in the Jackson Heights apartment building where the attractive 25-year-old housewife was strangled and beaten with a hammer before her lifeless body was dumped into a bathtub Monday, would be arraigned today in Queens felony court.

"That was the mo'ive," Sullivan said.

TWO OFFICERS CAPITAL TALK RETURN HOME ON PROPOSALS

Police Chief and Pitt Sheriff Bringing in Bernice Aspinwall

Chief of Police George Clark and Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst left Jessup, Ga., early this morning with Bernice Aspinwall, one of the alleged attackers of G. Lem Pleasant, in their custody.

The two local officers left here Tuesday afternoon to search for Aspinwall at that section, but before they arrived there the sheriff of the Georgia county notified police headquarters here that the young man already had been taken in custody.

Sheriff Whitehurst and Chief Clark were informed of the developments and they continued their trip to bring Aspinwall back here to stand trial with Bernard Moore, the other alleged attacker, who was taken in custody last Friday night.

Whether or not the officers will bring Aspinwall to the jail here was not known. When Moore was taken in custody he was carried to a jail outside Pitt county for fear of possible violence.

Chief Clark, father-in-law of Mr. Pleasant, said before he left here that the victim probably would be brought back here the first of the week. But it was doubtful that he will be able to testify against the pair at a term of court beginning Monday and lasting two weeks and the case probably will be deferred until another term.

Half the streets of Fitzgerald, Ga., a town of 6,000 population, are named for northern generals during the Confederate war; the other half for southern leaders.

LEGISLATIVE CHAFF and CHATTER

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—Senator A. Hall Johnson, of Buncombe, who has been chosen president pro tempore, has already disposed of all interviews for the session. (That's what he thinks.)

Talking to several representatives of the press recently he said: "There's no use in you boys coming to see me about anything. Whatever comes up, just quote me as saying: 'It's a lie and I'm agin' it.'"

Revenue from licenses to sell beer will approximate a cool million dollars for the fiscal year ending June 30. Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell told the joint meeting of House and Senate appropriations and finance committees Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Maxwell, by the way, is no friend of the slot machine. After citing taxes proposed under the Budget Revenue bill, the commissioner vigorously attacked what he called "gambling machines" and expressed the opinion the legislators would do a fine thing for the state if they abolish the machines altogether. "But if they are to operate they should yield a heavy revenue," he said, citing a conversion with one operator who told him profits from one slot machine reached $12,000 in one year. Dignified legislators who held forth in the Capitol before the days of Women's Emancipation, must have turned over in their graves Tuesday afternoon if their ghosts saw the young lady, all of 16 clad in a form fitting green sweater, who nonchalantly puffed a cigarette as she sat in the house gallery and listened to the proceedings. Former Senator Joe Bailey, of Texas, once ran for office on what he termed a platform of "straight-out Hell and Damnation." Representative H. P. Cooper, of Murphy, must be trying to emulate the distinguished son of the Lone Star state. Already he has asked for his county of Cherokee everything except liquor and a red light district. BILLS OFFERED TO CARRY OUT HOEY'S WISHES

Another Measure Is Presented to Settle Liquor Issue

WOULD PROVIDE A STATE BOARD

Counties and Cities Would Split Retail Sales Profits Under Proposal

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Seven new major bills hit the legislative hoppers today with liquor again taking the spotlight.

Rep. Hanford of Alamance, proposed the state create a board authorized to operate distilleries, buy and sell liquors. The state would make a profit by selling the intoxicant's to a uniform system of county operated stores, approved by county elections. Counties and municipalities would split retail profits.

The measure went to judiciary committee number one which this morning deferred action on a bill introduced yesterday proposing a statewide referendum November 2 on prohibition of the manufacture and sale of whiskey in the state. A public hearing on liquor proposal will be held later.

A proposal to limit hours of work to 40 a week in the textile and tobacco industries and to 46 a week in general industry in North Carolina was introduced by McBryde of Cumberland.

Two bills to carry out recommendation of Gov. Hoey were offered. One would provide free textbooks for elementary pupils and the other would make the superintendent of public instruction responsible head of the school system and executive secretary of the school commission.

New measures to reduce costs of automobile license plates also came in, including one measure of Rep. Wilson of Forsyth and Lumpkin of Franklin to provide a $5 minimum for machines and $10 minimum for small pick-up cars. Senator Halstead of Camden offered a bill to provide a $25,000 bond issue to be used in improving "rural roads."

Would Eliminate Danger Zone In West Air Routes

Federal Officials Concentrate on Making Air Travel Safer in Western Part of Nation

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Federal investigators concentrated today on eliminating "danger zones" from western air routes while medical science struggled to save the 11 injured survivors of Tuesday's transport crash.

Martin Johnson, noted big game hunter, and James Braden, Cleveland Ink company president, were injured fatally when the western air express plane en route from Salt Lake City crashed on a Newhall pass ridge in a snow storm 15 miles from the landing field here. Mrs. Johnson, her husband's partner on African expeditions, was not informed of his death yesterday.

A trainman on the Louisville and Nashville railroad tossed a board bearing the word "Chatsworth" off a train going through a small settlement in north Georgia. Later, when residents decided to apply for a post office, they selected the name on the board for the town.

Ex-Convict Admits Killing 9 Years Ago

RENEW EFFORT TO END STRIKES

Michigan Governor Calls Conference of Both Factions

(By Associated Press) Company and union representatives were called into a conference with Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan today in an effort to end the automobile workers strike against the General Motors corporation, biggest of the labor disputes which held about 200,000 employees idle in the nation.

Gov. Murphy's conference called proposed discussion of "an immediate and peaceful termination of the General Motors strike, which alone involved about 114,000 workers."

Executive Vice President William Knudsen headed the General Motors conferees and President Homer Martin of the U. A. W. A. accepted on behalf of the strikers.

Quiet prevailed at Flint, scene of a bloody riot at a strike-bound Fisher plant Monday night which prompted Gov. Murphy to send 2,300 national guardsmen.

Talk of possible presidential or congressional action to end the 77-day-old Pacific coast maritime strike persisted as conciliators pressed efforts to bring 40,000 seamen back to work.

Beaufort Man Held On Robbery Charges

Harold L. Stowe, young man of Washington, is being held in city jail here awaiting a preliminary hearing in police court Saturday morning on a charge of stealing a sum of money from the Golden Lead filling station.

According to employees of the station, Stowe was left in the place alone while all the clerks were busy. When one of them returned he noticed that the cash register had been tampered with. Stowe ran, he said, but was caught and held until officers arrived.

Tobacco Bill Supported By State Warehousemen

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Jan. 14.—A majority of the tobacco warehousemen and even of the manufacturers will support the proper kind of a tobacco compact and crop control bill, according to Senator J. C. Eagles of Wilson. He believes the compact bill which will eventually be brought out of the agriculture committee will be satisfactory to everyone concerned and that it will be enacted with a minimum of difficulty.

I am generally agreed, however, that at the beginning of the season there was considerable apprehension on the part of a good many tobacco farmers, warehousemen and manufacturers over the type of tobacco crop control law that might be offered and that there was also spirited competition for the chairmanships of the senate and house committees on agriculture. Believing that the crop control and compact bill would probably be written in Washington by U. S. Department of Agriculture officials, many of which were associated with the old AAA, there was some concern that the bill might be too extreme and not fit conditions here in North Carolina.

Now that the bill has been introduced and its contents revealed, also since the personnel of the agriculture committee is known, there is much less nervousness than at the beginning. The prevailing feeling in many circles is that these committees can be depended upon to work out a safe and sane tobacco crop control and compact bill which will safeguard the interests of the farmers, warehousemen and manufacturers. There are indications, however, that it is still some serious and determined opposition to the crop control and compact legislation and that it is not going to be enacted without a stiff fight. NATIONS UNITE IN EFFORTS TO ISOLATE SPAIN

Italy Acts to Shut Off Volunteer Enlistments

FRANCE AGREES TO FALL IN LINE

Meanwhile at War Front, Fascists Remain at Threshold of Besieged Capital

(By Associated Press) Italy and Germany renewed their bandolap today. France, agreeing to meet the Nazi Reich halfway in solution of their economic and political problems, took steps also to do her part in stopping foreign hands in Spain.

Col. General Wilhelm Goering who has the functions of German prime minister, talked in Rome with Benito Mussolini and King Emmanuel.

They told him Italy's friendship for and collaboration with Germany had not cooled because of the Italian agreement with Great Britain on Mediterranean status quo.

Italy reportedly was taking action to shut off volunteer enlistment in Spain, seeking a general workable international neutrality plan.

France fell in line. Her cabinet decided to ask legislative powers to stop French volunteers from going to Spain, the powers to be used only in collaboration with other nations.

On the war front, Madrid defenders with word of pity paraded a fascist prisoner through the streets, non-combatant, streamed out of the besieged city. Fascists, at the threshold of Madrid, reported five French volunteer battalions had been rushed up for a counter-attack by the government defenders.

Dr. McGinnis Chosen On Joint Committee

Dr. H. J. McGinnis has recently received notification of his appointment on the joint library committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which is composed of representatives from both the higher institutions and the high schools.

North Carolina is bound by having the chairmanships of this committee also. Dr. J. Henry Higham, who is supervisor of high schools from the State Department of Public Instruction.

Following this paper, Miss Nellie Denny gave us the current event for the afternoon, an enlightening article on "Noise," a new public health problem, and its relation to our lives.

Special guests of the afternoon were Mrs. T. McM. Grant and Mrs. Julius Eldridge. Assisting Mrs. Carr in serving a delicious salad course were her daughters, Mrs. Darden, and Mrs. Fleming of Wilson.

Literature Department
Tuesday afternoon Mrs. W. C. Harris, in her usual hospitable manner, entertained the members of the Literature Department of the Woman's club at her home on West Fourth street.

Beautiful gladioli added to the cheer and pleasantness of the rooms. Miss Elizabeth Hyman, chairman, called the meeting to order and members responded to roll call with current events. At the close of the short business session the meeting was turned over to the program chairman for the afternoon.

With the main topic for the year's work in mind, "Some Studies; Some Old, Some New," that very new novel, "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell, had been chosen.

The club was delighted to welcome Mrs. P. W. Picklesimer who had been invited to review the book and who was presented by Mrs. Gulledge.

Mrs. Picklesimer in her pleasing and able manner, gave a most comprehensive and unbiased interpretation of this much-read and discussed novel of today.

For a generous hour she held the undivided attention of her listeners. For the benefit of those who had not read the novel, and to refresh the minds of those who had, she gave a brief sketch of the story and read excerpts from the book which portrayed vividly the four central characters, Scarlett O'Hara, Rhett Butler, Ashley Wilkes and Melanie Wilkes.

In Scarlett and Rhett we have the realistic, in Ashley Wilkes the romantic and in Melanie Wilkes the revelation of a truly great lady of the South. She commented on the book relative to the character portrayals, strong and weak points, the English, readability and historical accuracy. In evaluating the book the speaker said that "Gone With the Wind" is to literature what "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round'" is to music.

Following the program Mrs. Harris, assisted by Mrs. Lamb, served delicious cream cup cakes and salted nuts to club members and the following guests: Mrs. P. W. Picklesimer, Mrs. G. P. Riemann, Mrs. D. D. Overton and Mrs. Denver Baughan.—Reported.

Mrs. Hooker extended an invitation from Miss Laura Rose to attend a meeting of the A. A. U. W. Thursday afternoon at the Austin building.

The program was in charge of Mrs. W. E. Hooker, who gave a most interesting and informative paper on the "Traditions of the Poor Whites" of the South, reading several short stories, illustrative of their customs and manner of living.

A discussion of current events brought forth many items of interest to all present.

Following the program the hostess served a tempting barbecue luncheon, after which the club adjourned to meet next with Mrs. W. L. Hall.—Reported.

The number of students that responded to the invitation to meet to form these organizations show their great interest in musical activities in which students can participate. REVIVE HOPES ON LABOR LAW

Roosevelt Plea Will Aid Proponents of Amendments

Raleigh, Jan. 14. — President Roosevelt's direct appeal to the governor and legislature of North Carolina is likely to prove the final driving force necessary for adoption of the federal Child Labor Amendment, Major A. L. Fletcher, Commissioner of Labor, believes.

This labor department head pointed out that it is the first time the President has issued such an appeal and he expressed the opinion it may prove the deciding factor in consideration of the matter.

"Four years ago, the President was quoted widely as in favor of the amendment, but it was not believed that he had a direct vital interest in the question and in North Carolina, as throughout the South, the opponents of federal control of the child labor situation prevailed," he said.

"But now that Mr. Roosevelt has put the whole weight of his tremendous influence behind the amendment, prospects for its passage in North Carolina are bright."

Major Fletcher said that he had not made any careful survey of the present Assembly personnel and could not "count noses" accurately with reference to child labor sentiment. He indicated he is satisfied with the makeup of the legislature, however.

But whether or not there is favorable action of the federal amendment, there will be a state-wide bill to regulate child labor, Major Fletcher said. The Labor Department, which has consistently fought for the amendment, will introduce what Major Fletcher called the "Model" measure which he said has already been enacted in eight states within a year of its preparation.

Five of these states are great industrial centers, Major Fletcher, declared citing New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island among them.

The Major sees greater sentiment for child labor legislation than every before in the state's history. Practically every textile mill head is unqualified in favor of doing away with child labor, he said, while heads of other industrial concerns are rapidly swinging to the same viewpoint.

Chief danger to adoption of the federal amendment is opposition based on fear of federal interference in every phase of business and personal activity in the state, he said.

There is, too, some opposition to child labor legislation in North Carolina until there is also legislation raising the compulsory school attendance age to sixteen, he declared. The present law compels school attendance only up to fourteen and there are some who see a danger in prohibiting children between fourteen and sixteen from working and at the same time failing to compel them to attend school, Major Fletcher said.

Summarizing the situation, Major Fletcher said he feels the chance for the federal amendment being ratified by the required 36 states is brighter than ever before, although there are still enough "die hards" in influential posts in the South to make dangerous any flat prediction to that effect.

Insurance Firm Named in Action
Temporary Receiver Appointed for Central Mutual; Hearing Date Set

Raleigh, Jan. 13.—Appointment of Paul F. Smith, Raleigh lawyer, as temporary receiver for the Central Mutual Insurance Company's assets in this State was made yesterday following the filing of a receivership suit against the company in Wake Superior Court.

A hearing to determine whether the receivership of the Chicago company is to be made permanent will be held here January 25, probably before Judge W. C. Harris or Judge Marshall T. Spears.

The court action followed withdrawal last December 1 of the company's license to write new business in this State. Commissioner Dan C. Boney ordered the license revoked.

The company was engaged principally in writing public liability policies for trucking firms operating in North Carolina. The complaint filed yesterday stated that the company has $50,000 in securities posted as bond with Commissioner Boney and that this sum probably would cover outstanding claims in North Carolina.

The license of the company in its home State of Illinois has been revoked and a receiver appointed for its assets there, the complaint here stated.—Adv.

HIGHWAY BODY USES PICTURES

Illustrated Report With Brief Word-age Circulated

Raleigh, Jan. 14. — (Reflector Bureau)—By the use of many pictures and few words, the State Highway and Public Works Commission has managed to get more attention paid to its biennial report than that of any other state department, comment heard here today indicates.

Instead of being the usual blue-backed, uninteresting looking array of word and figures, such as are found in the average biennial report, the highway department decided to "say it with pictures." As a result, members of the general found on their desks a pictorial story of highway construction and development in North Carolina that looks more like a booklet issued to attract tourists to North Carolina than a biennial report.

News men noticed that this report was actually being read with keen interest by legislators, instead of being shoved off desks into waste baskets, as are many of the other reports.

Although there are from two to six pictures dealing with highways, bridges and prison activities on every page, the text is an interesting as the pictures and tells the story of the problems and accomplishments of the commission during the past two years in a simple and direct manner that grasps the interest of the reader and holds it from beginning to end.

Those who have already read the report and looked at the pictures agree that it tells the story of North Carolina's highway problems during the past two years fully, completely, and succinctly. It points out that the highway department is charged with: The maintenance of 58,000 miles of highways, enough to run twice around the world and from Raleigh to Tokyo on the third lap.

The care of an average monthly population of 9,000 prisoners, the second largest number under the jurisdiction of a single agency in the United States.

The design and construction of new roads and bridges, reconstruction activities an dthe operation of factories, laundries, bakeries, canneries and farms.

The settlement of an average of 30 legal claims a day, 99 per cent of which are settled out of court.

PHILOSOPHY LIBRARY ESTABLISHED AT UNC
Chapel Hill, Jan. 14.—A small library of philosophical volumes and manuscripts has been established in the Graham Memorial Building at the University of North Carolina for the benefit of the student body. The collection of books was made possible through a gift of $700 from a citizen who asked that his name be withheld. A portion of the money was used last spring to purchase books for the collection and the library was set up at the beginning of this year.

The library will be open for use at all times, though no books may be removed from the building.

BIRTHDAY BALL AIDS CRIPPLES

Annual Event Given Endorsement By Health Officer

In a letter addressed to K. W. Cobb, chairman of the publicity committee of the Roosevelt ball, to be held at the campus building here the night of January 29, Dr. N. T. Bennett, health officer and supervisor of the orthopedic clinic conducted each month partly from funds derived from the dance, endorsed the event and explained some of the work being carried on with the cripples.

Dr. Bennett's letter follows: "I note, with interest, through the daily press, that the President's Ball committee is busy making preparation for the ball to be held January the 29th.

"As Health Officer of Pitt. County and supervisor of the local orthopedic clinic, I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation for the fine way in which your committee is cooperating with the local orthopedic clinic. You are helping to supply special shoes, braces, artificial limbs, etc. for the indigent cripples not only in Greenville, but all over Pitt. County.

"I have seen nothing more pathetic than the sight of a fourteen year old white girl, whose leg had been amputated just below the knee and who came to the clinic sometime ago wearing an ordinary, heavy, homemade, wooden peg leg. As she sat in the waiting room with the peg leg sticking out, conspicuously, her embarrassment was obvious.

"The orthopedic specialist examined her and prescribed an artificial limb. Yesterday, to her great delight, this limb was fitted to this young girl, and now her walking and her sitting are so nearly normal that she is in no way conspicuous. She has been charged from an unhappy introvert to a normally happy girl.

"I mention this case as an illustration of the noble purpose being served by the President's Ball Fund, and since, as I understand it, 70 per cent of all funds raised are retained for the treatment of local or county indigent cripples, I trust that the citizens who are able to do so will support the President's Ball.

WORK STARTED ON BIG TASKS

Finance Committees Take Up Job of Getting New Cash

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—The finance committees of the senate and house met in no time in getting down to work on the budget revenue bill as written by the Advisory Budget Commission and transmitted to the two houses Tuesday morning by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, the two committees met jointly Tuesday afternoon, and Representative E. V. Webb of Kinston and Representative V. S. Bryant of Durham, their chairmen, presiding.

Most of the time was given over to hearing an explanation of the bill by Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell. The committees will meet again this afternoon to continue their study of the bill and of the new taxes proposed. It is anticipated that the committee will not start holding any hearings on the bill for several days yet, perhaps not until next week in order that the members may become more familiar with the bill.

The appropriations committees, under House Chairman A. D. (Lobby) Ward and Senate Chairman James A. Bell, are also getting off to a good start. Two meetings of these committees were held Tuesday and Chairmen Ward and Bell have announced they intend to hold two meetings a day in order to push the work on the appropriations bill as rapidly as possible. Since the appropriations bill must be considered first in the house, Chairman Ward is expected to become the chief "ram rod" of the joint committee sessions. Senator Bell's big job will come after the bill has passed the house, when it will be referred to the senate appropriations committee before coming up for action and final passage in the senate.

There is no indication yet as to whether the appropriations or revenue bill will be completed and brought into the house first. Indications are that both committees are going to push their work as rapidly as possible.

The length of time spent on the revenue bill depend very largely upon the extent the appropriations committee increases appropriations beyond the budget figures. It is agreed, as the bills now stand, they are in balance, the revenue bill providing approximately $5,000,000 a year in additional revenue as compared with the 1935 bill.

Mecklenburg Drys Staking Hopes On State Referendum

Forces Opposed to County or State Control to Offer Bill Termed by Was as a Decoy

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Jan. 14.—Dry-voting House members from Mecklenburg county have about finished preparation of a liquor bill, called by advocates of control a "decoy," providing for a statewide referendum before any system of control, state or county, is adopted as a policy. The pair planning to introduce the bill, it has been learned on reliable authority, is composed of Representatives E. L. Mayhew and Mercer J. Blankenship. Their colleague from the county Sandy Graham termed the "wettest drinking and driest voting in the state" is James B. Volger who is said to be opposed to the measure sponsored by his mates.

Strategy behind the proposed bill is to stake all on the chances of a statewide vote against any form of control. Its sponsors have not yet completed it and are planning some drastic revisions of their original draft, which is said to have contained the most liberal provisions for the sale of liquor provided it was first approved by a referendum vote. It was obviously aimed, those who have seen it say, to arouse a crusading campaign against Old John Barleycorn.

Con-rol advocates profess to be certain the measure will fail to drive a wedge between state and county controllers, despite the many attractive features it offers the former, conditioned, of course, on its running the gauntlet of voting opposition by bootleggers, professional Republican politicians, and sincere advocates of prohibition. Meanwhile controllers say they will not be stampeded into putting their own measure into the hopper until they have made their necessary compromise off the floor.

WETS TO FIGHT ON OFFENSIVE

Strategy Mapped By Forces Desiring County Control

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Jan. 14.—Advocates of control of liquor, including representatives from the seventeen counties now having their own stores, do not intend to remain on the defensive in the assembly and passively wait for the so-called "Dry" to take the initiative, it appears certain from all available indications.

On the contrary, it is known that controllers realize that the present hedge pose liquor statutes contain latent dangers to any sort of control and they are prepared to take the offensive in a vigorous campaign for later and more uniform legislation.

In fact, they probably would have already introduced their bill but for their desire to make all the necessary compromises between a state and county controllers before the measure is even referred to a committee. They feel that their chances of success are, or will be, much greater if the two control groups are brought into harmony without any open clash of views on the floor.

What the compromise bill will look like cannot yet be definitely forecast, but it seems certain that the broad general principle of operation of liquor stores by the counties, with the state exercising a minimum of supervision and receiving a percentage of the gross revenue, will be maintained.

Practically every county controller has been driven to the conclusion that the state must have a share in the profits and that there should be some state control to make operation of county stores as nearly uniform as possible.

And so it seems certain that the representatives from those counties already having liquor stores plan to conduct an aggressive campaign rather than sit back and meekly resist any effort to repeal the laws under which their stores are now operating.

ALL'S QUIET ON THE FRONT IN AUTO STRIKE

While union leaders, plant executives and federal conciliators considered means for ending the strike of General Motors Corporation workers in many cities, life went on in rather prosaic manner on the front lines in at least two strike zones. A. L. Smith, one of the "sit down" strikers at the GMC plant in Atlanta, Ga., used his leisure to give a haircut to B. O. Crisp, a fellow-striker. And at Flint, Mich., two of the strikers, sitting it out in the plant of the Fisher Body Company, pitched in for a session of potato peeling in the kitchen maintained by their union. Quiet Campaign Waged For Court Judgeships

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter H. Hall. By HENRY AVERILL.

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—There's no beating of tom-toms or clanging of cymbals about it, but beneath the surface of the turbulent political sea here there is a vigorous fight being waged for the two vacancies created on the North Carolina Supreme Court by reason of the constitutional amendment adopted by a heavy majority at the November election.

Ever since it became known that the court's membership would be increased to seven numerous bar candidates throughout the state have been passing resolutions endorsing their resident district superior court judges for the places and in this manner more than half of the twenty jurists have had their names put in nomination. The tough part about the thing as far as backers of various candidates are concerned, is that nobody has known where to concentrate his fire, since there has been more than a list of names over the matter in which the places are to be filled. Some authorities have contended that the Assembly would do the filling. Others have believed that the Governor has the appointive power. Still others have maintained that nothing could be done until a election at which the sovereign voters might speak.

NOW UP TO THE STATE

Following a declaration by the Forsyth County grand jury that the transportation of school children in the present dangerous school buses was "beyond comprehension" the Forsyth County School Board ordered all county schools closed today and to remain closed until safe transportation could be furnished for the school children.

Just how far reaching the Forsyth board action will be or just how fast the movement will spread to other counties cannot yet be told but we believe the board has taken a step in the right direction.

Judge W. F. Harding, in commenting on the grand jury report, declared that he would prefer "an uneducated five child than an educated dead one."

The state of North Carolina requires that children within certain ages must attend school but if the state is to require the children to attend school provision should be made for the safe transportation of the children of the rural sections to and from the schools. Already there have been too many fatal school bus accidents in this state but the wonder is that there have not been many more considering the condition of equipment the state is using generally in transporting the school children.

The statement of the Forsyth school board is that the schools will remain closed until safe transportation facilities are furnished and the state as a whole will watch with interest the outcome of this step to force the State School Commission to action in removing the dangers that now surround the transporting of school children.

LEGISLATIVE CHAFF AND CHATTER

(Continued from page one) Sunday baseball, Sunday movies, prize fights, fishing without license and hunting the same have already been proposed by him. An obliging House suspended the rules on his first batch of measures—baseball and movies—but roared "No" when he came back with another handful Tuesday.

If the Legislature enacts the proposed new tax, North Carolina will take its place alongside some half dozen other states. Comparatively few have yet turned to this form of revenue getting.

First indication that there may be a movement for return salary withheld from the state employees in 1933 came Tuesday afternoon when Wake's Representative Arch Allen asked Budgeteer Frank Dunlap if any provision has been made for such a purpose. Mr. Dunlap said no.

An attempt to return the salary was made in the 1935 assembly, but it died peacefully. Sandy Graham made many votes among state em-

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

By FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: After a gay night club evening, Count Vronski invites several friends to a late party at Anne Phelps' studio. They are rumored engaged. Going on ahead are Anne, Vronski, Karasankoff, the stunning dancer, and Bigelow, the young American from Paris. Karasankoff has shown unusual interest in Vronski, and Anne has admitted to Bigelow that Vronski is trying to force her to marry him. A shot drags Bigelow from Anne's kitchen. In the studio he finds Anne and Karasankoff staring at Vronski's dead body.

Chapter Nine

The Party Goes On KARASANKOFF picked up the gun and began to polish it with her red chiffon handkerchief. "Then certainly we cannot call in the police," she announced with decision. "But—what then?" asked Bigelow, frowning.

"For the moment," said Karasankoff shrugging, "I must side—him. Later, we can decide how to dispose of him—permanently. But for the moment, it will be enough just to conceal him from prying eyes. . . . Those guests he invited may be already on their way here. We must do what must be done quickly—quickly. There is no time to waste."

She rose from the floor, still holding the gun in her chiffon handkerchief.

Bigelow's eyes wandered over the studio. "The cupboard—?" suggested Anne, indicating it with a nod of her head. She spoke through dry lips. "It locks," she added significantly. "Excellent," said Karasankoff. "If there is enough room. Open the door."

Anne crossed and opened the cupboard door. It proved to be quite a large cupboard and practically empty. There was a vacuum cleaner in one corner. Some books and other odds and ends were on the shelf—an odd lamp that had been discarded—some small canvases piled up. On the hangers, some clothes were hanging.

"If you will give a little assistance?" suggested Karasankoff looking at Bigelow. "I think I can manage," said Bigelow.

"No, no. It will be easier if I help." They picked up the body of Vronski between them and carried him into the cupboard, placing him on the floor with his back against the wall. Since they had decided not to call the police, Bigelow assumed the gun again to verify Karasankoff's swift conclusion and satisfied himself that Vronski was indeed beyond aid. Anne had turned away, biting her lip.

"Are you all right?" asked Bigelow anxiously as he came from the cupboard.

"Yes. Quite. Only—feeling a little sick," murmured Anne. "Take her into the kitchen and get her a drink," he suggested to Karasankoff.

"Come," said Karasankoff, kindly, slipping an arm about Anne.

The Guests Arrive THEY went out together. Bigelow picked up the gun, together with Karasankoff's chiffon handkerchief, and tossed it into the cupboard. Then he hurried into the bathroom, picked up a bath towel and calce bag, mopped up the floor where Vronski had fallen. Fortunately, the stain was on the hardwood, just missing one of the rugs. Bigelow was able to remove all trace of it, but he altered the position of the rug to cover it, and he on the safe side. The blood soaked towel, he cast into the cupboard, too. Then he placed Vronski's hat on the shelf, hung up his coat and locked the cupboard door, taking the key.

As he glanced around him critically, to make certain that nothing had been overlooked, there came a ring at the door, downstairs. Anne came in from the hall, looking somewhat better.

"Can you get through with this?" he asked anxiously, his eyes studying her in frank concern. "Yes, of course, I must," she answered.

"How shall we account for his absence?"

"Karasankoff says we must say he went back to pick them up and bring them along."

"Where is she?"

"In the bedroom—telephoning her maid that she may be very late."

Bigelow listened and heard Karasankoff's voice speaking softly in Russian. The next instant, there came a knock on the studio door and as Anne crossed to open it, Karasankoff came from the bedroom.

I've women and three men appeared—all of them strangers to Bigelow, but Karasankoff had evidently met them at the night club.

"But Count Vronski is not with you?" she cried.

"No, isn't he with you?" asked one of the women, a rather plump woman very bejeweled.

"But no—he went back to bring you!" cried Karasankoff.

Although the Budget provides funds for a ten per cent increase for all state employees, there is no certainty that each and every person on the public payroll will get that raise. The increase is to go to departments in a lump sum and it will be up to department heads to distribute it as they see fit.

"Mrs. Kane—Mrs. Barney," said Anne, making the introductions. "Mr. Bigelow. . . . You've met Madame Karasankoff, I see. . . ."

"Yes, at Madge's—in the bar," put in one of the women—Mrs. Barney, apparently.

"Mr. Ledyard—Mr. Burton—Mr. Harrison," said Anne, completing her task.

The three gentlemen all shook hands.

"We'll cuff our sables," said Mrs. Kane. "I know the way. Come, Mirabelle."

Mrs. Barney—who seemed to answer to the name of Mirabelle—"come," Karasankoff accompanied them into the bedroom.

"I'll help with the drinks," offered Harrison. He was a fat youth with a beaming smile. "The only reason I'm ever asked out on parties is that I always help with the drinks."

"I don't have to be a waiter because I play the piano," said Burton, a rather slight dark fellow. Bigelow remembered him. He had been leading the orchestra at Madge's.

"I'm ornamental," said Ledyard. "I don't have to do anything but lend my distinguished presence."

Anne and Harrison went off to bring in drinks. There was another knock at the door and Bigelow opened it to admit two waiters with trays of sandwiches and bowls of salad, by the time they had arranged the food on the big work table, the three women had returned from the bedroom. Burton was already at the piano. The party had begun.

Topsy Tells 'All'

MRS. Kane came toward Bigelow. She was big and blonde and good natured and not young. Her ample form was clad in shining gray metallic discs, and she had diamond bracelets halfway up one arm. She was—in fact—dressed like a demi-mondaine—but she had a respectable face beneath her heavy make-up.

"Don't be frightened," she said. "I may look like a battleship but I'm a pleasure craft, pure and simple."

She waved a plump jeweled arm and added, "Chet calls these my riding lights."

"Chet?" asked Bigelow politely. "Chet Harrison. One of our brighter lights. I forgot you were a stranger in these parts. Sit down and I'll tell you all about everybody. And when I say all, I mean all!"

Bigelow smiled and sat down beside her.

"It takes a brave woman to trust one of these couches," went on Mrs. Kane. "I wouldn't risk it if you and two or three others weren't on hand to pull me up again. . . . Thanks, Ducky," she added to Harrison who brought her a drink. Bigelow took one, too. He felt he needed it.

"Who is Harrison—beside being a brighter light?" asked Bigelow.

"An interior decorator. He and Bobby Ledyard have a place together and they make fortunes selling the right thing to the newly rich."

"Are there still newly rich?" asked Bigelow. "Even nowadays?"

"God yes. The backwoods are full of them. I'm only two seasons old myself. That is, I was always rich—my grandfather stole most of Topeka, Kansas, away from the Indians. That's why I was named Topeka, but most of my friends call me Topsy. Only I was rich in the west you see, without getting much out of it until I got the idea of divorcing Sam."

She beamed on him.

Some new arrivals came and Bigelow heard Karasankoff asking them where Vronski was. Bigelow listened to the music and the chatter and wondered what would happen if anyone could guess the answer. . . .

The women went off to the bedroom to leave their cloaks and powder their noses while Anne painstakingly introduced the men. Then the women were introduced. Abroad, no hostess would have bothered, once the party got underway. The roof is supposed to constitute an introduction. And even here, Bigelow noted, the business was merely a convention for he did not even catch the names and he was certain that nobody got his.

However, in the interval, one of the new arrivals caught Mrs. Kane's attention and Bigelow found himself for an instant alone. He saw that nobody was in the bedroom and went in there to use the telephone.

Anne followed him. "What are you going to do?" she asked curiously.

"Telephone an old friend of mine—Dr. Austrelitz. Do you know him?"

"No," said Anne. "He's the famous nerve specialist, isn't he?"

"Yes. I want to ask him to come to the party, if you don't mind?"

"Of course not," said Anne. "But—why?"

"Because I think we may need him—afterward."

"You—can trust him?" she asked, drawing a sharp breath.

"Absolutely."

She nodded, and brushed back her hair wearily. "It's all so—phantasy," she murmured. "Listen to that on the radio. . . . If they knew!"

HOEY QUIET ON PROPOSED ACT

Doubted If Governor Support Child Labor Amendment

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Jan. 14—While Governor Hoey has preserved a discreet silence about his stand on the federal Child Labor amendment, proponents of the measure are not counting on his support and opponents are hopeful that he will eventually come out openly against the measure President Roosevelt has so vigorously advocated.

It is generally agreed that the governor's views in the past have been all against any interference by the federal government in the matter and he will change even though he would like to follow the President as far as possible.

Before becoming governor Mr. Hoey is known to have expressed the opinion that it would be unwise for this state to agree to the federal government to prohibit labor by children between fourteen and eighteen years old, certainly not until North Carolina has increased the compulsory school age to 16, as long a prohibition would leave a long gap during which children would neither be permitted to work nor compelled to attend school.

And Mr. Hoey is said to have expressed the belief that North Carolina cannot yet raise its compulsory school age in view of the huge increase in expenditures this would cause.

Advocates of the amendment are planning to make a strong showing before the Manufacturing, Labor and Commerce committees of both houses, where the ratification resolution, introduced yesterday, will be considered.

On the other side, opponents are marshalling their forces with equal vigor. The Grange having employed U. S. Page, the Bladen Bombshell of last session, to lobby against the amendment.

REAL CONTEST FRIDAY NIGHT

Local Highs to Engage Rocky Mount Blackbirds

Tomorrow night the Green Phantoms of Greenville High School will play their second Class A. Conference game of the season, when they meet the strong Rocky Mount Blackbirds in the local gym at 7:30 o'clock. Although the Rocky Mount and Greenville schools do not hold the same grudge against each other as do Wilson and Greenville, they are nevertheless big rivals. Their games are always colorful. Will fans ever forget the Rocky Mount-Greenville game of last year? The Greensies went into the second half of that game trailing by 12 points, and upon one of the greatest come-backs that local fans have ever seen. They pulled into a 22-22 tie one minute before the game ended, and in the last three seconds of play scored a field goal, and a foul shot, to come off victors by a score of 25-22. Local fans will always remember that game as the most thrilling ever played on the Greenville court.

The game tomorrow night should be equally as thrilling. Both teams boast enviable records. Rocky Mount has already defeated Raleigh (twice), and Raleigh won the State championship last year. On the other hand, the Greenville quint has a record of five straight victories and no defeats to show for their play this year. A victory tomorrow night for Coach May's boys will place them in a good position to cop the State Championship honors, provided, of course, they could beat Durham and Raleigh. A defeat would almost knock them out of the title race.

The game has another interesting feature to it. Rocky Mount is coached by Bob Eason, a local boy, who went to Greenville High school and played basketball here. Bob would like nothing better than to bring his team over here and walk off with the victory before home town fans. He has an excellent chance to accomplish his desire, but the Greensies will be doing all in their power to see that he doesn't. The same line-up that took the boys against Wilson will start tomorrow night with the exception of the left guard post. Either Howard Hodges, Tom Cox, or Johnnie Latture will fill that position.

The game tomorrow night will be a double header attraction, the boys starting promptly at 7:30 o'clock, and the girls coming on an hour later. In view of the fact that the game last year between these two schools was so thrilling, and because of their great records this year, Superintendent J. H. Rose said today that he expected the largest crowd of the year to witness the contest. The game is bound to be a thriller, so don't miss it.

Ayden Boy Will Captain 1937 Wake Forest Team

Wake Forest, N. C., Jan. 14.—Here is the boy who will captain the 1937 Wake Forest College football eleven—he is A. M. "Boots" Mumford of Ayden. Although weighing but 165, Mumford was one of the outstanding centers of the Southern Conference during the past season, and his unanimous election by his mates as their 1937 grid pilot is a well deserved honor.

Besides being well known as a football player, Mumford has made a name for himself on the campus in other phases of college life. He was recently inducted into the Golden Bough Society—a honorary organization symbolic of leadership, scholarship and character—and he is vice-president of the Baptist Student Body. Mumford will enter the medical school here at Wake Forest next fall. He is a member of the Chi Eta Tau Fraternity and an honor roll student.

Between people of various nations. But Holland, Switzerland, and other nations that did not enter the World War showed us plainly that with a good leader, strict legislation, and a determination to do so, this nation could keep out of a general European conflict. According to Dr. Frank the United States should concentrate on keeping peace in the western hemisphere, and refuse to be drawn into Europe's struggles.

After the talk, the Rev. W. A. Ryan, president of the Greenville Peace Council, who had presented the speakers, pointed out the number of questions raised by Dr. Frank's talk and a spirited discussion followed.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Automotive shares flooded the ticker tape with rallies of one to three points in today's stock market as prospects improved for settlement of the General Motors strike.

Offerings were plentiful in many other departments of the list, however, and near the fourth hour, trends were rather uneven. The activity was pronounced at times, although there were a number of lulls in the proceedings.

There was a heavy turnover of low-priced utilities but most of these failed to duplicate their Wednesday's forward show.

Bonds and commodities shifted in varying directions. Transfers were around 3,200,000 shares.
