OPEN HEARING HELD TODAY ON LIQUOR ISSUE

Proposal Providing for 'Wet' Machinery Defeated

BURGESS HEADS DRY'S CAMPAIGN

Pile of Empty Whiskey Bottles Placed in Hall Where Hearing Is Being Held

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The house judiciary committee today voted down an amendment to the 'dry' bill before it on the liquor question and opened public debate on two proposals.

Rep. Gardner of Cleveland proposed the measure introduced by Mrs. Hutchins of Yancey and others to provide a statewide referendum on prohibition...

As introduced the bill provides for the referendum and for medicinal whiskey depositories if the state votes for prohibition...

A crowd which overflowed the hall of the house listened to the argument.

A big pile of empty whiskey bottles had been placed in front of the hall just in front of the press table.

The Gardner amendment proposed that should the state vote wet the governor and council of state could order referenda in counties wanting liquor stores...

The amendment would have required the counties already having election approved stores to hold new elections.

Cale Burgess of Raleigh, campaign manager of the United Dry forces in the 1933 repeal election, captained the dry forces.

Supporting him were Dr. W. L. Poteat, president emeritus of Wake Forest college and president of both the United Dry forces and the State Baptist Convention...

Dr. Poteat spoke first, attacking the report of the liquor study commission as 'undemocratic' and saying it 'denied the sovereignty of the state'...

Considerable interest being manifested in proposal supported by President Roosevelt

Considerable interest is being manifested here in the proposal to organize a Federal Savings and Loan Association in Greenville...

The proposed Association will be located in Greenville, but may make loans to home owners over an area of 50 miles around Greenville...

Greenville is considered fortunate in having located here a section of the Pitt National Farm Loan Association...

The Federal Savings and Loan Association furnishes facilities to owners of town property similar to the provisions made by the other two Federal Lending Associations...

even packets of personal papers have been given to the University of Louisville by Supreme Court Justice Brandeis to be opened after his death.

Relief Chairman Cites Need Of Increasing Fund

Chairman W. A. Ryan of the local Flood Relief campaign today issued the following statement on the situation: 'Contributions to Flood Relief continue to come in. We have passed the latest goal of $2,000, which was set as a minimum. But reports of conditions in the flooded areas also continue to come in.'

These, too, indicate that conditions are far worse than anticipated. There is a slight drop in the Ohio River but with the waters of the Mississippi pouring into the Mississippi...

Every person in Pitt county, especially the business men and persons in better-than-the-average financial condition, is called upon to make such contributions as they may be able to make.

At Paducah, Ky., Red Cross officials hurried to evacuate thousands of reluctant inhabitants in advance of the oncoming flood peak.

United States Army Engineer Colonel Chas. R. Roeser warned of a 61-foot crest within the next 48 hours.

Below at Cairo, Ill., only men remained on the island city to bolster the 60 foot wall against an expected four foot rise in the river.

At Mount City, Ill., a bank levee collapsed, routing 650 men, 30 women and 175 CCC boys to higher ground.

On the Mississippi river itself, now beginning to stir uneasily under the vanguard slash of the Ohio's flood load, the Meiwald levee was threatened with collapse along its 392-mile boundary on the Arkansas side.

Louisville, Ky., with the highest death toll in the 1,000-mile disaster area, had its hopes darkened again today as rain began to fall.

In Tennessee levee workers battled desperately to save the dykes above Tiptonville.

High water that passed Cairo when army engineers dynamited the Bird Point-New Madrid 'fuse plug' to relieve pressure of the beleaguered city, rose steadily in the 131,000-acre spillway basin today.

Hundreds driven from their homes huddled in concentration camps behind the basin levee wondering if it would hold. The answer was expected tonight.

The officer declared the washing to help through inundation should bring 600 tons to 1415 Dickinson avenue 981. He said that clothing being especially needed by women from their homes.

Urge Farmers Attend Meeting Here Friday

Pitt county farmers are urged to attend a meeting in the Austin Building at East Carolina Teachers College Friday, at 2:00 at which time, H. A. Patten, State compliance supervisor, will discuss the 1937 Soil Conservation program.

R. R. Bennett, county agent, declared 'it is important that we have a large attendance at this meeting in order that farmers may get instructions on the provisions of the 1937 program that will be of help in planning their cropping system and acreage for 1937.'

Accident details were meagre, but Dr. James said he understood Mrs. McDougald's car and one driven by Ernest Clayton had collided at a street intersection.

Party Finance Head Injured In Accident

Hamlet, N. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Arche McDougald of this city, democratic party finance officer for North Carolina during the last campaign, was seriously hurt in an automobile accident here early today.

Dr. W. D. James, owner of the Hamlet hospital, said Mrs. McDougald, about 35, had an ear nearly severed and suffered concussions, chest, back and spinal injuries, but their extent had not been fully ascertained.

Later, moving pictures were shown of Dr. Dossow's work in China, and of the colored people's work in East Carolina.

All offerings of the convention are to be sent to the Ohio Relief Fund. The fund already amounts to over $30.

ORGANIZERS IN HOSPITAL AS RESULT CLASH

Anti-Union Demonstrations Staged In Michigan Cities

PICKETS MOVED FROM ONE PLANT

Union Withdraws Its Lines From Office Entrance of Cadillac Co. in Detroit

Detroit, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Three organizers for the United Automobile Workers of America who met belligerent anti-strike crowds in Bay City and Saginaw were in a Flint hospital today recovering from injuries.

They were members of a group of five union organizers who set out from Flint yesterday to carry on membership campaigns among General Motors employees in Bay City and Saginaw.

One, John Mayo of Pittsburgh, disappeared during a clash with a hostile crowd at Saginaw, during which police took the union men to police headquarters for safekeeping.

Robert Travis, U. A. W. A. organizer at Flint, expressed concern for Mayo's safety. State police were asked to search for him. Saginaw police said they had received no such request.

The climax of the anti-union demonstrations came when a taxi cab in which four of the organizers were returning to Flint was wrecked near Flint. A deputy sheriff of Genesee county said the taxi cab was wrecked 'deliberately' by another car. All four were injured, but only three require hospital treatment.

At Detroit the U. A. W. A. withdrew its pickets from the office entrance of the Cadillac motor company.

Episcopal Church Women Complete Annual Meet Here

Mass Meeting Held in St. Paul's Church Wednesday Night One of Session's Highlights

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal church, East Carolina Diocese was brought to a close here with an afternoon session today.

The meeting was opened Wednesday morning with a celebration of the Holy Communion. Immediately following this service the business session was begun and presided over by the president, Mrs. Fred L. Outland of Washington. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Richard Williams and responded to by Miss Margaret Bryan of New Bern. Reports were made by the diocesan officers.

After noonday prayers by Bishop Darst, Dr. Lula Dossow of Elizabeth's Hospital, Shanghai, China, who is now at home on furlough, gave an account of her work in that field.

At the afternoon session, messages from the Provincial Synod, which met in New Orleans in November, were given by several East Carolina delegates and visitors who attended the meeting of the Synod. Mrs. Henry J. MacMillan of Wilmington, president of the Provincial Woman's Auxiliary, presented the outlook of the Provincial work.

Rev. Arthur M. Sherman, D. D., S. T. D., who is internationally prominent in the work of the Episcopal church, closed the session with an address on missionary study, stressing the study of Africa which has been recommended by the Inter-Denominational Board of Education for consideration by all communions.

After the close of the meeting the convention was entertained at a tea in Friendly Hall by the Student Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

One of the highlights of the convention was the mass meeting held in the church Wednesday night at which Dr. Sherman again addressed the assembly on the Forward Movement of the Episcopal church. In a graphic description of the world, now in the throes of powerful forces striving for supremacy, he pointed to a vision of the Kingdom of God as the only solution of humanity's problems.

Later, moving pictures were shown of Dr. Dossow's work in China, and of the colored people's work in East Carolina.

All offerings of the convention are to be sent to the Ohio Relief Fund. The fund already amounts to over $30.

OHIO'S MAD RAMPAGE SWEEPS ON TOWARD MISSISSIPPI

Predictions of a 'super flood' in the lower Mississippi River valley were made by observers while the rampant Ohio's record-breaking crest swept on to its juncture with the mighty 'Father of Waters' at Cairo, Ill. LITTLE DONE IN EITHER HOUSE

House Defeats Reapportionment Measure 70 to 38

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Legislators by the dozen listened to arguments on liquor legislation this afternoon before a House judiciary committee after doing little business at regular mid-day sessions.

The House debated more than an hour over reapportionment of its membership to give Guilford, Buncombe and Mecklenburg each an extra representative, then refused to pass the Pickens measure, 70 to 38.

This morning the House manufacturers and labor committee reported unfavorably the McBride bill to place a 40-hour limit on the work week in the tobacco and textile industries, and a 48-hour week (Continued on page four)

Pitt Flood Relief Campaign Approaching $3,500 Mark

Pitt county donations to the Red Cross Relief fund passed the $3,100 mark before noon today with Chairman W. A. Ryan expressing hope that the total contributions would reach the $3,500 mark before the end of the day.

A check for $140.17 was received from contributors of the Griffon community this morning with a notation that additional contributions would be reported before the end of the week.

More contributions from members of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College swelled the fund from that source considerably, while contributions from the student body of the college totaled $100.

Despite the fact that several local tobaccoists and workers in the tobacco industry had already made individual donations, an additional jump sum of $191 was received from other tobacco companies and workers late yesterday.

A telegram received from National Headquarters today read, in part: 'Although no campaign for clothing is proposed your chapter may accept new or clean serviceable clothing, also non perishable goods for flood area.'

The Fountain school, with contributions of $53.60 and $78.25 individual contributions from the Fountain area brought the total for the community to $168.35.

Additional funds also were received from the Grimesland community today, swelling their previous total.

In addition to large cash contributions from individuals of the Stokes community, merchandise and supplies valued at more than $1,000 have been shipped to the Red Cross headquarters in the flood area.

Citizens of the Falkland community today contributed $41.60 and the report stated that more funds would be forthcoming. The school children of that community are raising funds and will report later in the week.

ADVICE ASKED OF FINANCIERS

Congress Seeks Way to Take Profits Out of War

Washington, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Congress sought the advice of financiers today on how it could curb certain types of holding companies and what it should do to take the profits out of war.

Appearing before the senate railroad investigating committee, Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange testified he would urge exchange officials to form a 'definite policy' on listing holding company securities.

He said it would be 'extremely difficult' to fix a standard by which some stocks would be accepted for trading and others rejected.

Bernard Baruch, New York capitalist, said he would support the measure.

American Legion Sponsoring Bill To Aid 'War Orphans'

Would Have State Institutions Provide Free Tuition, Room and Board for Students

If a bill sponsored by the State Department of the American Legion is enacted, any 'war orphan' desiring to get a college education will have the opportunity to do so.

J. H. Rouse, chairman of the Legion's legislative committee, said here today, following a meeting in Raleigh last night, the group had altered its plan of approach and would seek to have the State provide tuition, room and board at any of the educational institutions for every boy and girl whose father died during the actual time this country was in the World War.

There are only 22 white orphans and 42 Negroes below 20 years of age living in the State. Of this number it was estimated that not more than 25 would require help to attend college, many of them having dropped out of high school and others able to pay their own way.

With such a small number who probably would go to college if they had the opportunity, the Legion is asking that the State make such an education available for them.

Mr. Rouse stressed the point that the plan would be worked on a need and desire basis. He said that if tuition, room and board were provided a student, he or she should be able to provide other necessities for himself or herself.

Each applicant would be investigated by the local post to determine if both the need and desire apply to the orphan in question.

The committee instructed former Lieutenant-Governor A. H. Graham to draft the bill and submit it at another meeting called by Chairman Rose in Raleigh February 10.

RAIN FALLING IN LOUISVILLE

Rehabilitation One of Paramount Problems in Northern Ohio Valley Where Worst Apparently Is Over; Known Dead Standing at 293; Homeless Pass Million Mark

(By Associated Press) The flooded Ohio river, struggling like a captive serpent of fabulous strength, sought escape against weakening levees today in its cresting descent to the Mississippi.

The known dead stood at 293, the homeless past the million mark and an additional 500,000 were endangered and property loss was estimated at more than $400,000,000.

Along the 1,000-mile ghost town trail the slowly receding waters lapped idly at the receding waters in the empty towns.

The rehabilitation cost, now being one of paramount interest in Northern Ohio river valley communities where the worst apparently has passed, drew estimates ranging into billions. Officials said the average cost for cleaning and drying out a single flooded home was $250.

At Paducah, Ky., Red Cross officials hurried to evacuate thousands of reluctant inhabitants in advance of the oncoming flood peak.

United States Army Engineer Colonel Chas. R. Roeser warned of a 61-foot crest within the next 48 hours.

Below at Cairo, Ill., only men remained on the island city to bolster the 60 foot wall against an expected four foot rise in the river. Eight thousand, mostly women and children and the aged already had fled.

At Mount City, Ill., a bank levee collapsed, routing 650 men, 30 women and 175 CCC boys to higher ground.

On the Mississippi river itself, now beginning to stir uneasily under the vanguard slash of the Ohio's flood load, the Meiwald levee was threatened with collapse along its 392-mile boundary on the Arkansas side.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS GET NEW TRAINING
Syracuse, N. Y. (AP)—A new professional approach to the training of public school teachers will be inaugurated next fall at Syracuse university's school of education in an effort to bridge the gap between theory and practice.

In place of education courses modeled upon academic tradition, the new program will offer "units of work" centered about essential attitudes, skills and knowledge important to effective service in schools.

Senior students will be required to spend at least six consecutive weeks of actual training in public schools in central New York.

The university's "new deal" in education will become effective for students preparing to teach English, home economics, social science and the physical sciences.

FUNDS NEEDED BUILD ROADS

Bond Issue of $25,000,000 Said To Be Only Hope

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Jan. 27.—A state bond issue of at least $25,000,000, the proceeds to be used in improving the county roads of the state, is the only thing which will save the greater portion of these roads from almost complete destruction during the next few years, Senator W. I. Halstead of Camden county, said here today in discussing his bill which would authorize a bond issue of this amount.

For while he is naturally a conservative and opposed to any additional state borrowing unless absolutely necessary, Senator Halstead is convinced that there is absolutely no possibility of the state collecting enough highway revenue during the next few years to enable the highway department to properly rebuild and maintain the county highways without having additional funds which can only be obtained from a bond issue.

"I am fully aware, of course, that even $25,000,000 will not go very far on some 35,000 miles of unimproved dirt roads and I am not advocating the use of this $25,000,000 in an attempt to pave or hard surface the county roads," Senator Halstead said. "I know that this amount would be entirely insufficient to carry on a paving or surfacing program. But I am convinced that the use of $25,000,000 in rebuilding county roads to the extent of strengthening weak links, applying crushed stone or gravel, or in applying top soil and sand-clay surfacing to these roads, would go a long way towards putting them in better condition and keeping them passable the year round so that the farmers can get back and forth to town and their markets with their trucks and enable the school buses to operate on schedule. At the present time, rural schools have been closed in some 20 counties because the school buses cannot get over the county roads. The condition of these county roads is also causing the loss of thousands of dollars a year in excessive wear and tear on school buses."

"The raising of this $25,000,000 with which to help the rural portions of the state will not cause the individual taxpayer or automobile owner to pay one cent more in taxes than he is now paying, since the same gasoline tax and license tax he is now paying will adequately take care of the retirement of these bonds over ten or fifteen year period."

"I am a conservative and have always been very reluctant to pledge the credit of the state in borrowing money for any purpose. But when the very lives of the state and of rural North Carolina is suffering extremely due to the condition of our county road system, the raising of $25,000,000 by a state bond issue and its expenditure for the relief of these people is insignificant. I am unwilling to defer for 10 or 15 years, if I can possibly help it, what should be done for these roads within the next two years. I cannot turn a deaf ear to the pleas of the thousands who are asking and demanding better secondary roads, who for years have been helping to pay for the state roads but who so far have not yet shared in any benefits from these other expenditures."

Senator Halstead pointed out that he had no selfish motive whatever in introducing this bill, in that his home and all his properties are already located on hard, surfaced highways, but that he was motivated entirely by his interest in the plight of the hundreds of thousands of people living on the 48,000 miles of county roads, of which 33,000 miles are entirely unimproved. He is convinced that the immediate improvement of the secondary roads by means of a $25,000,000 bond issue would not only save farmers and others living on these roads hundreds of thousands of dollars by reducing the present wear and tear on their cars and trucks, but that it would also save the state many thousands of dollars a year in the operation of its fleet of more than 4,000 school buses.

"If I thought there was any possible chance for the state to get enough money out of current highway revenue to improve these roads without resorting to a bond issue, I would not favor the bond issue," Halstead said. "But I am absolutely convinced that the $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year the highway department has budgeted for the county roads is not a drop in the bucket and is almost a waste, when spread over 48,000 miles of roads. The bond issue is the only solution of the problem."

COUNTY UNITS FIGHT CHANGE

Superintendents Oppose Erwin 'Unification' Plan

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Jan. 28.—A good many city and county superintendents of schools are going to fight the bill already introduced but still in committee, which would make State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin both chairman and executive secretary of the State School Commission and thus virtually put the school forces in charge of spending some $24,000,000 a year of school money, it is becoming increasingly evident here.

For while this bill is regarded as having the approval of State Superintendent Erwin and the North Carolina Education Association, the "pressure" organization of the school politicians, an increasing number of superintendents are convinced that the State School Commission should be maintained as at present, entirely separate and apart from the Department of Public Instruction.

"I am convinced that nothing could be worse for the future welfare of the schools and the teachers than the proposal to make the State Superintendent, chairman and executive secretary of the State School Commission, which would be equivalent to turning the spending of the school appropriation over to the school people," a well known city superintendent said here today. "The schools, the superintendents, the teachers and the taxpayers all need the protection which the present plan affords, under which the school appropriation is appropriated and budgeted each year by the State School Commission, which is an entirely disinterested body of business men who look at the problem of school finance and administration from a purely business standpoint."

"It is the job of the school commission to make up a school budget on the basis of the money appropriated instead of on the basis of expenditures desired and I think it is better to leave the set-up the way it is now."

Tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock the Greenville High School basketball squad will play host to Durham's undefeated Bulldogs in a game that will go a long way in deciding the Eastern Championship of the Class A Conference. Both teams have perfect records and from all the preceding games are very evenly matched. The Durham cagers have it on the Greensies in height, having four six-footers in the lineup, but the Phantoms are expected to offset this advantage with their goal shooting ability. The Greenville lineup consists of a number of crack shots with Pierce, George Lautner, and Simpson as the top notchers. Parrish and Cox are not far behind.

There will be an interesting sideline battle in the game tomorrow night when Tom Parrish, Coach May's ace defensive man attempts to keep Wallace Wade, Jr. Durham's captain from scoring. Wallace Wade, Jr. is the son of Coach Wallace Wade of Duke University. He is the captain and the smallest man on the Durham team, but he is also rated the best shot. Last year against Raleigh's State champion outfit, he personally accounted for half of his team's points. He will be worth watching tomorrow night. Coach Stuessy also has in his lineup one of the best centers in the state. If DuBose Simpson, local center could hold his rival to no points in tomorrow night's contest, he would stand an excellent chance of making the All-State selection. On the other hand if he lets his man do much scoring, the Greensies are in for a good licking.

The game will start promptly at 7:30 and will be over at 8:30. That should not interfere with any of the spectators plans for the rest of the evening.

LIQUOR ISSUE IN SPOTLIGHT

Wets Are Not Worried, However, As Committee Meets

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Jan. 28.—Liquor is back in the spotlight here today as a result of the hearing in progress this afternoon before the House Judiciary Committee Number One on the two bills introduced so far dealing with the liquor problem.

One of these is the Hutchins

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Alamance county, would set up a state control and state liquor stores system, also several state-owned distilleries, and require that all liquor sold in the liquor stores be purchased from the state — an iron-clad state monopoly plan. The counties would be permitted to decide if they wanted liquor stores in county-wide elections. No state-wide election would be required to put this law into effect.

Although the various dry leaders are expected to consumed several hours time this afternoon urging the judiciary committee to report the Hutchins bill favorably and the Harford bill unfavorably, the prevailing opinion in most legislative circles here is that the committee, after listening to the same arguments the dries have presented every two years for the past several sessions, will eventually report both bills unfavorably. It is already generally agreed that a majority of the members of the committee—also a majority of the members of both houses of the assembly—is opposed to any bill that calls for a state-

SULU
Bird Dog Queen

Sulu, deep liver-and-white pointer bitch, owned by A. G. C. Sage, New York, handled by Clyde Motson.

HERE is an action picture of the famous Sulu, the pointer who swept everything before her at National Field Trials of 1936 at Grand Junction, Tenn. Sulu, the queen of them all!

Thousands of bird dogs range the fields... but there's only one Sulu. To this glorious creature Nature gave her greatest gift, a perfect balance of the vital elements; speed, scent, endurance, instinct and intelligence. Another pointer may be just as good to look at, but Sulu has that vital spark—everything in perfect balance. So Sulu is the queen; the other is just a dog.

Just as Nature favored Sulu, she favored Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda. Just as Sulu has many elements in Nature's balance, so has this nitrogen fertilizer. Nature aged and blended into Natural Chilean, more than thirty "impurities", or vital elements that your crops need to grow and to produce their best.

These vital elements are in addition to Natural Chilean's quick-acting nitrogen. That's why Natural Chilean is so good for your land and your crops.

There are those who believe the committee will sooner or later report out a compromise committee substitute for these bills and that this committee bill will probably call for a county option plan under which each county in the state may vote for or against the establishment of liquor stores, under joint state and county control and from which the counties will get the greater part of the revenue. More and more observers here are convinced that the state and county control groups are getting clear and clear together towards a compromise bill that will be satisfactory to both. In fact, it is known that an unofficial subcommittee representing the two control groups is now working on such a bill, to be brought in later when the time is regarded as being auspicious.

WELCOME, SCOUTERS

Greenville extends a cordial welcome to the Boy Scout Leaders of East Carolina Council gathered here today. The Boy Scout work is a valuable project in any community and Greenville is glad to be host to leaders in this work in Eastern North Carolina.

THE NEED CONTINUES

The citizens of Pitt County have been most generous in their contributions to the flood relief fund. Already we have far surpassed the amount originally assigned to this community to give but the need is so great that our quota should be every cent we are able to give.

There are many people of this county who have not yet donated to the fund and we appeal to everyone of these who can to give to the limit for the relief of suffering in the flood area. In addition to cash donations the local chapter of the Red Cross is authorized to accept new or clean serviceable clothing or bedding, or non-perishable food supplies. Whatever you feel that you can give, send it in now for the need is urgent.

WAR ON SLOT MACHINES

Senator E. G. Flanagan of this county has notified the General Assembly that he will seek passage of a measure that will outlaw slot machines in this state. Heretofore laws seeking to do away with the slot machine evils in this state have left loopholes whereby the machines could continue to operate, but Senator Flanagan states that he is seeking the aid of some of the able jurists of the state as well as the Attorney-General in the framing of a measure that will do away with the slot machines. If he is successful in this effort to rid the state of the slot machine evil he will render an invaluable service to the whole state.

APPEALS FOR FLOOD RELIEF

The people of Eastern North Carolina are blessed. We never have floods or storms, and we seldom have droughts. Do we appreciate these blessings? If we do let us show it by helping to alleviate the destitution of our fellow men—the victims of the flood. One who has never witnessed such a disaster can not conceive any such misery as the people are in. A more dismal picture has never been painted on the face of the earth than that of a flood. Listen to the radio, and read the newspapers and you will agree with me. Thousands of people are left homeless and foodless. Can we, as Christians, refuse them aid? Can we enjoy the comforts of home, or the pleasure of picture shows, knowing that those people are starving—dying? The greatest love that man can have is to lay down his life for a friend. Can not we lay down a few luxuries.

Suppose the theatres would give their Sunday collections, and each person attending the shows would donate the price of a ticket; what a sum that would be. Add to that the amount spent each day for soft drinks, cigarettes and whiskey, and North Carolina would practically have its quota. Let's all join hands and give them aid.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: A shot crashes through Anne Phelps' apartment late one night. When Bigelow, the young American from Paris, reaches the studio, he finds Anne and Karsanokoff, the glamorous dancer, staring at the corpse of Count Vronski who was black-mailing Anne with love letters. They hide the body in a cupboard during a gay party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, remove it to Vronski's apartment. Police arrest Thorne Dryden, a wealthy young man who hated Vronski, but he refuses to talk. Dryden's wife, Lorna, vanishes.

Chapter 21

Where Was Karsanokoff?

"I suppose it was Lorna who followed you from the night club," cried Anne. "She was there. You remember, Clarke, I wanted to her and she reminded me that she was lurching with me the next day. Then she had her maid call me up the next morning to break the date."

"Yes, of course," cried Bigelow. "And Lorna wouldn't have been armed. And she knew where I kept the gun!" added Anne excitedly. "I remember distinctly that she opened the drawer of the bed-side table one day looking for cigarettes. I always keep a supply there. And we talked about the gun. I told her how Philip had come to present it to me and she examined it. She knew about guns, too. You wouldn't think it to look at her, but she was an excellent shot. At least, so I've heard. Her father taught her to shoot. But somehow I can't conceive of her killing anybody."

"People are capable of the most amazing and unexpected things under the stress of circumstance," said Austrelitz. "And if she did shoot Vronski and told her husband so, we could understand his refusal to make a statement to the police and her disappearance, now."

"Yes," said Anne, "that's true." "We might find out whether she had any opportunity to shoot him," suggested Bigelow.

"How?" asked Austrelitz.

"By asking Karsanokoff where she was when the shot was fired."

"I doubt that she will admit being in the studio," said Austrelitz smiling. "She might have been there, with her back toward Vronski," said Bigelow. "In such a position that she couldn't see who fired at him."

"She might have been," admitted Austrelitz, "but she would be very foolish to admit it even to us."

"Oh, I don't know. She couldn't have known the gun was there and she had no reason to shoot the man. She had only just met him."

"She registered a significant interest in his name the first time she heard it," Austrelitz reminded him. "You noticed it and mentioned it to me. Also you got the impression that both she and her maid recognized him when they saw him, although he failed to recognize them."

"Even so," said Bigelow. "I'm inclined to think now that they were merely interested in the Vronski jewels. She asked about them almost at once."

"Why not ring her up and ask a guarded question or two?" put in Anne.

Austrelitz meditated an instant. "I think I will," he decided, going back to his desk and reaching for the telephone. He looked up the number on the small desk directory before him and called the Carleton. Bigelow and Anne sat waiting. . . .

This Is What Happened—

"HELLO!" he said presently having reached Karsanokoff. "I wonder if you would answer a question for me? . . ."

"But indeed I shall be delighted, doctor, if I can," replied the Russian. "What is the question?"

"The other night," began Austrelitz, "you know the night I mean—?"

"Yes," answered Karsanokoff.

"Where were you exactly—at the—er—critical moment?"

Karsanokoff laughed softly. "But that is a very odd question," she said.

"The point is," explained Austrelitz, "that we have got hold of a new theory—which concerns the man who has just become involved—and I want to test its possibilities."

"I see," said Karsanokoff slowly. "This is precisely what happened, doctor. With me in the room, there was a man, you know? A fellow countryman of mine. He was telephoning a long time for food. I was not very interested in all that and wandered into the bedroom to smooth my hair. Then I heard—a noise. And immediately after, the lights went out. In the dark, I found my way back—"

"Yes," said Austrelitz quietly, "that is the way I imagined it. Thank you very much."

"But this theory—? You must tell me. I am interested, too, very much."

"I'll come and see you and tell you about it," promised Austrelitz. "I have been promising myself the pleasure of coming to see you soon, in any case."

"When will you come, then? Tomorrow?" asked Karsanokoff.

"Yes, I shall be delighted to come tomorrow."

"For lunch? For tea? For dinner? When?" she persisted.

"I shall be delighted to come tomorrow."

"For lunch? For tea? For dinner? When?" she persisted.

"I shall be delighted to come tomorrow."

"For lunch? For tea? For dinner? When?" she persisted.

"I shall be delighted to come tomorrow."

"For lunch? For tea? For dinner? When?" she persisted.

"For dinner," he answered, making a comical face over the top of the telephone at the others. They were laughing at him.

"Very well, then. I expect you for dinner. And no excuses will be accepted. I warn you. Goodbye."

She hung up the receiver.

"She says she was in the bedroom," he reported dryly, "but you must remember that she is not a stupid woman and that she has had ample time to think over all this and to decide what she will say."

"But she may be telling the truth," Anne pointed out.

"Yes, there's just a chance," admitted the doctor, grimly.

"And if she was in the bedroom," Anne continued, "anyone may have come into the studio from outside. I don't mean only Dryden or Lorna or one of the others who turned up for the party; I mean literally anyone. It doesn't even depend on Vronski's having left the door unfastened. If he had heard a light tap, he would have opened the door, expecting to admit one of the invited guests. . . . Someone we don't even know may have seen him enter the building with us and may have followed on the chance of having a word with him."

"But no one outside could have known that he would be alone in the room at just that moment," said Bigelow.

"No. But that might just have happened. Someone might have taken advantage of the unexpected opportunity to settle an old grudge."

Austrelitz smiled. "Except that Madame Karsanokoff was—by her own admission—in the bedroom—where the gun was that killed him."

Bigelow and Anne stared at him. "That's true," murmured Anne in an altered voice.

"The Most Likely Suspect."

AUSTRELITZ rose from the desk and began to pace the floor again. The others watched him with close attention, trying to guess his train of thought.

"No, I can't—somehow—believe in your unknown outsider who happened in by chance," said the doctor gravely. "To me, Madame Karsanokoff is the most likely suspect. The fact that we are unaware of any motive doesn't mean that a motive may not exist. . . . I think I must cable a colleague of mine in Paris and see what I can find out about Madame Karsanokoff and about Vronski."

He stopped at the desk and made a note on a pad that was lying there.

"Here's another possibility that just occurs to me," said Bigelow thoughtfully. "Suppose that someone else did come in and shoot Vronski—and Karsanokoff knows who it was and how it happened and why—but isn't telling?"

Ahne looked inquiringly at the doctor.

"Mrs. Dryden—?" he asked. "You were thinking of her?"

"Yes," admitted Bigelow.

"But Madame Karsanokoff doesn't know Lorna Dryden," said Anne. "At least, I don't believe she does."

"Even so, it's conceivable that Karsanokoff might shield another woman if she thought that woman had been justified. If it happened as I'm imagining it, now—she might have heard exactly what passed between Mrs. Dryden and Vronski before the shooting occurred. And remember Mrs. Dryden knew that the gun was there and that it was loaded."

Austrelitz nodded. "We must find Mrs. Dryden as quickly as possible and hear what she has to say. That is imperative."

"Why?" asked Anne.

"The more we know, the better position we'll be in if we should ultimately be implicated. We can use our own judgment afterward about passing on our information. I don't propose to find and question Mrs. Dryden in order to betray her. Let us aid her, if you like, but let us first find out what she knows so that we will know how to act."

"Yes," added Bigelow, "that seems to me only sensible."

"But how can we hope to find her if the police have failed?" asked Anne.

"She might not try to elude you as she would the police," said Austrelitz. "And you will know where to look for her as the police will not. You know which relative she might go to for shelter in an emergency like this—or which intimate friend!"

Anne nodded, but obviously she was not happy over the plan.

"Suppose you dine with me," suggested Bigelow, "and we'll discuss ways and means. Afterward, we can begin the search."

"Come and dine at home with me," countered Anne. "Mother has known Lorna all her life—knows all the family. She might have some suggestions."

"Right," agreed Bigelow.

They took leave of the doctor and drove back together to the Phelps house. Walters heard the taxi stop and before the front door open for them before they had mounted the steps.

In the doorway Anne halted, catching her breath. It was not until she felt the warning pressure of Bigelow's hand on her arm that she remembered to smile a welcome. For in the hall sat Chief Inspector Hagedorn, waiting for them.

LEGISLATIVE CHAFF and CHATTER

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—Golden reception to greet any proposal of compensation laid before any branch of the legislature was that accorded a communication from W. A. Sullivan, representative of the "Mattress Industry" who wrote Chairman Libby Ward, of the appropriations committee, and Chairman J. C. Beck, of the House committee on institutions for the blind.

Mr. Sullivan, assertedly on behalf of the industry, complained that the mattress makers are being "ruined" by competition from blind people who have been aided by the state.

Typical of the feeling aroused by this letter was the comment of one very indignant member of the house appropriations group.

"If the mattress industry of North Carolina can't compete with the blind, then it ought to get out of business and turn the field over to the blind," he said.

Representative "Pete" Murphy, of Rowan, seconded a motion that the house raise a special fund for flood relief by contributions from the membership and started the fund with a five dollar bill which he designated "The remnants of a night ill-spent in a poker game."

Nobody will have to go outside his own county to buy automobile license tags, if Representative Robert T. McNair has his way. The "Gentleman from Richmond" has introduced a bill requiring the commissioner of revenue to put the plates on sale in at least one place in every county.

At present the tags are sold through the Carolina Motor Club in approximately 49 different places.

Vote on the motion to provide $25,000 to underwrite any deficit in state operation of a fair was so close (7 to 5) that a change of one would have put the matter up to Chairman James A. Bell of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Voting "Aye" for state operation of the fair were Senators Gold, Spark, Johnston of Sampson, No. 1 and Abernathy. Voting "No" were Senators Clark of Bladen, Greer, Gravelley, Baston, McDowell, McBryde and Rowe.

This was one question settled by the cold figures, the committee declining to underwrite a deficit when they had been shown in black and white that the state lost more than $100,000 in five years of fair operation and made a profit of more than $20,000 in four years of operation through losses.

Reporting on a committee's trip to Washington to attend a conference of the Institute of Government, Representative "Pete" Murphy said:

"If we had been puddle ducks or bull frogs, we'd have had a better time."

Seriously, however, he described the amazement of folks from other sections when they learned that North Carolina does not levy any so-called taxes for state purposes.

There will be no "unkets" for members of the appropriations committee this session, according to a resolution adopted by the group Tuesday afternoon.

It has often been the custom to send subcommittees to visit various state institutions which are asking for increased funds, and it was this practice the committee somewhat regretfully voted to end. One member, a veteran of other sessions, told of the pleasures of the trips, remarking that "One is always wine and dined and wine again."

In an effort to make more equitable the distribution of increased funds for salaries, the House appropriations committee has voted that a sub-committee make a special study of various salary groups with a view to seeing that the lower brackets get an even break in readjustments.

Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell has shown "heat" on just one occasion during all the long-drawn out discussions of the Revenue bill. Which goes to prove he has remarkable control of his temper.

His one lapse came during discussion of the tax on insurance proceeds of which have been deposited with the companies. When a representative of the companies argued that this tax—which would yield an estimated maximum of $10,000 annually—could not be imposed, Mr. Maxwell bitingly remarked that it took more than a little nerve on their part to argue about paying a tax they admitted was sound in principle, particularly when they are engaged in the "business" of selling tax exemption in the form of insurance."

CHAPEL HILL CONTRIBUTES $600 FOR FLOOD RELIEF

Chapel Hill, Jan. 23.—The Chapel Hill chapter of the American Red Cross has already raised more than $600 for flood relief and will continue to receive contributions from citizens at the Bank of Chapel Hill. It was announced today by R. M. Grumman, chairman of the local chapter.

Mr. Grumman has requested that all persons who wish to contribute warm, clean, woolen clothing for victims in the flood area, bring bundles at the Durham Dairy Products store on Franklin street.

STUDENTS NOW MORE SERIOUS, PREXY THINKS

SOME TALK OF BOOSTING TAX

Four Per Cent Sales Levy Being Urged By Some

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Jan. 28.—Some talk of the possibility of increasing the sales tax to 4 per cent instead of decreasing it to 2 per cent is being heard in some legislative circles here unless something can be done to stop the present steady and upward trend in requests for appropriations.

But most observers are confident that the sales tax will not be increased, also that it will not be decreased, but is likely to remain at 3 per cent, with the exemptions restored as recommended by Governor Clyde R. Hoey and the Democratic platform. Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell today expressed surprise that any one was even considering suggesting any increase in the sales tax and said that he was definitely opposed to any increase in the rate of the tax.

"I think it would be very unwise to increase the sales tax beyond 3 per cent with the exemptions restored, just as I am opposed to decreasing the tax to 2 per cent without any exemptions," Commissioner Maxwell said. "No other state that I know of imposes a sales tax of more than 3 per cent and I think it would set a bad and dangerous precedent to increase it. I doubt if the finance committees ever seriously consider making any increase in the sales tax rate."

According to the estimates which have been presented to the finance committees by the budget commission and the Department of Revenue, the 3 per cent sales tax with the exemptions will yield approximately $6,700,000 the first year and $8,900,000 the second year of the new biennium, as compared with an estimated yield of $11,300,000 from the sales tax with no exemptions this year and an actual yield of $10,181,000 last year. On the basis of these figures, the state will lose $2,600,000 in revenue from the sales tax the first year and $2,400,000 the second as a result of the restoration of the exemptions on flour, sugar, salt, lard, butter, milk, molasses and meal—the same "basic foods" which were exempted from 1933 to 1935.

Although it is readily admitted by the spokesmen for the merchants of the state that they would rather have a flat 3 per cent sales tax than a 3 per cent sales tax with exemptions and their claims that such a 3 per cent sales tax would bring in as much revenue as a 3 per cent tax with exemptions, Commissioner of Revenue Maxwell and others who have been looking into the matter are convinced that this would not be the case.

Indications are that the finance committees are already about convinced that a 2 per cent sales tax with no exemptions would not bring in more than $7,700,000 a year, or at least $1,000,000 a year less than a 3 per cent tax with the exemptions. Accordingly, indications point more and more to the retention of the 3 per cent sales tax with exemptions as recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission and the Department of Revenue. A good many members of the committee are already worried at the loss of $2,600,000 a year in revenue as a result of restoring the exemptions, with the result that they have no desire to kiss another $1,000,000 a year goodbye as they would have to do if the sales tax rate should be reduced to 2 per cent.

The suggestion that the sales tax rate be increased to 4 per cent is being made by those who are becoming worried and alarmed at the constantly increasing demands for larger appropriations from the public schools and all the other state departments and institutions and who see no way of regaining the revenue lost by restoring the exemptions except by increasing the rate.

But the older and more experienced members of the general assembly are refusing to become alarmed at the big requests for appropriations, maintain that these will be pared down later and that it will not be necessary to increase the sales tax beyond 3 per cent, with the exemptions restored.

To Hold Public Forum In Farmville Monday

Urges Farmers Keep Hogs Off Market Now

Farmers in this section were advised today by at least one large packing house to keep their hogs off the market for a few days in order to prevent flooding the market and causing a drop in prices. A representative of the packing house said that his firm had been flooded with pork for the past week or so and that if shipments continued, prices necessarily would show a decline.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Steels ran away from the rest of the stocks in today's stock market in a buying surge that lifted these issues one to around three points, many to new recovery peaks.

United States Steel turned over in large blocks, hit 93 and Bethlehem touched 81, both the best levels in more than six years. The ticker tape frequently lagged during the feverish buying spurt, but volume dwindled near the fourth hour and extreme gains were reduced substantially in many instances.

Bonds followed stocks in the forward tilt.

Transfers approximated 2,600,000 shares.

Metropolitan Opera Star
tells why he prefers a light smoke
Lauritz Melchior says:

"The hardest test I can give a cigarette is to try its effect on my throat after hours of intense rehearsal. I've found that a light smoke meets this test. And so, although I am not a constant smoker, I favor Lucky Strike for the sake of my throat. And, incidentally, so does my wife. When we go back to Europe we never forget to take along a good supply of Luckies."

Lauritz Melchior

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Melchior verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat!
