MISS PERKINS ATTACKS MOVE OF MOTOR CO.

Declares Assurances Given and Then Violated

NON-UNION MEN INVADE CAPITOL

Anti-Strike Forces Protest Against 'Sit- Down' in Two Gen- eral Motors Plants

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins termed "an extraordinary performance" today the General Motors corporation's withdrawal from a tentative agreement to hold a peace conference with representatives of the striking United Automobile workers.

"I had assurances and I gave the assurances, and then the assurances were withdrawn," Miss Perkins said after Alfred Sloan, Jr., the General Motors president, notified by telephone from New York he could not carry out the tentative agreement.

After a long conference with Sloan in her office yesterday afternoon, Miss Perkins said she felt the long deadlock in the strike had been broken. She was arranging with John Lewis, chairman for the Committee for Industrial Organization, for the peace conference when she received Sloan's message.

Detroit, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Non-union auto workers who "sit down" in the Michigan state capitol for 10 hours in protest against "sit down" strikes in two General Motors plants said today they would return to the State House Monday if there has been no "definite and satisfactory solution."

Twenty-five demonstrators, employees of the Chevrolet gear and axle plant at Detroit, occupied folding chairs just outside Governor Frank Murphy's office after a conference with him, remaining until shortly before last midnight. The governor meanwhile had come to Detroit for the week-end.

"It will work out all right," the governor commented today when informed attempted in Washington to arrange for negotiations between General Motors and the union apparently had failed again. Earlier he had said:

"I have plans which I could not put into effect while federal conferences are in progress. If I don't get good news from Washington I will be prepared to act immediately."

Discussion Topic For Youth Group On Sunday Movies

First Regular Meeting of Local Organization to Be Held Tomorrow Night at 6:30 o'Clock

"Sunday Movies" is the topic for discussion at the first regular meeting of the local unit of the United Youth Movement tomorrow evening at 6:30 in the Presbyterian church. The subject will be presented from three angles: T. Y. Walker, speaking from the producers' and managers' point of view, and Dr. Herbert ReBarker, of the College, presenting both sides of the question from the viewpoint of the public. Open discussion will follow.

The local unit, including the young people of the different churches within the age grouping of 15 to 25, is part of the nationwide United Youth Movement, organized in 1934, under the caption, "Christian Youth Building a New World," and was started in Greenville the past fall. For their first project the Greenville Council for Peace Action in presenting a pageant, "Shall War or Peace Reign?" on Armistice Sunday.

Dr. Meadows Attends Meeting In Raleigh

President L. R. Meadows went to Raleigh today to attend a meeting of the State summer school directors, who determine the policies of all the summer schools in the state. This meeting had three objectives: to fix the number of credits that can be earned in the summer quarter, to decide what expenses should be attached to summer school attendance, and settle the length of time the summer school should run.

N. C. Legislators Prepare Take Up Knotty Problems

Tighter Lines Drawn on Tax, Money-Spending and Liquor Legislation as Assembly Nears Floor Fight on Major Measures

By W. JOYNES MacFARLAN

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The legislature this week drew lines tighter on tax, moneyspending and liquor legislation as it neared floor fights on major problems and killed the perennial proposal to reapportion the House on the basis of the 1930 census.

Work on the revenue measure may be finished in committee next week. The joint finance committee re-wrote sections of the budget revenue bill to suit the members, but still other controversial levies must be studied next week.

It was recommended that the legislature pass a three per cent sales tax measure from which rice, basic articles or food would be exempted. Application of the levy on retail sales would start at 15-cent purchases, instead of as now at 4-cent sales under the exemptionless levy.

Representative King of Scotland led the fight for a flat two per cent tax, losing in sub-committee and before the joint group, and announced he would abide by the committee's findings. Hints of later fights, however, came from Paul Leonard, secretary of the Fair Tax Association, who said the matter would go to the floor.

Forty-four members of the joint committee voted against the two per cent proposal, five voted for it, and two voted present. A 2-1-2 per cent amendment was also voted down.

G. L. PLEASANT RETURNS HOME IN RIVER HERE

Still Uncertain as Yet Whether He Will Regain Sight

G. Lem Pleasant, victim of a brutal attack by two young white men, returned to his home here last night from Johns Hopkins hospital, where he spent some time undergoing treatment by eye specialists.

Whether he will be able to see is still uncertain and he probably will return for further examination and treatment. He is able to detect light, but can not distinguish objects, giving rise to hopes that sight in his left eye will be restored. All hopes for saving the right eye have been abandoned.

Mrs. Pleasant, who has been with her husband constantly since the tragedy the night of December 23, said that he could receive company, but requested that visitors refrain from talking to him of the attack.

Bernice Aspinwall and Bernard Moore, the two charged with assaulting Mr. Pleasant are being held in Wilson county jail. They were scheduled to have been tried at a session of Superior court here this week, but because of the condition of their victim the case was postponed until another term.

Saturday City Court Dispensed With Here

With only one case, one involving a minor accident, scheduled to be heard, the regular Saturday morning session of City court was dispensed with today.

The case, along with those resulting in week-end arrests will be heard Monday morning.

SIGNATURE TO PEACE TREATY IS WITHDRAWN

Adolf Hitler Says Germany Not Re- sponsible for War

HOLDS COUNTRY DID NO WRONG

Reichsfuehrer Insists Resumption of Military Sovereignty Is Local Problem

Berlin, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, starting to rule Germany for another four years today, "withdrew" German signature from the Versailles peace treaty in which the Reich was declared "guilty" of launching the World war.

Asserting Germany's resumption of military sovereignty was a matter affecting only the Reich, the Nazi Chancellor told his Reichstag: "We have taken nothing from any nation—nor have we done any nation wrong."

He declared the German government from now on would exercise sole sovereignty over the federal railway system and the Reichsbank. Then he added:

"I hereby declare that through these actions, that part of the Versailles treaty which deprived our nation of equality and degraded it to a position of an inferior peoples has found its natural end."

"Above all, however, I hereby most solemnly withdraw the German signature from the declaration forced upon a weak government against its better knowledge—the declaration to the effect Germany was guilty of starting the World war."

Not quite a year ago the same Reichstag which Hitler addressed today on the fourth birthday of Nazi power re-militarized the broad Rhineland in violation of the treaty of Versailles.

Two complete floor shows and specialty numbers feature of event honoring President

A crowd which came up to expectations attended the Roosevelt Birthday ball here last night at which something over $600 was raised, 70 per cent of which will be kept here for aid of crippled children.

The College campus building, scene of the dance, was decorated for the affair, and drew many favorable comments.

Two complete floor shows were features of the program. Miss Ramona Staples and Miss Caroline Hamric each presented their students in dance numbers.

Miss Louise Brackett, professional dancer of Richmond and Norfolk, took part in Miss Staples' program. A specialty toe dance number was presented by Miss Virginia Bradshaw.

In addition to the programs, a large crowd engaged in dancing to the music of Joe Burke's "Duke Ambassadors."

Introduces Measure Calling For Board

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Rep. Ward of Craven introduced a bill in the House today calling for a nine-member state planning board to be appointed by the Governor to work out programs for the advancement of North Carolina.

There were 27 House members present for a five-minute session and six senators attended a 10-minute meeting.

Senators passed five bills including HB 110 by Aycock of Warren to fix salary of Warren deputy court clerk.

NEW, FEARSOME ELEMENT INJECTED INTO FLOOD AREA BY SLIGHT EARTH TREMOR

BUSY SESSION FOR CONGRESS

Flood Emergency Ac- celerates Federal Activities

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The flood emergency and problems of long-range fundamental policy accelerated government activities this week in a manner reminiscent of the first Roosevelt month in 1933.

Relief and rehabilitation in the suffering midwest came first. Between conference on those immediate needs, the President began to crystallize his business and labor programs, sending legislative proposals.

With at least 200,000 flood refugees expected to go in relief rolls, the House expected approval of the $700,000,000 appropriation originally intended to finance relief through June.

Similar Senate action is expected Monday. More funds probably will be asked later.

Few questions were asked about this exercise of federal power to meet needs. When it came to invoking the federal welfare clause of the constitution for a $50,000,000 seed loan bill, however, said a for-estate of the dispute to come over administration plans spread employment and established minimum wages.

Senator Glass, (D. Va.) produced a message by which President Cleveland 50 years ago vetoed a similar bill, recommending it to his colleagues as "an interesting relic of constitutional government."

Congress passed the seed loan bill and the president signed it late yesterday. He also signed the bill extending the lending powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Filling Stations Will Not Be Able Evade Chain Levy

New Evasion-Proof Section to Tax Stations Presented to Joint Fi- nance Committee

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—A new fool-proof evasion - proof section to the revenue bill will be presented to the joint finance committee when it meets again Tuesday afternoon to resume its study of the bill.

The sub-committee which has been preparing this amendment, of which Representative Oscar Barker of Durham is chairman, was ready to report its new section Friday afternoon, but the finance committee spent so much time on the sales tax section that it decided to postpone listening to his report from the chain filling station tax sub-committee until Tuesday. Representative Thomas S. Royster of Granville and Senator Benton Stacey of Rockingham county, are members of this committee.

Under the new section which has been prepared as a substitute for the present section of the revenue bill taxing chain filling stations, the tax has been reduced on the smaller numbers of stations, but has been considerably increased on the stations when the total exceeds twenty. The tax ranges from $5 to $125.00 per station on the first 20 stations under the new section, then jumps to $50 per station and on up as high as $250 per station when the number in any chain exceeds 101.

This new section also tightens up the provisions and definitions as to what constitutes a chain filling station, so that even if gasoline and oil companies lease their stations to individuals, as they have done in an effort to evade the 1935 chain filling station tax, they will still be liable for the tax. Chairman Barker and the members of his subcommittee feel that they have made the new section as nearly evasion-proof as it can be made and that if this section is enacted it will compel the big gasoline companies to really pay a substantial tax in North Carolina for the first time.

The gasoline and oil companies put up a tremendous fight in the 1935 general assembly against the chain filling station tax and maintained one of the largest and most obstinate lobbies ever seen here in an effort to defeat it, but the tax was put in the revenue bill just the same. They are now contesting the legality of the section in the courts and have protested most of the tax paid under it.

CONSPIRATOR N. C. TRUSTEES SPARED LIFE HOLD SESSION

Clemency Is Granted Former Russian Editor

Moscow, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Karl Radek, prosecuted as the blackest of 17 Trotskyist plotters against the Soviet Union, today escaped the firing squad death, decreed for 13 fellow conspirators.

The fiery Radek, who declined to ask clemency of his judges, was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment and deprived of his political life for five years more. Sparring of his life was attributed to the desire to use his testimony at additional trials.

The whisker-fringed editor, once the most authoritative voice in the Russian press, strode off to prison with his icy indifference unshattered.

Six Churches To Hold Joint Night Services

The service, participated in by six of the local churches, will close promptly with the hour, and will emphasize congregational singing of familiar Gospel hymns, under the leadership of a large inter-church community chorus. Special music will also be given.

Although the preacher for the occasion is unannounced, the congregation is assured of another splendid message, in line with those already given.

Cooperating churches in this service held each Sunday evening in the Methodist church are: Methodist church, Presbyterian church, Eighth St. Christian church, St. Paul's Episcopal church, Memorial Baptist church and Immanuel Baptist church.

Exactly 2,224 teachers are drawing pensions through the California teachers' retirement fund.

SHOVEL CREWS RAISE LEVEES

Army of 115,000 Workers Strive To Protect Mississippi River Valley From Destruction; Zero Hour Expected To Come By Next Wed- nesday

(By Associated Press)

A fresh host of dangerous earth tremors, crumbling levees and rising waters punctuated the weary struggle of man against the rivers along the 1,200-mile flood trail today.

Brief-lived, but terrifying the earth trembles ominously near Tiptonville, Tenn. In the area here a century ago.

An earthquake formed the vast Reelfoot lake, east of the Mississippi river.

With 60,000,000 tons of water cresting around the Ohio river valley in search of lower levels, dramatic defense of Little Cairo, Ill., neared its climax.

Creeping near the top of the 60-foot seawall the water touched 50-75 feet today—the highest stage in ten city's history.

Increasing the menace to the city was the fact the spillway basin was almost full. Engineers had faced a choice of blasting a new outlet for the basin or allowing the flood to pile back with reserved pressure on Cairo.

(By Associated Press)

A slight earth tremor injected a new and fearsome element into the Mississippi flood valley fight today near Tiptonville, Tenn., where 115,000 men, labored with shovel and sand bags to hold levees against a destructive "super flood."

Dyke workers and town people reported there was a brief trembling of the earth about 3 a. m. in the area where a century ago an earthquake formed the vast Reelfoot lake east of the river.

A slight inspection by engineers indicated the earth walls were not breached.

"I lasted for several seconds," said Chief of Police Pats Smith, "but there wasn't any damage. The levees are still holding."

A retreat beyond the grasp of an insatiable enemy quickened as the relentless surge of flood waters toward Mississippi river spurred a tireless army in its defense of the Southland's cotton belt.

A pick and shovel army of 115,000, bolstered by reinforcements, raised breastworks on both sides of the river and awaited the serow-ho to come, when the crest of the flood from the Ohio river sweeps past Cairo, Ill., probably next Wednesday, and starts its rush down the Mississippi to the Gulf.

Then will come the test of the gigantic levee system. Anxious thousands in the river lowland between Cairo and New Orleans prayed they would be saved from the fate of their fellow Americans in the Ohio river basin.

The pick and shovel army waged a terrific and apparently successful fight to hold the dykes a few miles above Tiptonville, Tenn., and doubled its efforts to raise a bulwark as the flood waters inched toward the top of a 60-foot flood wall at Hickman, Ky.

On the lower Ohio the rampaging flood waters forced complete evacuation of 8,000 persons from Paducah, Ky., after the state health commissioner reported the city was uninhabitable.

As the water crept higher, 4,000 embattled residents of Cairo could only watch and wait for the crisis.

County Nurse May Go To Flooded Section

Miss Mary Ann Crockett, Pitt county Board of Health nurse, received orders today to "stand by" for possible orders to report for duty in the flood area.

A letter received today from Miss Elizabeth Moore of Raleigh, state secretary of the American Red Cross nurses' service, asked Miss Crockett to be prepared to leave at any time.

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer, said the department would permit the nurse to leave when and if needed in the disaster.

The city and county health departments have volunteered the services of Sanitary Inspector J. F. Stove if he is needed in the flooded section.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Count Vronski, who was blackmailing Anne Phelps with love letters, is shot to death in Anne's studio. Bigelow, the young American from Paris, finds Anne and Karanokoff, the glamorous dancer, staring at the corpse. They hide it during a party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austretitz, the psychiatrist, remove it to Vronski's rooms. Police arrest Thorne Dryden, a wealthy chap who hated Vronski. When Dryden's wife, Lorna, vanishes, Anne and Bigelow determine to find her, but are delayed by Inspector Hagedorn's questioning.

'About Those Checks—?' Chapter 23

"It's a funny thing," said Hagedorn, looking at his drink, "but I can't find the taxicab that took him away from the studio again and we can't trace the telephone from which he made that call. Nobody seems to have seen him from the time he left the restaurant with you until his valet and him dead the next morning. . . . Your health, Miss— and Ma'am." Hagedorn took his drink at a gulp and a swallow of water after it. "Ye-es, tha, is funny," said Anne, politely. "You didn't quarrel with him, Miss, for any reason at all during the evening?" asked Hagedorn.

"No indeed," Anne assured him. "I can vouch for that," added Bigelow, "and so can Madame Karanokoff." "Quite so," said Hagedorn. "I was only wondering about his going away so suddenly after himself arranging the party. You wouldn't know, I suppose, whether he quarreled with the Russian lady?" "Not unless they quarreled after we went to the kitchen," said Bigelow. "And they hardly had time, then. Also, they had only met that night for the first time, so it doesn't seem likely, does it?"

"No," agreed Hagedorn. "Well, I think that is all, Miss. Thank you very much." He put down his glass and rose. Anne rose, too, breathing a little sigh of relief in spite of herself. Hagedorn bowed rather heavily and started for the door, but just as he reached it, he turned back abruptly. "Oh," he cried, "about those checks of yours, Miss, that Count Vronski had been paying into his bank—" "Anne faltered and turned pale, taken completely unawares by this bombshell. "Checks—?" she repeated uncertainly. "Checks?" gasped Mrs. Phelps angrily, speaking for the first time. "What concerns are you talking?" "Miss Phelps—" said Chief Inspector Hagedorn, ignoring the old lady and looking straight at Anne. Bigelow realized that this was the real purpose of the man's visit. He had been playing with them, lulling them into a sense of false security to throw them off their guard, now. And wrack his brain as he would, he could think of no way of side-tracking this inquiry. He felt suddenly a little sick.

"Yes, I did give Count Vronski checks on several occasions," Anne admitted finally in a low voice. "You—gave him checks?" repeated the old lady, incredulously. "I don't believe it." "The teller at his bank noticed the name on them and remembered it," said Hagedorn. "Was it—blackmail, Miss?" "Yes," answered Anne frankly. "He had some—letters. But how did you know?" Hagedorn did not answer that. "You ought to have come straight to me, Miss, the first time he tried that," he said severely. "I didn't know you then," said Anne, looking helplessly up at him. "Did you get the letters back?" "No," sighed Anne. "I didn't." "And the rest of the story was just as you've told it?" "Yes, just as I told it." "Thank you, Miss, said Hagedorn, after a long look at her downcast face. With another nod, he went out.

"I Can't Tell You That!" HEY remained absolutely motionless in the drawing room, listening until they heard the front door close behind him. "I thought it better to admit it," said Anne, then looking anxiously at Bigelow. "Of course," said Bigelow. "He knew, you see," said Anne. "As if he had caught me in a lie over that, he wouldn't have believed anything else." "I thought you did exactly right to tell him," Bigelow assured her. His eyes were compassionate. "Miss Phelps leaned forward in her big chair, her horrified gaze searching Anne's face. "It's true, then—that Vronski was blackmailing you?" she whispered as though unable to grasp it. "Yes, quite true," answered Anne. "I didn't like him, I hated him really. But I couldn't shake him off. And I could never explain to you because I didn't want to worry you. I never meant you to know. I'm sorry—you had to find it out." Her eyes met the old lady's wistfully. "But that—if you didn't ever like him—the letters—" cried the old lady. "They weren't written to Vronski—?" "No," admitted Anne after an instant's hesitation. "Anne and Bigelow tackle the problem of Lorna's disappearance next."

'MADONNA' OF THE FLOOD!

While the mighty Mississippi surges angrily down toward the gulf, Mrs. Winifred Waver of Luxora, Ark., sits on a bare mattress in a refugee center at Memphis, Tenn., and nurses her baby. All the resignation of a lowland people bred to become resigned to floods seems to be expressed in her face. (Associated Press Photo)

LEGISLATIVE CHAFF and CHATTER

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—Those on the inside and who often know just what makes the legislative wheels go round are whispering that thoughts of federal patronage are disturbing law makers who want to vote against ratification of the Child Labor amendment. These legislators under cover of operative Jim Farley runs and the kind of the Administration and focus of the Administration, whose full powers are being exerted to put over the amendment. Therefore, the story runs, they will hesitate for a long time to antagonize the Washington powers—that-be, for even a politician—and most legislators are—has an eye on a good soft Federal post.

Those who thought the Reapportionment debate produced fireworks just "ain't seen nothing yet." Let them tune in on the Child Labor amendment debate Monday. They'll get two earfuls (or is it careful) of "Dangerous encroachment on the sovereign powers of this great state," "Defense of Our Children," "Stand by our Great President," and other resounding oratorical phrases.

Echoes of the Reapportionment fight—"Pete" Murphy telling the House Mecklenburg and Guilford ought not to want anything because "Mecklenburg has the Hornet Nests Rifleman and the Mecklenburg Declaration. Guilford has the Guilford Courthouse Battlefield and the Keeley Institute." . . . New Hanover's Tom Cooper consulting "all the mole dealers I could find every one of them thought this bill unconstitutional. No lawyers could agree." . . . Rupert Pickens, author of the measure declining to yield for questioning. . . . Willie Lee Lumpkin using the debate as a vehicle for his anti-administration propaganda. . . . Cherokee's Harry Cooper, farthest west, voting "No."

Advance rumors of wholesale "trading" were hardly borne out by the reapportionment vote. It seems many western representatives who were naturally expected to be for the bill reached the honest conclusion the measure was unconstitutional. Nobody ever found out exactly why the huge pile of whiskey bottles and fruit jars was brought into the Hall of the House for the liquor hearing Thursday afternoon. They were conspicuously placed under personal direction of a large lady who wore a red hat and was said to be one of the "Drys." But about the middle of the hearing somebody ordered them taken out and quite a diversion came when a page dropped several bottles with a resounding crash. One was suggested the bottles had been found Thursday morning in rooms of the legislators. "Then they didn't get half of them," retorted another. "There

N. C. LEGISLATURE PREPARES TAKE UP KNOTTY PROBLEMS (Continued from page one) The administration-backed old-age assistance and child aid measure hit the legislative mill Monday and after Frank Bane, executive director of the Federal Social Security program, had talked on the entire security question, a joint started work on the bill. "Senator Hill of Durham repeatedly attacked it as a "most extreme" proposal in taking away local self-government. To the surprise of even its staunchest supporters, a House committee reported a resolution to ratify the federal child labor amendment and it and the much-discussed tobacco compact bill were set as special House orders for Monday afternoon.

The tobacco compact bill as amended "in committee, sponsors said, provides adequate protection for "small farmers." No person who had an AAA or "historic base" acreage of 32 acres or less would have that reduced, but efforts to put on a maximum acreage limit failed. Representative Siler of Chatham proposed a $750,000 bond issue for a new office building in Raleigh. A House sub-committee on education started studies intended to provide safer school bus bodies in the state. During hearings on the social security measures, Senator Gravelly of Nash hinted that counties having liquor stores planned to raise their share of the finances for the program from liquor sales. Many different groups appeared before legislative committees on various questions. Most of them came to protest proposed tax levels on farms; slot machines, chain stores, wines and the druggists appeared in opposition to adoption of a 15-cent minimum for application of the sales tax. They contended they must pay the levy on gross retail sales and already lose money due to crazy nickel sales which are untaxed. Representative Vogler of Mecklenburg suggested to the finance committee that a sub-group of seven be named to study the matter of more equitable taxation but received no support.

WORLD NEEDS ARE SURVEYED

Episcopal Women Hear Forceful Sermon by Ohioan

The task of the Forward Movement in helping to combat the forces threatening to engulf civilization today, was presented forcefully on Wednesday evening by the Rev. Arthur H. Sherman, of Cincinnati, a member of the staff of the Forward Movement Commission, to the Convention of the Woman's Auxiliary, Diocese of East Carolina, in its annual two-day meeting held in Greenville this week.

In giving a rapid survey of the world's needs, Dr. Sherman presented some of the most desperate problems, the solution of which offers opportunities for intelligent work by the forces working to make the principles of Christianity dominate the world. The radical economic changes, and moral standards, he gave as indicative of the fluid state of this age.

GREENIES WIN FROM DURHAM

Green Phantoms Now A Step Nearer Class A Championship

By JOHN DAVID BRIDGERS (Staff Correspondent)

Before the largest crowd that has witnessed any other similar contest this year the Greenville High School basketball team, the Green Phantoms, took a forward step toward the Class A Conference championship by defeating the Durham Bull Dogs by the score of 21 to 25. This game gave the locals the lead in the conference standing.

Durham scored the first point of the game shortly after the opening, but the Greenies quickly recovered and took the lead, which at the end of the first quarter was 4 to 3 in favor of the locals. The score continuously remained at a small margin and at the half the score stood 12 to 9 still in favor of the Greenies.

George Lautares led the locals by scoring 8 points. He was followed up by DuBose Simpson and Tom Parrish who collected 7 counts apiece. Johnny Lautares also played a fine defensive game. The losers were led by Williams who accounted for six points.

Charles Gaskins played (or rather watched) a very nice game as captain of the bench.

THE GREAT FLOOD... A PANORAMA OF DEATH AND RUIN!

This picture of a rescue boat coursing down a flooded street vividly portrays what the mighty deluge of 1937 has meant to residents of the stricken communities. The town, typical of many flooded sections, is Lawrenceburg, Ind., which was evacuated when waters of the wild Ohio river tapped at the eaves of homes. More than 1,000,000 persons are homeless and 333 dead in the 5,000 square miles affected by the floods. Damage is estimated at $400,000,000 in eleven states. (Associated Press Photo)

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Steels exacted another brisk upward flurry in today's market but with the exception of a number of specialties, failed to pull the rest of the list in their wake. United States steel was again the leader, leaping across 97 to a new six-year peak. At the same time automotive issues were inclined to give ground as the strike deadlock remained unbroken, prices were somewhat uneven at the close. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.
