Many Problems Occupy Center of Legislative Stage

WOULD REDUCE AUTO LICENSES

Bill Proposes to Set Aside Sum to Provide for Liability Insurance Fund

Raleigh, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Liquor, social security, disaster, crop control, finance, cheaper car license plates and state-fund automobile liability insurance all occupied the legislative stage today.

The senate received and quickly passed a supplementary bill to the tobacco compact act, approved earlier in the week, but not yet ratified into law.

The measure was rushed through the house a few minutes later and will become law upon ratification, a perfunctory procedure, after the bill has been properly recorded.

A senate judiciary committee ordered a public hearing Thursday on the county option liquor store bill, passed by the house Wednesday, and Representative Hendon, of Alamance, introduced a new bill to allow liquor manufactured in the state.

Three senators offered a bill to reduce license fees for motor vehicles to half the present rate and provide a sum equal to the new rate to be paid into the state treasury for each vehicle to set up a state liability insurance fund.

The tobacco supplementary bill primarily changing the methods of appeal by growers, gave any grower the right to challenge the crop of any other grower.

Relief Chairman Appreciative Of Flood Donations

Rev. W. A. Ryan Issues Statement Thanking All Who Aided in Raising Relief Funds.

Chairman W. A. Ryan today issued the following statement thanking those who donated to the flood relief campaign:

As Chairman of Flood Relief activities I wish to express my sincere thanks to all those who have so generously contributed to this cause. The response to the appeal has been so wide spread that it is practically impossible to mention by name all the individuals, organizations, business firms and communities that have made possible the splendid results obtained in the Pitt County campaign.

The greatest factor has been publicity. For this we have the radio to thank for the general information concerning conditions in the flooded areas. Locally, this has been augmented by the whole hearted support of The Daily Reflector. Not only has space been generously provided in the issues of the paper, but the members of the entire staff have given unstintingly of their time, both in the raising and the handling of funds received. Practically all receipts have cleared through the Reflector office, the handling and tabulating of which have necessitated a great deal of work.

Individuals have canvassed business houses and others have made calls where pledges had been made. Mr. Walker placed the equipment and staff of the two theatres at the disposal of the committee and in other ways cooperated, in helping bring the campaign to a successful conclusion. Mr. Rose and the faculty and students of the city schools, as did also the faculty and students of the college, added much to the results of the work. One of the most gratifying contributions was that which came from the colored employees of the E. B. Flecken Tobacco Co. These, out of their need, contributed to the greater need of others. To these and all others who, whether by service or contribution, have helped carry this appeal for funds to such a splendid conclusion, I express my sincere appreciation.

New Safety Bill Is Result Of Fatal Florida Accident

Raleigh, Feb. 5.—The newest highway safety bill introduced in the house here by Representatives Thomas P. Royster of Greenville and Oscar G. Barker of Durham, was suggested as a result of the recent bus wreck in Florida in which a large passenger bus plunged from the Tamiami Trail into the canal beside it, resulting in the drowning of some 19 passengers. Representatives Royster and Barker said today.

The bill makes it a misdemeanor for any bus operating as a common carrier or any for-hire truck to operate with tires which have worn down to the fabric and authorizes highway patrolmen and other peace officers to stop any such buses or trucks and to impound them until tires with the proper amount of tread to make them safe are installed.

"We have been informed that the real cause of the bus accident in Florida and which caused the bus to swerve off the road into the canal was the blowing out of a tire which had worn down to the fabric," Barker said. "We have also observed countless trucks and buses operating in North Carolina, many at high speed with tires worn entirely down to the fabric. It is our understanding that some bus and truck operators deliberately instruct their drivers to use the tires on their vehicles until they blow out, or at least until they are worn down to the fabric, when there is always great danger of such tires blowing out, thus endangering both the lives of drivers and of the drivers of other vehicles which may be approaching or following. In the case of buses, of course, such blowouts are very dangerous to the passengers, although I am informed that a good many of the large bus lines are very dangerous to the passengers, although I am informed that a good many of the large bus lines are very careful about tires and do not permit the operation of buses with worn tires."

As a result of these facts, Representative Royster and Barker feel that their bill is important from the standpoint of highway safety and accident prevention and that its enactment will help protect lives on the highways.

EXPECT CROWD ATTEND SESSION

Solon Expresses Opinion Not One Vote Will Be Changed By Arguments

Raleigh, Feb. 5.—The Senate judiciary committee number one, voted unanimously today to grant organized dries a hearing next Thursday afternoon on the county option liquor bill passed by the House Wednesday.

"I don't think a single vote will be changed by this hearing," commented Senator Rodman of Beaufort. Taylor of Anson lodged the motion for the hearing.

The hearing was set for the Senate chamber, but members expressed the opinion it might be changed to memorial auditorium of a crowd such as that predicted by Cale Burgess, vice president of the United Dry forces, showed up.

Portrait Is Presented To Memorial Library

The portrait of Mrs. W. A. Bowen, given to Shepard Memorial Library by the End of the Century club, has been hung in the junior reading room. Mrs. Bowen is honored by her club for her splendid effort to keep continuous library service in Greenville. She gave much time to the work during the years when it was being established. It may well be said that "continuous library service" in Greenville is due to Mrs. Bowen as leader, supported by the End of the Century club.

Battered Levees Hold Mississippi

Sea Walls Repulse Greatest Crests as Rehabilitation, Control and Relief Problems Engage River Valley Dwellers

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 5.—(AP)—A battered, but unyielding levee line repulsed the Mississippi's greatest crest today while rehabilitation, control and relief problems engaged the food-scarred Ohio valley and the nation's congress.

Army engineers maintained a force of 120,000 river fighters along the defenses to keep the country's worst flood from multiplying its cruel toll of 392 dead, nearly one million homeless and $550,000,000 in property loss.

The Mississippi was receding slowly in the Cairo, Ill. sector today, and, barring storm to send the muddy water smashing against improvised dikes, engineers considered the battle won, but promised a ceaseless watch for days or perhaps weeks to come.

President Roosevelt's $5,011,000,000 PWA program to curbing raiding rivers lay before a congress receptive to flood control plans.

CITY FATHERS HOLD SESSION

Number of Subjects Discussed by Board of Aldermen

Meeting in regular session last night, the Greenville Board of Aldermen discussed a number of subjects and took final action on several proposals.

A tractor, an Allis-Chalmers, was purchased from the E. F. Craven Company of Greensboro after three concerns had entered bids on the needed equipment. The tractor, to be used by the street department, is due to be delivered tomorrow.

License to hold a dance here Saturday Monday in one of the warehouses was granted Dal Cox and John Warner.

A license also was granted for the operation of an auction for second-hand goods.

A committee was named to consider allowed the General Outdoor Advertising company to erect a large sign on the side of The Reflector building. Aldermen Watson, Tadlock and Fleming were named on the committee.

The board, acting upon the request of State Fire Marshal Sherwood Brockwell, rescinded an order passed at a recent meeting allowing wooden shingles to be placed on houses in the city limits.

It was decided to allow J. P. Stowe, sanitary inspector, traveling expenses. The State and City will put up $75 together for the expenses.

Police Chief George Clark reported to the board that two officers sent to the police school in Chapel Hill recently had raised great benefits from the training. Alderman Fleming, also took occasion to say that the small sum spent by the city for this training was worth much more than the cost.

An accident insurance policy for city firemen was explained to the board, but no action was taken. The policy was presented by P. L. Goodson.

The clerk kneeed his observation on the increase in the city's monthly street lamp bill. During January lamps and globes costing $81.15 had to be replaced.

Liquor Control Measure Appears Certain To Pass

By J. C. BASKERVILL
(Reflector Bureau Writer)

Raleigh, Feb. 5.—The liquor control bill which has already passed the house and which is already in the senate Judiciary Committee Number One, of which Senator Thomas J. Gold of High Point is chairman, is assured of a favorable report by the committee and will pass the senate no matter how much heat Cale K. Burgess and his blow-torch bearers from the United Dry Forces attempt to apply to both the committee and the senate, according to members of the senate who have already made a poll of both the committee and the senate.

It is expected that the senate judiciary committee will grant a hearing to the United Drys, since Burgess requested such a hearing Thursday as soon as the bill had been referred to committee. But it is not believed that the hearing will change a single vote, either on the committee or in the senate any more than the long hearing held before the house committee week before last changes a single vote there.

At the present time the senate committee stands six for reporting the bill favorably, three doubtful, but who will vote to report the bill favorably if their votes are needed, with only one regarded as definitely and unalterably against it.

In the senate proper, the liquor control advocates maintain they are sure of a minimum of 27 votes for the bill, which will probably have 30 votes by the time the bill comes up for final action.

One of the principal reasons the senate is expected to enact the liquor control bill already passed by the house is that it now represents the only one of two alternatives, which are the enactment of this bill, to permit any county in the state that so desires to hold the election and set up county liquor stores, or the leaving of the liquor situation as it now is, with the 17 counties now having legal liquor stores with a monopoly on the sale of liquor in North Carolina. Most of the members of the senate indicate that since there is now no possibility of enacting any bill calling for a state-wide referendum.

PROPOSES ADD MORE JUSTICES

Four Specific Recommendations Embodied in Surprise Message to Congress; Address Overshadows All Other Activities on Capitol Hill

Washington, Feb. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for a sweeping reorganization of the judiciary.

He proposed, in a surprise message, to reduce membership of the Supreme and lower Federal courts; to speed Supreme court action on constitutional questions; and to curb injunctions by Federal courts in constitutional cases.

His four specific recommendations were:

1. Authorization for the President to name an additional judge in any court when an incumbent has reached the age of 70, has held office 10 years and within six months after reaching 69 has neither resigned nor retired. (This would allow appointment of six additional Supreme court justices at the present time).

2. Authorization of the Supreme court to waive lower court calendars and assign district and circuit judges to courts with crowded dockets.

3. A ban on decisions, injunctions, judgments or decrees on constitutional questions without ample notice by the court involved to the Attorney General and an opportunity for the United States to be heard.

4. Direct and quick appeal to the Supreme court of cases involving constitutional questions.

Other matters holding the capital's attention included:

Senator Neely (D. W. Va.) said he would ask John Lewis, Generalissimo of the automobile strike, to testify next week on his resolution to investigate General Motors corporation.

Dispute over the President's trade agreement with foreign nations and the prospect of historic arguments on neutrality and the power of the court, enhanced congressional proceedings today.

The House, which heard Secretary Hull called both a "dreamer" and "his great man" for his negotiations of reciprocal trade treaties, sought to complete its general discussion of the bill to extend for three years the President's power to make such pacts. Amendments will be considered next week.

Clothing Shipped To Flooded Area From Pitt County

Sixteen Hundred Pound Shipment Sent From Here Today to Relief Center in Kentucky

Clothing weighing 1,600 pounds was shipped from here today to the Red Cross in Kentucky to be distributed to flood sufferers.

The clothing was given by residents from all parts of the county. It was gathered through the efforts of the local chapter of the Red Cross and with the aid of the Boy Scouts. Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. W. J. Bundy, Mrs. J. W. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Guy Evans, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. Royce Hunsucker of the Junior Woman's club, assorted the clothing.

The shipment included 30 quilts, 35 suits of clothes, all new or serviceable, 100 dresses, 75 women's coats and a large quantity of baby and children's clothing. It was estimated 30 per cent of the shipment was clothing for children or babies.

The Boy Scouts gathered the clothing Saturday. They were aided by trucks loaned by the Tift Furniture company, Colonial Coal and Ice company, Home Furniture and the Carolina dairy.

K. T. Futrell, Red Cross disaster chairman, had charge of gathering the clothing and getting the shipment off to the relief center at La Rue county Red Cross chapter in Hodgenville, Ky.

The local Red Cross was advised by national headquarters what place to send the clothing.

Judge Orders Directed Verdict in Suit for $500,000

Washington, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts won a directed verdict today in a $500,000 libel suit brought against him by Bishop James Cannon, Jr.

Justice Jennings Bailey of Federal District Court ordered the jury to find for the Republican Massachusetts congressman after hearing lengthy arguments yesterday by Tinkham's counsel to end the case without presentation of defense testimony.

The suit was filed by Cannon, a Southern Methodist Churchman as a result of a statement made by Tinkham about the Bishop's handling of 1928 anti-Aired E. Smith campaign funds.

Roger Whiteford, Tinkham's attorney argued in asking the directed verdict Cannon could not have been libeled in Tinkham's statement because the Bishop invited it.

Boy Scouts Plan Hear Address By Chief Executive

Greenville Youth to Listen In On Speech by Roosevelt at 5:30 o'clock Monday

Special arrangements are being made for the Scouts in this District to meet Monday to hear the address of President Roosevelt on that day.

President Walter W. Head will also talk, and Chief Scout Executive James E. West will close the program direct from the White House with the leading of the re-dedication of the Scout Oath.

Dr. E. L. Henderson, Chairman of the District, has arranged a very unique participation in the broadcast, since the members of the Greenville District, who meet ordinarily each second Monday in the month, will meet Monday at 4:30 instead of the 6 o'clock hour in the Directors' Room of the Guaranty Bank and officially close this February business session in joining with the re-dedication led by Chief West.

The following men are giving leadership on the Greenville District of the East Carolina Council: Dr. E. L. Henderson, Chairman; K. T. Futrell, Vice Chairman; Activities, Roy Campbell; Carl Adams, Board of Review Chairman; Bruce Sugg, Campaign Chairman; J. H. Ross, Camping Chairman; W. A. Ryan, Church Relations Chairman; F. C. Harding, Court of Honor Chairman; K. T. Futrell, Civic Service Chairman; E. R. Conway, Gubbing Chairman; D. J. Whigham, Jr., Publicity Chairman; J. H. Waldrop, Finance Chairman; Dr. N. T. WOULD DIVIDE PROPOSED TAX

Finance Committee Compromises On Intangibles

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 5.—A new compromise has been agreed to on the proposed new state tax on intangibles by the joint finance committees, calling for a 50-50 split of the revenue from this tax between the state and the counties. The final session of the committees for the discussion of this tax was held Thursday afternoon, at which this new compromise plan was approved. At first it was proposed to split the revenue on the basis of 60 per cent to the counties and 40 per cent to the state, with the provision that the state would get a part of the revenue from the tax on bank deposits. But under this new compromise, it was agreed to divide the total revenue from the tax on everything, including bank deposits on a 50-50 basis.

It is still estimated by Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell that under this new plan the state and the counties will get only about $850,000 each. But Chairman Victor S. Bryant of the house finance committee believes that because the state can collect the state tax on intangibles so much better than the counties have been collecting it, that the revenue from it will amount to at least $1,500,000 a year, possibly as much as $2,000,000 so that the state's share of this revenue, on a 50-50 basis, will be at least $750 a year and probably even more.

So far most of the opposition to the proposed state tax on intangibles has come from the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, through their chief lobbyist, John Skinner, secretary of the association. But for the work done by Skinner it is generally agreed that the state would have taken all of the tax and thus de-

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 5.—Elf grass, one of the most important sources of food for migratory waterfowl in Eastern North Carolina, which was almost exterminated several years ago by disease is coming back steadily. J. D. Chalk, State game and inland fisheries commissioner, said today.

A recent report from C. C. McWilliams, game protector at Ocracoke, substantiates earlier reports of returning elf grass. The protector sent the commissioner a sample of the grass brought ashore in large quantities between Ocracoke and Hatteras recently by a storm tide.

Mr. McWilliams wrote Commissioner Chalk that the storm tide has resulted in driving the geese in his patrol area to the marshes. This condition, he declared, will require more intensive protection.

A thorough study of wildfowl conditions is being made by Protector McWilliams for the Department of Conservation and Development and the U. S. Biological survey. Mr. Chalk said. This will include estimates of the number of geese, ducks, and other waterfowl wintering in the vicinity and also food conditions.

According to Mr. Chalk, general reports are to the effect that there

SEEKS ACTION FOR PENSIONS

Lieut. Gov. Horton Asks Senate Committee Speed Up

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Feb. 4.—Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton is getting in behind the senate committees which appear to be dilly-dallying and is asking why they cannot get down to work and show more speed, pointing out that the senate cannot proceed with its work unless the committees take action on the bills before them and report them either favorably or unfavorably.

During the session Wednesday, Lieutenant Governor Horton suggested that he would like to see more action from the senate committee on public welfare, of which Mrs. E. E. McKee of Sylva, the only woman member of the senate, is chairman. This is the committee which now has before it the bill introduced by Senator L. L. Gravelly of Rocky Mount providing for old age pensions and aid to dependent children, and which is regarded as the bill having the personal support of Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

The trouble with this committee and the lack of progress it is making on this bill is not the chairman, however, but largely because Senator John Sprunt Hill of Durham has been objecting to almost every section of the bill and has been insisting on making long speeches in the committee meetings setting forth his objections and telling the committee how he thinks the bill should be written, according to those who have been attending the sessions of this committee. They maintain the committee could already have completed its consideration of this bill but for Senator Hill and his insistence upon discussing almost every section.

The bill provides that the county board of welfare and the board of county commissioners in each county shall select those who shall become eligible for old age pensions and aid to dependent children. Senator Hill thinks the eligibility should be determined either by a central board in Raleigh or by the county board of health. Indications are, however, that the bill will be approved by the committee about as now drawn.

CHEAPER GAS SEEN IN MOVE

Bill Would Give Pipe Line Companies Greater Rights

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Feb. 4.—The bill to give pipe lines or pipe line companies the right of eminent domain in building pipe lines, introduced in the house Wednesday by Representative Oscar G. Barker of Durham, is regarded by many observers here both as a step towards lowering gasoline prices by making possible lower transportation costs, and as a slap at the big gasoline and oil companies, especially those which maintain their own transportation trucks and transport it over the highways of the state.

Some see in it also a slap at the railroads, since it is agreed that if a pipeline system for the transportation of gasoline should be built from one of the state's ports, such as Wilmington or Morehead City inland to Greensboro or Winston-Salem, that it would greatly reduce the cost of transporting gasoline in the state.

The only reason no pipe lines for the transportation of gasoline from coastal ports inland, has been that at the present time a pipe line does not have the right of eminent domain in crossing property, with the result that one or two property owners could virtually block the building of a pipe line by asking exorbitant sums for the privilege of crossing their property or for rights of way. But if the Barker bill is enacted, pipe line companies will be given the same rights as railroads, power companies and other public utilities in acquiring rights of way, to the extent of using the right of eminent domain.

It is understood from reliable sources that if this bill is enacted, one or more pipe line companies is ready to start construction of gasoline pipeline from one of the coastal ports as far inland as Greensboro or Winston-Salem, with a view to extending it eventually to Charlotte and even to Asheville, with outlets in many of the other cities and towns in the state. A good many here believe that the construction of such a pipe line would virtually eliminate the fleets of large gasoline trucks which the highway engineers maintain are doing tremendous damage to the highways of the state also that it would also help to get a reduction in rail rates on gasoline.

Hospital Adds Storeroom. Durham, Feb. 3.—Duke Hospital is adding to its store room space by adding a small unit to the rear of the main building. The new unit will free a number of scattered storerooms in the hospital for other use, and centralize the hospital storage.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Crover

Washington — Any other city in the land wanting a new auditorium would deliberate long and thoughtfully, take it up with the taxpayers, issue bonds if the building could be afforded and then retire the bonds by paying for years into the sinking fund. Not Washington. Washington, after getting well down amply during the inaugural, whoops up the idea of an auditorium big enough to shelter the next, should it decide to rain in mid-January, 1941.

But does it go to the taxpayers? What's congress sitting around here for if not to appropriate money for a "national" auditorium? When in Washington, stress the "national."

Like any other city, Washington relishes big things. Those things fill up the hotels, help out the restaurants, and generally do their bit for business.

Even the inaugural is run on a cash and carry basis as far as the city is concerned. Business men put up the stands along Pennsylvania avenue and around the capitol and White House. They sell the tickets ($3.50 to $10, last time) and turn over to charity any profits, except of course such profits as they reap from feeding and frocking the thousands attending. The presidential family and congress are just the troupe and chorus.

The federal government is one of the fattest manufacturing enterprises in the country and its help is not badly paid except when top salaries here are compared with automobile and steel company executive paychecks. But that part of Washington which is not the government never lets the government part forget its responsibility to the city for such things as police protection and street repairs.

Thus to the Washington mind it isn't a long step from the thought of building an auditorium out of the federal treasury. After all, this is the "national capital."

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Count Vronski, who was blackmailing Anne Phelps with love letters, is shot dead in Anne's studio. Bigelow, the American from Paris, finds Anne and Karanekoff, the glamorous dancer, stirring at the corpse. They hide it during a party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, move it to Vronski's room. Police arrest Thorne Dryden, a wealthy chap who hated Vronski, and his wife, Lorna, vanishes. Anne and Bigelow set out to find her, head for Topsy Kane's vacant house in Westchester. But Bigelow's shadow is trailing them.

Chapter 28
Roadside Strategy
So far as they could tell, they had now lost the star car. Anne watched anxiously through the rear vision mirror, but could see no sign of it until they were approaching the George Washington bridge when it suddenly reappeared on more or less their trail. She cried out the news and Bigelow, with a muttered oath, swung round for the entrance of the bridge.

"This is off our road, you know," said Anne, as they approached.
"I know, but we've got to lose this fellow somehow. His car is faster than it looks."

"Coffee," said Bigelow. "I want to get our friend away from his car."
"But why cross the river?" asked Anne.
"So he won't be able to guess our destination."
On the other side of the bridge, Bigelow turned north along the interstate Alpine parkway. He increased his speed until he was doing more than 70, but the other car hung on.

"What's new?" asked Anne.
"Coffee," said Bigelow. "I want to get our friend away from his car. He may not follow us in of course, but I rather think he will. He will want to know if we meet anyone."
As they got out and entered the luncheonroom, they heard the other car stop with a great grinding of brakes. Inside, they ordered coffee. When the waitress brought it, Bigelow settled so that there need be no delay when they wanted to get off again. A moment or two later, a caper shadow, with a casual glance that never rested directly on them, he studied himself that they were there and ordered coffee, too, throwing a wad of money for it at the same time. He was also preparing for a quick start.

Outwitting the Little Man
"EXCUSE ME," said Bigelow to Anne, "back to a minute."
He went into the men's washroom which he had noticed had an entrance from outside as well as from the luncheonroom. The little man did not follow. He didn't want to give Bigelow any chance to pick a quarrel; it would have been too easy for Bigelow to put him into a fight. Reassured by Anne's presence, he went on calmly drinking his coffee.

the vote to take up the Hutchins bill for a state-wide referendum, with the result that a good many voted to put the Hutchins bill on the calendar, secretly hoping that the motion would fail. These were the members more or less pledged to vote for a state-wide referendum, although personally in favor of a local option liquor control bill. They knew that if the motion to consider the Hutchins bill should fail, that it would be impossible to bring up another state-wide referendum bill in this session, and that the only other alternative would be a county option liquor stores bill. With the Hutchins bill definitely beaten, they could then vote for a county option bill and still keep their records straight with the drys back in their home counties. This accounts for the fact that the county option liquor control bill finally passed the house by a vote of 67 to 43.

One of the surprises in the debate on the motion to put the Hutchins bill on the favorable calendar was the speech by Representative R. E. Sentelle of Brunswick county, a Baptist minister, a former county superintendent of schools, as well as a lawyer and farmer, in which he came out flat-footedly for a liquor control system as opposed to prohibition, assailed the "dry" for engaging their position since 1935, when they fought any move in favor of a state-wide referendum as well as any form of liquor control, and maintain that he had become convinced that the "dry" and all those who were still contending for the retention of prohibition were merely kidding themselves. He declared that while he stood with the "bone drys" in 1935 against any change in the liquor laws, he had become convinced in the past two years that there was no such thing as prohibition and that some form of liquor control was better than wide-open bootlegging such as prevailed in most of the counties which do not have liquor stores. Representative Sentelle voted to take the Hutchins bill from the unfavorable calendar, but made it clear that he would vote against the bill if and when it got before the house.

The "bone drys" made a serious mistake when they let Associate Justice Herriot Clarkson write the Hutchins bill and make it so dry that every time any one tried to read the bill he had to sneeze. If the Hutchins - Clarkson bill had contained some sort of machinery for the setting up of some type of liquor stores for the sale of liquor, in case the bill had passed and the "wets" had won in a state-wide referendum, it would have stood a much better chance of getting a favorable report from the committee and then of having passed the house.

It was evident from the first, however, that the real purpose and intent of the Hutchins-Clarkson bill was to call a state-wide referendum, which regardless of which side won, would dry up the 17 counties which now have liquor stores and throw the entire state back into the dry column under the Burlington Act. For as Representative Victor S. Bryant pointed out during the debate, that if the Hutchins-Clarkson bill should have been enacted and if the "wets" should have won in the referendum it proposed, the law would have outlawed the sale of beer and wine as well as liquor, since it carried no machinery and no provision for permitting the creation of any such machinery. So if the state-wide referendum had been called and the state had voted wet, the result would have been to close the liquor stores in the present 17 counties and to prohibit the sale of anything stronger than "near beer" until after the general assembly met in 1939 to set up a machinery act. It was a bill under which the drys would have won, regardless of how the people voted—the type of bill which the "dry" said was "democratic."

Some of the wet-drinking, dry-voting members of the house feel more relieved today than since they arrived here, now that the house has at last passed a local option, state-and-county liquor control law. For at least a dozen of those who voted to take up the Hutchins-Clarkson bill were in a cold sweat while the vote was in progress for fear it would get to the floor, despite the fact that they voted for it. For while their votes were with the "wets," their hearts were with the "dry" bill. The only reason they voted for the bill was because their constituents "back home" wanted them to vote with the "dry" bill. They can now go home and tell their "peep" that "I voted for the Hutchins bill, but the liquor forces were too strong—they voted us down. After that, there was nothing to do but vote for the next best thing—the liquor control bill."

The reason that no mention was made in the liquor control bill which passed the house Wednesday of any revenue "split" or of any state tax on the sale of liquor, was to keep it from being a revenue measure, so it could be passed on all three readings the same day. Most of the liquor control strategists thought it best to eliminate all revenue features, so the bill could be put through the house before Cale K. Burgess, chief fireman for the United Dry Forces could get his blowtorch bearers together and apply the heat to the house members. Their strategy seems to have worked well.

COUNTY ROADS BOND FAVORED

Sentiment Growing For $25,000,000 Issue By State

By J. C. BASKERVILL (Reflector Bureau Writer)

Raleigh, Feb. 5.—Sentiment is growing steadily here in favor of the bill by Senator W. I. Halstead of Camden county for a $25,000,000 bond issue to be used in improving the county roads of the state. Even the members of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, so far regarded as being definitely opposed to any additional bond issues for roads, state or county, are on the verge of giving the Halstead bill their approval. It was learned here today.

Chairman Capus M. Waynick of the highway commission said last week that it was looking more and more as if a bond issue was the only way any appreciable amount of work on the county roads can be financed, especially if any of the present highway revenue is diverted to any other use, or if the highway income is reduced any more by tax reductions.

Since the meeting of the highway commission here last week, when literally hundreds of requests were heard for additional road work, together with the reports of engineers that hundreds of miles of these county roads are now impassable, Chairman Waynick is just about convinced that a bond issue is the only solution of the county highways problem.

Another factor that is causing the highway commission to regard the bond issue proposal with more and more favor is that fact that it has the endorsement of former Chairman Rufe A. Doughton of the highway commission, the "grand old man of Allegheny county" who has also served as Lieutenant Governor and Commissioner of Revenue and who is conceded to know as much about the state's fiscal ability and condition as any man in the state.

While visiting here last week, Doughton told Chairman Waynick and the members of the highway commission that it was going to be impossible to do anything like the amount of work needed on the county road out of current highway revenue and that the only solution of the growing county road problem was the authorization of a bond issue of $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 for this purpose.

Former Chairman Doughton told us that he knew both the feelings of the people with regard to the condition of the county roads, also the financial limitations on expenditures for county road maintenance, and declared that he thought the only thing to do was to authorize a bond issue, with most of the proceeds to be spent on the county roads. Waynick said today, "He said he was fully convinced that these secondary roads could never be put into adequate condition merely by trying to maintain them out of current revenue and further point out that the bond issue can be repaid without any increase in taxes and hence without imposing any additional burden upon the highway users."

Senator Halstead also appeared before the commission and explained his bill and the need for it. Waynick said, adding that "it would not have taken much more for the entire commission to have been convinced that the bond issue is really needed and the only way to solve the county road problem." The commission took no action on the matter, but there is no doubt that the members are more deeply impressed with the need for additional funds for use on the county roads than ever before and that they are more and more coming around to the opinion that the bond issue offers almost the only means of getting these roads into anything like proper condition.

Members of both houses of the general assembly are also rapidly coming around to the belief that the bond issue offers the only means of making the secondary roads possible for school buses, cars and farm trucks, and the only way to keep them from going completely to pieces. It is pointed out that under the present program only about $100 a mile per year is available for maintenance on the county roads, which means that about all these roads can get is a scraping with a road machine about once a month and the work from one convict road gang for about one to two hours a mile per month. Both Chairman Waynick and the members of the highway commission agree that this is not enough, but point out that it is all they can spend with the money available. They also agree that the rains of the last five or six weeks have done millions of dollars worth of additional damage to the county roads in addition to the normal traffic damage.

As a result of these facts and the additional study which members of the assembly are giving to the road problem, many believe the chances for issue bill are getting brighter daily.

GIRL DEPUTY DOES SHERIFF'S WORK READILY

Betty Carstairs

Princeton, W. Va. (AP) — The telephone rang and the sheriff had to dash out on a call.

"Betty," he called, "you look after things."

Twenty-year-old Betty Cassidy did. Orders are orders and if arrests were to be made she could make them.

The sheriff hadn't been gone 10 minutes when a warrant came in. Betty had been a deputy only a week, but she didn't hesitate. She stopped typing, took an office car, drove 20 miles into the mountains and returned with Thomas Bowman to face a non-support charge.

"It was easy, I didn't have any trouble at all," she told Mercer County Sheriff G. H. Crumpecker after the prisoner was in jail. "I like this better than just office work."

So the sheriff gave his pretty deputy a big gun and a 10-gallon hat. She already had a badge.

Deputy Cassidy is the daughter of Rev. E. H. Cassidy, pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal church here.

CALIFORNIA DEER INVADE ORCHARDS

Red Bluff, Calif. (AP)—Wild deer protected from harm by state law, are eating many California farmers out of their profits and in some cases out of their homes.

J. J. Deuel, director of the law and utilities department of the California Farm Bureau federation, says "deer have become so bold that they invade and ruin orchards and even the gardens of fine homes within 40 miles of the Los Angeles city hall."

The penalty for killing deer unlawfully ranges from a minimum of a $100 fine to a maximum of a $500 fine plus six months in jail.

"The law permits a farmer to shoot a deer on his own land, but he must haul it to the nearest game warden who in turn must give it to a public institution," Deuel said.

"Adequate fencing is economically out of the question in most cases. For a deer can clear even a high fence and can break through those of weak construction."

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

Fever As Medicine

It is common practice to judge the severity of an illness by the amount of fever associated with it. So, by an easy but illogical association of ideas, treatment has been directed against fever, as if the lowering of the fever were equivalent to a reduction of the disease process.

Fever, however, must be looked upon as a symptom like cough or pain. If highly discomforting, the fever may be treated specifically. But fever may serve a useful purpose, and then it may be best not to repress it unduly.

Fever is apparently the result of accelerated metabolism. The elevated body temperature is witness of the fact that the body is responding to certain internal demands and is burning up an extra amount of its fuel. The heat accumulating therefrom is greater than that customarily produced, and also is not dissipated rapidly enough. There are exceptional cases, of course, where the fever is the result of disturbances in the heat-regulating mechanism of the body.

Of late physicians have begun to appreciate more fully the healing powers of fever. This appreciation began with the work of Wagner Jaureg, who in 1913 successfully treated central nervous system syphilis by deliberately inoculating the sufferers with the organisms of malaria. Fever is one of the prominent symptoms of malaria infection.

It was subsequently shown that only the fever, and not the presence of the malaria organism, produces the desired results. In the place of malaria physicians now employ physical means to elevate body temperature.

Fever therapy has been extended to other disease conditions and has proved of great value in the treatment of gonorrhea, particularly of gonorrheal infections of the female pelvis. Fever therapy has also been reported upon as useful in the treatment of early syphilis. In the latter it is combined with the standard treatment (mercury, bismuth, the arsenicals) generally used.

Fever therapy has also yielded encouraging results in the treatment of St. Vitus' dance, and some have maintained that it helps in certain cases of asthma.

Lice are carriers of the dreaded disease, Typhus.

Annually Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees has Jack Dempsey's chef broilo several hundred pounds of beefsteak and then sounds the dinner gong. All baseball writers in and around New York City come running. Unofficially, this party closes the hot stove league and marks the beginning of the actual baseball season, for, right on its heels, the lads start gathering in the south to condition themselves for the campaign.

A year ago the Yankees' owner, Col. Jake Ruppert, told Joe McCarthy and everyone present that he was tired of having his team finish second. He asked the manager just what he intended to do about it.

McCarthy said he agreed with the Colonel and that the business of finishing in the runner-up spot was boring him, too. So much so, in fact, that he wanted to go on record as predicting the Yankees would win the pennant by twenty games, and then go on to triumph in the World Series four straight. To say the statement seemed rash is putting it mildly. I doubt that McCarthy believed it.

'McCarthy Falls'

A year later when the last beefsteak had been devoured, Col. Ruppert stood up to address the over-stuffed gathering. McCarthy, he said, had failed. After promising to win the American league pennant by a margin of 20 games, the test the Yankees could do was 19's. And they didn't win the Series in four games, either. It took six to polish off the Giants.

The Colonel then ventured that he would give his manager another chance. McCarthy replied that he would endeavor to make good on his prediction this season.

Beet By Wories.

In a more serious moment, McCarthy thought the Cleveland Indians and the Detroit Tigers were likely to cause trouble. He looked for the Boston Red Sox to improve. He conceded that Washington and Chicago probably would be tough. The only teams Joe was not inclined to worry about were the Browns and the Athletics.

Jack Dempsey did not permit his duties as host to weigh heavily upon him. The former heavyweight champion had the time of his life harassing the guests by applying the "good old hot-foot" wherever and whenever he could.

Questions About CARDUI

How It Helps Women

"Who takes Cardui?" Women who are run-down, weakened, nervous, and not getting sufficient strength from the food they eat—Thousands—and thousands have found that Cardui increased their appetite, improved their digestion, thereby promoting better nourishment and the consequent strengthening of the whole system.

And women who have suffered from functional pains of menstruation have found that, by taking Cardui just before and during the periods, this purely vegetable sedative and antispasmodic seemed to save them much discomfort. This action of Cardui is highly esteemed because the relief credited to it comes in an entirely beneficial way. Cardui is purely vegetable, nothing in it to be afraid of.

Commodity exchanges are so sensitive to government crop reports that some of them suspend trading while the reports are being released.

SEEKS RETAIN HIGHWAY FUND

Foes of Diversion Propose to Offer Amendment

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Feb. 5.—The foes of highway fund diversion struck back at the diversionists with a man-drafted baseball bat when they dropped the bill in the hopper to submit a constitutional amendment to a vote of the people in the next general election which, if adopted, will prohibit for all time any further diversion of the taxes paid by automobile and truck owners to other than highway purposes. The bill was introduced in the senate Thursday by Senator L. Y. Ballentine of Wake county, a dairyman and farmer who maintains that the farmers, especially are tired of paying their gasoline and motor vehicle taxes year after year and then seeing several millions of dollars of this money which needs to be used on the roads, especially the unpaved county roads, diverted and used for other purposes.

"Every one who knows anything about the roads in the state at all knows that the present highway revenue is entirely inadequate to even maintain the roads properly, much less provide for any new construction," Senator Ballentine said. "Why, right now there is a bill pending in the senate for a bond issue of $25,000,000 to be used on the county roads alone, on the grounds that there never will be enough current revenue from the gasoline and motor vehicle taxes to even adequately maintain the county roads. Yet in the revenue now being written by the finance committee, it is proposed to divert $2,100,000 a year from the highway fund to the general fund, instead of the $1,000,000 which has been diverted each year for the past four years. The time has come to put a stop to these biennial raids on the highway fund."

Others point out that in addition to the $2,100,000 which the finance committee is proposing to divert from the highway to the general fund, that the North Carolina League of Municipalities is asking for an allotment of 10 per cent of the highway revenues, or about $2,600,000 a year for use in the maintaining and building of streets—regarded by most observers as merely an after effect of diversion of highway revenue. It is known that the public school politicians have for years advocated additional diversion of highway funds in order to supplement school funds and the diversion of $1,000,000 a year from the highway to the general fund was started four years ago largely as a result of the demand from the school forces for larger appropriations so that teachers' salaries could be further increased. It is now understood that the school forces, if they are unable to get the appropriation they are now seeking, will then offer a bill to transfer the cost of operating the school transportation system, which is about $2,000,000 a year, from the school commission to the Highway Commission, which if it should carry would mean the direct diversion of at least $2,000,000 a year more from the highway fund to other than road purposes. Yet the highway commission now maintains it should have at least $2,500,000 a year more than it now has available to use on the maintenance of county roads used by school buses in order to make it possible for the school buses to operate the year around.

As a result of all these factors, the belief is growing that the bill by Senator Ballentine to submit the question a vote of the people as to whether they want highway revenues used for highway purposes only, or whether they want these revenues dipped into by any and every other division of the state government that wants or needs additional funds, is going to gain much support. It is agreed, of course, that it will be opposed by the school forces, the Department of Revenue, which wants to have the highway fund to fall back upon when its own money crop fails, and by the cities and towns which want it to remain a grab-bag for all comers. But many feel that the people of the state should decide the question once and for all and then approve or prevent the diversion of highway funds and as to whether they want a slice or slices of it.

The motorists who pay the taxes which make up the highway fund are already convinced that all of these taxes are needed for road maintenance and construction, and that if they are not needed that the license and gasoline taxes should be reduced instead of diverting what is not needed for road purposes.

The purpose, like the alkali, is a ruthless destroyer of food crops. Fourteen states and parts of northern Mexico are supplied with natural gas from Texas. Inside through main trunk of a 150,000-mile through line network. Texas last year supplied 72.6 per cent of the national total of 414,600,000 cubic feet of gas moved between states. Natural gas is now being transported more than 1200 miles from the Texas Panhandle through pipelines. The principal exports of Guam are copra and coconut oil.

'VISION' PUTS DEATH OFF FOR AGED BELIEVER

Burdette, Tenn. (AP)—Alive but in poor health more than a year after the date he set for his funeral, 79-year-old John Burdette says an "amended vision" promises him life until 1940. He has "sublime faith" now that he will not die before then. Two years ago Burdette calmly announced: "I will die September 20, 1935."

He said then that a "great light" and a "voice" in September of 1935 had told him he would live "40 years."

Shortly before his birthday on September 20, 1935, Burdette now explains, the "vision" was amended by another celestial promise of a longer life.

"I am sure was Burdette that he would die in 1935 that 16 years ago he made arrangements for his funeral."

PUBLIC FORUM MEETING HELD

First Discussion At The High School Last Night

The first meeting of the Public Forum was held in the High School last night with one hundred sixty-five people present, in spite of the snow storm. Dr. Elsie Larson discussed "Juvenile Delinquency, Some Causes and Some Cures."

Preceding the discussion, J. H. Ross, Superintendent of Schools, outlined the purpose of the Forum and told that there would be a meeting of the Forum every two weeks.

In her talk, Dr. Larson held the close attention of the audience for forty-five minutes, and then for the next forty minutes, there was discussion from the floor by various people present. Dr. Larson spoke with a sure knowledge of the conditions as they now exist in North Carolina, because for two years she has been working on a survey of all the mental institutions in North Carolina and has seen at first hand conditions as they exist in our state today. Miss Larson deplored the fact that in most cases in North Carolina, there is not some one with more time to handle juvenile delinquency. The law now puts this upon the direction of the over-worked Superintendent of Public Welfare and the likewise busy Clerk of the Superior Court. What is needed in our state, she said, is a person with more time to study each individual case and follow it up through a period of years. In the discussion of North Carolina's treatment of her mentally diseased, she said the recent report shows that North Carolina spends less on the care of her mentally unfortunate than any other state with the exception of South Carolina.

At the conclusion of the program the audience voted to have as a topic on February 18, the following: "Can Democracy Survive?" The Forum Leader for that meeting will be Dr. Howard Y. Williams of St. Paul, Minnesota, a native of the state of Iowa.

The Public Forum discussions will continue in Pitt County next week with a meeting of Stokes school director, John Beverly, Forum Director. Mr. Beverly's subject will be "Why America is to stay out of war?" The Forum meeting will open at eight o'clock in the Stokes School Auditorium, Pitt County, at 8 o'clock and will be well known in Pitt County where he has appeared many times as a School Commencement speaker, and has also spoken at many young people's conventions and church meetings. People from all Pitt County especially in the sections near Stokes are urged to hear the Forum discussion at Stokes, Monday night.

The objectives of the Public Forum are: 1. Increase the citizen's understanding of problems discussed. 2. Stimulate further study and independent investigation. 3. Facilitate correlation of new knowledge and past learning and experience. 4. Develop a critical attitude which demands validation of claims. 5. Promote tolerance and open-mindedness. 6. Stimulate sense of public responsibility. 7. Develop logical thinking and improve the speaking ability of the average man. 8. Reduce power of emotion and prejudice. 9. Train people in methods and analysis and testing of facts. 10. Build the community spirit and foster neighborliness.

Other Forums scheduled for Pitt County during next week are: February 8—Aviden, N. C. February 11—Grimesland, February 12—Bethel.

LIQUOR CONTROL MEASURE APPEARS CERTAIN TO PASS

since the house has already refused to consider a bill of that sort, that the only thing for the senate to do is to pass the county option liquor bill, although some of them would rather have a state-wide referendum bill. They believe that if 17 counties are going to be permitted to have liquor stores, that this privilege should be extended to any other counties that want liquor stores.

Still another reason for the belief that the senate will pass the house liquor bill is that both the counties and the state are in dire need of additional revenue, and that they believe the county controlled liquor stores are preferable to bootlegging joints. Present estimates are that the people in North Carolina are buying and drinking approximately $12,000,000 worth of liquor a year, most of it from bootleggers, who are making a profit of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 a year. The house has already decided that it is better to set up legal liquor stores so the counties and the state can get these profits, instead of the bootleggers and it is believed the senate will agree with it eventually.

A third factor in favor of the house liquor bill is that a number of the house-dry members of the senate realize and admit that prohibition has been and is a failure and believe that a liquor control system will be much better than the present bootlegging system, greatly reduced bootlegging and a big step towards greater temperance. Many of them frankly admit that as much liquor is now being sold in the so-called "wet" counties as in the legally "wet" counties, the only difference being that in the "dry" counties the bootleggers get the profits, while in the "wet" counties, the counties get the profits.

At the conclusion of the program the audience voted to have as a topic on February 18, the following: "Can Democracy Survive?" The Forum Leader for that meeting will be Dr. Howard Y. Williams of St. Paul, Minnesota, a native of the state of Iowa.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Selling of stock in today's market followed President Roosevelt's proposal to congress to increase the Supreme court members.

The market apparently took Wall Street's surprise and nervous traders showed an inclination to shift to the side lines pending further study of the cabinet executive's move.

Stocks quiet during the week. Activity on the down side increased near the fourth hour.

Earlier gains of fraction to two points were reduced, cancelled or repaid by losses of as much.

Jest Plain Hoss Sense by "Silver Dollar" Brady

"IF YOU WANT YOUR WHISTLE WORKIN' TOMORROW WET IT WITH SILVER DOLLAR TONIGHT!"

THERE'S a heap o' ways to get a headache, but Silver Dollar ain't one of 'em. This Bourbon's like a good hoss... lively, yet gentle-actin'—an' don't hardly tickle goin' down! "Mild as an April shower... mellow as a Western sunset... tassin' like swaledered sunshine—that's what folks say about it. "Partners, 79 years o' whiskey-makin' experience... the choicest grain... 18 months agin' in charred oak barrels make it so plumb satisfyin'. It costs mighty little, too. Ask for Silver Dollar today, folks."
