Drive for Armaments
Seen as Club Over
Heads of Bickering
European Nations

London, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Great Britain was reported in informed circles today to be planning war expenditures of between $6,000,000,000 and $8,000,000,000 in the next five years as a "big stick" to enforce peace in Europe.

The huge drive for armaments launched by the government yesterday, according to indications in parliamentary circles, would be used as a visible and invisible club over the heads of bickering European nations.

The estimate for the long term program followed quickly on the heels of the government request to parliament for a $2,000,000,000 defense loan.

How fast the money would be raised and spent for the largest peace time war plan ever outlined to Commons remained undisclosed.

The present rate plus the requested defense loan would put the five year total at $6,250,000,000, but most informed sources expected the eventual amount would be higher.

U. OF N. C. Alumni
Living In County
To Stage Banquet

Dean House and General Alumni
Secretary Saunders to Be Principal
Speakers at Affair

Pitt county alumni of the University of North Carolina will hold their annual banquet in the College dining room at 6:45 o'clock next Thursday night, with Robert H. House, dean of administration of the university, and J. Marvon Saunders, secretary of the General Alumni Association, as guest speakers.

The banquet will be followed by a dance at the country club.

Efforts also are being made to have Coach Raymond Wolfe attend the meeting.

The plans for this meeting also call for a ladies' night affair, and it will be the first time in a number of years that the wives and lady friends of the alumni have been extended invitations.

There are nearly 250 Pitt alumni of the University on the roster mailed out from the general alumni office at Chapel Hill. The secretary of the local association is mailing out notices of the meeting to all of these, and it is believed that there are quite a few alumni who have recently moved to this county whose names do not appear on the roster.

Judge Dink James is president of the Pitt Alumni Association, Jack Spain, vice-president, and D. C. Moore, Jr., secretary.

At a meeting held last week a program committee was appointed to make additional plans and add other features. Charles Whiedee was made chairman, with Vice-President Spain, C. S. Carr, Jr., and Secretary Moore, the other members.

Mrs. Lula T. Pender

Mrs. Lula Tate Pender, wife of E. H. Pender, local tailor, died yesterday afternoon shortly after two o'clock at her home on Jarvis street. She had been ill ten days.

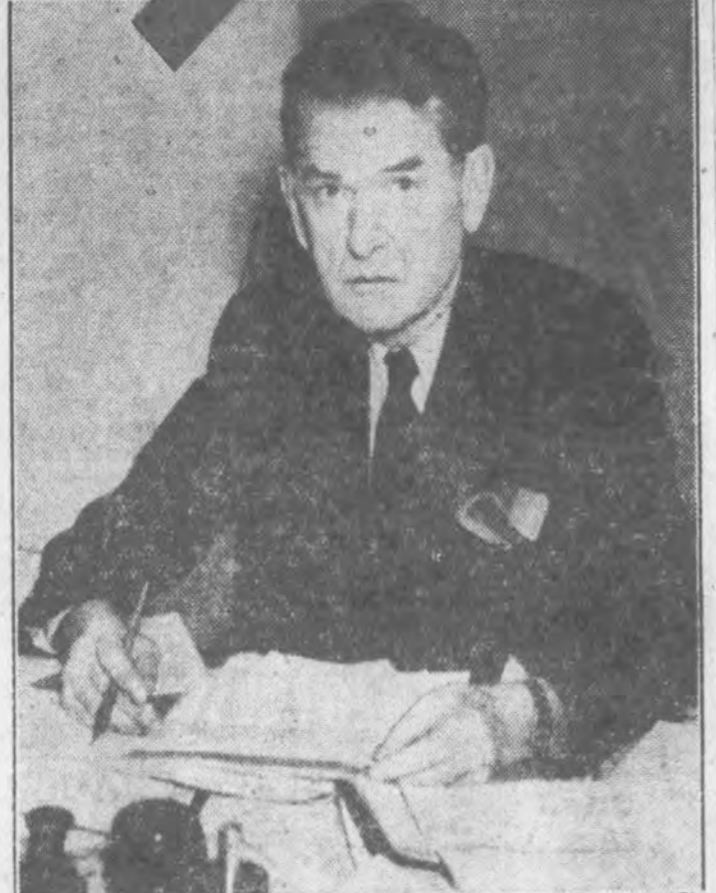

Mrs. Pender moved to Greenville from Rocky Mount twelve years ago. She was a member of the Methodist church at Greensboro.

The funeral cortege will leave Williams Funeral Home Sunday morning for Greensboro, where final rites will be held from Standbury and Rackley funeral home by the pastor of Wesley Memorial Methodist church of High Point. Interment will follow in the family plot in Green Hill cemetery in Greensboro.

Mrs. Pender is survived by her husband and one son Charles Pender of Greenville; her father, William Tate, Hamilton, Montana; three brothers, Rufus Tate, High Point; Herman Tate, Albion, Michigan; and Ed Tate, Los Angeles, Cal.

Horse and dog racing devotees who picked winners at Florida tracks last season collected $33,830,818, according to figures released by the state auditing department.

FOE COURT SHAKE-UP

President Keeps Silent
On Court Reorganization

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt maintained a smiling silence today on his strategy for bringing about reorganization of the federal courts.

While administration leaders and reorganization forces alike took advantage of slowing legislative activity to further consolidate their forces, Mr. Roosevelt generally told news men he preferred to make no comment on developments at either the White House or capital.

Informed persons expressed the opinion would let labor and farm legislation wait on his court bill. There was a growing belief to be would not yield to a compromise on his plans.

The senate civil liberties committee pressed its investigation of the Pinkerton national detective agency, an official of which testified when he learned the agency was to be subjected to the inquiry he removed "confidential papers" from the files. All were later returned, he said, except some personal papers.

At his press conference the President said he was considering a number of transfers and changes in the diplomatic corps but did not disclose any details.

He praised Governor Murphy of Michigan for his work in settling the General Motors strike.

The survey is expected to get under way next week. The campaign has the cooperation of the county health officer, the county school superintendent, both of whom have expressed a keen interest in the sanitary condition of the schools, with an idea of removing or improving any bad situations.

Alabama and nine other states have passed legislation to enable its farmers to receive benefits under the federal rural electrification act.

Court Proposal Battle
Strategy Is Suggested

Washington.—Some of those who will oppose President Roosevelt in his court reorganization proposal were glad he came forward with a scheme to expand the court rather than with some of the alternatives suggested earlier.

They sense it will be an easier issue to fight than a plan to take away the court's authority to pass on certain classes of legislation, or any scheme for requiring a majority of seven of the nine justices before any congressional act could be held unconstitutional.

Senator Van Nuys, Indiana Democrat, advanced what may be part of the opposition strategy. He proposed to separate the President's proposal into two parts. Supreme Court appointments in one, all the rest of the judiciary reform in the other. Van Nuys has worked before with Senator Borah, who is expected to head the opposition. He is not a Borah tag-along, just has some of the same ideas.

Administration leaders won't take to the Van Nuys idea sitting down. The President wasn't being haphazard when he wrapped the Supreme Court program in the sugar coating of court reform.

Right off, most of his opposition liked the proposal for quick appeals to the Supreme Court from district courts on important constitutional issues. Often it is done now. This would make it certain. Rarely does an important constitutional issue stop with the circuit court, so going that path is waste of motion.

As to the President's proposal that the government have the right to intervene in private litigation involving acts of congress, by practice it has that right now. Rarely does a court refuse the government the right of coming in as a "friend of court" under which banner it can fight on either side it chooses.

Some of the President's critics felt that in advocating court expansion he was "backing away" from a constitutional amendment, fearful of breaking down the federal-state relationship. After all, Mr. Roosevelt, while governor of New York, did deliver a very earnest state's right address.

Ending Of Strike

U. A. W. A. Members and Anti-Unionists
Engage in Fist Fights at 'Strike Celebration Victory' in Anderson, Indiana

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Members of the United Automobile Workers of America ended today their occupation of an Anderson theatre in which they had entrenched themselves last night in a demonstration against city officials, whom they accused of failing to give "civil protection for union assemblages."

(By Associated Press) A clash between union members and anti-unionists at Anderson, Ind., and the threat of another Pacific maritime tie-up put a crimp today in the jubilation of federal officials over settlement of the General Motors strike.

Representatives of three marine unions telegraphed President Roosevelt and Secretary Roper enforcement of the federal hiring law would cause paralysis of coast shipping. They asked presidential intervention pending amendment of a law providing for grading seaman's ability.

Rocks were thrown and fist fights ensued when 500 anti-unionists tried to break up a "strike victory celebration" by 300 members of the U. A. W. A. at Anderson, Ind., theater last night. A union attorney said shots were fired.

The union members said a representative would remain in the theater in protest against what was termed "the lack of civil protection for union assemblages."

Meanwhile General Motors Corporation made plans to restore work to 140,000 employees at its Flint, Mich., plants yesterday and a plant in Toledo today. Flint was virtually paralyzed by the strike celebrated in carnival spirit.

FIVE HELD IN KIDNAP-DEATH

Seattle, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Four men and a sandy haired woman were in jail in Washington today for questioning about the brutal kidnaping and slaying of 10-year-old Charles Mattson of Tacoma.

Seattle police held two ex-convicts from San Quentin California penitentiary and the woman companion of one.

A hitchhiker was detained by Olympia police because they said he resembled the general description of the kidnapper.

Sheriff J. I. Patton, of Columbia county, and a state patrolman, arrested a man at Dayton "on suspicion."

No officer would say any of the prisoners had been definitely connected with the kidnaping on December 27, or the slaying which came to light when the boy's naked, frozen body was found between Seattle and Everett January 11.

Detective Captain Wesley Miller announced one ex-convict from San Quentin and the woman, who said she was his wife, were arrested last night and questioned about the abduction. The other ex-convict, H. A. Post, seaman, still was being investigated, although police said they had "dropped him."

Letter Read by Health Officer Advising of Prevalence of Endemic Typhus Fever in State

A letter from Dr. J. C. Knox, state epidemiologist, stating that endemic typhus fever is prevalent to some extent in North Carolina and urging physicians to be on watch for any cases was read by Dr. N. Thomas Emmett, county health officer, at the meeting in Ayden last night of the Pitt County Medical Society.

Dr. Emmett said no cases of the fever had been reported in this county, in some time.

The letter asked doctors to investigate any cases, especially in regard to the source of infection. An investigation should be made to determine if the patient has been exposed to rats, and if so where exposure occurred, whether at patient's home or elsewhere.

Along this same line, Dr. Emmett declared that George B. Lay of the U. S. Biological survey, rodent control division, had conferred with him and would be glad to co-operate with the health officer in the extermination of rats where it is thought advisable and necessary for such procedure to be instituted.

A rat extermination campaign was carried on parts of Pitt county recently by Mr. Lay, but Greenville was not included in the campaign.

Papers were read at the meeting by D. Paul Fitzgerald of Greenville and Dr. E. V. Tucker of Grifton. Dr. K. B. Pace reported on an interesting case, as part of the scheduled program. Dr. G. G. Dixon and Dr. M. T. Frazelle of Ayden were hosts of the monthly meeting of the Pitt doctors.

'DATE ON A BET' SLAYER FREED

By virtue of the prosecution's motion to drop the charge during her trial at Hopewell, Va., Kathleen Phelps Abernathy was exonerated of slaying her brother-in-law, Howard W. Watkins. She said she shot him in self-defense after having a date with him "on a bet." Her sister and the widow of the slain man, Mrs. Rosie Watkins (right), with whom the bet was made, is shown congratulating Kathleen on her exoneration. (Associated Press Photo)

Government To Lend Cash
To Victims Of Disaster

Roosevelt Signs Bill To Allot $2,000,000 For Purpose

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—A $2,000,000 government corporation will lend money to flood victims in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and to sufferers in any other disaster this year.

The New Agency became law with President Roosevelt's signature last night, a day after it had been introduced in congress by Senators Barkley (D. Ky.) and Buckley (D. Ohio).

The corporation will aim to provide credit for those sufferers unable to give sufficient security for loans from other government and private lending agencies.

The proposal passed the Senate without dissent and won House approval on a voice vote.

The only pause in its speedy enactment was in an attempt in the House to increase the fund to $40,000,000 and to extend the loans to victims in disasters in 1938.

The corporation will be a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which will furnish the capital.

Congress was quiet today. The Senate did not meet and the House assembled only to laud Abraham Lincoln on the anniversary of his birth.

Legislature Faces Task
Of Backing Hoey Pledges

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—The reason the general assembly is beginning to slow up and bog down, is that its nose is being held to the grindstone in trying to find enough revenue to carry out the promises made by Governor Clyde R. Hoey when he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, a good many observers, including members of the general assembly, are cautiously pointing out.

Most of these agree, of course, that it would have cost the state a lot more to have carried out the multitude of promises made by Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, and that a good many of the Hoey promises were made in order to checkmate some of the McDonald promises. But even at that, it is estimated that this general assembly will have to provide $12,500,000 in new money in order to carry out the promises made by Hoey before he became Governor.

This is the reason that the revenue and appropriations bills are still $2,000,000 a year out of balance, even if the general assembly decides to retain the provision in the revenue bill for the diversion of $2,100,000 a year from the highway to the general fund. But if this provision should be eliminated and the finance committee attempt to get this money from other sources than the motorists of the state who are already paying some $26,000,000 a year in gasoline and motor vehicle taxes, the finance and revenue bills are still at least $4,000,000 out of balance, if the old age pensions needs are taken into consideration. For there is no provision in the revenue bill now before the general assembly for the $2,000,000 a year the state must put up as its share of the old age pensions fund.

But if this general assembly is to make it possible for Governor Hoey to carry out the major promises he made during his campaign for the nomination, it must provide not only the $2,000,000 a year still needed for old age pensions and aid to dependent children, but it must also find enough additional revenue to make up for any loss of revenue that may result from changes made in the tax bill while in the house and senate. The promises made by Governor (Continued on page four)

HOUSE NEAR END

Lower Division To Meet at Midnight to Pass Measure On Third Reading

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Senate judiciary committee Number One recommended Senate passage today of the House-approved county option liquor store bill.

The committee voted five to two for a favorable report, with Chairman Gold of Guilford not voting. The action was taken in executive session and news men were pledged not to reveal the stand of individual committee members.

Yesterday afternoon the committee members, except Senator Coburn of Martin and Joyner of Iredell, heard dry leaders argue against the bill as a crowd of around 1,100 packed and jammed the Senate chamber and corridor.

Coburn and Joyner were absent this morning, both being at home because of illness in their families. Committee members present included Larkin of Jones, Pittman of Lee, Ratcliff of Forsyth, Johnston of Buncombe, Abernathy of Caldwell, Taylor of Anson and Rodman of Beaufort.

The House passed the biennial revenue bill on second reading, 87 to 4, in the senate voted to start debate later Tuesday on the county option liquor measure.

Representatives will meet at 10 o'clock tonight and a few minutes after midnight will put the tax act on third reading.

The senate debated whether to act on the liquor bill today by next week, and then voted 25 to 17 to defer debate.

House members voted down every major amendment to the revenue bill except one, to provide that no highway fund diversion, except when necessary, instead of increasing the diversion from $1,000,000 to $2,100,000 a year as recommended by the finance committee.

The tax measure would produce more than $75,000,000 in 1937-38 for general fund purposes. Highway funds, which pushed the biennial budget well above $140,000,000, are covered in other bills.

Representative Vogler of Mecklenburg, who got the house to accept two of his ideas yesterday, ran against a stone wall when he proposed reducing the sales tax levy to one per cent and putting in a new levy of one-fourth of one per cent on wholesale business and products manufactured in the state.

The house also refused an amendment by Royler, of Granville, to continue the present three per cent tax on meals sold in hotels and restaurants. The committee removed it in line with democratic platform pledges.

It also voted down a proposal to raise the franchise tax on power companies to seven per cent of receipts in excess of $100,000.

Likewise refused was the amendment to provide a two per cent exemptionless sales tax. Senator Bain, of Wayne, introduced (Continued on page six)

Boy Scouts Sponsor Movement as Daily Good Turn For 27th Anniversary Week

Approximately a ton of good magazines will be distributed to the schools, County home, prison camp and other places in the county within the next few days.

The periodicals were gathered by the local Boy Scouts yesterday with trucks loaned by The Taft, Van Dyke and Quinn Miller furniture stores.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, and K. T. Futrell, welfare officer, will have charge of distribution of the magazines. Mr. Futrell, chairman of the Civic Service committee of the Boy Scout organization had charge of the plan, carried out as the Scouts' daily good turn for anniversary week.

A similar plan was carried out last year.

The magazines were collected from the front porches of citizens who had placed them there to be picked up by the youths and distributed throughout the county. Many of them were considered of good use in schools and will be placed at the disposal of the children. Others will go to shut-in families of the county.

"The Mikado"

"The Mikado," one of Gilbert and Sullivan's best known semi-operas, promises to be the best musical production in the career of Greenville High School glee clubs. The cast, under the supervision of Miss Oms Shandler, has been practicing for approximately ten weeks.

The son of the Mikado of Japan, in an attempt to avoid the attention of his father, an elderly lady who wishes to marry him, disguises as a wandering minstrel, and leaves court. In this disguise, he meets and falls in love with Yum-Yum. Nanki-Poo's love is not requited, but Yum-Yum has promised to marry her guardian, Ka-Ko.

Nanki-Poo decides to commit suicide, but is restrained by two lords, Poch-Bah and Pish-Tush. Nanki-Poo then begs Ka-Ko to behead him, but is persuaded to wait until the end of the month. He agrees if he may marry Yum-Yum immediately.

From this point, the story moves rapidly, although there are many complications and set-backs, to a satisfactory climax.

With sale of tickets progressing satisfactorily, a large crowd of music lovers is expected to be in attendance when the opera is presented next Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

John Mulholland at College

All magic is trickery, hocus-focus, mumbo-jumbo, due to the slight of hand of the magician and his power to create illusions to fool his audience. John Mulholland frankly admitted last night, and then proceeded to do one trick of wizardry after another, never giving away the secret of how he does it.

No chickens, rabbits, or growing flowers were on the stage last night nor any of the other old time paraphernalia that used to fool the gullible, but he did things with the rope, handkerchiefs, cards, and rings that were breath-taking to the audience.

"Magic is made up of tall tales and simple tricks," he said, "and when magic is explained, there is no more magic."

Little boys and girls and college girls and boys were called up to assist with the handkerchief and card tricks, those on the front seats and near the stage, were used as witnesses and helpers, while those in gallery leaned over their necks to see what was happening, all having a glorious time trying to catch on.

Appearing at first in a Hindu Rajah costume and mask silently performing the famous Hindu rope-trick, he at once caught the interest of the audience and at the close, in Chinese costume and mask tossing up and linking and unlinking rings or hoops as a chain, and finally producing a basket of eggs from nothing, he closed the program.

The disappearance of a toy bird in a metal cage was one of the most baffling of all to the audience, and is said to be one of the most difficult of all.

He made running comments on the tricks, frequently stepping down into the audience, and in some places pausing to talk seriously on the subject.

The home of magic has passed from India to Bernoo, or where the Irish Negro lives in Africa, because India has become a part of the world.

One of the biggest rackets in America today is fortune-telling, a racket that costs $125,000,000 a year and that causes suicides and murders every month. He places it on a level with the hanging of witches in Salem. There is no way of telling the future, he says, and all methods whether astrology, numerology, or palmistry, are all complete and absolute bunk and superstition. No laws can be passed because too many congressmen themselves consult fortune-tellers, he has found. He told of his efforts to get the N. E. A. to call attention to the racket at least one minute a year, but many superstitious believe in such things and some of them even before selecting their teachers must consult a fortune-teller, so nothing was done. He called the name of one school that requires a lot of its teachers to have their horoscopes read.

Mr. Mulholland perhaps combines knowledge of magic and power to do magic tricks better than any other American. He has studied in all parts of the world and has learned the tricks of the masters in many countries. Mr. Mulholland not only makes tours all over the country lecturing on magic and giving performances but he also delivers serious lectures on the subject. This winter he is giving a series in the Columbia University.

Dr. Frank Leavell Delivers Address At Local College

Southwide Baptist Student Secretary Speaks on Movements Among the Young People

"The youth movements among the young people" was the theme of an address to the young people of the College last night by Dr. Frank H. Leavell, Southwide Baptist Student Secretary.

He began his message by telling the beginning of the youth movements in Russia. A young lad in this particular country who once declared there was no justice in government and there was no God, in later years was the one who started the communistic government of Russia today. Dr. Leavell gave some account of the youth movements in Italy, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Japan and China.

Dr. Leavell further showed how these same movements lead up to such movements as the organization of the Baptist Student Union of today, which was started by five men in Texas twenty-five years ago. He closed his message by saying, "The world moves by the youth movements of today."

Dr. Leavell had two purposes in coming to the College now. One of these was to emphasize the distinctive purposes of the Baptist Student Union and to inspire and encourage young people of his denomination in the work they are doing. The other was to acquaint the young people with the situation in China and Japan, and to inform them about their Baptist Student Union work.

His message was of great interest to all, young people not only those of his denomination, but to everyone who heard him.

SMUGGLERS TURN MINE INTO SUB ROSA ROAD

Gleitwit (AP)—Smuggling across the German-Polish border in the mining district of upper-Silesia has reached the underground stage.

For weeks customs officials noticed the appearance of large quantities of smuggled goods without being able to discover how the goods were transported.

Coordinated action by Polish and German authorities finally revealed an abandoned mine on the German side of the frontier with galleries running into Polish territory. Miners had built new entrances and used the passages to smuggle silver ware, rubber goods and clocks.

MEXICO STARTS RENOVATION OF HISTORIC CHURCH

Chilpancingo, Guerrero, Mexi. (AP)—A landmark of Mexican history, the meeting hall of the country's first congress, is being restored here, after standing in semi-ruin for 28 years.

Catholics of this state capital contributed most of the funds for the work on the old parochial church where representatives of Mexican rebels against Spain first met September 14, 1813.

In the same building, November 6 of that year, they formally proclaimed their independence, which was not to be realized, however, until eight years later, with the signing of the treaties of Cordoba.

The restoration is significant as indicating increasing moderation of this state government's policies toward the Catholic church.

Invitations to the ceremonies held in connection with installation of bells in the first tower of the church, to be finished were signed by "Sir Agustin M. Diaz, priest authorized to officiate, and chairman of the Mexico City and Chilpancingo committees for reconstruction of the temple."

TO OFFER ACTION ON FERTILIZER

Conference Called to Discuss Changes in Law

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Feb. 12.—Some important changes in the fertilizer law for North Carolina may grow out of a conference called for discussion of the matter. Sponsored by the State Board of Agriculture, the conference will be held in the board room of the Agricultural Building in Raleigh on Tuesday, February 16, beginning at 10 o'clock.

Participating in the conference will be representatives of the so-called "big six" among fertilizer manufacturers, half a dozen or more men who are interested in the manufacture, sale and use of fertilizers as time merchants and farmers, and several outstanding farmers from over the state. Besides these there will be representatives of the State Grange, the Farm Bureau and perhaps other farm organizations; chairmen and selected members of the agricultural committees of the house and senate; agronomists, chemists and other experts from the state department of agriculture and from State College.

Group No. 2 Meets. Group teachers meeting of the Greenville Group No. 2 of the Pitt County Negro schools was held in the Industrial High School auditorium at 2:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The teachers had invited the parents and a large number were present. Dr. Spangler, of the department of science of E. C. T. C., gave a most instructive address on "Daily Health Habits for Children," after which Dr. H. J. McGinnis, also of E. C. T. C., gave some helpful remarks on the "Health of the School Child."

Supt. D. H. Conley gave some valuable suggestions to teachers and parents, after which the visitors were invited into the Home Economics department and served by the teachers. This is one of the eight group teachers meetings that meet monthly throughout the county under the supervision of I. M. Donnell, Jeans Supervisor.

discussion will be led by D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the commissioner of agriculture, and Dr. B. W. Kilgore, head of the analytical division in the state department. This conference will submit to the general assembly suggestions for improving the present law. It is thought that frank, informal discussion of the situation by men familiar with all phases of the fertilizer business will result in some tangible good to North Carolina farmers.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: When Count Vronski, who is blackmailing Anne Phelps with love letters, is shot dead in her studio, at least three persons are nearby. Anne, Clarke Bigelow and Karasnakoff, the glamorous dancer. They hide the corpse during a party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, move it to Vronski's rooms. Police arrest Thorne Haid, a wealthy chap who had driven Vronski's car. Lorna, Vronski's wife, Lorna, disappears to make the police suspect her. Anne and Bigelow locate Lorna and check her off their list of suspects which still includes Karasnakoff and Baronets Dormstatt.

Chapter 34 Anne Has A Luncheon Date BIGELOW slept late on the following morning. It was 12 o'clock when he rang for coffee and looked at the papers.

The search for Lorna Dryden was still on, apparently. The police reported that Dryden had a letter from his wife posted in the metropolitan section of the city and they believed that she had taken cover so far from her own apartment. The city was being combed for her, but as yet no trace of her had been discovered in her letter she had given no reason for her disappearance, but had merely assured her husband that she was all right and that he need not worry about her. From this the police deduced that he knew the reason, that the disappearance had probably been planned between husband and wife before the arrest, and that the letter was intended simply to notify him that the plan had been successfully carried out. There were more pictures of Lorna Dryden and the public was urged to notify the police if they saw her.

Bigelow tossed aside the papers and bellowed, "Anne! Anne! Anne!" He called her name over and over and said that Mrs. Phelps desired to speak with him. A few moments later his aunt was on the wire.

"Anne is lunching out, my dear," said Mrs. Phelps. "But I thought you might like to come and lunch with me?"

"Why don't you come down here and lunch with me?" urged Bigelow. "I will do you good to see a little of it."

"Perhaps it would," she agreed. "Very well, I'll come at once. But don't order me a cocktail. Dry sherry is my measure."

"Dry sherry it shall be," he agreed. "Where is Anne lunching?"

"With Philip Whitelaw," answered his aunt. "See you at one, then, my dear."

"Right," answered Bigelow. In Love With Anne? HE TURNED on his bath and considered himself in the mirror as he laid out his shaving things. He was not handsome, he knew, but he had some intelligence and his mother had frequently assured him that he had charm. She had congratulated herself about it, taking most of the credit, as his father's family hadn't got it. And he was forced to accept her estimate as other women had testified to it in later years. He had always admired women enormously and had had a large acquaintance among them abroad. He had even played at being in love with some of them. But he had never been in love and he knew it.

Was he in love with Anne, now, he wondered? Certainly, the thought of her going off to lunch with Philip Whitelaw didn't please him. He had been conscious of a distinct depression when he had heard the news. But was he just being a dog in the manger about her or was he in love with her? Because of the vague family tie that bound them together, was he adopting a proprietary air toward her? Or was their constant association of the past few days becoming a habit?

He began to shave, trying to think of Anne dispassionately. She was lovely, no denying that. And she had a sense of humor. He liked to see her smile. It was ravishing. And she had a flair for clothes. Accustomed to going about with Parisienne—as he was—she was still able to take pleasure in the effect Anne always managed to create. And now that he had become used to her friendly attitude toward all the world, he began to like it.

Unquestionably, then, he approved of Anne. But there was that business about the letters. What was he to make of that? Was there a man in her life of whom he knew nothing? Or was it Philip Whitelaw she was alluding to when she had said the secret was not here, to tell?

What was she meant the night before by saying she had been thinking of giving up the studio? Did she mean that she would find another to replace it or that it was associated with a part of her life that was over? And what part in her life had the studio played?

He could find no satisfactory answers to any of these questions but he told himself—as he soaked in his tub—that he could so steer the conversation when his aunt came that he could find out at least as much as she knew.

About Philip Whitelaw HE was waiting in the lobby when Mrs. Phelps arrived. His shadow, he noticed, was waiting in the lobby.

It was thinking it would have been something like this: "The trouble is that Hopkins sent to Georgia a lot of social-minded case workers who didn't understand the relationship between the races down there. Now you just can't go down to Georgia and treat black Jake Jones the same way you would white Peter Hawtry. It won't work, and anybody who thinks it will simply has no place in Georgia."

Also if Senator Barkley had really cut loose, he would have said something like this: "Now, Dick, you know as well as I do that what you are all mad about is that Hugh B. Fleece from Kentucky was sent down to Atlanta as regional director of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, and you thought the job ought to have gone to a Georgian. Butshaw, Dick, Kentucky is in the same region as Georgia and he had as much right to the job as anybody."

Now that is out of the way, it seems you ought to know that Senator Glass of Virginia has left the Raleigh hotel where he lived for 25 years. He thought installation of a night club robbed the place of its dignity. Besides, he couldn't quiet the newboys, street cars and fire sirens that held nightly carnival under his window.

He moved over to the Mayflower where he amused himself nights trimming Jesse Jones, RFC administrator, at backgammon. But he doesn't feel at home there, particularly since Jones went to Miami for a holiday and his other backgammon antagonist, Admiral Cary Grayson, got so busy as Red Cross chairman.

He may be back at the Raleigh after awhile. The hotel has offered him an apartment, high up and facing the inside of the block where he missed part of the street gap in which Washington has a grandstand.

From his old Raleigh apartment he could see the White House, a sight he would miss from the new one. But the senator has not at all times been inspired by a sight of the White House anyway.

Legislative Chaff and Chatter

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—Representative Tom Cooper, of New Hanover, who won honorable mention as a colorful phrase maker with his reference to "maize dealers" during debate on the reorganization bill, has added another unusual laurel to his crown.

Discussing the appropriations bill, he urged an amendment increasing the sum allotted the department of weights and measures. He cited the fact that thousands of scales and gasoline tanks had been tested and found incorrect all over the state. He asserted that unless more money is appropriated the state's taxpayers will be cheated out of thousands of dollars a year.

Defeated overwhelmingly, he said: "All right, I'm going to vote along with the committee, but when I do it, I'm still going to feel like I'm voting to give a lot of people a license to steal."

North Carolinians will have one more holiday than usual this year if a resolution introduced by Representative Walter Murphy, Rowan, is enacted.

The date will be September 17, and it will be in commemoration of the sesqui-centennial of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States. School children will doubtless regret it comes so early.

Democratic wheel horses throughout the state as going to be used by National Committeeman Lon Folger to put over the Victory Dinner March 4. Each county dinner will be planned by a committee consisting of the county chairman and vice chairman and the president and vice president of its Young Democratic Club.

Senator Bell of Mecklenburg must have felt a bit lonely Wednesday when his was the only vote cast against the Social Security bill. The count was 43 to 1.

A rose by any other name may smell just as sweet, but diversion of highway funds seems to be much more palatable to a number of legislators when it is called "allotment."

Wilburn Cartwright, member of Congress from Oklahoma and chairman of the U. S. House Committee on Roads recently issued a blasting warning about diversion. Said he:

"Wearing the decoration of the double cross, the American motorist, some twenty-five million of him, arises to ask why he should continue to stand for taxation without representation—a small matter about which America once fought a war.

"The taxation refers to the money the motorist pays in gasoline taxes and automobile license fees. The double cross was pinned on him by some thirty-eight states which have been collecting the tax, presumably for roads on which he can run his automobile, but which have built only a portion of the roads he has paid for—what with the motor-vehicle money being so handy to spend for other things."

Despite all the protestations of dislike for diversion, North Carolina is going to have it—camouflaged behind the terms "allotment" and "sales tax on gasoline," but the result is going to be that money paid by motorists for the declared purpose of use in building and maintaining highways will be used to pay school teachers and for other purely general fund purposes.

MITE CONTRIBUTIONS BUILD MIGHTY BRIDGE Istanbul, Turkey (AP)—The charge of 10 paras toll, about 1-15th of a cent, has provided enough money in three years to build the most up-to-date bridge in the Near East. When completed in November, 1938, the Ataturk Bridge will link the European quarter of the city with purely oriental old Istanbul.

The bridge, which will span the Golden Horn, was erected on 24 pontoons. It will carry double tracks for streetcars and sidewalks for pedestrians.

A parchment, recording that 600,000,000 individual compulsory contributions of ten paras each had been collected to build the bridge, was placed under the foundation stone.

The remaining contributions will be used to construct public squares at the bridge-heads.

Vegetation, combined with terracing and other mechanical methods of erosion control, is said to reduce soil erosion to a minimum.

LEGISLATURE FACES TASK OF BACKING HOEY PLEDGES

(Continued on page six) Hoey which present estimates indicate will require $12,500,000 in new revenue to carry out, are his promise to restore the exemptions from the sales, costing $2,500,000 a year; to provide old age pensions and aid for dependent children, costing $4,000,000 a year, of which the counties will pay $2,000,000 a year through property taxes, under the present bill; to provide free textbooks, costing $1,500,000 a year; to reduce the license tax on automobiles, which will cost the state at least $1,500,000 a year and the promise to increase salaries of school teachers and other state employees, which will cost at least $3,000,000 a year on the basis of a 10 per cent increase.

In tabular form, these "promises" total up as follows: Sales tax exemptions $2,500,000 Old age pensions 4,000,000 Salary increases 3,000,000 Free textbooks 1,500,000 Auto tag reductions 1,500,000 Total $12,500,000

Of this amount, the counties must raise $2,000,000 by levying additional property taxes, which will go to help pay the cost of old age pensions and aid to dependent children, while the $1,500,000 needed for free textbooks will be raised by means of a bond issue, leaving only $9,000,000 which will have to be provided from current state revenue. Of this amount, $4,000,000 is necessary to replace the loss in revenue which will result from the restoration of the exemptions in the sales tax and from the reduction in the cost of automobile licenses—if the latter proposal is adopted. A good many are pointing out that in recommending a reduction in automobile license tag costs, Governor Hoey made it impossible to carry another one of his recommendations or "promises, namely the one in which he urged the expenditure of more funds on the county roads. His approval of the diversion of $2,100,000 a year from the highway fund to the general fund, if approved, will make it even more impossible to do anything more for the county roads. It is maintained, so it is campaign promises that are causing most of the delay now.

CLEAR SAILING FOR ROAD BILL

Highway Reorganization Meets Negligible Opposition

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Feb. 12.—Among the measures which is apparently assured of clear sailing is the administration's highway reorganization bill which will be reported out of the Committee on Roads next week. While some bills are being held up in committee because of opposition of one sort or another, there has so far been practically no hint of trouble for the road bill.

Representative Con C. Johnston, of Iredell, road committee chairman, says that he has made a careful canvass of the law makers with a view to finding out if there were any objectionable features to the act, but declares that so far he has not found one whom he opposes the principle of reorganization of the highway commission so as to make it a body more representative of various sections of the state.

Such slight opposition as has shown itself is based on the desire of some legislators to have their counties placed in districts other than those proposed in the bill. Even this objection is met by the terms of the measure itself, Mr. Johnston believes as it is provided that the commission shall have power to change the districting of counties whenever it shall appear to the best interests of the counties concerned to do so.

There continues to be a good deal of speculation over identity of the new commission's chairman when it is created. There is more than a little difference of opinion, but it is probable that the consensus view is that Capus Waynick, present chairman, will be re-appointed.

Washington—Don't always be rattled with what you read in "The Congressional Record."

Take this, for instance: Senator Russell of Georgia introduced an amendment to the first deficiency bill designed to prohibit WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins from filling executive posts within a state by officials from other states.

"In some of the states," explained Russell, "there has been an unreasonable policy on the part of the works progress administration. Oftentimes, at the expense of the government, they have sent people into states from other states to take many of the more attractive supervisory positions. I do not accept the implication that there is a state of this union which does not have within its borders citizens of sufficient integrity and ability to carry on."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky replied: "I presume the object is to bar anybody, regardless of his qualifications or the need for his services, who may be brought in to a regional office from outside of the state in which the office is located. If that is the object of the amendment, I am opposed to it."

If Russell had said what he really

Wine And Children

Rome (AP) — "Raise more children and glorify the race" and "drink more wine and stimulate agriculture" are familiar admonitions in Italy.

Il Giornale d'Italia recently published Senator Arturo Marescalchi's conclusions that "where wine drinking is neglected, the birthrate falls off." Il Giornale, one of Italy's most important newspapers, seldom has been accused of whimsicality, but it gave the senator's studies front-page space.

Palm Trees Run Motors
