SENATE VOTES TO KEEP LEFT ON ALL MEALS

Revenue Bill Passed On Final Reading By Vote of 41-3

STARTS ON WAY TO CONFERENCE

Doubtful That House Will Accept Amendments Injected in Measure by Senators

Raleigh, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Senators refused again today to take the sales tax off meals in public eating places and then passed the identical revenue bill and sent it to the house for concurrence in amendments.

The senate finance chairman Webb of Lenoir predicted the house would reject senate changes and require a conference committee to iron out differences.

Final passage was by a 41-3 vote, with Senators Brok of Davis, Long of Halifax and Ewing of Cumberland opposing the measure designed to raise $76,000,000 for the general fund during the 1937-39 biennium.

The senators debated for more than an hour after Senator Johnston of Buncombe renewed this motion to strike out the tax on meals, and then refused 25 to 21 to do so. Gold of Guilford said "the director of the budget (Governor Hoyt) has business and political desires to take the tax off meals" and other senators argued the Democratic party had pledged removal of the present three per cent levy.

Ingram of Randolph, Hill of Durham and others however, argued the party had pledged the general sales tax from all necessities of life and had left it on many of them.

House members worked out various amendments reported more than 70 bills to the legislative floor for action.

Provision Aimed At Protection Of State Merchants

Senate Amendment to Revenue Bill Would Place Tax of $25 on Out-of-State Concerns

Raleigh, Feb. 24.—All the merchants in North Carolina should give three cheers and a couple of good buzzards for Democratic Senator L. Y. Ballentine of Wake county and Republican merchant Calvin Zimmerman, of Raleigh, as a result of the adoption by the senate of the amendment offered by Senator Ballentine to the revenue bill, placing a tax of $25 on out-of-state concerns which have been sending exhibits of merchandise into the state from their stores, taking orders, and then sending the purchases back by mail, observers here today agree.

This tax is expected to act as a strong deterrent to this practice and stop the flow of business out of the state and away from local merchants.

Such a tax has been advocated by Zimmerman ever since a big New York department store rented some rooms here at the Sir Walter Hotel a few weeks ago, exhibited several hundred women's and children's dresses, took orders for more than $3,000 worth of merchandise (no sales tax was charged) and then moved on to some other city or town in the state to do the same thing over again. Zimmerman tried to get some of the Wake county house members interested in offering this amendment when the bill was in the house, but he could not get any one interested there.

He pointed out that a dozen or more New York and Richmond stores have been holding these displays in various places in the state for several years, in competition with local merchants and thus taking thousands of dollars worth of business away from these merchants—and without paying any rent, sales tax, income tax or any other kind of tax to the state.

Senator Ballentine, though a farmer and a dairyman, listened to the bill that passed the house, the general belief is that these differences can and will be ironed out in the conference committee to which the bill will be sent, probably tomorrow, when it goes to the house for concurrence in the senate amendments.

It is already conceded that in order to send the bill to conference, the house will refuse to concur in the senate amendments, whereupon a conference committee will be appointed to work out a compromise between the two houses.

PROPOSE LEVY FRANCHISE TAX

Proposal Allows Cities Telephone Exchanges

Although a state law at present prohibits cities from levying a franchise tax on telephone exchanges, a measure introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator E. G. Flanagan and others would permit such a privilege.

The proposed measure is attracting much attention in Greenville as the Carolina Telephone company at present is negotiating with the Board of Aldermen in regard to renewal of its franchise, which expired three years ago.

The state levies a six per cent tax on the gross incomes of the various telephone companies operating in North Carolina, but bans any towns from placing such a tax on the companies. The proposal would allow cities in which exchanges are located to levy a one per cent gross income tax.

Asheville collects such a tax under a franchise issued some years ago to the Southern Bell Company and Hickory levies the assessment under a local law passed by the General Assembly, Senator Flanagan declared in offering his measure.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Public Utilities and a public hearing was set for Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the offices of the State Utilities commission.

Although the measure is expected to encounter stiff opposition from the telephone companies, it has the support of the League of Municipalities, the legislative committee of which met yesterday and discussed the bill. Mayor M. K. Blount is a member of the committee and declared that the entire committee personnel was behind the proposal whereby the cities could collect a franchise tax from the telephone companies.

Uniforms For Lobbyists Called For By Proposal

Raleigh, Feb. 24.—With the senate back on the track and the revenue bill finally passed on third reading, the legislative express train which for a time gave indications of becoming a freight train, gives every promise of putting on speed under a full head of steam in an effort to reach an early adjournment.

For while the revenue bill as passed by the senate contains a number of changes as compared with the bill that passed the house, the general belief is that these differences can and will be ironed out in the conference committee to which the bill will be sent, probably tomorrow, when it goes to the house for concurrence in the senate amendments.

It is already conceded that in order to send the bill to conference, the house will refuse to concur in the senate amendments, whereupon a conference committee will be appointed to work out a compromise between the two houses.

MADRID DEFENSE CLAIMS VICTORY

Government Announces 2,500 Attackers Slain As Loyals Begin Offensive

London, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The admiralty announced today five members of the crew of the British battleship Royal Oak, including several ranking officers had been injured when a shell burst on the quarter deck during the Spanish insurgent air bombardment of Valencia yesterday.

(By Associated Press) Spanish insurgents reported 2,500 government attackers slain at Oviedo today, while other government forces—"tired of the defensive"—pushed widespread offensive operations.

Conflicting reports were received on the fighting at Oviedo. Dispatches from Bayonne, on the Franco-Spanish border, said government infantrymen battled their way to the center of the city.

But General Francisco Franco's high insurgent command, reporting troops, termed it the "most crushing defeat of the civil war."

The government has been besieging Oviedo, near the Bay of Biscay, for months. There has been intense fighting in the very streets of the city for four days.

Madrid reports stated government and insurgent troops were locked in hand-to-hand combat for possession of a strategic hill Southeast of Madrid. The reports said Madrid defenders held a large part of the hill, from which insurgent artillery has blasted away at the vital Valencia highway for many days.

Doctor Testifies In Smoak Murder Trial

Wilmington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Haywood Taylor testified today in the murder trial of Edgar Smoak that he found lethal amounts of a swift acting poison in the vital organs of both the 16-year-old daughter and the second wife of the defendant.

The Duke hospital toxicologist said his tests indicated the child's body contained 17 times that usually given for medicinal or tonic purposes.

After presenting the evidence of Taylor and other doctors, Solicitors John Burney sent four insurance company representatives to the witness stand in an effort to bolster his contention the 30-year-old carpenter's helper poisoned both his wives and his daughter to collect his insurance.

COUNTY COURT ENDS SESSION

Judge Dink James Demands That Judgments Be Executed

Judge Dink James, in the closing session of this week's County court yesterday afternoon, let two Negroes know in no uncertain tones that the court was nothing to trifle with.

Henry Purvis was sentenced to five days in jail after Judge James had ruled him in contempt of court. The judge found that the Negro had misrepresented the facts in testifying that he had paid a doctor's bill of five dollars. The defendant was ordered to pay the sum over to Purvis, who was the prosecuting witness. An investigation showed that no such sum had been expended by Purvis and the five day sentence resulted.

W. S. Harrington was convicted at the February 9 term of abandonment and ordered to pay four dollars each week for the upkeep of his family. The court found that he had failed to meet the terms of the judgment and ordered him jailed until back payments were met. Th sum was paid and the defendant evaded the jail sentence.

John Henry Lee, Negro, convicted of abandonment, was given a six months sentence suspended upon provision he pay two dollars weekly for the upkeep of his family.

Herbert Lee Ewell, Negro, will be tried in Superior court on a charge of driving carelessly and recklessly with a deadly weapon, the case having been transferred to the higher court.

AIRCRAFT INDUSTRIES TIED UP IN STRIKES

U. A. W. A. union were demands set forth in circulars passed to 5,000 employees. Sit-downs ignored a request by the firm's president to evacuate "to avoid trouble."

State troopers evicted sit-down strikers from the Electric Boat company plant at Groton, arresting about 80 who refused to evacuate. Government submarines are under construction at the plant. Company officials secured warrants charging trespassing. The strike started after a dispute over recognition.

Sit-down strikers, who union leaders said numbered 800, curtailed public operations at the Crowell publishing company at Springfield, Ohio. The striking pressmen sought increased wages and union recognition.

Backwaters Cover Lindberghs Land, Additional Lands Dispelling Fears On March To Gulf For Their Safety

New Orleans, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Refugee camps in Louisiana and Mississippi expanded today as backwaters of tributaries spread over farm lands and highways and the broad Mississippi pushed its flood burden to the Gulf.

The great waterway itself caused little trouble, although 1,000 men continued topping the Black Hawk and Fair View dikes along the long stretch in Concordia Parish on the Louisiana bank below Natchez, Miss.

Only a slight further rise below Natchez was expected. The river has been on a 58-foot stand there since Sunday and was dropping at Vicksburg.

TWO FREED IN FLOGGING CASE

Sheriff Announces More Arrests Expected, However

Shalotte, N. C. Feb. 24.—(AP)—Sheriff J. A. Russ said he expected additional arrests immediately in his investigation of a two-year series of floggings despite the fact his first two suspects were acquitted in County court at Whiteville yesterday.

Russ said information obtained at the trial, fitting in with what he already had learned, would provide him with sufficient grounds for "several more arrests."

"We're just getting started good in this thing," he said, adding this investigation had not been retarded by the acquittal of Rev. Vance Simmons—Missionary Baptist preacher, and Garfield Simmons, his storekeeper cousin.

The men were accused by participation in the flogging of Will Inman and Jesse Cox, 66, last Thanksgiving night by a band of hooded night riders, but were freed when the victims failed to identify them.

Tax Measure Out Of Way; Assembly Regains Speed

Raleigh, Feb. 24.—Judge P. H. Brooks, in a moment of levity, has introduced a bill which if enacted would bring thousands of persons to Raleigh during the legislative session just to see the show.

His measure calls for uniforms for lobbyists and prescribes certain ceremonies they must observe in approaching a Senator.

Here's what could be seen if the bill were to become a law: (1) Murray Allen (Railroad Lobbyist) wearing overalls, carrying an oil can, switch lantern and wearing his hat backwards.

(2) John L. Skinner, secretary of the N. C. Association of county commissioners and Pat Healy, ditto for the Municipal League (Tax Lobbyists) carrying picks and hods on their backs.

ASK CONGRESS PROVIDE FUND ERECT HOUSES

Democratic Leaders Request $1,000,000,000 for Plan

SLUM CLEARANCE MAIN OBJECTIVE

Proposal Would Combine Several Federal Agencies in One Housing Authority

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Two Democratic leaders asked congress today to set up a $1,000,000,000 low rent housing and slum clearance program.

Introducing the bill to authorize federal loans and grants to local authorities to aid in housing families of small income.

Senator Wagner (D. N. Y.) and Rep. Steagall (D. Ala.) declared they had the endorsement of many "sectors of the federal government."

The authors of the measure would create a new United States housing authority, under which they said the President could gather "the scattered organizations now empowered to engage in housing."

They believed the federal funds recommended would bring out about $600,000,000 of non federal loans. They figured 375,000 family dwelling units requiring about $4,000 each could be provided.

"Any sit-down strike that undertakes to take over private property," Secretary Roper said at a press conference today, "is a serious and a fundamental thing, and in my opinion, would not be long endorsed by the courts." He stressed that the views he expressed were personal.

Dr. Francis Townsend, originator of the $20 a month old age pension movement, was equiptal on one count of an indictment charging him with contempt of the house, but his trial on another continued.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Monroe Johnson said a structural failure apparently had caused the crash of a transport plane in San Francisco bay recently in which eleven persons were killed.

HOEY WARS ON WRECK CAUSES

Governor Means Business in Campaign on Mishaps

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 24.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey has some very definite ideas about how to bring about greater safety on the highways and reduce the number of accidents in which approximately 1,000 persons a year have been killed for the past several years.

That is why he is advocating the transfer of the State Highway Patrol and the Highway Safety Division from the Department of Revenue to a new department directly under the control of the Governor, under a Commissioner of Highway Safety to be appointed by the Governor. But Governor Hoey is not stopping there.

He is also convinced that the state needs a bureau of identification, including a force of plain clothes detectives, to work with the highway patrol and with sheriffs, police chiefs and law officers all over the state, including solicitors, whenever they may need special aid—and that this bureau should be a part of Highway Safety Commission.

"I believe the time has come for North Carolina to really do something about highway safety and better law enforcement," Governor Hoey said. "The time for temporizing with reckless drivers and law violators has passed. I am convinced that the only way we can stop the present toll of accidents is with an enlarged highway patrol, set up under an entirely new agency whose sole duty shall be law enforcement. The present highway patrol has done good work, considering it has consisted of only 120 men. But we need more men than that—at least 300 patrolmen, whose primary duty shall be the patrolling of the highways, but who also may be subject to the control of the Governor and be called upon for special duty in case of emergency."

Governor Hoey declined to comment on any of the reasons for changing the present set-up of the highway patrol, now under the direction of the Commissioner of Revenue. It is known, however, that there has long been much criticism of the patrol on the grounds that patrolmen were used too much to collect revenue for the Department of Revenue, instead of patrolling the highways to prevent accidents and enforce the highway laws.

In fact, from 1933 to 1935, the highway patrolmen also acted as gasoline inspectors and revenue collectors, with the result that they had little chance to do any patrol work. The 1935 general assembly revised this, changed the law so that they no longer had to do any gasoline inspection and tried to make it so they could not be used as revenue collectors.

But indications are that they have been and still are used to serve warrants and other papers for the revenue department. Some also maintain that the control of the patrol gave the Commissioner of Revenue too much power and that the patrol might become a political organization.

The patrol was transferred to the Department of Revenue from the Highway Commission in 1936 because the general assembly, more or less dominated by the old R. T. Fountain faction, felt that the Highway Commission, of which E. B. Jeffress of Greensboro was Chairman, had made too effective use of the highway patrol in the 1935 primary campaign.

It was no secret, of course, that Chairman Jeffress and most of the highway department supported J. G. B. Ehringhaus for Governor rather than Lieutenant Governor Fountain and the 1933 general assembly wanted to smack the Highway Commission—and there are indications that the Department of Revenue was entirely in sympathy with this sentiment if it could get control of the highway patrol. So the patrol was moved from the highway to the revenue department.

But the more those who have studied the situation have dug into things, the more they have become convinced that the state would never have a really efficient highway patrol organization so long as it were merely a unit in either the revenue or highway departments, where the chief interest was collecting revenue or building roads—and that the thing to do was to put the patrol in an entirely separate unit. The fact that Governor Hoey is now backing the bills to create a Highway Safety Division and transfer the highway patrol to this division, would indicate that Governor Hoey is also of this opinion.

Chapter 44

Karsanokoff Elopee

MRS. PHELPS sat staring at the small red cabinet decorated with gold. She stared herself again, and drew the letters out. They looked as though they might have been written the day before. Bigelow reached for the little packet and examined it.

"But these are dated recently," he said.

"Recently?" repeated his aunt, staring. She leaned over to look. "How strange! The date looks exactly like the writing, too. But someone must have altered them. Tony Burckett has been dead nearly 20 years."

"The chances are they weren't dated at all," said Bigelow, "and he managed to match the ink, somehow, and filled those dates in."

Anne nodded. "That seem to have been a favorite trick of his," she murmured bitterly.

"His? Whose?" cried Mrs. Phelps, looking from one to the other.

"The gentleman we all know as Vronski," explained Bigelow. "He was blackmailing Anne over these—threatening a scandal involving you."

"Good God!" gasped Mrs. Phelps. She stared at Anne. Anne flushed.

"I knew your writing, you see," she said, "and I couldn't come and ask you about them. And—you'd always been so good to me—"

Tears filled her eyes. Mrs. Phelps threw her arms around her and drew her close. "And you thought I was really involved in some foolish affair—at my age?" she asked wonderingly.

"I didn't know what to think! I'd never heard of any Tony. And the letters looked so recent—and they were dated! And I said he'd have to do you if I didn't give him the money he wanted!"

Mrs. Phelps patted Anne's shoulder, still a little bewildered. "My dear child!" she murmured. "But how in God's name did he get the letters in the first place?"

"Doris!" said Bigelow grimly.

"Doris?" Mrs. Phelps looked at him. "She must have got them and sold them to him," said Bigelow. "She had access to them, hadn't she?"

"She is the only one in the house who had," agreed the old lady, "and Walters frequently warned me she wasn't to be trusted, but she was so useful!"

"Was?" repeated Bigelow.

"Yes. She's on holiday. I let her go several days ago."

"Well, that disposes of her, at any rate," said Bigelow. "I hardly think she will come back."

"Making a Bolt For It?"

ANNE looked up at Bigelow anxiously. "Don't you think we might telephone Karsanokoff, now?" she asked.

"Yes," said Bigelow. "Why not? If she is still sleeping, Mariushka will tell you."

Anne left the room just as Walters came in with the first dish of waffles.

"Don't wait," advised the old lady. "I know Anne won't mind." She began to serve Bigelow from the silver platters Walters and the second man were placing before her. "Be careful of those plates, my dear. They are very hot..." simply cannot imagine how Anne could have believed for a moment! But of course, there was my writing and the dates. And women do foolish things—even women of my age! But I should not have believed that anyone who knew me, as well as Anne—She shook her head helplessly as she gave Walters the plate.

As Walters set it before Bigelow, Anne came back.

"What?" Bigelow looked up in astonishment.

"Went off in the early hours of the morning and didn't leave a forwarding address."

Bigelow whistled softly. "Do you suppose she's making a bolt for it?"

"Looks like it," said Anne. She sat down in her place.

"But why should Madame Karsanokoff run away?" asked Mrs. Phelps.

Bigelow began to tell her, in the

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

Hollywood.—The sole duty of Louis H. Tolhurst's actors was to chew the scenery. This they did, to the director's ultimate satisfaction, but they drew no compliments from that exacting boss.

"They're dumb actors," he pronounced. "Bees now, or wasps, or ants or spiders—they're easy to handle. But grasshoppers!"

He had just completed the "afterthought sequence" for "The Good Earth," even then ready for its local premiere. It would be inserted to convey to audiences, in full close-up, exactly why a plague of locusts—or kindred grasshoppers—is a real menace to man.

The picture already contained scenes showing locusts in swarms, but a few weeks ago it was decided close-ups were necessary. The audience should see those saw-like mandibles at work, devastating ripening fields.

Micro-photography was the answer, and Louis Tolhurst, a scholarly gentleman who has been specializing in this field for the movies for 18 years, got the call.

"We've done something new," he said, that day he finished. "A new process developed right on the set—we've caught, for the first time, micro-photographic scenes with full backgrounds in focus."

The process is secret, but it seems that hitherto scenes photographed under a microscope lost all background. From now on, Tolhurst expects to be able to combine microscopic shots with ordinary camera work (by superimposing) so that, if desired, the magnified contents of a test tube may be seen as part of a shot showing the man holding the tube. For "The Good Earth," the grasshoppers are brought, little by little, from a long shot up to full screen close-up.

The scenery these little actors had to chew was made of short stalks of wheat and grass, erected in sets only four inches high. They shined under a blue-white light so powerful that, uncooled, it would have burned down the stage and so bright a human actor would have been blinded instantly. This did not deter them from their favorite pursuit, eating.

No new insect star, however, will emerge from these scenes. Tolhurst would not deny that perhaps some of them (for the grasshoppers you'll see are really composites of many) had screen personality. But each had taken its last curtain call already. Fall fellows, thousands succumbed to seasonal poor health, if not to the excitement of a movie career.

It was a rush job, and Tolhurst considered himself lucky to find any of the species at this time of year.

"And even the wheat," he said, "was available only because seed dropped during the making of the picture—last year—had sprouted prematurely, right here on the lot!"

"Why—I wrote to him," explained Mrs. Phelps, "about your infatuation for Vronski—I thought you were infatuated, you know—and that I didn't trust the man and was frightfully worried—and he came to see what he could do about it."

"Oh!" said Anne.

"After all," went on the old lady, "you are almost cousins."

"Quite," said Anne. She colored slightly but did not reveal whether she was pleased or displeased with the news. And as Austrelitz helped himself again from the platter, Walters offered, invitingly, the rose. "I see this is going on indefinitely," she said. "If you'll excuse me, I'll leave you to it."

"I'll phone you later," called Bigelow, as they rose.

"Do," said Anne.

will yield approximately $38,000,000 a year to meet the appropriations from the general fund, which is the support of all state departments and institutions, including the public schools, with the exception of the highway department and the department of agriculture. It is estimated that the non-tax revenue of the state together with the expected increase in revenues from all present taxes, will be sufficient to take care of general fund appropriations amounting to almost $47,000,000 a year.

The most startling change made in the revenue bill by the senate was the restoration of the sales tax on meals in hotels and cafes, despite the fact that both the committee and the house refused to do this and despite the fact that Governor Hoey opposed such action and declared for the removal of the sales tax on meals in his campaign and in his inaugural address. However, it is recalled that the house finance committee restored this tax on meals the day before it reported the bill into the house, then removed it that night at its final meeting, apparently at the suggestion of Gov. Hoey.

It is believed that the house would have gone along with the committee for the bill and kept it out only because its members wanted to follow the Governor's wishes. But if the senate remains adamant in holding out for the sales tax on meals, the general belief is that the house conferees will agree to accept it, because of the acute need for getting all the revenue that can possibly be raised and the belief of many that even now the revenue and appropriations bills are being balanced largely on faith and hope.

If Governor Hoey decides to make a fight on the sales tax on meals, there is a possibility that it might be eliminated from the conference committee, some believe. But since the Governor has no veto and since the senate has already deliberately disregarded his position with regard to this tax, most observers believe he would make a mistake to take a hand in the situation now, since he might not win out—in which case his prestige would suffer. There are some who think that it to be afraid of.

How It Helps Women
"Who takes Cardui?"

Women who are run-down, weakened, nervous, and not getting sufficient strength from the food they eat—Thousands and thousands have found that Cardui increased their appetite, improved their digestion, thereby promoting better nourishment and the consequent strengthening of the whole system.

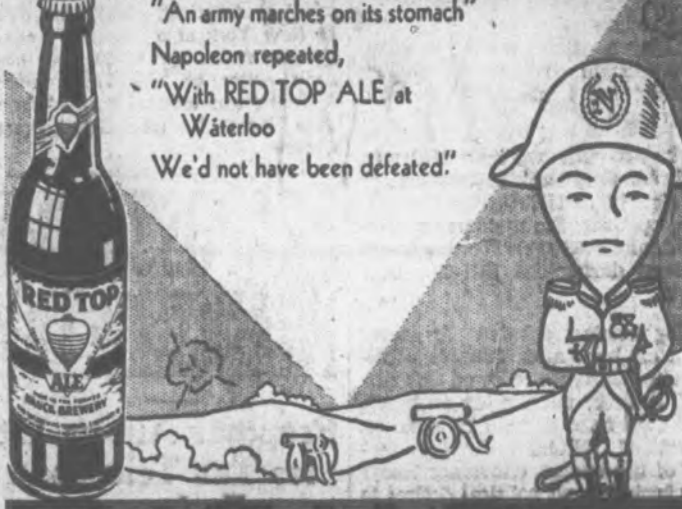

And women who have suffered from functional pains of menstruation have found that, by taking Cardui just before and during the periods, this purely vegetable sedative and antispasmodic seemed to save them much discomfort. This action of Cardui is highly esteemed because the relief credited to it comes in an entirely beneficial way. Cardui is purely vegetable, nothing in private; the Governor does not care to see this tax removed and that he will be entirely satisfied if the house concurs and permits it to remain, especially since he knows how badly every cent of new revenue is needed.

The house is expected to agree to the other changes about as they now stand and without any fight.

There are some who think that it to be afraid of.

The Round Table met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. W. B. Tighman. Her guests were Mrs. Fleischmann, Mrs. T. McM. Grant and Mrs. J. E. Lewis.

The chairman of the library committee reported that the adult and junior dictionaries have been placed in the library by the club. Miss Nellie Denny gave a remarkable paper on the "Art of Dyeing." She told how the dyeing was done in prehistoric times—now it is a branch of applied chemistry.

This art was explained from an industrial and commercial standpoint as well as practical and economical standpoint. In 1920 the United States exported dyes to the value of $30,000,000. We use 500,000 pounds of dyes each year for coloring just our foods and drinks.

These are made principally from coal-tar. Approximately 5,000 different synthetic dyes are known. Scientific research and chemical experiment have done the most to develop this art.

Mrs. J. E. Winslow gave an interesting current event on social conditions existing in Germany. The hostess served a salad and sweet course, using yellow and white as the predominating colors.—Reported.

NEW OFFICE BUILDING DOESN'T HAVE WINDOWS
Racine, Wis. (AP)—An office building without windowed walls is under construction here. It was designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally known architect, for S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc., wax makers.

Daylight will enter the office through tubular shaped glass bands encircling the building—one at a six-foot level, the other at the angle formed by the wall and the roof—and through skylights. Artificial lighting will emanate from the same sources.

Because the only exterior openings will be chambered entrance doors, the building utilizes two "nostrils"—circular shafts running from the basement to the roof—through which the air conditioning equipment will breathe in fresh air.

The main unit is a vast workroom, 130x210 feet. On a mezzanine gallery around the workroom are offices for department heads and junior executives. The chief officers will use a penthouse on top of the main office.

The building will cost more than $250,000.

"The trouble with most modern buildings is that they are not really modern," says Wright.

WOULD CHANGE CONTROL BILL

Amendments Follow Close on Heels of Ratification

Talks To Parents

Firm Foundations Skimming, instead of real living, seems the keynote of childhood today.

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 24.—The ink was hardly dry on the ratification signatures needed to make the County Option Liquor Bill a law before amendatory bills began to be popped into the House.

The bill was ratified Monday night and at Tuesday morning's session first of the amendatory bills made its appearance.

And so before any elections can be had under the bill (April 13) is the earliest date on which any county may vote there are likely to be some few changes in what is now the liquor law of the state. None of the changes, however, is likely to have any material effect upon its provisions.

The first amendment to the law was one proposing that the sale of alcohol for non-beverages persons be exempted from its operation. This would take care of any number of patent medicines, many of which contain more alcohol than some of the "harder" of the alcoholic beverages.

Then, too, there are some other amendatory bills certain to be sent up within the next few days. Representatives J. C. Hobbs and Thomas E. Cooper, of New Hanover, are known to be considering amendatory bills which would leave division of profits from New Hanover sotres just as it now is—twenty-five per cent to the county and seventy-five per cent to the City of Wilmington. They point out that the City of Wilmington has just about that proportion of the taxable values of New Hanover. They also point to the fact that there is at present general agreement on the division of profits between county and city.

Meanwhile a bill introduced by Representative Ed Hanford, of Alamance, providing for state manufacture, is sleeping peacefully in House Judiciary Committee No. 1. It has been referred to a subcommittee. If it ever comes out at all it will be "unfavorably."

Merit Rating Plan to Be Considered by 1939 Legislature After Two Years of Experience

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Feb. 24.—A merit rating system, or a reserve account system, possible or a combination of the two systems, may be set up by the 1939 General Assembly in the Unemployment Compensation Division of the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission, based on the experience gained in the first two years of the operation of the act.

The act directs the commission to make a study, now being conducted, and make recommendations as to the advisability of adopting one or a combination of the plans.

The reserve account system would provide that the contributions from an individual employer or group of employers be maintained in a separate account. Only employees of the individual employer or those of the group would draw benefits from this account. One variation of this plan is a system in which a portion of the contributions is diverted to a "reinsurance" pool from which benefits will be paid when a reserve account is exhausted.

The merit rating system would provide that after a few years' experience in the payment of benefits, the rates of contribution for each employer would be fixed on a basis of his record, usually measured by the difference between the contributions he pays and the benefits paid to his employees. If an employer's workers have had no unemployment or unemployment of short duration, his contributions would be reduced. On the other hand, if his workers have had long periods of unemployment, his contributions would be increased to a specified maximum under such a system.

Many of the state laws provide for a pooled fund, as in the case of this state, and also for a merit rating for individual employers, which this state does not have. However, as stated, the act provides that the North Carolina commission make a study of the plans, keeping such accounts and records as may be necessary. The commission may demand and receive such reports as it considers important, hold hearings, subpoena witnesses, compel production of books and documents, and exercise such other powers as it deems necessary in connection with the study.

The commission is directed to

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

ASHES TO ASHES

Many otherwise sane citizens become thoughtless fools when they get behind the wheel of an automobile. This paradox cost 38,500 lives in auto accidents last year. In the same period 10,300,000 were injured, of which 400,000 were more or less permanently disabled.

Such a staggering slaughter of human life could not be much worse if the country were in a state of constant revolution. How can it be curbed? According to the Portland Oregonian there is no answer to the problem "except in more ruthless law enforcement, and that cannot be achieved this side of public indignation." Thirty-eight thousand five hundred lives sacrificed on the altar of recklessness would seem to be sufficient cause for public indignation.

Safe driving campaigns, designed to appeal to the common sense of the individual, have apparently been of little benefit. Speeding, drunken driving, gross negligence in approaching crossings, and weaving in and out of traffic, are increasing every day. The only ones who have been thoroughly cured are the victims, and bitter experience cured them. Lying mangled in hospitals, perhaps clinging to this earth by a mere thread, they have come to realize how precious life is. But the dead will never have another chance. In that split second before oblivion they too realized—but too late!

The next time you hit a cross street at sixty miles an hour STOP and THINK of what might have happened to you if you had not been alone in your foolishness. Picture yourself being lowered to your final resting place with the clouds dropping on your coffin and the minister chanting "ashes to ashes, dust to dust." If you are blessed with the life-loving instincts of the average individual you will approach the next cross street with due caution and trembling knees.—The Industrial News Review.

Legislative Chaff and Chatter

Raleigh, Feb. 24.—Governor Clyde Hoey has purchased the first three tickets for the statewide Victory Dinner to be given in Raleigh, March 3, with Senator Millard Tjallingii, of Maryland as the principal speaker.

The Governor's tickets will be for himself, Mrs. Hoey and Miss Isabel Hoey, his daughter.

Incidentally plans for Victory Dinners in practically every county of the state are making great progress, according to Ed Butler, Morganton, president of the state Young Democrats, who is assisting National Committeeman Lon Folger in getting ready for the events which Democrats feel will raise North Carolina's quota of $10,000 to retire the national party ticket.

The local dinners will be held on March 4th.

There have been several displays of oratorical fireworks during the session on public bills, but it remained for a purely local measure to set off the most brilliant pyrotechnics to date.

The veteran "Pete" Murphy provided the thrills when he rose to denounce a measure which would have added four Democrats to the three Republicans on the Madison county board of commissioners. He minced no words, lashing out at the bill as "contemptible, larcenous, vicious."

So effective was his blistering castigation that his motion that the bill "do lie upon the table" prevailed somewhat tumultuously.

Even in the heated debate on the Madison board - packing measure, Speaker Gregg Cherry managed to carry off the laurels with one of his justly famous interjections.

The bill had been tabled, the tumult and the shouting had died. Up rose young Representative Baley, the Republican from Madison.

"For what purpose does the gentleman now arise?" queried the Speaker.

"To express my appreciation, Mr. Speaker," began the youthful G. O. P. member who recently introduced a resolution expressing appreciation and approval of Senator Josiah Bailey's course on the President's court proposal.

"You did that once, and it got you in trouble," rejoined the "Iron Major."

Mr. Baley sat down.

Mecklenburgers themselves believe they are about as contentious as anybody. Tuesday there was a hearing on Representative Blankenship's bill to fix the salary of the Charlotte city attorney. The county delegation was split on the matter (it usually is).

Commenting on the characteristic internecine warfare Thaddeus Adams, Charlotte attorney, said:

"The one thing that makes me certain there was a Mecklenburg Declaration back in the 1770's is that if there was any government at all there were many, many Mecklenburgers who were 'agit' it."

Mayor Pro Tem J. M. Wilkinson, of Charlotte, took a rather delicate, yet quite obvious, dig at Representative Blankenship during the Mecklenburg city attorney hearing:

"He's still young and has a lot to learn," said he.

advanced conditions, the ringworm may infest the bed of the nail and lift the nail from its base. Ringworm of the nails can be diagnosed by isolation of the responsible parasite. The condition may be treated with X-rays and a variety of ointments. Another fairly common cause of disease of the nails is psoriasis. The damage suffered by the nail closely approximates that seen in cases of ringworm. Disturbances in nutrition frequently reflect themselves in the nails by the appearance of depressions running across the nail and by scratch-like formations which run the length of the nail. The same pathologic changes in the nails may be witnessed when the nutrition of the person appears to be good, but when he is lacking in vitamins, those present in green vegetables, are thought to be principally responsible for these changes in nail structure. In many allergic skin conditions the nail and nail bed may become involved. The nail is also sometimes affected by nail polish or polish removers to which the individual is markedly sensitive. The nail may of course suffer from a variety of injuries, the most common being hemorrhage under the nail. The pain resulting from a blow on the nail which causes a hemorrhage to take place under it may be relieved by drilling through the nail, say with the point of a sharp pocket knife blade, so as to permit the extravasated blood to escape.

Four Teams Eliminated in First Round Of Play

By BET MOYE
The East Carolina Teachers College second annual invitational basketball tournament for high school teams of East Carolina got under way this morning in the Campus Building of the College. The tournament is under the direction of Athletic Director Boley Farley.

Four teams were eliminated in the opening round play this morning, two in the girls' division and two in the boys' division.

In the opening game between the Winterville and Jameville girls teams, Winterville eliminated Jameville by the score of 30 to 16. Winterville led throughout the entire game and at the half had an 18 to 7 lead. Miss Ethel Barbee led the winners with a total of 13 points, while Miss Smith led the losers with 10 points.

The closest game played during the morning was played between the boys' teams of Vanceboro and Bear Grass with Vanceboro nosing out by the close score of 21 to 20. Vanceboro had a 12 to 7 advantage at the half but the Bear Grass boys tripped the score at several periods of the game during the last half and with the score tied at 19-19, Joe Blow of Vanceboro shot a field goal to place his team in the winning column. E. Rawls with 10 points led the losers while Blow led the winners with 9 points.

The Plymouth girls had a hard time eliminating the Bear Grass girls, but the shooting of Miss Hopkins in the final minutes of play gave her team a 26 to 23 victory over the Martin county lassies. Plymouth led at the half 16 to 15 and during the entire first half and up until about five minutes of the last half the game was a nip and tuck affair. Miss Hopkins with 15 points led the Plymouth sextette, while Miss Rawls with 14 points led the Bear Grass sextette.

The Washington Pam-Pack boys team had little difficulty in eliminating the Wallace quint with a score of 28 to 15. Washington took an early lead which was never threatened by the Wallace boys. Washington led at the half 10 to 5. Phillips with 8 points led Washington and Jones of Wallace shot 7 of his teams points.

THE SPORTSMAN

By LARRY BAUER

The country west of the Mississippi did not become startlingly conspicuous until the memorable Battle of Washington in which WPA workers sought to dislodge the birds from trees and buildings by rattling cans and firing Roman candles.

After reading about it, and laughing at such goings-on, the citizens beyond the Big Muddy took a look around their own backyards and discovered what they thought were over-sized blackbirds were really starlings—unwelcome anywhere.

Introduced into America from Europe in the latter part of the 19th century, the birds thrived, spread over the east and as far south as Georgia. But until recently they were not recognized in the Plains states.

They have been reported in sizable numbers in the Midwest. During the past year they have increased in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas. During January, 1937, hundreds of thousands invaded the region around Stamford in west Texas.

The birds spread westward in pairs and small flocks at first. Two or three hatchlings of from three to six young each year rapidly boosted their numbers.

The starling destroys insects and grubs, but the bird also damages small fruit, berries and sprouting corn.

Bird lovers look upon the migrant with disfavor because he drives out the smaller songsters, such as house and hollow tree nesting birds. The sportsman, tired of fighting the crow, casts a wary eye upon the newcomer and hopes it will not become such a pest.

C. E. Sandborn, chairman of the Oklahoma wildlife conservation federation, gives this description of the starling:

The bird, at a distance is black in color, and in a closeup view it has an iridescent or green color during the breeding season. Later it appears nearly black. Its bill is long, pointed, yellowish. After molting, the new feathers are tipped white, giving the bird a speckled appearance. During winter the white tips wear off, leaving the breeding plumage. The young are dark olive brown until they molt—afterward they look like the adults. Starlings resemble "bob-tailed" blackbirds. Instead of hopping, they walk.

GIRLS DEFEAT BEAUFORT FOE

Final Contest of Season Won By Score of 18-16

The Greenville High School girls' basketball team, playing its last game of the season in the high school gymnasium, defeated their oldest rivals, Washington, by a score of 18 to 16.

Frances Clark was high for the Greenville lassies by piling up ten points. Mary Eakes made most of the rest of her team's score by tallying for six counts. Myra Blount bridged the gap by scoring two points. Marjorie Sugg and Betty Tyson also played a good defensive game. The forwards were entirely dependent upon our guards, who kept the ball in Greenville territory most of the time. The guards were Marie Simpson, Dorothy Merritt, and Madeline Woolard.

The Pamlicoans were led by Betty Bowers, who made 11 of her team's total points. The half-time score was 8-6 in favor of Washington.

Miss Evelyn Buchanan was the referee.

Burglar Ducked in Herring Brine Benton Harbor, Mich. (AP)—The police department here considered turning loose a pack of cats instead of bloodhounds recently when it found itself saddled with its "fishiest" case.

The fugitive was a clumsy burglar who fell into a big barrel of salted herring as he snarcked a grocery store. Brine splattered all over the store indicated that the intruder had received a thorough ducking.

The burglar escaped with a silver dollar as his sole loot, and detectives believed his unwanted fragrance would be an excellent clue.

SEVEN QUINTS ARE SELECTED

Three Other Teams Compete for Tourney Entrance

Raleigh, Feb. 23.—Basketball quints of seven schools are already assured of places in the Southern Conference basketball tournament to be held here March 4, 5, and 6 in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium. Three other teams will compete for the eighth place.

Teams sure to be on hand are Washington and Lee, North Carolina, Wake Forest, Duke, N. C. State, South Carolina, and Richmond.

Davidson, Maryland or V. M. I. will land the eighth place. Davidson, tenth in Conference play, is eighth in tournament play at present. Furman and Virginia rank above Davidson in the conference but are not to compete in the tourney. Furman only played seven conference games and eight must be played to be considered. Virginia has withdrawn from the Conference although games with Virginia count in the standings.

Davidson has completed its schedule and finished with five wins and eight losses. Maryland is next with four wins and eight defeats. Should the Old Liners defeat State on Wednesday night at Maryland they will be tied with Davidson.

V.M.I. is just below Maryland with four wins and nine defeats. The Cadets have games remaining with William and Mary, V.P.I., and Virginia, and most likely will win all three. If such should be the result, the Cadets will come to Raleigh as the eighth team.

The league leading Washington and Lee Generals enter the tourney as the favored team.

The White Phantoms of North Carolina have the next best record and if they are beaten Thursday night by Duke they still will be seeded No. 2. Carolina is defending champion.

Wake Forest is third and has finished its schedule. The Deacons, however, may be moved down a notch or two this week depending upon the outcome of the Duke-Carolina game, and N. C. State's games with William and Mary and Maryland. Duke is fourth in the standings and State fifth. The other two seeded teams will come from these three teams.

His subject Wednesday night will be "What Must the Jew Do For the Future of American Democracy?"

NATL. BISCUIT TEAM HALTED

Carolina Dairy Scores 1783-1776 Victory Over Leaders

The Carolina Dairy team last night halted the National Biscuit bowlers who had not lost a single game.

The margin of victory was small, however, the final score being 1783 to 1776, a difference of only seven pins.

The Carolina team bowled a consistent game to cap their victory over the league leaders. The individual scores ranged from 306 to 394, the high mark made by Clark. The second highest score of the match was Waldrop of the National Biscuit team, who scored 371.

The score card follows:

Carolina Dairy:

grounds caused a postponement of a ball game in Philadelphia. Byrd accepted an invitation to meet Denny Spute, former British open and present P.G.A. champion at the Llanerch country club where Denny was pro.

The course was far from its best condition due to the rain, and Byrd's borrowed outfit was not a duplicate of his own, but he did better than fair. He carded a 69—one over Shute's course record.

President Warner Paul Waner, the Pittsburgh outfielder who won the '36 National league batting crown, is not a bad golfer except for addressing the ball from the wrong side. Paul recently won the Miami Biltmore left-handers' golf championship for the second time running, and was elected southpaw president.

The one big reason why Babe Ruth is not pining away is that he has all the time he wants to play golf. The Bambino rates only a three handicap and, were it not for his erratic putter, could hold his own in any company.

Chemists, in particular, were unanimous in the assertion that the open formula law would not be practical, because they could not accurately determine the definite amount of various materials that might be claimed by the manufacturer, leaving the way open for unscrupulous manufacturers to deceive and defraud the farmers.

Major amendments to the fertilizer law, approved by the fertilizer conference and committee drafting the changes, include:

1. To make it mandatory for manufacturers to guarantee the acid forming or non-acid forming quality of their product.
 2. To work toward raising the minimum plant food content of fertilizer from 14 to 16 per cent, with the recommendation that the proposal becomes effective December 1, 1939.

3. To assess the several manufacturers of fertilizer a $5 registration fee, of five-year duration, for each brand of fertilizer sold, for the dual purpose of decreasing the number of brands now on the market and for revenue purposes.

4. To give to the manufacturer the privilege of guaranteeing water soluble magnesium in the case of tobacco fertilizer, and to guarantee the total magnesium in all fertilizers; and also to give the manufacturer the privilege of guaranteeing

Chemists, in particular, were unanimous in the assertion that the open formula law would not be practical, because they could not accurately determine the definite amount of various materials that might be claimed by the manufacturer, leaving the way open for unscrupulous manufacturers to deceive and defraud the farmers.

Major amendments to the fertilizer law, approved by the fertilizer conference and committee drafting the changes, include:

1. To make it mandatory for manufacturers to guarantee the acid forming or non-acid forming quality of their product.
 2. To work toward raising the minimum plant food content of fertilizer from 14 to 16 per cent, with the recommendation that the proposal becomes effective December 1, 1939.

JAKE KILRAIN Was a Boston Dude

BUT HE COULD PUNCH LIKE NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By "Silver Dollar" Brady
JAKE KILRAIN learned his manners in Boston. He had six tailors, and his "handle-bar" moustache was the pride of the Twentieth Ward. But his bare fists ruled the prize-ring. He could fight a grizzly and let the bear have first punch.

A champion whiskey, like Silver Dollar, has manners, too. It's gentle-actin'—but it lets you know it's there!

Silver Dollar Bourbon is distilled slowly and carefully from choice grains. Then it's aged for 18 months until it's extra smooth. It's a pleasure to drink straight or mixed up in fancy highballs.

Try Silver Dollar today, by the bottle or by the drink. You'll like it!
