NEW VIOLENCE FLARES UP ON STRIKE FRONT

Tension Heightened In Fast-Moving Industrial Conflict

SCORES HURT IN BITTER CLASHES

Strikers Announce Determination To Bar Chrysler Executives from Plants

(By Associated Press)
New outbreaks of violence heightened tension in the fast moving drama of industrial conflict today. Nearly a score of persons were injured in a clash between police and pickets at the California Packing Corporation plant at Alameda, Calif.

In Chicago more taxi cabs were stoned and non-striking drivers pummeled and beaten in a dispute that has crippled cab transportation.

At the Lancaster (Pa.) iron works, scene of a strike, a crowd pelted workers with eggs. Injunctive proceedings against Chrysler Motor Corporation strikers gave rise to fear of possible violence at Detroit.

The riot at Alameda, third disturbance there within a week, started when non-union workers tried to pass a line of 200 union warehousemen pickets who have tried to organize employees.

Police released tear gas bombs and firemen shot streams of water at the pickets. Clubs, fists and rocks were brought into play during the melee. Clouds of tear gas forced some nearby residents to evacuate their homes. Two policemen and a picket were seriously injured.

Circuit Judge Allison Campbell ordered Chrysler Motor strikers and union officials to show cause Saturday why an injunction should not be issued. The latter retaliated by announcing sit-down strikers would not permit Chrysler corporation executives to enter Chrysler plants.

About 55,000 employees were made idle by the Chrysler strike, which started after the corporation rejected the United Automobile Workers union demand to be sole bargaining agent for the company's 75,000 workers. A dispute at the Hudson Motor car company kept 10,000 idle at Detroit.

Washington Official Is Claimed By Death

Washington, N. C., Mar. 11.—(AP)—Ernest Paul Meredith, 65, superintendent of the municipal light and water service, died in a hospital here today of a heart attack.

The treasury estimates that two billion bottles of liquor have been sold in the United States since repeal.

'Woman In Red' Files Petition To Return Here

Chicago, Mar. 11.—(AP)—"The woman in red" who lured handit John Dillinger to his death, pleaded today from her exile in Rumania for re-entry into the United States.

Writing from a Balkan town, where she is known as Dona Anna Cumpnana, Mrs. Anna Sage, asked a Chicago attorney to take the necessary legal steps to expedite her return. The 45-year-old woman wrote she did not believe the United States government, which banished her 10 months ago, would oppose her petition for re-entry.

The attorney, who asked his name be withheld, told the Associated Press Mrs. Sage had also asked him to file reward claims totaling $5,000 against five states for her part in the capture of Dillinger.

She contended Melvin Purvis, formerly in charge of the Department of Justice Chicago's office, promised dismissal of deportation proceedings in return for her aid.

STRIKERS RIP CLOTHES FROM WOMAN WORKER

Horror was written on the face of the struggling victim (center) and amusement and determination were registered by the strikers as the cameraman caught them ripping clothing from a worker in the Tri-States Dress Manufacturing company at Memphis, Tenn. ## PLANT RECORD TOBACCO CROP

Big Burley Growth Predicted by Federal Department

Washington, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Agriculture department officials said today Burley tobacco growers are busy planting a near record acreage with no prospect of state compact or new federal legislation to control production this year.

Tentative estimates placed the 1937 planting at 500,000 acres, compared with 308,000 in 1936 and a five-year average, 1928-1932, of 426,600.

The only control in sight, officials said, is the soil conservation program. They predicted congress would not try to extend federal control at this session and tobacco growing states have failed to adopt compacts as authorized in federal legislation adopted last year.

Preliminary figures showed Burley prices in 1936 set a new record. The average will be around 36 cents a pound, or double the 1928-1932 average of 17.8 and nearly three cents above the previous high record of 33.2 in 1919.

These preliminary figures indicate Burley growers received about $88,800,000 for their 1936 crop.

Local Man Charged With Driving Drunk

Roy Smith, local white man, is charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor following a wreck shortly after 7 o'clock last night on the Falkland highway, five miles from Greenville.

According to Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the wreck, Smith's car struck one driven by Ernest Brown, also of Greenville.

Both Brown and Smith suffered slight cuts just above the eyes, but the injuries were not considered serious.

The patrolman said Brown's car was badly damaged, but that Smith's was torn up much worse.

Ticket Sale Tremendous For Second Victory Fete

Raleigh, Mar. 11.—A tremendous advance ticket sale indicates that attendance at the "Correct the Record" Victory Dinner Friday night will tax the capacity of Raleigh's Municipal Auditorium, despite last minute effort of "Bailey" Democrats to spread dissent by a whispering campaign against Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who will be the speaker.

All reports indicate that the tickets are being grabbed faster than hot cakes, with Democrats all over the state anxious to show their loyalty to President Roosevelt and their resentment of the covert attacks made on the President by Maryland's "Bad" Tydings.

When the diners take their seats at 6 o'clock Friday evening there will probably not be a single one left vacant.

A definite effort by supporters of U. S. Senator Josiah W. Bailey, who is violently opposing the President's

Convict Chinese of Assault Count

White Plains, N. Y., Mar. 11.—(AP)—Chang Foo Lee, blond cigar-smoking house boy, was convicted of second degree assault today by a jury in Westchester county court.

He was charged with poisoning two relatives of his aged employer, Mrs. Ida Churchill. Judge Gerald Nolan set no date for sentence. Chang faces an intermediate sentence of two and one-half to five years on each of two counts. One each involving the alleged poisoning of Mr. and Mrs. George Reeves, former residents of Mooreville, Ind.

The case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon and the jury locked up for the night at midnight, resuming its deliberations this morning.

FAIR PRACTICE BILL FAVORED

Tobacco Warehousemen Endorse Proposal to Set Up Code

The East Carolina Tobacco Warehouse association, at a meeting in Farmville last night, went on record endorsing the bill pending in the legislature to reestablish fair trade practices for the industry which were in effect under the old invalidated NRA.

Only one market failed to endorse the proposal and action by this one was withheld only to ascertain the attitude of the warehousemen in the town involved. No opposition to the proposal was in evidence at the meeting, called by President B. B. Sugg of Greenville.

Mr. Sugg described the meeting as "very representative" of the tobacco warehouse industry, saying that practically all markets in Eastern Carolina were represented, as well as a number in the Middle belt.

ON WATCH FOR BANK ROBBERS

Highways Scoured in Catawba for Escaped Convicts

Hickory, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Highways throughout Catawba and surrounding counties were being watched by officers today in an effort to locate escaped trio of convicts believed to have robbed the Bank of Montgomery at Troy Wednesday morning.

First information that the bandit trio was believed headed in this direction came in a telephone call from Oscar Pitts, acting director of state's prison, who got in touch with O. D. Barnes of Catawba county.

Pitts indicated the three which he said reportedly included Bill Payne, Robert S. Smith and Jack Borden, alias J. W. Turner, were sighted in the vicinity of Mooresville following which local county officers took up the trail of the desperadoes who had headed west.

In as much as Borden is said to be a native of N. C. it was suspected the trio might try to get back to McDowell county to seek a hide-out.

Large Delegation Of Pitt Citizens To Attend Dinner

Residents of County to Take Part in Affair Scheduled Tomorrow Night to Correct the Record

An estimated 200 Pitt county citizens are planning to attend the second "victory" dinner to be held in Raleigh tomorrow night, to honor President Roosevelt and "correct the record."

The county Farm Bureau has purchased 100 tickets for the affair and anyone wishing to secure one may do so by calling at the county agent's office.

Farm Bureau officials declare farmers are behind President Roosevelt's program and are urging all farmers who possibly can to attend the dinner, thereby showing their support.

Mayor M. K. Blount has announced a list of names of prominent Pitt county citizens who are serving as a committee to arouse interest in the fete and see to it that a large delegation from this county attends.

Reports from Raleigh describe the advance ticket sale as "tremendous," indicating that citizens from all parts of the state are planning to attend.

The dinner will be held at the municipal auditorium at 6 o'clock. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, considered one of the New Deal's staunchest supporters, will deliver the address.

The second dinner is being held to "correct the record" of the first affair held a week ago tonight, at which time Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland attacked the President's policies.

Dr. William D. Lee, soil conservation specialist at North Carolina State college, says American lives and property never will be free from the danger of floods until the main water sheds are adequately protected by forests and close-growing crops.

STATE SOLONS HOLD SESSION ON ALBEMARLE

Holiday Mood in Evidence as Assembly Meets in Edenton

HOEY ADDRESSES ONE-DAY SESSION

Governor Refers to Native Sons Who Made both State and National History

Edenton, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Governor Hoey and the North Carolina legislature paid tribute here today to the history and tradition of old Edenton.

The city and surrounding country made the occasion a holiday.

The Governor and legislators, on a special train which brought 334 persons arrived here at noon and regular legislative sessions were held.

A number of minor local bills were passed so citizens could observe the way the assembly works, then Mayor E. W. Spires by special invitation welcomed the legislators and visitors.

Governor Hoey responded. The proceedings were broadcast by radio.

The house and senate first met separately in the court house built in 1767 and after a joint session, the representatives were served a buffet lunch.

About 1,000 persons in holiday spirit met the special train which brought the legislators here.

Edenton, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Gov. Hoey and members of North Carolina's General Assembly came here by special train from Raleigh today and held a legislative session in one of the state's first capitals.

In holiday mood, the lawmakers met at the Chowan county court house, heard addresses by Governor Hoey, Mayor E. W. Spires of Edenton and other officials, ate oysters and barbecued ham and wandered about this colonial city on an Albatross round looking at historic landmarks.

The general assembly of North Carolina is meeting on historic ground today. Governor Hoey told the legislators, "In this beautiful city of Edenton we return to pay homage to the former capital of our state and to do honor to the memory of the illustrious men and women who made history in America and who fashioned and moulded our civilization in its early stages on the banks of beautiful Edenton bay."

A large number of women from several Eastern Carolina counties attended the eleventh district meeting here yesterday of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, which was held in the Memorial Baptist church.

The sessions were presided over by Mrs. W. B. Herring of Greenville, district director, and Mrs. E. W. Harvey, also of Greenville, served as secretary.

Chapters making up this district are from Farmville, Greenville, Middlesex, Spring Hope, Wilson, Rocky Mount and Tarboro.

The honor guests present for the meeting were Mrs. J. H. Anderson, Division Pres., Mrs. J. W. Parker, Radio chairman, Mrs. Claudius McGowan, Recorder of Crosses; Mrs. J. P. Hayden, director of Children of Confederacy District Chapters, High Point.

Mrs. Anderson made an interesting talk on the work of the U. D. C. She is well informed along all lines of this work and is vitally interested in every department. She has given to the chapters the motto: "Know the U. D. C." and this is to be stressed this year.

In her talk Mrs. Anderson spoke of the work as in regard to Education, Historical, Benevolent and Social. Under each cause she gave suggestions toward carrying on the program of U. D. C.

Mrs. J. P. Hayden, C. of C. District; Mrs. J. W. Parker, Radio chairman; Mrs. Claudius McGowan, Recorder of Crosses, each made short talks concerning the work of their department.

After Memorial Hour, conducted by Mrs. Ed Woodard of Wilson, the daughters adjourned for lunch at the Parish House.

'SAVE CONSTITUTION FROM COURT'

"We must take action to save the Constitution from the (Supreme) Court and the Court from itself," declared President Roosevelt in the second of his "fireside chats" to the American people in a nation-wide radio hook-up. He is shown calling for swift enactment of his court re-organization plan. The high tribunal, he charged, has "improperly set itself up" as a "super legislature." (Associated Press Photo)

PUSH EFFORTS FREE PRISONER

Thomas Mooney May Be Called Before Calif. Senate

Sacramento, Calif., Mar. 11.—(AP)—Thomas Mooney may be called before the California state senate when it considers the assembly's overwhelmingly approved pardon resolution, some legislators said today.

Assemblyman Paul Richie of San Diego, who handled the resolution in the lower house, said no effort would be made to obtain immediate non-identification by the senate.

Passed a 45 to 23 assembly vote, the resolution would exonerate Mooney of the 1916 San Francisco preparation day bombing.

Assemblyman Thomas Maloney of San Francisco said he ran to the scene of the bombing, which killed 38 persons and injured 49 others during a preparation day parade. "Do you think," he declared "if I saw the body that day I would have looked like a hellfish if I believed them (Mooney and William Ballou) said I would be going for their release?"

State Safety Department Now Considered Unlikely

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Mar. 11.—The bills to create a new highway safety department, under which the state highway patrol, the drivers' license division and a new bureau of identification would be grouped and administered by a Commissioner of Highway Safety appointed by the Governor, have been hanging up on a snag for about two weeks now, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

This snag seems to be a growing spirit of opposition in the house to the creation of any new commissions or to any new appointive jobs to be filled by the Governor. This spirit is being helped along both by the Department of Revenue, which does not want to lose control of the highway patrol and the drivers' license division, also by the State Highway and Public Works Commission, which would like to have the highway patrol, at least, transferred back under its protective wing.

Accordingly, it is now expected that when the bills are finally reported in by the committee on roads, that they will be amended merely to transfer the active direction of the highway patrol, the drivers' license division and the proposed new bureau of identification to the Governor's office—but still with a provision that the Governor may appoint some one to act for him in supervising the direction of these agencies. An effort may be made to push the bills through as they are now written and calling for the creation of a new Highway Safety Division. But this is not regarded as likely.

"I seriously doubt if there will be any chance of getting the bills through the house at all unless the provisions for creating a new Highway Safety Commission are (Continued on page seven)

REBELS CLAIM LARGE SECTOR

100,000 Square Miles Reported to Have Been Captured

(By Associated Press)

Three insurgent columns were reported today to have captured more than 100,000 square miles of territory in the Guadalupe sector and to have advanced within sight of the provincial capital 32 miles northeast of Madrid.

An entire battalion of "red lion" government defenders dispatched to insurgent headquarters at Sorja, said, was wiped out and government troops were in disorder retreat toward Guadalupe and Madrid.

Government communiques acknowledged their army had fallen back under the insurgent's powerful three-day attack, but asserted strategic withdrawals had consolidated their defenses in strong positions.

The insurgents claimed control of seven villages along the Madrid-Zaragoza highway and reported one column had taken an important highway junction about six miles south on the main road and only 20 miles southeast of Guadalupe.

Forty-one Italian war prisoners, reportedly captured on the Guadalupe front by two divisions were displayed at military headquarters at Madrid.

Salerni insurgent headquarters announced officially the freighter Mar Cantabrico, heavily laden with munitions from America for the Spanish government had been sunk. The freighter and her cargo previously had been reported taken to Ferrol, Spain.

The English sparrow was introduced into the United States in 1850, when eight pairs were brought to Brooklyn, N. Y., and liberated the following spring.

SAYS CONGRESS HAS POWER TO REDUCE COURT

Young Attorney In Justice Department Makes Statement

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFF TO GEORGIA

New York Representative Tells Committee Fascist Spies are in America.

Washington, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Congressman heard from a youthful-appearing lawyer in the Justice Department today that they have the power to reduce the Supreme court to "a mere phantom court" under the Constitution.

Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson, advocating the President's court reorganization plan before the Senate Judiciary committee, said this power "was not an accident," was included in the Constitution "to enable Congress to check judicial abuses and usurpations, if the same should occur."

Jackson said there were numerous difficulties in the way of a constitutional amendment to "correct" court decisions, and a tortured construction of the Constitution may torture an amendment.

"You cannot extend a state of mind and mental attitude of hostility to exercise of governmental power and of indifference to the demands which democracy, attempting to survive industrialism, makes upon its government."

Attorney General Cummings appeared before the committee yesterday as first witness for the President's proposal.

The Chief Executive, who recently has made two addresses in behalf of his plan, packed his bags today for a Southern vacation. He was scheduled to leave late in the afternoon for Warm Springs, Georgia.

Representative Dickstein (D-N.Y.), appearing before the House rules committee, said he could name 100 foreign spies in America trying to establish a "Fascist government."

House leaders forecast speedy passage today of the revised Guffey-Vinson bill designed to stabilize the soft coal industry, while the Senate took up routine legislation.

Seeks Put Halt To Attacks On United States

Washington, Mar. 11.—(AP)—Secretary Hull today instructed Ambassador William Dodd at Berlin to make vigorous representations to the German foreign office regarding recent articles appearing in the German press about the United States.

The Secretary of State recently apologized formally to the German embassy here for remarks made by Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York, in which LaGuardia referred to Chancellor Hitler as a "Brown-shirted fanatic."

LaGuardia's statements, made before the women's section of the American Jewish congress, evoked a deluge of criticism from the German press in which LaGuardia was not only attacked, but American institutions and Jewish women also were flayed.

This press campaign was called to Secretary Hull's attention by Mrs. Stephen White, wife of the noted Jewish rabbi and chairman of the women's section of the American Jewish congress.

Book Display at College

A most interesting exhibit of rare old and beautiful new books is on display in the English clubroom at East Carolina Teachers College. Among the books, which range in publication dates from 1800 to the present, are many rare books and some first editions and include dramas, fiction, anthologies, composition books and old textbooks in history, spelling, English and arithmetic.

One of the first editions, while of late date, 1911, is valuable because there was a small first edition and it is illustrated beautifully. This is Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," illustrated by Rackham. There are other first editions, some of them quite old. Most of the new books are editions beautifully illustrated, the illustrations of which are as famous as the authors.

Among the old books are a great many with fine old sheepskin bindings, and upon looking into them one finds that the very print is different. The letter's look peculiar to this generation as it is shaped somewhat like the letter f. Old books with richly decorated bindings and quaint books, out of date both in binding and in content, are attracting attention. Many of these are valuable, not only because they are out of print and are rare, but because they were very popular in their day and throw light on the taste of the period.

Copies of letters in long-hand written by famous men form one of the most interesting sections of the exhibit. Some of these are in portfolio volumes and some are separate. Among them are letters from Thomas B. Macaulay, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Kray, John Dryden, Queen Elizabeth, Edmund Spencer, Henry IV of France, and Richard Cobden.

Among the magazines which form one feature of the exhibit, is the "Book Collector's Journal," which gives information as to the rate book market, the books and editions in demand, names of dealers, notices of sales of old books, and other material valuable to the collector.

The exhibit is a collection of books, manuscripts, magazines and letters owned by various individuals in the College faculty and in the town, who most generously let the English club have the loan of them for a week. Copies of typed notes on old rare books are given to the visitors by the guides. Dr. Lucile Turner, of the English department, and Miss Frances Barnes, president of the English club, are responsible for the exhibit.

Those who are interested are invited to inspect the exhibit, which will be in Room 208 in the west end of the Austin building, second floor, from 10 to 12 every morning and from 3:30 to 5:00 every afternoon through March 17.

Little Jack Little To Play Here Easter

Radio's most versatile star, Little Jack Little, and his celebrated broadcasting orchestra, will be featured at an Easter dance Monday night, March 29, at Gorman's warehouse. The internationally famous conductor-composer-pianist-singer brings his bandmen to Greenville after an extensive series of seasonally successful engagements at leading hotels and theatres in the East and Middle West.

The following girls were named today as sponsors for the big Easter dance: Miss Louise Tadlock, Miss Jean Brown, Miss Julia Coryell, Miss Judith Dupree of Miami, Fla., Miss Ruth Horne, Miss Ramona Staples, Miss Carolyn Hamric, Miss Mary Rachel Teel, Miss Rosemond VanDyke, Miss Catherine Rallegde, Miss Frances Rock, Miss Helen McClintic, Miss Prittie Whitehurst, Miss Florence Mow, and Mrs. Marvin Bug, Mrs. Hill Whedbee and Mrs. Lee Foiger.

At the Morrison Hotel in Chicago, where the band played an engagement early this year, the manager reported the biggest business since the closing of the World's Fair. Similarly enthusiastic reports followed the appearance of Little Jack Little and his orchestra at the Lowry Hotel in St. Paul, Minn.

Prior to his opening at the Morrison Hotel in January, the maestro was headlined at some of the country's leading theatres, including the Erie, Philadelphia; the Metropolitan, Boston; the Hippodrome, Baltimore; the Michigan Theatre, Detroit; and the Imperial Theatre in Toronto. The orchestra also has completed successful engagements

Pierce Grange Meet Declared Be Success

An open meeting of the Pierce Grange was held Wednesday night, at which time a number of the most prominent men and women of the community were present.

The program was in charge of County Deputy Mark H. Smith. After singing "Bless Be The Tie That Binds" and prayer, short talks were made by the following: Mr. Peterson, J. C. Whitehurst and C. L. Brown.

The County Deputy made an interesting talk, emphasizing some of the great principles of the Grange and introduced special State Deputy O. A. Keller of Jonesboro, who made a splendid talk, stressing the need of organization among the farmers. He said the farmers must stand together or fall singly.

The Grange is the oldest farm organization in the nation. It has more than twice the paid up membership of any other farm organization.

Membership applications were received from the following: S. F. Peterson, Mrs. H. L. Wooten, P. R. Taylor, R. W. Smith, P. L. Little and Elnay Summerell.

A spirit of aggressiveness and cooperation was displayed throughout the meeting.

The next meeting will be held March 18th at 7:30 p. m.

Talks To Parents

By Brooks Peters Church

Leisurely Meal
Supper, which should be a merry, leisurely meal, is in many houses merely a hurried stoking and then a rush to get the table cleared and the dishes washed.

It is generally the one meal of the day at which the whole family gathers, and when the father and children have a chance to talk together and become acquainted. But the mother, anxious to get through with her work, cannot relax and join in the conversation.

As soon as the meal is over, she begins to chivy one family away from the table and start them washing and drying dishes or breaks into the most absorbing discussion by announcing that it is time to begin homework.

Half the time the dishes and home-work could wait a little while without hurting anybody. What if the mother's work is delayed a few minutes? She, too, can rest, and probably will digest her dinner better for so doing.

Women have for so long lived by the adage "A woman's work is never done" that they have come to pity themselves quite unnecessarily. True, they have to work for a

DR. LEIBY GETS CORNELL POST

Kicked Out of State Job, Gets Much Better Position

Raleigh, March 11.—Dr. R. W. Leiby, former State Entomologist with the State Department of Agriculture and one of the first kicked out by W. Kerr Scott, the new Commissioner of Agriculture, was really kicked upstairs into a better job, it was learned here today.

For Dr. Leiby has just received notice of his appointment as Associate Professor of Entomology in Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Dr. Leiby is a graduate of Cornell and came here 22 years ago as assistant entomologist, becoming state entomologist in 1925. He also received his Ph.D. from Cornell. It is understood that the salary of Dr. Leiby at Cornell is at least $1,000 a year more than he received from the Department of Agriculture.

It is understood that Commissioner Scott already regrets having let Dr. Leiby go and that he is having difficulty in the division which he formerly headed. Reports are that one of Dr. Leiby's assistants is having to do most of the work of the division, due to the fact that the new head of the division is not familiar with the work.

Dr. Leiby is regarded as one of the best trained and most experienced entomologists in the south. He has been chairman of the Cotton State Association of Entomologists and chairman of the Southern Plant Board. He is nationally known for his work with the plant board, having been a member of the board and its secretary for the past eight years. While state entomologist here he showed an unusual ability to popularize the subject of insects in the state and greatly assisted the farmers, nurserymen, fruit growers, bulb growers and truck growers in combating harmful insects. He was also charged with the enforcement of insect quarantine laws against the introduction of insect pests into the state. He helped to organize the N. C. Nurserymen's Association, was its secretary for years and was elected an honorary member when he resigned from the association.

Dr. Leiby is expected to leave here early next week for Cornell, where he will immediately take up his duties, which will include both extension and research work.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Dr. Iago Goldston

Sterilizing The Blood
One of the earliest hopes of modern scientific medicine centered about the discovery of some chemical compound which, when introduced into the blood stream, would be capable of destroying the germs that have gained entrance into it.

To this quest, Paul Ehrlich devoted all of his life. Out of his labors came the arsenic containing compound today effectively used in the treatment of syphilis. But his original quest was not attained.

A number of drugs are used effectively to destroy certain parasites which in certain diseases gain entrance to the blood stream. The best known of these drugs is quinine used in treating malaria. But such drugs are few and are chiefly specific against parasites not of a bacterial nature.

Recently several compounds have been artificially produced which have proved effective in destroying streptococcal germs.

A year or so ago it was reported that a drug known as protosil, originally produced in Germany and later further developed in England and France, proved effective in destroying streptococcal germs in the blood stream. Since then this drug and a simpler compound known as sulphonomide have been further experimented with. The results continue to be encouraging. In a series of 26 cases of germ infection following childbirth, 6 of which suffered from septicemia, that is, actually had the germ within their blood stream, the recovery of every case was effected, the results being credited largely to protosil.

The Lancet commented on this editorially: "In any case the fact remains that the curative action of protosil and sulphonomide is now explained as a direct bactericidal one, and at a time when successive disappointments with a score of antiseptics had led most people to conclude that the disinfection of the blood stream in septicemia is by nature a complete impossibility, we can now rejoice that this result has been unmistakably secured."

The use of protosil and of sulphonomide may be extended to other forms of streptococcal infection, such as streptococcal tonsillitis and scarlet fever. Again, the drug, which is not toxic, may be used prophylactically, that is, in anticipation of infection. This would be particularly valuable when applied to women about to give birth.

Assembly Dawdles As Bills Pile Up In Both Branches

Talk of Sine Die Adjournment on March 18 Reported by Many Legislators as Only a Joke

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Mar. 11.—With a pleasure junket to Edenton on the menu for today, likely "hangovers" hanging over tomorrow, the Saturday to Monday mark-time period immediately following it seems assured that there will be no real business transacted by the General Assembly before Tuesday of next week.

All of which makes any talk of sine die adjournment on March 18 more a joke than anything else.

While the Senate has so far been able to keep its calendar pretty well cleared, the House has indulged in a fit of fretfulness that has caused it to dawdle away valuable time in a series of useless wrangles over even the simplest measures.

On top of that it seems that every member of the lower body has sent forward a whole daskful of new bills. It really looks as though some of the "boys" have been holding out all session just for the fun of seeing how congested they can make the calendar.

At the beginning of this week there were approximately one hundred bills to be disposed of, and the number has been mounting daily ever since. Wednesday's last-moment avalanche brought the total to approximately two hundred. At its morning session the House managed to get through the local calendar of some two score bills or thereabout and to enact just two public measures. Meanwhile 128 new bills were hitting the hopper, thereby causing the reading clerk to yell lustily for relief.

The fast straw will come if the House—as it is not at all unlikely to do—lifts the ban supposed to have been imposed on the introduction of bills Wednesday.

If it does—well, they won't get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas.

Legislative Chaff and Chatter

Raleigh, Mar. 11.—D. date on the "Pit Crew" bill, which was killed by the House, brought the nearest approach to a personal wrangle on the floor that has been seen this session.

"Sit down," snapped Mr. Johnston. "I'll not sit down," roared the hoarse-toned Mr. Abernathy.

Things looked interesting until Speaker Gregg Cherry admonished the "gentlemen" to "be in order."

During the same discussion Representative Lucy McBryde, Cumberland, was holding forth at great length, so extended that colors quit listening and began to buzz very audibly.

Rapping for order, the Speaker declared, with what many took to be more than a modicum of sarcasm:

"The gentleman is making a great speech on an important question. You must hear him, whether you understand him or not."

Forty-five bills disposed of, one hundred thirty introduced. That was the record of Tuesday in the House. Yet they still think they'll get through by March 18—some of them.

The House Tuesday night killed a bill by Representative Finch of Buncombe regulating the practice of engineering. It was a very innocuous measure, but nobody could find out what it was all about and so engineers stuck a knife in it. It's a cinch bet that now there had even a remote idea what they were voting on. No wonder many have lost faith in the process of Democracy.

The Senate enjoyed its biggest laugh of the session Wednesday when Lieutenant Governor Wilkins I. Horton intoned:

"The chair is very happy to extend the courtesies of the floor to Mrs. Horton," and then added in a low, formal, tone:

"The chair will state that it couldn't do anything else if it wanted to."

Mrs. E. L. McKee, Jackson's lady Senator, had cried the presiding officer's wife and had asked that the courtesies be extended.

House Bill Number One Thousand was introduced by Troy Barnes, Wilson's representative. It had to do with salaries of the Wilson court clerk and sheriff.

"As the door to the church is about to be closed I, too, wish to come to the mourner's bench," said Senator Gold as he bent forward a full Wednesday morning as the deadline against introductions drew near.

Representative Dave Dellinger, of Gaston, has introduced a bill to "define fresh eggs."

Ordinarily the nose knows all about that, but the Cherryville school's measure has to do with the marketing of storage eggs and says just which eggs shall be classed as "fresh" and which shall not come in that category.

Many legislators are still afflicted with what Speaker Cherry called the "go overs," despite the approach of one die quitting time. These solons seem to have a constitutional aversion to action upon anything. They always want it to "go over until tomorrow." Several have fully qualified as members of a "Manana" club.

The joint resolution endorsing the President's court proposals has struck a serious snag in the form of precedent established early in the current Assembly session; but advocates of the measure are still confident they will get the bill out of committee and acted upon. In this event they are absolutely confident the resolution will be passed.

In the opening days of the session the House voted down as fast

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER.

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfield goes back to her two-century-old farmhouse and orchard in Connecticut after five years of work and play in New York. Quiet, practical George Cleveland, a young fruit experimenter who owns the nearby Seymour house, and Uncle Henry, an old family friend, help her clean and make the fine old antiques down from the attic. A few days later she is entertaining George's Park avenue mother at tea when Denny, Eve's boy, six fince, suddenly arrives from the city. Eve had been hoping he would.

Chapter 13

Denny's Faux Pas

DENNY stopped short on seeing the others.

"Why, Mrs. Cleveland?" Denny was at his most charming. Eve thought fondly, as he set down his burdens and came, with a side smile to Eve, courtously toward the older woman.

"And George? Why, it's the gathering of the clans. How did you two manage to stray so far from Park avenue—drive out?"

As they answered him he sat down easily, and reached for a cake.

"I'm staying here with you, Eve. I brought my suitcase and a hat. I'm sure you didn't know was in the to a complete sentence. George in the background might have been a well-groomed statue. As for Denny, given time by Uncle Henry's long speech, his flush faded, said wistfully:

"Thanks a lot, sir. As a matter of fact I was going to trespass on the well-known hospitality. And another of us is bound to turn up this evening too, Ellen Walton. We're rather awful drop-ins—in, Mrs. Cleveland."

He turned and smiled impudently, charmingly at the lady, and she slowly preened back to approval, began to talk rather fast about antiques and the beauties of Connecticut scenery. She did not persist in her inquiry. Presently Denny was talking too, but pleasantly, flatteringly, airily, till the lady was herself again. Apparently Evelina's gay phrase about marrying Denny was simply a bad joke so far as everyone else was concerned. Eve sat mechanically pouring and drinking tea, there by the leaving fire, with her guests about her. She felt sick and numb.

'It's The Real Life'

GEORGE was talking to her when she became conscious of what anyone said. The others were hot on the trail of possible antiques. Uncle Henry, naturally, knew a lot about which people had them.

George was leaning easily by the fireplace, pipe between his fingers. She must have asked some question, for he was saying: "That's the trouble. I like this life too much. My people can't understand it."

Denny sat down easily and reached for a cake. "I'm staying the weekend with you, Eve."

depths of the chiffonier. I'm storing for you."

"This your young man?" Uncle Henry asked in a voice he supposed was low as Mrs. Cleveland sat back, more horrified than she had been when talking of modern morals of bad servants.

"Staying over the weekend alone in this house with Miss Mannersfield, Mr. Carter?" she said. "Surely you are joking. I didn't even know you two were friends."

Denny was apparently having one of his spells of not knowing what to say first. Eve interposed. She knew country neighborhoods and Mrs. Cleveland's sort. There was just one thing to say. Denny had wanted her to tell the people out here, anyway.

"Oh, we know each other so well that we may even go so far as getting married one of these days," she said lightly, proudly. She expected to see George's mother beam conventionally; instead, she stiffened and darkened still more.

"Mr. Carter gave me to understand it was quite another lady he was going to marry," she said; and waited for the reply to her bombshell.

Still amused, Eve glanced across at Denny. He did not speak. He did not even move or smile.

Uncle Henry Saves The Day

IT WAS Uncle Henry's slow voice that broke the silence. He stood there, stooped and grizzled and easy, in his sweater and overalls, and said:

"Well, I agree with you that Evelina shouldn't be staying here alone, but you were sort of jumping to conclusions, Mrs. Cleveland. I'm staying with her myself till one of her girl friends comes out. But I'm not sure whether Denny here is planning on staying with us or was just joshing. He's welcome—there's lots of room, and the Mannersfields always liked company. How about it son?"

Uncle Henry's words were as always unburied. Uncle Henry's face was about as expressive as it ever was, which is saying nothing at all. But under the impact behind his words Mrs. Cleveland, the type which will bully men or be bullied by them, was cowed and began twittering various things none of which amounted as they could be presented any and all resolutions calling upon Congress to do anything. At that time members took the position it is none of their business to meddle in Congressional affairs.

Too, the House failed, in committee, a resolution offered by Republican Representative Baly, of Madison, a proposal to endorse the court stand of U. S. Senator J. W. Bailey.

It probably would apply to only a very few persons, but most observers are endorsing the bill introduced by Senator W. G. Clark, of Edgecombe, providing that the Secretary of State must furnish, free of charge, to blind lawyers unable to pay for them North Carolina reports from Volume 67 to the present.

Both House and Senate are being asked to pass laws encouraging growth of grapes for wine making purposes in North Carolina. Representa-tative Murphy, Rowan, has introduced a bill for this purpose in the House, while Senator T. W. M. Long, Halifax, has put in a similar measure in the upper branch.

Last minute bills have been introduced relative to division of liquor profits in Guilford, Alamance, Richmond, Davidson, Columbus, Franklin and New Hanover counties.

WASHINGTON—It took one of the strangest of dinners to bring into the open one of the least discussed but most widely held concepts: That when the Philippines are free they nevertheless will remain a de facto protectorate—a sort of American Belgium.

The dinner was the meeting of the National Association of the Carabao (water buffalo), composed of veterans of the Philippine occupation and insurrection. What left it special significance was the presence there of President Manuel Quezon of the Filipino Republic.

Pittman Replies

That pint-size diplomat and politician spoke straight from the shoulder to 200 or more men, many of them now colonels and generals who once had fought him, and they liked him more for it than they ever like him or his race before. In English exact but staccato, he told them that even after full Philippine independence is obtained, there will be "bonds of friendship" stronger even than existing ties. Simply he was stating that Philippine independence wouldn't mean anything without United States guardianship.

Senator Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, although not an official spokesman of the government, made therewith. He coughed it in diplomatic language, at which this minor-lawyer-politician has become proficient. But in effect he said: "All right, little fellow. If you see yourselves getting in trouble give us a word and we'll see what can be done about it."

Incidentally another unusual relationship—that between labor activities in the field and governmental activities here—often escapes the casual eye. Note this:

When last spring there was big talk of labor trouble in the coal fields, administration leaders pushed the revised Guffey bill.

When the General Motors strike was on, the senate labor spy investigation was whipped up to new activity and turned on General Motors Corporation itself.

While John L. Lewis has been talking steel organization, the National Labor Relations Board has been hearing testimony on alleged infractions of the Wagner labor act by Carnegie Steel.

When Lewis turned his attention to negotiating a new coal wage agreement, the Carnegie hearing suspended two weeks and house committees began consideration of the revised Guffey coal bill.

Before Lewis again turns his attention to organizing steel, Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor, will publish a study on company unions.

It is not all coincidence.

Washington—The President is getting sensitive about this "dictator" business.

About two years back, near the close of a session, President Roosevelt let congress know that he wanted certain measures passed before the windup. Immediately the list was called the "must" legislation. The term has been attached since to nearly every piece of legislation the White House has advocated.

Evidently determined to avoid even the appearance of dictating, President Roosevelt asked reporters at a recent press conference to stop using the term "must" and substitute the term "ought".

Another phase of the President's relations with the press came up at the same conference. "The New York Times" recently published a story by Arthur Krock, its Washington bureau chief, in which the President was quoted as telling friends:

"When I retire to private life on January 20, 1941, I do not want to leave the country in the condition Buchanan left it to Lillian. If I cannot, in the brief time given to me to attack its deep and disturbing problems, solve these problems, I hope at least to have moved them well on the way to solution by my successor. It is absolutely essential that the solving process begin at once.

Then followed a discussion of the President's political philosophy.

It was a scoop that left White House correspondents wondering whether the President was to play favorites henceforth.

At the next press conference, J. Fred Essary, of "The Baltimore Sun," began a recital of the case but was interrupted by the President with a smiling plea of "Now Fred—" Essary insisted on asking if such a press policy might continue.

The President apologized handsomely, asking however, that the terms of the apology be "off the record."

Crises It struck us as amusing when Sir Wilmot Lewis, "London Times" correspondent, remarked across a table that he had to be getting on home as next day he had to write a lengthy piece on the United States constitutional crisis. Only a few weeks ago American correspondents in London were writing long dispatches on a British constitutional crisis—arising under far different circumstances.

Mighty Mules Hitched to a dynamometer (a strength testing machine) these powerful mules record their strength for the photographer.

HERE is a famous pair of mules—mighty creatures with the pulling strength of a pair of four-legged giants. At a recent university test, they threatened the world's pulling record.

What makes these mules unusual? Mother Nature gave them something—her own natural balance of many elements; strength, staying power, the willingness to work. So in actual value, these sturdy mules stand out from ordinary mules—there's just no comparison.

And Nature gave a natural balance to Natural Chilean Nitrate, 100—a natural balance of many elements that combine to make this nitrogen fertilizer a reliable food for your crops.

Natural Chilean is known for its quick-acting nitrogen, of course. But nitrogen is only one of its vital elements. Because of its natural origin, Chilean Soda also contains, as impurities, such elements as iodine, boron, magnesium, calcium and some 28 others. And always remember that these vital elements are present in Chilean Soda in Mother Nature's own wise balance and blend.

For better crops... Natural Chilean Nitrate.

Noted Metropolitan Opera Star finds Luckies easy on her precious throat—

Marjorie Lawrence says:

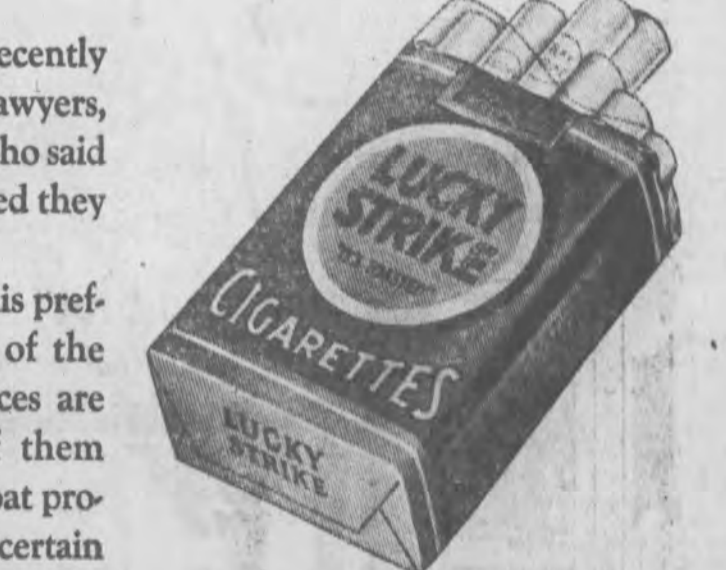

"You must have a big voice to sing Wagner. My favorite role of 'Brunnhilde' in Wagner's 'Götterdämmerung' is a very exacting one. Yet—when I am back in my dressing room after I have finished singing, there is nothing I enjoy more than lighting up a Lucky. It is a light smoke—so gentle—so smooth—that it does not irritate my throat in the least. I agree with the others at the Metropolitan that a light smoke is a wise choice."

BRILLIANT SOPRANO OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Lawrence verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

Miner's Son Bends Steel C. I. O.'s Way

By JAMES A. BAUBIE
Pittsburgh (AP)—A tall, lean youth fresh from Scotland lost his temper one day in 1904 and knocked down the check-weighman at a coal mine in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania.

The miners' strike that followed was ended by hunger four weeks later and young Philip Murray was railroaded out of town.

When he got off the train at Pittsburgh, he had determined on his career as a labor leader.

Like A School Teacher.

That career has made him ace organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization—it was Murray who was able to announce union recognition by the giant Carnegie-Illinois Steel company. And ahead lie such huge objectives as the coal miners' wage conference and the organization of the nation's industrial workers.

His ambition, he says, is to see every worker in mass production industry organized into industrial unions; that is, one big union for all workers of each industry.

He has approached his task by methods directly opposite from those of his chief, John L. Lewis. Lewis charges at capital belligerently; Murray, resembling a quiet gray-haired school teacher, prevails with calm logic.

Took Correspondence Course

Born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, he recalls the day, 11 his sixth year that his father came home from the mine and announced a strike had been settled. The men had been granted a 12 cents a day increase, which brought their daily wage to $1.65.

Ten years later William Francis Murray brought his family of 10 children to America, to begin a new life in a coal mining community near Irwin, Pa.

While young Phil worked in the mines, he took a correspondence course cramming his head with mathematics, economics, mining, grammar and labor relations.

Then came the fight.

Murray talks about these things in careful English, his soft voice made richer by a scottish burr.

Escapes Workers' Wrath

He started work again in Broughton and within a year was elected president of the United Mine Workers local union in Washington county.

In 1912 he was elected a member of the union's international executive board and turned down an offer of $5,000 a year to become assistant manager of a coal company.

While thus definitely casting his lot with organized labor, he managed to escape the condemnation of the miners when his efforts on their part ended disastrously. He explains it this way:

"Maybe it's because I don't push so hard. If the union men want to know why I have acted in a certain way, I just tell them what it was impossible to do and what it was impossible to do. Then they can make up their own minds about men."

Summoned By Presidents.

Lewis has not escaped the workers' epimyth so successfully.

Loyal to Lewis, Murray has won the UMWA president's confidence increasingly since his own election in 1920 as vice president of the international union.

Murray's activity has not been confined to his union. President Wilson summoned him to Washington as a member of the national coal production committee in 1917-1918, when he also served on the national war labor board.

President Harding asked him to intercede in 1921 when West Virginia was embattled over a coal dispute. He invited representatives of opposing sides to meet across his desk and a few hours later left the meeting with a peace settlement.

Declined Pay Raise.

Murray also assisted in the preparation of the original Davis-Kelly coal bill in 1930 (for regulation of the bituminous coal industry) and

MOVE IS SEEN AS GOOD OMEN

Cancellation of Rural Electrification Loan Is Hailed

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Mar. 11.—The cancellation of the loan authorized some months ago for the Franklin County Electric Membership Corporation by the Federal Rural Electrification Administration and with which it was proposed to build some 125 miles of rural electric lines, is being regarded here as an indication of peace and friendliness between the Federal REA and the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority, instead of an act of unfriendliness.

For the cancellation of this loan is interpreted as indicating that the Federal REA now has no intention of trying to build rural lines in Franklin county parallel to those already built by the Carolina Power and Light Co., as it attempted to do in Johnston county.

"There is no longer any need for the formation of a rural electric membership corporation in Franklin county, due to the fact that while the county was waiting for the REA loan to be approved in Washington, the Carolina Power and Light Co., at the request of those backing the cooperative in the county, agreed to build all the lines that had been planned by the REA and even more," Chairman Dudley Bagley of the NCREA said today. "The Carolina Power and Light Company has already built between 165 and 170 miles of rural lines in Franklin county as compared with the approximately 125 miles the REA proposed to build and at charges considerably less than would have been charged by a cooperative. Our information is that the officers of the Franklin county cooperative asked the REA to cancel the loan on the grounds that they did not need it."

The REA in Washington could have avoided the trouble it has had in Johnston county and is now having in Caldwell county if it had followed the recommendations of the NCREA and had obtained a certificate of convenience and necessity from the State Utilities Commission, it is being pointed out here. But the Federal REA refused to pay any attention to the state REA and advised the cooperatives in Johnston and Caldwell counties to ignore the state laws and regulations and to proceed to build lines without getting a certificate of convenience and necessity. This threw the counties open so that the power companies could extend their lines, since their franchises make it possible for them to extend their lines into contiguous territory without obtaining any new certificate. Accordingly, in Johnston county the Carolina Power and Light Company went ahead and built some 130 miles of lines before the cooperative there could actually get its money and start building lines. And when it did, and started building lines parallel to the power company lines, the power company obtained an injunction, so that to date the Johnston county cooperative has not built a mile of line. A counter injunction brought by the cooperative and backed by the Federal REA, has prevented the power company from turning current into some of its lines and from connecting with the homes of many customers who want service.

A somewhat similar situation has existed in Caldwell county, where a county cooperative was granted a loan of $430,000 with which to electrify the county. At first the Duke Power Company planned to let the cooperative build the lines in this county, although it is in Duke territory. But this cooperative, on the advice of the REA in Washington, decided not to apply for a certificate of convenience and necessity. Since that time, the Duke Power Company has been gradually extending its lines in the county and building twines where requested. Indications now are that the Duke company will get a good many miles of lines built along the routes proposed by the cooperative before it ever succeeds in getting any actual cash from Washington or gets started building any lines. This could not have happened if the cooperative had obtained the certificate of convenience and necessity, as it was urged to do by the state REA.

The action of the Federal REA in cancelling the Franklin county loan, is being interpreted here that the REA officials, now that Morris L. Cooke is no longer administrator, have decided not to try to fight the power companies by building parallel lines—at least, not in North Carolina. It is maintained here that if the REA in Washington had confined its efforts to building rural power lines where they were needed instead of trying to put the power companies out of business, it would have gotten along better.

N. C. Tenancy List Is Being Reduced By Federal Body

State Has More Than 142,000 Tenant Farmers, Despite Fact 8,000 Have Received Help

Raleigh, Mar. 11.—North Carolina has more than 142,000 tenant farmers and 47 per cent of all the farms in the state are tenant operated, Vance E. Swift, state director of rural rehabilitation, Resettlement Administration, said today. The rural rehabilitation program is helping a large number from this group to get a new start, he stated.

More than 8,000 North Carolina farmers already have received rehabilitation aid in the form of supervised loans, according to Mr. Swift. This is regarded as an important beginning in the movement to halt the spread of tenancy and provide a basis for increased farm ownership.

"Tenancy, with its attendant land abuses and rural poverty, is a serious threat to the permanent agricultural welfare of the state," he declared.

Latest agricultural census figures show that the prevalence of tenancy in North Carolina ranges from 82 per cent of farm families in Green County to 7 per cent in Dare county. Robeson county has the largest number of tenant farmers with 5,636, operating 70 per cent of the county's farms. Dare County has only 9 tenant farmers.

FARM HOMES OUT-OF-DATE. SURVEY SHOWS

Urbana, Ill. (A)—A survey of Illinois farm houses, says Prof. W. A. Foster of the University of Illinois, shows 60,000 of the 231,000 in this state were built before 1885 and only 58,000 were erected since 1912.

Prof. Foster found 185,000 of these farm dwellings using kerosene lamps and without piped water or sanitary fixtures. Only 15,000 have modern sewer or septic tank connections.

Prof. Foster says many of the early-day houses, "but" when materials were good and plentiful and craftsmen were skilled, are still in better condition than some houses built in recent years.

PROFESSOR PREDICTS DREADNAUGHT AIRPLANES

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—Milton J. Thompson, University of Michigan aeronautical engineer, says the airplane of the near future will be a dreadnaught capable of 300 miles an hour, rather than the flivver type which can be set down on a dime.

The trend, which Prof. Thompson attributes to rapid development of the modern air transport, will open a new vocational field, he says, since each of the big planes will require a crew and, like an ocean liner, must be in charge of a competent officer, especially trained for his duties.

Prof. Thompson says the 300-mile speed would be faster than any pursuit plane can now travel, and because it is becoming increasingly difficult to develop faster pursuit ships because of their relatively small size, he predicts bombing raids in future wars will be conducted by anti-aircraft batteries on the ground.

Is the Midwest still supreme in basketball?

That's the question basketball fans will all be asking as the "big push"—the National A.A.U. tournament at Denver, March 14-20—gets under way.

For 16 years the national champion has come from the area bounded by Indianapolis on the East, by Tulsa on the South, by McPherson, Kas., on the West.

The last "alien" to crash through to a national title was New York University, in 1920. N. Y. U. won at Atlanta, Ga., with Howard Cann, present Violet coach, sparking the quintet.

Cann capped 32 field goals as the Violets won all four of their tournament games, scored 215 points to the opposition's 89.

And, as far as the East was concerned, that was all there was—there wasn't any more. Through last year, when the lowering Mc-Pherson Refiners, exponents of "fire department" basketball, copped the title, the Midwest monopolized maple honors.

This may be the year for an invading team to cop the crown.

Observers admit the Missouri Valley A. A. U. circuit has enjoyed nothing like a banner year. The Bartlesville, Okla., Oilers staged a runaway race in the M.V.A.A.U. circuit, won the league championship.

Led by "Chipper Charley" Hyatt, the Oilers count among their number: Joe Fortenberry, skyscraper center; Jack Ragland and Ray Ebling, among other stars.

"Chipper Charley", one-time Pittsburgh flash, has been competing with independent teams for many seasons now, looks, if anything, better than ever.

The Denver Safeways, Colorado's best, carry the hopes of the mile-high country that is host to the tournament. Between them, Bartlesville and the Safeways knocked the other five clubs of the M. V. A. A. U. league out of the running early. Bartlesville won two league games from Denver.

But one of the brightest younger stars of the current Midwestern season plays with neither team. Jack Osburn, after a so-so season in '36 with the Safeways, blossomed ing had played in three league games. President Miller allowed the results to stand.

STATE SAFETY DEPT. NOW CONSIDERED UNLIKELY

(Continued from page 6.) removed." Representative Con C. Johnston of Iredell county, chairman of the house committee on roads, which has been considering the bills, said today. "For while I personally believe that the highway patrol, the drivers' license division and the proposed bureau of identifications should be grouped into a new department with an able man at its head responsible only to the Governor, the outlook for making these changes at this session do not seem to be very bright."

One of the difficulties involved in making any transfer of the highway patrol and drivers' license division to the Governor's office or to a new commission, is the fact that the appropriation for both of these agencies is now lumped with the appropriation for the Department of Revenue and the motor vehicle bureau. This means that a supplemental bill would have to be introduced and passed by both houses, separating the appropriation. The Revenue Department also maintains that if this change is made, its appropriation will have to be increased from $40,000 to $50,000 a year to provide additional license inspectors for the motor vehicle bureau.

With the house getting bogged down deeper and deeper every day and with members of both houses becoming more and more inclined to kill bills about which any controversy arises, most observers feel that while the assembly may transfer these highway safety activities to the Governor, they are more likely to stay just where they now are—in the revenue department.

BRIGHT TOBACCO NEEDS

More Potash

TOBACCO REMOVES FROM THE SOIL MORE POTASH THAN BOTH NITROGEN AND PHOSPHORIC ACID COMBINED

YEAR AFTER YEAR more and more farmers discover that it pays to give bright tobacco plenty of potash. That's why 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER is becoming so popular. Farmers like 3-8-8 because the extra potash it contains costs little and pays big! Usually only about six pounds of average tobacco per acre will pay the difference between 1,000 pounds of 3-8-8 and 1,000 pounds of 3-8-5.

Farmers who use 3-8-8 find its small extra cost to be their best-paying fertilizer investment, returning greatly increased yields of better quality tobacco. Full-grained, high-quality tobacco gives more pounds than thin, tissue-paper leaf or light, trashy leaf. When you produce 1,000 pounds of tobacco per acre, an extra cent per pound due to extra quality will pay the extra cost of 3-8-8 many times over.

Your fertilizer man knows the importance of plenty of potash in tobacco fertilizer. That's why he has 3-8-8 on sale. Tell him you want to produce bigger yields of better quality tobacco this year. Tell him you want 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER—the mixture that contains so much extra-profit-producing plant food at such low extra cost. IT PAYS!

NITROGEN PHOSPHORIC ACID POTASH

JOHN A. HOWARD, R. F. D. 3, Kinston, N. C., says:
"In spite of dry weather and a late season, I made over $300.00 an acre from tobacco with 3-8-8 FERTILIZER. Some of my plants were set as late as June. More potash is needed and extra potash won't hurt you."

W. H. HUMPHREY, R. F. D. 2, Richlands, N. C., says:
"I had 100 acres in tobacco with 3-8-8 under the entire crop. Without the extra potash my crop would have dried up. I believe in plenty of potash. I am going to use 3-8-8 again this year."

TITUS G. MEWBORN, R. F. D. 2, La Grange, N. C., says:
"I used 8' potash last year on tobacco and cotton and made very good crops. Extra potash paid me $50.00 per acre on tobacco. The slight extra cost of the extra potash was very well worth the difference."

N. V. POTASH EXPORT MY., Inc., Royster Building, NORFOLK, VA.

FOR COTTON: To help your cotton prevent rust, control wilt and produce vigorous, healthy plants with less shedding, larger bolls that are easier to pick and better yields of uniform, high-quality lint—USE 3-8-8 COTTON FERTILIZER.

When you buy straight potash or potash in mixed fertilizer, it pays to make sure you get genuine NV POTASH—the same potash that has helped Southern farmers to produce better crops for more than 50 years.

'JULIUS CAESAR' IS NO ONE POLICE CAT

Rockford, Mich. (AP)—When the officers of the Rockford post of the Michigan state police are ordered to patrol for bank bandits or other lawbreakers, Trooper "Julius Caesar" almost invariably is included in the detail.

"Julius Caesar," advanced by the troopers as the state's No. 1 "police cat," strayed into the post some time ago and joined the force. Capt. Archie A. Dowling, commander of the post, says the black and white cat likes nothing better than a wild ride in a police cruiser perched precariously atop the rear seat.

STATE SOLONS HOLD SESSION ON ALBEMARLE

The Governor traced the history of the county, pointing out a settlement existed here as early as 1658 and Edenton was the capital of the state at intervals from 1722 to 1768.

"Joseph Hewes, one of your citizens was a signer of the Declaration of Independence and, although a Quaker, became the first Secretary of the Navy and his vessel's carried supplies to Washington during that disastrous winter at Valley Forge," he said.

"In the present mansion at Raleigh hangs a portrait of James Redell, outstanding citizen of the Albemarle and your greatest individual contribution to the state and nation, and my immediate predecessor in office was a son of this section, John C. B. Ehringhaus."

FAIR PRACTICE BILL FAVORED

the second "victory" dinner to be held in Raleigh tomorrow night.

The association adopted a motion that a resolution respecting the late R. A. Bailey of Robersonville be drawn. Mr. Bailey, one of the oldest tobacco warehousemen in the state, died last week.

It was estimated that some 50 or 60 representatives from tobacco markets, both large and small, were on hand for the meeting.

The bill endorsed by the association would set up a fair trade code for the industry, to be administered by a state commission to be appointed by the governor, with one coming from each of the five belts in the state.

The measure was introduced by Rep. W. E. Fenner of Nash and also bore the names of representatives from other tobacco producing counties. President Sugg said he would advise sponsors of the bill of the action by the warehouse association.

The total white population of the Union of South Africa now exceeds two millions.

My brother-in-law was just remarking to me the other day. Hurry, he said—it looks like folks had found a long lost friend, the way they're acting about our Family's whiskey! And I guess in a way you might call The Wilken Family Whiskey a long lost friend at that! For our family has sure been at it a long time—making whiskey for three whole generations. But we never put up this personal Family's Recipe of ours for everybody to enjoy till only just lately.

And folks are taking to it like as if they'd never found a really mild and tasty whiskey in their whole life. And I guess the neighborly price being asked for our Family's whiskey is pleasing everybody pretty much too!
