STEEL WORKERS TO PLAN FUTURE

Stalemate Between U.A.W.A. and Michigan Car Manufacturers Persists

(By Associated Press) Leaders of two major groups affiliated with the John Lewis C. I. O. mapped plans today for consolidating unionization gains.

The steel workers organizing committee gathered at Pittsburgh at the call of its director, Philip Murray. The latter said the group will plan future strategy as well as review recent developments, notably its recognition of the Carnegie-Illinois steel corporation.

Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., called a meeting of the national executive board at Cleveland Monday and Tuesday. He claimed the union's membership would reach 300,000 by the end of the month.

Meanwhile the strike stalemate between the U. A. W. A. and three Michigan car manufacturers persisted, keeping more than 70,000 workers idle.

The union's demand for recognition as sole bargaining agency for all employees was the cause of the dispute that kept 35,000 Chrysler Corporation employees and 16,000 Hudson motor car company workers idle at Detroit and 2,000 Packard car company workers idle at Lansing, Mich.

Officials of the Los Angeles Chrysler plant announced it would be closed indefinitely because of shortage of materials, keeping 1,100 workers idle.

Negotiations were at a standstill in the Hudson dispute and little progress was being made toward settlement of the others.

DR. TOWNSEND IS SENTENCED

Forum Discussion Here Attended By Large Gathering

Subject of What is Happening in Religion Discussed by John Barclay, Director of Project

The third meeting of the Public Forum was held in the High School library last night with one hundred seventy-five people present. The speaker, John Barclay, lead a discussion of "What is Happening in Religion."

In his talk, Mr. Barclay brought out the fact that there are great movements of interest everywhere in religion as well as in other fields today. He said, "Our age may rightly be compared with the Renaissance and Reformation for the importance of the revolutionary changes taking place." He discussed these changes from three standpoints.

First of all, there are changes in the relationships of Church and State. In some countries the State has won against the Church; in other countries, the struggle is still going on. In our own country our democracy shows its influence in religion as well as in government.

In the second place, there are changes in progress among churches and among religions. He cited, as examples, the various church unions, the revolt in India, and the new spirit of sympathy and cooperation in religions.

The third change discussed was the change now going on in religious thought and practice. He brought out the idea that religious thinking has developed from the old "save your soul" evangelism, through a period of emphasis on religious education and the recent disillusionment in that field, down to the present day trend of thought, in which there is a new individual emphasis.

Following Mr. Barclay's talk, the Forum was opened for discussion and the members of enthusiastically asked questions and voiced their opinions in the matter.

The Forum voted to have Dr. Emil Lengyel, the next speaker, discuss the subject "America's Role in World Affairs." This meeting will be on Thursday, March 25, at eight o'clock in the High School library.

DODD SEEKING REBELS BLAST PROMPT REPLY CAPITAL CITY

Asks Quick Response From Germany to Strong Protests

Berlin, Mar. 12.—(AP)—The United States, it was learned today, will seek a quick response from Germany to the strong protest Ambassador William Dodd was ordered to make against recent anti-American attacks in the German press.

The German foreign office agreed to receive the American envoy at 5:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. EST) but the embassy, it was learned, was making an effort to have the time of the audience advanced.

The effort to set forward the interview with Baron Konstantin Neurath, foreign minister, was said to have been made so the United States State department soon may know the Reich's attitude to the protest.

The ambassador, it was believed, might bolster his protest not only with clippings of the current press, but with a considerable file of clippings showing long before the present incidents prominent Americans had been subjects of unfavorable comments because of their Jewish blood.

Chance For Adjournment Next Week Regarded Slim

Raleigh, Mar. 12.—Adjournment of the general assembly by Thursday, March 18, the date already set for the legislative machinery to grind to a stop, or even by the end of the week, is now regarded as almost an impossibility, due to the many important state-wide bills still to be acted upon in the house or senate and to the hundreds of other bills either still before committees or on the calendars.

More than 100 public and local bills were on the house calendar when it met today, while the senate also had a heavy calendar as a result of the more than 100 bills the senate passed yesterday and Wednesday. But in spite of the speed being shown by the house and the tremendous pressure being maintained in the boiler of the house locomotive by Speaker - Engineer R. Gregg Cherry, few observers see how it will be possible for the legislative train to reach its destination - adjournment - by the end of next week.

"If the general assembly adjourns even by next Saturday, it will either have to kill and pass bills much faster than is safe for itself or the state, or else adjourn with a hundred or more bills not even reached - and either of these alternatives is bad," a veteran legislative observer said today. "It had better stay here a few days longer and proceed a little more carefully and cautiously rather than rush through things too fast."

Even if the house and senate should manage to clear their calendars by next Thursday or Saturday, it will be at least three weeks yet before the enrolling department can get the hundreds of bills copied and ratified, it is pointed out. So the chances are that the assembly may have to remain in session for several days waiting for the enrolling office to copy the last pages of the bills, so the Lieutenant Governor and Speaker can sign them and the

SENATE REFUSES NEW MEASURES

Opinion Freely Expressed by Members Adjournment Not Possible Next Week

Raleigh, Mar. 12.—(AP)—The general assembly in joint session elected 25 persons today for seven-year terms and two to fill unexpired terms on the board of trustees of the University of North Carolina.

Several changes were proposed by legislators in the slate of nominations by the joint committee on trustees, but all were tabled on motion of Senator Graveley of Nash and the elections were unanimous.

Sticking strictly to its resolution, the general assembly received no new bills at the morning meeting.

Members expressed doubt the assembly could adjourn sine die Thursday as called for by the resolution banning new bills after yesterday, but worked on in hope of quickly completing their tasks.

House members passed and sent to the senate the omnibus boards of education bill naming school boards in nearly every county in the state.

The senate enacted into law bills of reorganize the state board of commercial education and extend its jurisdiction and to permit issuance of notes if necessary by the state to meet appropriations.

Members of the university board elected for seven year terms, expiring April 1, 1945, included: Leslie Weil of Goldsboro, S. M. Blount, of Washington, Mrs. Laura Cone of Greensboro, H. G. Conner of Wilson.

Trustees whose terms expire April 1 and not re-elected included George Ward of Wallace and M. K. Blount of Greenville.

Minnesota Governor Protests To Senator

St. Paul, Minn., Mar. 12.—(AP)—Governor Elmer Benson of Minnesota said today he had sent a protest to Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina against a neutrality bill provision that would prevent Americans from sending aid to victims of foreign wars.

In his telegram to Senator Reynolds the Governor said:

"I want to express my protest against that portion of the Reynolds' neutrality bill which bars the collection of funds to send medical supplies and food to suffering victims of aggressive wars or imperialistic ventures. This is unprecedented in modern civilization and contrary to the ideals of the American Red Cross.

DRIVE MAPPED CLEAN UP CITY

Boy Scouts, Theatre and Street Dept. to Co-operate

A clean-up campaign to be conducted through cooperation of local Boy Scouts with the city street department is scheduled to be held the latter part of next week.

E. C. Lynch, in charge of the city department, announced plans this morning for the clean-up drive and urged the cooperation of the entire citizenry.

All residents of the city are asked to clean up all old cans, etc., around their homes and place them at a convenient place in front of their homes. On Saturday of next week the Boy Scouts will scour the city, gathering up the cans and take them from the city.

The Scouts will be divided into two divisions, each taking one-half of the city. The divisions will be divided into patrols and districts assigned to each. T. Y. Walker, manager of the local theatres, has announced he will give tickets to members of the two patrols which do the best job. The winners will be guests of the theatre on Saturday night.

Scout officials announced that the program was in line with the ideals of Scouting, doing good turns for others.

The clean-up campaign is an annual affair, but residents are especially urged to cooperate in the drive this year and help make Greenville a cleaner city.

Sheriff C. V. Faulkner, star state witness, told the jury Cogging confessed he slew the farmer and R. E. Morgan, a hand on the Folsom farm, testified the defendant was intimate with his employer's wife.

Calls Two-Gun Men 'Four-Flushers' Pierre, S. D. (AP)—The colorful two-gun man of fiction doesn't exist, says Capt. Burton C. Mossman, one of South Dakota's leading cattle raisers and first chief of the Arizona Rangers in the 90's.

"There's no such animal," says Capt. Mossman. "I never saw a man who could shoot at two objects at the same time with any accuracy. Whenever such an hombre drifted into camp we pegged him as a four-flusher."

Capt. Mossman owns the Diamond-A ranch near Eagle Butte which, prior to the advent of barbed wire, ran upward of 50,000 head of cattle over more than 1,000,000 acres of open range. He also has ranches in New Mexico.

NEW RECRUITS FOR PROPOSED COURT REFORM

Former Minnesota Chief Justice Supports the Plan

SENATOR NORRIS WANTS REMEDIES

Amendment Suggested Forcing Retirement of Justices At Age of 75

Washington, March 12.—(AP)—A former chief justice of the Minnesota Supreme court, stocky John Devany, contended today "there has been a deliberate effort not to let the country understand" the true function of the United States Supreme court.

Devany, president of the recently organized Lawyers' Guild, appeared before the Senate Judiciary committee on its third day of hearings on President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the court.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) told the Senate both legislative remedies and constitutional amendments should be tried.

He said should opposition to any limitation in the court's power prevail, it would result "in the pendulum swinging farther to the other side than progressive, thinking men and women are advocating at this time."

Coincidental with Norris' statement, Senator Andrews (D-Fla.) offered a constitutional amendment to permit voluntary retirement of Supreme court justices at 70 and mandatory retirement at 75.

Arguing for the President's proposal Devany asserted a "carefully circulated idea of the impracticality of the court" was responsible largely for "our present difficulties with it."

"For years he said the Supreme court has been built up as a subject of unquestioning veneration."

"The people have been taught to believe," Devany told the committee, "that when the Supreme court speaks it is not the justices who speak, but the Constitution, whereas, of course, in most of our constitutional cases, it is the individual justices who speak and not the Constitution."

With main interest centered on the court, other legislative activity was slowed.

The House began debate on a permanent neutrality measure, Chairman O'Connor (D-NY) of the Rules committee, starting off the argument with the question, "Will it involve us in war?"

Sacred Concert Sunday
The A Capella Choir of Guilford College will give a sacred concert at East Carolina Teachers college in the Robert H. Wright auditorium on the afternoon of Sunday, March 14, at 2:30 o'clock, to which the public is invited.

This is a courtesy program sponsored by the entertainment committee of the College. Ezra F. Weis is the director of the choir, an organization composed of Guilford College students, which has presented many concerts, not only in North Carolina, but in northern and mid-western states, and has always won the highest commendation.

The Woman's club brought the choir to Greenville a few years ago and those who heard their singing were greatly impressed by the beautiful singing.

It was the first choir of its type organized in any Southern institution and is still the finest in the South and one of the finest in the entire country. When the choir had sung to audiences in Princeton and Columbia Universities, in Washington City, and in other musical centers, it received the highest praise.

The director of the famous Westminster choir of Princeton, Dr. Finley Williamson, spoke of the delightful feeling for emotional values and the inspiration he felt. Peter W. Dykema of the music department of Teachers College, Columbia University, wrote of the splendid volume of tone and vigorous and intelligent interpretation. Theodore Allen Johnson, of Washington City, national superintendent of the Progressive Study Club, expressed great pleasure in finding that American choirs are capable of such splendid precision, such as is usually found in old world organizations. From Boston University, Dr. H. Augustine Smith felicitated the choir on its "arrival at the height of choral singing."

"You have a body of tone, balance, range and attack, color values like a symphony orchestra," he said.

Guilford College, the oldest educational college in the South, and one of the hundred oldest institutions of higher learning in the United States, is celebrating its centennial this year. This Quaker school has always been pioneering, and its A Capella choir is pioneering in music.

Soil Conservation Measure For N. C. Considered Likely

Bill Offered by Guilford Senator Maps Out Definite and Concrete Program To Be Followed

Raleigh, Mar. 12.—North Carolina will join other states of the Union and the United States Department of Agriculture in a scientific and workable program of soil conservation, under terms of a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Tom Gold, Guilford.

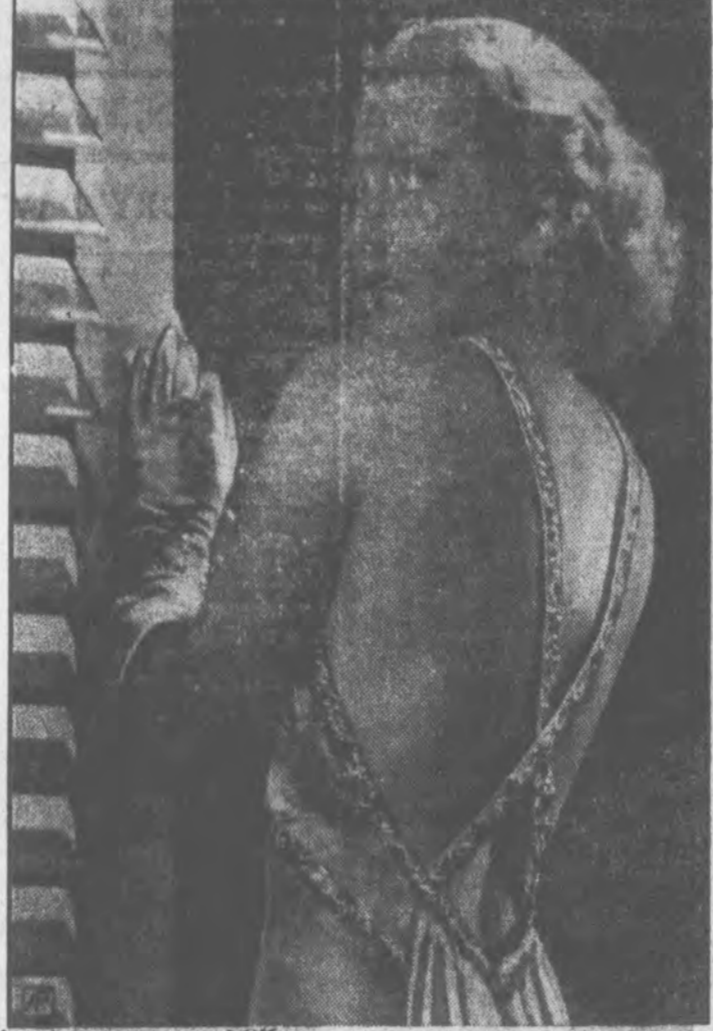

The bill maps out a definite and concrete program to be followed in the state and its sponsors believe it will go far toward putting into effect a plan which will save the farmers of North Carolina millions of dollars in the future and will insure to a great extent the fertility and productive power of their land.

The bill would provide a state soil conservation committee of three or four members, three of whom would be the Director of Extension, Director of State Experiment Station, and State Forester; the committee being empowered to ask the Secretary of Agriculture to appoint a resident member of the United States Department of Agriculture as the other member.

The committee is to encourage the organization of conservation districts by petition of twenty-five land occupiers and a subsequent referendum of land occupiers in the district.

When two-thirds of the occupiers of any district have agreed to join in the program the district will

Social Hour at College
The College students enjoy the social hours before and after meals in their beautiful recreation hall, the lobby of the new dining room, which has been newly painted and furnished with seats and a piano. New draperies at the windows make the room attractive. The walls, lined with seats, add to the comfort, and a good piano delights those who play and those who listen.

Present "Tweedles" Tonight
A short bit from the play "Tweedles" was presented to the College students this morning to give them a sample of the play, which will be given tonight in the Austin auditorium at 8 o'clock.

The cuttings were of the two lovers before they realized what was the matter with them, of the young aristocrat with the drunken Tweedle, and the one in which the Tweedles discover everybody is a Tweedle.

Clifton Britton, the director, announced that the question "What is a Tweedle?" would be answered tonight. He said there would be nine Tweedles on the stage and several hundred in the audience. The curtain was partly drawn so as to give a glimpse of the stage.

The setting is an "antiquity shop" in which real antiques are used, thanks to the generosity of friends. The antique shop is located at a seaside resort with an ocean front tea room. Unusual lighting and sound effects have been used in producing a glimpse of the sea and the roar of the ocean waves even in the background. While the setting is in an old house with antiques, the costumes are modern. There is an interesting contrast of old and new. Those who saw the play for the first time last night seemed to enjoy the humorous situations.

BILL FENNER HOUSE LEADER

Nash Representative Stands Out as Courageous Legislator

Raleigh, Mar. 12.—While some legislators may run and haw about expanding themselves on controversial matters, W. E. "Bill" Fenner, of Nash county, may always be counted on to express his full and frank opinion about any measure under consideration.

The Rocky Mount law maker has not talked as much as many other House members. He has never yet worried his colleagues with needless words upon inconsequential subjects.

But when some important bill is being debated he can always be counted on to rise and let the world know where he stands. In a number of instances he has taken the lead role, either by virtue of his official connection with the measure under discussion or by reason of his obvious knowledge of the subject.

Even before the session began he was much in the public prints as speculation was free over identity of the chairman of the House Agriculture committee. There were some notably a few officials of farm organizations — who looked with more than a little disfavor on Mr. Fenner, fearing he would not have enough sympathy for the "little man" among the tobacco farmers.

When Speaker Gregg Cherry announced his committees, Mr. Fenner won the coveted post and his work in preparing the Tobacco Compact bill for presentation on the floor of the House is universally conceded to have been of the very highest order. Any doubt of his outstanding qualifications was quickly dispelled.

It was no fault of "Bill" Fenner that compact legislation sank on the floor of non-cooperation of other states. He did his part to the entire satisfaction of tobacco men, growers and warehousemen.

"I don't care if all the machine guns in the army are trained on me, I'm going to say what I think," he remarked recently. That sums up

'Sneak-Bill' Season Is Now Wide Open In N. C. Assembly

One of Most Unusual Measures Ever Introduced Offered by Rep. Best of Wayne County

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, March 12.—The open season for "sneak" bills is on the general assembly—for as sessions draw near to the end, several bills are always introduced which on the surface sound innocent enough but which frequently are intended to do something quite different from what would seem apparent at first reading.

One of the most unusual "sneak" bills ever seen by news men here, is the one introduced in the house Wednesday night by Representative W. H. Best, Jr., of Goldsboro, Wayne County, entitled "An act to amend chapter 5, Public Local Laws of 1933." To begin with, the title does not conform to the rules which require that the title must give some indication of the contents of a bill.

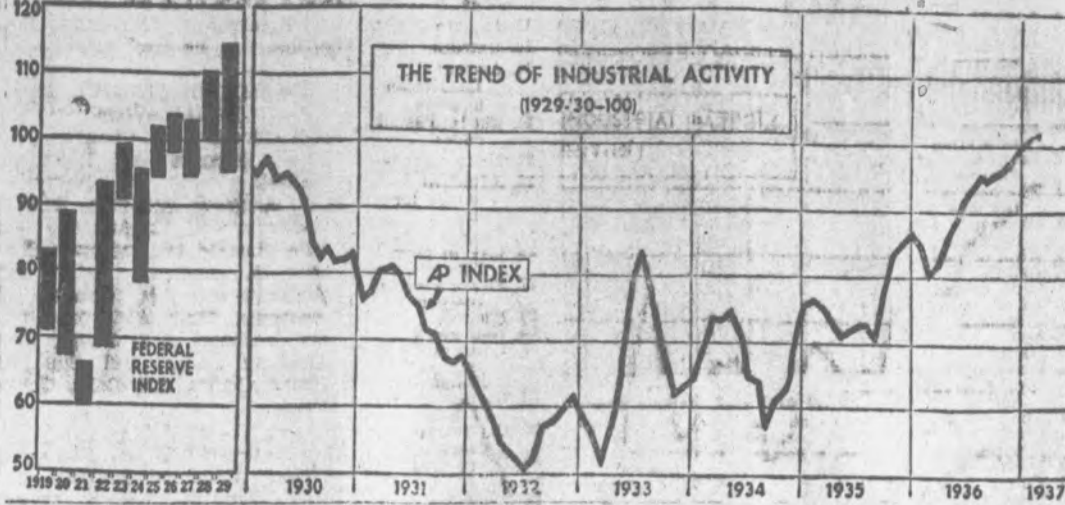

A quick reading of the bill indicates that it would require the county board of commissioners to employ a "special female stenographer" to act as clerk of the board in place of the county auditor, at a compensation of $4 a day for the number of days of actual work.

Closer reading of the bill, however, indicates that the bill removes the county auditor as clerk of the board of county commissioners, prohibits him from attending any meetings of the board except upon invitation of the board, and prohibits him from taking part in any of the discussion at meetings unless specifically requested to do so.

The bill further prohibits the county attorney from even attending meetings of the county commissioners, except when specifically invited to do so, that the county commissioners must submit all questions of law to him in writing and that all of his answers shall be submitted to the board in writing.

The effect of the bill, those who have studied it agree, is to exclude both the county attorney and the county accountant from the meetings of the board of county commissioners, unless they are specifically invited and directed to attend. It is regarded as one of the most cleverly written "sneak" bills introduced this session.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY TREND

By The Associated Press. New York (AP)—Industrial activity during February pushed to the highest level since November, 1929. Recovery in automobile production from the set-back suffered during the General Motors tie-up, and freight carloadings from a combination of strike and flood losses were important factors in the upturn. Another buoyant force was the steady rise in steel output to a seven-year peak.

TROTZKY ASSAILS SOVIET PURGE

An Associated Press photographer visited Leon Trotsky, the former Russian Soviet leader now in exile at Coyoacan Villa near Mexico City, and took these excellent pictures of him discussing the recent Moscow trials and executions of 29 old-line Lenin revolutionists. He said Dictator Joseph Stalin's regime is perturbed by prospects of an international airing of the purge and is "willing to resort to any measure to arrest this movement." (Associated Press Photos)

Legislative Chaff and Chatter

Raleigh, Mar. 12.—The bill to increase the state board of agriculture to ten members will probably be enacted into law, but it has met with more than a little delay in the Senate.

On the calendar for several days it has each time been "put over" because some Senator wasn't quite content to let it go through without giving it a bit more study.

All of which may be a left over from the violent wave of criticism which assailed Commissioner of Agriculture Kerr Scott when he began reorganization of his department even before taking office.

The criticism of Mr. Scott, has caused his friends to fighting pitch and has resulted unfavorably to his plans in many instances by its very nature.

One observer remarked recently: "Kerr Scott can't be nearly as bad as some are trying to paint him. He was elected by a big majority and you can't tell me that the voters of North Carolina were so completely fooled as to put a blight and devil all rolled into one in office."

And John R. Morris, prominent lawyer and former sheriff of New Hanover points out that all the opposition to Mr. Scott has come from people who are not farmers.

"Kerr Scott is as fine a man as I know. He was elected to office by the farmers of North Carolina who are almost one hundred per cent for him. He's their man. Those who have been knocking him are not farmers, never have been and don't know anything about the problems of the farmers."

One of the last-minute bills introduced in the House would appropriate $1,500 to send representatives of the American Legion and of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to France for a program planned by France in 1937-38 to dedicate memorials on the principal battlefields where American troops fought during the World War.

The money would be used to defray necessary traveling expenses of the two delegates.

A similar measure, it is said, has been or will be, introduced in the legislature of every state in the Union.

Defeat of a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing capital punishment removed the possibility of North Carolina's voters authorizing the death penalty for kidnapers and abolishing the death penalty altogether at one and the same election.

The kidnap punishment amendment will almost certainly be submitted as it went through the Senate with only a handful of dissenting votes.

A bill has been introduced in the House requiring those who engage in the business of making small loans to register and make all kinds of detailed reports regarding their operations.

This bill is probably designed to fit some of the purposes of the small loan bill which was recently defeated by the House.

While numerous legislators are introducing bills to put various individuals on the state's pension lists, a measure has been put in calling for an investigation of the present lists with a view to purging them of those not really entitled.

If all the salary hike bills are passed, the state is going to need every bit of money the Revenue will provide.

Latest proposal is to make the salary of the Commissioner of War Veterans Loan Fund $4,500 per annum.

Reputations of High Point have tried to sabotage a civil service commission for that city by refusing to qualify a minority party member as provided by the act.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER.

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfeld goes back to her two-century-old farmhouse and orchard in Connecticut after five years of work and play in New York. Quiet, practical George Cleveland, a young fruit experimenter who owns the nearby Seymour house, and Uncle Henry, an old family friend, help her clean and move the antiques from the attic. George's Park avenue mother comes to tea and Denny, Eve's pay, slim fiance, bursts in with a suitcase to announce he's staying the weekend. Mrs. Cleveland is horrified, but Uncle Henry says he's staying too.

Chapter 14 Uncle Henry's Wing

TURNING from the door, Denny made a face.

"I say, did we put our feet in it?" How could he—how could he? . . . At sight of her stricken face, he wheeled suddenly.

"Eve—I say, Eve, I didn't realize you minded." He sat down again, an expression of mingled anger and amusement on his face. "Eve, if you can all me what to do about it I'll be as grateful as a pup. It's all the fault of that idiot Mitzel, with her fatal-female complex. . . ."

He caught Eve in his arms hungrily. "Oh, I do love you, my beautiful—my blessed—sweet, if you say so I'll go straight after the old idiot and tell her that I didn't contradict Mitzel's lie because I had to have a job to marry you."

Denny's arms had magic. Nothing mattered but the feel of them tight around her, the pressure of his mouth close on hers, after the long week apart. Suddenly, his long eyes looking deep into hers, she knew she had been too slow to take it all so seriously. It had a tricky feeling she didn't like. . . .

"Tell you what, let's let it ride a little longer. Give Mitzel a chance. . . ."

"Put that way, it did seem silly. She laughed, as one did when Denny wanted it to happen, and stooped to put another apple-wood bough on the fire."

"The Kind Phantom Hands" "I SAY, this is no farmhouse," said Denny, lying back on his spine in the big chair across from her in the old familiar way, and taking another cake. "Elegant, I call it. Fix it up a bit, and some summer millionaires would bite. We could never get any of this stuff in an apartment, but even these days they ought to do us something. Don't let Mrs. Cleveland get the cabinet she was wanting for too cheap. Plutocrats is plutocrats!" He glanced around, impressed, she could see. "Did you people collect?"

"No, they preserved?" "Good gosh, the things have pedigrees then! Why, lamb, they'll start us on an apartment and furnish it, and give us theater money for a winner."

She didn't know why she wasn't as excited as he was. She would have been, before she came. It was all perfectly true—but she had played house with her dolls in the lacquer cabinet; her people had bent to lay apple-wood on their orchard on those andirons for 200 years. She shook herself to throw off the kind phantom hands that were beginning to hold her, and laughed down at her lover.

"That is, if you aren't maddened and swept off your feet by Mitzel! By the way, did you mean that about staying?"

"May it Ellen really isn't coming till tomorrow morning. Heaven above, what prudes!" Eve began to laugh. Everything was light and right again.

"And that isn't the half of it, dearie! Psychoanalysis isn't it compared with what everybody in a country town neighborhood knows about everybody else. Summer people have no financial concessions to the smoke eaters who would have to pay the same for their taxes as do all others."

Senator Ballentine, of Wake, has put in a bill appropriating $500 to erect in the North Carolina Hall of History a memorial to the late Colonel Fred A. Olds.

BUILD COMMUNITY RADIO TO WARN IN EMERGENCY Pueblo, Colo. (AP)—A community radio station, for use in case of a flood or other community disaster, is nearing completion at Pueblo.

Weekly practice drills will be held, the station reporting to a state station at Denver which is affiliated with the U. S. army signal corps.

Volunteer firemen of North Carolina's municipalities would be permitted to have distinctive automobile licenses, beginning with the year 1938 under a bill introduced by Representative Meekins.

Firemen's license plates would begin with No. 500. There would be as provided by the act. As a result Representative Rupert Pickens has introduced a bill amending the original law so as to strike out the mandatory provision that one of the five board members must be of the minority party.

Senator Separk, of Gaston, has put in a bill making it a felony to manufacture, sell or distribute liquor containing poisonous ingredients.

Violation would entail a penalty up to five years or a discretionary fine.

Violations of High Point have tried to sabotage a civil service commission for that city by refusing to qualify a minority party member as provided by the act.

As a result Representative Rupert Pickens has introduced a bill amending the original law so as to strike out the mandatory provision that one of the five board members must be of the minority party mem-a sort of legal right to be criminal, but from what I can see I guess I don't come under that head. It looks as if I was still the Mannersfelds' little girl Eve."

Though she was laughing, something in her thrilled, she didn't quite know why, at the idea.

"And Uncle Henry—is he your uncle—guarding your virtue fiercely out of Shore Acres? Eve, it's priceless."

"Please don't laugh at him, he's pretty fine." Eve heard herself say. And hastily: "No, he's no relation, only as Aunt Lina hadn't any men-folk, he always rather had us under his wing."

"Wing seems to be working overtime," commented Denny, strolling about and looking over the furniture. "I say, you could have sold these antiques, at the top of the market, for some good money."

"Yes, couldn't I? What an idiot. Oh well, it would have gone for parties or stocks, and I wouldn't have it. At least here they are."

"Yes, and here you are—" He caught her close again. "Eve, I simply can't stand it without you. . . . I say, it was pretty fine of the old fellow to stand up to me like that, and to stand up to the old girl too." Denny said, his mood sensitively changing as he saw Eve's face.

It Was A Cordial Request AS if he had been summoned by the talk of him, Uncle Henry re-appeared.

"Will you walk upstairs now, Mr. Carter? I'm putting you in the ell, on the second floor," he said rather stiffly.

"All right, sir. Thanks a lot—" Denny smiled his winning smile, and clattered up the stairs with his suitcase. Uncle Henry lingered in the doorway.

"Eve, I intend to sleep here. I don't wish to discommode you, but whatever the new ways are, you don't stay alone in a house with any young fellow."

She leaned against him affectionately. "Why, Uncle Henry, I'll love to have you! It's just Denny's careless way. Ellen Walton was coming, and I suppose he never thought whether it was tonight or tomorrow."

He put his arm around her as he used to when she was little. "I don't want to intrude, but I have to think what your Aunt Lina would have wanted I should do—"

She spoke impulsively, knowing his stiff pride. "Why, Uncle Henry, I only wish you could manage to stay with me till I rent!"

His eagle-like old face changed, softened. He tried to speak, but his voice broke. "Why—why, Eve!"

Suddenly she realized what she had said. To a man accustomed to the springing speech of the Connecticut farmer, it was a bold request.

"Well, why not? It would only be a couple of weeks, months at most. And she had always been fond of Uncle Henry. He had perhaps felt himself none too welcome at Emily's. She was suddenly sorry for him, the brave old man alone, a failure, fighting on valiantly for his old-fashioned standards! But as it was said, she found that it was true. It was good to know that he cared, that he had no motive where she was concerned except old kindness, old love, old unselfish concern for her interests.

He only said: "Glad you didn't feel I was interfering, daughter. You've always seemed like kin, you and Lina."

She saw the slow thick flush climb up under his skin, and realized with the quick understanding that was always hers how he, too, felt that it was nice to have someone to belong to and care for. Suddenly she was almost intolerably moved for him. Her world was young in a year or two the glittering wild expensive age might be going again for her and Denny, back in New York together, playing, earning big money, going to the top of the tree; a big apartment, parties regardless of expense; success—fame—exciting prosperous life. Not Uncle Henry. Nothing could do so very much for him, she supposed. . . .

"I do need you," she said impulsively. "I'd feel so much safer—" "I don't deny I'd like to, Eve. If I wouldn't be a burden."

Eve laughed. Who had said that last? Why, funny little Judge Featherstone. Uncle Henry would like Judge. "You'd be a help."

"I know I could raise high enough greenstuff to pay for my keep," he said, trying to mask his eagerness with businesslike talk. "I can run a bill with the grocery bill I pay them back in produce, like always. And I'll bring my fowl over from Emily's, soon's I clean the chicken run."

She felt a moment's dismay—chickens and greenstuff sounded like selling in! Well, she could reserve the vegetable garden when she rented. And fowls could be moved again. "I told Emily I'd be back to supper, but I'll be here tonight."

He walked down the back hall with an almost springy step. (Copyright, 1937, Margaret Widdeemer)

Ellen Walton and the rest of Eve's crowd arrive at the farm, tomorrow.

Washington—Hard-hitting John L. Lewis is on the rise, big steel has catered to him, and what does that mean to William Green? Inside labor forecast is that within five years, perhaps within two years, Lewis will be undisputed king of labor and Green or a successor will head a constantly lessening contingent of highly skilled labor—survivors of the skilled craft unions now composing the A. Fertile Field Reason: Lewis demands—and gets—results from his organizers. He has taken as his field the increasing ranks of semi-skilled and unskilled workers. Green heads organizations of skilled workers for which mass industry finds less and less use. Further reason: Lewis himself is showing the workers that he is the man to pull out the chestnuts. For 20 years the American Federation of Labor tried to get its hand in the automobile industry without success. Lewis tore open an entry in six months. For 35 years the federation has tried to bargain in

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—Film factory:
Fred Astaire dances even when dancing is not required. Fred is a walk-off role, leaving the spotlight on a comic exchange between Edward Everett Horton and Eric Blore.
The scene is taken three times, and always, as soon as he is out of camera range, Fred breaks into a humorous miming step to the deline.
The Horton-Blore scene, not unlike many these two have done in previous Astaire-Rogers films, is stirring as always because it represents the meeting of two masters of what Hollywood calls the "tak-em." This can be described as "a scene counteracted suddenly by delayed perception," but "tak-em" is harder.
After the scene, the slight, but Mr. Blore betakes himself to his dressing room, and sits there studying his lines while he plays a phonograph record several times.
It is a song, he explains later, that he wrote during the war. Only recently he picked up the record.
Cut in the "rank" the big ship of "Souls at Sea" is foundering, and Cory Cooper and Frances Dee are doing what their roles demand, as the vessel, obedient to mechanical devices, slowly rolls and sinks and risks. The only way to see what they are doing is to wade out, and this is pneumonia weather.

Even distant observation is soon impossible, however, because I am now surrounded by a bit player in distress. The poor fellow, who can't talk English but excels in glib and gesticulation, thinks I'm a make-up man and insists on help.
But what he wants, exactly, it is hopeless to learn. My face goes red-der as crude bystanders, with no hearts for his plight, break into unfeeling laughter. This only heightens my determination to help.
I draw diagrams, make signs, finally suggest he go see Zerkon, see anybody else. By now I'm desperate,
I go to sleep.
And this is the moment he reveals himself: Sid D'Albrook, Hollywood "ribber." It's much more fun, I find later, when the victim is someone else.

Heralding Roosevelt's Warm Springs Visit

With President Roosevelt en route to Warm Springs, Ga., for a two weeks' visit in the "Little White House," railway officials took extraordinary precaution in inspecting tracks over which his special train runs. Two inspectors assigned to patrol the railway are shown on their motor car at the Warm Springs station. Meanwhile, the staff of the Warm Springs Mirror, weekly newspaper, worked hard to herald the President's arrival with the first "extra" in the history of the village. Printer John Harris is seen turning out a section of the special edition on a hand press. (Associated Press Photos)

two houses ratify them. The enrolling clerks can then copy all of the bills later on. The enrolling office is now about two weeks behind in copying bills for ratification and has fully 100 bills it has not yet been able to copy and send down for ratification. The revenue bill, which passed both houses more than two weeks ago, has not yet been enrolled and ratified. So the house and senate may have to sit and twiddle its collective thumbs for several days even to get the last pages of bills for ratification, after all other business has been disposed of. For under the law, the assembly may not adjourn until all bills passed have been enrolled, signed by the Lieutenant Governor and Speaker and ratified by both houses.

There are at least ten important state-wide measures which have not yet passed one house or the other and which must be acted on—several of them measures sponsored by Governor Clyde R. Hoey. Among these are:

The old age pensions and aid to dependent children appropriation bill, setting up an appropriation of $2,185,000 a year, which has passed the house but which still awaits action in the senate.

The $2,345,000 permanent improvements appropriation bill, authorizing the issuance of bonds to finance buildings at state institutions, which has passed the house but which must pass three readings in the senate.

The tax machinery act, setting up the machinery for the listing and collecting of taxes, both state and local, which must yet pass both houses.

The $5,000,000 highway bond issue bill, authorizing the Governor and council of state to issue bonds for use on the secondary roads if and when needed during the next two years, which has passed the senate, but not the house.

The supplementary revenue bill, amending the recently passed revenue act, and changing the tax brackets on wines, slot machines and making minor changes in other sections, which has passed the house but not the senate.

The school machinery act, which has passed the house but not the senate.

The bills transferring the highway patrol, drivers' license division to the Governor's office, setting up a new bureau of identification, still to pass both house and senate and not reported into house until today.

Election law revision bill, which has passed senate but has not yet passed the house.

The list might be increased almost indefinitely with measures of almost equal importance which still await action in one house or the other. That is why most observers maintain that adjournment any time next week is improbable, if not almost impossible.

Anslinger also wants another $4,000 annually to meet agents' expenses in entertaining narcotic dealers preparatory to buying drugs as evidence.

BILL PERMITS INDIVIDUAL FEE

Would Allow Lawyers Set Charge Before Commission

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Mar. 12.—Lawyers appearing before the State Industrial Commission would be permitted to fix their own fees and the commission would be without any authority to regulate the size of these fees, if Senate Bill 239, introduced by Senator A. Hall Johnston of Buncombe county, which passed the senate Wednesday, is also passed by the house.

The bill would amend Section 64 of the Workmen's Compensation Law, which gives to the commission the power to regulate the fees charged by both lawyers and doctors by striking out the provision which permits the commission to regulate lawyers' fees. The bill, it is understood, is sponsored by the Junior Bar Association of Asheville, and has the support of many of the lawyers of the state.

Ever since the workmen's compensation law was enacted, a good many of the lawyers have objected to the power given to the Industrial Commission to regulate fees, just as many of the doctors in the state for several years fought the law and tried to get it amended so that the doctors could charge any fees they wanted to, without any supervision or checking by the commission. The commission has maintained, however, that it should have the authority to approve both lawyers' and doctors' fees in order to protect itself, the insurance companies and those appearing before the commission against possible gouging, although it agrees that more than 90 per cent of the fees charged by lawyers and doctors are approved as being fair and reasonable.

While a great majority of the lawyers and doctors are now cooperating with the commission in every way possible and are entirely satisfied with the fees approved by it, there are always a few who are dissatisfied and resent any supervision of these charges by the commission. Chairman T. A. Wilson of the Industrial Commission said today: "Accordingly, we believe it would be a dangerous thing if this bill should pass the house, since it would no longer be able to protect litigants against lawyers who might seek to charge them excessive fees in compensation hearings. We hope the bill will not pass the house."

FLYING RED WINGS

PLAN PROTECT STATE'S BIRDS

Would Fire-Proof Rookery With Labor By WPA

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Mar. 12.—Repetition of the raging forest fire which destroyed thousands of nesting egrets, and herons at the Lenoxville rookery in Carteret county in 1935 will be prevented, if measures proposed by the Department of Conservation and Development are successful.

Plans for "fire-proofing" the rookery, transferred by the birds to a new location after the destruction of the previous site, were proposed by State Forester J. S. Holmes, and are planned in cooperation with the Department's Division of Game and Inland Fisheries.

Proposed fire protection measures, according to Mr. Holmes, contemplate the clearing of a strip of 50 to 100 feet wide around the swamp site of some two acres where the birds nest, supplemented by ditches to block off possible fires from the outside. It is contemplated that Works Progress Administration labor be utilized in carrying out the program.

So important has the National Association of Audubon Societies considered the protection of the rookery that the organization has for some years paid a special warden to guard it. After the disastrous fire of June, 1935, the surviving birds moved to a new location.

According to information obtained by State Forester J. S. Holmes from Robert P. Allen, sanctuary director of the Audubon Society, the principal nesting species at the rookery include the American Egret, Snowy Egret, Louisiana Heron, Little Blue Heron and Black Crowned Night Heron.

A "fire-proof" toothpick has been invented by J. N. T. Sanchez of Houston, Tex. The toothpicks, held in a dust-proof cone-shaped box, are shaken out only one at a time.

Aurie has led the league in scoring most of the season. Barry has been nippy in total assists. Lewis has been consistently among the first ten scorers.

Talks To Parents

Facing Life

The man or woman who takes life as an adventure and lives it consciously and fully is the one who has a happy life. Parents who take this attitude toward life and can pass it on to their children, have given them a better heritage than a fortune in gold.

Adaptability to circumstances, the ability to make victory out of defeat, a serene acceptance of the rough with the smooth as a necessary part of the material of living, make for health and happiness.

The world owes nothing to anyone. To bring children up with the idea that it does, distorts their point of view. One gets out of life just as much as one puts into it, and if one is very outgoing and puts in a great deal, there is some times a bit of profit in the form of love and devotion.

There are countless ailing, embittered men and women who find life a disappointment. They wish they had never been born. Nothing is what they were led to believe it would be. But what does life itself promise anyone? Nothing at all. It is the parents who hold out false promises for the future, and bring up their children to expect a livelihood and happiness to be handed to them on a platter. When these promises are unfulfilled, the children accuse life, the world, existing conditions, of having deceived and wronged them.

It is not entirely the children's fault. They were never taught to meet life half-way, to accept what comes and make the best of it. The object of life is not happiness but living, and living means a kaleidoscopic flow of episodes and experiences of every kind.

Every situation one faces is generally training for another. Only by a serene and courageous facing of adversity as well as good fortune does one get the best out of life.

Charles W. Shuff, III, Duke 'Honor' Student

Durham, Mar. 13.—Thirty-nine Duke university students from North Carolina were this week named to the "Dean's list" for the spring term. The list is composed of second, third, and fourth-year undergraduates who average "B" or higher on all studies.

Students whose names are on the list may attend classes at their own pleasure. Not a great many of these privileged students, however, make a habit of missing classes, for when a "Dean's list" student's average falls below "B" his name is taken off the list permanently.

Included in the list was: Charles W. Shuff, III, Greenville.

Declares Improved Cotton Seed Will Provide Saving

Farmville, Mar. 12—The few cents extra required to plant an acre in improved cotton over gin-run varieties should return a profit to the grower of tenfold, John T. Thorne, director of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association, said here today.

Mr. Thorne, who attended a regular meeting of the board of directors of the farm cooperative in Raleigh last week, pointed out that farmers can secure Coker cotton seed one-year from the breeder for planting at a cost of approximately 80 cents an acre above gin-run seed.

Cat Causes Her Catastrophe

Lorain, O. (AP)—Next time Mrs. Pearl Babcock's pet cat strays into the attic, it will have to get down alone.

Mrs. Babcock, abed with a broken ankle, said she climbed into the attic when the cat, Fluffy, refused to come down.

"I reached for Fluffy, and the next thing I knew I was trying to get up off the kitchen table. I'd fallen through the ceiling and broken my ankle," she said.

Amid the excitement, the cat got out of the attic unaided.
