SAYS MEASURE NOT AIMED AT PRESS OF STATE

Rep. Hatch Plans To Offer Clarifying Amendment

RALEIGH PAPER ATTACKS BILL

Author Declares Proposal Aimed Only at Those Attacking Innocent Persons

Raleigh, Mar. 15. (AP)—Rep. Hatch of Wake told the lower division of the General Assembly this afternoon that his bill to prohibit false and malicious statements "is not aimed at the freedom of the press and said he would offer amendment to clarify the measure. Legislators and newspapers attacked the Hatch measure over the week-end as threatening freedom of the press and a Raleigh newspaper said it was described "as resembling the stringent California criminal syndicalism act."

"I have not been an author to any bill unfair to any persons or group of persons," Hatch told the House. The bill was not intended to infringe on the freedom of the press, speech or the pursuit of happiness.

"It was to prevent the circulation of false statements by innocent persons or corporations reflecting on the character of innocent persons. I would gladly agree to any amendments to correct any defects in the bill."

Meanwhile senators awaited tonight's meeting of their division.

Youths Of Church Offer Program At Evening Services

Dr. John Barclay, Public Forum Director, Delivers Message at Regular Joint Meeting Here

Last night at the Methodist church, the local United Movement group took charge of the Union Service, bringing Dr. John Barclay to speak to the entire congregation and especially to the young people. Charles Wooten, president of the young people's group, gave the call to worship, followed by Dorothy Anne Picklesheimer giving the invocation. Harvey Deal read the Scripture and Miss Frances Fields, Student Worker at the Presbyterian church, led the prayer. Mr. Rose led the congregational singing, with a special trio number sung by Misses Helen Sawyer, Allen Sawyer, and Mary Hoover Boyd.

Dr. Barclay, speaking on the future of religion, based his remarks on Jeremiah's message, showing how the prophet spoke in his time of a new covenant which was to be written in the hearts of the people. When Jesus came He was considered radical because He told those whom He taught that worship was not a matter of place or position but a matter of spiritual attitude toward God. Dr. Barclay showed how the conception of the second coming was changing in that Jesus was always returning and always in the process of coming back into the lives of men. He said that the idea that religion was a magical thing was gone and that instead, we have begun to believe that the universe is regular and dependable, therefore usable and friendly and our own acts, in relation to that universe, determine our own judgment. He said that we must live in a spirit of intelligent goodwill for others. The attitude of the church is changing, even toward itself and intelligent laymen, as well as ministers, are realizing that the church must be a living institution with a new basis of union, the basis of social and moral action.

Wilson ABC Board Chairman Quits Post

Wilson, Mar. 15.—(AP)—B. J. Williams, chairman of the Wilson county ABC board since its inception in June, 1935, resigned today. He was former chairman of the North Carolina Association of ABC boards. The county commissioners, county board of education and county board of health were to meet late today to name his successor.

SOUTH HIT BY COLD WEATHER

March Winds Whip Snow, Sleet and Rain Over Dixie

(By Associated Press) March winds whipped snow, sleet or rain over much of the South today, bringing an abrupt halt to spring-like weather. Temperatures dropped below the freezing mark in some sections of Tennessee and Arkansas, where the wintry assault threatened damage to fruit. Snow falling in Nashville, Memphis and Little Rock melted almost as fast as it struck. White flurries also dotted sections of Virginia, with forecasts indicating they would extend as far South as North Georgia. Chilly rains splashed on the sidewalks of Knoxville, Atlanta, New Orleans, Montgomery and in the Carolinas. Official forecast indicated the button-up-your-overcoat weather would not at once relax its grip. Still lower temperatures were promised for some Dixie sectors.

Six Defendants Tried At City Court Session

Five Negroes and one white person were convicted at the regular Monday morning session of Police court here today. Jesse Dixon and John Thomas, alias Bo Peep, were convicted of disorderly conduct, the former being fined $10 and costs and the latter a 30-day sentence to the roads. Rose Mason and Annie Palmer were convicted of disorderly conduct and each was taxed with the costs. Tom Gray was fined $5 and costs upon conviction of drunkenness. A. W. Parrish, only white man to be tried this morning, was taxed with the costs upon conviction of disorderly conduct.

House Still Faced With Important Public Bills

Raleigh, Mar. 15.—As what most members hope will be the last week of the General Assembly opened today, the House of Representatives faced a long and important public calendar containing more than three score public bills. The Senate started in somewhat better position, but will, of course, have to act on House bills after they have been approved by the more numerous branch. All in all it appears to even casual observers that adjournment sine die cannot come this week unless the legislators put in just about 24 hours a day at their jobs or unless they just walk off and leave their task unfinished. Just glancing over the calendar almost at random, it shows many important bills must still be acted upon either by House and Senate or by the House to complete prior Senate action. The list does not include bills in the Senate or its committees or in House committees. Nor yet does it include any of the multitudinous local bills still to be passed.

RENEW EFFORT PUT LABORERS BACK ON JOBS

Officials in Score of States Grapple with Problem

AUTO INDUSTRY TURMOIL CENTER

Circuit Judge Grants Injunction for Evacuation of Detroit Chrysler Strikers

Detroit, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Alvan Campbell today granted an injunction calling upon sit down strikers to evacuate the plants of the Chrysler corporation in the area which they have occupied since last Monday. The judge, in his opinion, held even if the Wagner relations act "is valid" it "still does not give the defendants (sit down strikers) the right to occupy property." (By Associated Press) Officials in a score of a strike-beset states grapple with complex labor problems today in renewing efforts to bring thousands of workers back to jobs. In scattered centers of industrial turmoil more than 130,000 wage earners were idle as peace makers sought to reconcile the differences of opposing factions. Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, where disputes, chiefly in the motor industry, kept 90,000 idle summoned prosecutors of four industrial counties to meet him at Lansing to discuss labor difficulties. There were 55,000 Chrysler employees idle in Detroit and 7,000 others on strike in the corporation's Indiana and California plants. Remington Rand, Inc., ordered by the Labor Relations board to restore 4,000 former workers to jobs in six plants, faced possible loss of a $57,000 government contract. Arthur Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security board, said it had instructed the question of a contract for photographing Social Security forms "be reconsidered for purposes of determining whether any other course is now open to the board." The Labor board sharply criticized the Remington company, which makes office equipment, for its methods in opposing a dispute dating back to last May.

OTIS PARKS, 30, INSTANTLY KILLED ON BATTLEBORO ROAD

Rocky Mount, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Otis Parks, 30, of Whitakers was killed almost instantly on the Battleboro highway near here early today when the car in which he was riding crashed into the rear of a trailer behind a parked truck. Joe Stallings, 38, of Whitakers, driver of the car in which Parks was riding, and C. U. Ramsey of Rocky Mount, truck driver, were formally charged with manslaughter and placed under $500 bond each after local police and M. C. Guiley, Nash county coroner, had investigated the fatal crash. Police reported Ramsey had parked the truck, owned by S. T. Jones of near here, near the edge of the highway, but a trailer attached to the truck appeared to extend over the pavement. When the Stallings car hit the trailer, officer said, several boards were ripped off the trailer and were hurled through the windshield of the approaching car, striking Parks.

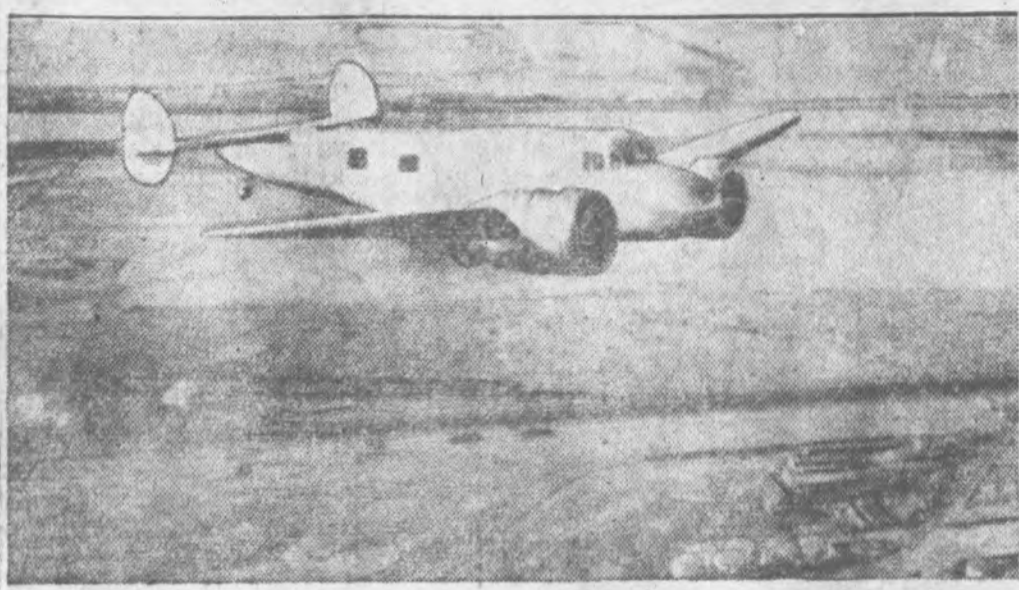

No Serious Injury As Result Of Two Week-End Wrecks

State Highway patrolmen reported two wrecks over the week-end in this section, but no serious personal injury was suffered in either of the accidents. One driver was charged with hit and run driving while another was accused of driving under the influence of whiskey. The warrants also charged careless and reckless driving. All persons involved in the wrecks were white. E. T. Forbes, Jr. is facing a charge of driving under the influence of whiskey and also with reckless driving as a result of a wreck about a mile and a half from Greenville on the Falkland highway about 7:30 p. m. yesterday. Highway patrolmen who investigated the accident said Forbes' car struck one driven by B. F. Edwards, Forbes, who was going toward Falkland, was said by the officers to have been driving to the left of the center of the highway when the accident occurred. In the other accident in this vicinity Bonnie Andrews of Tarboro is alleged to have driven his vehicle into a truck operated by W. J. Uptagraf of Zellwood, Fla. The wreck occurred one-half mile West of Bethel, Andrews, who suffered a cut over the left eye, was charged with hit and run driving. He was freed under bond of $500 pending trial in court here.

Two Craven Negroes Face Murder Counts

New Bern, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Two Negroes were jailed here over the week-end are being held on murder charges. George Wilson was ordered held without bail by Coroner Mack Henderson after an inquest into the death Saturday night of Frank Evans at a store operated by Wilson in New Bern. Wilson admitted the coroner said, the shooting, but claimed it was accidental. James Whitehead is being held after admitting officers said, the fatal shooting late Sunday of his wife, Lula, at their home near here.

HEAVY BLASTS SHAKE MADRID

Four Explosions Occur in War-Torn University City

Madrid, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Four tremendous explosions, apparently from government mines in battle-scarred University City, rocked Madrid today as insurgent's artillery shells tore great holes in buildings in the downtown district. Meagre reports from the University zone, where government militiamen and insurgent troops have contested for weeks described the explosive attacks as fresh attempts to rout General Francisco Franco's forces from their barricaded positions. Just after the explosions a government air squadron flew over the area on the observation flight. Italian troops, reported fighting on the insurgent side, were declared by the war minister to have been forced from strategic positions in the Guadajajara sector Northwest of Madrid. Militiamen pushed forward into two wooded areas in bitter fighting, these forces reported.

Man Admits Friendship With Woman Held for Murder

Canton, Ohio, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Detective Captain Emer Clark announced today Deuber Cable, Canton contractor, had told of his companionship with a 45-year-old divorcee held from questioning by authorities investigating the shot slaying of Cable's social prominent wife. Included in Cable's account, Captain Clark said, was a statement that he had shared an apartment in Akron with the woman who today was held in jail. It was in this apartment, police declared, Prosecutor A. G. Bartholomew reported the finding of evidence which he said pointed to a "jealousy motive" in the slaying and the possibility a "hired assassin" fired into a window of the Cable's home last Thursday night the shot gun blast which fatally wounded Mrs. Cable.

COURT SESSION GETS STARTED

Judge Cranmer Presiding Over Two Weeks of Criminal

Superior court got underway here this morning with Judge E. H. Cranmer presiding over the term for trying criminal cases. Faced with a heavy calendar, the court got off to a good start, but only four cases were tried at the morning session. William Harris, now living in Texas, entered a plea of guilty to driving careless and reckless and judgment was suspended upon payment of the court costs. Rowland Cannon was fined $25 and costs, further judgment being suspended, on a charge of possession of illegal whiskey. James Gay, Farmville Negro, was convicted of assault with intent to kill and also of breaking and entering and was given a term of 36 months on the roads. Jasper Spain, Negro, was convicted of manufacturing liquor. The jury came in just before the lunch-recess and Judge Cranmer reserved judgment until later. The present term will continue through next week, with the trial of Bernard Moore and Bernice Aspinwall, charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and also with highway robbery as a result of an attack of G. Lem Pleasant, scheduled to be heard Tuesday of next week. Greenville, S. C., bank debits in 1936 are showing a marked increase over those for 1935.

ROW OVER COURT EBBS SOMEWHAT

House Votes to Permit Government to Accept Art Gallery From Mellon

Washington, March 15.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor gave its support today to a National Labor Relations Board order, directing Remington-Rand, Inc., to put 4,000 former workers back to work. The board said the 4,000 lost their jobs following a strike started last May in six Remington-Rand plants. Directing that their jobs be restored, the board also ordered the company to recognize equipment workers' council, an affiliate, as collective bargaining agency for the plants involved. William Green, American Federation of Labor president, asked Chairman Warren Madden of the Labor Board to get a court order enforcing the board's decree, which he hailed as "a complete vindication of the strike." The controversy over President Roosevelt's court reorganization program ebbed temporarily, with a Senate committee hearing on the plan in recess. Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) who has advocated simultaneous action on both legislation and constitutional amendment introduced an amendment proposal to limit judicial terms to nine years and proposed a bill requiring a two-thirds vote of the court to invalidate legislation. The court itself held a brief opinion session, but not serious decisions on any major legislation. The next session will be March 29. Joseph Eastman of the I. C. C. informed the house merchants marine committee rivalry among water carriers and between them and railroad was so fierce it constituted a "distinct peril" to the shipping industry. He advocated regulation of inter-coastal and inland waterway transportation by the I. C. C. The House passed an act to permit government acceptance of Andrew Mellon's offer to put up a $10,000,000 art gallery here and fill it with his collection.

Large Delegation Expected Attend Extension Hearing

Proposal to Extend City Limits to Be Aired Before House Committee Tomorrow Morning

A large number of Greenville citizens are expected to be in Raleigh tomorrow to attend a meeting of the House Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns at 10 o'clock in the Revenue building for the purpose of hearing arguments on a proposal to extend the limits of this city. The Board of Aldermen has endorsed the proposal and the bill was prepared and sent to the Pitt county delegation in the legislature. Subsequently a public meeting was called for here Saturday night, March 13, for the purpose of discussing the proposal. At the time of the meeting it was explained that the hearing was called here with the idea of saving citizens interested in the bill from having to go to Raleigh. Pitt's representatives in the House have declared that they have received a number of telegrams, some favoring and some opposing the extension, and therefore set the hearing in Raleigh. The bill was introduced in the upper branch by Senator E. O. Flanagan and that body passed the measure and sent it to the House. A number of citizens spoke against the proposal at the public hearing held here a week ago, but Mayor M. K. Blount closed the meeting with the statement that Greenville was going forward and warned that unless the limits were extended the city would find itself "trotted up." Ponder Political Effect Of Rejecting Exemption

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Mar. 15.—(Political) prophets are pondering the effect on the state's voters of last Friday's rejection by the House of any exemption whatever for home owners. There are those who predict that the rejection of what they call the "mandate of the people" will be very hard to explain to the folks back home, but at the present writing a majority of observers feel that those legislators who voted against the exemption will be able to make out a satisfactory defense before their constituents. Certainly more than two-thirds of the Representatives who were in the hall when rise were counted believed they can "get by" for the vote was 37 against and only 25 for the $300 homestead exemption. The roll call was upon an amendment offered by Representative Walter Murphy, Rowan, and others to the tax machinery bill. At last fall's general election, a Constitutional amendment giving the legislature power to exempt homesteads up to $1,000 in valuation.

Wreck Fatal To Two Near Richmond, Va.

Richmond, Va., Mar. 15.—(AP)—Virginia state police headquarters said two men were killed and six others injured this afternoon when a passenger bus occupied by students from Rollins College in Florida collided with a car on United States Route No. One near here. The two killed were named as a Don Cheney of Orlando, Fla., and Malcolm Corlies of East Orange, N. J. Headquarters said the bus, which they understood belonged to Rollins College sidwiped an automobile near Stop 23 on the heavily traveled highway South from Richmond to Petersburg.

SEEK PREVENT 'SNEAK BILLS'

Attorney General's Office Reading All Proposed Acts

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Mar. 15.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey is in favor of speed and "has hoped to keep a full head of steam in the legislative boiler throughout the present session. But he does not believe in taking any chances or running any risks which might be costly to the state later on. As a result, some two or three weeks ago, the Governor asked the Attorney General to install a safety valve and speed regulator on the legislative machine to guard against the enactment of any dangerous or improper legislation.

As a result, the Attorney General has employed a temporary assistant whose business it is to read and study every bill enacted by both houses as soon as these bills reach the enrolling office and before they are enrolled and ratified. In an effort to discover any defects or errors, this assistant also keeps an eye out for "sneak" bills which might get through the house and senate during this last final rush. This special assistant to the Attorney General in charge of this important work is Jesse F. Milligan of Monroe.

Any defects found in bills or any bills regarded as dangerous or ill-advised are called to the attention of Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell and Assistant Attorney Generals Harry McMullen and S. Wade Brunson, who then go over the bills. If it is regarded as necessary to amend these bills, supplementary bills amending those already enacted are prepared, submitted to the chairman of the various committees for their introduction explained, with a request that they be enacted. Several such amendatory bills have already been introduced and enacted.

"Knowing of the dangers and difficulties during the closing days of any legislative session, I thought it best to have the Attorney General employ this special assistant to make a careful check of every bill enacted, to guard against any mistakes or measures which might prove costly later on," Governor Hoey said today. "Indications already are that this plan is proving very valuable and will prove even more so in these closing days of the legislative session when there is a tendency to enact bills too hurriedly."

By Preston Grover

Washington — The ingenious Secretary Wallace of agriculture has hit on a slick method of collecting from sugar refiners a chunk of back pay he thinks ought to go to American sugar growers.

The idea has to win approval of congress but there is a deep running impression here he will have his way, particularly since President sent a special message to congress to backstop him.

Under the Jones-Costigan act a half cent a pound tax was imposed on sugar to pay farmers for controlling production.

Then along came the reciprocal trade treaty with Cuba, under which an agreement was reached that no tax on sugar would exceed the amount in effect at the time of the treaty, which was the half-cent processing tax. In effect it amounted to an American subsidy to help troubled Cuba restore peace. There was much shooting going on down there at the time.

Then along came the Supreme Court decision upsetting AAA, including the processing tax on sugar. Yet while the tax no longer was collected, the refiners' price agreement continued in effect and Cuba continued to pour in its quota of sugar under a lowered tariff. As Wallace viewed it, this permitted both Cuba and the refiners to collect a price that included the amount of the tax while none of the tax was paid back to domestic sugar beet and cane growers.

That has been going on more than a year now with the result that Cuban growers are estimated to have profited about $20,000,000 while American refiners were also doing right well.

Several months ago Wallace called in the refiners trying to arrange a deal where the farmers could be paid part of the profits he felt were going to refiners, but they could not agree. Then he began talking of tacking a tax of three-fourths of a cent a pound on sugar as a means of benefitting domestic cane and beet growers. The growers have been receiving benefits under the soil conservation act but only a fraction of their former sugar payments.

So the President sent a message to congress recommending a three-fourths cent tax.

It caught the trade agreements division in the state department entirely by surprise and Cuba was not notified.

The upshot appears likely to be that Cuba will agree to the higher tax after some protesting, of course, for the island is profiting notably on sales to the United States. Its price on sugar shipped to the United States is almost three times the price it gets elsewhere.

Sam Bredon, head of the St. Louis Cardinals, probably is the only uniformed ball-playing president of a major league club. Bredon dons Redbird livery annually, engages in paper games, romps over training grounds. He says it fits him for the season of administrative work that falls to the commanding officer of baseball's greatest systematic ivory hunt.

As a youngster on New York's West Side, Bredon was an all-around athlete. Now he plays only golf and baseball, restricting the latter to spring training.

Like Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the world champion New York Yankees, Bredon wouldn't know what to do without a ball club. . . . Bredon thinks Pepper Martin epitomizes the "Cardinal idea." . . . That the Cardinals didn't get the better of the deal that brought Lon Warneke to the Gong and sent First Baseman Rip Collins to the Cubs, "because Collins is as good a first-baseman as Warneke is a pitcher." . . . That if he had $25,000 bet on a ball game, he would want Grover Cleveland Alexander to pitch for his side. . . . Alex in his prime, of course. . . . That Generalissimo Branch Rickey is the greatest judge of young baseball talent in the business. . . . That all ball-players want to sign with the Cardinals.

Bredon has disclosed preliminary details of a Cardinal road company that will tour the country for three months each year as a sort of school for youngsters anxious to have advice from their base ball elders—youngsters who may some day wear Redbirds on their shirt fronts.

Branch Rickey, Jr., is in charge of the new venture. The Cards are thinking of obtaining the services of 50-year-old Alexander as roving tutor to the pitchers.

"We would like to have Alex for this job," said Bredon. "Because a kid will remember what a man of Alex's reputation tells him."

The Cardinals, Bredon said, have been looking after Alex ever since he quit to go fishing. Bredon is certain he will never forget the climatic act in the 1926 World Series when "Old Pete" plodded painfully to the mound from the faraway bullpen and struck out young Tony Lazerri with the bases loaded.

Bredon's baseball philosophy is simply "you've gotta win." The bombastic Branch Rickey crashes into the public prints with startling regularity, but the President of the Gashouse Saturday night Social & Athletic Association is content to stay pretty much in the background, busying himself with see-

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights. If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adierika. Adierika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only. Adierika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months. Adierika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adierika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvellously refreshed. All Leading Druggists

Later, for those who pass the writer tests, Mr. Grumman's board of examiners will interview those who pass the written tests successfully.

Tr: The highest applicants to each position will be certified to the commission and one of the number selected for the position by the Unemployment Compensation Commission. Chairman Charles G. Powell of the commission, invites qualified persons to apply. Mr. Grumman will furnish complete information to applicants and applications form, which must be filed not later than midnight of March 31.

All of the places are not to be filled at once. Those of district and branch managers, interviewers and counselors, which are local, are to be added as the Employment Service is enlarged and extended into counties which do not now have offices. Stenographic and clerical positions will not be filled by examinations, but applicants must meet certain minimum standards established by the United States Employment Service.

Education and experience are shown on posters which have been placed in postoffices throughout the state. Salaries and minimum ages for the nine grades to be filled are as follows: director, $3,350 to $4,000 a year, minimum age 30 years; field supervisor, $2,400 to $3,200 a year, minimum age 25 years; statistical supervisor, $2,400 to $3,200 a year, minimum age 25 years; district managers, $1,800 to $2,600 a year; minimum age 25 years; branch office manager, $1,440 to $2,000 a year, minimum age 23 years; interviewers, minimum age 21 years, senior, $1,320 to $1,920 a year; junior, $1,020 to $1,440 a year; junior counselor, $1,230 to $1,920 a year, minimum age 23 years.

Assets increased over $5,000,000, the total amount now standing at $67,632,246.

Capital, surplus, special reserves and contingency funds total $4,200,000, representing an extra margin of safety and protection for the benefit of thousands of people who are insured in the Jefferson Standard.

More than $10,000,000 went into high-class mortgage loans. Approximately 40% of our total admitted assets is in first mortgage loans.

Real estate holdings decreased more than $850,000.

Policyholders and beneficiaries received $6,310,155 in 1936.

More than ninety-three million dollars have been paid to policyholders and beneficiaries since organization in 1907. Our record in this respect is one of which we are especially proud.

Income from all sources totaled $15,367,587, an increase of 10% over 1935.

25,000 policies were sold in 1936.

New life insurance sales totaled $50,120,000, an increase of 1.2% over 1935. This gratifying increase, when added to the millions of insurance on our books, brings the amount of life insurance in force in the Jefferson Standard to the substantial total of $348,000,000.

A Cappella Choir

Those who heard the Guilford College Cappella Choir yesterday afternoon in their sacred concert in the Robert H. Wright Auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College were deeply impressed by the beautiful tone, fine interpretation, and depth of feeling that characterized the entire program.

The tribute of silent appreciation, the rapt attention, during the singing and the quietude between the numbers, gave a Quaker-like spirit to the hour that meant far more than applause.

Dr. Ezra H. P. Weiss proved to be an excellent director, bringing out the tones and shading as if he were playing on one instrument. The tone color was remarkable, with the pianissimos growing softer and softer until the ear could scarcely catch the tones, then coming back in a long carefully graded crescendo until full volume was reached. The absolute pitch, commented on by musicians when the choir sang here before, was noticeable again yesterday. The remarkable quality of the humming, in one number especially was unusual.

In the first part of the program most of the numbers were by composers from the sixteenth through the eighteenth centuries.

The program opened with "In Mirth and Gladness," a harmonic number in florid style, with a chorale melody carried in the soprano part, "Christmas Factus Est," which was sung in the original Latin to keep the quality and mood of sacred music, "Blessed Saviour, Our Lord Jesus," in fugal style, and three other numbers, had the rich organ tones and cathedral effects of the early music. The other selections were of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, which included some Russian numbers. The arrangement of "Going Home," was very beautiful and was one of the favorites of the hour. The spirituals, "O Holy Lord" and "Were You There?" gave the American touch to the program.

This is the ninth season that Guilford College has been sending out its Cappella choir, which was one of the first in the South and ranks very high among student choirs. The members of the choir, Dr. Weiss says, are not specialists in music but are chosen from the rank and file of students, most of them getting little training in music except in the choir. Only three in the group here yesterday are music majors. There are more than sixty in the full choir, but only half of them, one bus load, go on concert trip at a time, one half going one time and the other, the next. The students never miss any classes. They have engagements for Sundays for nearby places and make longer tours during vacations. Next week, during their five-day spring vacation, they will make their annual northern trip, when they will sing in Washington City, Wilmington, Delaware, at Princeton University, and other places. Among the Sundays for which they are engaged later this spring are High Point, Sanford, and Southern Pines.

This is the second year Dr. Weiss has had charge of the choir. He came to this state directly from Kansas and before that had taught in Iowa and Ohio. The two Universities from which he received the most of his training are Northwestern and Columbia.

Vesper Services at College

"Standing at Life's Cross Roads" was the subject of the inspiring message brought to the college students at the Y. W. C. A. Vesper services by Rev. Clarence Patrick, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, last night.

Life today, he said, is entirely different from life of Biblical times, for there are so many things to do that it is almost impossible to get all of them accomplished, therefore emphasis should be put on things that are important and not on the unimportant things.

The crossroads of life, he pointed out, must be faced and students must know which road to choose. He classified the problems of students three groups, physical, mental and spiritual. In the last of these comes Religion, which should be positive and run through the entire active life. In closing, he said that students by putting their eyes upon The Light of the World and following it can solve the problems of the cross roads.

Miss Madeline Eakes sang a solo, "I Would Be True."

Seventh Grade Pageant

The seventh grade of the Training School climaxed their study of South America by giving a program in their classroom last week, in the form of a pageant which portrayed the history of the country son that continent, and through conversation, song and dance they gave a picture of present day cities, industries, physical features, customs, costumes, and the life of the people.

The guests were first impressed by the appropriate costumes and background of characteristic pictures drawn on the blackboard. Later they noticed that the songs and facts concerning the countries seemed quite spontaneous as each pupil efficiently participated in contributing something to the progress of the pageant. The various dances, accompanied by the castnet which added to their true Spanish effect, showed careful planning and preparation.

The pageant was a pupil product, aided and directed by Miss Kathleen Plumb, their teacher, in which every seventh grade pupil took part, each assuming responsibility for his own costume and for making some contributions to the program.

The pageant was given three times Friday: at 9:45 a. m. for the parents, at 11:30 a. m. for the sixth grades, and at 1:45 p. m. for the fifth grades.

PEACE ACTION

"More than any other factor, a thoroughly informed and alert public opinion in each country as to the suitable and desirable relationships with other nations and the principles underlying them, enables a government in time of crisis to act promptly and effectively for peace."

The forces of peace everywhere are entitled to function both through governments and through public opinion.

"The peoples of the world would be far wiser if they expended more of their hard-earned money in organizing the forces of peace and fewer of the present five billion dollars in educating and training their military forces."—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State of the United States.

there was no opposition to it in either house.
 The Flanagan anti-slot machine bill, designed to rid the state of the "house with virtually no opposition. One minor amendment was adopted to make the bill become effective June 30, instead of immediately, to permit the slot machine owners to get rid of their machines by that date. The bill, said to have been written by Superior Court Judge M. V. Barnhill of Rocky Mount, is regarded as being the most air-tight and evasion-proof anti-slot machine bill ever proposed in North Carolina.

A more extensive program of adult education will be carried on in North Carolina as a result of the passage by the Senate of the bill which had previously passed the house to set up a system of adult education and providing an appropriation of $25,000 therefor.

The people of the state will now be able to know just what a fresh egg is, or when a fresh egg is a fresh egg, as a result of the passage by the senate of the bill by Representative David P. Dellinger of Gaston. To define fresh eggs, establish grades (goodness, are they going to send them to school?) and to provide for inspection and enforcement of same. Eggs or grades? Some one remarked that some one should introduce a bill to permit the hens to organize an association, fix prices, hours during which egg-laying will be permitted, and putting the tax on roosters.

 The annual 4-H health checkup began last week. The following schools have been checked: Grimesland, Chicod, Winterville, Grifton, Pictou, Stokes, Falkland, Farmville and Red Oak. Tuesday these examinations will be continued at Gell Arthur, Belpor and Fountain. Wednesday night the Pierce club will meet for their checkup. These examinations are held as a part of the 4-H program each year in an effort to help club members to help themselves. Attention is called to bad posture, poor grooming, needed dental attention, eye strain and bad tonsils and adenoids. We find each year quite a bit of nail biting which indicates nervousness and doesn't help the appearance in the least. There are about as many founds found in this group as there are girls. Man About Manhattan
 By George Tucker
 New York. — Maria de Kammerer, a pretty Budapest girl, came back from California with a two-thirds finished portrait and a curious story. She went to the desert there several weeks ago to paint Libby Holman's five-year-old son, Topper.
 "But I brought the canvas back with me," she explained. "You see, I wanted to include a blue vase of yellow flowers in the picture. We ransacked California without finding any yellow blossoms pretty enough. Fancy coming back to New York for flowers that couldn't be located in California."
 Miss Holman, by the way, is building a manor in Connecticut, not far from Guy Lombardo's estate, and will take up permanent residence there. She thinks Connecticut's proximity to Broadway will make life happier.

Here is someone you should know, an affable, distinguished visitor with blond hair and a monocle. He is Angelos Metaxas of Greece, vice-president of the International Chamber of Commerce. . . . Of more interest still is his business. . . . He is one of the world's foremost authorities on brandy-making. . . . Do not ask Senator Metaxas how he achieves that blending of fragrance and taste in the brandies. . . . This will cause him to give you a smiling evasion, as the formula for this brandy has been a secret jealously guarded by the Metaxas family for 50 years. This much he will tell you: it is a distillation of wine which are made from grapes that grow nowhere else in the world save on the little island of Samos.
 But aside from wines, Professor Metaxas is disturbed over an untitled mission. . . . Before he left Athens a little girl (well, not too little) ran up and kissed me and cried, 'Give this kiss to President Roosevelt when you are in America. I admire him more than any man in the world.' Although I remained 10 days in Washington, and had a most delightful time, my obligation was not discharged. Your President is a very busy gentleman.

"Good Night, My Love."
 That's how the song goes, and Gordon and Revel, who wrote it, are confused and confounded. Four years ago they were gazing hungrily at sandwiches through delicatessen windows, wondering if they were ever going to eat again. Now their income is a quarter of a million.
 "About that song," declares Gordon, who is the larger and the more vociferous of the pair, "we hit on a new phrase and wrote a number we were certain would become a smash. Then we wrote a simple, sweet little tune which we thought would be fair to middlin'. The one we thought would startle America was 'One Never Knows, Does One?' . . . and that proves my point. For one never does know. It proved just another song, while the simple one we thought quite ordinary became immediately popular and is today the No. 1 song in the country. That's the one the band is playing now, 'Good Night, My Love.' . . . No sir, one never knows. . . .

The matter of passage of legislation to extend the city limits of Greenville will be heard before the House committee in Raleigh tomorrow. The matter has already been passed by the Senate but because of requests from some of those who oppose the extension the matter has been held up in the House pending the hearing. Already the city of Greenville is having to render fire and police protection to the outlying territory surrounding the city and there is no reason why this property should not be included in the corporate limits in order that it might bear its proper share of the tax burdens. There seems to be no good time to extend the city limits for there are always some who oppose it because it increases their tax burdens but if the property receives benefit from the city it should, in our opinion, bear its part of the tax burdens. It is to be hoped that the bill to extend the city limits of Greenville will receive favorable action on the part of the House of Representatives.

Legislative Chaff and Chatter

Reflector Bureau.
 Raleigh, March 15.—One of the features in which the new tax machinery act will differ from present law is a provision that failure to list poll taxes will bring the same penalty as failure to list a property tax. This, it is generally agreed, has been the practice in the past, but this is the first time it has been specifically written into the bill.
 Ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths of all the talking in the House of Representatives this session has been done by approximately ten percent of the membership.
 There are about dozen lawmakers of the 120 in the lower branch who are apparently unable to restrain themselves from talking on every question. As is often the case they are not by any means the most influential dozen by a long shot.
 Grade "A" talkers (rated on quantity and not quality of oratory) include Brooks of Johnston, Jones of Swain, Kimzey of Transylvania, Sentele of Brunswick, Giles of McDowell and McBryde of Cumberland.
 No effort has been made to rank them within the group, but any one of them is capable of saying exactly nothing in exactly eleven different ways.
 Grade "B" talkers include Abernethy of Nash, Lumpkin of Franklin, Stone of Rockingham, Fenner of Nash, Blankenship of Mecklenburg, and Pickens of Guilford.
 The last two named were originally Grade "A" windjammers but have learned better as the session progressed. Mr. Pickens, in particular, has recently shown signs of almost complete reformation.
 There will be at least one bone-dry county in North Carolina for the next two years, at least—Mitchell county. For not even wine or beer can be legally sold in Mitchell county as a result of the passage by the senate Saturday of the bill which had already passed the house, making Mitchell the most arid county in the state. Some had dubbed the bill "An act to give aid and assistance to the bootleggers in Mitchell county and to increase their business." Since the people of Mitchell county seemed to want the bill,

Proponents of the committee plan pleaded that exempting this income producing real-estate occupants in effect to taking other land owners for the benefit of the exempted organizations. They also pointed out, naming by name the Old Fellows Building in Raleigh, instances in which the exemption is, used as a cloak to protect the real-owners of the property who often are bondholders who have no real interest in the organization behind whose name they hide.
 There was no record vote on this amendment, though a standing division was called when Speaker Gregg Cahry said he could not determine whether the "ayes" or the "noes" had it.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER.

SYNOPSIS: After five years of work and play in New York, Eve Mannersfeld goes back to her 200-year-old farmhouse and orchard in Connecticut. Quite a practical George Cleveland, a young fruit experimenter who lives nearby, and Uncle Henry, an old family friend, help her clean and move the antiques from the attic. Eve plans to rent or sell, marry Guy, slim Denny and return to New York apartment life. But the tendency to stay in her beloved old home is strong. Denny comes for the weekend and Eve's old crowd drives out Sunday.

Chapter 16

Two Unwanted Kisses

EVE caught and kissed them indiscriminately. Marilyn in a 5-and-10 cent store hat and the expensive mokeskin coat, just a little worn at the cuffs, which had cost some friend a lot of money before it was passed on to Marilyn. Peter, long and lank and easy-moving, in his smart tweeds, with his warm immediate friendliness to all the world. Little cross Dillard Betz, looking incongruous in his derby and glasses against the country background, his expression that of someone who had just made a wisecrack and not been listened to. The man like a beau of the eighties, the Jack person Eve had first met with George Cleveland. She actually kissed him too in her excitement; and then wished she hadn't, because he returned the kiss too warmly. She pulled herself away angrily, and went on crying welcomes to her guests.

"You're just in time for brunch," she called gaily to them, beckoning them on up the drive.

"Darling, we made up our minds you shouldn't be homesick this first Sunday!" It was Marilyn, a whirlwind of affection. They were all dashing for the house. Little Judge cast one look about him, and then scampered around the corner of the house like a kitten let out of a basket, thin and neat and scurrying in the handsome overcoat made for some larger boy.

"We're seven-year locusts, darling," said Marilyn. "Have you got coffee? Mitzl will send Jean back to the hot-dog stand for everything else, but I said, 'I know my darling Eve has lots of coffee!'"

She paused at the open door and glanced in. "Oh, this is perfectly wonderful!" she said, taking in the stairs and the faint light at one admiring glance. "I love it, I'd like to live here forever, wouldn't you, Peter, darling?"

"You bet I would!" Peter put a brotherly hand on Eve's shoulder. "I love it too. But you know how Marilyn and I are, Eve; we always say we get as much happiness out of other people's lovely possessions as they do; we may be failures but we're happy failures. And we have each other." Peter and Marilyn squeezed each other's hands behind Eve's back, which they both encircled.

Mitzl Eyes The Architecture

MITZL had thrown her rough beautiful fur-collared motoring coat to the nearest man and freshened her face carefully in the old eagle-topped mirror Uncle Henry had hung in the hall the last thing. She was visibly stiffening a little as the excellence of the architecture dawned upon her. Mitzl was one of those people who will be pleasant and praise you to the skies only so long as you have nothing that can come into competition with them or their possessions. The thought flashed through Eve's mind, not for the first time, but she pushed it down. She must be getting really jealous of Mitzl in a prewar way worthy of Mitzl herself. Anyway, having the gang here—bless their hearts!—was fun enough, Mitzl or no Mitzl looking for something to damn with faint praise. Eve felt her old role as the center of the group around her again.

"Ellen and Denny are here too!" she said joyfully. "And Ellen's making waffles! Come in, you angels!"

"Quite a charming place, if a really clever man did it over," said Mitzl brightly. "I only came to bring these dear people. I'm visiting my friends the Cleveland; they have a wonderful estate just above you. . . . Jean, go to the Cleveland estate and explain to Mrs. Cleveland that I'll be there after luncheon. No, put the basket of bottles on the porch first. . . . Dill, darling, don't look so blue. I'm sure you'll like the country when you get used to it. . . . Jack, stop staring at me like that, you fascinating devil, and bring the wraps in."

Denny clattered down, tall and boyishly excited in his gray trousers and blue pullover, his fair hair flying. "Do I smell coffee—Hey, this is grand! All we need is Times Square and the Library lions! Here, I'll show 'em round, Eve!"

Eve saw Mitzl turn from her com-

quettish hold on Jack's lapels, and rush at Denny with a scream: "Denny, you wretched man! Mitzl spent the afternoon yesterday looking for you!" In spite of remembering Denny's line about Mitzl's "acting as if a man was a gymnastic bar," the slight of Mitzl's two small red-nailed hands affectionately clutching Denny's shoulders, and her plump black-eyed face tipped up close to his as she pulled his head down and bestowed a possessive kiss, made Eve's face blush and her hands clench. She managed to call to the others, "We'll have food on the table by the time you put your wraps upstairs," and dive through the dining-room door with a wave of the hand. She heard a step behind her; she turned with a relieved smile—Denny, bless his heart—getting away—

Killian Misses A Slap

BUT it wasn't Denny, it was Jack Killian; apparently still slumming in Bohemia, for he said, "Every time I see you I think you're cuter," and proceeded to kiss her again, not in any easy comradely way, or even with Mitzl's air of complacent ownership, but with deliberate passion. If Denny had not opened the door just then, Eve would have given Killian an old-fashioned slap. As it was she remained quite quiet for Denny to see that sauce for the goose was sauce for the gander. Killian, naturally, released her in some embarrassment. There was no time for anybody to do anything more, before the rest were streaming hungrily into the dining room. Peter brought plates, Ellen came in with a pile of waffles and an apronful of kitchen silver, having intelligently dug it out of the drawer where Uncle Henry had put it some days back.

Mitzl's plump black-eyed face tipped up close to Denny's as he pulled his head down for a kiss.

"Isn't this grand?" Marilyn said, as they all sat down to waffles and coffee on the bare table. "Eve ought to move this place into Central park."

"Or establish an airplane service," said Denny, buttering a waffle.

They ate and talked and laughed in the old way. Quantities, it seemed, had happened in the week Eve had been in exile. She piled their plates with more food and laughed and talked excitedly with them, basking in their company.

Weaving's The Rage On Arkansas Farms

CARDING THE WOOL

Fayetteville, Ark.—(AP)—The old-fashioned spinning wheel is whirring again in Arkansas farmhouses in a revival of the art of weaving. Miss Sybil D. Bates, extension specialist in home industries, says farm women are finding the spinning wheel and loom sources of added income and greater beauty in the home.

Pioneer weaving instruments, unused since Civil War days, have been brought out of their storage places and reconditioned, she says. Some have bought their equipment new. Others, more industrious, have made their own.

As a result of the sudden increase in popularity, the extension service, in co-operation with the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, is sponsoring demonstrations in spinning and weaving in 21 counties.

ALL INTERESTS TO ADVERTISE

Advertising Campaign For State to Be Widespread

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Mar. 13.—All interests in North Carolina will have a part in planning a systematic advertising campaign which will be designed to serve the entire state and not any particular section of sections, according to plans of R. Bruce Etheridge, director of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Mr. Etheridge will have the task of steering the big quarter-million dollar campaign to advertise North Carolina during the next two years.

The bill authorizing this campaign was finally enacted into law at the legislature's Edenton session Thursday and as a result there has not yet been time to draft definite, concrete specifications of what will be done.

There is going to be, however, no discrimination in favor of one section as opposed to another; and no legitimate enterprise or interest is going to be denied a part in formulating plans for the campaign.

It is Mr. Etheridge's idea that an advisory committee should be formed, the group to be composed of one member from each interested group in the state. Thus the hotel operators would be asked to name one member, the railroads another, the state's chambers of commerce a third, and so on through the list of enterprises which will have a distinct, vital interest in the results of the campaign.

"I want every group to have a say-so in formulating plans," said Mr. Etheridge. "To the end that no interest can say it has been slighted or that if we had listened to it we wouldn't have 'thrown away' money."

Not only will the program be all-inclusive as to those who formulate it, but it will be all-inclusive as to the methods of advertising, according to the conservation and development head.

Thus, there will be a systematic insertion of advertising matter in leading periodicals and newspapers of the country; there will be contact work in attracting industries to the state; there will be all forms of publicity which promise results.

All of North Carolina's resources, too, will be placed prominently before the country and will be kept there by every available medium. The state's industries, its agricultural advantages, its power possibilities and its business opportunities will be broadcast as well as its scenic and recreational features.

Behind such a program, Mr. Etheridge believes, the whole state will rally and through such a program North Carolina can be made known to all the world as a land of boundless opportunity.

It will not be a program for personal advertising or for the advancement of any group or faction; but a great forward-looking program for the betterment of the state.

Upon Senator Lee L. Graveley and Representative F. Webb Williams, committee chairman who steered the advertising measure through the General Assembly is

Nazis Hunt Head Hunters.

Frankfurt-on-Main (AP)—A German expedition to the Netherlands East Indies, sponsored by the ex-Kaiser's friend, the famous German savant Leo Frobenius, has left here for the Molucca island of Ceram, whose inland population reputedly consists largely of head-hunters. One of its chief objects is to trace the links between native cultures in all parts of the globe.

Brazilian Mules Get Beer Bath

Fortaleza, Brazil (AP)—In some northern sections of this state of Ceara, where a year-long drouth has hit hardest, travelers arriving here say that they saw farmers bathing their mules and horses in beer as a sort of libation to conjure the divine powers of rain.

BEER SIGN IS BARRED FROM WRECKED SHIP

San Francisco (AP)—The steamer Obichan is breaking up on the rocks of the Golden Gate, but in the eyes of a real seaman she still has some dignity.

Promoters approached William J. Mitchell, who has bought the ship for salvage, and proposed a bill board advertising beer be erected on the deck. Said Mitchell:

"I told those guys: 'She's still a ship, rocks or no rocks, and no sign go on her.' Business may be bad out there's still a little sentiment in the old frame."

Sao Paulo, Brazil (AP)—Luiz Russini, 20 years old, fell asleep on February 1, awoke February 18 and upbraided his physicians because they had failed to rouse him from his puzzling stupor in time to permit his participation in a carnival.

being bestowed much praise for the capable and efficient manner in which they saw to it that the bill was not wrecked on the shoals of "economy," nor allowed to run wild before a gale of "hot air."

Competent observers believe that there is now possible for the state such a program as has in the past put California, Florida and several other states well upon the road to permanent prosperity.

More Money for Advertisers in This City of Super Sales.

The big hand of newspaper advertising again puts more money into the stores of Greenville merchants.

In Greenville, annual retail sales have increased to $654.99 per person. This sum is $508.88 larger than the North Carolina average of $146.11. Authentic figures recently released establish these facts.

Everywhere in the Greenville market, people possess their highest incomes in many years. This means insistent desires for new comforts, conveniences and necessities. Now as never before, sound merchandising turns these moneyed desires into ready sales.

There's bigger Buying-Power in Greenville! It's a noteworthy tribute to merchants following modern methods of service and selling. And what a great testimonial to the business-building ability of good newspaper advertising!

This is the first advertisement in a series to inform advertisers on Greenville Buying Power in important classifications of business. Read and keep these advertisements.

Total retail sales in Greenville show the substantial increase of $1,432,000.00 in two years.

Make every family in Greenville and the entire trading territory familiar with your stocks, service and prices. Do this at lowest cost through complete-coverage newspaper advertising.

Infrequent advertising results in once-in-awhile trade. Frequent newspaper advertisements build firm business friendships, steady customer calls.

Miss Earhart First To Try Equator Sunset Trail

ROUTE—Amelia Earhart proposes to circle the globe the "hard way."

By SAM JACKSON (AP Feature Service Writer)

Oakland, Calif., March 15.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam's goal is to make the first "real" flight around the world.

If successful, she will achieve these "firsts" according to her ground arrangements director, Commander W. T. Miller, airways superintendent of the bureau of air commerce.

First woman to fly around the world, first woman to fly from the U. S. to Australia, and the first person to fly the globe at its greatest circumference—the equator.

"Other fliers," says Commander Miller, "have just flown around the North pole."

4,000-Mile Range. Miss Earhart has chosen the hard way—circling the earth at its greatest circumference.

Her twin-motored Lockheed Vega sustains a 15,000 pound load and carries 1,150 gallons of gas with a 4,000 miles cruising range.

In the approximately 2,500-mile hop from lonely Howland island in mid-Pacific to Lae, New Guinea, she will fly outside shipping lanes. While she will pass over numerous islands there is no place to bring down her land plane except the doubtful terrain of a race track at Rabaul, New Britain. At Lae she will use the field and shops that accommodate the planes serving the Bulolo gold fields in the interior of New Guinea.

Charting the Weather. Intensive mapping of the weather is in progress in Oakland to help safeguard the first leg to Hawaii. Pan-American Clipper service and mass naval flights have already dispelled fear of this 2,410 mile hop, but aviation officials have not forgotten the tragedies attending the Dole race in 1927 and the last such flight when Lt. Chas. C. P. Ullm and two companions were lost at sea.

Honolulu will not get to welcome the famous flier as she will land at Wheeler field, Schofield barracks, in the interior of Oahu.

To 'Initiate' Island Field. At Howland island Miss Earhart will be the first flier to land on a new field. There are only 11 residents to welcome her—all boys from Hawaii—but the coast guard cutter Shoshone will stand by.

Flight navigator as far as Darwin, Australia, will be Captain Haring Manning, old sailing partner of celebrated Captain George Fried. Besides charting their course by sun and stars, the two will employ the radio range compass, a sort of "homing" device which guides the plane to any given radio station. Two 50-watt radio sets will enable Miss Earhart to keep in touch with the world.

HOPE ADJOURN BY WEEK'S END

Many Seriously Doubt Decks Can Be Cleared, However

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Mar. 15.—Adjournment by the end of this week is still regarded as possible by legislative leaders, in spite of the jam-packed calendars in both houses and the flood of bills still coming from the committees. But a good many seriously doubt if both houses will be able to clear their decks and slates and wind up the session by Saturday as much as the members want to get through and go home and as hard as Speaker Gregg Cherry is putting the spurs to the house.

For indications are that by tomorrow the senate will be just about as deeply snowed under with bills as the house has been, due to the flood of measures being sent over from the house, and that Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton is going to have to borrow Speaker Cherry's spurs if he is going to get the senate cut of the trenches by Saturday.

The house will find more than 100 bills on its calendar when it meets again today, while the senate will also have a large calendar as a result of the bills which came over from the house Saturday and from committees. There were 101 public bills on the house calendar Saturday, in addition to many local bills. And while the house and senate both held public sessions Saturday, the house holding both morning and afternoon sessions, it left more than 50 public bills still to be acted on when it adjourned Saturday afternoon. This number, augmented by the additional bills reported in by the calendar and other committees, has increased the house calendar to well over 100 bills for tonight's session, despite the fact that Speaker Cherry and his well-oiled legislative machine ground bills through Saturday at the rate of almost one a minute.

Much of the morning session in the house Saturday was taken up with the explanation of the so-called "Ickes Bills" introduced by Representative Victor S. Bryant of Durham, to make it possible for counties, cities and towns to issue bonds for self-liquidating projects, also for slum clearance work, and to participate in Public Works Administration loans and grants. Little was understood about the bills at first and Bryant spent considerable time explaining them. They were finally passed with virtually no opposition.

The house also passed the bill authorizing a bond issue of $675,000 for a new state office building and for repairs to present state buildings. It is understood that an effort will be made to get a PWA grant that will increase the amount available to approximately $1,000,000. The committee substitute for the bill by Representatives Eagles, Sprull and Abernethy, providing for a tax on agricultural lime and for a tonnage tax, was also passed by the house.

When the house meets tonight it is expected to reach the bills reported in by Representative Con C. Johnston of Iredell to transfer the state highway patrol and the state driver's license division from the Department of Revenue to the Governor's office, also to create a new bureau of identification and investigation, to cooperate with the highway patrol and all law enforcement agencies in the state. Some hot debate on these bills is expected when they are reached in the house, as there is some strong opposition to them.

It is no secret that the Department of Revenue, admitted to be as powerful politically as any state department, is opposed to the removal of these divisions from its jurisdiction, also that the State Highway and Public Works Commission would very much like to have the patrol, at least, returned under its sheltering wing.

So while these bills provide for the creation of a new highway safety commission, Representative Johnston already virtually admits that the bill's cannot pass as they now stand and that he will agree to amendments merely transferring these divisions to the Governor's office, without the creation of any new commission. They will then have to go to the senate for further action.

There are indications that the house and senate may disagree over some of the amendments adopted by the senate to the school machinery act and that the house may refuse to concur in these amendments which would send the bill to a conference committee.

Explosion In Manila Fatal To 28 Persons

Manila, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Twenty-eight persons were killed in a terrific explosion of a Chinese fireworks today at Passay a suburb of Manila. Some officials estimated 20 to 50 were missing.

Fire followed the explosions. The force of the blast was felt over a two-mile radius.

Most of the victims were Filipino women, who had no chance to escape through the one exit of the plant.

Police reported a number jumped from windows into a swamp where they were trapped in mud and water and were drowned.

The explosion tore the plant asunder and numerous bodies were buried in flaming wreckage.

New York Cotton

New York, Mar. 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened firm, 20 to 27 higher. Improved Liverpool cables and active foreign and commission house buying encouraged the upturn.

May rallied from 14.10 to 14.18 and was selling at 14.16 after the first half hour when prices showed net gains of 19 to 22 points. March fluctuated erratically, quickly easing 20 points to 14.46 under spot house selling and then recovering to 14.57.

May, which had eased from 14.24 to 14.17, rallied to 14.21 by midday, when prices generally were 18 to 27 points net higher.
