GREENVILLE ASSURED OF WATERWAY PROJECT

Moore And Aspinwall Get 40-Year Sentences Each In Assault And Robbery Case

BOTH ENTERED GUILTY PLEAS

Lem Pleasant, Blind as Result of Brutal Attack Last December 28, Chief Witness for State; Both Defendants Take the Stand

Bernard Moore and Bernice Aspinwall, two young white men, were sentenced to 40 years each in prison after they had entered pleas of guilty to assaulting and robbing G. Lem Pleasant, local drug store owner and taxi cab service operator, on the Old Stokes road near here the night of December 28.

SENTENCED TO 40 YEARS EACH

Bernard Moore (right) and Bernice Aspinwall (left) were taken to State's prison in Raleigh this afternoon as the last chapter in one of the worst crimes in Pitt county. Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst left here with the two prisoners immediately after Judge E. H. Cramer sentenced them to 40 years each in the penitentiary for brutally attacking G. Lem Pleasant near here the night of December 28.

All evidence was completed this morning and only pleas by the attorneys and the sentence remained for this afternoon.

Attorneys said the maximum term to which the defendants could be sentenced under the charges was 40 years. In sentencing the two the judge described the crime as one of the worst in his jurisdiction. He pointed to Mr. Pleasant, declaring that he would never be able to look upon his wife or children.

Moore was represented by S. J. Everett and Aspinwall by Ham Hannah, while Judge Albion Dunn was employed as private prosecution to aid Solicitor D. M. Clark.

A plea of nolo contendere was offered for Moore, but was rejected by the State. Efforts then were made to have the three charges—robbery with firearms, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and larceny of an automobile—embodied in one count, but Judge E. H. Cramer, presiding jurist, refused. Counsel for the defendants contended the first count, robbery with firearms, embraced all the charges.

Failing in these efforts the defense attorneys entered pleas of guilty as charged in the bill of indictment.

The State called Emore Edwards as the first witness. Aspinwall stayed at Edwards' home prior to the attack and the witness declared that Aspinwall had approached him about getting Charles McGowan to take them down the highway, then taking his car and going on to Georgia. Prior to this, the witness declared, Aspinwall was a "fine, nice boy" so far as he knew.

Mr. Pleasant was then called to the witness stand. Blind as a result of the attack, he was led to the witness chair and told to address his remarks to the judge, sitting to his right.

A hush fell over the court room as the victim began relating the tragic occurrence. The room was tense almost to capacity. The scribes and practically every other space in the room were filled by spectators.

Mr. Pleasant opened his testimony by stating that he was 38 years old, married and had two children. He told of receiving the call for a taxi to go to the Busy Bee cafe and said that he answered the call himself, the driver having been out at the time.

He said the boys came from a dark spot, one entering the front and the other the back seat of the automobile. He said he drove out the old Stokes road at their request and shortly after he turned off the Greenville-Bethel highway he was hit in the back of the head. "My first thought was that I had been struck by lightning," he said. "I was struck again and I thought perhaps I had driven into a live electric wire and was being shocked," he added. He said he did not know but what his passengers were suffering the same results. He declared that he could see what he thought was a bright light, but was unable to make out any object.

He related that the boy in the front seat drew a pistol on him and the one in the back searched him, taking something over $2 in cash. Saying that he was asked if he had any more money, he declared that he told them he could get some more by returning to Greenville. After they had beaten him severely over the head with a hammer (Continued on page two)

SPOKESMEN ON COURT REFORM AGAINST MOVE

Grange Representative and College Professor are Heard

CHIEF EXECUTIVE RETURNING HOME

First of Moves Dealing with Sit-Down Strikers Is Offered In Congress

Washington, March 25.—(AP)—A farm spokesman and a college professor argued against President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan today. They contended it was both threatening and coercive toward the Supreme court.

Fred Brechtman, representative of the National Grange, told the Senate judiciary committee the President's bill was "an attempt to intimidate and coerce the Supreme court."

Dean Young Smith, of Columbia University law school, first law college head to appear against the plan, said Mr. Roosevelt's proposed enlargement of the court, unless justices over 70 would retire, would threaten the independence of the court and might permanently impair the confidence of the people in that court.

The President, who left his bill to the care of legislative lieutenants while he traveled to Warm Springs, Ga., for a brief rest from capitol duties, was expected to return homeward tomorrow to face the sit-down strike situation.

The first bill dealing directly with sit-downers was prepared to day by Representative Dies (D. Tex.), who recently proposed an investigation of the new labor weapon. Dies would declare the sit-down strikes to be a violation of federal anti-trust laws, subject to a fine of $5,000, a year's imprisonment, or (Continued on Page Eight)

J. L. Little, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education

GREEN LIGHTS HONORS LITTLE

Publication Pays Tribute to Member of Board Education

Green Lights, publication of Greenville High School, this week pays tribute to J. L. Little, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education. A notice of this city for the past 58 years. Mr. Little became a member of the first school board when Greenville's public school system was established in 1903. He has served on the board continuously since that time and since 1919 has been chairman.

Green Lights' editorial follows: "Mr. J. L. Little has been chairman of the Board of Education of Greenville since 1919. Under his leadership, the entire physical plant of the Greenville schools has been re-built. Every building in Greenville is a comparatively new building. The oldest building is the Fleming street school which was built in 1924. Mr. Little has also consistently stood for a progressive school program and has demanded that every decision affecting the Greenville schools be made in the light of what is best for the child. He has also shown the ability to keep the School Board working together in a harmonious and cooperative fashion. He believes that there should be differences of opinion, but that there is a way ultimately for all members to agree on the best way of doing the thing. The teachers, the principals, and the superintendent know that he stands for justice and fair play and that no employee of the Greenville schools will be allowed at any time to suffer an injustice. He believes in democracy and not in dictatorship in dealing with people."

GREAT BRITAIN BACKS FRANCE FOR BLOCKADE

Insurgent Bombers Rain Explosives In Madrid Streets

ASSAULT LASTS SEVERAL HOURS

Government Scouts Report Sudden Disappearance Italians from Battle Lines

London, Mar. 25.—(AP)—Great Britain backed up forceful action by France today to halt any further landing of Italian soldiers in Spain, agreeing it necessary to a warship blockade of the war-torn peninsula.

An accord by the two powers through Foreign Minister Delbos of France and the British Ambassador to France, Sir George Clerk, was disclosed today.

They agreed, with full knowledge of other European powers within the non-intervention committee, on "all points" of a program to make non-intervention completely effective and decided it was imperative to prevent, even by force, any other Italian landings.

Madrid, Mar. 25.—(A)—Insurgent bombers rained explosives on Madrid for five hours today, halting their sky attacks only when artillery batteries took up the battle and began to fire shells in the beleaguered capital.

The insurgent assault began shortly before midnight and lasted until dawn. In bright moonlight, the aerial raiders, usually single planes, circled the city, losing heavy bombs on the central districts. As one plane finished its deadly task, another appeared to take up the assaults.

Valencia, Mar. 25.—(AP)—Spanish government serial scouts today reported a "sudden disappearance" of all Italians from insurgent divisions on the Guadalajara front Northeast of Madrid.

Officials announced the aerial observers spotted insurgent reinforcements of Spanish Fascist following the recent insurgent defeat retreat on the Guadalajara salient.

But there was no trace whatsoever of the Italian units which participated in the unsuccessful insurgent drive toward Madrid.

LABOR SKY OF BRIGHTER HUE

Chrysler Sit - Down Strikers. Evacuate Detroit Plants

(By Associated Press)

A new victory for peaceful negotiations carried hopes for further inroads today on the nation's wave of industrial disputes.

Six thousand sit-downers quit in swirling snow the eight Chrysler motor plants they had held in Detroit since March 8 after approving an agreement looking toward ending their differences with the firm.

The exit of the strikers was a signal for resumption of conferences between Walter Chrysler, head of the firm, and the C. I. O.'s chief, John Lewis. They will thresh out union demands for exclusive bargaining rights.

The mottled labor horizon turned a more rosate hue today as hundreds of the 6,000 workers in strike-bound Chrysler Motor plants ratified an agreement to evacuate and government leaders indicated they would act soon to restore industrial harmony.

Strikers in possession of the Chrysler corporation's Desota plant at Detroit since March 8 agreed to vacate when the conditions to further negotiations were presented then by their union leaders at an early hour.

The evacuation proposal was approved yesterday, by John Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, at a conference with Walter Chrysler and Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan. Discussions have opened on the major issue of bargaining rights.

Labor troubles, including the current wave of sit-down strikes, were expected to receive attention of President Roosevelt and congressional leader at a week-end meeting.

White House officials said the President telephoned Governor Murphy last night to express pleasure with the Chrysler strike agreement. Secretary of Labor Perkins also reacted favorably.

Doubt of the Federal government's power to intervene in sit-down strikes was cast by several administration leaders, including William Bankhead (D. Ala.) and Joseph Robinson, Senate majority leader.

Taxi cab strikes held sway in Detroit, Chicago and Toledo, Ohio. At Toledo one man was slugged and another wounded by a shot gun blast in the first outbreak of violence of the 10-day old strike of 600 cab drivers.

HEAVY SHOCKS IN CALIFORNIA

Earthquake is Felt In Wide Area But No Damage Reported

Los Angeles, Mar. 25.—(AP)—A heavy earthquake shook Los Angeles at 8:49 a. m. today.

It was a double shock, felt strongly through a large area in Southern California, but no damage was reported.

Buildings shook in downtown Los Angeles, Glendale, Santa Monica and Anaheim reported the strong tremor but observers said it was not enough to cause damage in the area.

At San Diego a series of three earthquake shocks was felt at 8:50 a. m. Doors and windows rattled in office buildings in the downtown area, but persons in the street did not feel the shock.

The motion was east-west, starting with a slight sway and increasing intensity, lasting many seconds. Long Beach felt the shock considerably different from the 1933 shock which was a heavy jolt while this, a much milder one and doing no damage, there was a swaying motion.

Twelve-Foot Channel To Come Within Four Miles of City

PROJECT HAILED BY BUSINESS MEN

Pointed Out There Will Be Necessary Delay Before Actual Work Is Started

Washington, March 25.—A major waterway improvement for North Carolina and one of the largest in recent years got approval today of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors and the Chief of Engineers when Representative Lindsay Warren's project for Tar river passed its greatest hurdle.

It calls for a channel 12 feet deep and 100 feet wide from Washington to Hardee Creek about 4 miles below Greenville, and then enters Hardee Creek about 1500 feet with a turning basin in the Creek 300 feet wide and 300 feet long. The estimated cost is $328,000 with $49,000 annually for maintenance. Local interests must provide for the disposal of dredged material, construct a public wharf on Hardee Creek as well as an improved road connecting it with the main highway. The report now goes to the Secretary of War who will transmit it to Congress for inclusion in a future Rivers and Harbors bill.

While shallow draft boats formerly operated on the river, from Washington to Tarboro they were discontinued many years ago in account of the constant silting of the river. For the last 40 years efforts have been made to open up the river, but each time the Engineers would report unfavorably. Shortly after he entered Congress, Mr. Warren re-opened the matter, but another unfavorable report came in. After the required time of seven years had elapsed, Mr. Warren secured another survey, and this likewise met with an unfavorable report, but Mr. Warren promptly filed an appeal with the Board of Engineers and Harbors, at which time a delegation of citizens from Pitt county offered testimony. The Board sent it back to the District Engineer for a complete survey, and again the District Engineer reported unfavorably. But he was overruled by the Division Engineer at Richmond, Va., who made the recommendations, which were today approved by the Board.

Congressman Warren also successfully followed every step and was being congratulated today upon his victory. He said that he had received splendid cooperation in the preparation of the case from Greenville business men, and particularly praised S. F. Dickerson, Secretary Eastern Carolina Association, Jas. S. Picklen and J. B. Kittrell.

Congressman Warren pointed out today that it would be several years before work would be started. After it reaches congress, the project must wait until there is another Rivers and Harbors bill. Congress generally passes one about every five years and the last bill was in 1935. There is some talk, however, that there might be a general bill at this session. After it is passed by Congress it must then wait for an allotment out of the general lump sum appropriation for rivers and harbors. Sometimes it is two or three years after passage before an allotment is made as Congress never appropriates enough annually to take care of approved waterway projects.

The project from Greenville to Tarboro was disapproved and was stopped at Hardee Creek so as to obviate the necessity of locks near Greenville which would have carried the cost into millions of dollars. Many of the previous disapprovals were based on the fact that locks would be required. The project when completed will cause Tar River to conform with the standard depth of the Inland Waterway.

Macclesfield Farmer Found Dead In Pool

Macclesfield, Mar. 25.—(AP)—The body of J. Frank Brown, 65, prominent farmer of the Crisp section of Edgecombe county, was removed from the waters of a pond near here early today after an all night search.

While no official investigation has been made, searchers who found the body in the center of the fish pond, expressed the opinion Brown, who had removed his shoes, had waded into the pond in quest of fish and had either suffered a heart attack or had died from exposure.

Mrs. Brown said she had taken her husband to the pond yesterday morning to fish. When she returned in the afternoon, he could not be found and she spread the alarm. Neighbors organized a searching party and dragged the pond last night. The body was found about 8 o'clock this morning.

TWENTY DEAD IN BUS WRECK

Three Survivors in Illinois Accident Seriously Injured

Salem, Ill., Mar. 25.—Mrs. Emily Thomas, wife of the driver of the private bus which crashed and burned here yesterday, died at 5:45 a. m. today, bringing the toll of the tragedy to 20.

She died in Salem community hospital after a night long battle of physicians to save her life.

The three survivors of the accident, which carried members of a professional rolling skating team to death in the flaming wreckage of a privately owned motor bus, remained in a serious condition. They were removed early today to a St. Louis hospital, Richard Kaplan, Gary, Ind., general counsel for the trans-continental roller derby association, Inc., announced at Salem.

John Crenkmore, Miami, showed improvement, although his condition remained critical, he said.

Mrs. Thomas' husband Dick Thomas, Chicago, driver of the Don Flanery, Kansas City, Kansas, skaters also suffered severe burns.

SEVEN DIE IN JERSEY BLAZE

Mother, Five Children and Brother-in-Law Are Victims

Jersey City, N. J., Mar. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Burkhardt, 54-year-old widow, her five youngest children and a brother-in-law burned to death early today in a three-alarm fire which razed a three story frame building.

All available firemen and operators in the city were called to battle the fire. Policemen and firemen awakened members of three families sleeping in an adjacent three-story building and aided them in reaching the street. Firemen kept the flames from spreading to this building and a garage.

Rose Burkhardt, 20, another daughter, was the only occupant of the building to escape. Awakened by smoke, she ran down the stairs and was carried to the street nearby.

Townsend said bloodhounds were used in the search last night when several persons escaped after stealing an automobile from in front of a hotel and overturning the machine near here. The trail was lost near the railway station, he said.

Fayetteville, Mar. 25.—(A)—Officers and patrolmen from this area were called to Pinehurst early this morning after officers there reported Bill Payne, escaped desperado and two companions had overturned a stolen car near there and escaped into the woods nearby.

After a conference with mill officials, Ben Edwards, representing the strikers, said the mill made no concessions other than to promise increase of wages "as soon as it could be worked out."

Mill officials voluntarily took off part of the speed of the machines Monday after the strike began. Edwards said "everybody was happy" and was glad to get back to work.

Cliff Taylor and Furley Thompson, meanwhile were at liberty under $100 bond each for a recorder's court hearing Monday on charges of secret assault growing out of the strike.

Record Batting Average Established By Governor

Raleigh, Mar. 25.—(AP)—Governor Hoey, as head of the dominant Democratic party, steered the 1937 General Assembly to sine die adjournment over the shortest course traveled by a Legislature since North Carolina went into the big business of running its schools, highways and prisons on a state-wide basis.

North Carolina is the only state in which the Governor has no veto power. But since the inauguration pledges of the Chief Executive frequently are the promises of the Democratic party, "must" measures are usually enacted into law.

One hundred and sixty of the 170 members of the Legislature were Democrats. Governor Hoey, a seasoned statesman, a veteran party leader, a master strategist, fared even better with the assembly than have most of his recent predecessors.

On inauguration day, in a speech which was almost unanimously acclaimed by the state's press, he outlined 16 specific recommendations. Observers, who rate Governor's prestige on the success of "must" legislation, today had chalked up the following score for Hoey:

Won 12 Lost 2 Compromise 1. In doubt 1. Governor Hoey successfully advocated:

1. Free basal textbooks for elementary school children. A bill called for a $1,500,000 bond issue to provide the books was enacted into law.

2. Reorganization of the state highway and public works commission, with the division of the state into highway districts. A measure calling for the appointment by the Governor of 10 highway commissioners and a chairman, who will divide the state into 10 districts, was ratified.

3. Cheaper automobile license tags. The minimum charge for license plates was cut from $8 to $7, and the cost reduced from 40 to 35 cents per hundred pounds of car weight.

4. Participation in the Federal Social Security program. Aid to the indigent blind, aged, and dependent children laws were passed. With the unemployment compensation measure, enacted in a special session called by former Governor J. C. B. (Continued on page two) er than Federal control. A bill calling for the ratification by this state of the Federal Child Labor Amendment was killed. Passed was a state child labor bill prohibiting children under 16 years of age working in industry.

Also enacted was a measure to limit hours of work in industry to 55 a week for men, the first state limitation on them, and 48 for women. Many businesses and industries were exempted.

The Governor advocated and lost: 1. Reappointment of the membership of the House of Representatives on the basis of the 1930 census. A bill calling for reappointment was killed in the House.

2. No action on the liquor question "until another opportunity is given for a full and fair expression of public opinion at the ballot box." The Legislature enacted a county option liquor law.

The Governor advocated and a compromise was reached on a national exposition to advertise North Carolina. The law-makers appropriated $250,000 for the "systematic" advertising of the state.

The Governor also appointed to study the possibility of this state's participating in the New York World's Fair and the Golden Gate Exposition, but no appropriation was made.

State officials disagree as to whether the Governor won or lost on a recommendation that the practice of diverting highway funds to other purposes cease.

During the last two years, an even $1,000,000 has been transferred annually from the highway fund to the general fund. During the next two years, a general fund tax of 3 per cent on the retail sales of gasoline will be levied for general funds diversion.

Declaring that he has not seen since he was shot, Mr. Pleasant told of dragging himself down the road

Wagner-Nicholson
Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Flanagan announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Rosamond Flanagan Nicholson to Mr. Tyrus Irvin Wagner on Thursday, March twenty-fifth. One thousand nine hundred thirty-seven Greenville, North Carolina

Wagner-Nicholson
The marriage of Mrs. Rosamond Flanagan Nicholson to Tyrus Irvin Wagner was solemnized at high noon today at the home of the bride's parents on Evans street, in a simple but impressive ceremony. The home throughout was beautifully decorated in lilies, carnations and roses. A bridal motif of white and green was emphasized.

Proceeding the ceremony, Mrs. J. Paul Davenport played a short program of nuptial music. Mrs. J. Knott Proctor sang "All For You" by Bertrand Brown. Mrs. Davenport wore a gown of brown crepe with shoulderette of yellow roses, and Mrs. Proctor a gown of Chartreuse crepe, with shoulderette of red roses.

As Mrs. Davenport played the bridal chorus from the opera Lohengrin, by Wagner, the bride descended the spiral stairway and was met by the bridegroom at the foot of the stairs. They entered the drawing room together, where they were united in marriage by the Reverend William A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church. The vows were spoken before an improvised altar banked with palms and ferns, interspersed with roses and valley lilies. Tall baskets of Easter lilies were placed at either side.

The bride wore a stunning model of aqua blue crepe with fox trimmings, with shoes, hat and pocket-book of Camille red. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Wagner, a member of distinguished Pitt county families, is a charming and attractive young woman. She is the daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Edward G. Flanagan. She was educated in the city schools: Fossilfern, Hendersonville, and Brenau, Gainesville, Georgia, and a member of the Zeta-Tau-Alpha sorority.

Mr. Wagner has been making his home in Greenville for the past three years. Formerly of Harrisburg, Pa., he is the son of D. H. Wagner of that place, and the late Mrs. Wagner. He is a graduate of Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa., and Duke University, Durham, and a member of the Sigma Phi-Epsilon fraternity. He holds a position with the John Flanagan Buggy Company of this city.

For the wedding, Mrs. Flanagan and Miss Martha Wagner wore becoming gowns of crepe and shoulderettes of red roses. Little Miss Rosamond Flanagan Nicholson and little Miss Lee Ann Wagner wore shoulderettes of pink roses.

Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Flanagan entertained at a beautifully appointed breakfast. The table was unusually pretty, covered with a cloth of Madeira linen and centered with a silver bowl of white roses and valley lilies.

The wedding and breakfast was attended by members of the family and close relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Flanagan announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Rosamond Flanagan Nicholson to Mr. Tyrus Irvin Wagner on Thursday, March twenty-fifth. One thousand nine hundred thirty-seven Greenville, North Carolina

Wagner-Nicholson
The marriage of Mrs. Rosamond Flanagan Nicholson to Tyrus Irvin Wagner was solemnized at high noon today at the home of the bride's parents on Evans street, in a simple but impressive ceremony. The home throughout was beautifully decorated in lilies, carnations and roses. A bridal motif of white and green was emphasized.

Proceeding the ceremony, Mrs. J. Paul Davenport played a short program of nuptial music. Mrs. J. Knott Proctor sang "All For You" by Bertrand Brown. Mrs. Davenport wore a gown of brown crepe with shoulderette of yellow roses, and Mrs. Proctor a gown of Chartreuse crepe, with shoulderette of red roses.

As Mrs. Davenport played the bridal chorus from the opera Lohengrin, by Wagner, the bride descended the spiral stairway and was met by the bridegroom at the foot of the stairs. They entered the drawing room together, where they were united in marriage by the Reverend William A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church. The vows were spoken before an improvised altar banked with palms and ferns, interspersed with roses and valley lilies. Tall baskets of Easter lilies were placed at either side.

The bride wore a stunning model of aqua blue crepe with fox trimmings, with shoes, hat and pocket-book of Camille red. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Wagner, a member of distinguished Pitt county families, is a charming and attractive young woman. She is the daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Edward G. Flanagan. She was educated in the city schools: Fossilfern, Hendersonville, and Brenau, Gainesville, Georgia, and a member of the Zeta-Tau-Alpha sorority.

Mr. Wagner has been making his home in Greenville for the past three years. Formerly of Harrisburg, Pa., he is the son of D. H. Wagner of that place, and the late Mrs. Wagner. He is a graduate of Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa., and Duke University, Durham, and a member of the Sigma Phi-Epsilon fraternity. He holds a position with the John Flanagan Buggy Company of this city.

EVE'S ORCHARD

MARGARET WIDDEMER

SYNOPSIS: Eve Blumfeld goes back to her 200-year-old home and orchard in Connecticut after five years in New York. She finds a new, happy, city-bred Denny and returns to Manhattan. But the tendency to stay in the big city is strong. "Uncle Henry and the Featherstone" hope to see George Cleveland. They plan, through the father over one evening to play chess with Peter Featherstone, the penniless artist. Eve decides to speak to Mr. Cleveland about the job Denny is applying for.

Chapter 25
New Job for Denny
As the daring idea came to Eve, the telephone rang. Everybody started, except Mr. Cleveland, used to having secretaries answer for him. Judge that well-trained child came from where he lay on his stomach on the hearthrug, went out and came back, reporting, "Denny wants you, Eve."

She was in the dark dining room in a flash.
"Denny?"
"Eve darling!"
Before he could say any more, she began to talk excitedly.
"Denny, Denny darling, old Mr. Cleveland is in this very house as ever, playing chess with Peter, and isn't he an old sinner at all, he's a simple kind person and I'm going to

"I was a bit worried about whether you had enough money to carry them all summer."

tackle him myself about your job. I know it would be all right. Or let me make an engagement for you to do

"What's the voice was almost sharp. "Eve, promise me you won't, you'll mess it all up."

"But, Denny, why not if Milt can?" His voice had the patience of the male contrasted with the unwise female.

"Listen to this, sweet, Milt is a splendid business woman and an old friend of the whole family. She's got it in mind, if you or even I put in an eye it will ruin things. She says so and she's right. She made me promise to leave it all to her. It's going grandly, she's even promised to leave it alone, if you want to help your husband. He went to old Cleveland and kept your darling mouth tight shut about everything else. Milt says that's the only way to fix it. That isn't what I called about. Something perfectly magnificent has turned up—or it may be perfectly magnificent. Listen."

Eve held her breath, standing at the telephone.

"Go on, Denny."

"Something's broken. Herndon's giving me Bill Bolter's territory. I always thought I could make good on the road. If I do, they're likely to make it permanent—and enough money for two to live on. I have to start early tomorrow morning. Mayn't be back for two or three weeks—it depends on whether Bill gets well or not, of course."

The excitement in his voice was echoed in Eve's heart.

"Oh, Denny, grand! And you with your fatal charm, of course, you'll do it!"

"You adorable angel! Listen, promise to write me every single day! I'm mailing you an itinerary. I'll long-distance if it gets too awful away from you. Don't let anybody else get you away from me. You're mine, you know."

Warm, Hushed Old Room
She returned to the others finally, her cheeks burning, her heart pounding. Denny's excited adoring voice in her ears. George was preparing to go, remarking that they rose at seven.

"He's a lamb," Marilyn said yawning, as she front door closed behind them. "I hope he comes over a lot. Peter, blessing, will you make me a glass of orange juice and bring it up if there are any oranges? Nighty night, Eve dear. Oh, leave things. Peter can tidy them in the morning."

But Eve, holding by an old custom of her childhood, went about putting out candles and setting up the fire screen and drawing curtains about the warm, suddenly hushed old room, loving it. The dream Denny went with her, a laughing presence; perhaps soon, he would be reaching easily with his long boyish arm to the grandiose to snuff the candles, kneeling to push the logs apart, fling the fire screen—oh, how she loved the little homely heavenly things that ended in their going up the stairs, hand close in hand, to their room together.

"Good night, Denny darling," Eve whispered as she went up the stairs.

It was a windy April, with the long yellow sprays of forsythia, the reddening maple buds, the old fascination of outdoors that Eve had forgotten in her years of city work. Denny's absence stretched to a month. The daily letters kept Eve happy. Once he telephoned, on top of the world. He was going wonders. Another time, Denny's fashion, he was "lower than a snail" in a bad territory. Eve wrote her own letters and missed him and loved him.

For the rest she was surprised to find how easily she fell into the routine of her new life. The Featherstone, too, seemed happy enough. Peter had the sunny north end of the attic—for experimenting with his strange "wipes" of color. Marilyn spent her minutes in bed, and lay dreamily about the house in the evenings in the long chair she had pre-empted; she wrote a little sometimes

A total of 7,252,000 fans saw educational films on the manufacture and utilization of minerals in the last year. The "gate" was the largest in the bureau's history. There was no box office but that was offset by the fact the bureau had no production costs, these being borne by cooperating industrial concerns.

HAYSTACK HOLDS BULL HELPLESS FOR 6 WEEKS

Columbus, Kas. (AP)—It was a long time between drinks for Israel Westervelt's bull.

Six weeks ago Westervelt, a farmer near here, missed the bull from his herd. After a long search he gave the animal up for lost.

The other day while Westervelt's son was loading straw from a stack his dog began barking and the son moved. A few seconds later the bull plowed his way out and tore out across a field to a pond.

The animal had been imprisoned when the stack caved in on him.

 Fresh or canned shrimps may be used in salads, souffles, sandwich or canape mixtures. They also are tasty with rice or macaroni or mixed with tomato or curry sauce and served as cocktails.
 Potatoes should be stored in a cool dark place, since they sprout easily. To preserve the food values and insure the best flavor, leave the skins on when cooking them, and cook potatoes of about the same size together.

WATERWAY APPROVED
 After a fight extending over a period of years the project to deepen Tar River, whereby Greenville and this community will receive the benefits of water transportation, was approved by the Army Board of Engineers in Washington yesterday. While it will probably take some time for the matter to go through the regular channels before the money is appropriated and work actually gets under way, this action by the engineers definitely assures that in time the project will be completed. At the time of revival of the movement for the project several years ago, after previous failures, there were many local citizens who expressed the belief that it was but an idle dream and would never become a reality. Despite the apparent obstacles there was a small group of local citizens who were confident that perseverance would be rewarded with success and this group aided by Congressman Lindsay Warren, has worked untiringly in behalf of the project. Now that the main obstacles have been overcome and it is evident that in time the project will become a reality, our thanks go to Congressman Warren and the group of local citizens who refused to take "NO" for an answer and kept working on the project. When water transportation facilities are added to Greenville's other many advantages, this city will become the chief distribution point and shopping center of Eastern North Carolina.

WARREN CHANCE PASSES.
 With painful regret, I am upon the request of the Lady Supervisor of Pitt county, announcing the death of one of Pitt county's oldest Negro teachers. He has held the confidence of the best citizens of Carolina Township and county officials. He taught under Rev. Latham, the late Professor W. H. Ragsdale, S. B. Underwood and R. B. Fitzgerald. He was not brilliant in the educational world, but an industrious citizen. He, like many Negroes of years gone by, was not too proud to work and own a farm, a coworker that believed in cooperation between the races. The funeral was held today at 3 o'clock.

Mighty Mules Hitched to a dynamometer (a strength testing machine) these powerful mules record their strength for the photographer.
HERE is a famous pair of mules—mighty creatures with the pulling strength of a pair of four-legged giants. At a recent university test, they threatened the world's pulling record.
 What makes these mules unusual? Mother Nature gave them something—her own natural balance of many elements; strength, staying power, the willingness to work. So in actual value, these sturdy mules stand out from ordinary mules—there's just no comparison.
 And Nature gave a natural balance to Natural Chilean Nitrate, too—a natural balance of many elements that combine to make this nitrogen fertilizer a reliable food for your crops.
 Natural Chilean is known for its quick-acting nitrogen, of course. But nitrogen is only one of its vital elements. Because of its natural origin, Chilean Soda also contains, as impurities, such elements as iodine, boron, magnesium, calcium and some 28 others. And always remember that these vital elements are present in Chilean Soda in Mother Nature's own wise balance and blend.

"The thing I prize most is my reputation for saying what I think. Here's what I sincerely think about smoking—it's one of the greatest pleasures in the world, but it can be utterly spoiled by throat irritation. My job's tough on the throat and I have to be careful to keep my voice clear. Long ago I found that Luckies are easy and smooth and don't catch your throat. That means everything in a job like mine. Next time you hear the usual 'Cheerio' at the end of my broadcast, you can picture me reaching for a Lucky an instant later."
Boake Carter

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.
 Mr. Carter verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

WIVES WALK 350 MILES FIXING MEALS IN YEAR
 Manhattan, Kas. (AP)—An average farm wife walks about 350 miles a year in her kitchen.
 E. D. Warner, extension engineer at Kansas State College, says tests show the farm woman walks a mile or more preparing each day's meals. The answer, he says, is a conveniently equipped kitchen.

GOLD PRICE HIKE RE-OPENS MINES IN BLACK HILLS
 Keystone, S. D. (AP)—With the price of gold still more than $35 an ounce, many small gold mines in the Black Hills of South Dakota have been reopened after being abandoned for more than a score of years.
 Typical of the workings coming back to life is a small mine near Keystone, closed since 1907 because the low grade of the ore and the comparatively small fixed price of the precious metal made mining a doubtful venture.
 When the government hiked the price of gold, however, many of the smaller shafts were put in shape for operation. The one near here is undergoing extensive repairs and will have a small stamp mill to crush the ore.
 Samples from the mine show the vein assays $5 to $25 a ton. Owners envision a profitable enterprise in view of the high price.
 Scheduled air line aircraft will be required after January 1, 1938, to carry static-free radio direction finders and antenna systems.

DUKE ATHLETES REACH MAJORS

Former College Stars Will Be Found In Many Line-Ups

Byham, Mar. 25.—John W. (Jack) Coombs, the former Philadelphia Athletics pitcher great who is starting his ninth year as baseball coach at Duke university, will have to read a lot of box scores this summer to keep up with the performances of the boys he has sent into major and minor league baseball.

This season 13 former Duke stars will perform for ball clubs in various parts of the country and this number will probably be augmented by three when a trio of seniors—Wayne Ambler, George Barley and Herb Cheek—completes their careers at Duke in June.

Three of the players are owned by the New York Yankees and another is in the Yankee training camp but is unsigned; three others are owned by the Philadelphia Athletics; two by the Boston Bees, and one by Pittsburgh.

W.F.C. TO MEET STATE MONDAY

Easter Monday Classic Expected to Attract Big Crowd

Raleigh, Mar. 25.—An old Easter Monday custom will be continued here Monday afternoon when baseball teams of Wake Forest and North Carolina State clash at 3 o'clock on State's Freshman Field.

The game opens State's schedule and will mark Wake Forest's entry into the Southern Conference baseball picture. The Deacons, however, open their schedule Saturday when they meet Drew's Institute at Wake Forest.

A close game is expected Monday and a crowd of more than 4,000 persons is expected to look on. The game of last year attracted close to 5,000. State won, 8-7.

Wake Forest, with a couple of veteran pitchers and a veteran catcher, will be favored to take this year's game although Coach Chick Doak of State says his Techs are in good shape and ready to give John Cadell's Deacons nine innings of top notch ball.

Carl Byrd or Forest Glass will start on the mound for Wake Forest. Byrd pitched three innings of the 1936 game and seems slated for the job. Porter Sheppard will catch for Wake. He is one of the best in the State and has two years of experience behind him.

Coach Doak, short on seasoned pitchers and catchers, was undecided today on his starting battery. His only seasoned pitcher, Fred Blount, probably will not be available as he is recovering from a tonsil operation. Blount pitched six innings of the Easter game last year and did a good job.

There are three candidates for the catching job. They are Eddie Berlinski, F. M. Davidson and J. T. Richardson. Berlinski is a monogram player, but earned his letter last spring as an outfielder. He did, however, work a number of

You ask Luke Appling why he won the '36 American league batting championship, and he says: "I don't know. I must have been plain lucky."

You can't accuse the Chicago White Sox shortstop of kidding himself. But that's the probable answer of any major league swat monarch.

Luck plays a tremendous part in winning batting titles. To be top man, a player has to have had the breaks. Most hits fall fair by only a few feet. It's largely a matter of circumstance whether the fielders happen to be a few feet out of the way when the ball goes sailing into the outer gardens.

It's a strange thing, but when a man is on a hitting spree everything he hits lands in safe territory. When a man is in a slump, he may be hitting as hard as ever, but every ball goes straight to a waiting fielder. When hard-hit balls fail to count, above all a batter can do is keep swinging and hope his luck will change.

Few "experts" figured Appling as a possible contender for American league hickory honors when the '36 season opened. Even when his name continued among the first five week after week, they insisted that, sooner or later, he would be forced down by fellows like Joe Vosmik, Lou Gehrig, and Charlie Gehringer.

Appling fooled them all. When the season ended, his name topped the list with a mark of .388. He was the first White Sox in history inings behind the plate and probably will be selected to start Monday.

to win the batting crown. He was the first A. L. shortstop to triumph at the plate, as well.

His batting average had risen 81 percentage points over his 1935 mark—due, of course, to his "luck." The fact that he bats right-handed didn't help any. The left-handed swatman has a distinct advantage. He's a step nearer first base, a thing that often means the difference between being safe and being out.

Appling has never been noted for self-confidence, so it is natural for him to attribute his success to good fortune. Throughout the season he is subject to all sorts of imaginary ailments. Before every game he frets and worries. When the game is on, however, he forgets his woes and hustles to win.

Luke Appling is the last person in the world to pick Luke Appling as a man likely to win the 1937 batting crown. But don't count him out.

Senator Bailey Chooses "The Hard Way"

In the following letter written to W. O. Saunders, editor of the Elizabeth City Independent, in reply to an editorial which appeared in that paper, Senator Josiah W. Bailey states why he has chosen "the hard way" instead of "the easy way" in determining his position on the Supreme court issue.

United States Senate
March 1, 1937

Mr. W. O. Saunders,
Elizabeth City, N. C.

My dear Saunders:

That is a strange picture you painted of me—as a man indifferent to the opinions of his fellows.

On the contrary I know of no man who craves agreement with his fellows more than I do—nor do I know one who more highly esteems their applause and good will; no one is more tempted than I to cater to popularity; no one more averse to going against the tide of public opinion. It is the hard way. And like all men, I would have for myself the easy way. But there are other considerations!

I remember one Pontius Pilate. He pleased his crowd—and let them slay their best friend. He went the easy way. So he held the Governorship. I do not admire him, but he was a smart politician!

I remember one Peter—a fisherman, who declared to the people demanding that he agree—we ought to please God rather than men. He went the hard way. They tell me he lost his life on a cross! But I admire him.

I remember Christopher Columbus, the majority of whose sailors demanded that he turn back, but who nevertheless pressed on. He went the hard way. He was most unpopular with his crew. But he discovered America!

I remember Robert E. Lee, who refused the command of the Union Army, and all the rewards of the National gratitude, to do his duty by his State. He went the hard way. There were some who called him a traitor! And there are those to whom he is an inspiration.

I remember Moses who chose to dwell in the tents of the wandering tribes of Israel rather than the palaces of the Pharaohs. He went the hard way. He died in the wilderness, but God gave him a mountain top to die on; and he is still on the mountain!

I remember Him who said to the Pharisees: "Your Fathers stoned the prophets and you build monuments to them!" He knew the hard way. He died on the instrument of the slave's torture. But all men look to Him on that Cross.

None of these were popular men! They, unlike Pilate, went against the tide of public opinion. None of them was ever Governor!

I remember Emerson and his great essay on Self-Reliance, in which he bade every man speak his own thoughts, do his own duty as he sees it, saying that that was the only way to serve one's fellows. That this is the way one created in the image of God ought to go.

And many others do I remember, with whom I know I am not worthy to be mentioned.

When I was a young fellow and all the way of life was unknown to me, my teachers urged me to have the courage of my convictions. My Sunday school teachers would tell me to "dare to be a Daniel." Do they yet do this? Or do they teach their pupils to have courage of, say, the President's convictions? I thought that the way of the courage of one's convictions was the easy way. Imagine my surprise upon finding it so invariably difficult these forty years as editor and public man. Should they have taught me to dodge and duck and squirm and hide behind every bush and so get through this life like a serpent gets through the grass? Is that the advice you give your young readers? And would you have the high schools set up a department of demagoguery and give diplomas for proficiency in sitting on a ten-rail fence and keeping both ears to the ground?

You say I rely upon the Past. It was Patrick Henry who said that he had no light to guide him save the light of the Past. If you know of any other tell me what it is and where to find it. That and that inner light which we are told God kindles in one's soul—these only are known to me. But if there is yet another, tell me the way to find it; for I know I need every possible light.

Do not think that I do not know the easy way. Do not think that I could not choose the easy way. Do not think that I do not see around me men who have successfully made a business of holding office, and who all their lives have held office by finding the course that pays the best—in votes—and "going for it bald-headed." They do not have to study. They do not have to work. They do not have to contend. All they have to do is to deceive. But I have deliberately chosen not to go that way. I am determined to do the best I can for the people who have trusted me, whether it pleases them at the time or not. I am thinking of their children no less than of them. I may be wrong, but if I do my duty as I see it, I shall at any rate have the satisfaction of a good conscience.

We all admire Henry Clay for saying that he would rather be right than President. Why do we so often tell public men that it is better to be popular than right? Shall we reverse the story and say that Henry Clay was a fool?

And let me say that the same duty falls upon newspapermen as upon public men. I was made sick at heart recently when a prominent newspaperman said to me: "You know we newspaper men are merchants. We have to give the people what they want." He was more interested in making money than in doing right. He was selling opinions as a merchant sells cabbages.

It may pay to pander to the multitude, but is it fair to them? Is it right?

Would you have me conduct a poll on questions of public policy, ascertain on which side the most voters are, study the way to get myself re-elected, or would you have me study these questions and do my duty? And if I do this, am I to be portrayed as indifferent to opinion, or obedient to duty? Which is the selfish way? Am I here to serve myself or the people? And if here to serve the people, shall I seek to do the popular thing and get the popular applause and hold on to my office, or shall I seek to do the right? You can not answer these questions for me. I have answered them within my soul; I shall do my duty.

I do know some history; and I know that the most horrible chapters in the history of mankind were written by subservient judges. I know what a struggle it was to establish an independent judiciary; and I know how blessed have been the fruits of the success of that great struggle. I know that I can render no greater service to my generation than by resisting to the utmost every step to impair that independence. And I am determined to render that service. It will justify my existence.

History also teaches me that second thoughts are more to be trusted than first thoughts; that reason is better than impulse; that the long view is better than the view of apparent immediate self-interest; that the best friends of the people are not those who appeal either to their prejudices or emotions, nor who agree with them just to please, nor those who make the loudest professions of interest in them; that one who would serve them must study measures and seek the right that men engaged in the tasks of life have but little time for study or meditation, and that if some one does not study for them they will learn only at the cost of bitter experience; and that one honest man who will tell them the truth is worth ten thousand who are content to agree with them rather than take their criticism or their curses. And history also tells me that in the long run only the men who are willing to pay this price receive the rewards of a grateful posterity, or the satisfaction of duty done.

So, if I have made my choice, you must say that I chose the hard way; that I did not choose it because I was a fool, or wilfully; that I chose it unselfishly, not for my own ease or interest, but for the people who have trusted me and honored me.

Very Truly Yours,

JOSIAH W. BAILEY.

The Platform Adopted by The Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia, 1936, provides:

"If these problems cannot be effectively solved by legislation within the Constitution, we shall seek such clarifying amendment as will assure to the legislatures of the several States and to the Congress of the United States, each within its proper jurisdiction, the power to enact those laws which the State and Federal legislatures within their respective spheres, shall find necessary, in order adequately to regulate commerce, protect public health and safety, and safeguard economic security. Thus we propose to maintain the letter and spirit for the Constitution."

The offer an art gallery which Andrew Mellon made to the government several weeks ago was formally accepted today when President Roosevelt signed at Warm Springs a resolution to that end.

The White House announced, Federal District Judge Robert Williams of Oklahoma to be judge of the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, succeeding the late George McDermott of Kansas.

In the Senate adoption of a special resolution removed objection to Joseph Kennedy's appointment as chairman of the new maritime commission because of his ownership of ship yard stock. Senator McNary (R. Ore.) called the resolution "very unusual."

House debate on an appropriation bill centered today on the labor department's requirement. The next major business in the Senate was debate on the $100,000,000 crop insurance measure.

Native of Greenville Gets Army Promotion

Major Carlisle B. Wilson, Infantry, who resided at Greenville prior to entering the service, is relieved from his present detail with the Organized Reserves 8th Corps area, and from duty at Denver, Colorado, effective at such time as will enable him to proceed to San Francisco, California, and sail on the army transport scheduled to leave that port on or about June 12, 1937, for the Hawaiian department. Upon arrival there he will report to the Commanding General for assignment to duty with the Infantry.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Mar. 25.—(AP)—Signing of the Chrysler strike armistice was followed by an early upturn in today's stock market but the trend was recovered in many instances in later dealings.

Trades were a bit timid in view of tomorrow's holiday closing and considerable profit selling was in evidence throughout. The pace was exceptionally slow near the fourth hour.

Bond and commodities were uneven.

PLAN ADOPTED ADVERTISE N.C.

Systematic Campaign Provided For Boosting State

Raleigh, March 25.—(AP)—A systematic advertising program for North Carolina and participation in the 1938 New York world's fair, won approval from the general assembling in ending its session.

Governor Hoey advocated both bills. The advertising measure carried an appropriation of $250,000 and the fair bill provided no funds after $55,000, if need be for North Carolina building, had been proposed.

Various and sundry conservation and development measures received consideration and many became law, including one to permit sale of minerals found in state waters.

The conservation department was authorized to acquire lands for Morrow Mountain state park in Stanly county and to buy lands, if needed, adjacent to federal parks and land projects in the state. The Federal government was given rights to buy more lands for the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and was ceded a state highway in the park.

A measure to protect the purity of streams was killed in the Senate but game, fishing and forest fire prevention laws were strengthened by amending bills. A patrol boat for commercial fisheries was approved; a resolution asked President Roosevelt to expediate completion of the scenic parkway and another named a commission to aid in the Virginia Dare celebration; while measures to encourage oyster and clam growing received favor.

Much Satisfaction Is Derived From Hobby

Franklin, March 25.—When a person has a hobby, and rides it hard, she forgets that maybe her neighbor has talked about her, or that she isn't properly appreciated in this world.

"She thinks only of her absorbing interest... something to be accomplished," Mrs. Louise A. Slagle, Macon County home demonstration club woman, told Mrs. K. M. O'Neil, county home agent of the State College extension service.

"There is so much joy and satisfaction in a job well done that there is no room left in the heart for grievances or malice."

Mrs. Slagle made these statements in a short talk, one of a number of similar talks local home demonstration club women have been encouraged to make at their club meetings. Mrs. O'Neil said.

Mrs. Slagle gave as her definition of a hobby: "any work that makes a person forget herself, and gives her a renewed interest in living."

"I might mention, for example, a flower garden, knitting, crocheting, fancy work, beautification of a room or the grounds around the home. My own hobby is weaving."

"You can make a hobby of washing dishes, cheerfully. You can make a hobby of caring for your children."

Washington Daybook

Washington—At the time Secretary Hull pleaded for a halt to the trans-Atlantic hog-calling contest, Mayor LaGuardia and Herr Hitler's spokesmen had about fought it out to a draw until the mayor hit below the belt.

There is a rich stock of good American idiom upon which the mayor might have drawn without reaching across the Atlantic to sabotage Herr Hitler right in his own word factory. They don't all appear in the dictionary. Some did not come into general use until literary and scholastic folk began tapping them recently as a mine of untouched national resource.

New Word?

To a German that word means that a man is so low as to be scarcely a man, certainly without honor—in fact so badly without honor that he can not be insulted.

It is a regular cockle bur of a word and even though it amounts only to a prefix to some of the words Germans can put up, it nevertheless rakes unarmed American tonsils fore and aft.

If this ribald international debate adds it to the American language, it will have done some good. And that is about all the good the debate can do.

Lewis Tells 'Em

While Americans can in no wise compete with Germans in devising long words, we'll give 'em an ace in the hole and still lay odds they can deliver up no man to match American Senator James Hamilton Lewis for long sentences. He can exhaust all the breath concealed under his cream-colored vest just outlining the subject of a sentence.

But Senator Lewis always supplies the predicate. It only seems sometimes as if he'd talked. Here's just a teaser, as Lewis mused about the rise of Hitler.

"But, sir, there came a time when communism within slipped through its gliding menace, and there, like a writhing serpent, coiled itself around the circumstance; and when it did, it awakened the toiler to turn on himself, attack all of that which was peace, destroy all property which was available to his hand, and assert power within itself to do so with perfect indifference to the institutions of authority called government."

Play that on your fiddle, Mr. Director of nazilandallothergermanpublicity Goebbels.

HEN'S EGG PRODUCTION AFFECTED BY COLOR

Washington (AP)—The department of agriculture presents evidence that hens must have the right mental attitude to lay eggs.

A report from its Kansas experimental station declares that tests subjecting hens to various colors and intensities of light showed it was not quantity of light which mattered but the color. This suggested, the report adds, "that the laying response to light has a psychological basis."

SPENDS TWO DAYS COUNTING $400 IN MILLS

Stockton, Mo. (AP)—John Keep, Stockton lumberman, knows at least that he wasn't cheated.

After spending almost two days counting mill sales tax tokens, a customer had given him in payment of a $400 bill. Keep had been overpaid 15 mills.
