SHRILL BLASTS CALL WORKERS BACK TO WORK

Labor Picture Exceptionally Bright At Flint, Mich.

ASSEMBLY LINES BEGIN ACTIVITY

Large Army Of Soft Coal Miners Return To Pits Following Signing of Pact

(By Associated Press) Shrill blasts of automotive factory whistles called thousands of men back to their jobs today.

The labor picture was exceptionally bright at Flint, Mich., where officials predicted an early settlement of strike troubles in the automobile industry.

Approximately 15,000 in nine Chrysler plants at Flint, went back to machines and assembly lines, while 2,200 were to take up their jobs in the Ford plants at Kansas City.

A large army of soft coal miners went back to the pits. The Appalachian contract agreement, reached Friday, directly concerned 300,000 miners.

In Alabama, 20,000 union miners remained idle. William Mitch, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, announced at Birmingham the union would seek the same pay increase for Alabama.

TWO ANNOUNCE FOR ALDERMEN

J. Hicks Corey and J. D. Simpson Officially Enter Race

Two Greenville men today formally announced their candidacies for seats on the City Board of Aldermen, one each from the Second and Third Wards.

J. Hicks Corey of the Second and J. D. Simpson of the Third were the two new candidates.

With the announcement of Mr. Corey, a race was assured for the post from the Second Ward. Jack Spain formally announced Saturday. They seek the office to be vacated by Vernon Parrish, who has announced he would not seek reelection.

The office for which Mr. Simpson is running will be vacated by H. H. Duncan, who is in a two-way contest with M. K. Blount for the office of Mayor. Mr. Blount holds the office at the present time through appointment by the Board to complete the term of the late R. C. Flanagan.

The other three aldermen whose terms expire this year have stated privately they would seek reelection. They are A. C. Tadlock, L. B. Fleming and A. E. Hobgood. The other aldermen, Dr. M. B. Massey, J. A. Watson and Joseph M. Taft, have another year before they come up for reelection.

The election will be held May 3, with voters in Wards One, Two and Three voting at the Court House and Wards Four and Five at the City Hall.

Mr. Corey is a native of Pitt county and has lived in the city since 1920. He is prominent in American Legion activities and is on the Board of Directors of the Kiwanis club and also on the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army. This is his first entrance into politics.

Mr. Simpson is local manager of the Express company and has lived in this city for a number of years. He, too has been active in various phases of the city.

Maxwell To Be Real Head N. C. Revenue Department

Refractor Bureau, Raleigh, April 5.—Commissioner A. J. Maxwell of the Department of Revenue, the first major state official to be either appointed or reappointed by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, will in fact as well as in theory be the head of the revenue department for the next four years, with full and complete authority to hire and fire its personnel.

During the administration of former J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Commissioner Maxwell was actually in charge of departmental policies only, since the personnel was almost entirely under the control of Assistant Commissioner of Revenue M. C. S. Nobles, Jr., and regarded by most observers as the direct representative of the Governor in the Revenue department. It is no secret that many employees were fired and hired by Dr. Nobles without the knowledge of Commissioner Maxwell and that Dr. Nobles' plans for the reorganization of the revenue department were put into effect with only the briefest sort of "conference" with Commissioner Maxwell.

But these conditions will prevail no longer. For in announcing the Old Yankee Shell Found In County

A shell thought to have been fired during the Civil War, but which failed to explode, was found on the farm of J. P. Davenport, Sr., near Paclous by T. C. Mobley and brought here and placed on display in the window of The Reflector.

Found about a mile and a quarter north of the Tar river, the shell is thought to have been fired by a Yankee gun boat during an attack on Yankee Hall.

SEEK STUDENT FOR SLAYINGS

Police Identify Divinity Student As Triple-Murderer

New York, April 5.—(AP)—Police today designated Robert Irwin, 29, sculptor and divinity student, as the killer in the triple slaying Easter morning on Beekman Hill as they sent out a general alarm for his arrest.

"Arrest for triple homicide this city Robert 'Bob' Irwin, last known address 36 State street, Canton, N. Y.," said Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine's general alarm to all 18,000 New York police officers as detectives watched subways, railroad stations, airfield and all transport lines.

Definite evidence that established Irwin's presence in the murder flat has been uncovered by the police, Police Inspector Lyons said. He refused to reveal the nature of this evidence.

"Yes," he said, "we have found something that definitely ties up Irwin in the flat."

He said that questioning of people who knew Irwin revealed that the sculptor was in the habit of carrying about with him a long, thin ice pick with a heavy taped handle. Inspector Lyons refused to say whether such an instrument had been located by the police.

DEBATERS WIN TWO CONTESTS

Victorious Both At Roanoke Rapids And Tarboro

Greenville high school debaters won both sides of the Aycock Triangular debate this morning in Tarboro and Roanoke Rapids. In both places the decision was unanimous for the local students.

Those representing Greenville in Roanoke Rapids were John David Bridges and Marjorie Sugg, who upheld the negative side of the query. Resolved, That the government should own and operate all electric light and power utilities. In Tarboro Louis Mayo and Marjorie Spivey argued the affirmative side of the same question against the Roanoke Rapids' negative team.

In the high school auditorium at the same time Roanoke Rapids' affirmative team, composed of Agnes Merritt and Jimmie Hampton, lost to the Tarboro negative team, composed of Dorothy Pender and Don Nickolson.

LOYAL ARMIES OPEN WAY FOR MAJOR ATTACK

Southern Forces Turn Insurgent Left Flank At Cordoba

SWEEPING MOVE CUTS RAILROAD

Five Columns Of Government Defenders Smash Against Vital Lines

Madrid, April 5.—(AP)—The government's Southern army turned the insurgent left flank North of Cordoba today, capturing the village of La Grulluela and opening the way for direct attacks on the Penarroya coal mines.

The sweeping movement around the Northern end of General Gonzalo Queipo Dellano's insurgent army cut the railroad running between Belmez, just South of the coal mines, and Castillo de Almarcon, division point linking the West lines that serve the fields and the trunk lines to the deeper-held insurgent territory to the West.

The fall of La Grulluela followed the capture of Dalsequillo, three miles to the North, which had been the first objective of the flanking columns.

Five columns of the government Southern army smashed against the vital insurgent communication lines from Cordoba City to the Penarroya coal mines, threatening to trap General Dellano's army of 15,000 men and cut them off from retreat.

Pivoting on a basis established by direct attacks of the two Southern-most columns, two Northern columns swept around the left flank of the insurgent command in the broad movement to turn General Dellano's lines, stretched almost 40 miles along the highway from Cordoba to Penarroya.

On the far Southern coast the insurgents were reported being pressed back, while in the North the Basque miners were on the offensive in the Asturias and a strong army was advancing against Burgos, one time capital of the insurgent regime.

Baptist Minister Delivers Message At Union Services

Rev. Clarence Patrick Preaches First Sermon Before Joint Congregation Sunday Night

In his first sermon before the joint congregations cooperating in the Sunday evening worship services, the Rev. Clarence Patrick, newly-elected minister of Immanuel Baptist church, declared last night that "Jesus gave to the world—not merely a moral ideal—but a moral force whereby that moral ideal could be translated into life."

It is that which will cause us to rise above those things which tend to defeat life.

The service was featured by an offertory number, "The Prayer Perfect," given by a quartette composed of Mrs. E. W. Griffin, Mrs. John Karsnach and H. A. McDougle and A. O. Parkinson. The Rev. W. A. Ryan of the local Christian church led the congregation in prayer. The service was presided over by the Rev. R. C. Grady of the local Presbyterian church. J. H. Rose, chairman of the music committee, led the congregational singing.

Declaring that "religion is no longer a far-off, merely supernatural something but the most natural thing in life," the speaker described the practice of religion as "a sort of spiritual cellophane in which people wrap themselves to be kept unsold by the world," and made a fervent plea that religion become "a force" and not "a form."

A half million acorns were planted on Oklahoma farms this winter as part of the soil conservation service erosion control program.

Loyalist Drive Rebel Forces Back

With Madrid under attack, the government has driven the insurgents back from their northern front toward Burgos and in the south threatens to cut off and annihilate a large rebel force. The main insurgent push is concentrated against Bilbao. All able bodied men in the Basque country are drafted to repel this strong drive. (Associated Press Photo)

FAVORS BAN ON COURT DEFERS ALL SIT-DOWNS MAJOR RULING

Senator Byrnes Withdraws Amendment On Technique Postpones Decision On Wagner Labor Relations Act

Washington, April 5.—(AP)—Senator Byrnes (D. S. C.) changed today the form of his proposed congressional declaration on sit down strikes.

He withdrew an amendment he offered to the Guffey coal control bill which by indirection would have condemned use of the sit down technique in the coal industry. In its stead he proposed a new amendment specially condemning such strikes in general.

"It is the sense of congress of the so-called sit down strike is illegal and contrary to public policy," the new proposal reads.

At the senate judiciary committee's on President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill Senator Austin (R. Vt.) produced a letter from the Supreme court clerk, which Austin said showed the government had sought many dismissals of appeals.

Austin held to be contrary to the Attorney General Cummings' criticism that the court had acted unfavorably for a large number of requests for review of appeals.

Three Defendants In Police Court Today

Three cases were tried in City court this morning, one defendant having been bound over to County court.

Will Carr, Negro, was the defendant ordered held for trial in the higher court. He is charged with assault with a deadly weapon. Bond was set at $200.

B. L. Carlson was fined $10 and costs on a drunkenness charge.

Roy Stepps Junior Stepps and Grover Fritzel were fined $10 and costs each upon conviction of drunkenness and mutual assault.

Gill And Etheridge May Retain State Positions

Refractor Bureau, Raleigh, April 5.—R. Bruce Etheridge, Director of the Department of Conservation and Development and Edwin M. Gill, Commissioner of Paroles, are among the present appointive state officials expected to be reappointed by Governor Clyde R. Hoey between now and July 1, although Governor Hoey has as yet given no intimation concerning what he expects to do. But the fact that so far as is known, no candidates are in the field for these appointments, is regarded by many political experts here as indicating that it would be a waste of time, postage stamps and telegrams to try to get either of these posts.

The fact that Governor Hoey seems to be more interested in conservation and in advertising the state's resources more than any governor since the late Governor A. W. McLean, who first made the conservation department a major state agency, and that Governor Hoey personally backed Director Etheridge's plan for an appropriation of $250,000 to be used in advertising North Carolina to the nation and the world, is regarded by most observers as a very strong indication that he will reappoint Etheridge. It further pointed out that the bill appropriating this sum for advertising went through both houses virtually without opposition and that many attribute this fact to the very effective manner in which Etheridge effected the way for it in both houses.

Those who know Etheridge and his always courteous, considerate and almost courtly manner of dealing with every one, agree that he is probably more adept at securing desired legislation and in smoothing the way for legislation desired by the Governor, than any other state official for without ever raising his voice and with very few words, he comes nearer getting what he goes after in a legislature than any other state official.

Commissioner Gill is another state official who attends strictly to business—and he has plenty of it—and says little but who gets along remarkably well with the public, the judges, the members of the general assembly and even the prisoners. He is conceded to have built the paroles office to a high standard of efficiency and to be doing a fine job. It is not believed that Governor Hoey will undertake to displace him.

WRECKAGE OF AIRPLANE MAY BE LOST SHIP

Douglas Airliner Lost Since Disappearance Saturday

EIGHT PERSONS FEARED DEAD

Wreckage Is Sighted Near Spot Where Plane Reported Seen Circling in Storm

Galup, New Mexico, April 5.—(AP)—The sheriff's office at St. John's, Ariz., reported today the wreckage of an airplane had been located a mile and a half from Alpine, 60 miles from here.

Searchers for a Douglas airliner lost since Saturday with eight persons asked for quick details.

The wreckage was sighted in the general area where John P. Buckler, operator of a resort lodge at Greer, Ariz., said he saw a big transport plane circling Saturday afternoon in a snow storm.

Alpine is about 30 miles Southeast of Greer with inaccessible mountain country between. It is about 30 miles South of Springerville, Ariz., near the New Mexico state line.

The Alpine telephone operator said she was without information on the report.

Winslow, Ariz., April 5.—(AP)—A possible clue developed in the White mountains of Arizona today to the fate of the Douglas airliner which disappeared strangely Saturday with eight or more persons bound for Burbank, Calif.

Casey Lattis, airport radio operator, said a rancher had reported from near Greer, Ariz., a big plane circled twice over his home at 3 p. m. as if seeking a place to land. (Continued on page six)

Dentist To Enter Plea Of Guilty In Virginia Slaying

Dr. Miller Declared Planning to Plead Guilty to Second Degree in Murder of Girl

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—(AP)—Commonwealth Attorney W. O. Fide announced today Dr. R. G. Miller, Charlottesville dentist, would enter a plea of guilty to second degree murder in the death of Geo. Sprouse in Albemarle Circuit court Wednesday morning. Fide said Judge Lemuel Smith agreed today to hear the plea Wednesday instead of today as originally planned.

He declined to say whether he had reached an agreement with defense counsel on the length of the dentist's sentence, which under Virginia law might be from five to 20 years for second degree murder. The prosecution did not give the cause of the postponement of the case.

EVE'S ORCHARD

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfeld and gay, city-loving Denny Carter are on the verge of marriage when they quarrel and she walks out. Eve is left in her 200-year old Connecticut house with kind old Uncle Henry and serious little Judge Featherstone whose parents have deserted him and come to Hollywood. Her steady, dependable neighbor, George Cleveland, who loves Eve intensely, offers his help, for Eve is stranded financially. She decides to resume her aunt's baking business while Uncle Henry sells vegetables and Judge delivers biscuits.

Chapter 33

Mitzi's Letter

THE next fortnight passed in a drive of exciting work and planning. Uncle Henry's vegetable stand, decently hidden from the house by the cedar windbreak to the north, was yet near enough to let Uncle Henry or Judge, if he was at home, dash at the sound of his large dinner bell. Sometimes Eve herself would run down across the lawn and breathlessly exclaim: "Early peas or lettuce into bags for the motorists drawn up beside the road."

As for the baking, she worked most of the evenings, and through the morning till about two in the afternoon. At first it tired her; but it was a healthy weariness. Having helped her aunt till she went to college, of course, she knew the old routine well enough. She had been brought up in the middle of it. She was young and very strong, she was in the country phase, "not afraid of hard work."

The sheets of little crisp yellow cookies, the big pans of warm-smelling brown pocketbook rolls, the jars of baked beans, she remembered them all from her childhood and young girlhood. It brought Aunt Lina back, that capable quick-stepping, moving pleasantly about the big sunny kitchen.

The summer people came just about this time; it was not too late. Things always straightened out if you loved people and they loved you, and waited. The thing to do was to be sensible and go on ordering supplies, and get fun out of being here in the old house with its garden, and its people she loved and work she liked and could do well.

And one of these days Denny would telephone—tomorrow, perhaps—in a week if his suits were worse than usual—and things would lift from contentment to happiness.

Suddenly, one morning as she worked at her molding board, cutting out cookies, she realized that a part of her had so dreaded leaving this house and its life that in a way the postponement of her marriage was a relief. Denny had been so firm about its ending any chance of her living here. Marriage at the end of the summer would be better. By then surely she wouldn't want to stay here any longer. That was what made her wait for Denny to make the first move, not say maidenly modesty. From day to day she expected him to, and so let things slide, always with the feeling that it gave her a little longer time here.

Meanwhile, Judge flourished; he was outdoors most of the day riding on his bicycle or, deeply thrilled, assisting the vegetable stand. He put on weight. Uncle Henry whistled about his work; George was in and out, everybody seemed supremely contented at the way things were. They had their Eve all to themselves.

Eve Writes To Denny
IT WAS Judge who said at the end of a fortnight, "Where's Denny? Why don't you call up and ask him out?"

Simple as that—why didn't she? He'd be over his temper by now. She decided she would write him. But there descended on her an exceptionally busy week during which there were two public suppers plus hundreds of summer people demanding rolls and cakes and bread. The rush stopped as suddenly as it had begun, but not the hot wave which had accompanied it, and Eve was too tired to do anything but manage regular orders and go swimming in George's pool, which he had filled the first hot day.

It was just three hard-working, crowded weeks after Denny had flounced off that she did write him, sitting at her Governor Winthrop desk in the corner of her bedroom late on a scented June night. She meant to give Adriano the letter to take to the post office next noon, but he went off early, she had to keep it another day. Uncle Henry came back from a trip of his own after dinner and handed her and Judge each a fat letter, post-marked Hollywood and addressed in Marilyn's wild pretty hand.

Judge took his off somewhere to read alone. Eve lying in the porch hammock in her thin white dress, opened her letter lazily. Her own long letter to Denny had been almost like having him close to her. The sense of his presence still drenched her happily. She was mentally commencing one of those delicious foolish conversations with her lover.

"And Marilyn actually wrote back from Hollywood, darling, after only being there a week! I didn't expect anything at all—and a letter to Judge, besides!"

She held the letter up and shook it to see if there was a check inside, nearly certain that there wouldn't be, but hopeful enough to investigate. Something fell out, but it was not a check. It was a smaller size of notepaper, in handwriting instead of Marilyn's typing. It looked familiar—yes—Mitzi's mannered small hand. Marilyn, Eve thought idly, really shouldn't pass other people's letters around as she did; nevertheless, she began to read it.

"Marilyn darling," it began conventionally: "This is to tell you that I've given in at last—as you always said I would, you old fatterer! If I was loved with enough passion," Eve stopped to laugh heartlessly; and then sobered, as she realized that evidently Dillard Betz's taunt that men didn't really care for her had stung Mitzi. Power into getting engaged to somebody."

"Who on earth—" she said half-aloud, looking around for Uncle Henry or George to tell it to. But George, she remembered now, had gone, with a reluctant look backward at his seedlings, to some New York convention. Uncle Henry was pottering in the garden. She went on with the letter.

"You know," Mitzi wrote with blacker and blacker excitement, "how long he's wanted me and longed for me under everything... in spite of everything, Denny and I are going to be married."

'All Set, Old Dear'
EVE looked curiously at the word, with a queer icy feeling all over her. Unmistakable. Up-and-down, black half-printing, with its long straight thick tails and crossbars—Denny, Denny and Mitzi were going to be married. Eve did not feel anything at all. Every nerve center was deadened from shock.

She sat very still in the middle of a world of queer cold isolation, queer silence. Nothing had anything to do with her but those seven black words, unchanging in the little dull-blue piece of expensive paper she was staring at. She shivered there in the warm evening, and noticed dully how wet her palms were and how stiff the muscles of her throat. She was quite motionless in the hammock for she never knew how long; until the light began to fade.

Her brain began to work again, very quickly, terrified. She didn't know where anybody came back, before she had read the letter. She ran to her own room. As she ran she began to hope crazily that it wasn't true. It was just another of Mitzi's deceptions about being adored.

She finished it sitting on her own bed. It was not one of Mitzi's usual boasts or insinuations, self-flattering, self-comforting. It was plain, assertive exultation, sentimental, unmistakable. They were engaged. They were announcing it to a few close friends. They were to be married in a month. They would live on at Southampton till October, after a trip to Canada for the honeymoon. They would then settle down in New York in a penthouse they were already looking at. As definite as Mitzi's letters to her lawyers.

And a scrawled line at the bottom, Denny's own handwriting: "All set, old dear! Good luck in Hollywood!"

Eve sat on the bed a long, long time. As long as she lived afterward she remembered how many knots of flowers there were on the wallpaper Mrs. Jennings had left. She counted them one by one. Red roses and orange nasturtiums and blue violets, and yellow tulips and pink forget-me-nots in one row. The same flowers in the row below, with the colors changed so that the roses were pink and the nasturtiums yellow and the violets red and the tulips orange and the forget-me-nots blue. It must be, she supposed, an "analyzed" old-fashioned garden. Red roses and orange nasturtium... He must have gone straight to Mitzi, and said: "I must have cared more for having money and good times than for the kind of person he loved." He must have minded painfully every reason why it had happened.

Between times she counted red violets and orange nasturtiums and wondered why they had wanted to make a violet red. "If they had been every other one yellow," she heard herself say, "it would have been much better."

She thought, "It would be better if they had been in only two colors." She thought, "They will live together in Mitzi's penthouse and Mitzi will laugh and put her finger in that cleft in his chin the way I used to..." She shivered a little. She sat on, staring at the wallpaper till the dark came.

Judge hammered at her door. "A lady's telephoning. She wants six dozen rolls and two layer cakes for over Sunday."

"Tell her she can have them tomorrow morning," Eve said in a clear voice.

Chapter 34

Eve Collapses

AS soon as Eve had carefully torn her letter to Denny into very small pieces and burned them, she went downstairs to the kitchen. Her hands were still numb, but her mind was very clear, and she worked until three the next morning. Then she went to bed. She lay awake and thought it all over and over and over. In between she thought about the wallpaper and tried to plan her work ahead.

She could not eat anything at breakfast, but she talked in a metallic voice to the others as she drank black coffee.

"Mother's letter says they have the grandest pink house and a police dog," Judge said timidly across the table. "Did she send you the money?" "I don't know, Judge. I didn't read her letter."

His arms were strong and she let go the wheel.

She regarded him, sitting there over his oatmeal. The weeks since her parents went away had given him added health and serenity.

She had paid over all her happiness for the welfare of this child who was nothing to her. Things were odd in this world. She wondered if she would go on liking him when she got so she could feel anything again. Oh, yes, she must read Marilyn's letter.

There was little more as regards herself and Denny than "you naughty girl to throw poor Denny over, when we all thought it was a match..." and then a long delightful description of the circumstances under which they had fallen on their feet this time.

"The darlinest old lady—and a cousin of Sarah James in Buffalo, so she felt she knew all about us"—an old lady, it seemed, who didn't like children, so it was a mercy Eve was such a darling about Judge—who wanted Peter to do her portrait, and simply loved having her, and was going to take them on a trip to Honolulu when she was out of the hospital; where she'd had to go after three days. Meanwhile, it seemed, the Featherstones were living with all expenses paid, waited on by a corps of servants in her pink stucco mansion. The old lady collected poets; she was excited because Peter was a painter. There was not a word about paying Eve.

"Well, after all, why should they?" she thought with a new cynicism. "They've been supported by experts! Probably they feel they did wonders in signing a paper saying they'd pay board!"

To Keep From Thinking

BUT it didn't matter. Nothing mattered. Nothing but finding enough hard physical work to do to halfway keep from thinking. Denny and Mitzi—Mitzi and Denny. Denny had laughed at Mitzi for being so old. He had made fun of her affections and pretensions... And he was marrying Mitzi. Oh, it couldn't be Denny, gay passionate loving Denny! "God, let it not be true," she whispered. But it went on being true.

When the day's routine of baking was done and labeled for delivery, Eve went feverishly to the attic. The afternoon sun pouring down made it an oven but she was glad, it had seemed to her she would never be warm again. She piled and unpiled trunks and boxes aimlessly. Halfway through she stopped and tried to recall what she was looking for... Of course. A spinning wheel. Somebody wanted to buy one. Emily had said at the post office yesterday hadn't she? Great-grandmother Denton's spinning wheel...

She carried it down in her arms when she found it. She caught a glimpse of herself in the long mirror at the head of the stairs. Streaked, crimson-flushed, drenched with perspiration, she looked like a caricature of herself. She walked on out of the house without knowing she carried the heavy wheel still, straight through the lawn and to the orchard path. She did not know where she was going. Something in her subconscious, she supposed afterward, had some idea of selling the wheel to Mrs. Cleveland.

It was George who faced her, as she staggered mounting the stairs between the orchards.

"Eve, Eve, what's the matter?" His arms were strong, and she let go the wheel. She mustn't tell him that her Denny was that kind of man.

"Marilyn is going to Honolulu," she said wildly, and sank against him, strengthless.

"Enough to make anybody sick," Uncle Henry was saying angrily when she opened her eyes on the front-parlor sofa. "Worked most of the night and then started cleaning the attic this weather!"

George held a glass to her mouth and said quietly, "Drink this, Eve."

'Perfect Crime' No. 3 Tests Skill Of Manhattan's Ace Manhunters

SLAIN MODEL AND DIAGRAM OF MURDER SCENE
Veronica Gedeon (above) was in demand by commercial photographers and artists because her face and figure photographed well, clothed or unclothed. Her father and sister found her slain on Easter, her nude body on the bed (upper right in diagram below). Beneath the bed was the partly disrobed body of her mother. On his bed in a room off the other end of the living room was the body of a roofer, Frank Byrnes.

SLAYER DEFIES LAWS VAST MACHINERY

Manhattan's best Sherlocks have been called out again on a murder mystery more baffling than fiction. How they have solved two others and the problem they face now is explained in this AP Feature Service article and two others to follow.

By CHARLES NORMAN (AP Feature Service Writer)

New York—At three o'clock on Easter afternoon in New York, a chill March wind blew. On Fifth avenue, a few valiant strollers, garbed in holiday finery, still were seen.

And at that hour a wafer-thin man with glasses and a young woman walked along 50th street, bent on visiting the thin man's estranged wife and another daughter. A block from fashionable Beekman Place they entered a walk-up apartment house. Perhaps as they glanced toward the river, they recalled the brutal murder nearby of young and beautiful Nancy Titterton a year before.

The man was Joseph Gedeon, an upholsterer; the young woman with him was his married daughter. They ascended four flights, and entered Mrs. Gedeon's apartment.

A Pekingesie in the living room remained silent.

Find Three Slain.

Going to the bedroom they came upon stark tragedy. On the bed, unclothed, lay Veronica Gedeon. Loveliest of models, the toast of artists, she might almost have been posing once more, had it not been for the disorder of the room and the cruel marks left by a sadistic slayer. Under the bed, partly disrobed, lay the body of Mrs. Mary Gedeon, her mother.

Father and daughter had seen the worst, but they had not seen all. In another bedroom opening off the opposite end of the living room lay the body of Frank Byrnes, a lodger. Gedeon summoned the police.

As they arrived, uniformed and in plain clothes, the Pekingesie roused itself and barked shrilly.

Third Time In A Year.

It was the third time in little more than a year that a fiendish killer had given New York's crack cops a seemingly baffling crime—with meager clues. Thrice a young and beautiful woman had been struck down—Nancy Titterton (a piece of string led her slayer to the chair); ar Case (a bit of skin under her fingernails trapped her slayer); and now Veronica Gedeon. A few strands of hair scraped from under her nails were all police had to go on.

But they observed the actions of the Pekingesie.

Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear, arriving quickly on the scene, could not help noting resemblances to the Titterton case which had given him and his men a pretty good workout. The two murders took place only a block apart.

Working under Inspector Kear was Captain Edward Mullins of the homicide squad, whose men "broke" the Titterton slaying.

Big, Silent Man.

Kear is 6 feet 1; he has a meticulous air. An observer cannot help being impressed by him—his height, his blue eyes, white hair and neat, double-breasted suit—but he remains non-committal even when he is talking, which is rare indeed. He doesn't speak a sentence when a word will suffice. When he is not talking, he wears a poker face.

Mullins on the other hand, with his friendly blue eyes and curling hair that forms a lick like a mound above his forehead, doesn't mind talking at all, provided the subject is no longer "evidence" or "hot." His voice is low, but strangely intense, especially when he talks about queer angles, such as the murder that looked like a suicide, or the suicide that looked like a murder.

Once more they were confronted at the site of infection (the porch by a crime which made them twofold of entrance) there usually de-smooth-working cogs in a gigantic machine which New York throws into high gear when a sensational murder startles Gotham's Seven Million. Sleep? When the case was solved...

The task of finding the triple slayer or slayers of east 50th street became for them the first order of business—for them and for Manhattan's other picked sleuths.

The apartment with its gruesome exhibits was barred to the curious.

In Case of Confession.
Experienced members of the homicide squad, experts from the technical research laboratory, sieved the contents of the five rooms, sprinkled powder to bring out telltale fingerprints.

A representative of the district attorney's office arrived—in case there was an arrest and a confession.

Routine questioning detained a score or more of the slain trio's friends and acquaintances.

Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, soft-spoken, nattily attired, came in his capacity of Acting Chief Medical Examiner, made a preliminary examination of the bodies, then ordered them taken to the morgue for autopsies.

Once more, as in the Titterton and Case murders, the police machine whirred on. While one detective or two might take the spotlight, they had behind them organization and teamwork.

Next—A Piece of String.

MANHATTAN SHERLOCKS
Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear (left) and Captain Edward Mullins note striking resemblances between the Titterton murder (solved) and the Gedeon triple slaying (unsolved).

How's Your Health?
Sylliss is Curable
Sylliss is a germ disease. It is caused by a micro-organism of a protozoan nature, that is, one belonging to the animal kingdom.

The infection is spread by sexual intercourse, though occasionally it is contracted through the use of forks, spoons, cups, glasses, smoking pipes, musical instruments or barber's tools, carrying the infectious agent.

It may also be congenitally acquired. A woman suffering from the active disease may give birth to a child infected with the germs of syphilis.

Sylliss is curable. The earlier the disease is treated, the more readily is cure effected. Delay in treatment may result in irreparable damage to the vital organs of the body.

repeated blood examinations and at least one spinal fluid examination are negative. After the "cure," the patient should have blood examinations once every six months for at least two years.

Every young adult should know how to practice venereal prophylaxis after possible exposure to infection. For specific details, he should consult his physician.

Gonorrhea Facts

Gonorrhea is caused by a germ called the gonococcus. Most commonly the disease is contracted through sexual intercourse, but it can be gotten in other ways.

While primarily a disease of the sexual system, gonorrhea may also involve the eyes. If not treated promptly and adequately when it does, it may cause blindness.

The complications of gonorrhea are numerous and serious. Gonorrhea in women frequently causes chronic inflammation of the Fallopian tubes. This condition often necessitates surgical treatment and is a common cause of sterility. Gonorrhea in the male may also cause sterility.

Other complications of gonorrhea are arthritis, heart disease and constriction of the urinary tract, called stricture. There is a common, widespread belief that gonorrhea in men is but a mild disease not more dangerous than a "catarrhal cold." This is an erroneous and disastrous belief.

Infected individuals who have delayed taking treatment or whose treatment was inadequate, may carry about the germs of gonorrhea in their system for years and may unwittingly infect numerous other individuals.

The disappearance of the acute symptoms of the infection and of the visible discharge may mislead the sufferer into believing that the disease is cured. To establish a cure, a number of successive tests must be made by a competent physician. Only when such tests fail to show the presence of gonococci can the individual be said to have been cured.

Gonorrhea, if properly treated at the beginning, may be cured without serious impairment of health. Proper treatment can be given only by a competent physician. Patent medicines, self-treatment, or any other form of therapy other than that prescribed by a competent physician, are not only a waste of money but also endanger the well-being of the sufferer.

The gonorrhea patient must also be instructed on the rules of personal hygiene to be observed whenever he comes in contact.

Veneral prophylaxis, when properly applied, will protect the exposed individual against gonorrhea as well as syphilis. The details of veneral prophylaxis can best be learned from one's own family physician.

Permit Necessary To Set Brush Fires; May Slice Damage

New Law Enacted by General Assembly Designed to Save Thousands of Acres of Timberland

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, April 5.—A new law enacted by the General Assembly of 1937, requiring that permits be obtained before any fire is started during certain periods in woodland areas having organized forest fire control facilities, and which was put into effect immediately after ratification, is designed to save thousands of acres of valuable North Carolina woodlands from destruction or severe damage from fire. W. C. McCormick, chief of forest fire control for the Department of Conservation and Development, announced today.

Permits for burning, as a precaution against the outbreak of destructive fires, will be required between the first day of April and the fifteenth day of June and the first day of October and the first day of December each year. These are normally, Mr. McCormick explained, the periods of highest forest fire hazard in North Carolina.

The main section of the statute, as quoted by Mr. McCormick, reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to start or cause to start any fire or ignite any material in any of the areas of woodlands, under the protection of the State Forest Service or within five hundred feet of any protected area, between the first day of April and the fifteenth day of June, inclusive, or between the fifteenth day of October and the first day of December, inclusive, in any year, without first obtaining from the State Forester or one of his duly authorized agents a permit to set out fire or ignite any material in such above mentioned protected areas; that no charge shall be made for the granting of said permits." Fires started within five hundred feet of a dwelling house are exempted from the permit requirement.

TO GATHER WEATHER DATA WITH AUTOMATIC RADIO

Washington, (AP)—A radio meteorograph which eventually may replace airplanes in gathering information on upper air conditions for weather forecasting has been developed by the Bureau of Standards.

The device is a miniature weather reporting and radio transmitting station so small that all the equipment is housed in a balsa-wood box, 6x6x1-2 inches, and weighing less than two pounds.

The box is attached to five-foot balloon and as the balloon ascends the radio set sends out signals concerning altitude, humidity, air temperature, and light intensity.

Mrs. Kittrell Hostess
 Outstanding among the lovely parties of the past week given complimentary to Miss Helen White and Miss Maria Garrett, brides-elect, was the bridge luncheon given Thursday morning by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell at her home on East Fifth street.

The guests arrived at eleven o'clock, were greeted by the hostess and shown to the bridge tables which were marked with lily of the valley place cards and bridal slips. Here amid a setting of spring flowers in shades of pink and white bridge was played until 12:30 when the mothers of the honorees, Mrs. S. T. White and Mrs. R. M. Garrett, with several other relatives of the brides-elect, arrived for luncheon. These guests were seated at the dining table, which was centered with a crystal bowl of pink roses, iris and sweet peas.

In the center of each bridge table was placed a bowl of valley lilies which struck the bridal note for the tempting luncheon which followed. The four courses were beautifully conceived and carried out in an artistic bridal motif from the dainty baskets tied with tulle and flowers which held the fruit course to the ices which were served in crystal swans tied with tulle in sweet pea colors. The coffee course was beautiful; served with cheeses in shapes of pink roses and mints in sweet pea colors.

Following the luncheon prizes were presented, the high score going to Miss Coiten Skinner. Mrs. C. W. Bynum and Mrs. Bob Greene, recent brides, were remembered with pots of lovely hyacinths.

The honorees were presented china in their selected patterns.

Entertain for Miss White

Of all the parties given for Miss Helen White, bride-elect, none have been lovelier than the bridge luncheon given Friday by Mrs. R. M. Garrett, Mrs. Lee Folger and Miss Maria Garrett, at their home on Country Club Drive.

Upon arrival, guests were greeted by the hostesses and Miss White, and invited into the spacious living room, which was especially lovely with its decorations of Spring flowers with yellow the predominant color. Each table was centered with a crystal vase of yellow tulips except the bride's table, which had as its center piece a wedding scene including the bride and groom.

Throughout the room the wedding motif was carried out in the tables, mint cups and place cards.

A delicious three-course luncheon was served preceding the games of bridge.

As high scorer for the afternoon Mrs. J. H. Harrell received a box of mixed flowers.

Miss White was then presented two packages most attractively wrapped in white and silver bridal paper and decorated with valley lilies. These contained china as gifts from the hostesses.

Mrs. C. W. Bynum and Mrs. Jimmie Jenkins, recent brides, were given lovely embroidered towels.

Junior Woman's Club

The Junior Woman's club held its regular meeting on Friday, April 2, in the club house. Mrs. Marvin Blount presided. The roll was called after which the minutes were read, followed by the club song.

The club was privileged to hear Dr. Hervey C. Link's book, "The Return of Religion," ably reviewed by Dr. Carl Adams. Dr. Adams was delighted to learn that several of the members had read the book and were interested in Dr. Link's psychological views on the subject.

During the business session, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore called the club's attention to the Fine Arts Festival, which will be held in Greenville at the club house on April 22 through the 25th. The club voted to cooperate and be responsible for one of the programs.

Semi-monthly reports were given, after which the club voted to give $70.00 to the Senior Woman's club, which amount is to be used for repairs on the club building. The Juniors also voted to have a bridge tournament on Friday, April 9, the proceeds of which will also go for this purpose. They expressed the wish that this affair will be generously patronized by the members of the Senior club.

During the social hour refreshments were served by Mesdames Bullard, Conley and Hunsucker.

At this time the Junior Woman's club wishes to express its sincere appreciation to Mrs. G. B. Starling, Jr., and Miss Laura Foley for the program that was given by the children of their respective grades at the club meeting on March 19th. Their interpretation of American music and their picture illustrations were most entertaining.—Reported.

Baptist Training Union
 The Baptist Training Union of Memorial Baptist church is beginning a week's training period for all B. Y. P. U. members today. The Juniors will study the "Junior B. Y. P. U. Manual." An attendance of at least three meetings out of five will be required to make the individual eligible to take the examination and receive the certificate offered for the completion of the course.

Miss Davis Speaks at College
 "How the Bible Grew" was the subject of the message brought to the College students at the Y. W. C. A. Vesper services by Miss Zoe Anna Davis, Methodist Student worker, last night.

There are many different religions in the world, she said, but the Hebrew religion seems to fit the needs of the majority of people. Many different groups have Bibles, she pointed out, but few know much of it fundamentally. It contains every type of literature, but more than that, it holds poetry, history, law, prophecy, priestly writings and wisdom.

The Bible, she said, portrays the great attributes of God, and is a book about which every educated person should know something. The Bible grew out of a revelation of people in their search for God.

She advised the students to consult this greatest of all textbooks often and make it a part of their lives.

At the close of her message, Miss Davis exhibited some charts displaying the conceptions of different students on the profound truths of the Bible.

Miss Madeline Eakes sang a solo, "The Garden of Prayer."

PEACE ACTION

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to participate in the launching of the Emergency Peace Campaign's No-Foreign-War Crusade and has invited Admiral Richard E. Byrd to broadcast with her from the White House on April 6, according to a statement issued today from national headquarters of the Campaign by Ray Newton, executive director.

The text of Mrs. Roosevelt's telegram to Byrd follows: "Dear Admiral Byrd: Sponsors of the Emergency Peace Campaign have asked me to appear upon a program with you and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick on the subject of World Peace, to be broadcast from Washington on the evening of April 6. I am happy to do so and am extending an invitation to you to broadcast this program from the White House. I am informed that the broadcast is to be at 10:30 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, and that meetings are being arranged all over the country to listen to this half hour of peace discussion. I congratulate you heartily upon your chairmanship of the No-Foreign-War Crusade of the Emergency Peace Campaign and upon the part you are to take in this program. You can be of great influence in furthering the cause of international friendship throughout the world."

Admiral Byrd's reply read as follows: "Dear Mrs. Roosevelt: Thank you for your cordial message and for the invitation to broadcast the peace program of April 6 from the White House. It has repeatedly happened in history that a peace-loving nation has been drawn into a foreign or offensive war by the very contagion of war fever epidemic that may sweep a peaceful people when the flags wave and the stragions get under way. Emotion is then substituted for reason and an ordinarily friendly people get into the business of killing. The object of our No-Foreign-War Crusade is to provide by intensive education, in several thousand cities, an effective antidote for this war fever. The thousands of workers in this campaign are most grateful to you for your deep interest and leadership in the cause."

TRUCK PARKING IS A NUISANCE

This matter of permitting trucks to stop anywhere on the streets in the business section is causing a lot of traffic congestion and is getting to be a nuisance generally. In granting this stopping privilege to trucks the city administration did so to enable the trucks to load and unload their cargoes at the various business houses, but there are few, if any, places of business in the downtown section that could not be served by the trucks at the back door just as well as the front door.

DON'T BITE THE HAND THAT'S FEEDING YOU!

To The Editor: Two articles in Thursday's Reflector seem to demand a word of protest.

Among the many songs so popular in this country during the World War was one—"Don't Bite The Hand That Is Feeding You." Noting the account of the activities of the organizers of the Grange in this county within the last few weeks, the words of this "war-time" song comes to mind, because the National Grange and our State Grange are opposing Mr. Roosevelt's plan for the reorganization of the Supreme Court.

The other article calling for protest was about Mr. Bailey's speech at Chapel Hill; not what Mr. Bailey said, we people, do not pay any attention to what he says, but in the face of the overwhelming majority given Mr. Roosevelt last November the "Powers that be" at our, or perhaps, it is more correct to say THEIR, University, would not be so diligent in giving support to his enemies.

MRS. CHAS. McARTHUR.

THE CANKER WORM!

Washington Daybook

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—That great anonymous reporter of the inner workings of the Supreme Court, tells us that Justice Brandeis was displeased at having his name connected with one section of the famous letter of Chief Justice Hughes.

That for lack of time and manpower it denied hearings to many. That an increase in size would increase court efficiency.

Now grapevine informs us that that nine members of the court were virtually unanimous in support of Mr. Hughes' statement in these respects. But the chief justice went farther. He injected a statement that was immediately interpreted by court foes as a gratuitous advisory opinion.

And another thing the grapevine reports: that liberal Justice Stone is not wholly pleased with Chief Justice Hughes. He is reputed to have said very forcefully to friends that whenever there was a liberal majority opinion to be written, as in the gold clause and TVA cases, Hughes wrote it himself.

Washington — There now arises a new and crying need for reorganization of the government, what with all the lack of cooperation among the departments in the matter of stamp covers.

Now anyone not knowing the importance of a stamp cover in the affairs of this nation should go at once to his neighborhood philatelist (accept the second syllable, as in "emphatic"). There he will learn that certain stamps are worth dozens of thousands, that daily columns are written about them in the newspapers, and that people stand on street corners, pockets bulging with precious envelopes.

There is nothing so dear to the

NORTH CAROLINIANS IN NATION'S CAPITAL

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—Movement of scrap iron from American ports to foreign countries is causing concern in Washington. A shipment, bound for Japan, left only recently from the new Public Works Administration financed port at Morehead City, N. C.

The Cherry blossom season is approaching in Washington, and because of the close proximity of the nation's capital to North Carolina that state is expected to send its full quota of pilgrims to view the trees on the Potomac tidal basin.

Speaking of cherry blossoms, Miss Johnnie Mabry, of Albemarle, N.C., attractive blonde in the office of Representative Robert L. Doughnut of Asheville, also called at the White House this week to discuss the subject.

Part of the desire for such stamps is pure love, but to many it is a business since such stamps quickly increase in value. The combination of pure love and commercial acumen has simply swamped the consul at Hong Kong. He is so distressed that he telegraphed the state department to stop the flow. Already, he protested, there are more requests for stamps than he, his secretaries, or even extra help could lick. Now of course there is no letter writing in connection with sending such stamps. Philatelists just want the stamp, canceled by the postal help at Hong Kong or Macao. If some lovelick blonde consulate secretary should stuff a note in one of these returning envelopes asking at random for some philatelist to "come and see me sometime," it would simply be wasted on the Pacific air. It wouldn't raise the temperature of a true-love philatelist by a single degree, unless it was to make him impatient that she had it not sent the note in a separate envelope, so he could have two first flight stamp covers.

Certainly when the government is reorganized there should be no such lack of coordination as has left the Hong Kong consulate so busy protecting missionaries and foreign trade that philately must wait.

Talks To Parents

Nursery School There was a time when children learned how to get on with others through contacts in the home. The only child was rarer then than now, and even a family of two or three was considered small.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

Hollywood — Joan Fontaine's hazel eyes flash under her blonde hair and she frowns menacingly, as if she means it, when she says: "Don't you dare! You can't, you know. It's in my contract that no one is to mention it—and I'd rather wash dishes for a career than have it thought I was trading on my sister's success."

What Joan's contract — with Jesse L. Lasky — forbids mentioning is that Joan is the sister of Olivia De Havilland who also (Joan gives me to understand) is going to hate me forever if I tell. Olivia

Today families are generally small, the only child is by no means the exception, people move from place to place so fast that they have no time to become part of any community, and the child has become the center of the stage. Life in the average home is no longer a microcosm of the great world, but a carefully cushioned nest organized for the youngster's special comfort.

wants Joan to have what she wants, and Joan wants to cut out her own paper dolls without sister's name to help, hence the "Fontaine." Having read about this in the papers the day Joan's contract was announced, I couldn't help wondering why all the excitement. Joan seems to think it is vital, however.

With that topic of discussion barred, there remains little to report on the matter except that Joan is quite as charming in her way, as her sister in hers. If anything, she is more animated, and she has a peculiar Heppurnesque quality—like the Heppurn of "Morning Glory." This may be traced either to the fact that Joan's first screen role was with Kate in "Quality Street," or to her youthful exuberance and enthusiasm.

Like her sister ("you could just call her my sister without saying who she was, couldn't you?") Joan was born in Japan, but most of her life has been spent in California. She loves Japan and art, and she thinks her art work has been definitely influenced by her Japanese background. Her big ambition is to have a studio some day on the top floor of a house—the whole top floor—where she can draw and paint to her heart's content.

"My sister and I," she says, "were taught dramatics by mother, and we would give little plays. But I was always frightened of acting—mother was a strict teacher—and I would simply quake at the thought of an audience. I never thought I wanted to be an actress. But I tried out for a part in 'Kind Lady' here and I played it, and then Mr. Henry Duffy used me in his stage presentation of 'Call It a Day.' After that I discovered I simply couldn't live without acting."

Producer Lasky saw her in "Call It a Day" and he signed her for films, caring not a hoot whose sister she was.

CHANCES GOOD FOR WAYNICK

Stock Goes up Despite Campaign For G. W. Coan, Jr.

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, April 5.—The outlook for the reappointment of Capus M. Waynick as chairman of the reorganized State Highway and Public Works Commission is brighter now than at any time so far, in spite of the tremendous campaign being put on in favor of George W. Coan, Jr., State Administrator of the Works Progress Administration, many observers here are convinced. In fact, a good many who are familiar with what has been and is going on behind the scenes are now freely predicting the reappointment of Waynick, although three weeks ago most of these were predicting he would not be reappointed.

Indications are that the intensity and fervor of the campaign in behalf of Coan has served to get Waynick's friends busy, with the result that just as many endorsements are now being received for the reappointment of Waynick as have been coming in for Coan.

There is no doubt that one of the most intense campaigns ever known here has been made in behalf of Coan for chairman of the new highway commission. No one but Governor Clyde R. Hoey knows how many hundreds of letters, telegrams and telephone calls have been received and how many delegations have called in person urging the appointment of Coan—and Governor Hoey is not talking. But it is known that the "pressure" which has been put on, under and around the Governor in favor of Coan's appointment has been terrific, and that the endorsements run well up into the hundreds.

Some of the more thoughtful observers here, however, are inclined to believe that the campaign in favor of Coan has already started to boomerang in Waynick's favor. Two reasons for this belief are given as follows:

1. That Coan has personally inspired too many of the endorsements sent to Governor Hoey in his behalf.
2. That Senator Josiah W. Bailey and Congressman R. L. Doughton seem to be taking too much interest in the appointment of Coan as chairman of the reorganized highway commission.

Coan has already admitted that he wrote about "a couple of dozen" letters to "associates and friends," mostly mayors of cities and towns, asking them to endorse him for the chairmanship and stating that "recent developments indicate the present chairman of the State Highway Commission will be replaced." And while these letters got results and brought in scores of letters from city officials and many delegations containing mayors and councilmen, it has not sat so well with Waynick's friends. They point out that Waynick could have written similar letters to city and county officials asking their endorsements for his reappointment and could probably have started a larger deluge than Coan did, but that he would have been accused immediately of playing politics and putting "pressure" on county and city officials who would have to come before him and the commission later asking favors in the form of roads and highway work. Waynick's friends maintain, however, that he has studiously avoided the starting of any backfires or the soliciting of any endorsements but instead has sat tight and attended to business. But even so, it is agreed among those in a position to know, that spontaneous, unsolicited endorsements for Waynick are coming into the Governor's office in larger and larger numbers.

The fact that the so-called "Bailey organization" is said to be backing Coan is also regarded by many observers here as a decided detriment to his candidacy. For whether there is any foundation to the report or not, the talk is going the rounds to the effect that Senator Bailey, and his chief aide, Herbert Guley, want to use the highway department as a pay counter with which to "take care" of the Baileys, for whom jobs have not yet been found in Washington or to provide for those who will be without jobs when the WPA and other Federal agencies start to fold up. And since Coan is regarded as being a member of the "Bailey machine" and a Bailey appointee, the supposition is that he would lend a sympathetic ear to Bailey suggestions. The report is also going the rounds that Congressman R. L. Doughton is inclined to be friendly to the Coan candidacy, evidently in the belief that Coan and the highway department might be of much help to him if and when he decides to run for the senate against Senator Robert R. Reynolds.

ZOO REPTILES WIN SIT-DOWN STRIKE

Chicago (AP) — The turtles and alligators at Brookfield zoo staged a sit-down strike in their houses until Zoo Director Edward Bean warned their feet.

They refused to exhibit themselves on the sand lot where spectators could watch them. The public protested and Bean investigated. He found the sand was too cold for the turtles and alligators. So he had 600 feet of heated cables, used to warm certain hotbeds and greenhouses, installed in the sand. That solved the problem.

SECURE TITLE FOR BIG TRACT

Resettlement Administration Acquires Land in Bladen

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, April 5.—The Resettlement Administration has, within the past 10 days, acquired title to 14 tracts of land in Bladen county aggregating 3,408.6 acres. Prior to these purchases 15 tracts aggregating 3,135.9 acres had been acquired. The 29 tracts, totaling 6,544.5 acres, are included in the 30,400 acres which the Federal Government has under option for the Jones and Salters Lakes Project, with offices located in Elizabethtown.

The program of the project is one of recreational development, reforestation, game sanctuary, road construction, and forest fire prevention. The majority of the lands above described and to which title is actually vested in the United States are lands adjoining Singletary Lake. The Resettlement Administration is carrying on a program of recreational development at this lake and already, bathhouses, piers, tennis courts and beach improvements are nearing completion.

Abstracts of title to 26 tracts, aggregating approximately 2,500 acres are now being reviewed by the Department of Justice preparatory to issuing checks in payment therefor.

Acquisition of lands in the purchase area of Bladen County has proved a difficult and tedious task for the reasons that records in the Register of Deeds office have been twice burned, the last fire occurring in 1893, and also for the reason that many deeds, wills and other instruments of title have not been recorded. The land within the purchase area is what is familiarly known as "sub-marginal lands" and is of small value. Due to this fact some of the land-owners have considered it an unnecessary expense to record their deeds.

Prior to June 1936, not a single tract of land in the Bladen county purchase area had been paid for because the requirements of the Department of Justice had not been met.

A guinea hen will not lay eggs in a nest touched by a human being.

HIGHER DEATH RATE IN STATE

Figures Released For 1936 by State Health Department

Raleigh, April 5.—From a health standpoint 1936 did not measure up to its predecessor, 1935, but this could hardly be expected, in view of the severe cold and the prolonged arduous winter of 1936. From a provisional report just issued by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health, there were 2,383 more deaths reported for 1936 than for 1935.

The diseases showing the greatest increase in the number of deaths for last year were pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis, malaria, and diphtheria. There were slight increases shown in the number of deaths from several minor diseases such as tetanus, endemic typhus fever and undulant fever.

But the picture is not wholly dark. There are some very encouraging signs seen in the report. Decreases are noted for cancer, pellagra, typhoid, diarrhea, infantile paralysis, measles, and whooping cough. Moreover, there is encouragement in the fact that the maternity and infant death rates show declines. According to the report, 223 fewer babies under one year of age died last year than the year before, and 55 mothers. However, there were 2,727 fewer births for 1936.

State Not To Try Sell Bonds Untill About Middle May

Treasurer Charles M. Johnson Makes Announcement Following Return From New York

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, April 5.—No effort will be made to sell the $4516,000 worth of North Carolina bonds authorized by the 1937 general assembly until about the middle of May, State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson said today following his return from New York where he had been for several days conferring with bankers and bond buyers. At the present time there is virtually no demand for bonds of any kind, Johnson found, but he believes the demand for bonds will pick up soon after May 1.

"At the present time the banks are not buying bonds but are waiting until May 1 to find out from the Federal Reserve how much of their cash they will be required to put into bonds," Treasurer Johnson said. "The life insurance companies are also holding off buying any more bonds in the hope that bond prices will fall and that the interest rates will rise proportionately. But they are in need of revenue and will have to start buying soon, especially if interest rates advance — and indications are that the bond market is becoming more normal all the time, which means higher interest rates."

"Consequently, I have advised Governor Hoey that in my opinion and in the opinion of the bankers and bond experts with whom I talked in New York, we will have no trouble in selling our bonds and at a very good price, soon after the first of May, probably between the tenth and fifteenth of May, since both the banks and the insurance companies should begin to buy heavily any time after May 1. It is likely, however, that we will have to issue a higher rate of interest than in the past, probably

NYA Sponsoring Manual Art Work For City's Youth

Review of Some Accomplishments by Federal Agency Listed by J. K. McLaughlin, Supervisor

In an effort to show citizens what is being accomplished by the National Youth Administration, J. K. McLaughlin, supervisor, today issued a bulletin explaining some of the work being done in Greenville. His statement follows:

The National Youth Administration, sponsoring a manual arts work unit in Pitt County, has recently made remarkable progress in teaching local NYA youths a trade to prepare them for the future.

This class, located in the basement of the Fifth street colored school in Greenville, employs five colored boys. Working sixty hours each month, they have built chairs, desks, bookcases and first aid cabinets for the rural schools of this county. Supervised by a local manual arts teacher, who works with them; closely observing each item to see that it is correctly constructed, has enabled them to turn out well made and useful articles.

Each NYA youth employed on this project expressed a desire for training of this nature. Up until a few months ago, the youths themselves furnished materials with which to work, so anxious were they for this training.

Their desire to do something worthwhile for the community, has resulted in a recent appropriation of funds by The Pitt County Welfare Department to build Tubercular cottages which will be distributed among the most needy cases of tuberculosis in this county. They later plan to build chairs for the county court room, make repairs, and construct useful articles for the public buildings in this county.

A letter of recent date from the State project Director of NYA to the local supervisor called for a report on this unit, stating it was one of two projects chosen as the most outstanding in North Carolina. So remarkable has been the work of this class of manual arts that interested parties from all over the State have written and inquired about blue prints of the many useful items they have made.

These colored boys have worked hard and long for the praise they have received. Each of them will be before long, be prepared for private employment, and it is then the community can play its part by offering employment to them, and by cooperation and encouragement to the honest desire that is being made to prepare them for a life of usefulness, instead of one of future unemployment.

Augusta Competitors Warned To 'Watch Jones'

"Watch Jones! He'll be in the first 10 and I'm not trying to give him an inch." Such was the warning trumpeted by Host Ed Dudley concerning Bobby Jones as big shots foy and near assembled for the Augusta National Golf tournament. Bobby and three other outstanding competitors are shown in a practice round on the eve of the opening. Left to right: Sam Snead, current sensation of the winter title; Harry Cooper, the season's big-money pro; Dudley, the host pro, and Jones, once the "greatest of all golfers." # NOT TOO LATE SEED LEGUMES

Farmers Still Have Time to Reap Federal Benefits

Farmers wishing to get the most out of the soil conservation program still have time to seed legumes with which payments may be earned, said R. W. Bennett, county agent.

Legumes not only earn payments, he continued, but they also conserve and build up the soil and in this respect they are worth much more to the farmer than the payments.

Legumes may also be used in building up a full base of soil-conserving crops and thereby making the farmer eligible to earn all the payments covered by his 1937 farm allowance.

Although it is getting a little late for lespedeza, it may be sown on loose ground, such as that on which a spring oat crop is being grown, and the rate of payment is $1.50 an acre.

Soybeans can be sown from around May to June 15 or 20, and cowpeas may be seeded from around May 20 to July 1, Bennett continues.

A payment of $2 an acre will be made for turning under soybeans or cowpeas as green manure, or $1 an acre will be paid if the seed is harvested and the plants left on the land.

Since seed is scarce and expensive this year, Bennett urged all farmers to be extra careful to prepare their fields well and sow the seed so it will be evenly distributed.

College Prepares Celebrate Annual High School Day

Event To Be Held April 15 With Estimated 2,000 High School Seniors in Attendance

The second E. C. T. C. High School Day will be celebrated on April 15, and 2,000 high school graduates are expected to attend. Special invitations have been sent to the fifty-nine counties in the eastern and central section of the state with a line starting with Rockingham and crossing the state forming the western boundary.

The College students organized into county clubs will be special hosts and hostesses for the groups from their own counties. College classes will be suspended while the guests are on the campus so that the students can participate in all the activities of the day.

Twelve special committees composed of faculty members and students have charge of the program and arrangements for the day. The student county groups will be on hand at the Robert H. Wright Building at ten o'clock and after registration will take charge of the guests and show them around the campus.

At 11:30 they will meet at a designated point for a grand parade through a part of the town and across the campus to the Wright auditorium where the program will begin at 11:45. The Wilson High School band will furnish the music.

President Meadows will deliver the address of welcome after the response to the roll call by counties. The rest of the program will consist of groups of songs by the two E. C. T. C. glee clubs and singing by the entire group of both college and high school students.

A barbecue luncheon will be served on the back campus at about one o'clock. After lunch the guests may either attend a picture show or join in dancing. A baseball game is scheduled for 3:15.

To Let Contract On School Buses During This Week

Commission Making Plans to Purchase 650 New Trucks Provided For By Recent Legislature

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, April 5.—The State School Commission will open bids on some 650 new school buses Thursday, April 8, it was announced today by Lloyd Griffin, executive secretary of the commission. The number actually purchased will depend upon the price bid, but it is expected that the buses will average from $900 to $950, including the bodies. This will be the first large letting since the new appropriation of $600,000 was made by the 1937 general assembly. Only about 50 buses have been purchased so far from this appropriation.

The bodies of these new buses will be larger and stronger than ever before as a result of changes made in the specifications, Griffin said. As a result, the new bus bodies will be the safest bus bodies that can be obtained and fully as safe as all-steel bodies, the commission maintains. Because of this fact, most of the south eastern states have now adopted the North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia, Florida and Mississippi are now insisting that the school bus bodies they buy must be built according to the North Carolina specifications.

Although the 700 new buses which will be purchased with the new appropriation of $600,000 and other funds that were available these new buses by no means take care of the need, Griffin said. He pointed out that there are between

Governor Frank Murphy was steering the Chrysler strike conference, affecting more than 69,000 workers toward a settlement. Murphy said "I can't fix the date or hour, but I believe it will be soon."

Declaring there was "nothing to indicate further serious trouble," Murphy planned in the next day or two to confer with representatives of the other automotive labor controversies in Michigan, particularly those concerned in the Hudson and Reo strikes.

While John Lewis, union leader, Walter Chrysler, chairman of the automobile corporation and the Governor were in conference yesterday, members of the United Automobile workers paraded around the state capital at Lansing.

and then headed to the South where the mountain ranges rise.

Burbank, Calif., April 5.—(AP)—A plane carrying eight or more persons was missing today, along a route marked by bad weather.

The plane, a Douglas transport, hopped off at 10 a. m., Saturday morning and was being ferried across the country to be shipped from New York to Holland to the Royal Dutch line. It was equipped with a radio sending and receiving set. The pilot, Glen Moser, had no scheduled stop, except Kansas City.

Bad weather was reported over Arizona.

Two records indicated eight persons, besides Moser and Co-pilot Joe Wofolk were aboard.

Mrs. Moser expressed hope her husband had grounded the ship in an emergency field in Southern Arizona, New Mexico or Texas. Since since more than a day and a half had elapsed since the take-off Douglas officials did not share this hope.

DEBATERS WIN TWO CONTESTS

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Rev. Clarence Patrick, and Dr. Frederick Brooks. The decision here was unanimous for Tarboro.

The query this year was not only debated in North Carolina, but in 35 other states also.

Last year both Greenville teams under the direction of T. C. Bryan advanced to the semi-finals in Chapel Hill. Again this year, by virtue of winning both debates, Greenville will again go to the contest in Chapel Hill.

This is the second year that Greenville high has had debating for a number of years.
