GREAT BRITAIN READY TO TAKE UP OLD WAR DEBTS

Decision Made Known By Chancellor Neville Chamberlain

NOT PREPARED OFFER METHOD

Willingness Also Announced to Attend Interational Economic Conference

London, April 22. (AP)—British officials said in the House of Commons today the British government was willing to reopen discussions both for settlement of its war debt to the United States and to attend an international economic conference.

On war debts, Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain told the members:

"As stated in the note addressed to the United States on October 13, 1936, his Majesty's government would be ready to reopen discussion on the questions of settlement of the British war debt whenever circumstances are such to warrant the hope that a satisfactory result might be reached.

"I am not prepared to express an opinion at the present time with regard to the methods of settlement."

On international economic co-operation Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin said the government was willing to participate "provided a comprehensive investigation showed it was likely to succeed and provided there had been adequate preparation."

Baldwin was asked by Laborite Arthur Henderson whether he was aware of the declaration of Herr Hitler that the German government was willing to participate in a new world conference.

"Yes, sir," Baldwin replied. "The government has seen Herr Hitler's statement. The position of the government on this matter has been made clear from time to time."

able In Court Gives Girls A 'Field Day'

'Twas a great day for the girls of Los Angeles when Screen Lover Clark Gable came to court and testified he is not the father of Gwendoline Norton (right), 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. Violet Wells Norton. He was chief witness against Mrs. Norton who was tried on a charge of trying to extort money from Gable by claiming the girl is their illegitimate child. He is shown surrounded by a host of feminine admirers in the corridor of the court building.

Settlement of General Motors Canadian Strike Expected To Be Reached Today

Lewiston, Maine, April 22.—(AP)—Police Captain Joseph Picard today arrested Powers Hapgood, New England secretary for the C. I. O., and William Mackey, C. I. O. director of a 29-day shoe strike involving 6,400 workers and 19 factories in the Lewiston-Auburn area.

In addition, Ernest Henry, an union organizer, also was arrested. The three were seized at their hotel.

A police warrant charged them with "riotous assault." It was issued in connection with the stoning of state police lieutenant, George Fowler, knocked unconscious yesterday by a stone as state and Auburn police turned back 1,000 strikers at a trighthead.

(By Associated Press) Glistening bayonets on the rifles of 300 national guardsmen warned 6,400 Maine shoe workers against recurrence of strike violence today.

Yesterday's outbreaks, in which several persons in the Lewiston-Auburn area were hurt, presented the most acute situation along the labor front.

Settlement of the General Motors strike in Canada was expected today with representatives of the company and the 3,700 affected workers ready to talk peace in Premier Mitchell Hepburn's office.

As the strike entered its fifteenth day, C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa local, and J. L. Cohen, counsel for the strikers' organization, announced they would attend the conference as "representatives of the Oshawa workers," not as representatives of John Lewis' C. I. O. The Premier had previously said he would deal with the C. I. O.

Maine's governor, Lewis Barrows, called on the troops to halt a two-day series of clashes between police, strikers and sympathizers.

At Washington the United Mine Workers of America, headed by Lewis, indicated it was ready to organize the miners of Harlan county, Kentucky, where national unions heretofore have been unable to gain a foothold.

In sponsoring this program the club is cooperating with the Greenville Woman's club in its annual community Fine Arts Festival. Immediately following the dinner and a few routine matters of business the meeting will be opened to the public.

LOYAL TROOPS STRIKING BACK

Insurgent Cannons Drowned Out By Defense Artillery

Madrid, April 22.—(AP)—A thunderous government artillery assault against the gun emplacements from which insurgents have punished Madrid with death and destruction for 11 days, drowned out the insurgent cannonade today and enabled government ground troops to fight their way into the insurgent suburb of Usera.

Savage fighting began at dawn along the suburban battlefield while insurgent General Francisco Franco's gunners, adopting anti-aircraft pieces to siege work rained shells into the heart of the city.

But the morning insurgent bombardment, a continuation of the hail of steel that has taken at least 200 Madrid lives in less than two weeks, was short lived. The government own guns opened a tremendous barrage against the besiegers' gun emplacements in the suburbs.

Meanwhile the government defenders in the Usera suburb recaptured the lost ground in a rally.

Saturday Official Day Don Straws

Another harbinger that summer practically is here is the fact that the official straw hat season will begin here this coming Saturday.

Local stores are featuring the event and are offering the summer hats this week. The old, winter felts will be out of style after this week and will be replaced by the lighter straws.

ALVIN C. YORK TO SPEAK HERE

World War Hero Being Brought Here By Peace Council

Sergeant Alvin C. York—the World War's greatest hero—has volunteered to speak for the Emergency Peace Campaign, two-year drive to keep the United States out of war, and will speak at the Campus Building of East Carolina Teachers' College Monday night, April 26 at 8 o'clock.

Born and reared on a Tennessee mountain farm, one of eleven children, Sergeant York became famous for his skill with rifle and pistol, heritage of the mighty "Long Hunter"—Davy Crockett, Daniel Boone, Sam Houston, and the other legends of a by-gone era. York is called the "Last of the Long-Hunters" as he is a direct descendant of those famed pioneers who settled the hills of Kentucky and Tennessee.

When America went into the war, York claimed exemption as a "conscientious objector," stating simply: "I don't want to fight." His claim was denied, and strange as it seems, the man who was destined to become the world's greatest war hero was not a volunteer, but a drafted man. Before he left to "jine up," he spent two days and a night in prayer on the mountain-side.

The day he left for camp, he "told" his suit case and walked out of the mountains alone. Eighteen months later, he returned to the roaring acclaim of a nation which paid him tribute.

It was October 8, 1918, that Sergeant York performed what Marshal Foch declared to be "the greatest thing accomplished by any private soldier of all the armies of Europe." He joined the 328th Infantry, Company G, 82nd Division, "The All-American" Division, so called because every state in the union was represented.

Seventeen men crawled out into the red dawn of the Argonne that day to silence a nest of over 30 German machine guns which were holding up an American advance with a pouring storm of lead. Among them was Alvin York.

The seventeen penetrated into the forest and suddenly landed in the center of a German machine-gun nest, taking them completely by surprise. The Germans surrendered, thinking the line had broken, but in a few moments, they sprung a trap in which wiped out 10 of the Americans, leaving only York and six others safe. The six took cover, but York calmly proceeded to pick off the machine-gunners, one by one. (Continued on page two)

SHIPS TO TRY RUN BLOCKADE

British Vessels Determined to Reach Port of Bilbao

St. Jean de Luz, France, Spanish border, April 22.—(AP)—A defiant fleet of British food ships under the high seas guard of British men-of-war determined today to smash the Spanish insurgent blockade of Bilbao and provision the near starving Basque capital.

While three of the five freighters driven to cover here by attacks from insurgent vessels put up steam for an attempt to run the blockade, government shore batteries along the Bay of Biscay coast started booming at dawn to sweep the turbulent waters of insurgent warships.

The food-laden British vessels were reported authorized by their owners to run the gauntlet, despite a warning from the British government and was promised an escort of British warships to the three mile limit.

Hoey Announces Two Minor Appointments

Raleigh, April 22.—(AP)—Governor Hoey appointed Gregg Cherry of Gastonia and Reginald Harris of Roxboro today as members of the state textbook commission, which will handle free and rental text book books.

Cherry was speaker of the 1937 House of Representatives and Harris was speaker in 1933. Both served on the purchase and rental textbook commission, which the new body succeeds under a 1937 law.

Tahiti Slows Down

Papeete, Tahiti (AP)—This widely known port is relapsing into tropical languor as the result of being dropped as a port of call on one transpacific passenger routes. Ships calling here now are largely freight vessels, and travelers are few on the one French line carrying passengers. Sea traffic consists largely of copra shipments.

No Extension In Shad Season

The Department of Conservation and Development advised today that the shad fishing season closed on April 15 and no extension had been or will be granted, contrary to the understanding of many here.

A mix-up resulted from different dates applying to the Southern and Northern districts. Upon information from a source The Reflector considered reliable, a news story was carried recently stating that the season had been extended. Later the department was asked for a statement on the law and the answer came today that the season was closed in Pitt county.

PENITENT KIDNAPER FREES BOY

Five hours after five-year-old William Grinnell Blodgett was kidnaped in Oakland, Calif., he was released by the conscience-stricken abductor with a note pinned to his clothing which read: "I was going to hold this boy for ransom but I decided to go straight. I am in great need but would rather starve than make his parents suffer." William is shown safe at home with the note still attached.

MANY MAY BE DROPPED FROM RELIEF ROLLS

Total of 2,114,790 Relief Workers On List March 27

ROOSEVELT ASKS REDUCED BUDGET

Top Average Under President's Recommendation Estimated at 1,786,000

Washington, April 22.—(AP)—WPA spokesman figured unofficially today that a top average of 1,786,000 persons annually could be given relief employment under the appropriation recommended by President Roosevelt for the next fiscal year.

The President asked Congress to make $1,500,000,000 available for relief for the year beginning July 1. Some representatives started a movement to boost the allotment by a billion dollars or more. There has also been some talk of reducing it, but democratic leaders indicated they would provide the sum the President wanted.

WPA officials said their rolls probably would have to be cut if the President's recommendation goes through. They reported 2,114,790 relief workers on the list March 27. On March 27 last year there were 2,871,637.

Elsewhere in the capital the La-follette Civil Liberties Committee, two of whose witnesses said they had been threatened because of their testimony, continued its inquiry into conditions in Harlan Co., Kentucky.

A former chief deputy sheriff, Henry Lewis, testified Sheriff Theodore Middleton required him to hand over to Middleton $75 a month of his $200 monthly salary. He expressed the belief other deputies also turned part of their salary over to the sheriff.

Developments continued behind the scenes in the A. F. of L.—C. I. O. dispute and organization drives.

The labor federation resumed discussion of whether it should expel 10 unions affiliated with the C. I. O. Like relief officials, administration farm leaders surveyed President Roosevelt's economy recommendations and said they may meet his requests by postponing three projects in a long-time agricultural program—tenancy aids, crop insurance and the "ever-normal granary."

Congressmen said parts of the $135,000,000 program for fighting farm tenancy might be pursued, however, with funds from the proposed $1,500,000 relief appropriation.

ARMY BANS FALSE TEETH FROM BIRDMEN ALOFT

Washington, (AP)—Little did the Wright brothers know what discomforts their flying machines ultimately would bring to army fliers.

Now comes the army flight surgeons with an order that all army aviators wearing false teeth shall dispense with them before taking flights. The surgeons figure the army's air dikes have a tendency to cause false teeth to jump from pilot's mouths.

The trouble is the teeth don't always jump out. When they drop down the aviator's throat he is likely to choke to death.

The Round Table

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. T. A. Person was hostess to the Round Table, with Mrs. S. J. Everett, president, presiding.

For the occasion, Mrs. J. S. Lewis, Mrs. T. G. Basnight, Mrs. O. L. Joyner and Mrs. J. R. Gullledge were special guests.

Mrs. H. L. Carr gave a most interesting paper on the "Making of Pottery," showing that in ancient Egypt, Greece, Rome, China, Persia and India the potter plied his clay when history dawned. That is was one of the very first arts to be acquired is very obvious, as the oldest relics in the world are pieces of pottery.

Josiah Wedgwood, of Burslem, Staffordshire, England, was one of the greatest potters that ever lived. He used clay from the Carolinas and Florida for his fine English ware. He once said that unless clay of similar quality were formed in England the manufacture of fine porcelain would pass from England to the colonies, where excellent kaolin can be secured.

Mrs. Carr's paper included pottery to the colonies, where excellent kaolin and Rookwood potteries, established by the Chinese, Greek and Bennington Pottery in Vermont in 1793, and the Jug Town Pottery in 1917, located in Moore county, N. C. A $250,000 kaolin plant—one of the most modern in America, will soon start production at Spruce Pine. It will manufacture fine table ware.

Several pieces of pottery were on display, one piece being a Chinese copy over two hundred years old.

Mrs. E. W. Griffin gave an interesting current event regarding the cost of the coronation.

At the conclusion of the meeting the hostess, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Tighman, served a delicious sweet course.—Reported.

Miss Alford in Recital

This half hour piano recital given by Miss Christine Alford Wednesday afternoon at the East Carolina Teachers College was much enjoyed by the music lovers who heard it.

The program was of true artistic value and Miss Alford's interpretation was musical and satisfying. Her Bach, Mozart and Scarlatti stood out especially, and her lighter numbers were also well received by her audience.

Her playing is rather introspective in character and shows thoughtful preparation and excellent training.

She is a pupil of Miss Dora E. Mead, and both Miss Mead and Miss Alford are to be congratulated upon this delightful recital.

The talk was followed with a great deal of interest by a large crowd of Science students.

POET SAYS MOUNTAINS DISCOURAGE LITERATURE

Denver, (AP)—The mountains are too high in Colorado for writers of that state to produce good literature, says Thomas Hornsby Ferril, Colorado poet.

When a writer thinks about the mountains he decides that "this is all so big, only God could have caused it," Ferril said.

"Now, a writer must feel that he is master of what he writes about before his literature will be good. Authors stand in awe and wonder at the sight of the mountains and this shows in their works."

"The writer abandons the 'play for the setting.'"

Ferril recently was awarded an honorary degree, doctor of letters, by the University of Colorado.

DANIELS PLANS TO VISIT STATE

Ambassador May Do Some Editing During Raleigh Stay

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, April 22.—Ambassador Josephus Daniels, who is coming home from Mexico City in latter May for his vacation, may do some editing for his paper, as the chief scribe of the News and Observer, Jonathan Daniels, will be out more than a month gathering material for a book which McMillan Company has commissioned him to write. The survey by the younger Daniels will be throughout the South and the opus may be the fulfillment of one of his own desires many times expressed in past literary efforts. The exact character of the volume has not been made known. Enough is known of both Danieleses to warrant the prophecy that Editor Daniels will portray quite a different South from that glorified by his illustrious father. The return of Josephus Daniels just at a time when the liquor stores are being agitated and votes over the state are being cast for and against legalized sale of liquor, will be happy news for the prohibitionists who count on this age-old bone-dry editor to oppose the opening of any stores anywhere in North Carolina or anywhere else on the earth. Too young in 1861 to vote for state-wide prohibition Josephus

Daniels worked for it and has been a prohibitionist in every vote subsequent that enterprise 58 years ago. In time Wake county and Raleigh will meet this issue and every faithful dry will risk his last dollar that the elder Daniels will pen many a part-paragraph of two columns upon the evils of liquor. The Rhamkette Roaster for a few fortnights is due to make a dtime war upon rum. Ambassador Daniels will make some commencement speeches and attend some trustees meetings while he is at home.

No Predictions From Milwaukee Milwaukee, Wis. (AP)—That silence you hear around Marquette university's John L. (Paddy) Dilsco, new football coach, expressing his opinion of the 1937 prospects. He's not a pessimist. He's just making no predictions yet. Says Dilsco, who took over one of the college teams of 1936 after Coach Frank J. Murray got through:—

"We haven't seen enough of the season yet. Our most difficult problem is to develop a backfield from raw material. The spirit in practice is excellent and that fact alone bodes well for the future." "Erickson has been impressed by the size of his squad—more than 80 griders fanned out—as well as by its enthusiasm.

The University of Oklahoma basketball team played before 22,000 spectators in nine home games the past season.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS A roaring February storm crashes on Farrington Bluff after Michael, his sweetheart Gay Palmer and a trine for a weekend with his snuts. That night, Mike awakens me, shouting that Jude Blinshop, the fourth guest, and the Skipper, his tall and tweedy younger out, have disappeared. White William, the chauffeur, Michael and I are searching the island, Mike tells into the surf and we barely save him. We get him back to the house with his injured arm and set out again, finding Jude, without hat or coat, face downward in the mud on the bluff.

Chapter Six The Skipper Returns

WHAT the dev was William waiting for? I shouted something unintelligible and flopped down on my knees. I tried to raise her. And then, as Jude's face came into the light, I knew. Her face and dress were streaked with something fat brighter than mud. Through the middle of her forehead was a ragged, bleeding hole. Long before I found her pulse I knew that Jude Blinshop was dead. There is no point in dwelling on what I went through in the next few minutes. It has no bearing on this story. Crouched in the mud, staring at that still ghastly face, I was reviewing a flickering succession of scenes with a girl who laughed, who danced, who— From a great distance and after a long time I became aware of the storm once more—of William's frantic grip on my shoulder and his voice rising meaninglessly above the uproar. I moved without knowing what I was doing, raised her in my arms and darted for the house without knowing where I was going. Mostly I was thinking of blue eyes, alive, laughing, and eager I was feeling a girl's warm arms around my neck, feeling—Suddenly I was in the kitchen doorway with William hanging onto my arm. "Don't you think, sir, we better leave her here until—I mean, Miss Farrington, sir. If she was to see us—" I stared at him. Dimly there came to me a recollection of M. Farrington and her hysterics, of the missing Skipper of Michael and Gay upstairs. I noticed William was helping me lay her on the kitchen table. Limp, and in a blue dress. Jude Jude Blinshop! A blanket of some sort seemed to be over me. I couldn't think I couldn't feel. There was empty space all around me and empty space inside of me. Then through that empty space a voice cut like a rifle shot. It was William's. And he was babbling something about murder!

Impossible! My stammered brain rejected the thought automatically, but even in the process it mulled over other facts. Dead! Shot! And the bridge was down. Suppose Jude had been shot? Then the person who shot her must be— I opened my mouth, but the words never came, for just at that moment a sound from the door sent us both spinning wildly about to confront the Skipper standing calmly on the threshold.

The Thing Behind Us THE Skipper closed the door. "Well," she said in a perfectly natural voice, "what goes on here?" Just that, I tried to say something, but I was too late. The Skipper caught sight of the thing behind us. She stood stock still, gripping her sou'wester. man, since he is reported to have supported Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham in the first primary; and second, that two important appointive state jobs are already held by men from adjoining counties in the Albemarle. For Lloyd Griffin of Edenton is still chairman of the State School Commission and is regarded as having a good chance to be reappointed, while Dudley Bagley of Moyock, Currituck county, is chairman of the N. C. Rural Electrification Authority and is also regarded as having a good chance to be reappointed.

TENSION INCREASES OVER TWO MAJOR APPOINTMENTS (Continued from page one) capable politician and that he was of great assistance to Olive in managing Mr. Hoey's campaign. It has been assumed every since the primaries that Moore would be rewarded with a choice appointment. It is understood that Hubert Olive made a trip here last week to ask Governor Hoey to appoint Moore chairman of the new liquor control liquor board. It is also known that Moore has had some other very strong endorsements. On the other hand, Williams also has some very fine recommendations from all sections of the state and has been endorsed for the chairmanship by some 93 members of the 1937 general assembly, of which he was a member. The chief obstacle to the appointment of Williams as chairman of the ABC board seem to be, first, that he was not an "original" Hoey members. Those close to Governor Hoey maintain that he positively has not yet reached a decision with regard to the chairmanship of the high-way commission. Those opposed to the reappointment of Wayne maintain he is already out of the running and that the new chairman will be either George W. Coan, Jr. of Winston-Salem and Raleigh, James H. Clark of Elizabethtown or Dr. Herman G. Baily, head of the engineering department of the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and former PWA engineer in the state. But many of the seasoned observers maintain that Wayne still has the inside track and that he will be reappointed. The fact that Wayne has been offered the posts of Assistant Director of the Budget, Director of the Division of Purchase and Contract, Director of Public Assistance and even the chairmanship of the new liquor board and has declined all four of these offers, indicates to many that he is unwilling to step down from the highway job into something less important, merely to ease the political pressure on Governor Hoey.

WHY THE EXEMPTION?

So long as one and a half million federal employees are exempt from state income, taxes and approximately five million state, county and municipal employees are exempt from federal income taxes, regardless of the size of their salaries, those persons in private employment can expect to continue to have to bear more than their just share of the income taxes.

With more than six million persons being exempted of either the state or federal income tax the burden of paying both taxes is falling upon about two million persons whose incomes are derived from private employment and in many instances these incomes are far below many of those being exempted.

With the continued creating of public offices and public boards more and more people are being removed from either the federal or state income tax rolls while the public payroll increases, adding to the burdens of those persons in private employment who are forced to bear the bulk of the income taxes. We see no reason why persons on the public pay rolls should not bear their share of the tax burdens in the same proportion as those who derive similar incomes from private employment.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—When he wrote that amusing comedy of a small town drudge, "Miss Quis," Ward Morehouse discovered that all comments of the critics were not wholly paeans of praise. Many of them chided him for not making the most of a brilliant idea, charging him with mishandling characters, and challenging the advisability of permitting one of them at least to commit a useless murder.

But it is Ward's idea that characters in a similar situation would react similarly to his treatments. He is satisfied with his work, and in no wise incensed at the brisk handling it received in some quarters, having thumb-downed many dramas himself in his career as Broadway columnist for "The New York Sun."

The idea for this play has intrigued Morehouse for years. Indeed, he wrote it a couple of years ago, but revised the piece extensively.

It's the story of a small town drudge who has hired out, at one time or another, to all of the upper bracket families in town. Suddenly she inherits vast wealth and determines to oust the snobs whose chores she had attended to through the years. By devious ways she achieves this, compelling them to abandon their property and leave the town.

Ward himself is a gentle, likable fellow (when the conversation is on any subject except the war between the states) who has written a great deal for the stage and screen.

He had a hand, a very important one, in that first of all modern plays dealing with ribald newspapermen, "Gentlemen of the Press." Not only did the collaborate with Mark Barron in writing it; he lost the second act in a hack one night, during rehearsal, and as there was no carbon copy, the act had to be rewritten before rehearsals could begin. That was the play in which, when it went to the screen, Walter Huston played the city editor. It also gave Kay Francis her first big chance in the films.

But, what is more important is his desire (now mercifully stilled) to become an actor. Finally they let him play a walk-out in his own play—during one of its final performances. Ward was to be a drunken reporter. His hazardous task was to rush out of a telephone booth and scream, "Wait; here's a great story!" Finally the night came when they thought he could go on. The play progressed to the moment when he should have excitedly leaped from the booth.

Instead, there was only a frantic pounding, as if someone were in difficulties. Someone was. The door had jammed, and he was locked in the telephone booth, right there before the delighted gaze of the audience.

Mitzl Green's grand warbling of "The Lady Is a Tramp" in "Babes in Arms", puts her in a class with the foremost of Broadway's singing comedienne.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—What stuck in the craw of many congressmen about the farm tenant bill was the possibility that the government would hand out a farm, mule and new harness and wagon to every indigent farmer in sight to parade in front of hard working neighbors who had stuck it out on their own.

That was what the President recalled when he said at a press conference that this business of buying farms would be only on a thinly spread out experimental basis at first. If it worked out well, it could be expanded from time to time.

The President's committee on farm tenancy denied it was a race proposition, even in the south. At least two thirds of the tenant farmers in the south, where much of the aid is expected to go, are white. That was what the committee found and tucked away in a 75-page report.

But don't think the farm tenant bill is looked upon as "the green pastures" by all farm tenants. Some have intimated the bill was designed largely to bail out large land holders, particularly in the south, who would be glad to sell their worn out holdings to the government to be split up among the tenants.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has said that the department of agriculture has been snatched out of the domination of the "upper third" of the farmers but W. L. Blackstone, representing the Southern Tenant Farmers' union on the President's farm tenancy committee, disagreed.

Blackstone, in a minority report, expressed an abiding distrust of county agents and other agencies of the department of agriculture, into whose hands he suspected the farm tenant program would fall, just as did AAA.

He said complaints against these agents by farmers were turned over to the agents themselves to investigate, and the result was that complaining farmers often were penalized by the agents.

Congress seems willing enough to accept degrees of crop control, and such legislation is being prepared for it and when the court revision plan is acted upon. But while willing to go along that road, the house agriculture committee at least expressed a disinclination to go along on a farmer - contro program such as the farm tenant bill first envisaged.

As first drafted by the agriculture department, the bill would authorize the department to buy land outright and sell it to farmers on a 45-year repayment plan under which the farmer would not be permitted to resell the land until the end of 45 years.

To some members of the committee, that smacked of profligacy. So they struck out that provision and provided the same amount of money, $50,000,000, to be lent to farmers on a straight mortgage basis.

Even this revised bill is headed for tough—and slow—going.

Organization of coast-to-coast air service in Canada is proposed in a bill introduced in the House of Commons.

J. W. WINBORNE HOEY VISITOR

Listed Among Those Supporting Waynick For Office

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, April 22—During the late Grand Lodge communication in Raleigh State Democratic Chairman J. Wallace Winborne was a Raleigh visitor, primarily an attendant upon the Masonic meeting, but there is plenty of corroborating evidence that he and Governor Hoey talked highway matters.

And the universal understanding is that Chairman Winborne appeared as friends and well wisher of Chairman Capus M. Waynick. The former Grandmaster did not say so, but his brethren of the great order know how he has felt about this appointment.

Chairman Winborne became the Democratic leader under the call of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus who wished him to direct the 1932 campaign. The Marion lawyer, once a neighbor of Governor Ehringhaus, conducted those two campaigns and had a surplus at the end of each. This feat always wins the praise of the public. On request of Governor Hoey Chairman Winborne remained the party head and helped to give the Shelby candidate his 270,000 majority.

In taking over the Ehringhaus party organization last fall Governor Hoey fared well. But there is a well-known sensitiveness among new governors over any excess of officials and commissions coming down from previous administrations. Strange as it may seem, Governor Hoey's hesitancy about reappointing Waynick is ascribed more to the fact that Waynick is an Ehringhaus appointee than to any other reputed infirmity that he may have.

Assuming that Chairman Winborne did advocate Waynick's reappointment, the highway head was the beneficiary of the biggest help that any one man could give him. And news about the capitol is that these gentlemen, the governor and the chairman, were interested in the politics of the situation which has arisen.

Planting Oysters In Sound Waters Along N. C. Coast

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, April 22—More than one million bushels of oysters have been planted in the sound waters of seven North Carolina counties under the Works Progress Administration program sponsored by the State Department of Conservation and Development according to a recent report on the project.

Counting the plantings carried out by the CWA and the ERA, totaling more than a million bushels, a grand total of more than 2,000,000 bushels of the bivalves have been placed in growing bottoms during the last few years.

The seven counties in which the work has been carried on and the number of bushels of oysters planted are as follows: Brunswick, 157,845 bushels; Carteret county, 370,456 bushels; Dare county, 97,475 bushels; Hyde county, 140,690 bushels; New Hanover county, 227,751 bushels; Onslow county, 23,876 bushels; and Pamlico county, 78,439 bushels.

Fisheries officials believe that within about three years the planted oysters should increase some three hundred per cent in volume at their normal rate of growth, giving a harvest of some six million bushels of the bivalves.

As a result of the rehabilitation program it is also believed that a large area of new bottoms which have hitherto grown oysters will be brought into productivity and can be made to provide a regular annual crop through the observance of cult limits.

North Carolina, according to estimates of fisheries officials, has some 1,000,000 acres of sound bottoms capable of growing oysters, but of this amount only little more than one per cent is at present productive of marketable bivalves. Planting of additional stock on suitable bottoms and private culture are the two most logical means, it is pointed out, of increasing the shellfish productivity of the state.

GREENIES WIN CLOSE BATTLE

Score Two in Eighth To Win Over Rocky Mount, 4-3

The Greenies defeated the Rocky Mount Blackbirds yesterday 4-3, to boost their C class standing to the 500 mark. Jack Forbes' double to left-center, scoring H. Forbes and Minges, who had reached first on error and a walk respectively, decided the game.

Tucker pitched for the Greenies and struck out seven batters while allowing but six hits. He did not allow but one Blackbird to reach second until the sixth inning.

The Greenies hit the offering of Bailey to all parts of the park and only the sensational fielding of the Blackbirds held them to nine hits.

Greenville pushed across two scores in the sixth on hits by Minges, Williams and J. Forbes, but Rocky Mount tied it up in their half of the same inning on two hits, a walk and a hit batter. In the eighth inning with two away H. Forbes reached first on an error. Minges drew a walk, and Williams singled to short left filling the bases. Then came Jack Forbes' double, scoring H. Forbes and Minges. This ended the Greenies' scoring for the day.

The Blackbirds threatened to tie the score in their half of the ninth. They pushed across one run in their inning and had the tying run on third with one out, but Tucker handed the situation nicely. He struck out Insoe and Felton, ending the ball game.

Williams and J. Forbes each with two hits in four tries led the Greenies hitting attack, while Walker was the only Blackbird to hit safely more than once. He also got two hits in four times at bat.

BUSINESS MEN TO PLAY BALL

Softball League With Eight Clubs Organized In City

Greenville's first softball league was organized here last night, and eight teams have signified their intention to engage in the sport this summer.

A committee has been named to secure a plot for a diamond and a schedule will be drawn up in the immediate future.

Play will start on May 3 and games will be played each Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Each team will play two games a week.

The eight teams are as follows: Lawyers, Carolina Sales, Carolina Dairy, Blount-Harvey, Person-Garrett, Tadlock Mutual Life Ins. Co., Cornum Shoe Co., and Flanagan Bugby Co.

Representatives of each team with one exception, were at last night's meeting, at which officers were selected as follows: Twist Matthews, president; M. P. Fox, vice president, and Jake Hadley, secretary-treasurer.

The move to get softball started here was inaugurated only a week or so, M. P. Fox, who came here recently from Raleigh, where he had a team last year, was among the first to get behind the sport here.

After the first announcement of plans, sponsors found no trouble in getting eight teams. If others wish to play another league can be organized with four or more clubs.

The game, designed for young and middle-aged business men, will be played late in the afternoon after most business establishments are closed.

The Alabama basketball team last season won 16 games, lost 9.

Big Zeke Bonura, who loves to eat and laugh and play baseball—in that order—is going to puzzle Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox through another American league campaign.

He loves to play baseball, and this fact and his ability to hit have kept Zeke in the game. He loves to laugh, and this fact and his swag-ger have made him a colorful figure on a fan favorite. He loves to eat, and this fact probably will get him out of the game.

Jimmy Dykes shakes his head over Zeke. He just can't understand the 213-pounder who puts everything he's got behind every swing, who is amazingly undependable despite the record book that says he was the finest fielding first-sacker in the league last year.

Zeke never gets mad at Jimmy. But a hurt look comes into his eyes whenever Jimmy tries to get him to run or chase flies or do anything to keep his weight down and give him speed. Zeke has survived careers of fine, benching, shipping. He's still the Sox first-baseman. For Zeke can hit; he loves the game; he has a great pair of hands and is a fine target for other infielders. He can scoop the ball out of the dirt and is good on double plays—if he can make it to first.

Regardless of all this, he's so heavy and slow he can't get the jump on ground balls. He can't bend quickly, or far enough, to reach many balls that should be easy outs. Once he loses his power at the plate, Zeke, now in his fourth year with Chicago, will find his major league days numbered. He is absolutely helpless at the dinner table.

"Please, Jimmy," Zeke will wait. "I only want to enjoy my supper. Why not let me alone? You're always on me."

Then Zeke will dig his spoon deeper into his dessert. That's the way it goes.

Blaze On Sun Leaps Out For 557,000 Miles

By E. H. TIPTON
PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Along with the sun-spots which now show signs of exceeding records of more than 20 years, the sun is also turbulent with huge flames. One gigantic blaze 577,000 miles high, more than twice the height from earth to moon, is reported by the Mt. Wilson observatory of the Carnegie institution. Whether the great fires are directly connected with spots is not known. But some huge flares of hot calcium gas which appear near the spots are apparently closely related. These flares, incidentally are known to cause fading on short wave radio bands.

Flames Shoot from Sun
The flames, "prominences" to astronomers, sput out from the edge of the sun with velocities of 150 miles a second. They are photographed with a spectrohelograph, a device which shuts out all but the edge of the sun, creating an eclipse effect. They are composed largely of hydrogen, calcium and helium.

Flames On Sun Go 150 Miles A Second

"Prominences have three-dimensional forms," says Dr. Edson Pettit of the observatory, "like the flat flame of an old fashioned lamp. They are 3,700 to 7,400 miles thick. Those shorter than 37,000 miles are rare, as are those more than 375,000 miles high." Expect Maximum Later. The next maximum of sun-spots according to Dr. Seth B. Nicholson.

GREEN OUSTS GEORGIA LEADER

President William Green (right) of the American Federation of Labor, shown at Washington with Vice-President Daniel J. Tobin, announced he has replaced A. Steve Nance as presiding officer of the Georgia Labor convention. Green said he sent Frank Dillon, a general organizer, to Atlanta to relieve State President Nance because the latter had gone over to John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization as a salaried organizer.

"Is not expected to occur before the end of 1937. The present cycle will undoubtedly be much more active than the last and may even exceed the cycle whose maximum was in 1917."

At the beginning of a cycle the spots appear in high latitudes far from the sun's equator. They can best be traced by the calcium clouds which have near them, since the clouds are large and some of the spots too small to appear in photographs—although many spots are several times as large as the earth. As the cycle progresses, the zones of activity, draw in toward the equator until, when a maximum nears, the spots are all in low latitudes.

The first "Wiring and Lighting the Farm Home" was prepared by D. E. Jones, rural electrification specialist, and Miss Pauline Gordon, specialist in home management. It is extension circular number 213 and gives interesting facts that will be of value to any farmer adding electrical current. The authors discuss such things as wiring materials, guides in planning the wiring, how to contract the job, how to read the meter and best methods of planning for the lights, switches and wall outlets. The second publication, "Using electricity on North Carolina Farms," was prepared by David S. Weaver, in charge of agricultural engineering at State College, and discusses the general uses of electricity about the farm. The use of current as a source of light, power and heat is discussed in detail by the author. This publication is extension circular 215. Both publications may be had free of charge by citizens of North Carolina as long as the present supply lasts. A card or letter to the agricultural editor at State College will bring one or both by return mail.

TWO-FISTED BUNNY
BOUTS POLICE DOG
Toledo, O. (AP)—A white bunny owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Lightner proved the truth of the old saying about a rabbit spitting in a bulldog's eye. The Lightners' rabbit, attacked by a large police dog, stood up on its hind legs and lashed out at the dog with both paws in catlike fashion. The dog, taken aback, turned tail.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

Speaking of Mild and Tasty—folks have bought 2 million cases of Our Family's Whiskey!

Just a week ago Friday they took this picture, when the creek was all swollen up and some early dog wood was out and the gully looking prettier than anything. It shows you the little party we put on as a kind of special thing celebrating the 2 millionth case of our Family's Whiskey. If you study real close, you can make out the 2,000,000 stamped right onto the case. Everybody was sure surprised at seeing how much of The Wilken Family Whiskey we'd turned out, and all remarked how it just went to prove you folks must be finding it's got the mildness and real extra tastiness you've been hunting around after. Well I told everybody those 2 million cases was just a drop in the bucket compared to the number of cases the Wilken Family has put out, if you take Grandpa Wilken and Pa Wilken into account.

Cat Phobia
 By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
 Mrs. Jones had a special aversion to cats. "I just can't help it. I was born that way and so was my mother before me. It's a natural antipathy. Why, it just makes my flesh crawl to have a cat near me." Oddly enough her small daughter developed the same phobia, and the mother felt even more justified in her feeling about cats. "It runs in the family." She forgot how many times she had expressed fear and dislike of cats before her little girl, how often she had told the child of the "inherited" aversion. The possession of such an idiosyncrasy drew attention to her mother, and the little girl soon learned to capitulate on the same fear.

Such peculiarities are not inherited but bred into people. Perhaps Mrs. Jones' mother had been badly scratched by a cat when she was very little. Such an experience would be enough to make a child dislike cats for life. Had she been wisely guided by her parents, she might have overcome her acquired antipathy, but either through ignorance or inattention she was not, and by her example she passed on the same fear to her daughter.

It is unkind to inhibit a child by conditioning him to fear of any kind, and especially to fear of something which in the natural course of events he must frequently meet. Cats are an integral part of our civilization, and the person who can not stand a cat in the room is a nuisance to himself as well as to others. If Mrs. Jones were a wise woman, she would try to overcome her own fear, and would certainly not pass it on to her child.

All that is needed is a little self-control by the mother. This she can achieve only when she acknowledges to herself the origins of her phobia.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons
 Hollywood—Arline Judge's marriage to Dan Topping immediately after her divorce from Wesley Ruggles must have set a record for speed in ending grasswidowhood. The previous record, as I recall, was held by Bruce Cabot and Adrienne Ames, who were married the day after Adrienne's Stephen Ames. . . . Back in 1919 it was practically a national catastrophe when Mary Pickford got a Nevada divorce and shortly afterward married Douglas Fairbanks. But times have changed: there is chain-smoking and chain-romancing. . . and chain-divorcing. . . . The well-known Mrs. Grundy has changed too, or gone to sleep. . . . In other film days she'd have frowned an dispoen her piece about actresses who have their escorts than their husbands. . . . When the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudraye is out of town it's always Gilbert Roland

Wife Suing G.O.P. Chief for Support

Charging "gross neglect of duty, abandonment and extreme cruelty," Mrs. Laura Hamilton (above) of Topeka, Kas., has filed suit for separate maintenance against her husband, John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee and manager of Gov. Alf M. Landon's presidential campaign last year.

who is seen with Constance Bennett. . . . And it's Douglas Fairbanks Jr. who goes around most with Marlene Dietrich when Rudolph Sieber is abroad, which is most of the time. . . .

Once upon a time Hollywood gossiped about such friendships, and feared the worst in box-office reaction. . . .

"Internes Can't Take Money" is a smart new example of what can be done with pretty hackneyed material. . . . Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck have the leads in a hospital picture which develops into an underworld yarn, all because a young mother cannot find her baby, lost since infancy. . . . The hero, an interne, can't take money for saving the life of underworldling Lloyd Nolan, but he can enlist his services in cowering—with only one shot fired—the heavy (Stanley Ridges) who knows where the baby is.

What makes it different is the screen play by Rian James and Theodore Reeves, and Alfred Santell's direction. Original shot: Ridges goes to door to see if butler is eavesdropping—and he isn't!

"Wake Up and Live" is one of the snappier Twentieth Century musicals. It's the Winchell - Ben Bernie film, and while Bernie occasionally looks like a juvenile, both the "feudists" are hits.

In this picture Jack Haley gets his best break and can be called the real star. Besides Alice Faye, who keeps on proving that she can handle bigger assignments if she gets them, there are Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks, and a flock of "specialties" including Joan Davis. Miss Davis is a fall guy de luxe.

A young writer named Curtis Kenyon evolved the screen story—and a good one—from Dorothea Brande's book, and Sidney Lanfield directed. After this one I won't be surprised if they base a movie on "The Philosophy of Spinoza." Lynn Gilbert, evading a bucking horse in a western movie, accidentally knocked down Cowboy Bob Cortman. Picking himself up, his face bleeding, he asked with utmost solicitude: "Did I hurt you, Miss?" At St. John, once a star and now a bit player, was one of the two original Keystone Kops. Fatty Arbuckle was the other. Spencer Tracy, having become a boat owner, has decided to go to night school to learn navigation.

Talks To Parents
 By Brooke Peters Church

Mastering The Stairs
 Tommy laboriously pulled himself up five steps of a long flight of stairs and then stood up and surveyed the prospect. It was a terrifying view to one who had only just begun to walk. Above him was a mountainous and seemingly endless slope; below, a terrifying series of cliffs. Tommy held out his arms to his mother for rescue.

But his mother failed to respond in the expected way. Instead of lifting him in her arms, she turned him about, put him on his knees and, laboriously guiding his feet from step to step, made him come down the five steps under his own steam. The same thing happened every time Tommy got stuck on the stairs.

It took Tommy some time to get the idea. Both mother and child grew bored with the monotonous repetition of the mechanics of crawling downstairs in reverse training. It is much easier to put up a gate at the stair head and stop worrying. To be really safe, however, one needs gates at both top and bottom of every flight of stairs, and even then there is always the danger of someone leaving gates open or of the baby learning to undo the latches.

A fall down a flight of steps is not a minor matter. Of course most children do it at some time in their lives. Many escape uninjured, but a large number receive injuries of which no one is aware until later.

New York Cotton

New York, April 22 (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, two higher to four lower on trade buying of near months and liquidation in distant position. July sold off from 13.48 to 13.38 and late in the first hour the market showed net losses of five to eight points. Business was small on the decline, which carried July off to 13.37 and the general market for net losses of nine to 11 points. At midday prices were within two or three points of the lows.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 22 (AP)—The rallying flush faded somewhat from the stock market today, although a few steels, rubbers and specialties showed mild recovery. After a moderate brisk opening, sufficient offerings appeared to reduce or cancel gains of fractions to a point or so. Small declines were in the majority near the final hour. Dealings were slow. Another dip in United States government securities was a restraining influence and corporate bonds and commodities were uneven.

Senators Larrup Yanks 3 To 2 In Opener

Woman At 102 Says Redheads Live Longest

Denver (AP)—Science may not agree, but Mrs. Sarah Wormer, 102, is convinced that red-haired persons live the longest. "I have red hair and five of my children were red-haired," she says. "The five redheads still are alive, but my five other children, who were dark-haired, died young or in middle age."

Bunny Ear Bandanas New York (AP)—The wearers of sport slacks should lay in a supply of bandanas to tie about the head. At Mediterranean resorts they're being worn tied about the head, knotted in front so that the ends stick up like bunny ears. They're made of cotton, silk or wool, and the favorites are in paisley or plaid patterns.

Short-Sleeved Coat New York (AP)—The short-sleeved vogue has spread to coats. One neat dark blue wool coat has short bell sleeves banded in strips of beige fox that are about four inches deep.

Shoes, Too, Are Plaid Paris (AP)—The familiar Scotch plaid caps, in vogue for several weeks, are being matched with wool plaid shoes. The latter, in red and green, are well-stitched to heavy soles which are also red and green.

Tulane Glovers Bat .750 New Orleans (AP)—Tulane university's boxing team has won the Southeastern conference team championship three times in four tournaments. Wave ringmen won in '33, '36 and '37.

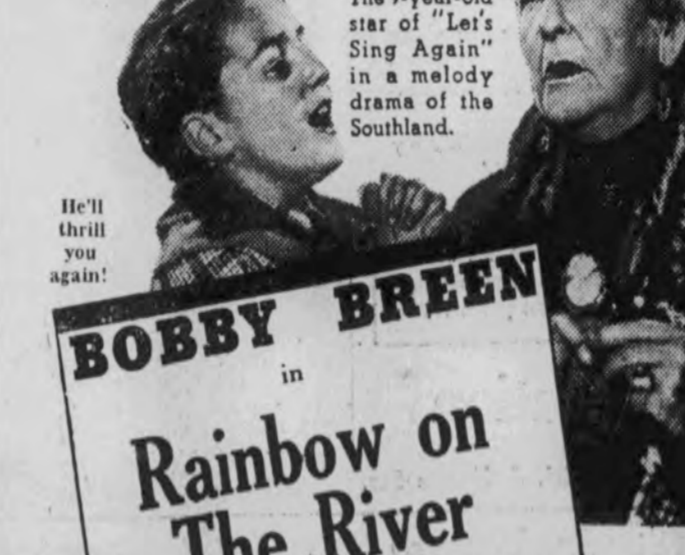

Gloves Sell Short New York (AP)—The one-button type of glove remains in demand, despite predictions of glove wholesalers that elbow-length models would be worn with the new short-sleeved spring dresses. Forearms, however, stay exposed.

Overalls Go Wading New York (AP)—Summer overalls have cuffs that can be turned up for wading in the surf. The newest adaptation of last year's popular fashion barely reaches the knee and is very baggy. The characteristic overall straps remain the same.

'Honorary' Gunman Lawrence, Kas. (AP)—J. C. Grover, starter at the Kansas relays since their inception 15 years ago, will be "honorary starter" at the games this year. His health will not permit active service.
