STRIKE BOARD IS APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Intervenes In Railroad And Ship Dispute

WORKERS SEEK WAGE INCREASE

Presidential Proclamation Creating Board Declares Commerce Is Threatened

Washington, April 26. (AP)—President Roosevelt intervened today to prevent a strike of 25,000 railroad and ship employees in the New York's metropolitan areas. He appointed an emergency board of three to try to work out a settlement.

Names of the board members will be announced later.

A walk-out of the members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship clerks, freight handlers, express and station employees had been scheduled for noon last Saturday, but was deferred until noon today to permit further mediation. This failed at meetings yesterday. The Brotherhood is demanding a 20 cent an hour increase in wages.

Acting under the Railway Labor act, the President in his proclamation creating the board said the dispute threatened "substantially to interrupt inter-state commerce within the state of New York and other states in the Eastern part of the country to a degree such as to deprive that section of the country of essential transportation service."

Meanwhile the Carnegie - Illinois steel corporation, largest United States Steel subsidiary, notified the Labor Relations board it would withdraw all recognition from its employee-representation class.

William Beye, Carnegie - Illinois counsel, told the board the company would post notices to this effect in all its plants immediately.

This move followed the Supreme Court's decision upholding the constitutionality of the Wagner Labor Relations act. The steel workers' organizing John L. Lewis' C. I. O. unit in that industry had charged Carnegie - Illinois with violation of the Wagner act. The board has held hearings on the complaint from time to time for the last four months.

Observers generally expected the board to dismiss the C. I. O. complaints after today's action.

Retired Salesmen Of Life Insurance Exempted By Act

Although Allowed to Solicit and Sell Policies, Group Barred From Unemployment Security

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, April 26.—Life insurance agents who have retired from active duty for their companies because of age or infirmities and draw annuities from the companies, but are allowed to solicit and sell insurance policies whenever they feel like work and receive commissions on insurance sold, are not employees under interpretation of the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Act, and their employers are therefore not subject to contributions on the payments to such agents, the N. C. commission holds.

The interpretation cites the cases of several such agents, two or three of whom stopped because of physical ailments and draw an annuity, not dependent upon whether or not they work and the others stopped when their services had extended over a sufficient period for them to participate in the company's retirement fund.

The insurance company exercises no control over when, how, where or under what conditions these agents work, so the purposes of the act, they are classed as independent contractors and not as employees.

In another interpretation, the commission cites that an out-of-state corporation, a fraternal beneficiary association, unites persons of certain standing, so as to provide death, disability, sick, funeral and accident benefits and has "Assistant District Managers" or "Field Workers," who are members of the association and who contact others and accept their memberships. These "managers" and "field workers" receive a commission on the amount paid by the members they secure. The corporation has no control of when, how or where they do their work, and they may work occasionally or full or nearly full time. Usually they have other jobs and make the solicitations casual, odd time work.

The interpretation holds, on the information furnished by the company, that these workers are not (Continued on page six)

Expanding Is Victor Over Publishers

DUKE OF WINDSOR

London, April 26. (AP)—The Duke of Windsor won from his Austrian place of self exile today a fight to have a British book about him taken out of circulation.

The publishers of Coronation Commentary not only took the fast-selling volume from English book shops, but wrote the Duke a note of apology.

That was upon the demand of the former monarch's attorney who threatened legal action unless amends were made by today.

The action by the publishers came just on the eve of tomorrow's expiration of the six-months' probation period necessary to make the divorce of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson final under English law.

Six months ago tomorrow the American fiancée of the Duke of Windsor obtained a preliminary divorce decree from Ernest Simpson and started the momentous events which were climaxed by Edward's abdication in December.

Her attorneys within the next two weeks will take the necessary legal steps to make the decree final.

Then Mrs. Simpson will be completely free to marry the Duke, probably in June after the coronation fanfare for King George, VI. (Continued on page six)

RIVERS AGAIN OUT OF BANKS

Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia Affected

(By Associated Press)

Rains swelled rivers today and drove residents of lowlands from their homes in Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia.

The Ohio climbed toward the 25-foot flood stage. Its tributaries, the Allegheny and Monongahela, which meet at Pittsburgh, were at their highest since January. Some railroad tracks were in danger and merchants in the business sector feared for cellar stocks.

The Potomac rose to six feet above flood stage. Merchants of the low-lying business sections of Cumberland, Md., took cellar goods to upper floors. Water stood in the downtown street, but was not high enough to impede traffic seriously.

The rains sent the Conemaugh river and Stoney creek to 17 feet, three inches. Alarmed residents of Johnston, Pa., scene of two disastrous floods in a half century, began vacating their homes. Water rolled into the low street and edged toward the downtown section.

The weather bureau estimated a river stage of 35 feet would be reached at Pittsburgh tomorrow. This would be only 11 feet under the stage of the St. Patrick's day flood, which cost Pennsylvania $200,000,000.

STILL NO SIGN OF AGREEMENT IN COURT ROW

Compromise Reportedly Discussed By Administration

TO DISCONTINUE OPEN HEARINGS

Senate Judiciary Committee Prepares To Go Into Executive Session

Washington, April 26. (AP)—Senators who declined to be quoted by name said today an administration spokesman had discussed compromising the Supreme Court dispute by authorizing four new justices, but had turned down suggestions for only two.

There were no signs of an agreement or modification, however, on the eve of the Senate Judiciary's first closed session to begin voting on the court bill. The measure would permit appointment of six new justices if members over 70 do not retire.

The opponents have indicated they would fight all modifications in order to force a test vote on the bill as it stands.

Opposition strategy will be to seek first to split the President's proposal into two bills, separating the Supreme Court issue from recommendations to speed up judicial processes. Senator Van Nuys (D. Ind.) said he would ask for an early vote.

Check-ups of committee members' present attitudes indicated that not more than nine were prepared now to vote to report the bill favorably. If the committee should split finally along these lines there would be a nine-to-nine draw, sending the bill to the Senate without recommendation.

Negroes Held For Resisting Officer

Two Negroes, Charlie Morning and Charlie Little, were bound over to County court under bond of $300 each following a preliminary hearing in City court today on charges of interfering with an officer while in line of duty.

The two were accused of attempting to take Norman Morning, brother of one of the pair, from Assistant Police Chief Winchard. Norman Morning had been arrested for public drunkenness. He was taxed with costs at his trial this morning.

John Harris was bound over to County court under bond of $300 on a charge growing out of drunkenness on the highway.

Mary Cannon was taxed with the costs for drunkenness.

Five young boys were cited to court for riding their bicycles through stop lights. Chief George Clark said the boys were warned to go after they had been warned not to violate the ordinance again. Chief Clark said it was a violation for boys to ride bicycles by the stoplights and added efforts were being made to stop the practice.

Five Boys Feared Dead In Accident

Orange, Va., April 26.—(AP)—Fire Chief E. H. Rouse said today an automobile carrying four or five boys was reported to have plunged into the Robinson river nine miles North of here last night when the approach to a bridge was washed out.

Rouse said firemen searched for the machine with grappling irons for about four hours last night but were unable to locate it.

The fire chief said an unidentified driver of a preceding car reported attempting to flag the boys' machine, but that it continued across the bridge and dropped into the chasm left by the swollen river as it cut away the Northern approach to the bridge.

HERE'S REAL NEWS; HORSE BITES AUTOMOBILE

Lima, O. (AP)—Dobbin took a nip at the machine ego here, but he was as much surprised as anyone.

Al Becker, an insurance man, left his automobile in a parking lot about the time a milk wagon was making deliveries. Casting a sleepy eye on a bridge red "Dirigible" radiator ornament, the horse reached over and nipped it off, clean as you please.

"He must have thought it was an apple," said Becker, "because he looked disgusted when he spit it out."

RECORD RAINS FALL IN COUNTY

Official Fall of 3.25 Exceeds Total For Last Month

Raleigh, April 26.—(AP)—Lee A. Denson, director of the weather bureau here issued advisory flood warnings today for the upper Neuse, Tar and Roanoke rivers, saying they are already out of their banks in the upper region.

B. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather station, reported today that a record rainfall for the year fell in Greenville during the 48 hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning and predicted a rise in Tar river.

Mr. Clark said 3.25 inches of rain fell between Saturday morning and this morning. This was the heaviest fall recorded this year.

Unable to say just how much the Tar river would rise, Mr. Clark did state a sharp rise was expected.

In Raleigh Lee A. Denson, in charge of the State weather bureau, reported that the rains were general over the state. Other rivers over the state therefore are expected to rise.

The rains here over the week-end were far in excess of those during the entire month of March, when only 2.43 inches fell.

With the beginning of the week the sun again began in prospect, although the weekly weather forecast for the South Atlantic states predicted showers about the middle of the week.

Appointment By Governor Being Generally Approved

Rflector Bureau, Raleigh, April 26.—The appointment of Frank L. Dunlap of Anson county as chairman of the reorganized State Highway and Public Works Commission to succeed Chairman Capt. M. Wayne effective May 1, is being generally approved here today by friends of both Governor Clyde R. Hoey and Wayne.

The prevailing opinion in most circles is that Governor Hoey extracted himself from a dilemma which was becoming more and more embarrassing, in that many of Wayne's friends are voicing strong approval of Dunlap's appointment in the belief that he will come nearer carrying on along the same lines laid down by Wayne than any other person Governor Hoey could have named.

The fact that Governor Hoey again has tendered Wayne the post of Director of Purchase and Contract — this time publicly at the same salary he has been getting

COURT AGREES TO DECIDE ON PENSIONS ACT

Accepts Test Case To Determine Validity Of Measure

RULING UPHOLDS FERTILIZER LAW

South Carolina Statute Requiring Fertilizer Ingredients to Be Shown Valid

Washington, April 26. (AP)—The Supreme court agreed today to review a test case to determine the constitutionality of the old age pension provisions of the federal social security act.

It postponed a final decision, at least until next Monday, on validity of the unemployment insurance provisions of the federal act and of supplementary legislations passed by the state.

Some Supreme court observers expressed the opinion that the tribunal might hold up its decisions on the unemployment insurance case until after arguments on the old age pension litigation so both could be decided at the same time.

Fifteen opinions were read today by the justices in a two hour session.

One of them, a five to four decision, set aside the conviction of Angelo Herndon, Cincinnati Negro communist organizer, under an 1871 Georgia anti insurrection statute.

In the old age pension case the court consented to pass on an appeal filed by the government from a decision by the federal circuit court at Boston holding unconstitutional that section of the major administration legislation.

Litigation to determine the validity of the unemployment compensation section of the act already has been argued and is awaiting decision. It was filed by the Charles C. Steward Machine company of Alabama.

The court filed constitutional a 1936 South Carolina law requiring fertilizer manufacturers to attach to each bag a tag showing the ingredients used in the product.

Justice McReynolds delivered the opinion, which affirmed a ruling by a judge of federal district court in South Carolina upholding the legislation. McReynolds announced no dissent.

Providing Walks On Tenth Street

City officials today called attention to the fact that a number of citizens owning property on Tenth street between the Atlantic Coast Line station and Evans street had voluntarily started work on sidewalks and added they hoped others would follow suit.

The property owners, in cooperation with the city and State Highway commission, already have started providing the sidewalks on the street which recently was improved.

Officials declared that sidewalks would improve the street extensively. Heretofore pedestrians were forced to walk in the street and when the tobacco factories are in operation there is a great deal of traffic, both vehicle and pedestrians.

Property owners who are constructing sidewalks are Person-Garrett, Export, Norfolk Southern, Ficklen, Dixie and others.

Construction of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge required 145,000 tons of structural steel, 10-115 tons of cable wire and 300,000 gallons of red lead and aluminum paint.

CHARGE NEGRO WITH ROBBERY DURING NIGHT

Three Places Entered; Approximately $170 Stolen

OFFICERS FIND MOST OF MONEY

Commendable Police Work Results In Arrest Only Three Hours After Crime

Three places were robbed last night and before noon today local police officers had arrested the suspect, secured a confession and recovered most of the money stolen. John Jones, alias "Skin" John, local Negro who, according to Chief Clark, has spent much of his time on the roads for larceny, was charged with breaking and entering the three places.

Chief Clark said he checked up a house and store combined belonging to John Wilson and located on Broad street. He said approximately $170 was taken from a room adjoining that in which the owner was sleeping. As a consequence Jones is facing a first degree burglary charge, which is a capital crime in this state.

The police chief said Jones removed the pane in a door, hid it under the house and later returned, entered the house stole a chest containing two separate packages of money. He reported that Mr. Wilson awoke just as the Negro started to leave and fired several shots at the intruder, but missed him.

The Negro also is alleged to have entered the Eureka laundry and the home of Julius Price, Negro, who lives on King Row. The laundry reported that nothing had been missed and nothing of any consequence was stolen from the Negro's home.

Officers were advised of the robbery by Mr. Wilson and immediately began a search throughout the city. About 4 o'clock they picked up Jones on suspicion, but he denied that he knew anything of the robbery. He confessed, officers said, only after they had confronted him with evidence they had gathered.

Jones is alleged to have abandoned the chest in an alley-way off Long street. Officers found the chest there and later found a box which was in the chest and which contained the major portion of the money on Fourteenth street. Some money was still in the chest when it was found off Long street.

Chief Jones said he checked up on Jones and found that he had given $80 of the money to Rose Lee Dee, $10 to Tincey Rogers, $10 to Alonzo Williams and $30 to Har-

A. Johran), Raleigh, winner of Separk cup 1928; "The Seamstress," by Travis Tuck, winner of Albert L. Berry cup 1929; "Tragedy," by Pearl Council Hiatt, winner of Albert L. Berry cup 1937; "Guidance," by Caroline Hunter, and a lovely poem, "I Was Born in the South," by Jesse Collins, a 19-year-old youth of the mountains of North Carolina, a poem that has received wide and favorable comment.

Following Miss Barnes reading of these poems, Miss Geraldine Harris read two of her mother's recent poems, "Little Pictures" (in sequence) and "Prosperity," by Eva Berry Harris.

This delightful program was brought to a close by a garden pilgrimage. The following gardens were visited: Mrs. C. L. Adams', Mrs. W. E. Hooker's, Mrs. E. B. Ficklen's, and Mrs. J. B. James'. The lake on the campus of E. C. T. C. was also included in the pilgrimage.

Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock a special program for grammar school children, which was sponsored by the Junior Woman's club, was given, to the delight of all children present as well as to the adults who attended. Mrs. M. K. Blount, president of the Junior Woman's club, presided.

The program consisted of the following interesting features: A demonstration in mask-making, by Dr. Dorothy Schnyder, of the art department of the College; Uncle Remus stories, read by Mrs. P. W. Pickelsimer; cartoon sketching, by Edward Hearne and musical numbers furnished by the High School Glee club, under the direction of Miss Ona Shindler. The girls' trio, composed of Misses Mable Beaman, Pauline Abeyoung and Rosalyn Swindell, was particularly pleasing.

Yesterday afternoon the closing program of the Fine Arts Festival took place at 4 o'clock. At this special program, sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association, the Rev. W. A. Ryan presided. The musical program given by the choirs of the local colored churches was under the direction of Arthur Norcott, director of the choir of Syncamore Hill Baptist church.

The hour-long program began with the group singing of the Negro National hymn, written by James Weldon Johnson, and consisted of hymns, anthems, solo numbers, spirituals and readings of dialect poems, written by the Negro poet, Paul Lawrence Dunbar. These readings, given by Selena Lang, with fine interpretation, were particularly pleasing and called for an encore. Solo numbers, "Sometimes I Feel a Motherless Child," and "Praise God I'm Satisfied," sung by Cherry Artis, who has a very pleasing voice, were very much enjoyed, indeed.

Altogether it was a most delightful program and brought to a fitting close a community Fine Arts Festival in which both the white and colored races had made their contribution.

At 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon the doors closed on this year's Community Fine Arts Festival, which is annually sponsored by the Woman's Club of Greenville, headed by Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, to whom the community owes a lasting debt of gratitude. To one woman alone belongs the credit for the stupendous effort of bringing to Greenville each year the finest, the widest and the most varied exhibit of art available for the inspection of the people of the community, who are interested enough to come, and who arranges the numerous entertainment features presented in connection with the festival.

COAST GUARD CHARTS OCEAN FISHING SITES

Washington (AP) — A new method to show ocean fishermen exactly where to drop their hooks or nets is being developed by the U. S. Coast Guard.

Oceanographic studies have indicated each species of sea life has its own habitat dependent on certain conditions. Finding the species wanted is merely a problem of finding the right conditions, says Coast Guard officials.

Coast Guard vessels on the Atlantic ice patrol and in Bering Sea already have made observations and calculations of temperatures, currents, and the food of various sea animals.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS REACH NEW PEAK

Washington (AP) — The justice department says more liquor-law violators went to federal prison in 1936 than in 1932, the peak prohibition year.

The statisticians didn't figure out why, but Sanford Bates recently resigned prison bureau director, told a congressional committee repeal of state laws and increased severity of the courts had a good deal to do with the increase.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: In one wild and stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael, a nurse, Jude Blinshop, an old flame of mine, is shot to death on the bluff; the Skipper, Mike's tall and tuxedoed younger aunt, disappears, and Michael dislocates his shoulder by falling into the churning surf. The Skipper returns to say she's been in the stable with her sick collie. Aunt Martha, stout and prudish, has hysterics a couple of times. Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart, keeps a fairly sane view. Next morning at breakfast, everyone has jangled nerves.

Chapter Nine Searching The Grounds

IGHTING a cigarette, the Skipper contributed, "Martha's breakfasting upstairs. She'll be down later." And silence descended upon the dining room.

For the space of about five minutes we crunched bacon and consumed coffee without incident. Higgins, looking rather seedy, appeared with fresh toast, opened his mouth to ask about Michael, discreetly closed it again and took himself off. The Skipper smoked furiously, and the rest of us kept our eyes on our plates. Then, monotonously and with irritating force, Gay's fingers began a steady tattoo on the tablecloth. At least two sets of nerves promptly began to act up again. Michael's cup went down with a bang that bathed the surrounding territory in coffee.

"Damn it, Gay, quit that, can't you?"

Gay flared. "Don't be so touchy!"

Before I could get in my two cents' worth of sunshine, the Skipper interposed. "Easy, kids! Let's talk this over."

That being the one thing we all had in mind, we lapsed into silence. The Skipper smiled.

"We might as well look it in the face. These storms always last at least three days, which means that we must stick together or go mad. There's been a tragic accident which we must certainly explain to the satisfaction of everyone, if we're to keep from each other's throats—not to mention Jude's family or the local police."

Michael was breathing so fast and so heavily that I could distinctly hear him across the table. The Skipper waited for someone to speak. No one did. She sighed.

"Obviously there are two possibilities. Jude was killed either accidentally or intentionally, and in either case by some member of this household. If it was accidental, we should be able to establish that fact immediately. If it wasn't—"

Another pause, this time a breathless one.

Then—"we shall have to establish that fact too," concluded the Skipper.

Michael's voice was hoarse. "But what can we do?"

I answered him with more hope in my voice than conviction. "For one thing we can search the grounds. There must be a clue of some sort out there. It's the only logical answer."

Michael shot me a peculiar look. "Why not let it rest?" he demanded. "You know damn well that there's no one out there. Jim. We can't help Jude now. Old Foster would give us a fake certificate if the Skipper asked him, and we could say that she'd fallen off the bluff in the storm and—forget about it!"

I had known Michael since we were 17, but I had never heard him make such a proposal. Neither had Gay. She gasped in amazement. Once more the Skipper climbed into the breach.

"Michael, don't be ridiculous. Accidents don't need hushing up. And if it's not an accident, Jude's parents and we, her friends, have a right to know it. And no right to let a deliberate murderer remain at large."

Grasping At A Straw

OUT of the numbness his speech had produced in my head came an idea. Mike thought the Skipper was glibly! Wild elephants could never have dragged that suggestion from him otherwise. And there she sat, insisting that we investigate. I grasped at a feeble straw.

"Mike! The footprints! The footprints on the tennis courts. There must be someone out there. We'd have noticed the clay on anyone's feet in the house."

Michael's eyes were far away. "Drop it, I say. For God's sake, Jim, what good will it do? I tell you there's no one there. It just keeps things boiling to pretend there is."

"There must be!" Gay was on her feet. "Mike, don't be a sap. These grounds must be searched, and if you won't go with Jimmie, I will and so will William."

"And so will I," said the Skipper, "and so will Michael!"

Michael looked at her, a long look that to save my neck I could not decipher. "All right, Skipper," he said at last.

We took all sorts of precautions.

Kenny Sergeant (above) will appear with Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra at a dance here next Monday night, May 3. Sergeant is one of those to be featured by the orchestra.

Dance May 3

Sponsors of the Glen Gray dance, to be held here next Monday night, May 3, declared today everything would be in readiness by week's end for what is expected to be one of the most successful balls ever held here. The dance will be held in German's warehouse.

The advance sale of tickets has exceeded all expectations and the printers have been called on to furnish more.

Next Monday is city election day and a holiday spirit is expected to add to the crowd which will attend the dance.

Glen Gray, tall, dimpled checked leader of the famous Casa Loma Orchestra, was born in the "Great Metropolis" of Metamora, Ill. June 7, 1903. Went to school there and while attending High School studied music. Receiving his musical education with the aid of books. Played in the High School band and finally went to Illinois Wesleyan.

While attending the University he organized his own band which played at some of the college dances. Due to financial circumstances he had to quit school to earn a living, whereby he went to work for the Santa Fe Railroad in Roanoke, Ill.

He finally had to decide between the two jobs, so he decided to try music for two years. He has never returned to the Santa Fe Railroad except as a passenger. His first professional engagement after leaving Roanoke, Ill., was as a saxophone player in an orchestra, that played on the Illinois River Steamboats. He bounced around as most musicians do until he found himself in Detroit, where he joined up with Goldkette. Then it was the nucleus of the Casa Loma Orchestra first got together. In 1929, Casa Loma, Inc. was first formed and Glen Gray was elected president, and to this very day he still holds the top position as president. After performing as first Saxophone player in the Casa Loma Orchestra since 1929, the members of the organization held a meeting in February 1937 and decided that hereafter Glen Gray will conduct the Casa Loma Orchestra.

TRAFFIC DEATHS ANALYZED

Food for thought is to be found in a statistical study of traffic accidents in his state last year, made and summarized by Professor Harry Tucker, of North Carolina State College. The findings will doubtless surprise those not informed as to the general conclusions of modern psychology.

In 1936, 1,020 persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents in North Carolina. That was a reduction of 75 from the previous year. But reported injuries rose to 8,000 from 6,950 in 1935, a figure which is a great understatement of the fact. It is more likely, in view of statistics from other states, that the number actually hurt was in excess of 30,000. The economic loss of the casualties, Dr. Tucker estimates, was about $30,000,000.

He made an exhaustive analysis of the reported fatalities for the first nine months, having official data for the purpose. For the remaining three months he applied to the number of known accidents the percentages obtained from the figures for the first three-quarters. And here are his findings:

Light Conditions.—Of all fatalities in 1936, 55.3 per cent occurred in daylight; 7.5 per cent during the hours of dusk; 37.2 per cent during the hours of darkness. Of course, there is more traffic during daylight than at night, and the number of "exposures" is considerably less, but the natural physical hazard is greater.

Weather.—Ninety-one per cent of all fatalities occurred during clear weather. This emphasizes the fact well known to students of the subject that drivers proceed with greater caution in bad weather.

Road Conditions.—Ninety-nine per cent of the fatalities occurred where the road surfaces were declared to be in good condition.

Urban or Rural.—Only 18 per cent of the fatalities occurred in cities of 10,000 population and over. For the seven preceding years, the percentage in such cities was 26 and ten years ago they were divided almost equally between city and rural area.

Road Design.—Of the fatalities, 58.2 per cent occurred on straight roads; 9.9 per cent at intersections; 18.2 per cent on curves; 13.7 per cent, all others. While the percentage of accidents on curves constituted less than one-fifth of the total, they represented a rise of 50 per cent from the 1928-1934 average. That, plus the fact that nearly 60 per cent of all fatalities occurred on the straightaway, indicates that the increase in speed potentiality of motor cars has been an important factor.

Condition of Car.—In 96 per cent of the fatalities, the vehicle was reported in good condition. As to types of cars involved, 81.2 per cent were passenger cars; 15.4 per cent were commercial vehicles; 1.3 per cent were busses and 1.1 motorcycles. Those figures tally with the seven-year average, but mean little since data are lacking as to the car-miles of each class.

In summation, Dr. Tucker declares that of the 1,020 fatalities in North Carolina last year, sixty per cent of all occurred on straight roads in good condition, in clear weather, and with experienced drivers operating mechanically perfect vehicles. Of these drivers, 96 per cent were male; 4.3 per cent under the age of 18; 31 per cent were between 18 and 24; 58 per cent were between 25 and 54. Every one had had more than one year's driving experience.

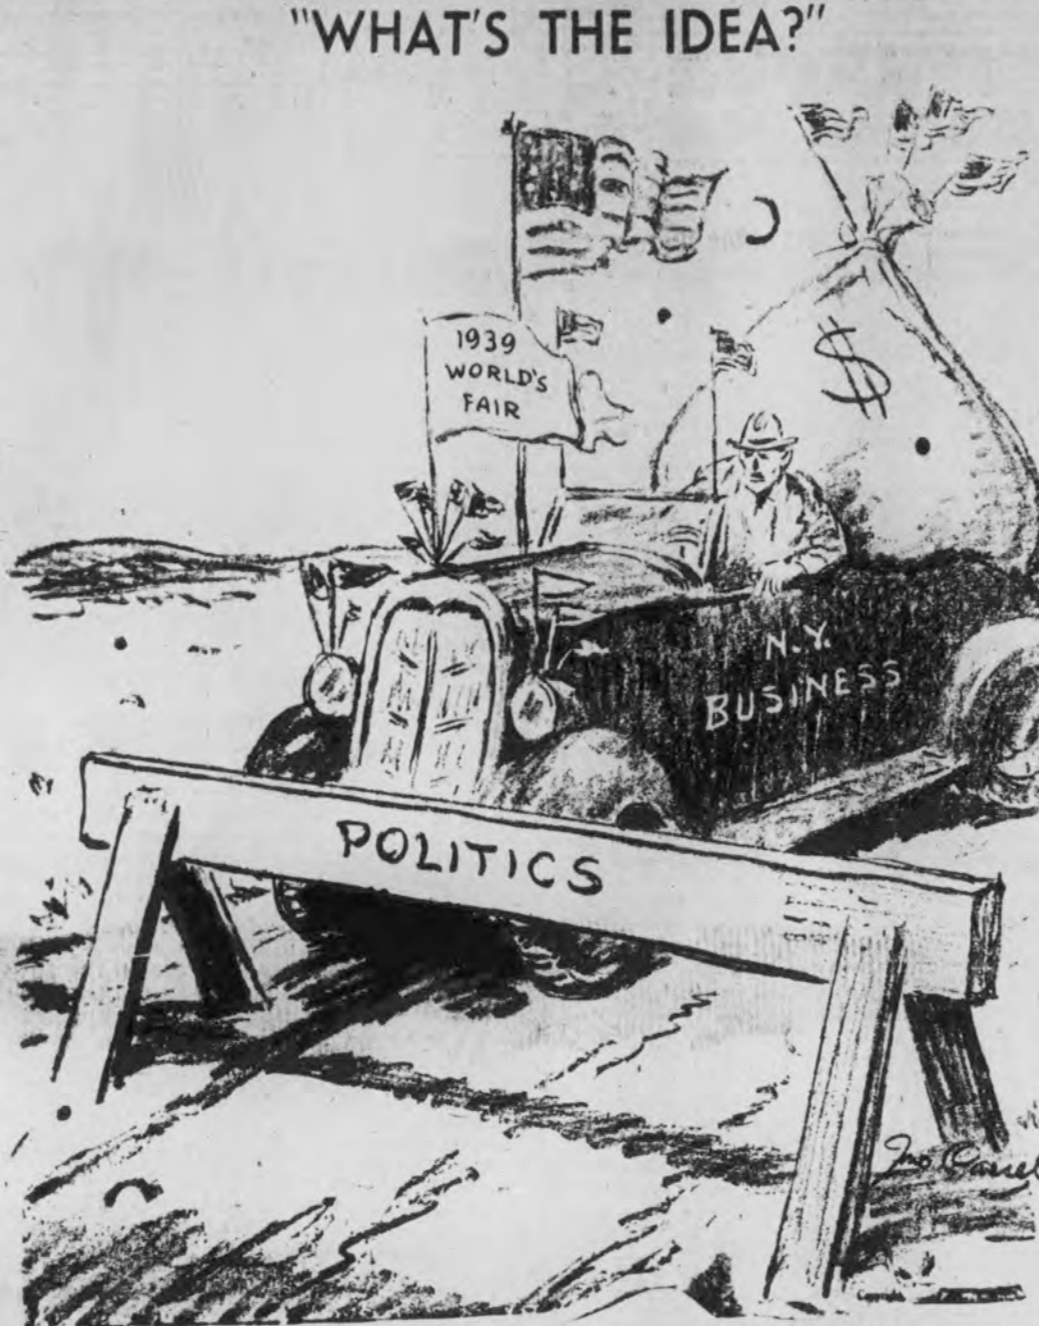

The violations charged to motorists held responsible for the fatalities were as follows: Excessive speed, 31.9 per cent; reckless driving, 21.1 per cent; on wrong side of road, 8.1 per cent; lost control, 6 per cent; drove off highway, 3.1; all others, 17.2 per cent. Speed was a possible element in all of those violations. In 9.6 per cent of the fatalities intoxication was alleged against the driver; cases involving either intoxicated drivers or drunken pedestrians were 12.3 per cent of the total.

The one lesson of the statistics is this: The driver of the vehicle is the most important factor in accidents. His conduct must be controlled if any improvement is made in the motor vehicle accident situation.

It is true that many highways were not engineered for present-day motor car speed and traffic density; it is true that many roads present hazardous curves; it is true that gigantic vans and busses are encumbering all trunk lines and adding to the danger. But the fact is, most of the accidents occur under ideal driving conditions. The fault is with the human at the wheel. If not under influence of alcohol, too often he becomes lulled with a sense of security and his reactions are retarded by lack of apparent danger.—Atlanta Journal.

APPOINTMENT BY GOVERNOR BEING APPROVED GENERALLY

(Continued from page one) who may have axes to grind in their dealings with the highway commission. After watching him for four years as Assistant Director of the Budget—the watchdog of the state's finances—observers here are convinced that Governor Hoye could not have selected a new chairman with ability more in line with Wayne's, with the same rugged honesty, character and forthrightness than Dunlap, are convinced that he will keep the same kind of close watch over highway finances as he exercised over the entire state's finances as budget director. It is also agreed that Dunlap will probably be a bit smoother and more diplomatic than Wayne and not as likely to step so hard on political toes and bunions. If anything, Dunlap is expected to be even more exacting than Wayne in demanding 700 cents worth of road value for every dollar expended, since those who have dealt with him in the budget bureau for the past four years are convinced there is a strong strain of Scotch in Dunlap and that he really should spell his name "Dunlop"—the old Scotch way. It is also regarded as significant that there is no rejecting or celebrating in the camps of the anti-Wayne forces, in spite of forced smiles and efforts to give the impression that they are pleased at the change and have won a victory. For while Governor Hoye has lived up to his old campaign promises and commitments to "make a change" in the highway department and to "clean house"—not a single member of the old commission was reappointed—those who had been hoping for a new chairman and commission that would be more liberal and "easy," especially from a political standpoint, are already sadly disappointed. For almost without exception, observers agree that the new members of the commission are able, honest, courageous and businesslike men who are going to see to it that the chief business of the commission is the building of roads and to get the most and best roads possible for the money expended.

Observers here are also gratified at the appointment by Governor Hoye of Robert G. Deyton as Assistant Director of the Budget to succeed Dunlap, in that this is a non-political appointment and one based on merit. For Deyton has served as chief assistant to the Assistant Director of the Budget under both "Father" Henry Burke and Dunlap and is regarded as undoubtedly the ablest man in the state for the post. He is likewise a Certified Public Accountant and with Burke and Dunlap worked out the various accounting systems which have been put into effect in all the state departments and institutions. Deyton has frequently been offered far more attractive posts by private business firms, has several times been on the verge of accept-

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
 New York.—Most authors keep a file of characters, miniature biographies of types observed about town. When they desire a "lift" in composition, it is no trick to run through the "morgue" and select just the type they need. Here are some excerpts from Phil Stong's record-book, little, breezy, paragraph definitions and descriptions of Manhattan personalities:
 "Sybil—tall willowly blonde. . . She insists that each new boy friend take her to the wrestling bouts, and then rants at the exhibition of brutality. Usually her boy friends are new. The old ones never come back.

 "Doris—she is statuesque and moody. . . At parties she prefers to stare into space, thinking of absolutely nothing—which is no trick for her, she being vacuum-minded.
 "Rita—she's the flashy type—wanted to be a newspaperwoman and shows her frustration. Favorite remark is 'How fantastic.' . . . If you tell her the sun is shining she immediately exclaims, 'Why, how fantastic!'
 "Pandra—before she became a dancer, or rather hooper, in the back row, she gave herself a complete education reading movie fan magazines. Knows every actor and actress, middle names included, who ever appeared in a film—but thinks Hoover is still President.
 "Fern—muscular, outdoors type. A little too hearty, but can beat you at a hundred yards, and row a boat all day—bubbling with enthusiasm. . . Never quarrelsome, but jests at her own tomboyishness. . . probably inhibited.
 "Ina—ought to be a model, but isn't. . . Can wear anything and look well in it. . . The type who can entertain you by merely walking across a floor. . . Has three Persian cats and adores them.
 "Joan—very little redhead. . . So full of exuberance she wants to skip instead of walk. . . Bounces around like a fox terrier. . . A chatterbox.
 "Grace—the serious, sensitive, large-eyed type—easily hurt. . . Really good company. . . Can discuss current topics, and likes to read biographies of pioneers. . . Eats very little.
 "Margie—a stenographer who is sadly miscast. . . Ought to be bustling around somebody's white cottage, making a home. . . Goes for simplicity and domesticity. . . Raven hair and dark, soft brown eyes. . . A pretty smile. . . Probably very romantic. . . Has lots of attention, but is still waiting for that certain prince charming to ride up on a moon-white charger and take command."

Seattle (AP)—If Norman Bright, national 5,000-meter champion, had not been a flop as a basketball player, he probably never would have donned spikes.

That's what the Sunnyvale, Calif. school master confessed on a visit to Seattle.

"When I was attending normal school at Bellingham, Wash., they told me I had to take some physical education work," he said. "I tried basketball, I guess I must have been a mess because my coach quietly tipped me off to try some other sport."

"I never had run any races, but decided that track was an individual sport and it would take care of me."

"Well, I found running was up my alley and I stuck with it. If I had had even a bit of basketball ability, I never would have pulled on a spike shoe."

ANNOUNCEMENT!

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Mayor of Greenville subject to the primary election to be held May 3.

For six years I have been a member of the Board of Aldermen, during which time I have missed only one regular meeting of the board. During five of these six years I have been Mayor-Pro Tem and as such have filled the office of Mayor a considerable number of times. I believe this service has given me experience that qualifies me to render valuable service as Mayor should I be elected.

The following are some of the things for which I stand and if elected will try to put into effect:

- 1.—Safety through a better traffic control system.
- 2.—Lower electric light rates for our city.
- 3.—A progressive city with economic operation.
- 4.—More adequate playgrounds in Greenville with a public recreation program.
- 5.—A Cleaner and a more beautiful city in which to live.

DIVORCE LAW REFORM URGED

Director of Duke Legal Aid Clinic Favors Action

Durham, April 25.—The requirement that the successful party to a divorce suit must be considered legally "innocent" is both an unrealistic and ineffective concept, according to a recently published article by Prof. John S. Bradway, of the Duke University law school. The article, entitled "The Myth of the Innocent Spouse" appears in the April issue of the Tulane Law Review. Professor Bradway introduces his article with the general observation that too frequently legal rules are applied without any inquiry being made as their social usefulness. The notion that one party to a divorce action must be "innocent" and the other "guilty" is an example of this, he states.

Professor Bradway argues against the rule that it leads to wholesale perjury in divorce actions, because of the necessity of proving that the other party has wronged the one unable to adjust satisfactorily their lives together. Furthermore, he observes, the legal rule tends to direct the attention of the court to a side issue instead of the main question in the divorce case.

In explaining this main issue, he says: "From the standpoint of the state, there is one fundamental problem in a divorce proceeding—shall the family be broken up? All the other matters involving individual rights, property settlements, custody of the children, and the like, are incidental thereto. The issues in this proceeding are not property damage or punishment. In an earlier day the church considered these issues in the light of sin; they were spiritual matters. Today, when the state rather than the church controls, the problems remain much the same though the nomenclature is different. The legislature has declared certain causes for divorce. The medical profession, the social workers, the psychiatrists, dealing with families, report that the legislative 'causes' of divorce are only symptoms; that the real causes are such matters as unemployment, ill health, lack of self control, jealousy, selfishness."

Litigation, a substitute for trial by battle provides an arena in which contending parties can settle claims of right and wrong. To employ this crude device, which in a proper case will lead to family dissolution at the request of one of the parties, as a means toward the rehabilitation of a domestic unit already shaken by dissension, is somewhat like taking a watch to be repaired by a blacksmith. A more sensitive institution is needed to deal with what are now legal imponderables."

In suggesting the remedy, Professor Bradway proposes (1) the creation of a specialized court which shall have authority to deal with all family problems, (2) the court should control the persons and property of the members of the family pending the investigation and subsequent treatment, and (3) a change in viewpoint through education. This last proposal would have as its objective the evolution of a principle of law where the family as such would have a place.

Professor Bradway is director of the legal aid clinic at the Duke law school and in addition teaches courses in family law.

Hard Times Hit Home Of Polygamy

HOME OF POLYGAMY

It's been a hard winter for the little band of polygamists which lives under the leadership of Edmund Barlow in this cluster of cottages on the arid Arizona-Utah border.

SHORT CREEK, Ariz. (AP)—Hunger has taken the fight out of this once notorious colony of polygamists. Still maintaining the right to plural wives, Edmund Barlow, new head of the cult, says that for the time being "polygamy will not be stressed."

Barlow is more concerned at the moment with trading timber for staple food products and getting some of his huskier members on the PWA.

Hard Times Follow Boom

Publicly accompanying prosecution of two Short Creek zealots for living with more than one wife brought in a crowd of prospective converts, many of them women, last year. But with the conviction of Price Johnson and Carling Spencer, and the approach of winter, all left but 29 adults and about 70 children.

With starvation facing them in the face, the cultists demoted "Bishop" John Y. Barlow in favor of his brother Edmund.

The only known income of the colony at that time was a $20-a-month school salary paid the janitor. Barlow started a shingle and lath mill. Johnson learned tanning in prison and on his release was put to work making shoes. An irrigation canal on which ten years' fruitless labor had been spent was abandoned. Pressure was put on several men to get relief jobs.

Failure Blamed on Aridity

Although the militant colony attorney who launched the polygamy cleanup was defeated in the last election, Barlow decided to keep his followers out of such trouble.

"Our first job is to support the families we have," he says. "After all, polygamy is only part of our belief. Perhaps we can make converts to it later."

Rebels from the Mormon church, the Short Creek colonists hold all goods and income in common.

Principal reason for the colony's failure, say visitors, is neither communism nor polygamy but its arid location on the Utah-Arizona border, where it is difficult to grow crops.

In the first hour the ticker tape was several minutes behind for a time. Dealings lightened, but most issues were around low levels of the day near the fourth period.

Solon Accused of Street Shooting—8 Hurt

Elmer French and Mrs. Louise Hall (at left) were among eight persons wounded when a shotgun, held by State Legislator A. J. Cockrell, Sr. (at right), was discharged into a crowd in front of a Knoxville, Tenn., hotel managed by Cockrell. The solon, who said the gun went off accidentally when he was jostled, was released under $250 bond on a charge of "shooting in the city." Police said Cockrell previously had complained about the crowd.

'THRILL SEEKERS' POSE AS MODELS JOIN UNION

AMATEURS GET CALL

While professional models sit tight with their union, San Francisco artists like Irving Sinclair substitute from such charming volunteers as Virginia Beuscher (standing) and Betty Leonard.

San Francisco (AP)—Dancers and movie-struck girls who volunteered their services just for the thrill are saving the day for artists here who suddenly found themselves without regular models.

Where are the regular girls? Working out a union constitution.

Some people think modeling consists of just standing still and looking pretty but the professionals take a different view of it.

"They want to make it a skilled profession with apprentices and journeyman and standard rates of pay."

"Five dollars minimum for two hours or less," is the dictum of Alvin Schmidt, himself a model and head of the new Professional Models' guild.

A bill introduced recently in the French Chamber of Deputies demanded that all foreigners under 50 years of age be expelled or put in concentration camps 48 hours after mobilization orders.

Since 1328 Scotsmen have been seeking the return of historical Scottish records removed to London in 1920 when Edward I was conducting inquiries into the succession of the Scottish throne.

TEATICKET TIP: MISS FISH STILL AT OLD STAND

Teaticket, Mass. (AP)—Administrations come and go, but Miss E. L. Fish, 76, remains as Teaticket postmaster, the only one this small office has had since it was established in 1890.

Because of the town's odd name, hundreds of stamp collectors write for sample Teaticket cancellations for their collections.

Between mail arrivals, which bring an average of 50 letters a day into the office, Miss Fish retails penny candy to children and sewing materials to village housewives.
