SPANISH PORT CITY TOTTERS BEFORE DRIVE

Bilbao Direct Objective of Advancing Insurgent Army

CITY'S DEFENSE CRUSHED, FLEES

Rebel Forces Under General Mola Draw Within 20 Miles Of Coastal City

(By Associated Press) Bilbao tottered today before an advancing insurgent army that brushed its outer defenses and plunged its defenders into a disastrous retreat.

General Mola's Northern army occupied Bilbao, an important industrial center about 20 miles South-east of Bilbao, and found pillars of sparks from burning houses spreading flames throughout the evacuated city. Insurgents said Communists and Anarchists set dynamite blasts before abandoning the stronghold Sunday night. The Basques said insurgent planes fired Bilbao.

Military in the Basque ranks was hauled in by the insurgents Sunday in Durango, hoping to take it and reach the 16 miles of improved highway to Bilbao.

Hundreds of civilians were killed at Guernica, former capital of the Basque country, and the city was left in blazing ruins after a fierce insurgent bombardment.

Alvin York Talks At Local College On Folly Of Wars

Declares Only One Sovereign Remedy For War—Cultivation of the Spirit of Peace in Hearts of Men

There is only one sovereign remedy for war, said Sergeant Alvin York in his address last night at the college, and that is the cultivation of the spirit of peace in the hearts of men.

The burly World War hero, speaking here for the Emergency Peace Campaign, emphasized throughout his talk the folly of foreign wars and the need of education for peace.

Many have said, he reminded his audience, that there can be no prevention of war, that war rolls around just as inevitably as the weeks or the months. And when we count the wars we were in, directly or indirectly, in the first hundred and fifty years of our history, we ought to be ashamed.

However, the number of wars we have engaged in is no sign war can not be stopped if we go at it in the right way.

Sergeant York went back to tell of his grandfather, who was decorated for his services in the Mexican War. No doubt after that war he determined not to fight again; but when the bands began to play, in 1861 he was one of the first to enlist. This is the way with many men because they have not built up a strong enough desire for peace.

There is a lot of work to do before we have peace, said the speaker, and went on to suggest legislation to draft money, as well as men, in war times. "If we had a law to draft a man's money as well as his boy in war time, we'd not have wars."

Another suggestion was that we determine not to fight unless in real defense and that we remember that defense does not mean going out of America. Sergeant York expressed himself as ready to meet an invader at our borders, but not willing to go again to a foreign country to war.

To keep our money at home also will help prevent wars. "I'm in favor of lending money to no nation to fight with," said the speaker.

Sergeant York believes in the family altar as one of the forces best fitted to educate children to peace.

In closing he urged his hearers to accept, and be led by the spirit of the Prince of Peace. "You can't end war by war—can't settle war by having war, but by a spirit of fellowship toward other people and nations."

The Rev. W. A. Ryan, Peace Council President, introduced the speaker and later concluded the program with some explanation of the work of the Emergency Peace Campaign, with its emphasis last spring on securing good neutrality legislation and this spring on a "No Foreign War" crusade.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Richard Bagby, minister of the First Christian church in Washington, N. C. Dr. Carl L. Adams presided. The local high school band opened the program with several selections.

Death Threat Fails To Break Fast 'For Lord'

Even in the face of a doctor's warning that he apparently "has only a few days to live," Jackson Whitlow, Tennessee's farmer fasting "for the Lord," steadfastly refused to eat on the 48th day after he first spurned food. Mountain neighbors are seen (left) gathered around him in bed at his home near Stopping Oak. At the right, he is shown listening in vain for "the Lord's call" to resume eating.

COUNTY COURT OPENS SESSION

Number of Cases Disposed of During Morning

A large number of cases were disposed of as County court was convened here this morning for the first time in three weeks. By the time for luncheon recess the docket had been relieved of a number of cases which piled up during the time Superior court was in progress here.

Charlie Little and Charlie Morning, Negroes who were convicted of interfering with a city officer while in the line of duty, were sentenced to terms of eight months each, suspended upon condition they pay the costs and leave the city and stay gone 12 months.

Daniel Summerell, Negro, was given 12 months upon conviction of carrying a concealed weapon.

Marion C. Finch entered a plea of not contending to driving drunk and was fined $50 and costs and had his driving license revoked for 12 months.

Clifton Evans was convicted on one count of driving drunk and a previous sentence, which had been suspended, was ordered in effect, sending the white man to the roads for 90 days.

He was convicted on the same charge in a case in which Cleveland Barnfield also was a defendant. In the latter case he was sentenced to 12 months on the roads, the term to start at the expiration of the 90-day sentence. As to Barnfield, judgment was 90 days on the roads, suspended for a term of two years upon condition the defendant remain of good behavior.

A C Harrison was fined $50 and costs and had his license revoked for 12 months. In addition he was given a four months' sentence, suspended upon condition he remain of good behavior for two years.

John Harris was held to have violated the trust of his parole when he was brought before the court on a charge of injury to personal property and being drunk on the highway. The defendant was ordered returned to the roads to complete the sentence from which he was paroled.

Walter Harvett and J. D. Moore, Negroes, were convicted of assault and each was given a six month sentence, suspended upon condition each pay one-half the cost and $25 for the use of Henry C. Smith.

Emma Langley, Negro, was convicted of possessing liquor for sale and give a 60-day road sentence and fined $25 and costs. The sentence to be suspended upon payment of the $25.

Group Of Laborers Start Work On Greenville Park

Work was started today on the city park to be located on Fifth street extension, across from the cemetery and located on Green Mill run.

A WPA allotment of $2,500 has been secured by the city and a number of workmen went to work cleaning up brush, etc. this morning. The PWA grant was for labor, but it was explained most of the work to be done on the plot now would require only common labor.

Mayor M. K. Blount, who has been active from the start in securing the park, was on hand during the morning to see work started on the project. Also looking over the park site were a number of

College Chooses Finals Speakers

Dr. W. K. Greene, of the English Department of Duke University, and dean of undergraduate instruction, will deliver the Baccalaureate address and Dr. W. A. Lambeth, pastor of Centenary Methodist Church of Winston-Salem, will preach the sermon at the commencement of East Carolina Teachers College, which will open on Friday night, June 4, and close with the graduating exercises on Monday, June 7. Alumnae Day will be on Saturday, June 5.

EX-KING FILES DAMAGE SUIT

Author and Publisher Made Defendants in Libel Suit

London, April 27. — (AP)—The Duke of Windsor today filed an action for alleged libel damage and an injunction against the author and publisher of "coronation commentary," a best seller dealing with his reign and abdication.

The writ was filed through the Duke's London solicitor despite the fact both author and publisher had proffered an apology and the publisher had announced the book was being withdrawn.

On advice of counsel, it was learned, the Duke decided to proceed with his threatened suit for damages and for an injunction against further publication.

The action is directed against Geoffrey Dennis, author, and William Heinemann, publisher. The book purported, among other things, to describe Edward's "muddling, fuddling and meddling" while king.

Floods Over State Do Little Damage

Raleigh, April 27. — (AP)—Eastern North Carolina rivers ran as much as 10 feet in flood today, inundating thousands of acres of low lands, but doing little material damage.

At Weldon, the Roanoke was 40.7 feet today and its bank level is 31 feet.

The Neuse at Smithfield was at 16.8 feet, nearly four feet in flood and rising slowly. A stage of 18.4 feet was due at Goldsboro by Friday.

REVEAL NAMES ON JURY LISTS

Three Weeks of Civil Court Scheduled During May

Three lists of jurors to serve at civil terms during next month were released today at the office of J. C. Gaskins.

A one week of special will be held the week of May 3, with Judge F. A. Danie's of Goldsboro presiding.

The regular two weeks' term is scheduled for May 17 with Judge E. H. Craunier of Southport presiding. Judge Craunier was taken ill here last Friday morning and court had to be adjourned, but his condition is described as improved and he is expected to be here for the regular term.

The three lists of jurors, drawn by the county commissioners at their last meeting, follow:

Two Are Killed In Bus-Truck Wreck

Charlotte, April 27. — (AP)—Carl Elliott and T. C. Russell, both of Denton, were killed instantly and 11 persons were hurt, none seriously, in a truck-bus wreck near here today.

The bus, property of the Carolina Coach company, was en route from Greensboro to Charlotte. The truck, loaded with blocks of granite, was the property of the Denton Stone Works of Denton.

The bodies of the dead men were mangled so identification was difficult. Telephone calls to the Stone works confirmed tentative identification established from documents in the men's pockets.

WATERS FORCE MANY PERSONS DESERT HOMES

Hundreds of Families In Five States Forced To Flee

PROPERTY LOSS WILL COME HIGH

Death Toll Attributed Directly and Indirectly to Flood Now Stands at 10

(By Associated Press) Hundreds of families were homeless and fresh April rains kept rivers in five states and the province of Ontario at flood stage today and piled up an unestimated property damage as the waters receded at many points.

No new casualties were reported during the early part of the day, but scores were suffering from exposure after being driven from their homes.

The death toll attributed directly and indirectly to the floods stood at 10, with five persons missing.

Areas in Pennsylvania, particularly around Johnstown; in Ohio, Virginia, Maryland, and West Virginia and parts of Ontario province, were inundated.

Residents of lowland districts in the affected areas continued to evacuate. Among the heaviest sufferers of the floods were Pittsburgh, Wheeling, West Virginia, East Liverpool, Ohio, Frederickburg, Va., Marietta and Steubenville, Ohio, and London, Ont.

The Ohio, Allegheny, Monongahela, Thames, Rapidan, James and Potomac rivers overflowed their banks as the rains poured into their basins.

Weather forecasters were optimistic, however, that damage would be light in comparison with the disastrous floods of 1934 and January of this year.

The menace to Pittsburgh's Golden Triangle billion dollar business district apparently had lessened as the flood crest at of 35.1 was reached by the city's three rivers and stopped.

The danger at Cumberland, Md., appeared passed.

The weather forecast for Johnston, Pa., however showed more rain due and fear existed the situation there might become acute.

Winterville Gets Prepared To Hold Affair Next Week

Dedication of A. G. Cox School Building and Old High School Homecoming Day Features

One week from today Winterville will be the scene of one of the biggest celebrations ever held in the Pitt county town which is located on land once owned by a man, whose name will be honored at the event next Tuesday.

The new school building will be dedicated in honor of the late A. G. Cox, father of the present chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, and who was prominent in the education, religion and all other phases of Pitt county.

Students of the old Baptist High school will meet again, plans having been made for a home-coming. Efforts have been made to get in touch with every former student of the school, since abandoned.

The two named special features will be held in addition to the regular commencement exercises.

All residents of Winterville and nearby rural sections are urged to attend the celebration. A picnic dinner will be held and each family is asked to bring a basket for the spread.

A queen wasp will produce from 10,000 to 20,000 offspring.

Confusion Caused By Men With Same Name

Two people having the same name can cause quite a bit of confusion. Such a situation arose here yesterday following a story in The Reflector which stated that Mr. and Mrs. Lee Moore were confined to a hospital in Kingston following a wreck near that city.

The Mr. Moore who is injured is a tobacconist and is a brother of W. P. and Larry Moore, of this city.

Another Lee Moore, who formerly worked at the post office, said today he had had any number of people ask him about the accident, how it happened and how he was getting along.

A giant pie containing 12,000 cherries was baked in Portland, Ore., on the occasion of a police inspector's birthday.

TOMMY HAS OWN 'CORONATION'

Tommy Manville, the playboy asbestos heir, considered taking a crowd of blondes to England for the coronation of King George VI but changed his plans at the last minute. Not to be outdone in the crowning business, he held his own "coronation" at his home in New York. Girl friends are shown crowning him "King Tommy."

WRANGLE OVER VOTE IN DARE

Commissioner Declares He'll Ask Precinct Thrown Out

Manteo, N. C., April 27. — (AP)—Carl Mann of Mann's Harbor, Dare county commissioner, said today he would ask the County Board of Elections to throw out the ballots cast at Mann's Harbor in the county liquor referendum Saturday on the grounds "certain irregularities were practiced."

Mann said he would charge several persons marked ballots on the ballot box at the polling place instead of using the booths provided and certain persons illegally registered and voted.

He said W. R. Tillet and Gaston Mann, a pole holder, would sign the petition also.

Returns from the Mann's Harbor precinct gave 26 votes for the proposal and 52 against.

The proposal to establish liquor stores in Dare county was defeated by 11 votes. E. S. Wise, county elections board chairman, said today.

Proposed Stadium Site Is Selected

A committee headed by Guy V. Smith and selected at a recent meeting of a group representing the city and a body of athletically minded citizens, have recommended purchase of a plot in the old fair grounds for the development of a Municipal stadium.

The committee considered this plot along with others, chiefly among them being one out Fifth street, or the Washington road.

The move was started some time ago when Mr. Smith, Ralph C. Deal and others interested appeared before the City Board of Aldermen and asked that the city, private citizens and possibly organizations cooperate in a move to secure a real stadium here.

The Board of Aldermen appointed a committee to work with a group representing the baseball club and private citizens and these two groups named the site committee, which last night recommended the old fair grounds site.

A queen wasp will produce from 10,000 to 20,000 offspring.

Believes Capus Waynick To Accept Proffered Job

By J. C. BASKERVILL Raleigh, April 27.—Whether Capus M. Waynick will accept the appointment offered him as Director of the Division of Purchase and Contract of decline it and leave the state's services altogether, is still uncertain. Some of his friends are urging him to decline it, a larger number urging him to accept in the spirit it was offered him by Governor Hoey.

The belief is growing in official circles here today that Waynick will accept the new post, not because of the salary of $6,000 a year which will go with it, but because his friends are urging him to accept it because of the opportunity to serve the state and the Democratic party. For as far as salary is concerned, there are indications that Waynick has more than one offer to enter private industry as an executive at as much if not more than the $6,000 salary offered him by Governor Hoey to head the purchase division.

The one thing that is preventing Waynick from making a decision and delaying a reply to Governor Hoey on the appointment offered him, most of his friends agree, is whether he was let out as chairman of the highway commission because of pressure brought by powerful interests which have

QUIETER OVER LABOR FRONTS

California Cannery Strike Settled; 18 Arrested in Mich.

(By Associated Press) Settlement of the California cannery strike and the arrest by federal agents of 18 sit-downers in a Detroit dispute held the spotlight on today's labor front.

Gov. Frank Merriam announced complete agreement for settlement of the Stockton, Calif. cannery strike, which broke out in bloody rioting last Friday. The peace pact provided for recognition of the cannery workers union as bargaining agency.

The strike affected 1,300 workers. The 18 persons under arrest in Detroit may be charged with violating the federal narcotic laws. They were seized when police drove 250 strikers out of the Parke Davis and company plant.

The government agents stepped in when the men barricaded themselves in the narcotic department and used a fire hose on police. Ralph C. Deal, District Chief of the United States Bureau of Narcotics, said if any supplies were missing from the department he would place the matter in the hands of District Attorney John Lehr.

Members Of Staff Busy On Speeches

Twenty-two engagements as commencement speakers, with the number growing from day to day, and numerous calls for speaking engagements for other occasions show that the college faculty members are popular speakers. This does not count the times when invitations had to be declined because of a conflict in dates. Dr. Meadows is accepting only one invitation a week and on Thursday night of this week will speak at Fairfield.

On last Friday night six commencement had E. C. T. C. men as their speakers. These men were Dr. D. E. Baughan at Pollockville; E. C. Hollar at Beaufort; Dr. A. D. Frank at Pink Hill; Dr. R. P. Hill-drup at Deep Run; R. C. Deal at Contentment; and Dr. Herbert ReBarker at Chinquappin.

R. C. Deal has eight other speaking engagements within the next two weeks, and Dr. Herbert ReBarker has four.

COURT REFORM BILL RETAINS STAGE CENTER

Predicted That Any Attempt at Compromise Would Fail

OTHER MATTERS TALKED ON HILL

Roosevelt Warns Against Undue Rise In Prices in Opposing Tydings Bill

Washington, April 27. — (AP)—Legislators predicted today any attempt at compromise on the President's court proposal would be defeated in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The opposition counted on at least half of the 18-man committee, which came today to the voting phase of its consideration of the bill to add justices to the Supreme Court if those over 70 do not retire.

Some committee members talked increasingly of putting off action and the possibility some justices might retire from the Supreme Court at the end of the spring session.

The Senate Judiciary Committee discussed the Roosevelt court bill an hour and half today without deciding when it would vote on the proposal.

Senator Logan (D. Ky.) suggested taking the vote two weeks from today. He planned to offer to the committee tomorrow a resolution to that effect.

The President warned against "undue advances in prices" today in a letter to Vice President Garner asking the Senate not to consider the Tydings price maintenance bill.

Honor Memory Of Dr. Robert Wright In Short Service

Late President of Teachers College Described as Trail Blazer in Teacher Training Activities

As trail blazer in teacher training, as a builder and as a leader in universal education, Dr. Robert H. Wright was presented to the students of the College this morning by President Meadows in a short service taking note of the anniversary of the builder of the institution.

"Let us now praise famous men" were the opening words of the Scripture lesson Dr. Meadows read, Ecclesiastes chapter 44, just after the singing of Dr. Wright's favorite song "Sun of My Soul."

Wishing to make the students know Dr. Wright as he was, and not as a superman they could never have felt close to, Dr. Meadows presented him as a man among men, who loved men and was loved by men, a country boy born on a farm sixty-six years ago, who did farm chores as any boy did before they had modern conveniences. He showed him as "fighting Bob" on the football team at the University and made him seem very human to the students.

After giving briefly the facts of his life by periods, he put emphasis on the greatest interest in Dr. Wright's life, teacher-training and showed how his twenty-five years' building this teacher-training institution he did a great work and had far-reaching influence.

The tenacity with which Dr. Wright held the school to the one purpose for which it was established, not letting it become a liberal arts college was one point Dr. Meadows stressed. Dr. Wright believed that only those who were to become teachers should come to this school, and that those who would not make good teachers should be eliminated as soon as their untalents were discovered, and he thought no one should make teaching stepping-stone to some other profession.

All but the six of the twenty-six buildings on the campus, were built under Dr. Wright's administration and he found those six when he came here. This physical building Dr. Meadows used as a symbol of the building that cannot be seen with the eye.

Dr. Meadows closed by picturing a scene when Dr. Wright was pleading before a legislative committee that the children in the poorest and smallest schools should be given the same chance as those in the richest and finest. This showing his great interest in universal education.

President Meadows expressed the hope that year after year the school would continue to hold a service calling to the mind of the students the life and work of Robert H. Wright.

The banquet hall was never more lovely than on this occasion. The soft glow of the candles, the beautiful arrangement of flowers in a background of pines and dogwood made the scene most entrancing.

In the center of this beautiful setting was placed the table for the bridal party. It was covered with a Venetian lace cover and centered with a filigree silver bowl containing pink roses and anaprasoons flanked by three branched candelabra with lighted pink tapers, interspersed with roses in bud vases.

The auxiliary tables were covered with lace cloths centered with pink tapers in silver holders.

Covers were laid for 200 guests.

As the dinner progressed Miss Ramona Staples presented her pupils in a unique dance programme, and as favors to the little guests, Mrs. Best presented vanities.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Forbes of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forbes bade the guests goodbye.

First Church of Christ, Scientist
"Probation After Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 25.

The Golden Text was from Revelations 14:13—"I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Blessed are dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yes, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Behold a shew you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruption must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." (I. Cor. 15:51-53).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We know that all will be changed 'in the twinkling of an eye,' when the last trump shall sound; but this last call of wisdom cannot come till mortals have already yielded to each lesser call in the growth of Christian character. Mortals need not fancy that belief in the experience of death will awaken them to glorified being. Universal salvation rests on progression and probation, and is unattainable without them." Science Department Open House
"Enriching High School Sciences" is the subject of the address Dr. Hanor A. Webb, head of the Chemistry Department of Peabody College, will deliver on Friday night, April 30, at East Carolina Teachers College, when the Science Club will be host to the science teachers in the Eastern section of the state. Science teachers from the colleges and universities were included in the invitations, and several of these have accepted.

Dr. Webb, who is editor of "Current Science," Science editor of three other periodicals, chemist, editor of "Science Education," and the author of widely used textbooks on science, will hold an Open Forum on Saturday morning, May 1. Questions about the organization of science clubs and the activities the most valuable to the members will be the chief topics of discussion.

The National Association for Research in Science Teaching, of which Dr. Webb was a charter member, recently elected him as its president. He has been chairman of the Science division of the National Education Association, has held office or served on important committees in the American Science Teachers Association, the American Chemical Society, the Central Association of Science and Mathematics Teachers, and is a member of others, such as the American Nature Study Society.

They have had "Open House" for the past two years when hundreds of high school boys and girls have inspected extensive exhibits showing the work in all departments of Science. The members of the club have made annual visits to industrial plants of special interest to science students.

Miss Loraine Hunter is faculty adviser and Durward Stowe, of Merritt, is president of the E. C. T. C. Science Club, which has a membership of 105. The other officers are: Vice-president, Miss Fannie Brewer, of Clarksville, Tenn.; secretary, Miss Hattie Holland, of St. Paul; treasurer, Miss Catherine Albritton, of Snow Hill, and Roy Barrow, of LaGrange.

The public is invited to hear Dr. Webb on Friday night.

Perfume

Marsha Hunt Shows The Proper Way To Use It

LONG-STEMMED STOPPER
Use a long-stemmed glass stopper for delicately applying a whiff of perfume to the upper lip, says Marsha Hunt, film actress. Perhaps a little—a very little—on the eyebrows and earlobes with the same stopper.

THEN A SHORTER ONE...
Be careful not to spill any on those polka dots! Marsha's hands are steady. It's a short stopper this time for dropping just a bit of perfume on the palms. Eager hand-shakers will remember the fragrance.

FINALLY AN ATOMIZER
An atomizer, held at a safe distance, wafts perfumed, enchantment about Marsha's head. No stoppers when it comes to perfuming the hair. The scent she uses? She won't tell.

PLAN JUBILEE AT ORPHANAGE

Thompson Orphanage To Commemorate 50th Anniversary

In commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Thompson Orphanage and Training Institution, Charlotte, a Jubilee celebration will be held there Friday, May 1st. The first Sunday in May will be observed in the three Episcopal dioceses of North Carolina as Jubilee and Orphanage Sunday, with special programs arranged in the interest of the institution.

For the Jubilee exercises at the Orphanage there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in St. Mary's Chapel at ten a. m. with Bishop Penick as celebrant, assisted by Bishop Darst, Bishop Gribbin and Rev. W. H. Wheeler, Superintendent. The offering will be used to purchase an alms basin for the chapel.

Bishop Darst will preside over the exercises at 11 a. m. After an invocation, orphanage children will furnish music. The welcome address will be given by the Rev. Robert Bruce Owen, chairman of the executive committee and rector of the church of the Holy Comforter, Charlotte. Response will be by the Rev. W. R. Nee, Wilmington Executive secretary of the diocese of East Carolina and general secretary of the Jubilee committee.

Music will be furnished by the orphanage children and Central High School band. Dr. Milton A. Barber of Raleigh will deliver an historical address. Francis O. Clarkson, trustee of the Endowment Fund, will call the roll of benefactors. Prayers will be offered by the Rev. Francis Murdoch, of Salisbury, depicting the history and high spots in the history of the church institution. The public has a cordial invitation to attend this and other features of the day's program.

The Orphanage was founded in 1887, being made possible by a gift of land conveyed to the trustees of the diocese of North Carolina by the Rev. B. S. Bronson then rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, Charlotte. The first contribution of money was made by the widow and family of Lewis Thompson, of Bertie county.

The Rev. Edward A. Osborne was chosen to be the first superintendent and he served for 12 years. The anniversary celebration date is his 100th birthday anniversary. Under his capable direction the institution was established on strong and enduring foundations.

Georgia Beauty

Jeanne Crowell (above), Atlanta, was selected as Beauty Queen of the University of Georgia by Broadway Producer Earl Carroll. Carroll picked her from pictures of several coeds nominated by students. She will be given a try-out for a part in the film version of "Gone With the Wind."

Property of the Orphanage consists of 64 acres, situated in the heart of the city of Charlotte. There are ten brick buildings, grouped about a semi-circular driveway. Five of these are cottages housing from sixteen to twenty-four children each, the other buildings are the Administration Building, which houses the office, Library, Kindergarten, Gymnasium and Auditorium; the splendidly equipped Infirmary; the Stedman Cottage occupied by the present Superintendent and his family; a modern laundry and the chapel of St. Mary the Virgin.

Support is derived chiefly from offerings of the three dioceses of the Episcopal church in North Carolina. But during its half century many children of other denominations and no denomination have been given a home and education there.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Dr. Iago Goldstein

Mastoid Disease

Behind the ear there is to be felt a cone-like bone, the point of which is directed downward. This is the mastoid.

The structure of the mastoid is spongy in character. Its inside is "honey-combed" and its spaces communicate with the middle ear. When the middle ear is infected, the process may extend into the spaces of the mastoid bone.

Pus forming here has no easy avenue for escape and is likely to become dammed up. If the accumulating pus is not promptly evacuated, the infection may extend through the base of the skull and involve the brain coverings (the meninges) and the brain. This is a life-threatening complication.

The surgical treatment of mastoiditis requires the opening up of the mastoid bone and the clearing out of its numerous cells (spaces). This operation was first performed by a French physician, Jean Louis Petit, in 1774. How many lives have been saved through this operation cannot even be guessed at, but the number must be great.

However, for long it was noticed that "cleaning out" the mastoid bone in cases of mastoiditis, did not always avail to save the sufferer, even when the operation was thorough, and in time. Some developed meningitis anyway.

The explanation for certain of these "failures" was recently developed by Dr. K. Kobayashi of New York. He demonstrated that in addition to the mastoid bone, another, proximal bone structure known as the petrous portion of the temporal bone may become involved by the infectious process, and that unless this, too, be treated, the dreaded complication of meningitis may develop.

The diagnosis of petrositis, as this condition is called, is based on the clinical history of the case, and on X-ray findings. Clinically the patient does not respond to his mastoid operation as he should. A low-grade temperature persists; the discharge of pus from the diseased ear continues, or reappears; the surgical wound is slow in healing, and the patient may complain of deep-seated pain in, behind and around the eye on the same side of the diseased ear.

Surgical procedures have been developed for reaching the diseased bone, and this newly developed technique has already helped to save lives which in former times could not, in all probabilities, have been saved.

Milk And Butterfat Seems Be Plentiful

Raleigh, April 27.—Top honors in milk and butterfat production in North Carolina last month went to two Ayrshire cows at Pinehurst, John A. Arey, of State College, announced today.

Bonnie Blanche produced 2,334 pounds of milk and 103.4 pounds of butterfat. Queen Lass of Pinehurst produced 2,409 pounds of milk and 91.5 pounds of butterfat.

Arey also announced that Maxim's Inez of Quail Roost, in the herd of A. L. Brown, Concord, led the Guernsey with a milk production of 1,891 pounds and a butterfat production of 87 pounds.

Second place in the Guernsey group was awarded Andromeda's Spot of Valkyrie, in the Southern Dairies herd, Asheville, with 1,816 pounds of milk and 82.3 pounds of butterfat.

The high producing Jersey was Dixie Madame Queen, owned by K. R. Myitt, Raleigh, with 79.5 pounds of butterfat. Imperial Gloria's Bon Belle, of the Cameron Morrison herd, Charlotte, produced 56.2 pounds of butterfat.

In the Holstein group, both the milk and butterfat production record was copied by North Carolina Echo of the N. C. State College herd. Echo produced 2,194 pounds of milk and 75.2 pounds of fat.

Arey listed 144 cows in the State that produced 53 pounds or more of butter fat last month. The highest herd average was 43.7 pounds of butterfat per cow produced by the Weaverbarton Dairy, Tryon, composed of Jerseys.

U. S. Takes Land For Gun (San Francisco AP) — The government has filed a "declaration of taking" to acquire 802 acres of land near here to mount one of its giant new coast defense guns. After the War department fixed a price of $35 an acre, it was taken back by the owners' demand for $400 an acre. The case will go to court.

Talks To Parents

By Brooke Peters Church

Sense of Humor

"My child has no sense of humor. She does not appreciate 'Alice in Wonderland.'"

Having been brought up on Lewis Carroll's books, and having loved and laughed over them, many parents try them on their own children too young. They themselves probably read the books at a later age, but have forgotten the time when they did not know them by heart.

The humor of Alice's adventures generally does not appeal to very little tots. Here and there one finds an exception, but generally it is because the child in question has a mental development beyond his years.

Lewis Carroll was a mathematician, and his nonsense, though to a child, is largely very logical and grown-up nonsense.

If the youngster shows signs of boredom when the books are first read to him or given him to read, they should be put away until a later date. If at eight or ten he cannot appreciate them, he may yet take to them at 14.

Of course there are children who never enjoy them. Whimsy is a very special kind of humor. Many people who are quite able to see a joke or a funny situation never develop a sense of whimsy. It is a great mistake for parents to label a child as lacking in a sense of humor just because the youngster does not have their particular appreciation of fun.

To lack a sense of humor is a misfortune, amounting to a kind of mental deformity. Many children are given a real sense of inadequacy by being told that they are lacking in this important respect. The best thing to do is to try to find and develop the individual child's own particular brand of humor.

Man About Manhattan By George Tucker New York — Manhattan is a roof town in summer, and most of the roof gardens are being renovated for the long, hot, sultry nights which leave the community so limp and prostrate. It is a different sort of here—a baked heat thrown back from surfaces of cement and steel, giving in many ways the effect of living in a kiln. There is enough showmanship and salesmanship hereabouts, however, to turn this very factor to advantage. Roof gardens are rigged up like exotic, tropical paradises. Island music floats in the darkened velvet of Manhattan nights, high above the grids of the city. Usually the tables and the dancing are actually under the stars, and the combination of music and pretty women leads an enchantment that makes the hard, hot reality of the day remote and far away. There must be 50 such sky danceways in Manhattan catering to those who must get away from the everlasting oppression of still, scorching mid-summer streets and apartments. And the cost, as a rule, is reasonable. A few go to extremes in their prices, but an evening under the milky way, including dinner and dancing and refreshment of an alcoholic variety, costs no more than a similar adventure in the usual winter restaurants and grills. This year there is going to be an open-air movie some 25 stories above the street, run just like a regular night club. You take the elevators up, but instead of wining and dancing under the stars, you let the free, untroubled breezes fan you as your favorite hero and heroine go into their boy-meets-girl histrionics. So far as I know this has never been done in New York before—not on the grand scale, at least. And if good pictures are obtainable, the innovation should succeed. There isn't as much feuding between newspapers and theatrical producers as there was in the old days. The producers have learned to take their lumps without much complaint. Several years ago Winchell was told to keep out of various playhouses, and one or two other critics were promised a good hiding if they were impertinent enough to show up on opening nights. The most famous of such incidents happened to the late Oscar Hammerstein. When he had that famous spa with Mary Garden, and she disappeared, the old "New York Press," which disliked Hammerstein, charged him with pulling the state government's coat, and then Waynick will not accept the post offered him by Governor Hoy, sources close to Waynick are convinced. They know he is not the sort to condone this sort of politics or to stay in an administration in which politics of this sort prevails.

been opposed to him almost from the time he took office as chairman, or merely because Governor Hoy thought it advisable to make a change, without any regard to the factors opposing him.

If Waynick reaches the conclusion that certain big interests in the state, centering around certain highway contracting and roads materials firms, are so powerful that they can dictate to incoming governors as to who shall go and who may stay in certain jobs, and are hence more powerful than the state government itself, then Waynick will not accept the post offered him by Governor Hoy, sources close to Waynick are convinced. They know he is not the sort to condone this sort of politics or to stay in an administration in which politics of this sort prevails.

But if Waynick becomes convinced that his failure to be reappointed head of the highway commission was the result of commitments made by Governor Hoy in the primary campaigns a year ago, together with the conviction that party harmony could be furthered by wiping the old highway slate clean and that the Governor has placed his desire for party harmony and the future welfare of the Democratic party ahead of any personal feelings he might have had, then Waynick is expected to accept the new post.

Most observers who have been following the undercurrent of the trend here for many months, are convinced that Governor Hoy thinks very highly of Waynick and the work he has done and really wanted to reappoint him as highway chairman, undoubtedly would have, but for certain commitments made during the primary campaign last spring, in which he more or less promised to "clean house" in the highway department if he was nominated and elected—and which both Dr. Ralph W. McDonald and Sandy Graham were promising to do, if either had been nominated or elected. They believe the Governor is also entirely sincere in his belief that party harmony will be promoted and differing points of view within the party brought together by wiping the old highway slate clean and setting up an entirely new and fresh organization.

The belief that Governor Hoy has had a very high regard for Waynick all along and still has, is further strengthened by the fact that it is known that the Governor consulted Waynick freely with regard to the appointments of the ten new commissioners, that from six to eight of these were either recommended or approved by Waynick. Still another indication of this high regard for the former highway chairman is the prevailing belief the appointment of Frank L. Dunlap as the new chairman is anything but a victory for the groups which were most bitterly opposed to Waynick. For Dunlap is not expected to prove any more popular with some of the highway contractors, materials producers and politicians than Waynick has been. Some believe he is likely to crack down even harder than Waynick. Since it is agreed that if Waynick should refuse the post offered him by Governor Hoy as Director of the purchase and contract division, it would be an indication of pique and of poor showmanship, and because no one has ever questioned Waynick's democracy, most observers here expect him to accept the appointment.

Washington Daybook By Preston Grover

Washington — Anyone interested in labor tactics will get a thrill out of a small battle soon coming up between John L. Lewis and one of the nation's busiest shipyards, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company.

Newport News is one of those quiet old Virginia cities that have grown up largely around one industry.

While it is true that the city is dependent upon the industry, the industry is equally dependent upon the city. It must draw its skilled help, its unskilled help, its bookkeepers, its officials and apprentices from the city.

Shipbuilders, from master yard superintendent to the humblest welder, are specialists at their jobs. They can build ships and not a great deal else. But on the other hand, shipbuilding is a specialist's job.

Accepting that relationship, the Newport News company, under management of blue-eyed Homer Ferguson, who used to be a midshipman, has set out to make it work. In an effort to keep its necessary help available at all times, the company cultivates them, in a sense, like prize hens.

If a slack period comes along—no cruisers or freighters to build—the men may find themselves without real work. But instead of being laid off, they are called in by the boss, given a bucket of paint, and set to painting their own houses. If the house has been painted recently, perhaps he needs an extra room. They can borrow money from the company to build it.

Perhaps the man has no house at all. Well, the company steps in again, lends money at low interest to the steady workman, supplies his material at shipyard prices, and perhaps puts some of the company carpenters to work erecting the house. Alert sons of company employes are taken in as apprentice welders. If they show real ability the company sends them off to Virginia Tech to fit them out as designers and draftsmen, and they come back to good jobs in the yards. To the eye of a labor organizer it is a paternalistic madhouse in which collective bargaining is impossible. They concede it is a "kindly" paternalism but they deny it is fair.

But John L. Lewis says he is going to organize the yards, and that's that. The drive has already started in New Jersey and New York yards.

Arts and Crafts Exhibit An interesting exhibit of arts and crafts was on display at the Fleming Street Colored School as part of the county-wide commencement held on Friday, April 23.

Prizes were awarded as follows: One-Teacher Schools: 1st prize, Oak Ridge; 2nd prize, Holly Hill; 3rd prize, Highsmith's.

Two- and Three-Teacher Schools: 1st prize, Diddy's; 2nd prize, Sallie Branch; 3rd prize, Sweet Hope. Larger Schools: 1st prize, Colored Training school; 2nd prize, Parnville; 3rd prize, Ayden.

Members of the Senior Class in Home Economics of East Carolina Teachers College served as judges. The exhibits were made up of pupil work entirely, and were evidence of the useful and progressive type of teaching in the colored schools of Pitt county. Much credit is due the teachers as well as the County Supervisor, Iva M. Donnell.

On display were all types of clothing, quilts, bed-spreads, basketry and other examples of manual art.

New State Highway Commission Facing Novel Task

By J. C. BASKERVILL
(Reflector Bureau Writer)

Raleigh, April 27.—Then ten new district commissioners of the State Highway and Public Works Commission are in the somewhat novel position of knowing what districts they will represent but without knowing just what counties will be in those districts.

For while Governor Clyde R. Hoey announced the appointments of the ten district commissioners and the new chairman last Saturday, the ten district commissioners will not know just what counties will be in their district until they meet May 1 or soon thereafter and definitely decide upon the make-up of the ten districts. In a general way the composition of these districts is known, of course, and it is expected that the commission will for the most part follow the suggestions of the Governor as to what counties shall be included in each. But the new commissioners must meet and agree upon the counties to be included in each district before they can be legally and definitely constituted.

The reason for this somewhat paradoxical situation is that the 1937 general assembly—or rather the roads committee—was unable to divide the state into ten highway districts acceptable to the members of the committee, with the result that it was decided to pass the buck to the new commissioners and the Governor. For while three different districting plans were considered by the roads committee, it was not possible to get a majority of the committee to agree to any of these three plans. So it was finally decided to pass the bill reorganizing the highway commission and to leave the matter of dividing 100 counties up into ten districts to the new commissioners. This was done.

Accordingly, Governor Hoey was placed in the position of having to select ten district commissioners for districts not yet created. But he appointed the new district commissioners in such a way that each will have to remain in the district for which he is designated, but left things open for considerable leeway in the final selection of counties that will compose each of the districts. Of the three districting plans suggested during the general assembly, it is believed that the new districts will be finally arranged according to the following plan:

First District: D. Collin Barnes, Hertford county, Commissioner; Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Nash, Northampton, Pasquotank and Perquimans counties.
Second District: Ernest V. Webb, Lenoir county, Commissioner; Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Greene, Hyde, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pitt Tyrrel and Washington counties.

Third District: Robert Grady Johnson, Pender county, Commissioner; Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Cumberland, Duplin, New Hanover, Onslow, Pender and Sampson.

Fourth District: T. Boddie Ward, Wilson county, Commissioner; Franklin, Harnett, Johnston, Wake, Warren, Wayne and Wilson counties.

Fifth District: Samuel M. Bason, Caswell county, Commissioner; Alamance, Gaswell, Durham, Granville, Guilford, Orange, Person, Vance counties.

Sixth District: D. B. McCrary, Randolph county, Commissioner; Chatham, Hoke, Lee, Montgomery, Moore, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson, Scotland counties.

Seventh District: Thomas R. Wolfe, Stanly county, Commissioner; Anson, Cabarrus, Davie, Davidson, Mecklenburg, Rowan, Stanly and Union counties.

Eighth District: J. Gordon Hackett, Wilkes county, Commissioner; Ashe, Alleghany, Caldwell, Forsyth, Rockingham, Stokes, Surry, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin counties.

Ninth District: T. Max Watson of Rutherford county, Commissioner; Alexander, Burke, Catawba, Cleveland, Gaston, Iredell, Lincoln, McDowell, Polk and Rutherford counties.

Tenth District: E. L. McKee, Jackson county, Commissioner; Avery, Buncombe, Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Macon, Madison, Mitchell, Swain, Transylvania and Yancey counties.

Sixteen special issues of commemorative coins were authorized by the last session of congress.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: In one wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunt, beautiful Jude Blinshop is shot to death on the bluff; the Skipper, Mike's tall and tuxedoed younger aunt, disappears, and Mike dislocates his shoulder in a fall. The Skipper turns up, saying she's been in the stable with her sick collic, Aunt Martha, stout and prudish, has hysterics a couple of times, but Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart, keeps fairly sane. Next morning, with William the chauffeur ice set out to search the grounds for an intruder.

Chapter 10 The Room Over The Garage

IT HAD been years since horses had graced the premises of Farrington Bluff. The six large box stalls now enshrined the Skipper's various dogs. The stalls ran three on either side of the opening which reached to the rafters, and above them on both sides former haylofts bore discarded relics of Farrington carriages, harnesses and boots.

The one thing that I wanted to look at in that building was Diana, the collic bitch, but I hadn't the nerve. I propped a ladder against one of the lofts and mounted it cautiously. Junk—the melancholy, once-valued possessions of a former generation, covered with dust, bedraggled, and horribly depressing I scouted through it, sneezing into the remains of an old Victoria, barking my shins on the grinning skeleton of a battered dory, and sending a choking cloud of dust into the air as I bumped into a venerable horse-hair sofa.

There was no one in that loft and no sign of anyone having been there since the time of old Michael Farrington. One glance at the film of dust in the other loft told the same story. I went back down the ladder. The Skipper was kneeling in the stall at the foot of it—Diana's. On an old plaid blanket lay the collic and beside her—puppies. I felt much better than I had for two days.

"Meet Toby," said the Skipper. "Look at his ears, Jim." But I'm afraid my interest in Toby was purely perfunctory. The Skipper gently deposited him on the plaid.

"Come on," she said. "Let's finish this business." The plan of the garage was very simple. It was a two-story rectangle, facing the drive and wide enough to run three cars into it easily. There were just three in it then—Mike's, the Skipper's, and M. Farrington's. The Skipper was nearest to us, and I noticed with a start that it was splashed with mud. Had she used it since the rain started? I pointed silently, but she had already noticed.

"That's odd, Jammie." I said, "Yeah," and I didn't say it very enthusiastically. There was nothing in any of the cars, but spreading in confusion from the door of the Skipper's all over the floor of the garage were smudges of the red clay of the tennis courts. The Skipper's eyes were very large and very dark as I stared into them.

"Come Out Or I'll Shoot!" "SKIPPER," I said, "get into the big car and lie down on the floor of it—quick!" I had Higgins' revolver out. I had remembered something. There was a room over that garage where William slept in the summer.

"I'm going with you," said the Skipper. "Behind you if you insist, but I'm going!" There was no time to argue. "I do insist," I said, and started for the stairs. I suppose that if my life depended on it, I might possibly hit the broad side of a barn with a double-barrel shotgun at five paces. With a pistol at the same distance and with the same target, my expectation of life would be very slight. I thought of that as I went up those stairs. I thought of Jude on the bluff and Michael on the rocks. The roar of the wind was in my ears. The Skipper's stiff oiled leathers were brushing mine and her breath was warm on the back of my neck.

The department of justice estimates that, during 1936, of the total number of crimes reported in the United States, 96.1 per cent were against property and the remaining against persons.

Gripping the revolver until my fingers ached, I pushed open the door at the head of the stairs. To all intents and purposes the room and the tiny bathroom beyond it were empty. My eyes swept it rapidly—dresser, book rack, chairs, bed. And then I jammed myself into the doorway in a wild attempt at shielding the Skipper. That bed had been slept in recently. Was someone under it? I dared not stoop to look, for in the far corner of the room stood a large, old-fashioned wardrobe and in that wardrobe—what? I made a quick decision. Kneeling swiftly, with my gun still trained on the wardrobe, I took one quick, desperate look under that bed. Nothing.

I got to my feet. "Get outside, Skipper," I said, and my voice was ridiculously near to cracking. "You, in the wardrobe! Come out or I'll shoot!" No answer. Only a nervous chuckle from the Skipper behind me. For a fraction of a second I hesitated. Then I pulled the trigger and fired point blank into that wardrobe door. The report of the gun was like the crack of doom.

Deafened, hardly breathing, we waited. No movement from behind that door. I walked across the room and jerked it open. Hanging inside were one pair of dark trousers and a chauffeur's cap. The bullet had pierced the cap neatly in the middle.

Back To The House ONLY once in my life have I ever experienced another sensation like that one. Some idiot had put me in charge at a dinner party, and in my fuss and flurry I found myself introducing the guest of honor and his wife to one another. Standing with that wardrobe door in my hand, I relived that memorable sensation. Dully I waited for the Skipper's laugh. But it didn't come.

"Jimmie," her voice was hoarse, "let's get back to the house." I was too grateful for the absence of that laugh to protest. Without a word I followed her down the stairs and out of the garage. While I was fumbling with the lock, I could see her signaling to Gay, far down the drive, that the hunt was over.

As we turned toward the house, the wind from straight off the bluff was terrific, and the torrents of rain once again assured us that if there had been any traces of red clay on the drive, they had long since been obliterated. From the corner of the house, we gestured to William and made our way to the front door. Higgins had already admitted Gay and Michael by the time we got there.

M. Farrington was alone in the hall—for once without any questions. She favored us with one quick look and took decisive action. "Don't wait to talk about it, Barbara," she said. "I've sent the others up to change, too. Take a hot bath, both of you."

We went gratefully, parting in silence in the upper hall. (Copyright, 1937, Esther Tyler)

M. Farrington gets me to head an organized investigation, tomorrow.

FACTORY TO MAKE SUMMER BLIZZARDS Columbus, Ind. (AP) — An automobile accessory factory here is going to make its own sub-zero weather, sleet and windstorms throughout the summer to test windshield defrosters and heaters. The equipment being installed will provide a temperature as low as 30 degrees below zero. Water sprayed into the room will provide the necessary conditions for sleet tests and a blower system will produce the blizzards.

Ice cream is manufactured daily aboard U. S. battleships at sea, a substitute for fresh milk being employed.

Social Security Act Ruling Is Revealed

Raleigh, April 27.—Social Security account numbers of employees in North Carolina who have reached or passed the 65 year age limit will be issued by the postoffices in the State for the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission. Frank Bane, executive director of the Social Security Board, has advised E. W. Price, director of the Unemployment Compensation Division of the State commission.

The message advising that this method can be used for identifying employees who had not previously been issued Social Security account numbers because of their age reads as follows: "Post offices are being instructed to issue Social Security account numbers to employees aged sixty-five or over on and after April 27. Application entirely voluntary from Federal viewpoint. You may, if necessary, and not earlier than Tuesday, April 27, issue State publicity, together with appropriate rule or regulation making application compulsory under State, but not Federal law."

Acting on the message, the North Carolina commission, in meeting Monday, adopted a rule requiring that employers of the State apply to their local postoffices and secure these special Social Security account numbers for all their employees who have reached or passed the 65 age limit and who do not have such numbers.

As stated, this is entirely a State number and the postoffice department is cooperating in order that numbers may be assigned to workers 65 years of age and over for purposes of identification only for the State Unemployment Compensation records. Workers above that age limit do not participate in the old-age benefits of the Social Security program, but if they continue to work are included in the provisions of the State Unemployment Compensation Act.

by these as well as other post-offices throughout the State. Throughout the United States a total of 2,744,708 employees of one or more persons, whose employees will benefit under the Federal old-age benefits provisions of the Social Security Act, have reported to the Social Security Board since November 16, 1936 that their employment rolls number 26,696,137 wage earners. A few employments, such as agricultural labor, domestic service in a private home, casual labor not in the course of the employer's business, and several others, are not now covered in this program. Workers who are not in covered employment may become covered as they transfer to work in industry or commerce, whether full time, part time, or on a temporary basis. The Board stated that applications are still being filed with local postmasters and that its Bureau of Federal Old-Age Security is receiving applications from post offices at the rate of approximately 40,000 daily. The Board estimates that ultimately there will be active records set up for 40,000,000 workers.

Teachers And League Team to Play Tomorrow

Two local teams, Teachers and the Greenville Coastal Plain League team, will play on the Teachers College diamond Wednesday. The Teachers have just finished a tour, in which they split even. They won from High Point College and Guilford and lost to High Point and Oak Ridge.

This will be the first opportunity for the people of Greenville to see the boys who are trying out for the local entry in the Coastal Plain league. The game will be called at 3:30 p. m.

Tom Henrich will do all right. The young outfielder, who talked Judge Landis into declaring him a free agent and then sold himself to the New York Yankees for around $20,000, is the type of fellow who has the courage to fight for himself. If he shows the same fight on the ball field he is likely to prove a bargain at any price.

Henrich got the idea that the Cleveland Indians were covering him up after reading a magazine article by Billy Evans, former Cleveland official. He had played with Zanesville, O., and New Orleans, both Cleveland farms, and then had been sold to the Brewers with Ralph Winegarner for $7,500. He was a sensation with Milwaukee in spring exhibition games. He appealed to Judge Landis, insisting his contract rights were being violated. The judge agreed, deciding Cleveland officials had transferred him from New Orleans to Milwaukee to prevent his advancement to the majors.

All of this has marked Henrich. From now on his every move will be closely watched. If he makes good, many other players now languishing in the minors are certain to make similar bids for freedom. The disposition of Henrich's case would put an end to the talk about ball-players being nothing more than slaves. If shows the players have rights just as do the club owners.

Babe Herman is one ball player who always has collected extremely well for his services. Year after year Babe has demanded—and received—big money, largely because of his ability to hit. As a fielder, he left much to be desired. All one could say about his base-running was that it was extremely funny. His specialty was stealing a base already occupied by a teammate.

Herman started with Brooklyn where he played six years. The Dodgers sold him to Cincinnati at the end of the 1931 season. He was sold to the Chicago Cubs where he toiled without success and then was traded to Pittsburgh with Guy Bush. Pittsburgh held on to the Babe for only a few months and turned him back to Cincinnati for the waiver price. This spring Babe staged another holdout. So the Reds asked waivers on him. When all the National league teams passed up Herman, Detroit purchased him. The odd thing is this: the Tigers tried out Herman 16 years ago, decided he would never be a big leaguer.

UNIQUE PEPPER GAME TO BE STAGED HERE

An extra feature of the exhibition to be put on by the bearded House of David team, when it meets the Coastal Plains league here Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock on Third Street school diamond, will be the famous "pepper game" or baseball juggling act. Shadowmen, center fielder, Woods, first baseman, and Vann, third baseman, are the jugglers in the act, with Moose Swaney the veteran southpaw, as the batter. They start their performance like an ordinary pepper game with the pitcher throwing motions at the batter and passing the ball back and forth between themselves, occasionally varying the procedure with a real toss to the batsman who is kept in a state of nervous anxiety, swinging at the fake pitches as well as the genuine ones. The players passing the ball increase the pace of their juggling until it is almost impossible for the spectators to follow the pellet in its flight. They pass it over their shoulders, behind their backs, between their legs and otherwise, sometimes throwing their gloves instead of the ball, and occasionally even removing their shoes and tossing them to their companions. During the greater part of the exhibition the batter uses a huge bat, almost ten times the size of an ordinary bat.

CLUB HEARS OF TUBERCULOSIS

Rotary Meeting Turned Over to Open Discussions

By BILLY NESBIT (Club Reporter)

In the absence of Sergeant Alvin York, on whom it had been depended by a committee composed of T. Y. Walker and J. B. Webb to make up the program at the Rotary club Monday evening, President J. B. Kittrell turned the meeting over to discussion by members of the club on any topics of interest.

Dr. J. S. Denholm, guest of Dr. Emmet at the meeting, and who is now conducting the tuberculosis clinic now being held in Pitt County, spoke briefly on the causes of tuberculosis and its needs. Dr. Denholm pointed out that 45 persons died in Pitt county last year of this dreaded disease and based on statistics this placed the number of afflicted at about 450 persons.

Reverend Steve Gardner of Washington urged the attendance of Rotarians, particularly the younger ones at the District Conference to be held in Pinehurst, May 9-10.

President J. B. Kittrell declared that through the efforts of District Governor Edmund Harding of Washington, N. C. and the Sanford club, hosts, this convention was going to be the best ever held. A number of prominent speakers, including John B. Kennedy, the N. B. C. commentator, are on the program and the Duke Glee Club and Carolina Playmakers have been invited to attend.

On May 4 at Bethel, President Kittrell informed the club, the Bethel Rotary Club will be granted its charter. This is the fourth Rotary club in Pitt county and every member of the Greenville club should make a special effort to be there at the presentation of the charter he said.

Among the visitors from neighboring clubs were Reverend Steve Gardner, Frank Rutledge, Paul Waters, Johnnie Johnson, Chic Holms of Washington, and Dr. Grady Dixon of Ayden.

Guests of the club were Dr. J. S. Denholm and J. P. Carr. The attendance booster prize given by S. T. White was won by S. G. Wilkerson.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 27.—(AP)—An apparently oversold stock market bounded back today for recoveries of fraction to two or more points.

Brisk short-covering and quick-turn speculative buying, brokers said, accounted largely for the about face.

Activity was pronounced at the opening with the ticker tape behind a bit for the time. Volume later narrowed, but most rallying leaders were at their tops near the fourth hour.

Bonds and commodities regained some of their previous declines and transfers approximately 1,400,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, April 27.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, two to six points off under May liquidation against 303 notices and commission house selling with trade houses the best buyers.

Shortly after the first half hour July sold up from 13.01 to 13.12 and was holding at the best. Prices generally showed gains of one to eight points.

Futures closed steady, 14 to 25 higher. Spot steady, middling 13.72.

SPANISH PORT CITY TOTTERS

Fatalities in Madrid mounted to at least 270, with hundreds of others injured as Insurgents' artillery batteries pointed the city for the 16th consecutive day.

Two Insurgent cruisers rained 30 shells into Valencia, temporary seat of the government, on the Mediterranean coast. At least three women were killed, many other civilians injured and extensive damages inflicted in on the city's industrial section.

A sub committee of the neutrality group in London studied whether to seek cooperation of non-European powers, including the United States, in the 27 nation patrol of Spain.

COURT REFORM BILL RETAINS STAGE CENTER

"The present hazard of undue advances in prices with resultant rise in the cost of living," the President wrote, "makes it most untimely to legalize and competitive or marketing practice calculated to facilitate increases in the cost of numerous and important articles which American householders and consumers generally buy."

He was commenting on the bill by Senator Tydings (D. Md.) to permit contracts to maintain prices in inter-state commerce on trademarked goods.

Meanwhile a civil liberties investigator asserted Kentucky's Governor A. D. Chandler had dismissed ouster charges against a Harlan county official on the ground official records were missing, when actually the records were in state files.

Allan Rosenberg, said he found the records intact in the offices of the Kentucky Secretary of State.

The charges were brought against Sheriff Theodore Middleton by Chandler's predecessor, Ruby Laffoon, who accused the officer of hiring ex-convicts as deputies and conspiring "with Harlan county coal operators to suppress by violence any efforts to unionize miners in the county."

Secretary Ickes recommended to a House Inter-State Commerce committee, the Connally (Hot Oil) act controlling oil and gas production be made permanent. It is due to expire June 15.

In line with recent administration economy pronouncements, Speaker Bankhead said the House Appropriations committee had decided tentatively to slash $20,000,000 from budget estimates of $100,000,000 for the second deficiency appropriation bill.

Action toward enacting a program for industry and labor will be delayed, some members of Congress said, for an administration decision on whether the problems involved should be handled by State of Federal government.

Economy aimed at budget balancing won support from Harper Sibley, United States Chamber of Commerce president, who told his organization relief expenses are the key to the problem of wages and hours.

Plan To Go Ahead With Advertising Of North Carolina

Launching of Campaign to "Tell the World" About State Rapidly Being Perfected

Raleigh, April 27.—(Reflector Bureau)—Plans for the launching of the new advertising campaign to "tell the world" about the advantages of North Carolina as a place to live, play, work and manufacture, are rapidly being perfected. It was learned today from Director R. Bruce Etheridge of the Department of Conservation and Development, and Paul Kelly, Assistant Director. The new advertising program will be started July 1 and contemplates the expenditure of $125,000 a year during the next two years, largely in nation-wide advertising and the publication of booklets telling about the State. It is believed that the expenditure of this money in advertising the state will be the means of bringing thousands of tourists and new residents into the state, who will literally spend millions of dollars of new money in the state.

It has just about been decided to place all of the national advertising through one of the larger national advertising agencies, Director Etheridge said, since this can be done at no cost to the state, yet will give it the benefit of the staff of advertising experts in the agency, together with its technical and mechanical facilities.

"At one time we considered the advisability of trying to place this advertising direct with the publications we wanted to place it with, rather than through an established agency," Mr. Etheridge said. "But we found that we would have to go to very great expense in order to provide artists, copy writers, advertising experts, also that we would have to buy expensive equipment with which to make cuts and mats.

We now find that we can eliminate all this expense by placing the advertising through an agency which already has an expert staff of artists, writers, consultants and all of the mechanical equipment needed. For instead of charging us for this service, the agencies collect their commission from the publications in which they place the advertising. Thus we will have more money to spend for advertising by placing it through an agency."
