

INQUIRY COURT STARTS PROBE INTO TRAGEDY

Secret Investigation Under Way in Hin- denburg Blast

ANOTHER IS SET START MONDAY

Two Early Morning Deaths Bring Num- ber Known Fatalities to 35 Persons.

Lakehurst, N. J., May 8.—(AP)—The Navy department ordered a court of inquiry convened today to investigate the destruction of the German airship Hindenburg at the naval air station here with a loss of 35 lives.

The investigation began as soon as announced and was secret. The Commerce department already had arranged for public hearings to start next Monday at the reservation. The court has four members.

Two deaths in the early morning raised to 35 the number who lost their lives in the crash of the giant skyliner, pride of Germany's air fleet.

William Speck, chief radio officer of the airship which plunged in flames upon the Lakehurst naval air station grounds here Thursday night at the end of its first crossing of the year, succumbed in a New York hospital. A German passenger, Erich Knocher, died at Asbury Park.

The man who commanded the ship on ten safe voyages to Lakehurst from Germany last year, Capt. Ernst Lehmann, died last night.

The public investigation of the tragedy begins Monday, but officials tried meanwhile to correlate evidence that may ultimately establish the cause of the shattering explosions and billowing fire which sent the graceful ship to her doom. The theory that an electric spark, either from one of her engines or from her landing ropes, ignited the Hindenburg's highly inflammable hydrogen gas, appeared to have the most expert support.

Three More Ships Arrive At Bilbao

Bilbao, Spain, May 8.—(AP)—Three French merchant ships arrived today to evacuate 2,400 women and children from the refugee-clogged city, while three French war craft stood by in the Bay of Biscay to protect them on the return to France.

A cruiser and two destroyers halted at the three mile limit, off the mouth of the Nervion river, which leads up to Bilbao, while the steamers prepared to take on the refugees.

Not Anxious For Children

Hindenburg Sprawls On Ground In Total Ruin

Like the skeleton of some fabled monster, the wreckage of the great German zeppelin Hindenburg sprawls on the ground at Lakehurst, N. J.—a world traveler come to the fiery end of the trail on foreign soil. At least 32 persons perished when the ship burst into flames as she was about to land at the end of her long flight from Germany. After the fire burned out, nothing remained of the proud sky cruiser but the gaunt-ribbed skeleton of charred and twisted metal.

CIVIL SESSION IS COMPLETED

Life Insurance Com- panies Defendants Important Cases

A one week's term of special Pitt Superior Court for hearing civil cases was completed here yesterday afternoon, but two more weeks are scheduled to begin Monday week.

Judge F. A. Daniels presided over the special term. Judge E. H. Cranmer is scheduled to be here for the two weeks' session, which will complete the spring term for the county.

Two most important cases of this week were similar in that the plaintiff in each sought to collect double indemnity on life insurance policies. The companies contended the face value of the policies was all the beneficiaries were entitled to collect.

Mrs. Rena Warren, mother of Alexander Warren, who was murdered by Willie Tate, sued the Pilot Life Insurance company on the contention that a policy on the deceased carried a double indemnity clause and therefore she should have collected $5,000, instead of $2,500.

After deliberating for a short while, the jury returned a verdict awarding Mrs. Warren the additional $2,500 with interest.

Another case similar to this ended when Judge F. A. Daniels, presiding, ordered a mistrial after the jury found itself unable to agree on a verdict. In this case Mrs. Mabel Bright, mother of James C. Wright, deceased, sued the Shenandoah Life Insurance company, also claiming that she was due double the amount of the face value of the policy.

Oecogenarian Keeps Busy

Clarendon, Tex. (AP)—Miss Elizabeth Anne Bobo didn't even think of retiring when she was 70. Now 81, she keeps an 11-room house, spades and plants her garden, and in winter often climbs a 20-foot ladder to get water from a windmill tank.

Improved Law Observance Noted By Patrol Captain

Raleigh, May 8.—Definite improvement in the observance of the traffic laws on the part of drivers in the state is being noticed, Captain Charles Farmer of the state highway patrol, said today, especially in the rural sections. He believes the chances are good for another material drop in accident fatalities this year.

"During the last three months I have been doing more driving in all parts of the state than in several years and have had an excellent chance to observe drivers and driving habits," Capt. Farmer said. "As a result, I am convinced that as a whole, drivers are observing the traffic laws more carefully than at any time in the past and that we are making some real improvement in highway safety and in safety education."

The biggest improvement has

Crew Saved From Sinking Schooner

Hoquiam, Wash., May 8.—(AP)—Unofficial reports said 22 men of the grounded lumber schooner Trinidad of San Francisco had been rescued as a heavy sea pounded the ship to pieces three miles off Willapa harbor today.

The ship carried a crew of about 35 but coast guardsmen at the North Cove station on the harbor said they believed "all but one or two of the men had been saved."

Neither the Trinidad nor the two coast guard boats that went to the rescue had wireless.

First reports said the 22 men were taken to South Bend, Wash., near Raymond, where the schooner sailed from yesterday afternoon.

FIND SHORTAGE IN FARM HANDS

Situation Attributed To Federal Relief Programs

Raleigh, May 8.—(AP)—W. H. Rhodes, Department of Agriculture statistician said today a "primary factor affecting the progress on farms is the reported shortage of farm labor attributed by farmers to the government relief programs which offer more attractive wages than farmers can afford to pay."

"Growers indicate that despite the shortage of farm labor when workers leave relief jobs and are idle it is difficult to secure them for farm work at the prevailing wages," Rhodes said, reporting May farm conditions, based on information from state-federal crop reporters.

The late cold spring was seen as "a primary factor" curbing farm progress now and blue mold, Rhodes said, was the most important problem facing the tobacco growers.

However he said it was probably a shortage in plants would not seriously curb tobacco acreage.

been in drivers staying on the right side of the road and in the reduction of middle-of-the-road driving. Drivers are staying on the right side of the center lines better than ever before, with the exception of the tourists from other states—most of them still insist in straddling the center lines and in driving too fast. The drivers of out-of-state trucks also give us a good deal of trouble, as do some of the truck drivers right here at home. But the truck drivers are showing definite improvement, both in driving on the right side of the road and in driving at slower speeds. The campaign which the patrolmen waged against speeding trucks is having its effect.

The highway patrolmen are continuing their drive against drunk-driving and this will be still further intensified when the state

BRYAN SPEAKS TO KIWANIS

Local Teacher Ex- plains Vocational Guidance Work

T. C. Bryan, member of the High School faculty, delivered the featured talk at last night's meeting of the Kiwanis club, speaking on the subject of vocational guidance.

He declared one of the chief problems facing boys of today was that of choosing the proper vocation to follow through life. He called attention to the course being conducted at the school on the subject in an effort to give the youths first hand information on the various professions. He said that men in various businesses were brought before the class to discuss their respective professions and give the students benefit of their practical experience.

The meeting was presided over by President Berry Bostic, H. A. McDougle led the singing and Mrs. R. A. Tyson, club pianist, had charge of the musical program and introduced the entertainers.

Misses Elam Verna and Gluevira Hines, sisters of the Winterville community, entertained the club members with several selections of string music and vocal numbers.

E. L. Henderson, local Boy Scout leader, was introduced by H. H. Duncan, chairman of the Kiwanis committee in charge of the Wake Forest Glee club concert which was given for the benefit of Scouts. Mr. Henderson told of some of the work being done by the Scouts. Expenses of five youths at a summer encampment will be paid by the Kiwanis club.

Other guests included Bo Farley, manager of the Greenville baseball club, and R. L. Coleman.

Sweden has a surplus of about 20,000 men in the marriageable ages from 18 to 28 years, says Professor Sven B. Brisman, economist of the Stockholm College of Commerce.

Bennett Declares Blue Mold Serious

In referring to the blue mold situation in Pitt County, R. R. Bennett, county farm agent stated today that the tobacco disease in the section is critical, and adds that unless weather conditions are more favorable to plant life in the county during the next two weeks, the weed maldy might become more grave.

County agent Bennett has been surveying the county this week, and has received reports of plants having been stolen from farmers. Bennett adds that approximately 30 per cent of the tobacco plants have been set out in the county this week.

NAVAL AIRMEN CRASH AT SEA

Two Killed When Plane Falls During Fleet Maneuvers

Aboard Battleship Pennsylvania in Mid-Pacific Maneuvers, May 8.—(AP)—Two naval seamen were killed when their plane crashed and sank in the Pacific ocean during the United States fleet's war games, naval officers reported today.

Victims of the crash were Lieutenant John Francis Gillon, 40, pilot of the plane, and Glenn M. Beall, radio man, first class. Their plane crashed Friday off Hawaii while Gillon was returning to the aircraft carrier Saratoga, were other planes of his squadron were landing on the deck.

Lieut.-Commander Gillon's plane suddenly went into a power dive and plunged into the sea. Nearby destroyers rushed to the scene but the plane and the two men aboard had sunk.

Ninety-five-year-old James Filson, who lives near Fremont, O., has never seen a movie or trolley car. For ten years he hasn't left his farm home to go to town.

WORKING DAYS APPEAR AHEAD FOR CONGRESS

New Labor and Pow- er Legislation Now Contemplated

COURT WRANGLE IS IN COMMITTEE

Possibility that Other Problems Will Be Considered While Awaiting Bill

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—Contemplated proposals for new labor and power legislation, Democratic leaders said today, undoubtedly will bring Congress out of the period of inactivity into which it lapsed this week.

Officials learned a comprehensive administration power program would be on the way even before President Roosevelt returns next Friday.

White House advisors considered a number of alternatives on wage and hour, and child legislation to be discussed with Mr. Roosevelt for possible presentation to Congress.

Whether he would agree with suggestions such major issues be given precedence over the judiciary reorganization bill was not indicated.

Ten more days intervene before the senate committee votes on the court bill. Once that measure reaches the floor prolonged debate appears inevitable, unless a compromise is accepted.

Funeral services were conducted from Williams Funeral Home this morning at 10 o'clock by the Rev. R. P. Pittman, Free Will Baptist minister of Ayden. Interment was in the family cemetery at Ormondville by her late husband.

Mrs. Barfield moved to Henderson to make her home two years ago. Prior to that time she had lived in this county most of her life. The deceased was a member of a Greene County Free Will Baptist church.

Surviving are four sons, Thomas and William Barfield, Detroit, Mich.; Cleveland Barfield, Greenville, and Joseph Barfield, Indianapolis, Ind.; one daughter, Mrs. Clifton Clark, of Henderson; two sisters, Mrs. Martha Puryear, of Snow Hill, and Mrs. Flora Jones, Scotland Neck, N. C.

Farmers Continue To Receive Checks

R. R. Bennett, Pitt County farm agent, today announced that a total of $496,211.06 had been received thus far in check payments under the 1936 Soil Conservation program. This amount represents 1928 applications to be distributed among 5,310 payees. With 6,384 farmers in the county, nearly all check payments have been received.

Bennett points out that all farmers desiring to participate in the 1937 program should make out their work sheets before June 1. He added that all changes in ownership or leases should be recorded at his office immediately.

Guns used by the early Revolutionary soldiers were so inaccurate and short in range that in 1776 Benjamin Franklin advocated the army be armed with bows and arrows instead.

Senator Robert Rice Reynolds, who declared:

"The Echo of East Carolina Teachers College indeed is to be congratulated upon this outstanding honor that has come to it. The National Scholastic Press Association has chosen The Echo as one of the best college papers in the country, which is a rare and high honor of which the paper and the Greenville institution as well can be proud. I am glad to extend my congratulations and best wishes to The Echo upon this auspicious occasion in its history of achievement."

Joining Senator Reynolds, his colleague in the Upper House, Senator Josiah William Bailey said: "The High honor rating won by The Echo is cause for pride, not alone in Greenville but throughout North Carolina's United States

ALLOTMENT OF BIG SUM MADE

Rutherford County to Get Rural Elec- trification

Raleigh, May 8.—An allotment of $65,000 has just been made by the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington to a county cooperative association to be formed in Rutherford county, out of Forest City, for the construction of 53 miles of rural electric lines to serve approximately 330 customers, the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority has just learned in a bulletin from Washington, Chairman Dudley Bagley said today.

"We do not have many details concerning the Rutherford county cooperative, since its application for a loan from the REA in Washington was evidently sent direct to Washington instead of through the NCREA," Bagley said. "We do know, however, that a cooperative has been organized in the vicinity of Forest City and presume that this is the one referred to in the bulletin from Washington."

Some weeks ago Chairman Bagley received a letter from Administrator John M. Carmody of the REA in Washington, stating that from now on all applications for REA loans would be routed first through the offices of the NCREA for its approval before being passed on to Washington and that all applications pending there would be returned to Chairman Bagley for the approval of the North Carolina authority. But so far, none of these have been returned.

"We are very glad to know that the Rutherford county cooperative has been granted this allotment, as it will bring electric service to more than 300 farms which are now without this service," Chairman Bagley said. "It does not matter to us whether the cooperative send their application through the state authority or direct to Washington, so long as they can get the money they need to build lines. For our chief interest is in getting electricity to those who do not now have it."

ITALIANS BAN BRITISH PRESS FROM COUNTRY

Only Three English Papers Allowed to Enter Italy

NATION RECALLS LONDON SCRIBES

Action Regarded As Particularly Drastic Step Which Might Embitter Relations

Rome, May 8.—(AP)—All but three English newspapers were banned from Italy today and all Italian newspaper correspondents in London were ordered home.

These measures and a semi-official press boycott of next Wednesday's coronation of King George VI, in answer to what the Italian press has bitterly termed "a campaign of lies" in British newspapers about Italy, particularly in regard to Italian defeats in Spain.

They also replied to the British action in inviting a representative of Haile Selassie, conquered Ethiopian emperor, to the coronation.

An official press communique said the action was taken because of the attitude of nearly all the British press against Italy and Italy's armed forces.

The three British papers excepted from the ban are the Daily Mail, The Evening News and the Observer. The exclusion orders are effective until further notice.

Several London papers have been banned for several weeks because their liberal policy is considered hostile to the fascist state.

However, a general ban on almost the entire English press is regarded as a particularly drastic step which might lead to seriously embittered relations between the two countries.

Claims Errors In Story Relative To Grimesland Votes

Letter From Town Official Printed in Order to Correct Any Possible Inaccuracies in Report

A letter received from J. L. Outlaw, town clerk of Grimesland, calls attention to what he terms inaccuracies in a news story on the results of the city election in that place.

The news story was printed on information from a Grimesland resident and what was understood to be the facts.

While it is understood that politics at the recent election were unusually "warm," The Reflector is not interested beyond reporting the results and carried the news story with this idea. In order to correct any errors that may have appeared, the following letter is printed from Mr. Outlaw:

Since reading the report on the Grimesland election printed in your issue of Wednesday, I feel that some correction necessary.

Your reporter must have been ignorant of facts or had the disposition to make false impressions.

First, concerning Marion Heath being defeated by R. A. Fleming. Mr. Heath is not now or ever been an alderman nor was he in the race for any office.

As to the different individuals defeating some other individual, that cannot be, since we have no ward district, or primary system, only a general election, where as many persons as wish to do, can enter for any office, and only three Commissioners elected, those having the highest ballot is also true with the other offices, only one in each instance can be elected.

The following names were on the ticket for the different offices:

J. J. Eiks for Mayor elected without opposition. R. A. Fleming, C. H. Spiggle, F. A. Eiks, A. F. Fleming, Dan White, W. A. Hudson, Commissioners, the first three having the most votes were elected by a small majority.

For treasurer J. H. Clark and Mrs. Tucker Clark were elected. Constable or police, J. T. Lewis, J. L. Outlaw, Outlaw elected.

We feel sure no candidate in the race was so small that he was running to defeat some other candidate, but he felt that he wanted the office he asked for, from a public spirited standpoint, and if there was any other motive then he is not worthy of the position he ran for.

Women's Club Meeting.

The May meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club, which is the last meeting of the club year, was held Thursday afternoon at three-thirty o'clock at the club.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president of the club, presided. The meeting was opened with the singing of songs in union, including the club hymn, with Mrs. H. H. Settle accompanying at the piano. This was followed by the repeating of the collect.

A summary of the year's work of the club was read by Mrs. Moore, which represented splendid achievement in the interest of the life of the community.

The secretary, Mrs. Grady Bell, read the report of the nominating committee which was accepted by a motion made by Mrs. J. L. Fleming and seconded by Mrs. W. A. Ryan. The following officers were unanimously elected: President, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore; first vice-president, Mrs. S. M. Criss; second vice-president, Mrs. H. C. Sugar; treasurer, Mrs. W. I. Wooten; recording secretary, Mrs. George F. Hadley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Thomas Wahl; reporter, Mrs. W. C. Harris.

Department and committee chairmen include: Chairman of the Literature department, Miss Elizabeth Hyman; Public Welfare and Health, Mrs. Hortense F. Moore; Membership, Mrs. W. H. Woodard; House Committee, Mrs. O. G. Bailey; Junior sponsor, Mrs. C. C. Hilton; other department and committee chairmen will be elected later on in May at the final meeting of the several departments.

Mrs. C. S. Lough motion picture chairman was in charge of the program. Immediately following the business session, Mrs. Lough presented the year's work of her department in a few well-chosen sentences and introduced the first speaker on the program, Mr. Primrose Gomer of New Bern a student at the college who talked on the subject "New Development in the Movies."

Mr. Carpenter, full of his subject, which he gradually developed into a scientific treatise on the various aspects of sound, illustrated his talk with blackboard drawings, showing how sound pictures are made, how the voice is recorded on the film and brought out the fact that sound effects have just about been perfected in the movies.

Following this enlightening talk, Miss Gussie Kuyken, director of the college glee club, presented Misses Helen and Eoline Sawyer and Mary Hoover Boyd in two enjoyable trio numbers "The Star" and "Mistress Marguerite."

Miss Onie Cochrane of South Carolina senior at the college followed up Mr. Carpenter's subject with an educational and entertaining talk on "Technicolor," the new art that is being developed rapidly by science. Unlike sound, technicolor has not yet been perfected and Miss Cochrane was able to explain its complications, to show us the obstacles which stand in its way and then in the role of a prophet to state that technicolor is coming just as television is coming. Already the signs have appeared. In a few years she said, we will be asking ourselves the question: What would our pictures be without color—and answering it. What our pictures would be today without sound.

Closing this most delightful program, drawn entirely from the college community, Miss Lois Gorrell and her violin ensemble was presented in two charming numbers, "County Dance" by Beethoven, and "Tutu-metza" by Bizet.

Following the program, a social hour was enjoyed during which delicious ice-cold orange ade was served with the compliments of Carolina Dairy Products, Inc.—Reported.

Rhabe hit for the circuit in the eleventh frame at the College stadium yesterday afternoon in the first official home tilt of the season to give the Greenies a 7-6 win over the Ayden Aces. Kinston plays here Sunday.

Before starting the game, opening ceremonies were staged. Members of the Ayden and Greenville teams, respectively lined up on the field. H. H. Duncan introduced Harrison, Ayden manager, who introduced his players. Farley was next presented, and after his men had taken a bow, a brief talk was made by Mayor M. K. Blount.

Mayor Blount recalled his baseball activities thirty years ago, and pointed out that he had played with J. B. Eure, president of the Coastal Plain League. He added that the games usually resulted in a fight. Following a short talk by J. B. Eure, he introduced the umpires, Mayor Blount tossed in the first ball.

The visitors scored three runs in the first inning when Millman hit a double, and Corrado singled to bring in Millman. Faust Johnson then singled to bring in Corrado, and Joyner singled bringing in Johnson.

Greenville also scored in its half of the first when Rhabe singled and went to second on single by Muto. Farley then got a single and sent Rhabe to third. Rhabe and Muto were batted in by Latham and Winters.

Ayden scored again in the third inning when Melman walked, and Joyner doubled to bring Melman home. Remaining runs for the visitors came about in the sixth and eighth innings. In the sixth, Jirak doubled and Benson singled, bringing in Jirak.

In the ninth, Schlesgrass came in on a fly ball out to centerfield to tie the score 6-6, resulting in Ayden's final score.

Greenville cut loose in the fifth inning when Rhabe came in on hit by Farley—Schoolfield doubled and brought in Farley and Muto to score three runs. The locals came back in the sixth and scored on double by Jirak and a single by Benson to score Jirak, Rhabe's round-tripper in the eleventh frame ended the game.

Delaney pitched the entire route for the locals, while the visitors virtually used their whole pitching staff—Rhabe and Muto with two hits each, and Farley and Delaney with a single to their credit lead with the willow for the locals. For Ayden Joyner with two hits was most outstanding.

The next home game of the season will be played on Sunday afternoon of this week at the Third Street stadium.

BESS MANAGES KINSTON TEAM

Pilot One of Branch Rickey's Minor Starters

Branch Rickey, generalissimo of the St. Louis Cardinal farm system, is a wizard at spotting young players with managerial acumen. Seldom a year goes by that he does not pick out some veritable beginner and hand him the responsibilities of managing a ball club. He delights in watching them develop and vindicate his judgment.

This year, one of his starters is Pitcher Frank Krim Bess, who has been charged with the handling of the Kinston Eagles in the Coastal Plain League's debut under the colors of organized ball.

Bess has had just two seasons of professional experience, both of them spent with the Albany Travelers of the Georgia-Florida League. Yet Rickey was quick to discern the fact that he was managerial timber, and lost little time in giving Bess the opportunity to exercise his talents.

For his first year in the record books, Bess won 19 games and lost ten, helping the Travelers to win the first half of the 1935 race.

Last year he came back with a better record, copping 21 and losing 15 for a club that finished no better than third. Thirty-six decisions in one season means a heap of work for any pitcher, and 25 of the games he worked he went the full route. He was one of the few in the league who went over the century mark in strikeouts, whiffing 117 batters.

Each year he drew honorable mention on the league all-star team.

A native West Virginian, Bess hails from Bluefield, and is an alumnus of Marshall College, where he was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. A righthander in all his baseball chores, he should win a lot of games for his Eagles this summer, and he can play first base if the necessity arises.

Just 23 years old, the responsibility of developing potential Cardinals out of rookies is a big one, but shoulder the job.

New Bern Goose-Eggs The Kinston Eagles

New Bern-Kinston matched New Bern in hits—six for each team, but the Bears made their blows worth five runs whereas the Kinstonians couldn't score against the pitching of Lefty George Flora. The win gave New Bern a sweep of the season-opening series of two games with the neighboring Eagles.

Biggest bows in the attack of Manager Doc Smith's Bears were comers by Glenn Mullinax and Worliss Knowles. Mullinax delivered his round-tripper in the first verse, and this proved to be enough working margin for Flora as the south-paw scattered the Kinston hits and racked up nine strikeouts.

Knowles' home run came in the fourth inning, with one on New Bern tallied another pair of runs in the fifth to conclude scoring for the day.

Sweden, with a record of 154,000 tons of shipping launched during the last year, has supplanted the United States as the fifth ship-building nation of the world.

Grandma In The Box!

Because Mrs. E. J. Wilson, 96-year-old great grandmother, was born about the time baseball came into being, she was brought from her home at Commerce, Ga., to pitch the first ball in the opening game of the Northern Georgia league at Chieftoe. She is shown getting ready to cut loose a "fast one."

WILSON BEATS LOCAL OUTFIT

High School Team Is Defeated by Conference Leaders

The Wilson aggregation staged a 9-4 win over the Green Phantoms of Greenville high school Friday afternoon at the Third Street stadium here in a Class A Conference tilt.

Bissett, utility man for the visitors hit a home run in the third frame with one man on to score the first two runs of the game for Wilson. Other runs for Wilson were made in the fourth, seventh, eighth, and ninth innings, respectively.

The most spectacular element of the game took place in the eighth inning, when Harold Forbes stole home to score the third run of the game for the locals. In inning six, the Phantoms racked up two runs and another in the ninth.

Bissett took the mound for the visitors—pitching the entire game and striking out a total of 13 Phantoms. Howard Hodges tossed for the Phantoms. Carl Pierce with two hits and Harold Forbes with the same number lead at bat for the locals, while Davis, Bissett, and Benton with two hits each featured for the Wilsonians.

PIRATES GAIN IN STANDINGS

College Nine Victorious in Two Contests This Week

The E. C. T. C. Pirates won two victories this week, one of which was a 9-7 winner over the Naval Apprentice School at Newport News, Va., and the other a 7-2 victory over the baseball nine of the William and Mary Division at Norfolk.

In the game with the Middies, Harrington did the tossing for the Pirates and let his opponents by with only 10 hits which were well-scattered. Durwood Htowel lead at bat for the Teachers, with four hits for five times at the platter. During the game, the Pirates collected a total of 15 hits. Holland did the mound duty for the E. C. T. C. nine in the latter game, and held the losers to only two hits and striking out 15 men. Ayers caught for the Pirates and Baxter Ridenour lead E. C. T. C. with the willow with a triple and single, bringing in three runs. The Pirates obtained 10 hits throughout the game.

Williamston In Tie With Tarboro Team

Tarboro—Even two overtime innings failed to settle supremacy as Tarboro and Williamston battled to a 6-all tie in the first home game of the season for the locals. Darkness ended play after the 11th.

It looked for a time as if the locals were heading for a victory in their home bow—but they got too cocky when sporting a 6-2 lead. The home boys went to sleep in the sixth, with the result that the Martins scored three times on one scratch hit and a brace of errors.

Goldsboro Winner In Tilt With Snow Hill

Snow Hill—Rain kept down attendance at the Coastal Plain League's curtain-raiser in Snow Hill but the fans who came were treated to a closely contested, although greatly drawn-out, game. Goldsboro, won, 6 to 5 to sweep the two-game series. Intermittent drizzles fell during the game.

The locals offered a rally in the ninth inning but it was halted after two runs had been put over the plate. A single by Alexander, with one out, started the rally. Kroske then walked. The pair executed a double steal, and Alexander counted on Bistoff's infield out. Heard's single tallied Kroske, but the rally—and the game—ended when Zusi went out, Powell to Brannan.

Man About Manhattan

New York — Kicking around
Broadway show shops has its merits.
For one thing, almost invariably you wind up with some sort of story. Now this isn't headline news, but it is about Katharine Cornell, and anything with this lady's name to it is necessarily of abiding interest.

We were, Ray Henderson and I, discussing Miss Cornell and the gift for acting which has lifted her to the summit of the theatrical profession and kept her there, and he mentioned her eyelashes.

Take a look at the silhouette in this column. Almost never are lashes revealed in silhouettes. They do not come out that far. As a rule, they do not. But Miss Cornell's lashes do not conform to rules. As proof that it isn't merely a flourish of some artist's pen, this is a photograph of Miss Cornell — a photograph inked in exactly as turned out by the photographer.

The silhouette was so effective that it was used on the front cover of theatrical programs. Visiting editors and critics, noting this, and no doubt being charmed by Miss Cor-nell's personality, wrote in asking for copies of the silhouette. So, like that, without benefit of design or campaign, it has become one of the theater's most important trademarks.

Usually at this season Katharine Cornell is eyeing the shipping news longingly, anticipating her annual trip abroad. There will be no foreign travel this summer. She is going to fulfill a road engagement and then do nothing but lounge around home and rest. There will be a little side journey into New England, where she is building a summer home, but they will never be more than a sleeper jump from New York.

Home in the o'Connell interpretation of the word means a Sutton place manor and a fine summer cottage up the Hudson. For convenience's sake — that is, during theatrical engagements — she lives chiefly in Manhattan, but each Wednesday and Saturday she goes up to Sneed's Landing, where her cottage is located, to visit with Flush, the famed little spaniel who played so faithfully and brilliantly with her in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," and to give her dashhunds, Flo and Sonya, the benefits accruing from excursions in the country. They make the semi-weekly jaunts with her, but Flush, a true squire, will have none of the city life.

He remains at Sneed's Landing, waxing fat on chop steaks and dreaming away the hours between the visits of his adoring mistress.
As for the dashhunds — there's the most probable explanation:
(I told you there would be a story.)
Flo has just become a daddy, and the puppy of three little dashhunds.

Yell - Proof Bastile Stops Weekly Sprees

Salersville, Ky. (AP)—Magoffin county officials used to have their troubles with drunks.
They considered it a lark to tip-ple freely on Saturday nights, get arrested and spend the week-end sleeping it off.
They burned the bedding, shouted at passersby and had in-trusional fights.
Finally officials got sore.
They built a new jail—designed especially for week-end rowdies.
It's a small building, this new lockup, built of railroad ties.
It's too far from the road for the prisoners to yell at passersby.
Instead of windows, it has tiny ventilation slits near the floor. If a prisoner wants to see outside, he has to lean down and squint.
If he wants to keep, he takes the shelves that have been built around the walls instead of beds.
The drunks don't like to go to jail now. The result is most of them keep sober or out of reach of the arm of the law on Saturday nights.

In 1934 Russia bought 430 million rubles worth of German goods.
During the first 11 months of 1936, however, the Soviets spent only 370 million rubles for German goods and articles.

Brazil's Boss Smiles But 'Cracks Whip'

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Specialist)

New York — When (and if)
President Vargas repays President Roosevelt's visit in June, the American capital will have the unusual experience of meeting a real dictator—one fresh from an exhibition of strong-arm tactics.

Vargas just applied the big stick to one of his chief lieutenants—General Flores de Cunha, governor of the important state of Rio Grande do Sul. The general's sin was apparently preparing to support for the presidential election next year a candidate not approved by the boss. Vargas virtually stripped da Cunha of executive authority.

That's the way he works. Leader of a country which has the third

Vargas da Cunha

largest area in the world (following Russia and China), he is a man of action and few words. Few have learned his inner mind, which has been likened to an underground river, flowing to an unknown end.
Fifty-one, swarthy, smiling,
Vargas displays a velvety bland-ness which belies his dictatorial characteristics. Big in mentality, he is small of stature—barely reaching five feet four inches. He will look like a schoolboy beside the towering American President.
The Brazilian Napoleon came into power through an armed uprising in 1930. As dictatorial head of the provisional government established by the revolution, he wrought a new republic during four years of apprehension and social tumult marked with an unsuccessful counter-revolt in Sao Paulo.

He gave his country a fresh constitution, and was elected first constitutional president of the second republic. This constitution chartered a new social order, identified rather vaguely as "liberal democracy." As an indication of the trend, women won equal status with men, and workers were safeguarded against summary dismissal, long hours, low wages, and want in illness and old-age.

Vargas is credited with having promoted good feeling with foreign countries, especially the United States, Argentina and Uruguay.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: Attractive Jade Winslow is mysteriously shot to death on a wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunt. Everyone marooned on this island is suspect: Mike, who talked with Jade alone that night; the Skipper, his tall and sneaky younger aunt; Aunt Martha, stout and gruffish; Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the elderly butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook; Annie, the maid—even I who lent the group investigation. While searching the house, William and I are both knocked out by some unseen assailant.

Chapter 28 "Don't Watch The Stars"

The narrow corridor was in complete darkness. We made our way along it slowly with the aid of Mike's flashlight. In the main hall full lights still blazed. The silence was oppressive. As rapidly as my stiff legs and aching head would allow, we crossed to Gay's door, where Mike knocked sharply.

"Michael?" came the Skipper's voice from within.

"O.K., Skipper." And the door was opened.

Inside, the room was blue with cigarette smoke. M. Farrington was sitting in the big chair, one pudgy hand hanging on it to Higgins for dear life. William was sitting on the bed with Annie on one side of him and Cook on the other. The man looked as if his last call had sounded.

"Jim's all right," said Michael quickly. Just a little shaken up. How are you now, William?"

"Not so good, sir." The chauffeur was glaring at me accusingly. "It's a nasty thing to be hit on the head from behind—nasty."

Gay shoved a chair at me and I flopped into it, hardly aware of what I was doing.

"William," I said, "what's the big idea—knocking me out and tying me to your bed?"

Someone screamed—M. Farrington. I think—and William sprang to his feet, shaking with fury. "You dirty dog," he said and started for me.

Mike intercepted him. "William!" he shouted. "Are you crazy?" His left arm shot out, and William spun across the room. "We found Mr. Wells in your room just now—gagged and tied to the bed."

"What?" In spite of myself I pitted him. "Gagged and tied—?" His eyes were those of a suffering dog. "Then—who—hit—me?"

"I didn't!" I said. "What happened to you? Can't you see that time is important? What happened?"

He turned to me like a man waking in his sleep. "I went into my room like you told me. My voice was dazed, and you hit me when I went through the door. Only—you didn't—hit—me. Suddenly his voice rose in a bellow. "I'm getting out of here! I'll swim out. We're going to be murdered—murdered in the dark! Let me go!" Mike and I were hanging on to his arms.

"Let me go! I can't do no more! I—"

All the strength Mike had left went into that punch. William crumpled to the floor.

"Be quiet!" Cook was shaking Annie furiously. "Start any fuss now and I'll warm you proper!"

Over William's body, I stared at Michael's grim face. "It wasn't William, I guess," I said through dry lips.

"No. And the rest of us were all here."

The Skipper was kneeling beside William, and Gay was bringing water from the bathroom.

There is Someone Else

"Then," said Michael at last, "there is someone else in the house—someone none of us know about."

There seemed to be no other explanation. Which meant that no one in that room was a murderer. None of us had crept stealthily into the storm after a friend, and I could have whooped with relief.

William moaned and opened his eyes.

"Better?" asked the Skipper. "You were a bit excited and they quieted you."

"Here," Mike was oozing good spirits. "let me help you. Stretch out on the bed a while. You'll be all right."

We helped him to the bed. Annie, escaping from Cook and fluttering to his assistance, M. Farrington brought us back to the problem at hand.

"You really think there is someone else in the house?"

"Not a doubt in the world, Aunt Martha," said Michael. "And that makes everything all right."

"Does it?" the Farrington eyebrows went up. "Now I should say, Michael, that it makes everything very much wrong. You don't seriously intend to sit here idle while an unknown criminal roams the house—a criminal who has murdered one of your guests?"

M. Farrington had a knack for putting things unpleasantly. I had been considering doing just that, and so I could see from his face, had Michael. Compared to the sensation of suspecting your best friends of an unspeakable crime, the feeling of merely being pursued by a thing was a pleasurable one, Michael reasoned. "In this way, Aunt Martha," I ventured. "We can't do much in the dark, and he can't get away. And—er—well, we're a little done up. I think the most sensible thing for us to do is to make ourselves as comfortable as possible right here until morning."

M. Farrington needed no words to make you feel like something that crawls. The Skipper came to my rescue.

"The most sensible thing any of us can do right now is to eat. Do any of you realize what time it is?"

Incredulously we compared watches. It was after one o'clock.

"Twelve hours since lunch," continued the Skipper. "I propose a kitchen delegation to handle the crisis."

There followed something of an argument. The natural thing was to send the servants all downstairs together. There were four of them, William in no worse condition than I was and not half so bad as Michael. Higgins still had his revolver. But never go back into that kitchen, not for all the gold in China, as she put it.

The Skipper had no objections to talking Cook's place, but Higgins had never heard of such a thing and so assured us. Annie agreed with him and William agreed with Annie. M. Farrington, quite herself again, settled it.

"Cook," she said sternly, "stop your nonsense. Naturally you will go down to the kitchen. The others will all be with you. There is absolutely no danger. In fact, with sudden decision, I think the rest of us would be more comfortable in the library."

Gay, who had never really seen M. Farrington in action, stared open-mouthed. "But," she objected, "there's someone down there, I mean—"

M. Farrington smiled thinly. "Of course there is someone down there, my dear. Therefore we shall drive him upstairs where all the doors and windows are locked and he can neither do any damage nor escape."

"Well, then, come along with you, Higgins," said Cook. It was settled.

Giving 'Him' A Chance

WE GAINED the library without incident. Wherever our prowler might be, he was not in the halls, the dining room, the library, or—to judge by the silence from the other end of the house—the servants' quarters. Chaos of our own making was the only thing that confronted us in the library. M. Farrington, switching on the dining room lights, stood the connecting door ajar.

"Sit down, Barbara," she ordered, seating herself on the divan. "James, make up a fire. Michael, you and Grace might put some of these books back where they belong."

After the high melodrama of the last 24 hours, I thoroughly enjoyed that reconstruction program. I fell to work on the fire eagerly, while Gay mounted the ladder and put up the books Michael handed her. The Skipper stood in the dining room doorway, smoking, her back toward us, and M. Farrington's incessant prattle filled me with long lost, delightful laughter.

"This," she commenced in her best state dinner manner, "is what comes of their allowing such unemployment to continue. People are not safe in their beds. What I am to say to Judith's mother I do not know. It is the fault of the system. No one is safe anywhere. Michael, don't put Schiller on the top shelf. Barbara, I do wish you would sit down."

"Why?" said the Skipper brusquely, without turning.

"Because it is primarily important that no one should watch that front staircase." Everyone turned at that. The man cannot go up the back way because of the servants. If he is not allowed to go up the front way, we shall have him quite near us. Aside from the fact that the thought is unpleasant, it will be more difficult to trap him down here."

"I'll be damned!" said Michael softly. The Skipper sat down.

"My only fear," continued the amazing old lady, "is that the servants may interrupt him."

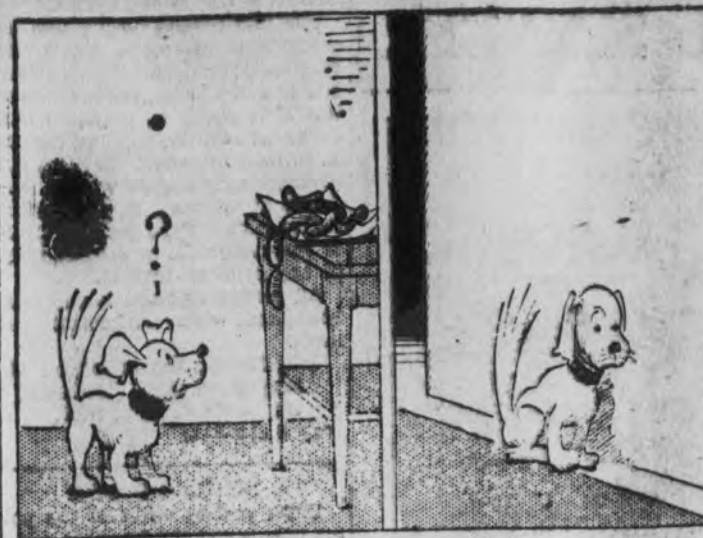

But the servants didn't. It was fully 20 minutes before the rattle of silver announced the arrival of Higgins and Annie in the dining room. They had seen no one, and none of them had ventured into the hall. Incredible as it seemed after such an experience, we were all ravenous. I think that even M. Farrington forgot to make conversation. In any case, no one listened to find out. At the Skipper's suggestion, Higgins retired in search of his own supper, and we were left to eat in peace.

But food, far from reviving us, produced a lethargy of contentment. I was struggling with a cup of black coffee when I realized with a start that we had all been drowsing at the table and that M. Farrington's pressing the bell and the subsequent appearance of Higgins were the only things that saved us from lapsing into a comatose state.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Rabbin Coon

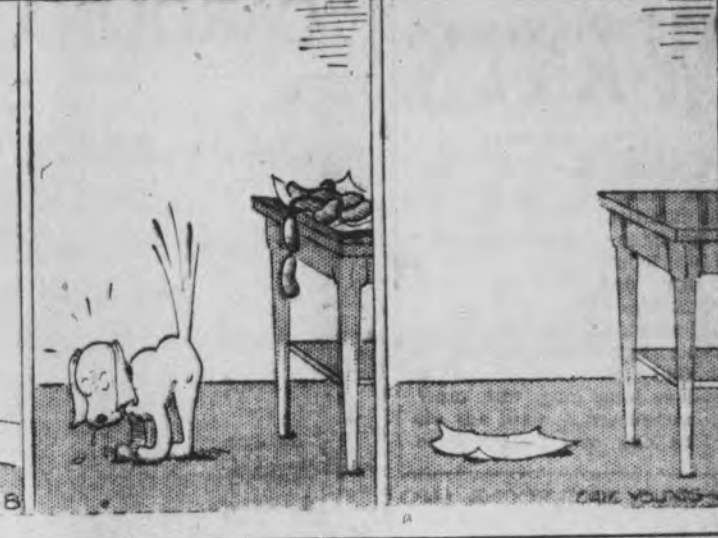

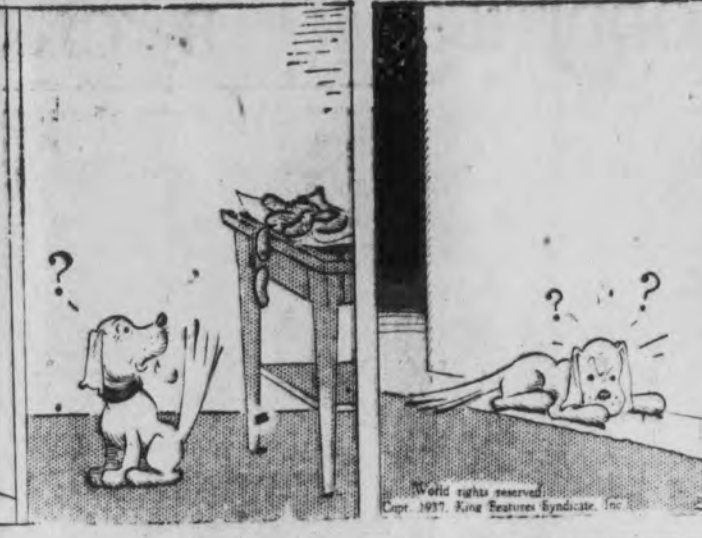

Hollywood—Unreel parade: Wallace Smith, author-artist-scenarist who died recently, did some fine work but deserves to be remembered also as the spontaneous quipper off this classic of cynicism, uttered when the flower of the world's athletes was in bloom in Los Angeles: "The Olympics? Just 2,000 young men in search of a rupture!"

The Hays office checks the still pictures as well as the moving ones for contaminatory content, and is conscientious about it. The other day it returned a still of a Pretty Young Thing with the notation that the P. Y. T. was all right, but that a nude statue in the background would have to be retouched. The Greeks apparently were all wrong.

And a new campaign is on, from the same headquarters, against the movie scenes in which intoxicants are consumed unnecessarily and promiscuously. . . . If a cocktail is essential to the plot, it's all right, but a cocktail poured just to give an actor something to do with his hands gets the brown. . . . Character most like'y to be hard hit by the veto is bibulous Nick Charles who (in the person of William Powell) toives murder mysterious between and during drinks. . . . But Nick already has an "out," for "After the Train Man" left him an expectant father. . . . and what could be sweeter than a climb on the wagon for the bairn's sake?

ONE PAIR OF SHOES LASTS MAN 24 YEARS

Murray Ky. (AP) — Frank Beaman has worn the same pair of shoes continuously for 24 years. Years ago, when he had to be on his feet quite a bit with his milk route, he had steel plates made to fit the soles of his shoes. He gives the plates credit for the shoes' longevity. Beaman also has a pair of over-shoes — youngsters, practically — that he has worn for 20 years.

BATHROOM NOW MORE COLORFUL THAN KITCHEN

Washington (AP) — It takes seven colors to meet the ordinary demands of the house-wife out shopping for the bath-room, and only six to satisfy the lady buying gadgets for the kitchen.

The Bureau of Standards and the National Retail Dry Goods Association have balled the bathroom-kitchen rainbow down to this.

They did it because there have been so many complaints over such predicaments as that of the lady who bought a green shaving mirror and then couldn't find a green shower curtain to match. And then there's the trouble of matching up blue mixing bowls and blue-handled egg-beaters.

The seven most desired bathroom colors are: white, bath green, orchid, ivory, maize, bath blue and royal blue.

The six most popular kitchen shades are: white, kitchen green, ivory, delphinium blue, royal blue and red.

FRENCH NAVY TESTS INCENDIARY BOMBS

Cherbourg (AP) — Experiments designed to show that fires caused by incendiary bombs cannot be extinguished by any known method have been carried out at the naval arsenal here.

Protection against fire was accorded by coverings of cement, sand, plaster, milk of lime, the experiments revealed.

All efforts of firemen to put out the conflagration of a woodshed hit by incendiary bombs were in vain.

But incendiary bombs generating a heat of 1,800 degrees Centigrade had no effect when dropped on a shed with a covering of plaster and milk of lime on its roof.

Cottonseed meal may be fed to cows without injury, says A. H. Kuhlman, Oklahoma, A. and M. College dairy specialist, if proper mineral and vitamin supplies are included in the ration.

State Convention Of Druggists Set To Start Monday

Finishing Touches Being Made On Preparations for Entertainment of Upwards of $1,000

Raleigh, May 8.—Finishing touches are being put on the preparations here today for the entertainment of more than 1,000 druggists who are expected to start arriving Monday for the fifty-eighth annual convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association and its affiliated bodies.

The general committee on arrangements is headed by Phil D. Gattis, while Robert I. Crumley is chairman of the entertainment committee and indications are that this convention is not only going to be the largest but the most interesting held in years. It is being pointed out that the state pharmaceutical association was organized in Raleigh 58 years ago. Two of the charter members of the association are still living and will be present. They are Frank W. Hancock of Oxford, father of Congressman Frank Hancock, and E. V. Zoeller of Tarboro. Mr. Hancock is secretary - treasurer of the state board of pharmacy.

Registration will start Monday morning, with headquarters in the Sir Walter Hotel, with a meeting of the executive committee set for 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. The first general session will be at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Virginia Dare ballroom of the Sir Walter, at which Congressman Harold D. Cooley will be the principal speaker. This session will be followed by dance for the convention delegates, sponsored by the druggists of Raleigh.

In addition to the regular business sessions and meetings which will continue throughout Tuesday and Wednesday, many social affairs have been planned for both the men and women attending the convention. The ladies attending the convention will be the guests of Mrs. Clyde R. Hoey at a tea in the executive mansion Tuesday afternoon, while Governor Hoey has been asked to attend the smoker for the men arranged by the entertainment committee for the same hour. At six o'clock the delegates to the convention will be the guests of the W. H. King Drug Co., at a barbecue supper in the municipal auditorium. Wednesday night at 7:30 the delegates will be the guests of traveling men's auxiliary at a buffet supper and floor show in the auditorium. A second dance will be given Tuesday night, following the barbecue, by the Capidine Chemical Co. of Raleigh.

Duke Selects Men For Finals Talks

Durham, May 8.—Sir Willmott Lewis, since 1920 Washington correspondent of the London Times, and Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York, will be Duke university's commencement speaker and preacher. Duke's final program will be held June 5-7. Few journalists have had a more brilliant career than Sir Willmott. As a foreign correspondent for Eng-

Improved Law Observance NOTED BY PATROL CAPTAIN

(Continued From One) Highway patrol radio stations get in operation, since it will then be much easier to "spot" drunken drivers and to send patrolmen to bring them in, Capt. Farmer said. For as soon as a drunken driver is reported, a description of the driver, car and approximate location will immediately be broadcast and the patrolman nearest to the location ordered to find him and arrest him. "We are going to make it increasingly unhealthy for the drunken drivers in North Carolina," Capt. Farmer said.

To all who participated in making this winner with the issuance of a fine publication throughout the academic year I send my best greetings and congratulations. Representing President Roosevelt's Cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, native Carolinian added: "As a native Carolinian I am delighted over the outstanding recognition accorded The Teco Echo of East Carolina Teachers College. The Teco Echo, one of the South's leading college papers, performed fine work to win this significant recognition and will undoubtedly contin-

I congratulate the editors, the staff and all who aided in bringing this honor to The Teco Echo. Congressman Lindsay Carter Warren of the Greenville-area district was more than happy to learn that a paper right in his own district had won an honor award. Recalling he had "fought battles for East Carolina Teachers College in the State Legislature," Congressman Warren added: "The award of the National Scholastic Press Association to The Teco Echo is more than pleasing. I am happy to congratulate The Teco Echo published at that grand institution, the East Carolina Teachers College, right in my own district. The Teco Echo editors, staff and faculty advisors have done fine work and more than deserving of felicitations. The leading publisher-Senator on Capitol Hill, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, said: "The National Scholastic Press Association is au-
