OTHER UNIONS MAY SUPPORT MOVIE STRIKE

Aid Sought From Powerful Front Groups

PLOT REVEALED TO BURN STUDIO

Leader Declares "Out- side Influence" Pro- posed Arson Plot to Destroy MGM Plant

Hollywood, Calif., May 12.—(AP)—Striking movie craftsmen requested support today from two powerful water front unions in a boycott of other unions whose members pass through studio picket lines.

The Federated Motion Picture Crafts asked the Maritime Federation of the Pacific and the International Longshoremen's association for help in the crafts fight for union recognition and a closed shop.

If the maritime unions comply they will refuse to load location-bound ships with film company equipment and personnel.

J. R. Robinson, in command of the P. M. P. C. picket lines, reported striking pickets had spurned a proposal by "outside influences" to participate in an arson plot against the Metro-Goldwyn Mayer studio. He said several strangers approached pickets with the suggestion that MGM lumber be drenched with gasoline and ignited.

"Unfortunately the pickets let the strangers get away," Robinson said. He also reported a striker's car was fired on by gunmen who escaped. The striker, Ernest Hoffman, was not hurt.

Police later arrested three laborers at Twenty Century-Fox studios and jailed them on suspicion of assisting with a deadly weapon. They were Raymond Keith, 30, Harold E. Merritt, 34, and William Fitzgerald, 21.

Many Cases Tried At Court Session In County Tuesday

Charges Involving Whiskey, Assault and Traffic Laws disposed of at Weekly Term

The weekly session of Pitt county court was completed yesterday afternoon after many cases had been disposed of in morning and afternoon hearings.

Cleveland Mills entered a plea of guilty to driving to the left of the center of the highway and was ordered to pay $75 to the prosecuting witness for property damages and also to pay the court costs. The judgment provided that the defendant's driving license be revoked until the $75 is paid.

Nora White, local Negro woman, was tried for operating a disorderly house, but prayer for judgment was continued.

Ada Jones, Lewis Bullock and Willie Jones were convicted of possessing liquor for sale. Judgment was continued for two years as to Willie Jones. Ada Jones was ordered to pay the costs and Bullock was given a four months' sentence. The defendants appealed.

David Clayton was fined $25, costs to be deducted and ordered to pay for property damages incurred by the prosecuting witness on a charge of driving careless and reckless.

Amos Harris was given four months on the roads for assault with a deadly weapon. The sentence was suspended upon condition he pay the court costs, a doctor's bill incurred by his wife as a result of the attack and upon further provision that he remain of good behavior for two years.

Nine Little Pups Mothered By Hen

Mrs. J. D. Copeland today related how a hen on her farm near Greenville on route 20 adopted nine little puppies and guarded over them until they were taken from her and sold.

Mrs. Copeland said that the hen took care of the pups for about six weeks, clucking to them just as if they were small chicks. She said the pups ate up the eggs which the hen was hatching and the fowl evidently thought she had hatched all the pups and proceeded to take care of them.

She took several pictures showing the hen huddling the pups around her and others showing her scratching and clucking to them. The only times the pups saw their real mother, she said, was when she would go into the tobacco furnace and feed them, at which times the hen would look on apparently in amazement.

Suppression of Vice was founded in 1873 by Anthony Comstock.

WOULD RECALL CRASH BLAMED WILLIAM DODD ON EXPLOSION

Opponents of Court Bill Make Such a Suggestion

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—Two senators' opponents of the Roosevelt court bill today Ambassador William Dodd from his Berlin post.

Commenting on Dodd's letter to Senators Glass (D. Va.) and Bulkley (D. Ohio) urging support of the court reorganization bill because of a "dictatorship" threat to the United States, Senator Van Nuys (D. Ind.) said:

"The ambassador has overstepped the boundaries of his official position somewhat. His letter was ill timed, ill advised, unsolicited and out of keeping with his function as ambassador."

If Dodd "continues" to make such charges, Nuys added, he will ask through the State Department that the ambassador be "invited back here to appear before the Senate Judiciary or Foreign Relations committee."

Senator King (D. Utah) said Dodd's letter indicated he had become "impaired with Fascism" and had shown he was "not a proper man to represent this country in Germany."

Dodd's letter warned of an American billiard, who, he said, was prepared to "control" a "dictatorship" in this country.

LEARNS TO TOSS JAVELIN AT UNIVERSITY ALABAMA

University, Ala. (AP)—Hal Standley, the University of Alabama's famous javelin tesser, was a star track athlete in high school. But he never threw the javelin until he came to the Capital.

As a freshman he hurled the spear 191 feet. This season he has hurled it more than 200 feet in practice.

Standley, who comes from Pensacola, Fla., is a good tennis player. In high school he ran the 100-yard dash, the 220, the 440 and pushed the shot.

May Seek WPA Allotment To Erect Sidewalks Here

Mayor M. K. Blount today called attention to the possibility of securing a WPA project here whereby property owners could secure financial aid in erecting sidewalks in front of their homes.

In order that surveys can be made and an appropriation request put in proper form, Mayor Blount asked all property owners interested in such a project to get in touch with the city clerk's office and advise officials as to the location and the walk to be included.

Mayor Blount made it plain that there was no certainty of securing such a project, but explained that if local citizens would cooperate with the city efforts could be made to get such an appropriation. He called attention to the fact that other towns and cities are securing aid for similar projects.

Should the WPA provide such help, it is understood that labor would be furnished. This also would help the unemployment situation in the city.

Should the city so decide it could

HOUSE ENACTS AMENDED BILL RETAIN CAMPS

Roosevelt Recommendation flatly Denied by Branch

DISPUTE RAGES ON COURT BILL

Committee Continues To Study Various Compromise Suggest- ions in Controversy

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—The House firmly and finally rejected today President Roosevelt's recommendation for a 17-cent CCC. It passed and sent to the Senate instead a bill to extend the Civilian Conservation Corps for two years only. The bill passed on a roll call vote, 385 to 7.

Administration leaders made no effort to reverse the ballot, by which an insurgent membership voted overwhelmingly yesterday to retain the agency on a temporary basis.

Today's action was a mere formality, ratifying the decision reached yesterday.

Meanwhile Ambassador William Dodd became a target for criticism for some opponents of the Roosevelt court bill because of a letter he wrote urging two senators to support the measure.

While this latest tempest over the court bill raged on, the Senate Judiciary committee continued its study of various compromise measures suggested for the most part by opponents of the Roosevelt bill who nevertheless claim they would like to see some change made in the set-up of the Supreme court.

Questions of future legislation entered into the hearings of the Senate Interstate Commerce committee on proposed child labor laws.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), said he "hoped" the court would reverse its decision holding a federal child labor act invalid, but he did not believe it was likely to do so.

The Senate committee investigating railway financing, heard Chas. O'Neil, president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, testify the road was "in great haste" to borrow money back in 1931 and tried to get a relaxation of CCC rules to speed up the process to meet $5,000,000 worth of bills.

Economy issues came up in the Senate where an appropriation to start work on a new TVA dam was under consideration. The appropriation would total $2,700,000.

Camp officials are anxious that the county's quota be filled at once. At the present there are several vacancies and any young man between the ages of 17 and 25 anxious to attend camp this summer with no expense should get in touch with Dr. Ward, who is serving with Dr. J. M. Barrett as enrolling agent.

Boys who will attend the camp will receive a number of advantages and at the same time be provided with a vacation. Transportation is paid to and from camp for all young men accepted. The procurement campaign will close soon and Dr. Ward urged all young men interested to act at once.

EFFORTS FAIL EXTORT MONEY

Miss Pearl Lautares Of This City Inten- ded Victim

An attempt to extort $15,000 from Miss Pearl Lautares, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Lautares of this city and a member of the faculty of the Sanford high school, came to light yesterday with the announcement of the arrest of three 16-year-old youths charged with the plot.

Sanford officers are holding Wilbur Foushee, George Daniels and Ellis Hight pending the arrival there of a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent.

The youths were placed under arrest a few days ago following the receipt by Miss Lautares of a note demanding that she leave $15,000 on a fire alarm box at the corner of Third street and Maple avenue last Wednesday night. The note, which bore the customary skull and cross bones, was signed "Squaler."

Miss Lautares turned the note over to the school authorities and police officers. Sheriff Glenn Buchanan and Police Officer Doyle Wickler watched the designated fire alarm box for some hours on the specified night but no one appeared.

The next day a postal card was mailed to Miss Lautares which read: "You double crossed us." However, before the card reached Miss Lautares, Chief of Police Marvin J. Thomas and Officer Paul Watson appeared at the school building and placed the three boys under arrest.

At first the youths denied any knowledge of the plot but according to the police, one confessed and the other admitted guilt. It is understood that each one of the boys wrote a portion of the note.

BLAMES COURT FOR PROBLEMS

Chester Davis De- clares Farm Situa- tion Not Settled

Clemson, S. C., May 12.—(AP)—Chester Davis, member of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, told a gathering of farm leaders here today the Supreme Court in its majority opinion invalidating the Agriculture Adjustment Act "abandoned the philosophy under which earlier problems had been met and which made our constitution a vital guide for a growing nation."

In an address at the dedication of a $400,000 agriculture building at Clemson College, the former AAA administrator asserted: "The questions considered in the AAA case have not been settled yet."

He termed the decision astounding and an "ante-bellum" decision.

The building was dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. W. W. Lang, for 22 years director of the South Carolina extension service and one of the drafters of the agricultural act.

After referring repeatedly to swiftly changing conditions, Davis declared "the man is an optimist who believes our conditions problems are settled or can be settled without continued action by the people through their government, perhaps along unprecedented lines."

"It is an hour of need for national defense," he said as he criticized foreign countries, owing money to the United States.

Tarboro was selected for the 1938 convention city.

N. C. Liquor Board Plans War Against Bootleggers

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, May 12.—The new state liquor board has already declared war on the bootleggers and is planning to keep a close check on those selling wine to see that they observe the law, Chairman Cutler Moore said today.

Instructions are being sent out to every one of the 18 county liquor boards already in existence to redouble their efforts to stamp out bootlegging, while those county boards which are not now enforcing any special liquor law enforcement agents are being told to do so immediately.

The sheriffs in all these counties are also being asked to cooperate with the county liquor control boards in their drive to eradicate bootlegging.

"We are trying to impress upon the county control boards that the primary objective of the new liquor law is the control of the liquor traffic and the eradication of bootlegging and not the gathering in of profits from the sale of liquor," Moore said.

The new law provides that the county boards shall use not less than 5 per cent of the profits and as much as 10 per cent for enforcement purposes — and we are going to see to it that they do this. We know that these counties can virtually eradicate bootlegging if the proper kind of enforcement officers and get the cooperation of the sheriffs and their deputies. We are confident that if this is done, conditions will be much better than they are in the so-called dry counties."

The state liquor board has already decided to employ three special investigators and inspectors at once, who will check up on conditions in the counties having liquor stores and on their enforcement officers, Moore said. The number of special investigators and inspectors will be increased from time to time if and when necessary. These investigators will also have authority

PLEDGES SELF TO JUST RULE

Not a Single Visible Flaw in Coronation Ceremonies Witnessed by 7,500 Peers, Peeresses, Foreign Rulers, Diplomats And Statesmen

London, May 12.—(AP)—The empire that no night can darken crowned and consecrated its ruler, George VI, and his Scottish queen, Elizabeth today in a solemn and beautiful ritual from down the proud centuries.

Peak of the greatest show in a thousand years the Archbishop of Canterbury, venerable, erect, gave to the new king the crown that symbolizes the rule of 500,000,000 souls in almost a quarter of the earth.

That was at 12:30 p. m., within the old gray walls of Westminster Abbey.

Across the channel at Chateau de Candé in France in the writing room of the suite of Edward of Windsor, the man whose abdication made George VI, king listened by the side of Wallis Warfield Simpson to a broadcast of the ritual.

Then just at the peak of solemn Abbey consecration his friends disclosed he and Mrs. Simpson have delayed their marriage until early June because the royal family, desiring a public wedding, has disagreed with the British government, which wants a strictly private one.

Speaking slowly and clearly with no hint of impediment, the grave eyed monarch in the Abbey accepted the throne of Britain and pledged himself to a just and honest rule.

The two hour ceremony was climaxed when the 41-year-old sovereign was lifted reverently to the throne in the sight of 7,500 peers and peeresses, foreign rulers, diplomats and statesmen from all over the world.

Outside the Abbey a million or more cheered.

Guns in the tower of London boomed.

Church bells pealed to signal that the priceless jeweled crown at St. Edward had been placed on the brow of George VI.

Queen Elizabeth then was anointed and crowned in a ceremony immediately after the coronation of the king.

Senator Reynolds Heard At Meet Of Legion Auxiliary

United States Senator From North Carolina Declares National De- fense Greatest Question

Wilson, May 12.—(AP)—United States Senator Robert Reynolds said today national defense was "America's greatest question" in a speech lauding the American Legion and auxiliary for a program promoting this defense.

He spoke to about 500 delegates to the first area conference of the North Carolina department of the woman's auxiliary of the American Legion.

His speech followed that of Mrs. C. P. Andrews of Charlotte, states president, who called on the women of North Carolina "to join other women of our nation for a united prayer for peace."

Reynolds said the United States, because of changed conditions within in the last 30 odd years, was no longer isolated, but was the "front or back door of every nation on earth today."

"It is an hour of need for national defense," he said as he criticized foreign countries, owing money to the United States.

Tarboro was selected for the 1938 convention city.

Miss Manning was appealing in a charming frock of blue chiffon, wearing a corsage of pink roses.

Pay envelopes of less than $1,000 a year are listed for 23,087 of the 396,513 employes reported. A total of 6,291 earned $5,000 or more and 89 earned $10,000 upward.

Irate Farmer 'Skunks' Legislators
Des Moines, Ia. (AP)—Legislators squirmed, sniffed and looked at one another—yes, there was a skunk somewhere in the statehouse.

A search proved their suspicions correct. There was a dead one in a paper bag at the west entrance. The statehouse custodian removed it.

About that time an irate farmer telephoned newspapers saying he had left the skunk to emphasize his utter disgust of the senate's bill placing a closed season on skunks in his county. He said the dead skunk was one which broke into his chicken yard and killed eight pheasants and three chickens.

Lines Spread To All Areas

Spidery Web is Spun Over the State By Electric Wires

Raleigh, May 12.—Spidery webs of rural electric lines spun in increasing numbers each day are bringing many city comforts and conveniences within the grasp of North Carolina's farm dwellers.

According to a survey made by the Edison Electric Institute, only 3.6 per cent of the farms in this state were electrified on July 1, 1935, the date rural electrification work was started.

However, declared David S. Weaver, extension agricultural engineer at State College, the same survey shows that at the end of last year 8.2 per cent of North Carolina's farm homes had electricity, an increase of 4.6 per cent.

Complete figures to April 1, 1937 from Dudley Bagley, chairman of the State Rural Electrification Authority, indicate that a great amount of work has been done since the beginning of this year.

Since July 1, 1935 a total of 3,381.31 miles of rural power lines have been constructed, serving 18,511 customers; 544.85 miles are under construction, to serve 2,986 families; and 1,943.96 miles have been authorized, these lines to furnish power to 10,750 farm homes.

The Edison survey showed only two other southern states ahead of North Carolina in the number of miles of rural lines—Virginia and Florida. Later figures indicate that work in this state has been progressing at a faster rate than either of the above states.

Three main groups are responsible for the construction of rural lines—public utilities, municipalities and the Federal REA, Weaver declared.

Trees Best Crop For Some Marginal Acres

Raleigh, May 12.—Black locust is by no means a panacea for our agricultural ills but the trees make the best crop for some marginal acres.

That is what Harold P. Hagge, forester of the Soil Conservation Service at Wadesboro, says about planting black locust on land that is not extremely eroded but which will barely pay its way in corn and cotton production.

Hagge reported that several farmers in the Brown Creek erosion control area had agreed to plant black locust seedlings on two or three acres of their poor crop land and cultivate it in a row crop or in cowpeas for one or two years.

The trees are planted four feet apart in rows six feet wide, making 1800 trees to the acre and allowing space for two rows of corn or cotton between the tree rows.

In ten years, according to Hagge's estimate, every other tree can be cut for fence post. At an average price of 20 cents apiece the farmer would get an income of $100 to the acre, with one-half the trees remaining on the field. When ten years later the other trees are cut, each should produce two posts, which at 20 cents would be worth $300.

Besides the income derived from the sale of fence posts—on land that would not earn a profit in corn or cotton—the soil is improved by the addition of nitrogen and humus by the locust trees, Hagge said.

"We recommend this plan," he concluded, "to the man who has land to spare and who either needs fence posts for home use or who sees a further market for them. Of all trees used in this state for fence posts—the cedar, mulberry, oak and locust—the locust is by far the best because of its rapid growth and durability. Locust fence posts have been known to last 100 years. On the farms of George W. Little, Wade Flake, E. A. Drew, A. J. Robinson and J. W. McRae and on the Crum estate in Anson county, small two and three acre locust plantations are fitting well into the farm program."

Zane Grey was a dentist and pulled teeth for six years before turning to western literature for a living.

Former Followers of Candidate Say Little, Think Plenty

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 11.—The former followers of Lieutenant Governor A. S. Graham are not talking much these days, but they are doing a lot of thinking—nor are they so very happy about the way they have been going, according to intimates heard here and there.

For it is no secret that so far the Graham supporters have received just about as much consideration from Governor Clyde R. Hoey as have the former McDonald supporters—which is none. All of which is not sitting so well with the thousands of Graham supporters who "went down the line" for Hoey in the second primary and who in the opinion of many think Hoey was from being defeated by McDonald.

There is a position to know maintain that after the first primary, the Hoey leaders went to Graham's managers and promised that if they would go along with Hoey and swing the Graham vote to Hoey, that the axe would be buried and there would be nothing but love and kisses between the Hoey and Graham camps from then on.

It is no secret now, of course, that a very large portion of the vote Graham received in the first primary went to Hoey in the second and many observers are still convinced that Governor Hoey would not today be Governor if Sandy Graham had not also been a candidate and thus prevented the "middle of the road" faction in the party from going over to McDonald in the first primary. Having refused to follow McDonald in the first primary it was then natural that a majority of the Graham supporters would go with Hoey rather than McDonald in the second primary, with the result that Hoey won the nomination, they point out.

But so far the Graham supporters have received an icy shoulder from the Hoey administration. Not a single former Graham supporter has so far been appointed to anything resembling an important state office or gotten any where near the patronage pie counter with the single exception of F. Webb Williams who was named one of the part-time members of the state liquor board. Most observers maintain that Williams would have been named chairman but for the fact he voted for Graham in the first primary.

There is nothing the Graham people can do about it, of course. But they may do something about it in 1940.

Farmers Of State Eat Barbecue And Hear Congressman

Nearly 2,500 Farmers and Farm Women Guests of North Carolina Cotton Co-op Association

Raleigh, May 11.—Farm agents of the State College Extension Service begin gathering at Manteo tomorrow for their spring conference of reviewing and planning work.

Because of limited accommodations, the agents will be divided into four groups. The first group will register tomorrow and leave May 16; the second group enters May 16 and leaves May 19; the third group arrives May 19 and leaves May 23; and the final group registers May 23 and adjourns May 26.

No attempt has been made to classify the agents by districts, declared John W. Goodman of State College, who is in charge of arrangements, each group representing every section of the State.

Two of the chief topics of discussion for each of the groups will be the Agricultural Conservation program, and soil erosion work, Goodman said. National as well as state officials will go over the two programs with the agents.

Other topics of discussion will be the Farm Credit Administration and the newly enacted national seed law.

Included among the speakers will be Dr. C. W. Warburton, director of extension work for the U. S. Department of Agriculture; Harry L. Brown, newly appointed Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; W. G. Finn and J. E. Thigpen of the AAA; and C. A. Sheffield, formerly of State College and now assistant regional director for the Extension Service in the southern states.

"A full program has been prepared," Goodman stated, "and we are expecting those attending to gain new ideas for the vigorous prosecution of their work during the year."

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills attractive Jude Blinshop on a wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunt. Everyone marooned on this island is suspect: Mike, who saw Jude alone that night; the Skipper, his tall and tweedy younger aunt; Aunt Martha, stout and prudish; Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the elderly butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook; Annie, the maid—even I, Mike's closest friend. We believe an outsider, perhaps a maniac, is loose in the house. The dull dawn of the second day finds us nerve-taut and exhausted from futile searching.

Chapter 23 Horror in Jude's Room

IN THE game room Michael stood at a window, his back stiff. On a bench in front of the fireplace with her back toward him, Gay was persistently bouncing a table tennis ball. The atmosphere was arctic.

"It's daylight," I announced triumphantly. "How cozy," from the window. No response from the bench.

I fumbled through the mess of keys, selected theirs, and handed them out. "Breakfast in half an hour. We'll have to shake a leg."

"Or a neck," Mike strode into the hall, slamming the door after him.

I walked over and removed the racquet from Gay's hand. "You're a good egg, Gay. I've always liked you. But you're digging yourself into a hole that you won't be able to climb out of. Mike is all right. Go take a shower and forget about it."

She got to her feet at that. "Mike," she said furiously, "is a lying skunk! I've just told him so, and now I'm telling you." And she was out of the room.

"Gay!" I shouted, rushing after her. But she flew up the stairs without looking back.

"Good morning, Mr. Jimmie." I spun around to find Higgins beside me, freshly dressed, brushed and combed. How much had he heard?

"How's everything below decks?" I said, a bit weakly.

"Fair to middling, sir. Cook—but she means well, sir."

"I'm sure she does. Can you manage breakfast in half an hour?"

"Yes, sir."

I left him there. I had no desire to talk to anybody. Mike's door was closed, and I didn't open it. Did Gay seriously think—the whole idea was ridiculous? Saved, tubbed and dressed in a stupor. Just as I was climbing into a shirt, there came a low, insistent knocking on my door.

It was the Skipper's voice. "Jimmie, can you come out here a second?" I moved to the door. "Hullo, Skipper. What is it?"

"Don't make so much noise." She was beckoning me down the hall in the direction of her own room. "Come—quickly!"

I went on the run. The Skipper paused before Jude Blinshop's door, pointing, and my eyes followed the direction of her finger. Jude's door had been forced open. The lock was still on it, but the woodwork had been torn by terrific pressure. We must have all of us come down the hall without noticing. I pushed open the door.

"Don't Go In There!" IN THE dismal half-light of the winter morning, the small bed lamp still burned, lending a ghostly unreality to the whole scene. A sheet lay on the floor just at my feet. The bed was empty! I took one half-hearted look under it. One glance into that closet and I was back in the hall. I must have been jabbering like a monkey.

The Skipper started for the door, and I hung myself in her way.

"Don't go in there!" I was roaring. "Don't!"

She shoved me aside and disappeared through the door. I should have followed her, but I didn't. I leaned against the wall with my head in my hands. "She was dead," I was saying it to the empty hall. "I saw her. I felt her heart. She was dead!"

"Jimmie, quick!" I couldn't seem to make my legs move. It seemed a century before I reached the Skipper, who was standing in front of Jude's closet, her face reflecting the terror that held me paralyzed.

She was pointing to something long, lumpy and shapeless that lay upon the shelf of the closet. Something that vaguely resembled a stack of blankets, but was not a stack of blankets. I seized the uppermost blanket and pulled.

A cold, limp hand was at my throat and something soft and heavy was rolling over me. My head struck the floor with a sickening thud. Even then I didn't appreciate the full horror of it. I was on the floor struggling furiously with something that was wrapped around me like a vise. I was twisting, pounding, roaring. The world was tumbling in a thundering, blinding wreck about my head.

And then I was on my feet, the Skipper, tomorrow.

per in my arms, and both of us were staring down at a huddled mass of the floor—a blotch of very blue, but that ghostly light. The dead, white face of Jude Blinshop was staring up at us.

I don't know what I did exactly after a while I tried to quiet the Skipper.

What had been on that bed when I stood alone beside it earlier in the evening? What if I had reached down and moved that sheet? What—if I finally managed to move—to lift the body to the bed, cover it with the discarded sheet, and turn out the useless light. When I finished, the Skipper was standing by the door.

"I might have known," she was saying over and over. "I might have known."

I took her arm. "Known what?" She started, like a person suddenly waking up. "Quickly, Jim," she said. "We must hurry."

Before I caught up with her, she was halfway down the hall.

"Wait, Skipper," I pleaded. "You can't stand any more of this. I'll call Mike and William."

"No!" in horror. "Good Lord, no!" I followed her with no idea of where she was going. So the killer had evaded us by cramming Jimmie place on the bed, and forcing his way out of the room at his leisure. We could have had him twice. Twice! The Skipper was going down the front stairs and straight to the front door, where she paused, pointing jerkily. The heavy bolt had been drawn aside and the key was on the floor. Our man had escaped.

The Skipper flung open the door and dashed out to the steps. Wind whopped around us in fiendish welcome, but the rain had stopped. The Skipper was away—running for dear life toward the end of the house in the direction of the tennis courts. In an instant I was after her, shouting, "Skipper! Skipper! Wait!"

She never turned. At the corner of the house, she disappeared. At top speed I followed. Once I thought I would catch her as she paused for half a second at the path leading from the game room to the bathhouse, but she was off again before I had gained a dozen paces, running straight for the bluff.

FARM AGENTS CALLED MEET

County Officials Gathering at Manteo for Conference

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 11.—Nearly 2,500 farmers and farm women are here today for the annual meeting of the members of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association and the Farmers' Cooperative Exchange.

The members were guests of the cooperative at a barbecue luncheon given in the coop building on Fayetteville street at 1 o'clock at which Congressman Harold D. Cooley of the Fourth Congressional District, was the featured speaker. A delegation of several hundred farmers came over from Cooley's home county of Nash to help welcome him. He was given an enthusiastic ovation by the farmers. He devoted most of address to an explanation and discussion of farm legislation now pending in Congress.

Dr. Joseph G. Knapp, an official of the cooperative division of the Farm Credit Administration, was another of the featured speakers and told of the great growth of cooperative marketing in the United States and of the proportions it has reached, especially in some of the middle and northwestern states.

A report on the operations of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative and of the Farmers' Cooperative Exchange was given by M. G. Mann, general manager.

My station is all on its own. My living's got to come mostly from just you people right here. I want your steady trade, so's to build a real growing business. And there's where it helps me a lot, I can tell you, to be selling Conoco Germ Processed oil. You see it makes customers and keeps them for me. It's patented—the only oil that can Oil-Plate your engine. Meaning that a definite part of this oil always fastens direct to every working part... forms a real Plating of oil, which can't run down. Other oils will "dry off" every time you park, but Oil-Plating can't, so you'll never make any hard, grinding starts. And that ends the worst wear of all. Or when you're hitting it up all day, you won't find this real Oil-Plating rubbing right off, like just some plain little drops of oil. Oil-Plating's not thinning out either, nor burning right up. Which gives you mighty solid reasons why Oil-Plating means more mileage from your engine and your Conoco Germ Processed oil. Besides making customers, I get a kick out of changing you to an oil I can believe in myself, right to the limit.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—The Senate, in one of its rare moods of indignation, administered a mild spanking to Postmaster General Farley a day or so back without anyone knowing much about it except Mr. Farley and his postal hands.

The Senate postoffice committee had been struggling for months with a "star route" mail contract bill without making much headway.
A star route is one of those mail routes in which the mail carrier may earn part of his living by an occasional passenger and a pound of butter to residents along the way.
There are 11,000 such routes, mostly far out in the country districts, and a fourth of them expire each year. For some years past they have been opened to competitive bidding each time but the House and Senate postal committees got the idea that it would be well to have the postoffice department keep a good contractor on the job for longer than the usual four years. So a bill was drafted permitting acceptable star route contractors to keep their contracts indefinitely without competitive bidding.

Farley was against it, and so were most of his appointive employees, but a committee of permanent, irremovable civil service employees said it would create a better spirit among the contractors. They would supply better trucks, give more expensive service for the money, etc.

There was plenty of argument on the other side, about the need of opening all government contracts to public bidding, and all in all it held the bill on the Senate calendar until a day before this year's group of contracts was to be let.

It happened that this year's group covered the New England and the North Atlantic states and Senators from these states were all set to push the bill through to permit the old contractors to stay on the job.
But just as the bill was heading for passage, word came from the postoffice department that a little delay wouldn't make any difference, so the bill was allowed to rest over the week-end.

But no sooner had the bill been skipped over than the postoffice department began letting contracts to the low bidders. Angry New England senators pointed out that this year's crop was the last of the Hoover administration contractors and it looked like a patronage trick to get them out.

At the very next meeting, the Senate redrafted the bill to provide that these New England contractors should be permitted to retain their contracts, regardless of competitive bidding. The bill passed 50 to 21, with more Democrats than Republicans on the winning side.

Even senators who had opposed the principle of the bill supported the amendment to give this year's crop of contractors the benefit of the legislation.

The bill went to conference with the House, which had passed it earlier. But the senators were in doubt whether they could make their amendment stick tight enough to oust the new low bidders, even if the House backed them up.

"BLACK DAMP" MADE HELPFUL TO MINERS

Washington (AP)—Chemists of the bureau of mines have found a way to switch the suffocating strength of "black damp" to mine fires instead of miners.
"Black damp" is the term applied to air which has lost its oxygen and taken on carbon dioxide. The mixture has killed many underground workers.

The chemists first decided the "critical" oxygen values, below which atmospheres must be maintained to prevent explosions and another fires then determined the mixture of synthetic "black damp" necessary to choke out the two dangers.
Fires and explosions require a certain amount of oxygen to occur, just as humans need it to survive.

pointed State Board of Conservation and Development is in session representatives of the various organizations in the state having suggestions to make concerning the place its advertising contract with one or several agencies, decide which ones will get it.

Plane Takes Swing at Tractor

Cheyenne, Wyo. (AP)—Things happen fast in the air, especially when a tractor gets in the way.
A workman, driving a tractor with a land-leveling machine across the Cheyenne airport, glanced over his shoulder in time to see a huge cabin ship coming directly for him.

He jumped, the plane's wing grazed the seat he had occupied a second before, and the ship bounced but came to a safe landing. The wing was damaged.

Airport officials, who declined to disclose the names of the plane pilot and the tractor driver, said neither was at fault.

Henry's Club Scores 5-3 Win Over Ayden

Tarboro — Young, Danny York's six-hit pitching was rewarded with victory when his Tarboro mates put over a pair of tallies in the eighth to break a deadlock and gain a 5-3 victory over Ayden here.

The victory lifted Snake Henry's locals to a 500 percentage — two wins and two losses — in Coastal Plain play.

Pitcher York helped in the eighth-inning rally by batting in a run. Winters, Cantel and York hit safely to produce the first score and then Cantel counted on Staples' long fly to center.

DRIVERS PROVE ABILITY IN GETTING A HIGH GASOLINE MILEAGE

Demonstrating the remarkable efficiency of the modern automobile in delivery service and heavy trucking haulage, over a score of pit county Ford owners made outstanding records here yesterday in a drivers' economy test, conducted by the John Flanagan Buggy Company and supervised by representatives of the Ford Motor Co.

The first truck to begin the test, which was run on the Washington road, beginning at John Rovers' filling station, was officially started by Police Chief George Clark.

The test was under the supervision of Ty Wagner for the Flanagan Buggy Co., and H. P. Powell, commercial supervisor of Ford Motor Co. J. M. Gies, representative of Sinclair Refining Company, was official gasoline supervisor.

Each contestant was accompanied on the run by either a member of the Flanagan Buggy Co. organization, or an affiliate of the Sinclair distributor to assure absolute fairness in the run.

The road was marked off in tenths of a mile and distances were measured to the exact foot of road traversed.

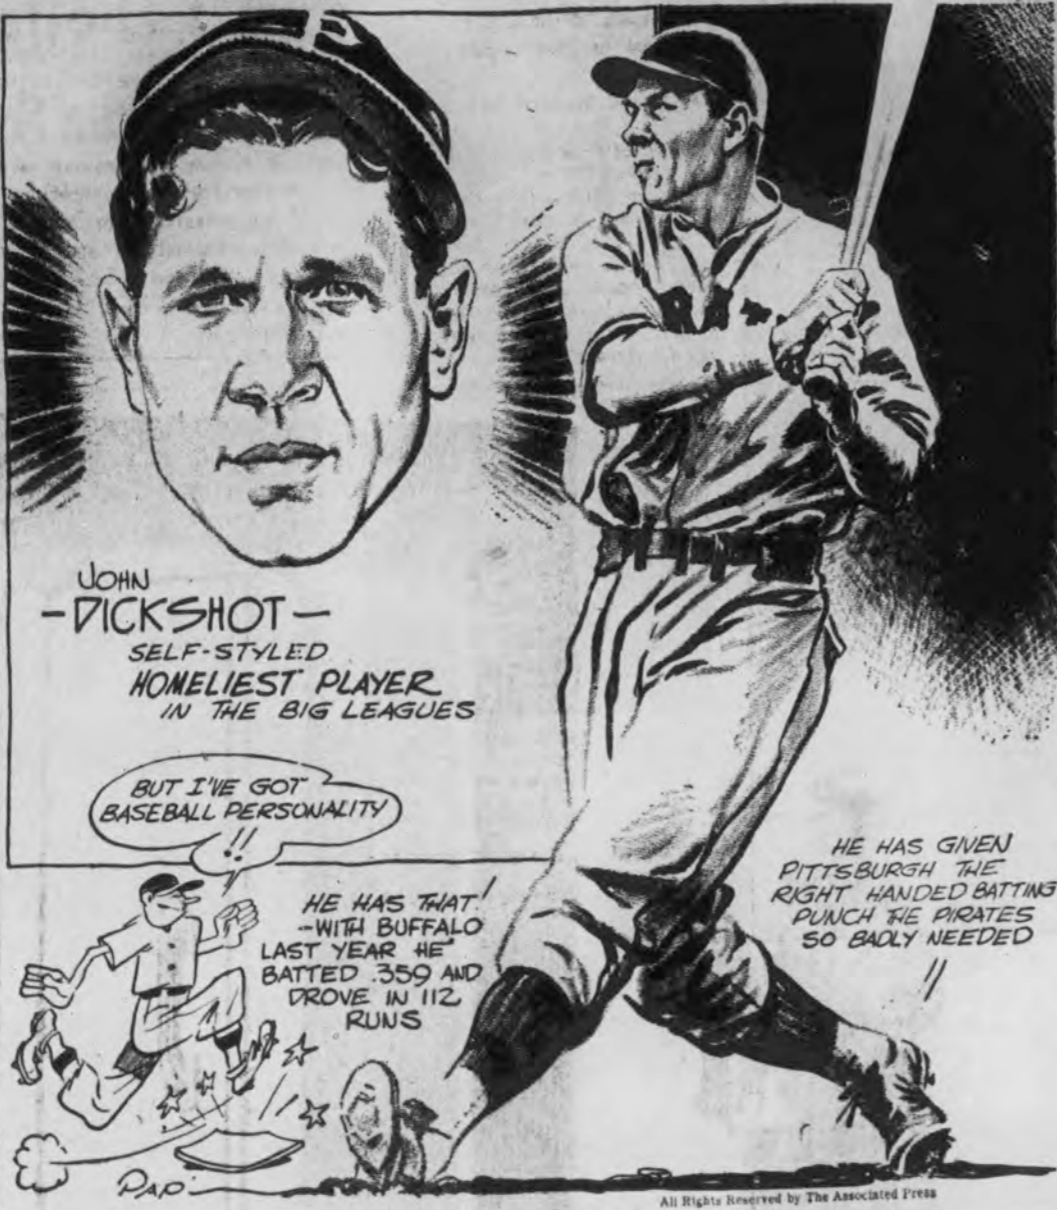

About 3 p. m., the 157-inch ton and one-half demonstrator truck of the Flanagan Buggy Co., was sent out with a measured five gallons of gas. This unit was driven until the gas was exhausted and the remarkable mileage will be announced tonight, along with the winning mileage given in the guessing contest.

Tonight at 7:30 all contestants, who participated in the guessing contest, and all Pitt county truck and commercial car owners, regardless of make, are cordially invited to attend the meeting in the snow-rooms of the Flanagan Buggy Co. Everyone is invited and at this time the $70.00 in cash prizes will be presented to the winners.

George VI, Navy-Trained, Has Father's Personality

The Former Prince Albert Frederick Arthur George

London (AP)—George VI, the son who most resembled George V, had withdrawn to a peaceful life of domestic security, with no thought of becoming king, when the abdication of his strong-willed brother, Edward VIII, thrust him into the full focus of the world's limelight.

In the panic and tumult of the first days of his reign, Britain gave him secondary attention. But when his brother's exile took its place as an actual fact, the people looked closely at their second king within a year. And they liked him.

Born on December 14, 1895, the second son of King George V and Queen Mary was trained for the navy at Osborne and Dartmouth. In the Battle of Jutland, in the World War, he won commendation.

First appendicitis and then frequent attacks of an internal disorder interrupted his naval career. Then he served with the Royal Air Force. Peace signed, the prince went to Cambridge and through his studies there he became deeply interested in industrial welfare, gaining a deep understanding of the lives of the simple and the poor.

In 1920 he was created Duke of York. In 1923 he married. The Duke and Duchess traveled to many parts of the empire—Canada, Australia, New Zealand—and were acclaimed everywhere.

Through his travels and his natural interest in the people of the empire, the man who never expected to become king prepared himself well to wear the crown today.

Regalia Of The Coronation

KING'S STATE CROWN
This is the crown that the thousands watching the coronation procession saw on the head of the king. He wears it on all state occasions.

ST. EDWARD'S CROWN
Known as the crown of England, it was inherited from Edward the Confessor, who died in 1066. Edward's crown was used by every king of England at his coronation until it was destroyed in Cromwell's time. The present crown is a duplicate, made for Charles II in 1661.

QUEEN'S STATE CROWN
With this she was crowned by the Archbishop. Except when the queen is the reigning monarch it is the only crown she ever wears.

SCEPTER, ORB, SWORD
The scepter indicates imperial power, the orb symbolizes world rule under the Cross, the sword signifies his majesty's willingness to defend the church.

RING, SPURS, AMPULLA
St. George's spurs were strapped to the king's boots as symbols of knighthood and chivalry. The coronation ring, his majesty's personal property, is used to wed the monarch and the church. The ampulla and the spoon, only pieces of regalia not destroyed by Cromwell's Roundheads, held oil and balsam for anointing the king.

Queen Elizabeth Admired As "The Smiling Duchess"

The Former Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon

London (AP)—The smiling Scottish girl who is now England's queen bears small resemblance to the gaunt, red-haired, quick-tempered monarch who last bore the name Queen Elizabeth.

Britain's new queen is five feet, five inches tall, is inclined to plumpness. Her hair is dark brown, her eyes bluish-gray with dark lashes and clearly marked eyebrows that never have been plucked.

The queen uses make-up. Her lips are rouged lightly, eyes shaded, her skin whitened with a liquid powder.

She has risen to first lady of the land from her grim ancestral home, Glamis Castle, where she lived quietly. There seemed little enough chance that Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon should ever become queen of England.

In 1919 she reluctantly left the moors of Scotland to make her debut in Mayfair. In 1923 she married the Duke of York.

Overcoming the shyness which at first embarrassed her in the midst of Court life, Elizabeth soon endeared herself to the royalty-loving British public and earned the sobriquet of "Smiling Duchess."

Queen Elizabeth is the first Scottish queen to be crowned in Westminster Abbey, since Matilda, the daughter of King Malcolm III of Scotland, and wife of King Stephen of England, was crowned there 800 years ago.

She is the first commoner to be Queen since Henry the VIII married his sixth and last wife, Katherine Parr, but Katherine was never crowned.

The Lords Of The Coronation

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER
Only member of the royal family besides the King and Queen who took part in the coronation at Westminster Abbey today, he leads the peers' homage.

EARL MARSHAL
The Duke of Norfolk, 28, premier, ordered all ceremonies, issued decrees for the Church of England coronation rites through a Roman Catholic.

LORD GREAT CHAMBERLAIN
The handsome Earl of Ancaster, traditionally entitled to claim the royal nightshirt and the king's bedroom furniture, settled for $1,000 instead.

DUKE OF BEAUFORT
The Master of the Horse was right at home on a charger directly behind the royal carriage. The duke is, by marriage, a nephew of Queen Mary.

PRIMATE OF ALL ENGLAND
The Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Lord High Almoner to the King and Archbishop of Canterbury, performed the actual coronation for the first time.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK
Second in rank in the spiritual ceremonies was this roly-poly prelate. He receives $45,000 a year, a salary $30,000 less than that of his superior.

DEAN OF WESTMINSTER
The Very Rev. W. Foxley Norris, had little to do but invest George VI with his imperial mantle. The dean is a frequent visitor to the United States.

BISHOP OF LONDON
Ordinarily there would have been a sermon by Dr. W. Inge, but this year there was none. But the ceremony called for the Bishop's presence.

Prelates Who Crowned The King

Ladies Of The Queen

MISTRESS OF ROBES
Few women had active roles in the ceremonies. The Duchess of Northumberland, most important of them; attended the queen, led the ladies in waiting.

DUCHESS OF NORFOLK
Less important in the Westminster spectacle than her husband, the duchess' duties were to support the canopy over the queen and to hold her scepter.

IN 1671, one Colonel Thomas Blood, with three companions, bound the keeper of the crown jewels and escaped with the crown and orb. Curiously, Blood on being taken before Charles II, not only was pardoned but also was employed in the royal service and was granted a pension of $2,500 a year.

THE DEATH of Caroline, wife of George IV, was attributed to a broken heart because she was refused admission to his coronation. Forcibly ejected when she went to the abbey, she returned home to die after ordering this on her tombstone: "Here lies Caroline of Brunswick, the murdered queen of England."

PROBABLY the most tragic coronation anywhere, any time, was that of Inez de Castro, the murdered wife of Pedro I of Portugal. When Don Pedro came to the throne he had her body exhumed, placed on the throne and crowned as queen. The court was compelled to do her homage as though she were alive.

BECAUSE so many cases of fainting were expected among the crowds that jammed the coronation procession's route from dawn until afternoon, officials stationed an ambulance every five yards on each side of the street all along the route. That meant more than 700 attendants to the mile.

The King - Makers

PRIME MINISTER
Although he is responsible for the accession of the king and queen, Baldwin the king-maker took a back seat at the coronation ceremonies, as befits a commoner.

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE
Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, who announced Edward's abdication to the House, represented Mr. Baldwin and his fellow commoners of the Cabinet and Parliament.

OPENS BIDS FOR MAPPING N. C.

Project to Be Carried On Under Conservation Program

Raleigh, May 11.—Bids were opened today on the aerial mapping of nearly one-fourth of North Carolina as a part of the Agricultural Conservation program for 1937.

Aerial photography as a method of mapping large sections of land accurately has been used for some time, both by private and government agencies, declared E. Y. Floyd of State College.

Photographs of the land to be mapped are made from the air and enlarged to a specific scale. The enlargement serves not only as a picture but also as a map of the area.

From the enlargement, which shows several square miles of land boundaries of each farm and of each field on the farm are determined. In addition to making available the exact shape of each farm, the enlargements also show all prominent ground features, such as trees, buildings, roads and streams.

Checking compliance with the conservation program will be made cheaper, more accurate, and faster with the aerial surveys, Floyd said. A great number of the methods of measuring used in the past were unsatisfactory because the land had to be remeasured year after year.

Aerial mapping, in addition to being more accurate and faster than other methods, will provide a record that can be used from year to year for a large number of farms, thus eliminating expense and delay incident to measuring these farms each year.

Thirty-four North Carolina counties will be mapped either wholly or in part. They are: Anson, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Cabarrus, Cleveland, Columbus, Davidson, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Gaston, Green, Guilford, Halifax, Hertford, Hoke, Johnston, Lenoir, Lincoln, Martin, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Moore, Nash, Northampton, Pitt, Randolph, Robeson, Scotland, Stanly, Union, Wayne and Wilson.

Druggists Gather For Annual Meet In Raleigh Today

1,000 Take Few Days Off From Compounding Prescriptions to Mix Business With Pleasure

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, May 11.—Taking a few days off from the compounding of prescriptions and the mixing of fountain drinks, more than 1,000 druggists and their wives from every section of the state are here today mixing pleasure with business as they attend the fifty-eighth convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association.

The general business session started at 9:30 this morning, with various other sessions scheduled until late afternoon. All of the delegates to the convention will be guests at a barbecue supper at 6 o'clock in the municipal auditorium, which will be followed by a dance for all who care to attend. All the delegates who had arrived yesterday were guests last night of all the druggists in Raleigh at a dance in the Virginia Dare ball room in the Sir Walter Hotel.

At one o'clock this afternoon all the men delegates to the convention were entertained at a stag buffet luncheon at which Governor Clyde R. Hoey was the guest of honor, while the women attending the convention were entertained at a morning bridge party and later at luncheon at the Women's Club. During the early afternoon the women were taken on a sightseeing tour of the city. From 4:30 to 5:30 they will be entertained at a tea given by Mrs. Clyde R. Hoey at the executive mansion.

Most of this morning's business session was devoted to the hearing of various reports, while the afternoon session was devoted largely to discussions having to do with practical pharmacy and dispensing. Discussions were led on such problems as drug store accounting, weights and measures, prescriptions and other questions of interest to the druggists.

The Wednesday morning session will be devoted to hearing additional reports and to a "commercial clinic" on "What to do with a sick drug business, arranged by E. F. Rimmer, of Charlotte. The final session, at which the new officers will be installed, will be held Wednesday afternoon, with a buffet supper and floor show for the delegates in the auditorium.

U. N. C. MEN HONORED BY LANGUAGE ACADEMY

Chapel Hill May 12.—Dr. George R. Coffman, head of the University English department, was re-elected to the Council of the Medieval Academy at a meeting held in Boston.

Dr. Urben T. Holmes, of the French department, was appointed to the advisory board of "Speculum."

A 127-year-old razor made from a bull's horn is used by Harrison Douglas of Allentown, Pa. It has been in his family five generations.

Fred Groff, "Oklahoma plant wizard," grows pickles six feet long and has bred a drought-defying brain sorghum that drives its roots nine feet into the soil in quest of water.

A Candid Talk: WILKINS, 'Not The Explorer Type,' Seeks Spiritual Gain With Submarine

1 Australia's Sir Hubert Wilkins, planning another submarine dash to the Arctic, foresees "spiritual gain" in getting data for long-range weather forecasts. "We haven't begun to touch the economic possibilities of the polar regions," he says.

2 "Long-range forecasting would help human comfort. When I was a boy in Australia, I saw hundreds of thousands of cattle perish in drought. Everybody was ruined. Had we known what was coming, we could have taken precautions...."

3 "I'm not the explorer type. I don't go out for adventure. I came to exploring as an economist. When humanity is assured of its physical requirements, then I can see the rapid development of the spiritual side...."

4 "Why the submarine? Well, it's not possible to occupy one of our bases in any other way. No surface boat has ever gotten within 50 miles of it. And besides it's 90 degrees warmer under the water than in the open air."

NEW U. S. JUDGE FINDS PLAYTIME BEGINS AT 33

Now that he's become a federal judge, Alfred P. Murrah of Oklahoma City can sit down occasionally and read to Paul, 3, and Ann, 5.

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—"Fish" Murrah's wildest boyhood dream as he roamed the country, often broke and hungry, back in 1916, probably never placed him in the dignified, well-paid job of a United States district judge.

But Alfred P. Murrah was sworn in recently as the nation's youngest federal judge.

Only 33 years old last October, Murrah, as Oklahoma's fourth federal district judge, has a roving assignment on a life-time job that pays $10,000 a year.

And now Murrah is finding time to do the things he wanted to do for the first time he ran away from home at 12.

"Running Business" Now "I have lots of work to do. I keep busy, but I don't have to go at the breakneck speed now that I did when I was working for myself."

"I'm running my business now, instead of my business running me. I have to spend many hours reading briefs and decisions of high courts, but I don't have to work 14 or 15 hours to get a case prepared."

"I have more time to do the things I want to do, such as being at home with my wife and children."

Murrah, born near Tishomingo, Okla., left home after his mother died and rode freight trains across the country, landing in Oklahoma City at 15, broke and hungry.

He worked at odd jobs, served as handyman at the "Half Moon" ranch, and "made" the wheat harvest in Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

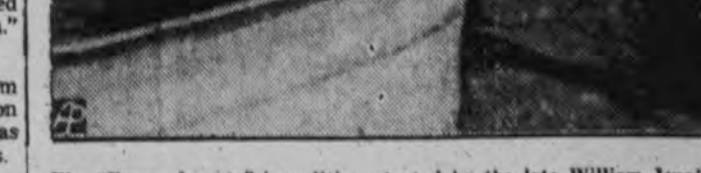

Worked Way Through School He hadn't finished grade school but he persuaded the high school principal at Tuttle, Okla., to enroll him and, working in a drug store during off hours for $5 a week, he "made" the wheat harvest in three years.

When he entered the University of Oklahoma, paying his way with a $15 a week tobacco store job. After graduation from law school, he formed a partnership with another young law graduate.

Schoolmates called him "Goldfish" because of the reddish tint to his hair. Later it was shortened to "Fish" and has stuck to him through the years.

"In 37 years I'll be 70, and I expect to out," said the slender, foot judge after his appointment. "I'll be glad to quit."

BRYAN QUITS POLITICS FOR FARM

The "Bryan dynasty" in politics, started by the late William Jennings Bryan in the 1890's, comes to an end with the retirement of his brother, Charles W. Bryan, to his farm near Lincoln, Neb., at the close of his second term as mayor of that city. He was governor of Nebraska three times in addition to running as the Democratic nominee for the vice presidency of the United States and for the United States senate. He is shown at his farm with one of his horses.

ISABELLE STORY WORKS SO OTHERS MAY PLAY

By SIGRID ARNE (Associated Press Service Writer)

WASHINGTON.—Isabelle Story, one of the few women who head divisions in the interior department, is the person who tells millions of America's every year where to vacation in the national parks—and where to fry their eggs once they get there.

Last year 10,000,000 persons cavorted in the parks. She hasn't had a vacation in years. She never made a camp fire.

She gets into the parks, of course. She has seen them all. But she goes through them with her notebook open much like a busy grocer looking over his window in the morning.

Job Grew Like Topsy She came to government service in 1916, a blue-eyed youngster from Chicago with blond curly hair about her ears. She was somebody's secretary. Then too many queries came in about the parks and some one else said, "Let Miss Story answer them." She did, and now she has a suite of six offices, and a staff of 14.

She can tell where to find a picnic ground near a Spanish mission in Arizona; where to register at an inexpensive hotel in the Rockies; and how to get smelts to fry in New England.

Gets Lowdown on Visits These facts pour out from Miss Story's office in booklets, magazine articles, posters for railway stations, radio speeches.

To gather her information, Miss Story has visited all the parks, except Hawaii and Alaska. And she hopes to get to them, too. Sometimes the inspection trips are a bit rough and ready. She had to learn horseback riding, for instance, but did it pretty much the way she took her job. Just got on the horse and rode.

She has found, too, that Indian sign language comes instinctively to anyone who needs it badly. The time her car bogged down in southern Utah, there wasn't a living creature in sight. After three hours an ancient Indian came by, but he couldn't understand English, Spanish or any of the half dozen Indian dialects Miss Story knows. So she made her hands go. Like a man riding horseback.

Horse Monument To Her The Indian's face lit up. Two hours later he returned with three ponies and three grandsons. They soon had Miss Story's car out of its Grand Canyon there's a monument to Miss Story. He's four-legged, has a long smooth tail and two long ears. His name is "Isabelle." The park rangers named him for her. They wrote in about him recently, saying, "Isabelle has developed a real sweet disposition just like yours."

STRIKE LOOMS AS CERTAINTY

Jones and Laughlin Unable To Come To Peace With Union

Pittsburg, May 12.—(AP)—The struggle between one of the nation's biggest independent steel producers and the John Lewis C. I. O. sped toward a strike today.

Union men at the Jones and Laughlin steel corporation plant at Aliquippa and Pittsburgh were ready to strike at 11 o'clock tonight if the company fails to sign a collective bargaining contract.

Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers committee, spearhead of the Lewis drive to unionize the industry, conferred with Jones and Laughlin executives today in a last hour attempt to forestall a threat-ened walkout. They had met previ-ously without reaching an agree-ment.

Murray sought a wage and hour increment similar to one signed by U. S. steel and 100 small independ-ents.

Jones and Laughlin employs 26-000 men. The union claims 7,000 members among the 11,000 employ-ees at Pittsburgh and more than 50 per cent of the 15,000 at nearby Aliquippa works.

REBELS FORCE BACK ATTACKS

Government Infantrymen Charge in Face Of Slaughter

Toledo, Spain, May 12.—(AP)—Wave after wave of government infantrymen charged insurgent positions south of this ancient imperial city today in the face of what In-surgents described as "unprecedented slaughter."

The official insurgent commu-nique describing the combat of the last four days as one of the great-est battles on the central Spanish front quoted government prisoners as saying 3,000 of their comrades had been killed and that the num-ber of dead and wounded was in-calculable.

When night fell, the report ad-ded, General Francisco Franco's In-surgents still held positions, they captured four days ago on the Merida Highway west of Toledo. Today's combat was south of the river which skirts Toledo on the south.

As the battle developed Insurg-ent commanders came to view the government attack as a major of-fensive aimed at wresting Toledo from Franco.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 12.—Rais chug-uged in today's stock market and other selected issues occu-pied choice seats in the parlor car. While the recoveries of fractions to a point or more were well scat-tered during and near the hour, the climbing pace again was extremely slow and there were a number of losers in evidence.

Bonds and commodities were somewhat uneven.

It was one of the most apathetic sessions in years. Transfers totaled only about 600,000 shares.

N. C. LIQUOR BOARD PLANS WAR AGAINST BOOTLEGGERS

 to check up on all those who sell wine, to see that the wines conform with the law and do not exceed the alcoholic content allowed.

Whether or not the liquor control board will extend its enforcement drive into present so-called "dry" counties where the bootleggers are doing their biggest and most thriving business, has not yet been determined. But Chairman Moore indicated that as soon as they get organized in the counties having liquor stores they are going to consider ways and means to clamp the lid on the bootleggers in the "dry" counties as well, especially in those counties where the county law enforcement officers are apparently making no effort to stop bootleg-ging. But for the time being, the state control board is going to concentrate on the enforcement of the new state law in the 18 counties already having liquor stores and in the nine or ten other counties which are expected to set them up before the close of the summer.

dry counties a great many of the places having beer and wine licenses, are both selling wine of a higher alcoholic content than is permitted by law and also selling liquor," Moore said. "In Virginia, the state ABC board has the power to revoke both beer and wine licenses in either wet or dry counties for any cause sufficient to the board. But here we have no authority over the issuance or revocation of beer and wine licenses. However, we are going to keep a close check on those selling wine and it is going to be just too bad if they do not stay within the law."

The control board has already been informed that some wine dealers are already buying natural wines by the barrel, then stepping these up by the addition of raw grain alcohol by more than the amount allowed by the new law, bottling it and selling it as 'fortified wines,' Moore said.

"We are going to investigate all cases of this sort we find and notify Federal officers, also the enforcement officers of the state pure food division in the Department of Agriculture," Moore said. "We are not going to permit alcohol flavored with wine to be sold as wine."
