King And Queen Ride In State To Coronation Ceremony

ORIGINAL SUM PROVIDED FOR RELIEF NEEDS

Leaders Push $1,500,000,000 Bill Thru Committee

DEFEAT EFFORTS TO CUT FIGURES

Administration Chiefs Express Confidence Allotment Will Be Approved in House

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—Administration leaders successfully drove a $1,500,000,000 work relief appropriation through the House Appropriations Committee today despite belligerent opposition of economic advocates.

The subcommittee which first studied the appropriation slashed off a third of it two days ago. The full committee, however, restored the original sum originally asked by President Roosevelt.

The one billion and a half dollars' appropriation, the President said, was needed to meet relief requirements for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Administration leaders expressed confidence the allotment would be approved by the House when it comes up next week.

Economy talk was temporarily sidetracked in the Senate by the heated controversy raised by Ambassador William Dodd's assertion in a letter from Berlin a "billonaire" was ready to support an "American dictatorship."

Senator Nye (R. N. D.) introduced a resolution to have the State Department direct Dodd to name the man he had in mind. Nye's move was blocked for the time by Chairman Pittman (D. Nev.) of the Foreign Relations Committee who got the resolution referred to his committee.

Nye asked for a "thorough investigation" of the charge.

The American Cotton Manufacturers Association, holding a two-day meeting here heard Senator Bankhead (D. Ala.) urge an ever-normal supply plan be worked out for cotton producers and processors with a standardized "parity price" as an essential feature.

Among committee hearings, the Senate Railroad Finance Committee held the spotlight with investigation of affairs of the rail empire built up by the late Van Sweringen brothers.

Western Tobacco Section Bothered With Black Shank

Disease Introduced in Old Belt of State Gradually Spreading in Western Counties

Raleigh, May 13.—Black shank of tobacco, a disease introduced into the old tobacco belt of North Carolina in 1920, has spread gradually until it is now found on a number of farms in Forsyth, Guilford, Davidson, Alamance and adjacent counties, says Dr. Luther Shaw, plant disease specialist of the State College Extension Service.

Dr. Shaw says the first sign of the disease usually becomes evident in late June or in July when groups of plants in localized areas of a field show decay at the soil line. The plants wilt rapidly and eventually most of them die before they can be harvested. Usually, losses are not so heavy during the first year the disease has been introduced into a field, but if tobacco is planted in that same field the following year, the disease almost wipes out the crop.

Research and field demonstrations during the past eight years show, however, that this particular tobacco disease may be controlled by a system of crop rotation and the use of sanitary measures.

Those who have black shank on their farms should not set any tobacco on land where the disease has occurred during the past four years, Dr. Shaw says. Set the plants on land where no sign of the disease has been seen. At the same time, do not carry any soil or trash from an infected field to one not infected. Even dogs have been known to carry the disease germs on their feet from one field to another. In other cases manure having in it tobacco trash from a diseased field has been known to spread the trouble to a field not formerly infected.

Dr. Shaw says the germ causing black shank lives in the soil and may readily be carried from an infected field to one not so troubled.

Rebels Reported Driven From Toledo Front Lines

FISHER PLANT HIT BY STRIKE

General Motors Subsidiary Halted By Sit-Down

Cleveland, May 13.—(AP)—General Motors Fisher body plant was shut down today by a sit-down strike, affecting between 6,000 and 7,000 employees.

Louis Spisak, president of the Fisher body local of the U. A. W. A., said the strike was called to protest layoffs and what he called a "speed up."

"Fourteen men in one department have put the whole plant out of operation," said Lincoln Scafe, general manager.

"The management will follow its usual policy in this matter and won't talk to men who are sitting down at their jobs. So far there has been no move on the part of the union to negotiate the issues involved. The management is willing to do so as long as the men are willing to work."

Spisak said the union stopped all operations of the plant following "repeated discrimination against the strongly organized local Fisher body plants by needless layoffs and unfair use of the speed up."

The plant was tied-up several weeks earlier in the year at the time of the nationwide General Motors strike.

More Bad Tidings Heard By Merrill

South Port, Eng., May 13.—(AP)—Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie got more bad news today while vexing cross winds delayed their return Atlantic flight.

The company which previously had agreed to supply them with motion pictures of King George's coronation is to fly to the United States changed its mind, Merrill said.

They will carry only still pictures of the coronation, he said, and thus they will make a good deal less money than they had hoped.

Previously he had partly explained their delay in departure by saying the films were being brought from London by car.

Workmen were busy throughout the night clearing a two-mile track, marked with flags and bolstered with railroad ties to give the machine a good grip while it taxied down the runway.

Government Columns Seeking to Recapture City

Madrid, May 13.—(AP)—Insurgent defenders of Toledo, once capital of the ancient Moorish kingdom in the Iberian peninsula, were reported today to have been driven from front line trenches just south of the city.

Government columns reportedly were steadily advancing in the major offensive to recapture Toledo, an important base for insurgent operations on the Madrid or central Spanish front.

Toledo is 40 miles south and slightly west of here.

Insurgents in the old imperial city, lost by the government last October, were reported by the government to have been freshly reinforced by Moorish and German troops.

Bilbao Spain, reports indicated insurgent fliers rained bombs on a town seven miles north of Bilbao and General Francisco Franco's attacking army pressed closer to that Basque capital in fierce fighting.

Meanwhile information from Guernica, Spain, indicated General Franco's northern insurgent army rolled government lines nearer to the Basque capital in a general engagement along a 15-mile battle front which reached at some points within five miles of the beleaguered city.

From the north and east the insurgent troops pressed their drive to crush the defenses of the city where the refugees have swelled the population to over 300,000.

Survivor of Shenandoah Tells of More Recent Tragedy

Lakehurst, May 13.—(AP)—A survivor of the disaster of the American navy dirigible Shenandoah told a Commerce Department investigating Board today the first noise he heard when the destruction of the German Zeppelin Hindenburg was much like that on the Shenandoah when her hull collapsed.

The witness, chief boatswain mate P. J. Tobin, was 50 feet from the point when the Shenandoah broke in two when it was hit a line squall over Ohio in 1925, he testified. Fourteen members of her crew died.

Describing the beginning of the end of the Hindenburg a week ago tonight, Tobin said:

"There burst out of the tail of the ship a burst of smoke and flame accompanied by a noise that I likened to breaking wires."

Discussion elsewhere was aroused by the remark of Clarence Chamberlain, trans-Atlantic flier, at Spartanburg, S. C., that a sniper's bullet might explain the Hindenburg disaster.

Chamberlain referred specifically to two planes landing recently at Bendix in Northern New Jersey with bullet holes in their fuselage. His comment also focussed to those at the naval air station that a sniper once fired on the dirigible Los Angeles, since decommissioned, and that the all-metal navy blimp ZMC2 had been shot at and hit by snipers on three occasions.

Jones And Laughlin Mill Closed Down By Walkout

First Major Steel Plant Strike in Nineteen Years

Pittsburgh, May 13.—(AP)—Members of John Lewis' steel union ranks enforced a strike order today affecting the 27,000 employees of the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation and the first major mill walk-out in 19 years.

While pickets, rain-drenched and tired by their long vigil guarding the entrance to plants in Pittsburgh and Alliquippa, Chairman Phillip Murray of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee prepared to resume negotiations with the company which ended last night in the strike call.

Federal Labor Conciliator James Dewey also planned to participate in a new attempt to bring the company and union into agreement on Murray's demand for a signed collective bargaining contract.

Jones and Laughlin, third largest steel producer independent of the United States Steel corporation, was the first big independent to be shut down in the union's drive for signed contracts, patterned after those with United States steel and a 100 smaller independents.

Thousands of day workers joined with members of the early night shift at 11 o'clock last night in carrying out Murray's order to shut the mill "tight."

Picket lines thinned during the night and today only a few hundred men stood watch at the gates. The company did not try to operate its mills.

Charles Lessing, craft leader charged the studios had tried to force certain members into the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, which, he asserted, is a "company union" dominated by the producers.

Lesing denied charges by Pat Casey, labor conciliator for the producers, that striking painters were anxious to return to work and would do so at once if not restrained by their leaders.

Charles Kimberlin, crafts representative, pointed out the producer-customer agreement had no effect on the strike.

MOVIE STRIKE LOSES GROUND

Producers Sign Union Costumers To 4-Year Contract

Hollywood, May 13.—(AP)—Producers signed union costumers to a four-year working agreement today and claimed they actually had increased production since the strike of Federated Motion Picture Craft workers started 13 days ago.

Craft spokesmen, placing hope for victory on a so-far unrealized nation-wide boycott of movie theatres, answered the producers by presenting to Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director for the National Labor Relations Board, evidence they said constituted "coercion and intimidation" of strikers.

Charles Lessing, craft leader charged the studios had tried to force certain members into the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, which, he asserted, is a "company union" dominated by the producers.

Lesing denied charges by Pat Casey, labor conciliator for the producers, that striking painters were anxious to return to work and would do so at once if not restrained by their leaders.

Charles Kimberlin, crafts representative, pointed out the producer-customer agreement had no effect on the strike.

"More and more people are finding out that it is extremely unwise and unhealthy to try to drive an automobile while drunk or even tipsy," Captain Farmer said. "And after we get our radio stations in operation, it will be even more dangerous since we will then be able to spot drunken drivers and then order the highway patrolmen nearest to such a driver to go and arrest him. So I am expecting the number of arrests for drunken driving, as well as for all other violations, to increase decidedly when the radio communications system gets into operation, probably about the middle of June."

Out of 2,358 highway patrol cases tried during April, patrolmen secured 2,244 convictions, with only 64 being found not guilty, the report shows.

During April, patrolmen inspected 15,976 vehicles, issued tickets for defective lights to 2,533 drivers and issued warnings to 6,013 others after observing minor law violations. They also corrected the lights on 10,444 cars at roadside filling stations and issued tickets because of faulty equipment to 3,071 other drivers. They weighed 930 trucks, finding 130 overloaded. Patrolmen also stopped 9,423 motorists to examine their drivers' licenses and approved applications for 1,159 new drivers' licenses.

Coronation Over, Britain Turns To Modern Problems

DUKE DEMANDS BE LEFT ALONE

Wants No Interference with Wedding From Government

Monts, France, May 13.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor demanded today the British government leave him free to make his own wedding plans and respect Wallis Warfield, his bride-to-be, as he told his mother. "We can all be happy once more."

The Royal family backed the former king's insistence the government not interfere with Edward's plans for a public wedding to Mrs. Warfield and it recognize her officially as the Duchess of Windsor.

The Duke discussed the situation with Queen Mother Mary by telephone and urged the beloved Mary to try and clear up the problem.

It was deadlocked government and Royal family.

"Mother, we can all be happy once more," he was said to have told her—if Queen Mary and King George, VII, can bring the government around to approving the marriage.

His insistence, which had the approval of the Queen Mother and George, VI, can bring the government the difference between the House of Windsor over the forthcoming nuptials.

Edward meanwhile was described by his friend and spokesman, Herman Rogers, as very happy the coronation of his brother yesterday had gone over so smoothly.

Fewer Arrests In State Last Month For Tippy Driving

Total of 226 Persons, However, Are Taken Into Custody for Operating Vehicles While Drunk

Raleigh, May 13.—Highway patrolmen arrested 290 drunken drivers on the highways of the state during the month of April, out of a total of 2,578 arrests, according to the monthly report of highway patrol activities issued today by Captain Charles D. Farmer, patrol commander.

This is 14 fewer than the number of drunken drivers arrested in March, when 294 were hauled in by patrolmen, but is 73 more than the number arrested in February, when 207 drivers were arrested for drunken driving.

This slight decrease in the number of drunken driving arrests is attributed by Captain Farmer largely to the advent of warmer weather, with the resultant decrease in the consumption of hard liquor, and also to the increasing waterfulness of patrolmen for drunken drivers, with the result that fewer persons are now attempting to drive while intoxicated.

"More and more people are finding out that it is extremely unwise and unhealthy to try to drive an automobile while drunk or even tipsy," Captain Farmer said. "And after we get our radio stations in operation, it will be even more dangerous since we will then be able to spot drunken drivers and then order the highway patrolmen nearest to such a driver to go and arrest him. So I am expecting the number of arrests for drunken driving, as well as for all other violations, to increase decidedly when the radio communications system gets into operation, probably about the middle of June."

Statesmen Await Call To Imperial Conference

GRAVE MATTERS FACING NATION

Sweeping Changes Have Taken Place During Seven Years Since Empire Met Last in Formal Conference in 1930

London, May 13.—(AP)—Empire statesmen faced about today from medieval symbolism of the coronation of George, VI, King emperor of Britain, to the modern realities of the commonwealth's most pressing problems.

Prime Minister and representatives of the dominions and of India, having paid their tributes to their monarch and his queen Elizabeth, awaited the call of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin tomorrow that will open the imperial conference.

Seven years of sweeping changes have passed since the empire met last in formal conference in 1930. Attention has turned from internal problems of imperial relations and economics to concern for foreign affairs and defense of the empire.

Britain confronts a world obstructing trade barriers damming the commerce which sustains the empire, alarmed by threats to its peace structure and rearing competitiveness.

Dominion Prime Ministers, now standing equally with officials of the United Kingdom, will ask for a clear statement of British policy at home and abroad.

They will want to know the empire's stand on the League of Nations, on European affairs, on empire trade and on defense of Britain's "lifeline" communications should war engulf it or any of its components.

Britain's newly crowned king and queen got a little rest today before starting the whirl of post coronation festivities.

N. C. Health Board Claims Attention With Puppet Show

Exhibition Loaned to Washington, D. C. Public Schools by State Division of Oral Hygiene

Raleigh, May 13.—Darting here and there over the streets of Washington, D. C. is a truck that turns attention towards North Carolina and better teeth. The truck is the home of "Little Jack's Puppet Show," loaned to the Washington public schools by the Division of Oral Hygiene of the North Carolina State Board of Health.

The outfit is in the national capital for a fortnight's engagement and is in charge of Fred Koch, Jr., and Miss Patsy McMullen, who make the eight characters in the cast do their bidding in presenting the message of good teeth and better mouth health.

This puppet show has played in every one of North Carolina's 100 counties, Dr. Ernest A. Branch, in charge of the Division of Oral Hygiene, said today.

"For three years the puppet show has been carrying the important lessons of mouth hygiene over our own state. When the public schools of Washington asked to be allowed to use it, we were more than glad to accede to this request," Dr. Branch said. "It is good advertising for North Carolina and by that I mean constructive advertising, in that it gives the Washington people something beneficial as well."

"In the operation of this show, we have the cooperation of the Carolina Playmakers, that Chapel Hill dramatic organization which has brought nationwide recognition to North Carolina talent and creative ability, and the Good Teeth Council for Children."

On the sides of the body of the truck appears this identification: "Little Jack's Puppet Show, Division of Oral Hygiene, North Carolina State Board of Health," while the doors bear this inscription: "Carolina Playmakers and Good Teeth Council."

DRIVERS SHOW SKILL IN GAS ECONOMY CONTEST; HIGH MILEAGE ACQUIRED
The economy and precision of the modern low-priced automobile in delivery service and trucking was demonstrated here this past Tuesday when more than a score of Pitt county Ford owners made remarkable records in a Drivers' Economy Contest, conducted by the John Flanagan Buggy Co., local Ford dealer, and supervised by representatives of the Ford Motor Co.

Before the test was run, the Washington highway was measured off in tenths of a mile by a disinterested person, and during the contest the same road was patrolled constantly to insure complete fairness.

The test was under the supervision of Ty Wagner of the Flanagan Buggy Co., and H. P. Powell, Commercial Supervisor of the Ford Motor Co., Norfolk, Va., branch. J. M. Gibbs, representing the Sinclair Refining Co., was official gasoline supervisor.

Chief of Police George Clark was official starter as the first truck left John Rivers' filling station promptly at 10 a. m. From then until 5 p. m., when the contest closed, a steady line of owners came to the starting line, had their carburetors drained and were given the measured 1/4 gallon of gas to start on the journey with $25.00 as the prize.

At 3 p. m. a 1937 Ford Paul Delivery model, the property of the new Hollywood Cleaners, and with W. S. Noble at the wheel, came to the starting point with high mileage of 2.5 miles per gallon standing against him. Nobles, however, filled the tank with his 1-3/4 gallon of gas and travelled a distance of 23.4 miles to the measured gallon, and so won the $25.00 prize for the owner of the truck and $5.00 extra for the driver. Likewise John Askew, of the Aske Grocery came to the starting line with the high mileage of 16.1 and 436 feet, set by L. D. Wall of Ayden in the Heavy Duty truck class.

Askew, after painstaking driving traveled exactly 16.1 miles plus 504 feet to take the first prize of $25.00 from Mr. Wall by a width of 68 feet. Askew attributed his mileage to the new 1937 exchange engine which he had recently installed.

Along with these runs a guessing contest was held giving each car owner in Pitt county a free chance to win $10.00 by guessing how far the 1937 Demonstrator Truck would travel on 5 gallons of gas. Towny Calhoun of this city guessed with 1-10th of a mile of the distance traversed by the truck and so won the $10.00 prize.

At 7:30 Wednesday night the Flanagan Buggy Company were hosts to all the contestants, all guessers in the contest, and all truck owners of the county. The prizes, totalling $70.00 were awarded and everyone departed better pleased than ever with the Ford V-8 truck and commercial unit.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills attractive Jude Blinnish on a wild stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's cousin. Then a series of strange attacks makes everyone in the marooned household jittery: Mike, the Skipper, his tall, rosy young cousin; Aunt Martha, stout and prudish; Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the old butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook; Annie, the maid; even myself. As the second nerve-racking day dawns, the Skipper and I find the body of a gray-haired man, half-way down the bluff.

Chapter 24 An Insane Ghost

THERE was a tinkle of glass, and I caught M. Farrington as she capped. Neither of the others moved.

"Oh," began Gay, repentant eyes on Michael's face. "Oh—"

But we had no time for the sex motif just then.

"Come on, Mike!" I said curtly. "Gay, look after Aunt Martha, will you?"

Armed with a long coil of tow rope, the servants were waiting in the hall. From the side door, we made our way to the bluff. The body lay just as we had left it, the surf mounting steadily higher. There was no time to lose.

"Higgins, you're the lightest. Tie this rope around your waist. Can you tie a decent knot?"

"I don't know, sir." The old man's lips were gray.

I seized the rope and tied it around him. "We're going to lower you down," I said. "Then you untie the rope and put it around him this way. There's no danger. Are you all right?"

"Yes, sir."

We lowered him slowly. The roar of the water was loud in our ears as we waited for his signal. It came, and we hauled. The ground was wet and slippery. There seemed considerable danger of all three of us tumbling to our own destruction before we could bring our gruesome burden within arm's reach. Between us, William and I managed the last stage of the job. In another two minutes, Higgins was back beside us, wet and trembling but uninjured.

He was staring as if hypnotized at the body, which he had rolled over on its back. Slowly my eyes followed his. Except for the heavy white hair, the man lying at our feet might have been Michael Farrington! William knelt down beside the sodden heap.

"Dead, all right. Who is he?"

Whatever his name, that man was a Farrington. He had Michael's black brows, passionate mouth and chin—Mike's slim hips and broad shoulders. The dark eyes were now glassy and horrible, but they were like Michael's—and the Skipper's. With two servants in the midst of it, we had certainly uncovered a family skeleton. I was obliged to shove Mike violently to move him.

During that short journey back across the soggy lawn, a dozen wild thoughts were teeming in my head. Who? That was uppermost. Michael's brother? A cousin? An uncle? Who? Had Mike known him—his whereabouts—his motives? Mike had been shielding someone. There was no doubt of that. But I would have sworn that the look he bent on that pathetic figure had been one of blank amazement.

Had the Skipper known? She had been hiding something, too. She had suspected something. She had rushed from the house as if she knew just where to go. She—Great God! Was this bundle in our arms the reason for the sudden change in the Skipper? Had this man's hand moved Jude's body? Had he been lying, alert, waiting, under that sheet until—

Family Scene Coming Up

"WHERE to, sir?" We were at the side entrance.

I looked at Michael, but his back offered no suggestions.

"The game room, William," I said.

We deposited our burden on the billiard table. Michael gave us no assistance. His mute vacant stare only intensified an already unbearable situation. To send the servants away would be to insure the rapid spreading of the news in all directions, but it was unthinkable to keep them there. William's eyes were glowing with excitement, his cheeks flushed. Relieved, I thought, relieved that it's over. But he'll talk—Lord how he'll talk!

"I'll get a cover for him, sir."

I turned to Higgins. The old man's lips were twitching so badly that I had grave misgivings for the fate of his false teeth. Higgins knew, then, whatever it was that Mike and I did not know, and the story was safe with him. In all the horrors of the last two nights he had not revealed it. I remembered the coffee cups rattling in his hand that night, and Michael chirping, "Higgins, you don't look up to scratch."

"Will that be all, sir?" William. I could see in a hurry to get out to the kitchen with news.

"Not quite, William. Keep your mouth shut. Understand? It will only get the women excited."

"Very good, sir."

It probably wouldn't work, but in any event there was nothing more I could do.

"All right," I said. And Michael and I were alone.

I have never in my life so heartily wished myself elsewhere. The fuss and fury were over and I was uncomfortably aware of the fact that I was stranded in another man's house where a terrific family scene was impending. Worse than that, my nose was irretrievably thrust into the middle of it.

"Well, Mike," I said clumsily, laying an awkward hand on his shoulder, "what can I do?"

For a moment I thought that he wasn't going to answer. Then, "Get the Skipper. Never mind the rest of them. I've got to talk to the Skipper."

I left him standing there, staring into space. If the Skipper had joined the others, how could I possibly get her without bringing the whole household next door on his ears? But the Skipper had not joined the others. She was sitting in the very spot where I had left her, her head in her hands, and she didn't seem to hear me come in. It took an effort to cross the room.

"Skipper," I said as gently as I could, "will you come into the game room?"

She raised her head and looked at me. I would have given something for a poker face.

"Yes," she said at length very slowly. "Yes, of course."

At the game room door I tried to get away, but she hung onto me. "Come in here, too, Jim—if you don't mind."

But He Died Years Ago!

I DID mind very much. But I did as I was told, closing the door carefully after me. Mike came toward her but she ignored him and stepped to the table, where she stood a long time staring at the dead face. I turned to the window blindly. The silence was beastly. I counted broken branches and small sticks scattered on the lawn, dully noted several pieces of brick missing from the terrace, observed that the surf was already washing above the bluff in a fine gray mist.

"Skipper," said Michael's voice. "Is—was—this Norman Farrington?"

Michael's father! But he had died when Michael was a baby!

"Yes."

Silence, a thick blanket of it. Was the hammering of surf actually in the room, or was all that noise in my own head?

"He was insane?"

"Yes."

I thought, "I could open this window and get out of here! Out of here—"

That queer, flat voice again. "How long?"

The other dull voice, "Ever since you were a baby."

I slipped the spring lock on the French window and started to step onto the terrace. A deep cry stopped me.

"Michael! Stop! You must listen to me! You must—"

My eyes were dragged back to that room, to Michael wrenching himself from her grasp.

Automatically I closed the window as the door slammed behind him.

"Jimmie," said the Skipper hoarsely, "get him back here. I must talk to him."

I put an arm around her. "Better wait, Skipper," I said.

We both whirled at the opening of the door. It was only Higgins, bearing a covering for the body on the table. Without a word he stepped to the table and performed his errand. Turning, he walked over to the Skipper.

"Don't fret, miss," he said. "It's better so," and was gone.

After a while I shook the Skipper gently. "What do you want me to do?" I said. "Shall I tell the others?"

Her sudden grip on my arm made me wince. "No! Not until this rotten storm is over and—help comes."

"But won't they wonder?" I objected. "I told them—"

She was almost shouting, "I know what I'm doing!" Her voice fell. "Sorry, you see, I particularly want to keep Martha from knowing this until—things are more normal. She was—very fond of Norman. Tell Gay anything you like, but keep the servants quiet, and leave Martha to me."

I opened my mouth to say that it would be pretty hard to fool M. Farrington after my announcement in the dining room, but something in the Skipper's face made me close it again. After all, it was none of my business. I could only hope that William would keep his word, and I could keep an eye on Mike.

"Lock both these doors, Jimmie," said the Skipper, "and then we'll eat breakfast."

Breakfast! The word set my teeth on edge; and yet, crossing the room to do as I was told, I was aware of a hollow feeling in the region of my belt.

PLAN TO ALLOT HIGHWAY FUND

Appropriations To Be Made on Proportionate Basis

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, May 12.—The highway appropriations for both maintenance and new construction will be allotted to the ten administrative divisions on the basis of area, population and mileage in these divisions, with the exception that the automobile registration will also be considered in allotting the maintenance funds. It was decided by the new State Highway and Public Works Commission before it adjourned here Wednesday.

Some of the commissioners are of the opinion that the maintenance funds should be further broken down by counties, so that each county will know in advance just how much money will be available for road work in the county each year. Others, however, think the funds should not be broken down beyond the division unit so that the division commissioner and engineer will have more leeway and be able to take the factor of need into consideration.

As a result of this decision by the new commission, each division commissioner, each division commissioner is expected to be allotted a definite amount both for new construction and maintenance within his district, and to be held strictly to this amount. Then when definitions come before him asking for new roads, new construction and maintenance work, the commissioner will be able to tell them just how much money is available and explain that no additional funds can be expended. Those who know Chairman Frank L. Dumble and the manner in which he administered the budget bureau in which he tutored the various state departments and institutions and held them strictly within the appropriations made, are confident he is going to follow the same plan with the ten division highway commissioners. It is also pointed out that under the new set up, the division commissioners rather than the highway chairman, will get the blame and the censure for any failure to build new roads or to keep up old roads.

If maintenance funds are broken down by counties, some counties are likely to suffer at the expense of others, especially in times of extreme weather which may cause more damage to roads in some counties than in others, it is pointed out.

Don't Sleep When Gas Presses Heart

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierika the quick, scientific way to rig their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierika rid you of gas and cleanses foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika. Get rid of GAS. Adierika does not gripe! It has no leading.

What good is it to stay in bed if you are wakeful?

Possibly little good, if you persist in fretting over the fact that you can't fall asleep. But if you are wise enough, not to be disconcerted by your wakefulness, you are likely to derive a good deal of benefit from merely staying in bed.

The most evident desirable effect of the recumbent position is due to "taking a load off the heart and circulatory system" as long as you are in the upright position, your heart must pump the blood against the gravitational pull. With your body placed horizontally, your heart is relieved of this task.

Then, too, as long as you are sitting or standing, there is a continuous play of muscles in the effort to keep your body upright. This muscular tension may not be as evident as that experienced and witnessed in motion. But even as the common expression "tired from sitting" reveals, fatigue can arise from the continuous muscle tension required to keep the body erect.

Your body at rest in bed requires less energy to maintain its vital functions. Hence its metabolic rate falls. The systems of elimination have an opportunity to catch up in the task of removing the accumulated waste products. In a word, whether you are asleep or awake, staying in bed constitutes what is aptly phrased as "rest cure."

Of course, all of the above is based on the premise that if you are tired and should stay in bed. If we assume the contrary—that you are not tired and cannot fall asleep—it may be wiser for you to get out of bed and busy yourself in doing something. Activity may induce fatigue, and will keep you from worrying about your sleeplessness.

For the tired person who will not fall asleep, despite a warm drink and a warm bath, we may suggest a good book, one written in a peaceful spirit. If while reading he becomes sleepy, so much to the good; if not, he can have the satisfaction of having profited by his disability.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

What good is it to stay in bed if you are wakeful?

Possibly little good, if you persist in fretting over the fact that you can't fall asleep. But if you are wise enough, not to be disconcerted by your wakefulness, you are likely to derive a good deal of benefit from merely staying in bed.

The most evident desirable effect of the recumbent position is due to "taking a load off the heart and circulatory system" as long as you are in the upright position, your heart must pump the blood against the gravitational pull. With your body placed horizontally, your heart is relieved of this task.

Then, too, as long as you are sitting or standing, there is a continuous play of muscles in the effort to keep your body upright. This muscular tension may not be as evident as that experienced and witnessed in motion. But even as the common expression "tired from sitting" reveals, fatigue can arise from the continuous muscle tension required to keep the body erect.

Your body at rest in bed requires less energy to maintain its vital functions. Hence its metabolic rate falls. The systems of elimination have an opportunity to catch up in the task of removing the accumulated waste products. In a word, whether you are asleep or awake, staying in bed constitutes what is aptly phrased as "rest cure."

Of course, all of the above is based on the premise that if you are tired and should stay in bed. If we assume the contrary—that you are not tired and cannot fall asleep—it may be wiser for you to get out of bed and busy yourself in doing something. Activity may induce fatigue, and will keep you from worrying about your sleeplessness.

For the tired person who will not fall asleep, despite a warm drink and a warm bath, we may suggest a good book, one written in a peaceful spirit. If while reading he becomes sleepy, so much to the good; if not, he can have the satisfaction of having profited by his disability.

IN ORDER TO SERVE YOU BETTER
 After being somewhat torn up for a week we have completed the installation of our new press and the paper you are now receiving is printed thereon. It will take a few days to break the press in properly and make adjustments to obtain the best print from the machine.

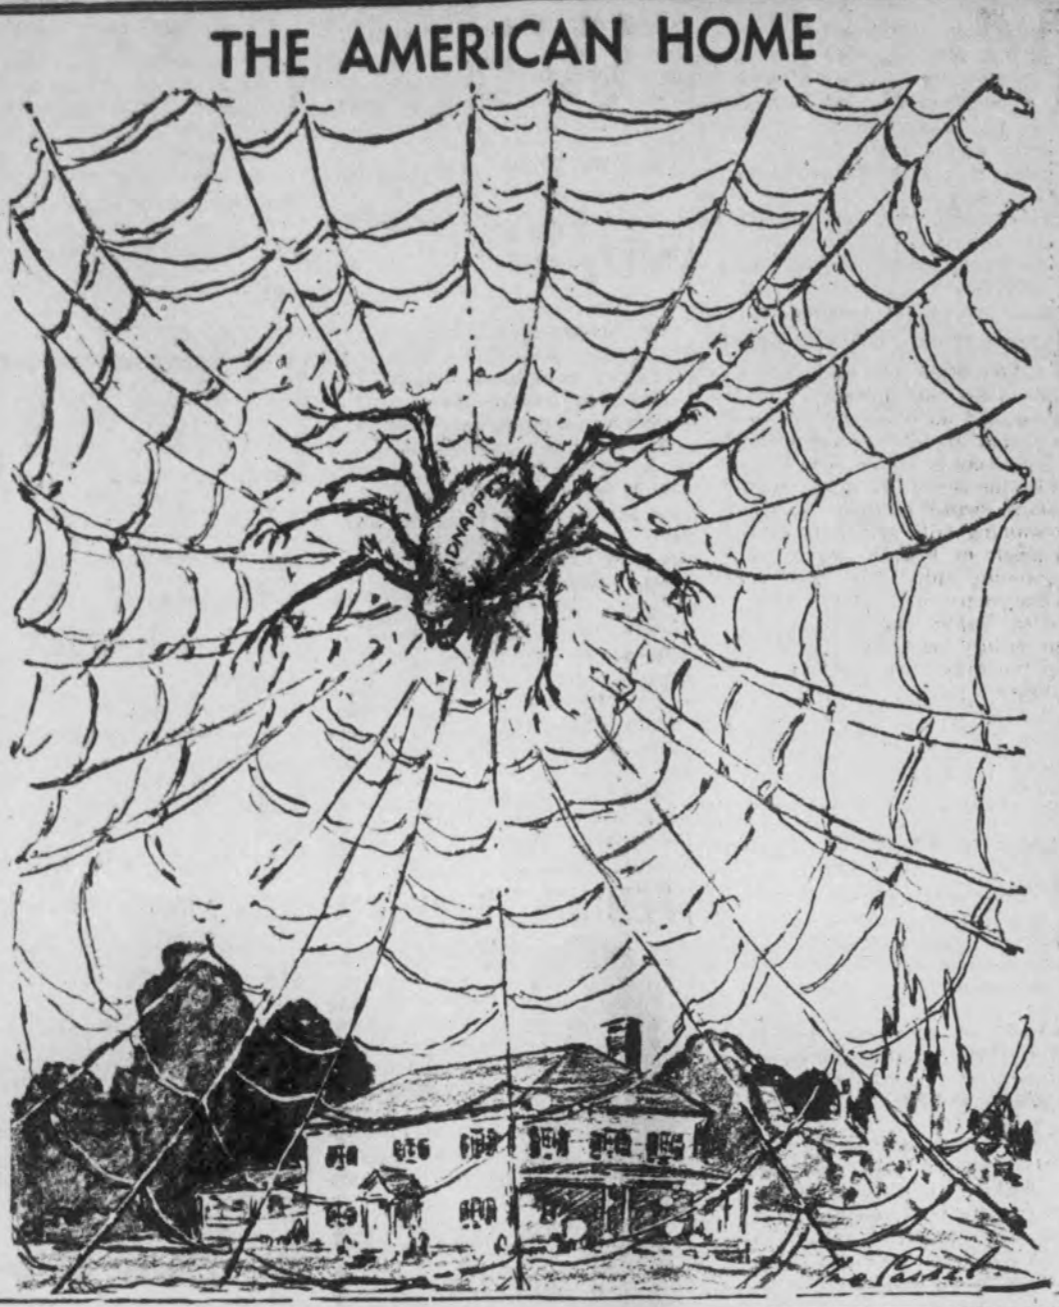

As a rule it is considered no pleasure to spend hard-earned dollars and go in debt in order to make improvements, but Greenville is moving forward and it has been and is our policy to endeavor at all times to stay a step ahead in order to adequately serve this community from a newspaper standpoint. In addition to the new press other minor equipment has been ordered and when received it will enable us to do our job even better.

Besides covering the news of this community as well as receiving the happenings from the outside through the Associated Press, we have recently added several features to make our paper more attractive to our readers, nor is our job along this line ended yet.

Our new press was purchased with attachments that will permit us to print the popular tabloid size papers, and just as soon as final arrangements are made for the desired features now being considered, our Saturday paper, instead of being printed in our regular standard size, will be changed to a week-end pictorial and feature edition with comics.

Just why are we doing all this? It is because, as stated above, Greenville is moving forward. It is the patronage of the people of this community that has made it possible for us to stay in business and serve this community for 55 years. It is our appreciation for this patronage that makes us want to serve our community even better, and it is our confidence that the people of our community will in turn appreciate our efforts towards better service.

Washington Daybook
 By Preston Grover
 Washington — figures don't always lie and they tell a tale of a what-the-hell attitude on the part of American passengers that indicates the Hindenburg disaster won't suddenly cast a pall over all flying. Various airlines in the United States heaped up a record of disasters during the last winter and spring that well might have caused the plane riding public to sit down and think it over a while, but it didn't.
 Department of commerce figures show a steady gain in passenger traffic for the first three months of this year in the face of crackups which knocked off a higher percentage of the customers and crew than the German airship.
 It is true that in the locality of each accident there was a temporary let down in the desire to take to the air and get there quicker. While planes in the Rocky mountains and points west were picking off a quota of passengers, traffic along the Pacific coast went into a slump. Yet they were standing in line in Miami and New York to fly up and down the Atlantic seaboard in the course of spending some of the new cash made available by the oncoming boom.

Here's how the record stands to date:
 1937 1936
 January passengers 46,012 44,061
 February 58,008 41,330
 March 74,972 70,926
 The April figures are not in yet and the department of commerce expects some signs of a temporary setback in the Miami-New York flying for April because of the crash March 25 at Clifton, Pa., in which 13 passengers were killed. But the national total was expected to show a gain, even though the gain might not be so handsome as under happier circumstances.

Tragic as was the burning of the Hindenburg, it served Germany a good turn in another direction. The aerial attack on Guernica, historic Basque city, was fast becoming the focus of widespread indignation, most of it directed at Germany, for many reports indicated the planes which laid 800 dead in the streets of the city were German built and German manned.

The biting speech of Anthony Eden in commons assailing the slaughterer slunk into the interior of American newspapers there to meet an even more scathing attack by Senator Borah, which on any other day would have won heavy-duty headlines on page one.

Man About Manhattan
 By George Tucker

New York — A few weeks hence there will be loosed on the country a horde of eager, ambitious young men, waving skeepeatin diplomas in their hands, ready to tackle the sterner side of life — which, shorn of its glamor, amounts roughly to earning one's bread and butter.
 This essay is a warning to those hopefuls. Don't make any foolish bets that your career will turn into the channel you decided on in college. It doesn't necessarily follow that if you majored in ceramics you will become an engineer.
 Take, for instance, the sad case of Eddy Duchin. He devoted his undergraduate days to the study of pharmacy, but did he become a druggist? Ladies and gentlemen, he never realized that ambition. He slipped into devious routes and wound up in New York as merely a master pianist and one of the country.

 Now his days and nights are filled with a seldom-varying routine of making money. Vulgar stuff, money.
 Let's follow Duchin around the clock for a day, and see for ourselves. We'll begin at the Plaza, where he lives and where, for three seasons, his orchestra has provided the gaiety and the music for the famed Persian room:
 10 a. m.—Is roughly awakened by a valet. You have to hand a man roughly or he won't get up.
 10:00—Breakfast in bed, shave, shower, dresses.
 10:45—Hurries by cab to Frances Robinson - Duff for election lesson.

 11:30—Another lesson in breathing exercises and dramatics.
 12:45—Lunch.
 1:30—Hurries to the music publishers to hear the new tunes. They are "hope" melodies — manuscripts, not yet published, which their sponsors "hope" will become hits.
 2:30—Makes recordings.
 3:30—Listens to auditions at N. B. C. and at Columbia, then confers with his managers in the Squibbs building.
 4:45—Brisk work-out in gymnasium, swim, and rub-down.
 5:30—Tues. shave (yep, he has to shave twice a day), dresses, dines.
 7:30—Goes to work in Persian room, playing until 2 a. m. (3 a. m. on Saturdays).
 2:15 a. m.—Rehearses new tunes with band.
 3:15—Slips out for a bite to eat; buys late papers, and scans sports pages to see whether Boston Red Sox won. He's an incorrigible Boston fan. Then up to bed.

Money Goes Modern

In some places, money strides. In others, it strolls. Market possibilities can be accurately measured by comparative sales speeds.

In GREENVILLE, annual retail sales for furniture and household equipment exceed $374,000.00. Contrast this with $65,461.00, the amount spent by the same number of people in North Carolina. Note the difference—$308,539.00—that's GREENVILLE'S extra buying speed.

March your modern merchandise into the GREENVILLE market, near and far. Picture the ways in which it lightens and brightens family life. Present your special features and improvements. In these days of selective buying, doing this with daily newspaper advertising makes up the buyer's mind.

Money goes modern every day—and daily newspaper advertising starts the first sales steps from the homes to your store.

The Greenies today occupied the undoubted cellar position in the Coastal Plain League as a result of their 7 to 1 defeat at the hands of Williamston yesterday, while at the same time Snow Hill was defeating Kinston to go ahead of the lizards.

The local team will take the field for some time now without the services of Dick Rhabe, one of its leading hitters. The left fielder underwent an emergency appendicitis operation in the hospital last night, his condition was described today as satisfactory, but his loss will be felt by the Greenies. A home run by Rhabe in the eleventh inning accounted for the Greenies' only win of the season.

Somewhat offsetting this loss, however, will be the addition to the line up of Du-wod Stowe who joined the club today.

Manager Bo Parley is working on the task of reducing his club to 14 men. This must be completed by Sunday, according to league rules.

Yesterday's loss to Williamston was the fifth for the Greenies. Delaney pitched the route for the Greenies and was bumped for 13 hits, four for extra bases.

The Martins started their scoring in the third. Three runs resulted from singles by Lakotas and Sharkey, a triple by Willoughby and a strike by Stanley.

Wade's homer accounted for the second pair of four runs made in the sixth. Hits by Ledbetter and Deim, a walk, and a couple of wild pitches produced the first pair.

Greenville's lone score came in the seventh. A triple by a pitched ball, scored when Kline tripped.

Farley, Greenville manager, was the fielding star—he handled nine chances in perfect style at third. Deim and Earp were the top boys in the Martins' defense.

Klass, with a single and a triple led the losers on attack. Earp, Ledbetter, Deim, and Lakotas shared batting honors for the Martins—each made two safeties.

Has Big Day At Bat, But Game Lost 75-15

Ayden — Frankie Ware, Tarboro second-sacker, hit three home runs, a double, and a single—but Frankie's big day wasn't enough to bring his mates victory over Ayden in a "base ball" game.

The Aces won, 17 to 15, although the Edgecombe County outfit lost 17 of the 29 hits which marked the game. A quartet of Tarboro burlers scored 16 walks and one hit-felation ticket. Ayden's three burlers handed out only a half-dozen walks.

Ayden reached the eighth with a 15-14 lead, and a pair of tallies in that stanza settled the issue. McComick walked, Howard sacrificed, Winters erred, Schneider's ground-out, and two runs tallied when Millman singled.

Snow Hill Pulls Out Of Cellar In League

Snow Hill — The Snow Hill Billies climbed out of the Coastal Plain League cellar by rallying for three runs in the ninth inning to defeat Kinston, 4-3.

Woodrow Webb, who had held the Billies to five hits up to the ninth, was bumped for a quartet of safeties in that inning. A pinch double by Cecil Longest drove in two runs to tie the score, and then Horse Mewborn singled to right to send the winning tally across the plate.

A single by Bistrotf started the final inning rally. The next two batters popped out, and it looked as if the Eagles had the game in their victory bag. Hill singled to keep the rally alive, and Schoeder was passed. It was at this stage that Longest, former Carolina hurler, was called on for a pinch hit performance. Then came Mewborn's game-ending single.

Two To One Victory Scored By New Bern

New Bern—Phill Pelham, Doc Smith, and Glenn Mullinax were the heroes of New Bern's 2-1 victory.

Bill let the Buzs down with just four singles, and Mullinax and Manager Smith hit third-inning homers to provide the all-important runs.

The Buz' run came in the fourth — Jarvis doubled with one away, and Brannan sin'ed him home. Except for this flurry, the visitors were helpless against Pelham's hurlin. He retired the losers in order in six innings.

GAS ECONOMY OF FORD V-8 TRUCK EXCEEDS ALL EXPECTATIONS IN TEST

It's one thing to CLAIM gasoline economy—but it's something else to PROVE such a claim under actual road conditions and with regular drivers. The remarkable gasoline economy of Ford V-8 Trucks and Commercial Cars was proved conclusively in the economy test which we conducted Tuesday, May 11th. The V-8s used in this contest were all owned by business men here. Some of these units were three years old.

GREENVILLE DRIVERS PROVED THE REMARKABLE MILEAGE OF FORD V-8 TRUCKS & COMMERCIAL CARS IN TESTS AVERAGING 14.88 MILES PER GALLON FOR TRUCKS and 20.18 MILES PER GALLON FOR COMMERCIAL CARS.

READ THESE RESULTS—YOU WILL REALIZE AS NEVER BEFORE THE FUEL ECONOMY OF FORD V-8 TRUCKS AND COMMERCIAL CARS

SPECIAL FIVE GALLON MILEAGE GUESSING CONTEST $10.00 TO TOM CALHOUN

Every car owner in Greenville and Pitt County was in it to guess how far our demonstrator truck would travel on five gallons of gasoline.

ACTUAL MILEAGE COVERED WAS 79.1 MILES
 Mr. Tom Calhoun Estimated it would cover 79.0 Miles
 SPECIAL AWARDS AND CONSOLATION PRIZES

Each driver of a winning truck or commercial car received $5.00 in cash. Prize winners in this group included:

W. S. Nobles (Hollywood Cleaners) $5.00 John Askew (Askew's Grocery) $5.00

TRUCK AWARD $25.00 To John Askew (Askew's Grocery) 16.19 miles per gallon
 COMMERCIAL CAR AWARD $25.00 To Hollywood Cleaners 23.41 miles per gallon

HOW THE TEST WAS CONDUCTED

Every driver was required to disconnect his fuel tank. A test can was mounted on the unit and connected with the carburetor so that an exact measured quantity of gas was used by each contestant. The actual distance traveled by each unit from starting point to stopping point was measured by disinterested judges and this distance computed into miles per gallon. The official starter for the trucks was Chief of Police George Clark.

Many drivers think of economy chiefly in terms of gasoline mileage. But Ford economy only begins at that point, for in all ways the Ford V-8 is economical to own—economical in first cost; economical in oil consumption; economical in tire wear; economical in repairs and replacements. We believe that this is why we are selling more and more Ford V-8 units to those who have a haulage problem requiring one unit or a whole fleet.

We invite you to come in and have us demonstrate the Ford V-8 to you.

Pitt Farmers Back From Annual Meet In Raleigh

A delegation of 80 Pitt County farmers and farm women has returned from Raleigh where they attended the joint annual meeting of the State's two largest farm cooperatives and heard from Congressman Harold D. Cooley a stirring message, the theme of which was "Cooperation for farmers is the need of the hour."

"I congratulate you as intelligent farmers upon having embraced the opportunity to combine your resources to the end that you may by cooperative effort and actively advance the happiness of yourselves and your families," Mr. Cooley said to the 2500 assembled members of the N. C. Cotton Growers Cooperative Association and the Farmers' Cooperative Exchange. All told these two organizations have a membership of approximately 25,000.

"While you have acted with foresight and wisdom," he went on, "many of those who are engaged in the grand vocation of farming have not yet been willing to join hands with you to the end that agriculture may be in a better position to cope with the large, powerful and efficient organizations which have in the past subjected the farmer to cruel exploitation." He urged each member to serve as a recruiting officer to get others to join in the cooperative movement.

"No one today questions the right or the wisdom of collective bargaining and cooperative effort in the buying, producing and selling aspects of the farmer's business," he declared.

Declaring that the farmer himself must help to build a bridge that will tide him over future depressions, M. G. Mann, general manager of the Cotton Association and the FCX, outlined a three-point farm program which called for:

1. 100 per cent cooperation in the soil conservation program.
2. The purchase by farmers of at least a portion of their farm supplies through their own farmer-owned and farmer-controlled organizations in order to control quality and margins of profit.
3. The cooperative marketing of at least a portion of everything produced on the farm in order that the margin of cost between producer and consumer may be properly regulated.

"Our one aim in the Cotton Association is to help farmers get the high dollar for their cotton," Mr. Mann said in his annual report. As evidence that the "Re-Purchase Plan" is doing just that he cited the fact that more than nine out of every ten bales on which the Association has given a price under its "Re-Purchase Plan" has been ordered sold by the member through the Association. A resolution introduced by W. K. B. B. of Lumberton was passed endorsing the "Re-Purchase Plan" plan of the Cotton Association as "the ideal way for farmers to market their cotton."

Declaring that cotton farmers of North Carolina led more than $2,000,000 last year by selling their cotton without knowing the true grade and staple or the price the mills were paying, Mr. Mann said that "one of the greatest curses in the marketing of cotton today is the fact that farmers are being misled into selling their cotton just as soon as it has been ginned just because it appears to be a little extra trouble to take the cotton from the gin to the warehouse."

More than eight out of every ten bales of the State's total crop last year would have brought the farmer a premium for better staples had it been sold through the Cotton Association, Mr. Mann said, as he pointed out that 85 per cent of the 1936 crop ran 15-16 inch or better. He contrasted this with the situation eight years ago when 80 per cent of all North Carolina cotton was 7-8 inch in staple or less, adding that this increase in quality, adding millions of dollars to the income of farmers, was brought about through the efforts of the State Extension forces and the Cotton Association.

Turning to the Farmers Cooperative Exchange, Mr. Mann reported that since its organization 45 months ago, this state-wide cooperative has done a total volume of business of $5,702,757.97. "In building up this huge volume in such a short period of time the direction and management of the FCX have not wavered one inch from the rigid quality program with which our cooperative program was started," he added.

Mr. Mann pointed out that the FCX not only renders a purchasing service to farmers of the State by making available to them, at the lowest possible cost, open-formula feeds and fertilizers and seeds of known and adapted origin and other farm supplies, but that it also helps in the marketing of such products as eggs, home-grown seed, poultry and potatoes.

A picture of the cooperative movement from the national viewpoint was presented by Dr. Joseph G. Knapp, principal economist with the cooperative division of the Farm Credit Administration, who pointed out that approximately one-eighth of all farm supplies in the nation are purchased cooperatively, while about one-fifth of all farm products are marketed cooperatively. He congratulated the members of the FCX upon the fact that in the 45 months of its operation it has forged ahead until it is now one of the 29 purchasing cooperatives doing a business of more than a million dollars annually.

Talks To Parents

Solitude Needed

Scholars, artists, thinkers, are not mass products, and cannot develop in crowds. Imagination and creative thought flourish only in solitude. One need not be a hermit to think deeply, but one must have a reasonable amount of privacy, both physically and mentally.

For the moment, however, parents and educators seem to have forgotten this. Every effort is made to keep a child busy and to herd him with other children. Schools, like factories, are asked to turn out smooth finished products which will fit right into the activities of modern life. And the homes turn the children over to the schools as early as possible, and for as many hours a week as the schools will agree to.

The results in a few years show a world as efficient as an anti-hill, and just about as interesting.

All children are not alike to start with, and do not need the same training. Some children do not need to go to school as early as others. It is not necessary to make every child just like every other. It is the infinite variation of mankind that makes life interesting and inspiring.

Children should be left alone more, and encouraged to think. They should be given an opportunity to discover resources within themselves. Every child should have

Of all the folks making whiskey, I don't suppose there's a one that believes in the modern way of doing things more than us Wilkens. Peers Kneel In Homage To New King at this meeting Friday, Moore said, although it may have to postpone the new price lists for several days.

A number of new regulations have already been completed, however, and these will be explained to the county board members.

The state board is now working out a stock list of some 400 members, which will include some 200 brands which have proved to be the best sellers in the county stores. From this list the county boards or their purchasing officials will be permitted to purchase some 200 to 250 numbers consisting of from 100 to 150 different brands. Chairman Moore explained. The prices for all these numbers will be fixed by the state ABC board, and the prices will be the same in all the stores, regardless of location. This is expected to bring about a material reduction in the price of liquor in the stores in the inland counties, leave the prices near the Virginia line, which are now the same as the Virginia prices, just as they are. All the stores will be required to absorb the 7 per cent state sales tax.

Several of the new regulations adopted have to do with the relations of liquor salesmen to the county stores. One prohibits any liquor salesmen entering a store to contact any of the employees, except to buy liquor as a customer.

Another prohibits the carrying of samples by liquor salesmen or the giving away of samples to any one not even county ABC store members.

CONVICT TRIO OF EXTORTION

Sanford Youths Given Suspended Sentences in Case

Three Sanford youths convicted of attempting to extort $15,000 from Miss Pearl Lautares of Greenville, member of the Sanford High school faculty, were given suspended sentences and the case was closed at a hearing before Judge D. B. Teague.

The three defendants, Wilbur Foushee, George Daniels and Ellis Hight, all 16 years of age, were given six month sentences each, suspended upon provision they pay the court cost and remain of good behavior for two years.

Miss Lautares testified that she had received the note demanding she place money at a specified spot and stating that she "would never teach here or any where else unless the money was left at the place designated."

Chief of Police M. J. Thomas and Officer Paul Watson testified that the youths confessed to writing the note following their arrest. They did not testify.

The note which Miss Lautares received bore the customary skull and cross bones, signed "Squaler." It stated that unless the money was received she "would never teach here or anywhere else."

After receiving the threat she immediately conveyed the note to Chief of Police Marvin J. Thomas and Officer Paul Watson, who later arrested the boys at school.

Judge D. B. Teague presided.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 13.—(AP)—Stocks fell with a resounding thud in today's market as fresh labor upsets under a secret dent in Wall Street trading confidence.

At the worst many leading issues were off one to more than four points at new lows for the year or longer. The selling burst which came in the second hour put the ticker tape several minutes behind for a while. Mild support later reduced extreme losses and activity dwindled substantially near the fourth hour.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Transfers were around 1,800,000 shares.

Require Counties To Buy Liquor From Warehouse

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, May 13.—The state liquor board is going to license several warehouses — probably not more than two to begin with — and require all the county liquor stores to purchase their liquor stocks through these warehouses, also require all distillers and wholesalers to make all their shipments to these warehouses unless county boards are able to buy in carload lots, Chairman Cutler Moore of the state alcoholic beverages control board said today.

The object of this plan is to keep an accurate check on all the liquor shipped into the state and delivered to the county liquor stores, so as to prevent diversion of any liquor shipments to bootleggers, Moore explained. All distillers and wholesalers will be required to send duplicates of all invoices sold in the state to the state liquor board and to route their shipments through these warehouses. In this manner, the state board will be able to check the amount of liquor purchased by county stores against the amount sold, and if there is any discrepancy, they will know where to look for the trouble, Moore pointed out. This plan will also enable many of the county stores to buy their liquor at lower prices, since distiller can ship orders for 18 or 20 stores all at one time to one warehouse, where they now have to ship to 50 or 60 different stores in broken lots.

"The first thing we are trying to do is to break up bootlegging and to make it increasingly hard for the bootleggers to get government tax-paid liquor," Chairman Moore said. "Under the present system, with 50 or more distillers shipping several hundred brands to 60 or more different liquor stores in 18 different counties, it is impossible to tell how much of the liquor shipped goes to legal county stores or whether some of it is diverted to bootleggers for illegal sale in bootleg liquor stores in dry as well as wet counties. We do know that bootleggers are having little or no trouble in getting whatever brands of liquor they want and that they are selling a tremendous amount of it, especially in the so-called 'dry' counties."

"By requiring all of the county liquor stores to purchase their liquor through one or two central warehouses, where every order will be carefully checked both with the orders from the stores and the invoices from the distillers, we will be able to keep an accurate record of the amount ordered by and delivered to every store, which will then be checked later with the amount sold by every store. We are also going to insist that deliveries be made from the warehouses to the stores only in the day time, by bonded drivers — and that there must be two drivers on every truck. These official trucks from the licensed warehouses will be the only one which will be permitted to haul liquor anywhere within the state, and then only between the warehouses and the liquor stores in wet counties. Thus officers in other counties will know that any other trucks found transporting liquor are doing so illegally and in violation of the state law, unless they are transporting it in interstate commerce."

This new system will not increase the wholesale cost of liquor to the county liquor stores, but will actually decrease it, Moore said, since many of the distillers will be able to sell and ship their liquor in larger lots. A number of distillers are already quoting over prices to the state board than they have been quoting to county boards. But purchases will still be made by the county board or purchasing agents, by and with the approval of the state board. There will be a uniform delivery charge of 30 cents a erally larger and have a better finish than those on check plots. While 50 to 80 per cent of the berries from unsprayed plots have dead caps, only 15 to 30 per cent of the sprayed berries have a similar condition. The preservation of green caps adds considerably to the appearance and market value of the berries.

All of the growers cooperating in the spraying demonstrations appear to be pleased with the results obtained, Dr. Shaw declared.
