Basques Go Over Top in Series of Counter Attacks

NATIONS AGREE SEEK ARMISTICE

Germany and Italy Reported to Have Withdrawn Opposition to Proposal

(By Associated Press)
Hendaye, Franco Spanish frontier, May 21.—(AP)—Insurgents reported incendiary bombs set fire to a Basque yacht carrying refugees out of Bilbao. The report said the yacht was fired during an insurgent government aerial battle in which a government plane was shot down. Basque militiamen at Bilbao, supported by government lines, went over the top in a series of counter attacks.

Bilbao, May 21.—(AP)—Two captured German aviators downed on the Basque front were sentenced to death on charges of military rebellion and murder.

London, May 21.—(AP)—Diplomatic sources said reported German and Italian opposition to proposals for a Spanish civil war armistice and withdrawal of foreign volunteers have ended and that all countries are willing to join in armistice discussions.

Paris, France, May 21.—(AP)—France, Belgium and the Vatican were said to have approved the British plan for an armistice in Spain and withdrawal of foreign volunteers. The plan was reported to call for sending international commissions to Spain to bring about a truce.

Valencia, May 21.—(AP)—The Ugt (General Labor Union) national committee met to decide its policy under the government of Premier Negrin in its relationship with the Cnt (National Confederation of Labor), a rival organization of Anarco-Syndicalists labor unionists.

Local ABC Boards Bury Hatchet And Accept State Rule

Warfare Between County and State Offices Declared to Have Been Brought to End Finally

Raleigh, May 21.—All is peace and harmony between the state liquor control board and the county liquor control boards and the warfare which for a time seemed to be brewing between these groups has apparently vanished, as a result of the conference held here Thursday between the members of the state board and a committee representing the county boards.

In the course of this conference the members of the committee representing the county boards expressed their complete approval of the rules and regulations which have been drawn up by the state board, even to the removal of telephones and board offices from liquor stores and the strict regulations governing liquor salesmen and prohibiting the distribution of samples.

"The members of the committee assured us that they had no objections to the rules and regulations and would give us the fullest cooperation in enforcing them," Chairman Moore said.

No mention was made whatever of the prices to be charged, the base rate to be used, or as to how the state sales tax of 7 per cent would be distributed, Moore said. After the meeting one of the members of the committee asked if the new price lists and schedules had been completed, and was told they would not be ready until some time next week.

"I am greatly pleased at the attitude shown by the members of the committee and by the county boards," Moore said.

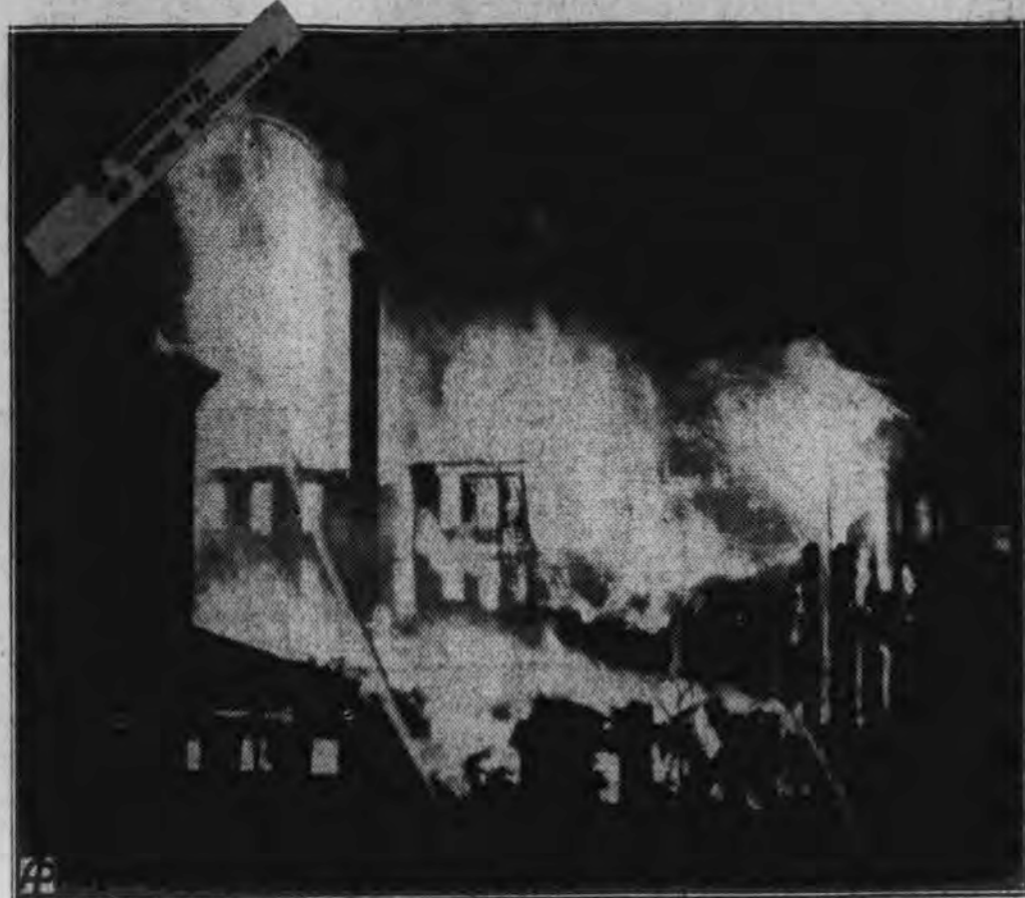

The members of the committee which conferred with the state board were: W. D. McMillan, Wilmington, chairman of the New Hanover county liquor board; T. T. Thomas, Tarboro, Edgecombe county; Mark Lassiter, Snow Hill, Greene county; Charles Horne, Greenville, Pitt county and R. L. Corbitt, Edgecombe county.

Under the new 1937 liquor law, the state board has authority to remove county board operations "for cause" or if they refuse to cooperate with the state board.

Speculation Over Return Of Lindys

Occupants Flee For Lives In Hotel Fire

Occupants fled for their lives when fire raged through the palatial Loch Arbour Hotel, fashionable summer resort at Loch Arbour, N. J. The flames—of mysterious origin—destroyed the hotel and threatened to wipe out the community's entire colony of cottages. This picture was made while firemen from 20 nearby towns waged a futile fight against the fire.

Plenty Of Reason For Going 'Nerts'

Raleigh, May 21.—If Bob Thompson, private secretary to Governor Clyde R. Hoey, ever goes "nerts," it will be from reading the many "nut" letters which are sent to Governor Hoey every day and which he must laboriously wade through and then figure out a courteous reply. For it is a rule in the Governor's office that a reply must be sent to every letter received, no matter how "nutty" it may be—and it is part of Thompson's job to send out these replies.

It is no secret here, of course, that Governor Hoey never sees the majority of the letters, post cards, circulars, clippings, articles, pleas for financial aid—and of course, jobs. All letters are first opened and read by some one else, usually Private Secretary Thompson, who passes on to the Governor only those letters regarded as important enough to warrant his personal attention.

ENGINE SPARK THEORY IS OUT

Chief Construction Director Witness at Investigation

Lakehurst, N. J., May 21.—(AP)—Dr. Ludwig Duerr, chief construction director of the Hindenburg, told the Department of Commerce Investigating Board today it was impossible to set a dirigible on fire by engine sparks.

His testimony struck a blow at the theory sparks flying from the motor exhaust somehow ignited the ship's highly inflammable hydrogen and caused the May 6 disaster which took 36 lives.

Meantime Cuxhaven, German North seaport town, draped in mourning colors and with flags on its ships and buildings at half mast, sorrowfully welcomed 26 victims of the disaster home to Germany.

The bodies of 25 victims arrived on the German liner Hamburg and were taken to the great hall of the Hamburg-American line, where the Raleigh, May 21.—"Of the 37,869 North Carolina babies who died during the past 10 years, before they were one year old, 25,000 succumbed before they were two weeks old," Dr. Roy Norton, assistant director of the Division of Preventive Medicine, State Board of Health, said here today.

"This means that during every 14 year period, we lose as many babies as are born in any single year. No other wastage or carelessness in our modern life is comparable to this tragedy."

"This is even more significant when we consider that, with proper medical pre-natal and obstetric care most of these deaths are preventable. In thus striving to save our babies, we can prevent much of the disability and many of the deaths of mothers."

Germany Seeks Determine Where Cardinal Got Data

Powerful Secret Police Attempting to Trace Source

Berlin, May 21.—(AP)—The powerful Gestapo, German secret state police, began today to seek detailed information sources from which it is believed George Cardinal Mundelein obtained the information for his castigation of the Third Reich's attitude toward the Catholic church. Reproductions of purported American newspaper accounts published here said the Chicago Cardinal obtained his data about "immoral" trials of German Catholic monks and lay brothers and other material on the church-state situation from German residents, relayed in Illinois.

If the identity of any of these Germans can be established, it was learned, they will be punishable under a German law which classifies as treason the circulation of "false reports" likely to do damage to the fatherland.

The penalty for treason is the headsman's axe.

Meanwhile the controlled Nazi press renewed its broadsides against American Jews and Catholics and demanded the Vatican "call to order" Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago for attacks on Adolf Hitler.

The outbursts were extended to include not only the Cardinal, but Catholics and Jews generally and Mayor LaGuardia of New York, in particular.

Airplane Used In Sending Film Here

"The show must go on," is a common phrase in the entertainment world, but such an example was demonstrated here today when the Pitt theatre found its film scheduled for today and tomorrow had not arrived.

A telephone call to distributing offices in Charlotte revealed that the film had not been sent as ordered. With only a few hours from the scheduled time for the theatre to open, an airplane was the only means of transportation by which the picture could be sent here in time. The plane was chartered and brought the picture as far as Goldsboro. An automobile was sent there for it.

The plane was forced to stop at Goldsboro because of inadequate airport facilities here.

The picture, "They Gave Him a Gun," is being shown at the Pitt today and tomorrow.

STRIKE HURTS N. C. FARMERS

TruckCrops Face Serious Loss as Result of Dispute

Raleigh, May 21.—(AP)—Agriculture Commissioner Kerr Scott said today he had appealed to the I. C. C. for "protection of North Carolina truck crop growers who face serious economic loss as a result of the teamster strike" at Philadelphia.

Scott asked John Rogers, Director of the Commission of Bureau of Motor Carriers to advise immediately "what can be done."

Commodities which Scott said are being affected by the strike are: strawberries from Columbus, Duplin and Wayne counties; beans and cabbages from New Hanover; Pender and Columbus; peas from Washington, Beaufort, Wayne, Pasquotank, Duplin, Pamlico and Currituck and mixed vegetable crops en route.

Rivers Johnson, attorney for the Paison Board of Trade, telegraphed Scott this morning the "teamsters strike in Philadelphia is seriously affecting the price and movement of May peas and strawberries from this section and large quantities of produce are there (Philadelphia) from Paison and can not be handled. Situation cripples our farmers."

Four Escape When Balloon Is Fired

Dunn, May 21.—(AP)—Four army officers from Fort Bragg barely escaped serious injury near here today when their balloon caught fire as it landed. A gust of wind caught the blazing hydrogen bag, saving the men.

Staff Sergeant Kenneth Thyer of the Second Balloon Squadron, a member of the ground crew which had followed by trucks, was slightly injured when the bag blew up in his direction.

The party set out from Fort Bragg today at 6:30 o'clock on a routine training flight.

Three miles south of here, as their basket hit the ground in what seemed a regular landing, one of the men pulled the rip cord. The hydrogen immediately caught fire, he said.

It costs $13,411 to train a flying cadet, and $12,892 to train a navy officer to fly at the Pensacola aviation school.

Call Out The Reserves; That Cat's Back Again

Mayfield, Ky., May 21.—(AP)—George Bingham, who writes a daily front page editorial column in the Mayfield Messenger, got a letter from Kay Wyatt.

It speaks for itself: "My father, Deiver Wyatt, of Mayfield, discovered that a very mean-outlaw tom-cat had been eating our chickens. He shot the cat two times Friday morning, then knocked him in the head with a stick and threw him into a cistern, which was about 12 feet deep. The cat weighed 12 pounds.

"Sunday evening as my father was fixing to milk the cows, this same mean-outlaw tom-cat had come back to earth, having climbed out of the cistern, and was full of fight. "My father yelled for my Bargaining Contract Handed Jones and Laughlin Co.

VICTORY HAILED BY C.I.O. LEADERS

Strike in Film Studios Postponed Indefinitely Pending Negotiations on Demands

Pittsburgh, May 21.—(AP)—The Steel Workers Organizing Committee, victorious in the nation's first major employee election under the supervision of the government, presented a collective bargaining contract today to the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation.

The contract was received by Chairman H. E. Lewis of the corporation at a conference with Chairman Philip Murray of the steel union, spearhead of the John Lewis industrial unionization drive. The two leaders will meet again tomorrow when the contract possibly may be signed.

(By Associated Press)
The C. I. O. hailed its victory in the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation today as a forerunner of collective bargaining throughout the steel industry.

Out of 24,412 votes cast by employees in the biggest election conducted under authority of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, 17,028 ballots favored the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee as bargaining representative.

With the election out of the way, C. I. O. officials renewed their drive for collective bargaining contracts from other independent producers.

While ballots were being counted in Pittsburgh about 500 miners entrenched themselves 360 feet underground at Gillespie, Ill. in a dramatic bid from concession from the Superior Coal Company. The strikers sought a stagger system of work that would permit employment of 300 fellow workers made idle by the closing of another pit for repairs.

Final Session Of Cub Scout Course Scheduled Monday

Pack Will Be Registered for Year at Conclusion of Meeting in Episcopal Parish House

The final meeting of the training course for Cub parents will be held at the Episcopal Parish House Monday night at 8 o'clock. At the conclusion of the meeting the Pack will be registered for the coming year and the organization of the Pack will be completed. For this reason, a full attendance will be necessary.

J. Knott Proctor, chairman of the attendance committee said that those in attendance last Monday night were enthusiastic about the work and the committee was pleased with the number that attended. They further wish to urge that every one present last Monday come again to the last meeting and bring some friend with them.

Parents of boys nine, 10 or 11 years old that did not attend the first meeting are urged to attend the last one. E. R. Conway, Cubbing chairman of the East Carolina Council, emphasized the necessity of parents being trained for Cubbing before their son can get the most out of the program.

Cubbing is a program for young boys has proven to be worth while in all of the communities where it has been used according to the principles laid down by the Boy Scouts of America. In some cases where it has not been used in its entirety the program has failed to do the maximum good.

Clarkton, N. C., May 21.—(AP)—The Waccamaw Bank & Trust company's branch bank here was robbed today of between $2,000 and $3,000 by two unmasked bandits, who escaped in car.

Cashier R. S. Troy told officers he, James Wooten and Miss Isabelle Cromartie, all employees, were covered with a pistol and forced into the vault by one of the men who had entered the bank and asked change for a $20 bill.

Neutrality Bill Declared Insufficient Prevent War

Bernard Baruch Says Act Not Neutrality Bill at All

Cleveland, Ohio, May 21.—(AP)—Bernard Baruch, former chairman of the War Industries board, said in a prepared speech here today the Pittman neutrality bill is not a "neutrality bill at all."

"The Pittman act may or may not keep us from actually fighting in another war, but it certainly does not prevent our taking part in any such war," he said. "On the contrary, it may require us to take a very effective part—perhaps the determining part."

Baruch addressing the foreign affairs council, said he does not condemn the Pittman act.

"It is an uncharted sea," he declared. "I am only trying to consider it cold-bloodedly—to warn in the absence of experience that it may be disappointing and negative in results. . . . It is the exact reverse of keeping out of war in the modern sense."

The Pittman bill prohibits certain implements of war from being sold or shipped to nations at war, prohibits giving them credit and among other things mandates that Americans shall not travel on "belligerent ships" except as the President permits.

Baruch said no nation is completely self contained for purposes of supply in war.

Many Angles Involved In High Court Appointments

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, May 21.—Many different angles are involved in the speculation as to whom Governor Clyde R. Hoey will appoint as the two new members of the state supreme court, especially some very fine and involved political angles, judging from the talk heard in political circles here.

Most of the speculation, incidentally, is concerning the appointment of the new member from the east, since it is agreed in most circles that the western appointment will go to Stanley Winborne of Marion, if he wants it—and indications are that every lawyer in the state is in a receptive attitude.

For more than ten days now opinion has been growing to the effect that Judge M. V. Barnhill of Rocky Mount has the edge on the entire field seeking the eastern ap-

National Forty Hour Week and 40-Cent Wage Objectives

President Outlines to Newsmen Plans for Spending Huge Flood Control Sum

Washington, May 21.—(AP)—Informed congressmen said today the administration would seek to write a 40-hour work week and a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour into law this session.

They said President Roosevelt would recommend such legislation to congress in a special message and it would be introduced by Chairman Connery (D. Mass.) of the House Labor Committee.

The law will be sufficiently elastic it was said to permit individual solution for the peculiar problems of industries whose interest would not be served best by blanket regulations.

A flat prohibition against child labor was predicted.

Meanwhile administration leaders, meeting in a closed conference with Works Progress Administrator Harry Hopkins determined to put President Roosevelt's $1,500,000 relief request through the House unchanged.

Representative Boland of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip, said the meeting completed arrangements to pass the bill without amendments or earmarkings which would be "contrary to the wishes of the President."

At the White House the President met with newspapermen and discussed another subject affecting the administration's economy program, flood control appropriations.

He outlined a plan for spending about $11,000,000 on flood works in the Ohio Valley without upsetting the budget.

The Chief Executive said he had given no thought for the choice of a successor to Associate Justice Van Devanter whose retirement from the Supreme Court becomes effective in June.

Meantime the House adopted a resolution naming Representative Warren (D. N. C.) speaker pro tem for several days next week during which Speaker Bankhead will be in Alabama.

Joker Amendment To N. C. Wine Law Defeats Purpose

Small Manufacturers Virtually Frozen Out by Amendment of New Avenue Act

Raleigh, May 21.—A "Joker" amendment to the section of the 1937 revenue act imposing a tax on wine and fixing various license taxes on manufacturers, bottlers, wholesalers and retailers of wine, has the effect of giving one or two large manufacturers a virtual monopoly on the manufacture of wine in North Carolina and of "freezing out" smaller manufacturers, although the law as originally designed was supposed to encourage grape growing and the manufacture of natural wines by grape growers and farmers generally, according to Representative Oscar C. Barker of Durham.

"Under the law as finally amended, no one can make any wine in North Carolina, except for his own use, bottle it and sell it without first paying $50 in state license fees, while in order to make wine, bottle it and sell it at wholesale, he must pay license fees amounting to $650 a year," Barker said. "This means that no one but a few big manufacturers can afford to pay these very large license taxes and that the grape growers and farmers who have been growing grapes and berries and making wine the past two years, which they have been selling at roadside stands or locally, cannot make any more unless they pay out a minimum of $508 in license taxes."

Those who claim to know the "inside story" of the amendments to the wine law, maintain they were written in the Sir Walter Hotel here by attorneys and executives of Garrett and Company, big wine manufacturing concern of Brooklyn, which already has several processing plants in the state and buys grapes by the ton from producers. It is pointed out that this law will virtually compel farmers, grape and berry growers to sell their fruit to one or two large companies, at whatever prices are offered, or else let them rot on the vines. It is generally conceded that Garrett and Company lobbied through the 1935 wine law, which threw the state virtually wide open, as far as the manufacture and sale of wine was concerned, under the guise of being an act to help the farmers. The new 1937 act slaps the farmers, pointment. One of the reasons for this is that Judge Barnhill is regarded as having the finest assortment of spontaneous and unsolicited endorsements from virtually every section of the state that has yet reached the Governor. Indications also are that these endorsements have made quite an impression in the executive offices.

But political considerations are also pointing strongly towards the selection of Judge Barnhill for the eastern court post. One school of political thought here maintains that if the Governor wants to score a political bulls eye and deal the rift in the Democratic ranks that became so pronounced in the primaries last year in the counties in this eastern sector, he cannot do better than appoint Barnhill to the supreme court. They point out that

SAYS NURSING LIBERALS LOSE SERIOUS TASK CHIEF TARGET

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett Addresses Hospital Graduates

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County health officer, delivered an address before the 1937 graduating class of the Park View Hospital Training School for Nurses at Rocky Mount last night, using as his topic, "What Has The Field of Nursing to Offer the Graduate Nurses?"

"There is no other vocation so peculiar a woman's as that of nursing," he said, "and not only does nursing presuppose an economic independence and the satisfaction of being a useful member of society, but it more nearly satisfies the maternal instinct than does any other vocation."

Dr. Ennett pointed out that the main divisions of nursing are private duty, institutional, Army, Navy, Red Cross, and Public Health. He related the rewards offered in each of these divisions in seriation—adding that no other field of nursing offers so many attractive features as does Army nursing. He also referred to the Red Cross and Public Health nurses and the part they play in daily nursing activities.

"Modern nursing is analogous to modern medicine," he declared, "and both are concerned primarily with the prevention rather than with the cure of disease. As in the medical profession, so in the nursing profession, the 'old order changeth. Prevention of disease is the watchword."

"The Macedonian cry from the field of public health and preventive medicine has been heard not by the physicians only, but also by the nurse as well, and she is answering this call in ever-increasing numbers."

Dr. Ennett told the graduate nurses that they cannot get the most out of their work unless they bring to it, unlimited enthusiasm and the habit of systematic reading. It is enthusiasm, he said, that sets one's powers free.

He quoted an excerpt of an essay appearing in a book written by Woodrow Wilson entitled, "When A Man Comes To Himself," and began the essay with these words:

"It is a very wholesome and regenerating change which a man undergoes when he comes to himself. The college man feels the first shock of it a graduation when the boy's life has been lived and the man's life suddenly begins."

"He has measured himself with boys; he knows their code and feels the need of their ideals and achievements, but what the world expects of him he has yet to find out. Just now he is a senior at the top of the world he knew and reigned in, a finished product and patterned in good form."

"Of a sudden, he is a novice again, but presently, if he be made of stuff that will shake into shape and fitness, he settles to his task. He has come to himself, understands his capacity and what it was meant for, sees that his being was not for ornament or personal gratification, but to teach him how to use himself in the interest of his fellowmen."

In concluding his address, Dr. Ennett told his audience that whether they selected as their professional career, private duty, institutional, Army, Navy, Red Cross or Public Health nursing, above all else, and that is, that the four essentials to a full, happy life are: work, play, love, and health.

Van DeVanter Had Been Objective of Thrusts for Years

Washington, May 21.—Analyzing the career of retiring Justice Willis Van DeVanter in the light of cold objectivity is a trying task, for rarely has there been a public figure so subject to the blow-torch of the liberals.

The tom-toms of the liberals began beating around his ears almost as soon as he mounted to the Supreme Court in 1911 and the din has abated from time to time evidently only because liberals occasionally found other subjects to take up.

He was assistant attorney general from 1897 to 1903 with an assignment to the interior department. From the stand-point of a serene public life, it was an unfortunate time to be holding a post in the interior department. In those years, as well as before and after, were perpetrated the coal deals ever afterward known as "steals" in which railroads, public figures and the rich and acquisitive in all directions sacked the public domain of its finest coal lands.

The interstate commerce commis-

son, in a report in 1908, said the acquisition of coal lands by certain western railroads during the years around the turn of the century was attended by "fraud, perjury and violence."

An old time campaigning liberal magazine called "Everybody's" published an article in 1912 entitled "Big Business and the Courts" in which Van DeVanter was made the target of many a barbed shot.

The recent criticism of the "conservative" members of the court has been directed more at Justice McReynolds, but Van DeVanter has been bracketed in the fire of blood hungry liberals anxious to see the speed-up system applied to the courts.

The elderly justice has had 50 years of public life, which is a long time, even if public good-will had always been his. Perhaps a major solace on his retirement is the belief shared by so many that his withdrawal was the final blow necessary to beat down the President's court plan. He has been so unshakingly opposed to Presidential policies that, bringing down such a target would be as much sport to him as bulleting down a fat goose from his favorite hunting blind.

He has a 188-acre farm in Maryland, just off Chesapeake Bay. He has a hundred acres in wheat and probably will steadfastly deny that Secretary Wallace and his crop control program had anything to do with the present comforting price offered for his crop.

Assuredly he can live comfortably there on $20,000 a year he will draw as retired pay. And that may not be all. The justice doubtless is a canny man and who can say he will not sometime be receiving benefit checks from a c.o.p. contract set up to replace the AAA he had a hand in setting.

son, in a report in 1908, said the acquisition of coal lands by certain western railroads during the years around the turn of the century was attended by "fraud, perjury and violence."

An old time campaigning liberal magazine called "Everybody's" published an article in 1912 entitled "Big Business and the Courts" in which Van DeVanter was made the target of many a barbed shot.

The recent criticism of the "conservative" members of the court has been directed more at Justice McReynolds, but Van DeVanter has been bracketed in the fire of blood hungry liberals anxious to see the speed-up system applied to the courts.

The elderly justice has had 50 years of public life, which is a long time, even if public good-will had always been his. Perhaps a major solace on his retirement is the belief shared by so many that his withdrawal was the final blow necessary to beat down the President's court plan. He has been so unshakingly opposed to Presidential policies that, bringing down such a target would be as much sport to him as bulleting down a fat goose from his favorite hunting blind.

He has a 188-acre farm in Maryland, just off Chesapeake Bay. He has a hundred acres in wheat and probably will steadfastly deny that Secretary Wallace and his crop control program had anything to do with the present comforting price offered for his crop.

Assuredly he can live comfortably there on $20,000 a year he will draw as retired pay. And that may not be all. The justice doubtless is a canny man and who can say he will not sometime be receiving benefit checks from a c.o.p. contract set up to replace the AAA he had a hand in setting.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: Our wild, stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunt, opens with the mysterious shooting of a death of attractive Jude Blushop. A series of strange attacks is apparently explained when we find below the bluff the body of Michael's mad father, supposedly long since dead. Then Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder by an unseen hand and the Skipper, Mike's tall and tweedy younger aunt, disappears. I leave Mike with his fiancée, Guy Palmer, and start out to get William, the Chauffeur, and hunt for the Skipper. But first I search the body of Norman Farrington and find a key.

Chapter 31

The Unfed Dogs

REPLACING the cover, I stepped to the door and tried the key in its lock. It worked immediately. I turned out the lights and moved through the hall to the dining room door. It worked in that lock too. A skeleton key!

Then someone had certainly enticed Norman Farrington to his death. Only a person without a key would have broken the lock to get into or out of Jude's room. And mad as he was, Norman Farrington had left that locked room at least once.

With the weight of evidence already against me, I dared not be found with that key. I pushed it hurriedly with my handkerchief and returned it to its original resting place. There was only one consolation. The murderer either did not know of or had overlooked the key's existence. I switched off the game room lights a second time. There was no help for it. I must take the risk of his remembering and finding that key.

The servants hall was empty and rapidly darkening in the gloom of the February twilight. I passed through it quickly into the kitchen, where I found all the servants. Higgins, Cook and Annie were at the table drinking coffee. William in his boots and oilskins was coming down the stairs, a sou'wester in his hand. It didn't take a Sherlock Holmes to deduce what they had been talking about. There was a dead silence. Annie began to blush furiously. So either William or Higgins had talked, after all.

"I'm going with you instead of Mr. Michael, William," I said. "His arm is bothering him. I don't think he should go outside."

To say that this information was not well received would be to put it mildly. William favored me with a sullen stare. Annie started to say something and was heavily shushed by Cook. Higgins' face held a positively malignant leer.

"I think that's a good idea, sir," his voice was silky. "While you're in charge, it's only right that you should do all the searching."

I tried to ignore him. "Have you a good flashlight, William? It may be dark in the stable."

William's answer might best be described as a sort of grunt. But he dragged a flashlight from his pocket and handed it to me. At the door I paused with one more question.

"Have any of you seen Miss Barbara at all this afternoon—or heard anyone leaving the house?"

"No," said Cook and Annie in the same breath.

"Not that I recall, sir," from Higgins.

Watched by William

WILLIAM followed me out into the late afternoon. It had cleared miraculously. The wind, if not altogether dead, was rapidly dying, and there was a crisp snap in the air, infinitely refreshing after the caged atmosphere indoors. Gratefully I filled my lungs with the salty tang. A single star glowed in the red-rimmed west and beyond it to the south, the gray-and-white tumble of the Sound stretched before us. William allowed scant time for observing it.

"Are you in a hurry, Mr. Wells?" I was in a hurry. I turned on my heel and led the way down the rapidly freezing drive toward the stable. William stalking sullenly behind me halfway down the drive, I stopped short.

"We shall have to go back, William." The man was watching me like a hawk. "Why?" curiously.

"I'm pretty sure the stable's locked, and I forgot to get a key."

"I've got a key here."

His laugh grated on my nerves. We went on in silence. I reflected that if the stable were locked, the chances of the Skipper's being inside were very slight. I could, however, check up very easily on whether the dogs had been fed. If they had, it would be a simple matter to check back and find out whether someone other than the Skipper had fed them.

"Who usually feeds the dogs, William?" I inquired.

"Miss Barbara. Always."

"Always? Even the last few days?"

"Once or twice I've fed them for her—but not lately."

Of course not. I might have known that William would say just that. "Then who did feed them these last few days?" I demanded bluntly.

"I don't know," and William plodded on.

The stable and garage doors were both securely padlocked. William opened the former without a word, and we stepped inside.

"Skipper!" I shouted at the top of my lungs.

There was no answer, except for the yowling of the dogs. I looked into every one of those stalls. Some of them had a little water, but there was no food in any of them. The animals were ravenous. The collie bitch sprang at me viciously, subsiding with a whimper when I spoke to her. The others were baying wildly at their chains and yelping mournfully. So the Skipper had forgotten to feed her dogs—from the looks of them had forgotten it two days in a row.

"William," I said, "the minute we get back to the house, see that these dogs are fed."

"Yes, sir." The Skipper's forgetting her dogs was equivalent to Napoleon's forgetting his army. "It's—funny, sir."

The Only Earthly Reason

I AGREED that it certainly was. With poor old Farrington stretched out on the game room table, these dogs were the only earthly reason for the Skipper's leaving the house. And she had not been near them. Where the blazes was she then? I mounted the ladders and peered into one loft after the other, shining the light all around them. One disclosed the few dusty footprints that I myself had left there yesterday. On the other, the undisturbed film of a decade still rested. I came down slowly.

"We may as well look in the garage," I said.

William's grunt might have meant almost anything. We locked the stable door behind us and entered the garage. The dry smears of clay hopelessly blurred under our impatient feet. The place smelled stuffy and dead. I called again and again, but there was no answer.

"Upstairs!" suggested William.

For the second time in as many days, I mounted those steps. The first time I had feared to find something up there. Now I was praying that I would—praying against a heavy weight in my chest that told me it was useless.

"Upstairs!" suggested William.

IF SALADS SKID, KNIVES ARE OKAY, DEAN TELLS MEN

Pittsburgh, (AP) — Should a man sit on the right or left of a woman in a taxi? . . . In Europe it would be correct to sit on the left, but in the United States, it would be perfectly proper to sit either on the right or left. . . Most of the men students at the University of Pittsburgh knew that, but just to make certain of it, Vincent W. Lanfer, Dean of Men, wrote and distributed a guide on manners entitled "What Every Man Should Know." . . Among the rules Lanfer laid down for every gentleman were: . . . No man should keep a pipe, cigar or cigarette in his mouth when he lifts his hat to a woman. . . When you enter an office, place your hat in an inconspicuous place—and remember where. . . It is more embarrassing to find yourself in dinner coat and black tie when your host is wearing informal clothes than to wear informal clothes when your host is dressed formally. . . If your salad shows signs of skidding, by all means cut it with your knife. . .

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington.—There are so many whisperings of revolt on Capitol Hill they cannot be disregarded.

They arise both in house and senate from members who in times past have almost buried their own personalities in loyalty to the administration. The situation, while delightful to some of the President's critics, is dismayingly to many others who abhor the disorder of a leadershipless congress.

Much of the unrest traces to the court issue. The demand for the court reorganization was applied with heat, and some members wholly sympathetic with the idea of bringing the court into harmony nevertheless bristled at the manner of the demand.

Then the possibility arose that the court plan might be defeated or drastically compromised.

Law of the Pack This condition began to raise doubts as to the invincibility of the man in the White House. He was threatened with defeat. And if defeated on an issue upon which he had based so much, could he retain his leadership?

On top of that came the disclosure in the President's budget message that he administration had made a mistake in calculating revenue.

Now while millions of voters hold President Roosevelt in almost devoted reverence, it is not surprising that this view is not fully shared handsomely in previous kills.

Outcroppings. The time hasn't arrived for letting surmises stand as facts for President Roosevelt's not yet missed his kill and certainly he has not lost his leadership.

But there are signs that long-submerged independence is creeping out here and there. A senate group decided to go ahead with hearings on a bill to cooperate with the states in suppressing child labor, notwithstanding an indication from the President that similar legislation with regard to price-fixing should be held off until after the court matter was settled.

And some of the President's most loyal supporters are working toward a budget cut, although Mr. Roosevelt told them flatly he wanted such cutting to be left in his hands.

DEATH RATE FOR INFANTS ALARMINGLY HIGH IN N. C.

"One may break a leg or develop pneumonia without warning and, hence, be unprepared to provide medical care, but there is ample time for making weekly or monthly savings and preparing to have adequate obstetric care for every mother in the community."

"If the family is unable to make this provision," Dr. Norton proceeded, "community resources should be organized, to see that pre-natal care is available, that the birth is attended by a competent physician and that the life and health of the mother and baby are not unnecessarily endangered."

MANY ANGLES INVOLVED IN HIGH COURT APPOINTMENTS

(Continued from page 4) in the first place, this would remove possibility of a contest for the nomination for superior court judge between Barnhill and Itemus T. Valentine of Nashville, erstwhile M. Donaldite, confidently expected if Barnhill remains on the superior court bench. For Valentine has already announced that he will oppose Barnhill for the nomination while his friends are predicting that he will beat Barnhill.

By appointing Judge Barnhill to the supreme court, the Governor would then have another opportunity to bestow in the appointment of a superior court judge to succeed Barnhill, it is pointed out. Some think he might consider naming Valentine to this post, in the hope of restoring peace and harmony in a district regarded as a hotbed of McDonaldism, if not of outright radicalism, and since it would effectively remove the ablest organizer and political strategist the McDonald forces have ever had from active circulation among the "liberals." But most of the people here maintain that Governor Hoy is not likely to appoint Valentine, since it is not his style of politics to bestow orchids on his political eneties, much less $8,080 a year appointments.

It is known, however, that a goodly number of those who are urging the Governor to appoint Barnhill to the supreme court, are also suggesting that he appoint Walter Bone of Nashville, law partner of Congressman Harold Cooley, and co-manager with Valentine of Cooley's campaign for Congress some years ago, as superior court judge to succeed Barnhill. For by doing this the Governor would not only make the possibility of bitter intestine primary fight for the superior court judgeship in the district very remote, but should win the good will and support of the Cooley forces, it is maintained. For it is not believed that Valentine would risk a primary campaign against Bone, with whom he was formerly associated as campaign manager for Cooley, especially since if Bone should be named superior court judge, Valentine would be left as the leading attorney in Nashville to fall heir to much of Bone's former law practice. It is further maintained that if this should be done, Valentine could not continue to fight Governor or Hon. the administration and "the machine" without also fighting Harold Cooley and the Cooley organization, now regarded as being the most potent semi-independent political organization in the east. He would be more or less in the position of biting the hands that were feeding him, many think.

However, friends of Valentine maintain that regardless of whether Barnhill is named to the high court or not, Valentine is going to run for judge in that district, even if Bone should be appointed to succeed Barnhill, while some predict he will run against Barnhill for the supreme court nomination in the next primary.

ported their experience: with 784 cases of trench mouth. They found that pyorrhea pockets, overhanging fillings and tissue flaps in the gums also predispose the sufferer to trench mouth. They recommend, both by way of prevention and treatment, "thorough prophylaxis and scaling of the teeth, accompanied by the removal of all mechanical irritations."

Trench mouth is a mildly contagious disease which commonly affects the gums, and in the more severe cases also the lips, cheeks and the back and sides of the tongue. The disease is usually accompanied by much pain, swelling and free bleeding of the gums. A fetid breath is associated with the condition. The patient may suffer fever, chills and diarrhea. His temperature may range from 97 to 103 degrees Fahrenheit.

Drs. arell and McNichols believe that the disease is very common and "if recognized and properly and promptly treated, the results will be excellent and the patient will not be endangered by complications." They never found this infection in the mouth of tobacco chewers, but smokers seem to be more susceptible to infection and re-infection.

The found United States Pharmacopeia solutions of hydrogen peroxide used full strength to wash the mouth (at least once every four hours) the most valuable form of treatment. This may be scientifically supplemented with other treatments, including ultra-violet ray applications. During treatment, the patient should not smoke or use alcohol.

No surgery should be performed in the mouth when trench mouth is present.

A four-run rally in the fifth inning yesterday gave Tarboro a lead and enough runs to defeat the local Coastal team entry as the two teams met for the first of four consecutive games. The locals dropped the encounter 5-2 for its tenth loss of the season against only three victories.

The two teams meet on the local diamond this afternoon, go to Tarboro again tomorrow and return here again Sunday for the third game of the series.

During the first four innings yesterday Royal Williams led the Serpents eating out of his hands. He put them out in one-to-three fashion, during the first part of the game, but blew up in the fifth and was sent to the showers and Calligra called to the box in his second relief role in as many days.

After the fifth the Greenies returned back to normal playing and held Snake Henry's boys to only one more run, scored in the seventh.

The Greenies had started off the game with two runs in the first, and it appeared for a while that they were on their way to another victory. But the fatal fifth saw them heading for another loss.

Ayden Drops Contest To Williamston, 6-5

Ayden-Larry Wade's shut-out relief pitching and his single in the eighth inning scoring Deim gave the Martins a 6-5 victory over Ayden's Aces here yesterday.

During a turn of six and two-thirds innings, Wade had little trouble with the Aces, despite their ability to give pitchers trouble, as he showed against Slim Gardner, who started for the visitors. Wade was touched for only two hits—one to Jirak, first man to face him as he entered the box, and one to Lefty Dunn, Ayden's hurler, in the fifth.

Homers accounted for half the scoring done up until the Martins' winning rally in the eighth. In the third, Faust Johnson touched Slim Gardner for a homer following a single by Harrison and a double by Monk Joyner to boost the Aces' early lead to 5-1. That blow finished Gardner, and Wade took over the pitching chores. Jirak singled, but the next two men filed out.

The Martins got to work on the Aces' lead in the next frame, and it was quick work they did. Deim and Lakotas poled circuit drives in succession, and Williamston's deficit was a pair of runs. In the seventh, singles by Sharkey, Earp and Stanley produced one run and made the handicap one tally.

Stevens opened the eighth for the Martins with a single. Deim walked, and Sharkey singled scoring Stevens with the tying run, while Deim pulled up at third. Wade's single brought Deim in with the tally that decided the game.

Sport Slants

When the New York Giants started their first swing through the western loop, Dashing Dick Bartell was showing the way to home-run hitters of both leagues. Bartell had accounted for eight round-trippers—the exact total he made all last season.

The national league boasts a flock of home-run producers—Mell Ott, Wally Berger, Ducky Medwick, Chuck Klein, to name a few—but the 148-pound Giant short-stop led em all the first month of the race.

The short left-field fence at the Polo Grounds has been Bartell's favorite shooting-gallery ever since he joined the New York club. Last year he made the mistake of trying to pull all of his drives into the stands. The pitchers soon caught on with the result that he was fair game for curves.

Now it's different. Bartell insists that he does not have his sights rained on left-field every time he takes a cut. He concentrates on meeting the ball squarely, hoping it will drop safe. If the ball finds its way into the stands, so much the better. If Dick follows the plan through the pennant race he will have a bumper crop of homers.

All the to-do about Carl Hubbell's pitching records has shunted Bartell to the background. The fine work he has been doing in the field as well as at the plate has not come in for the attention it deserves.

Another dark horse in the homer derby is Alex Kampouris, the Cincinnati Red's Greek grounder-grabber. Alex already has surpassed his 1936 total of six homers, and has been one of the early batting sensations.

Alex got six home runs in four afternoons, the spree putting him up with the leaders.

URAM, KING MISS SPRING GRID TRAINING

Minneapolis (AP) — Minnesota's famous forward passing combination, "Uram - to - King" was absent from spring gridiron drills. The boys shifted over to the baseball team.

Ray King, captain of the 1937 football team, plays left field. Andry Uram, alternate football captain, and ranked as one of Minnesota's greatest left halfbacks, cavorts around third base.

Last fall, when the Galloping Gophers smashed through to their third consecutive mythical national football championship their "ace in the hole" was a "soft" pass from Uram to King.

Kinston Gets Victory Over Goldsboro Nine

Goldsboro-Kinston routed the Grid Buns, 11 to 1, yesterday by bunching hits in four innings and capitalizing on Burger's wildness in another verse.

Krim Bess' Eagles got enough runs—three—in the first inning to win. Successive doubles by Dirman, Gillenwater, and Masino were followed by a single by Scott and produced the first-inning tallies.

Dirman stole home in the third. He had reached third on the combination of a walk and Masino's single. Dirman pilfered home when Scott took second on the other end of a double steal.

Masino, new third-sacker of the team, was the day's batting star. He hit a pair of doubles and two singles for an .800 average.

Mose limited the Buns to three hits. However, he was kind with passes and passed 10. He also fanned 10.

The Goldsboro run came in the third—on two walks and Jarvis' single.

Carolina Dairy's soft ball team turned yesterday's game with the lawyers into a track meet, winning by the record high score of 43 to 6. The dairymen wore themselves out running bases, the attorneys broke themselves down chasing balls, the score keeper developed the writer's cramps and the spectators developed the asthma from sighing.

Naming stars would be impossible as the dairymen garnered almost as many hits as the Carolina firm has lost bottles since it has been in business here—and Manager Webb will tell you that is plenty.

The lawyers proved good sports—after a 1 the purpose of the game—and continued fighting back, but were unable to cope with their foe.

A NEW 1937

Plus Powered KELVINATOR

can be yours for as little as

on the METER-ATOR PLAN

Take time to Read these 2 Facts

FACT 1
 The new Kelvinator is Plus-Powered. It has as much as double the cooling capacity of other well-known refrigerators of equal size.

 The new Kelvinator runs only half as many minutes per day—during the rest of the time it maintains low temperatures using no current at all.

Every convenience you would want in a modern electrical refrigerator is in the new 1937 Plus-Powered Kelvinator. But that isn't all. Consider the two big facts displayed above.

They mean better refrigeration service . . . quicker cooling . . . faster freezing . . . longer life . . . bigger money-savings for you.

Yet how easy it is to own a Plus-Powered Kelvinator on the Meter-Ator Plan—as little as 15¢ a day. And the 1937 Plus-Powered Kelvinator can save you more than that every day you use it—starting now. Come in and see this great refrigerator today.

SNAKE RIGHT AT HOME IN OVERHEATED CAR MOTOR Claremore, Okla. (AP) — Walter Boyd, patrolman at Lake Claremore, noticed the motor of his automobile was unusually hot as he drove to this place from the lake. Boyd refilled the radiator but on his way back to the lake the same trouble occurred. He raised the hood and found the fan belt was broken. He reached for the broken belt but sprang back when he found a copperhead snake coiled in striking position on the pan by the motor.

N. Y. Stock Market New York, May 21.—(AP)—The stock market moved casually ahead today for limited gains in most groups. Demand for strong issues distinguished the list, notwithstanding reports bad weather had put a crimp in retail trade this week. Some Wall Streeters chose to interpret share gains in this sector as indicating brokerage ideas on long term expansion of consumers' buying power. As the market came into the final minute losses of fractions to around a point predominated. Transfers approximated 750,000 shares.

HELL BE REMEMBERED FOR HIS MALAPROSPISMS Sutton, W. Va., (AP)—Shelt Carpenter no longer tells stories to his friends in the hills but those same friends will never cease telling stories about him. It has been but a fortnight since the 75-year-old mountain philosopher died but at every country gathering in Braxton county he is missed. Shelt's story telling wasn't confined solely to history, as exemplified in his recitation of the proud moment when at the age of 73 he killed a record-sized pike near his home: "I set forth fishing on a beautiful day and all of a sudden I saw a pike lying paregorically and in a hyperbolic position near the boat. I did poise my spear and with great ease let fly, hitting him fairly behind the nape of the neck and killed him stone dead. He was a magnificent fish."

Ostrich Goes Dancing New York (AP)—Capes of ostrich will flutter in the summer braizes over lace and chiffon evening gowns. The capes are favored particularly for summer wear because of their light weight, and the variety of color combinations they afford. The average gasoline tax per farm in the United States is $17.69 a year.

Enjoy Real Outdoor Comfort Here's the kind of furniture you want for your porch or that cool, shady garden nook. It's light, it's strong and divinely comfortable. You'll want to sit for hours enjoying the open air when you sink into one of these modern, out-door chairs or gliders. You'll want several of these handsome chairs to place in that shady place in the lawn or garden. Strongly built of ash—in green or tan. Very comfortable when they're filled with cushions. QUINN-MILLER & CO. "Pitt County's Leading Furniture Dealers"
