

ASSAULT FROM AIR FATAL TO MANY PERSONS

Planes Described As Italian Bombard City of Valencia

ENGLISH VESSEL REPORTED SUNK

American Embassy Escapes, But Floors in Same Building are Said to Have Been Struck

Valencia, Spain, May 28.—(AP)—Five insurgent planes described by competent observers as Italian, carried out a terrific bombardment of Valencia before dawn today and killed an estimated 200 persons.

The attack came an hour before dawn. (This dispatch sent at 4:30 a. m., Spanish time, was delayed by censor for more than eight hours.)

Many persons were unaccounted for. More bodies were being discovered with the removal of debris. Many more were injured.

One report said the English ship Cadix, anchored in the harbor, was sunk by the bombardment with seven members of the crew killed and eight injured. The report said a bomb fell on the English steamer Pizarro, but no casualties or serious damage resulted.

Dozens of houses were demolished. Sleeping men, women and children were blown from their beds to a terrible death. Some of them were pitched into the streets from upper floors.

The tower on top of one shattered building alone remained standing. Its clock stopped at the very minute the first bomb hit, 2:45 a. m.

The American embassy was not damaged, but other floors of the building it occupies were torn.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish frontier sources said, General Mola's new offensive south of Bilbao was "completely paralyzed," according to the Basque command, while insurgents accused the Basques of firing Orduña, their southern outpost preparatory to retreat.

College Prepares For Summer Term

The summer school will open on June 10 and will be in two terms of equal length. The practice teaching will be given only in the first term as the Training School is open only six weeks.

A five day schedule with classes for each course coming every day, and Saturday as a holiday, will be followed throughout the summer. Most of the members of the faculty are on the regular teaching staff for summer school. While it is difficult to estimate the number expected, there have been more reservations and inquiries than usual and the prospects are that this will be a most satisfactory summer school. There will be a series of interesting entertainments and a number of social attractions.

Officers Capture Liquor Laden Car

An automobile loaded with whiskey was taken in custody here last night by Highway Patrolman Smith, but the operator of the vehicle fled before the officer caught up with the car.

It was estimated that the car bore approximately 70 gallons of whiskey, but part of it had been broken during the chase through part of the city. The liquor was in five-gallon jugs. The car was abandoned in a Negro section of the city.

Patrolman Smith has asked the Motor Vehicle Bureau at Raleigh the name of the person to whom the license plates were issued. Meantime, the car is stored in a local garage.

Americans Hold Share of Tickets

Dublin Irish Free State, May 28.—(AP)—American fortune seekers held more than half of the lucky tickets whirled from the rolling drum of fortune in the Irish hospital sweepstakes up to the lunch recess today.

Of 544 tickets on the English derby, to be run next Wednesday, 276 went to the United States and 28 to Canada.

Tickets on 34 horses in the race were drawn, leaving 44 more, including Goya, II, one of the favorites to come up to the recess, no North Carolinians had held a winning ticket.

Senator Byrd of Virginia Says Present Government Wasteful and Bureaucratic

ASSAILS GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) in an address at the University of Richmond today declared that the costs of the numerous bureaucratic machines of duplicated activities is too great to be borne. Sen. Byrd is chairman of the Senate committee on governmental reorganization.

Finals For High School To Begin Sunday Evening

He leaves his parents and two brothers, Hugh and Wayne Tyler. Funeral services probably will be held late Saturday afternoon.

TO PUSH PROBE IN EDGECOMBE

Chairman of State Liquor Board Conducts Inquiry

Raleigh, May 28.—(AP)—Cutler Moore, chairman of the North Carolina liquor board, left early this morning for Edgecombe county to press an investigation into charges bootleggers who bought legal liquor and sold it after dark had not been prosecuted.

"I am going to back up the Edgecombe board in its discharge of the North Carolina investigator who said in court there 'the board had told him not to bother such bootleggers,'" said Moore. "The investigator has always just said it was the board that directed him and each member of the board denied to me that any such instructions were given."

"I might say I have the utmost faith and confidence in the members of the Edgecombe board, but I want to go to the bottom of this."

Hoey Commutes Sentence Of Deaf And Dumb Negro

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, May 28.—Raymond Early, alias "Dummy" Moore, deaf and dumb negro of Yadkin county, will not die in the gas chamber in State Prison here for rape, as a result of the commutation given him today by Governor Clyde R. Hoey. But he will serve the rest of his life in prison, unless another commutation is issued to him later.

Early was convicted of having criminally attacked a white married woman in her home between 3 and 4 o'clock on the morning of August 17 before he was put to flight following a scuffle with her husband. The trial was held late in August with Superior Court Judge J. H. Clement presiding and with Solicitor John R. Jones as prosecutor.

The two main factors upon which the commutation was granted, according to the statement issued today by Governor Hoey in connection with the case, however, was that Early or Moore was deaf mute and hence not capable of fully understanding his arraignment and what went on at the trial, also that it is now some doubt as to his positive identification. Another factor was that counsel for the prisoner failed to take account of the infirmity of the prisoner in his appeal to the supreme court and that because of being deaf and dumb, he was incapable of understanding the nature of the crime with which he was charged or the effect of his trial.

The commutation was requested by the trial solicitor, all the members of the jury which convicted Early, by many of the witnesses and even by the woman he was convicted of attacking. The Governor points out, while hundreds of Yadkin county citizens signed a petition asking that the sentence be commuted. The members of the jury signed the following statement:

"We, the undersigned, are the men who convicted Raymond Early of rape. At the time of the trial only a few days had elapsed since the crime was supposed to have been committed and most of the people

Declares Cost Many Agencies Too Great To Bear

Richmond, Va., May 28.—(AP)—Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia told University of Richmond students today "that there exists at Washington the most wasteful and bureaucratic form of government that has ever been known in our history."

Byrd, speaking at the university convocation said "with the extended operations of the federal government, some of which may be beneficial and desirable, the cost of the numerous bureaucratic machines of duplicated activities is too great to be borne."

"They are rapidly becoming Frankenstein's x x x that may grow so powerful as to destroy the right of citizens to liberty, life and happiness," he said.

"This is probable because the great bureaucratic machines, once established and made operative, can rarely be dismantled."

Byrd, chairman of a Senate committee on governmental reorganization, said he made his statements after "investigating for months the operations of the Federal government."

BUY A POPPY. AID A VETERAN

The American Legion Auxiliary Annual Sale Tomorrow

"Buy a poppy, Mister?" Thus will Greenville citizens be greeted when they go to work tomorrow morning or when they go out to get their morning coffee and before the woman or young girl is refused a person should stop to realize for what cause he is being asked to make a contribution.

The poppies are made by disabled ex-soldiers in government hospitals. The money they are paid is used by the individual patients to purchase incidentals they can not afford otherwise.

Profit derived from the annual sale is used locally to help maintain the welfare work carried on among disabled veterans and fatherless families in the immediate locality.

Members of the local chapter of the American Legion Auxiliary are sponsoring the poppy sale. They will be on the streets early tomorrow morning and remain there throughout the day to offer the tokens in memory of the soldiers who died overseas during the World War.

Sale of the poppies has a two-fold purpose. In addition to serving as a tribute to the World War dead, they provide funds to the disabled veterans, unable to work for themselves.

Headquarters here tomorrow will be in the Moore Electric Shop. Mrs. W. R. Jones is president of the local chapter of the American Legion Auxiliary and Mrs. W. J. Bundy is poppy sale chairman.

"The little red poppy worn above our hearts tomorrow is the truest symbol of our remembrance for those who gave their lives in the nation's service during the World War," said Mrs. Bundy. "It is their flower. It grew on the fields where they died and it was the only floral tribute on the bare battle graves where they were buried. We of the Auxiliary are hoping that everyone in Greenville will understand the poppy's significance and wear one with pride tomorrow."

Unidentified Man Killed In Wayne

Goldboro, May 28.—(AP)—Wayne county officers sought today to learn the identity of a man found in a ditch beside the Raleigh highway nine miles south of here early in the day, his head was badly battered.

Highway Patrolmen I. T. Moore and W. D. Kinsey said the man apparently had been beaten with some heavy instrument and thrown into the ditch. They said he appeared to be about 25 and was wearing a light gray suit. Nothing to identify him was found on his person.

Dealer In Junk Iron Cited To City Court

Joe Moore, local dealer in junk iron, has been cited to court tomorrow morning on charges of blocking the street.

Mr. Moore is charged with allowing the junk to spread into the street at both his places here, near the Negro theatre and near Webb's warehouse. Police officers said he had been warned before, but failed to heed the advice to keep the scrap iron out of the street.

FDR SUPPORTS MOVE TO HALT TAX EVASIONS

To Seek Legislation at This Session of Congress

POWER PROJECTS DECISION SOUGHT

Government Presses Case in Behalf Federal Aid in Financing Companies

Washington, May 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he would seek legislation at this session of Congress to check both evasion and avoidance of big income tax payments.

He said a comparatively small number of wealthy persons were getting out of tax payments amounting to millions of dollars.

The government meanwhile pressed its case before the Supreme court in behalf of federal aid in financing municipal and other local power projects.

A brief filed with the court by Solicitor General Stanley Reed declared the decisions validating the social security act "make it plain that expenditures for the relief of nation-wide unemployment are a proper exercise of congressional power."

The Alabama Power Company and the Iowa City Light and Power Company have appealed from a lower court ruling refusing to halt government financing of certain projects from PWA or relief funds.

The government asked that a review of the appeal be refused.

Secretary Wallace and Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) elsewhere in the capital clashed at a House agriculture committee hearing on how much a farm price stabilization program would cost.

The Texas, questioning ability of the treasury to finance the program which Wallace urged, told the secretary he estimated $635,000,000 to $1,250,000,000 would be needed annually for "parity" and soil conservation payments if all farmers complied.

"I think, Mr. Chairman, that your mathematics must be in error," Wallace said.

In the meantime the President vetoed a bill to extend the time in which World War veterans may renew their five-year war risk term insurance policies.

In a message to the House Mr. Roosevelt said it was not believed further extensions of the privilege of converting the temporary war risk life insurance was "warranted or ultimately will prove profitable to the individuals concerned."

At the capitol the House and the Senate devoted their principal attention to routine business, but behind the scenes representatives labored to smooth out the controversy over relief bill and earmarking of funds to be appropriated for relief.

Campaign Planned By Peace Council

For the second year the Greenville Council for Peace Action is sponsoring a Peace Bond sale, in cooperation with the National Council for Prevention of War, Washington, D. C. It is expected that such sales will be conducted annually, as it is the only means by which the local council is able to raise funds for its work which, in the past has consisted of dramatizations, study groups, bringing in outside lecturers to speak before college, high school and public assemblies, etc.

The sales last year were carried on through house-to-house canvassing in the residential and business sections. This month the individuals having bond books have been asked to concentrate their efforts within the organizations to which they belong, and in their own neighborhoods.

Reports of sales are expected to be made to Rev. R. C. Grady, chairman of the Peace Bond drive, by next Saturday, June 5.

The following individuals are in possession of bond books, and may be reached by interested citizens through the organizations to which they belong: Mesdames D. M. Clark, N. S. Beard, B. B. Sugg, B. P. Bulard, N. T. Ennett, H. Lyman Ormond, Wyatt Brown, J. H. B. Moore, R. C. Grady, Jack H. Spain, J. B. Cummings, Wm. H. Taft, H. L. Rivers, C. M. Warren and Miss L. L. Wilson, and Vester Mulholland.

In last Monday's issue of the Reflector, under the caption "Peace Action," was carried an account of expenditures resultant of last year's sales. It is hoped by officials that the sales activity this May will reveal as great an interest.

Soil surveys have been completed in 26 Oklahoma counties and soil maps have been published for 13 counties.

Edward, Wally Plan Brief Trip To United States

'Second Honeymoon' To Include Brief Stop in U. S.

Monts. France, May 28.—(AP)—An associate of the Duke of Windsor disclosed today Edward and Mrs. Wallis Warfield were planning a visit to the United States as a "second honeymoon."

The associate said their stay in the United States would be brief and part of a trip around the world.

Edward and Wallis were said to have selected tentatively either October or November for the trip to America, travelling Westward from Europe after spending their "first honeymoon" in Austria.

They will be married in the music room of the Chateau de Candé, June 3 and will leave shortly after by car on the trip that is expected to end in a castle in Austria.

One of the Duke's friends reported Edward was searching through old address books for the addresses of friends he had met on a previous visit to the United States as well as those of American acquaintances he has made in England and on the Continent.

Herman Roger, spokesman for the betrothal pair, acknowledged they might go on a world cruise and visit the United States, but added "not in the immediate future."

Less Danger of Strikes When Labor Laws Passed

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, May 28.—The danger of strikes in North Carolina, as well as in all other states, will be virtually eliminated when the new Federal minimum wage and maximum hours law, advocated by President Roosevelt, is enacted by Congress, in the opinion of Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher. For when this new law is enacted—and he is certain it will be enacted in the near future—it will eliminate two of the principal causes of strikes, namely, long hours and low pay.

"With the Federal social security act already in effect and pronounced constitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court, the working people of the country are already assured protection against enforced unemployment and security after reaching old age," Commissioner Fletcher pointed out. "As a result, the spectre of poverty in old age and during unemployment has been removed to a very great degree."

"Now, if Congress enacts the strikes,"

May Return Home

FORD ACCUSED OF VIOLATING U. S. LABOR ACT

Claim Boston Workers Discriminated Against

COMPANY CHIEFS REFUTE CHARGES

Meanwhile, John L. Lewis Forces Tighten Lines Around Steel Producers.

Boston, May 28.—(AP)—Representatives of about 100 men who said they had been discharged at the Ford Motor Company's plant in Somerville today protested to the National Labor Relations Board they had been discriminated for union activity, but plant officials insisted they had been seasonally laid off.

After protesting to Howard Myers, regional director of the board, the men had been "discriminated" against and "coerced" in violation of the National Labor Relations Act, representatives of the workers withdrew from his office to prepare a formal complaint.

Meanwhile E. L. Duquette, superintendent of the plant, said union activities had "absolutely nothing" to do with the releases which he said were a seasonal lay off.

STEEL UNION DETERMINED TO FORCE LABOR DEMANDS

Youngstown, Ohio, May 28.—(AP)—John Lewis' militant steel union girded on several fronts of a wide Great Lakes sector today to tighten strike lines around three major producers who have constantly refused to sign union contracts.

Seventy thousand were idle, 47,000 in Ohio and 23,000 more in Chicago's Calumet area.

Great lofty smokestacks poked empty skyward from closed mills of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the Inland Steel Corporation. Many Republic Steel Corporation plants were shut by husky pickets.

But two big plants of Republic continued curtailed operations in South Buffalo, N. Y., and South Chicago units.

Beginning with the sixth grade, there is a new school program in the making for the city of Greenville. Charlotte and Durham are the only other schools in North Carolina attempting to carry out the same program. The new school program is an effort to do two definite things. One is to prepare for college those who desire to go to college. The other is to prepare for real life those who are not planning to go to college. Vocational education of the right sort is being stressed more and more in the Greenville schools.

CUT COST OF HOMES ON RA PROJECTS

Washington (AP)—Average costs of rural homes on federal resettlement projects will be pared to $1,200 in the south and $2,100 in the north.

The resettlement administration has received permission to use skilled labor, outside relief rolls, on housing construction. Officials say use of unskilled relief labor had greatly increased construction costs.

"Under this new arrangement," says Secretary Wallace, "we expect to cut drastically cost of houses and farmstead units. It is possible we may be able to provide for twice as many needy farm families at the same total cost."

"It's the label they're after," he says, "because that's made of wood-pulp. Sometimes it's the glue, because it has a sweet taste."

Changes Proposed In School System Of State Capital

Seventh Graders, Heretofore Going To High School Will Be Transferred to Elementary Units

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, May 28.—Several far-reaching changes in the public school set-up here in Raleigh will be made next school year, one of these being that all seventh graders will remain in the elementary schools instead of being mixed in with the high schools as "sub freshmen," Superintendent Claude Gaddy has just announced.

If the school supplement election carries, slated for June 9, the Raleigh schools will go on a nine-month, twelve grade basis this fall.

For a number of years all the children in the seventh grade have gone to one of the two high schools and been known as "sub freshmen." But Supt. Gaddy believes they will do better work to remain in the elementary schools until they are ready for the eighth grade and that mixing eleven and twelve year old seventh graders in with the children of high school age is not good for them either from an educational or psychological standpoint.

"The boys and girls in the seventh grade are too young to be mixed in with the older boys and girls in the high school grades in the larger high schools," Supt. Gaddy said. "The readjustment is too difficult for them. I am convinced they will do better work to remain in the elementary schools until they have completed the seventh grade."

The change in the method of handling the seventh graders has the full approval of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin, who said today that while matters of this sort are left entirely in the hands of the local superintendents he felt that the younger children should not be mixed in with the older children in the high schools.

"I think the decision by Supt. Gaddy and the Raleigh school board to keep the seventh graders in the elementary schools is a very wise one," Supt. Erwin said. "One of the troubles with our school system is that many children are getting in-

It is understood that the Governor or thinks this commission is too important to the state to be selected hurriedly or without due and proper consideration. Since under the law the present commissioners hold office until they are reappointed or their successors named, it is not imperative that the new appointments be announced by May 31. It is pointed out.

The belief continues to prevail in most circles close to the Governor that Griffin stands an excellent chance to be retained as executive secretary but that a number of changes will be made among the eleven members of the commission. But no one has any idea as yet who will be reappointed and who will be replaced. It is expected, however, that such veteran members of the commission as Dr. B. B. Daugherty, president of the Appalachian Teachers College in Boone; John H. Polger of Mt. Airy; O. J. Hoiler of Union Mills, Rutherford county; Henry R. Dwire of Durham and Duke University and T. B. Attmore of Washington, Beaufort county are likely to be reappointed.

Since this commission has the task of allotting approximately $25,000,000 a year in school funds to every county and district in the state, and is the largest spending agency in the state, it is regarded as essential to keep some experienced members on it.

ANNUAL FIELD TRIPS PLANNED

Geological Society Established in This State

Durham, May 28—A new scientific organization, the Carolina Geological Society, has been organized for the promotion of the sciences of geology, geology, metallurgy, mining, ceramics and soil science in North and South Carolina.

A number of persons interested met with Prof. W. C. Holland of the department of geology, Furman University, Greenville, S. C., and perfected the organization.

Decision was made to hold annual field trips from one to two days each fall, this time being selected so as not to interfere with several academies of science in the two states which meet in the spring. Prof. Holland was elected president, Berlin C. Moneybaker of the TVA, Murphy, vice-president, and Dr. Willard Berrv. Duke University, secretary-treasurer.

The group announces that any one with a serious interest in the various earth sciences is eligible for membership. Prof. G. R. MacCarty of the University of North Carolina, was elected chairman of the membership committee.

Preceding the meeting Professor Holland led the group on a short field trip over the region between Greenville and Caesar's Head where the physiography, depth of weathering and character of the rocks were well exhibited. After the trip Furman University was host to the society at dinner.

WOMAN'S UNIT SETS PROGRAM

Several Brief Talks On Schedule For College Finals

Greensboro, May 28.—Approximately 230 degrees will be conferred at the 45th commencement of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. The four-day program will get under way Friday evening, June 4, with the commencement ball for members of the graduating class, the first ball of its kind in the history of the college.

There will be no formal commencement address this year. Instead there will be four brief talks by Gov. Clyde R. Hoey, President Frank P. Graham of Chapel Hill, Dr. W. C. Jackson, dean of administration, and Miss Justine Ulrich, retiring president of the student government association, who will represent the senior class. In addition to the commencement ball, there will be a faculty-alumnae reception in students' building on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The formal opening and dedication of the new Alumnae house will take place Saturday morning at 11:15 on the lawn in front of the house. Alumnae will be the guests of the college for luncheon in the college dining halls Saturday. In the afternoon there will be a reception for alumnae, faculty, seniors and campus visitors in the alumnae house, and this will be followed by class day exercises on the front campus. The all-reunion sunset supper is scheduled for 6 o'clock on Saturday evening on the quadrangle of the west campus.

Bishop James E. Freeman, of the Washington diocese of the Episcopal Church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Acock auditorium. The college vested choir of 100 voices will appear in concert Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the annual informal gathering for seniors, parents, alumnae and friends of the college will be held on the lawn in front of the dean's residence at 5 o'clock.

SHRUBBERY IS AID IDLE LANDS

Soil Not Under Cultivation Should Get Protection

Raleigh, May 28.—Every available spot of ground not under actual cultivation on the farm can be protected from erosion and made to serve a useful purpose by planting shrubs and plants which will provide food and cover for wildlife.

One of the best places in which to tie in wildlife development with erosion control is on terrace outlets which usually present a serious erosion problem. A drop in the terrace flowline often occurs at such points, resulting in gulying in the field.

Stake checks serve temporarily to protect the outlet, but these soon rot out and, unless permanent vegetation is established, the outlet will erode. Rows of shrubs have proved to be very satisfactory in permanently protecting the outlet, according to the Soil Conservation Service and the State College Extension Service.

During the first year the stake checks protect the plants and allow them to become firmly established. When the stakes rot out, the shrubs are able to take care of the water pouring from the terrace.

A selection of shrubs for this purpose can be made which will serve the double purpose of controlling erosion and providing food and cover for game. Wild rose, coralberry, privet, Russian olive, and blackberry have been used extensively with good results in the Huntersville demonstration area of the Soil Conservation Service.

WEAR A POPPY

Tomorrow is Poppy Day and throughout this county members of the American Legion Auxiliary will sell the little paper flowers emblematic of the poppies that grow on Flanders Field. These poppies are made by disabled veterans of the World War confined in the various government hospitals and the money from the sale of some goes to making the lot of the disabled veterans a little more bearable.

When you buy a poppy you are helping the disabled veterans and by wearing it you are showing to the world that you revere the memory of those who gave their all for the World War that the world might be a better place in which to live.

Be sure to buy a poppy tomorrow and wear it through Sunday, May 30, which is Memorial Day.

THE HONOR SHOWN LINDSAY WARREN

(Charlotte Observer) North Carolinians swell up a little over the tidings that Hon. Lindsay Warren, first District congressman from the State, was unanimously elected Speaker pro tem of the House incident to the enforced absence of Speaker Bankhead. It's a sincere and distinct pleasure not only on the part of his constituents but of the people of the State as a whole that Congressman Warren stands so loftily in the estimation of his colleagues, as such an honor as this eloquently testifies.

He has earned the distinction on the basis of his qualities, as such an honor as this eloquently testifies.

He has earned the distinction on the basis of this merit and personal popularity.

Congressman Warren is coming to be a veteran in Congress, although a relatively young man and for one who has served so long, this preferment means all the more. One can never endure the heat of sustained public service without having the inside qualities to resist the partisan temperatures of disaffection, political prejudice or personal envy.

THE "EVOLUTION" OF THE NEW DEAL

Congress, Spare Those Trees, Irate Blossom Lovers Shriek

By SIGRID ARNE (Associated Press Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—Congress was rocking along happily in a nice, dignified fight over economy when it stuck its hand, all unsuspectingly, into a hornet's nest over the fate of Washington's cherry blossoms.

It happened when the Thomas Jefferson memorial commission came out of some deep thought and announced the tidal basin was the right place to remember Jefferson for $3,000,000 worth.

The three million would pay for a marble temple on the basin. But what about the cherry trees that now stand around the basin? Oh, they would have to be removed.

Commission Chairman John J. Boylan of New York broke the news to congress, which took it quietly. But the next day the town woke to the angry buzzing of such hornets as flower lovers, hotel men, architects, landscape gardeners, et al.

They'll Take Blossoms As between marble and cherry blossoms, they'd take the blossoms. There were demands for a hearing. The House library committee, headed by Representative Kent Keller, of Illinois, opened its doors. Protests poured in by mail and wire.

Washington's hotel men turned downright undiplomatic and told the congressional committee to its face that the cherry blossoms are Washington's No. 1 drawing card for tourists.

Boylan remains disapproving over the whole rumpus. He's convinced the cherry trees are not so much.

Secretary Counts 'Em "Why, they only live about 25 years," he says. "This memorial would go down through the ages. Look. When Japan sent us those trees there were 4,000. Now there's only 664."

Boylan really knows. He sent his secretary to hand-count the trees. It was raining but she returned wet and triumphant.

Plenty of suggestions were made that the building should be useful. "What?" said Boylan. "Like an auditorium? First thing you know they'd be selling Thomas Jefferson peanuts at the doors."

A Bit Of Engineering The fight includes other annoying elements. Boylan says he's been yearning for a Jefferson memorial the whole 16 years he's been in congress. But he didn't get very far while the Republicans were in the saddle. Now the Democrats are.

So he begged a resolution in June, 1924, setting up the commission to study the problem, giving it the right to spend $3,000,000, to choose the design and name the architect.

The commission chose John Russell Pope of New York who is very much "of Washington," now the fight is on.

The Pope design calls for a temple jutting far out into the tidal basin's waves. That would necessitate pile driving, some changing of traffic lanes, some digging of more basin. Engineers have testified the whole plan might cost $9,000,000.

Still A Third Hurdle Congress already has voted $15,000,000 to get the plan started. Another $500,000 was due in the second deficiency bill, but didn't get in.

Then Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts rose with the first seemingly successful counter attack. He introduced an amendment prohibiting the commission from building at the tidal basin. His amendment has been reported favorably out of committee.

But there is still the third deficiency bill to hurdle. That may include that $500,000 to start the memorial.

a cast of 531 performers with an average kick-over of $10,000 a year. Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, never has attempted to set up a federal theatre project in Washington, as in New York. Wisdom may have been his guide in the matter, for such an enterprise as the "Living Newspaper" would promptly be attacked as an attempt to fill the minds of unwary congressmen with wayward ideas.

But Washington is filled with little "shows within shows," mostly dealing with politics and with an eye on the federal treasury. It takes its own type of dramma seriously, and the local residents are utterly amazed when they get out of sight of the capitol dome to discover that actually thousands of the population are not in a lather about court packing.

As we were saying, the strip tease still runs here, but if anyone thinks the city has gone to pot morally, let him keep in mind that teachers for two years couldn't mention the dread scourge of com-

One and a half cups of cooked prunes added to a quart of partially-frozen vanilla ice cream makes a dessert that is economical and different. Half a cup of pecans may be added to the mixture.

A tasty canape may be made by spreading thinly-cut slices of 'colled ham with sweet pickle relish (mixed with salad dressing) and rolling them. The canapes may be held together by sticking 'tooth-picks in each.

Alligator pears, sliced thinly and mixed with chilled French dressing, combine very well with fresh strawberries to be served as a salad.

Two things may be wrong with the angel food cake that falls from the pan as soon as it is inverted. The flour used may have been slightly damp. (Dry it by placing it in a warm oven for about ten minutes. Then let it cool before it is used). The cake also may have been removed from the oven before it was thoroughly baked.

A variety of "fillings" may be used in a substantial tomato salad. Cut firm, ripe tomatoes of moderate size into three crossway slices. Spread each slice with well-seasoned cream cheese, ham relish, olive and nut filling, sardine mixture or even well-seasoned potato salad. Replace the slices to make the tomato whole again. Top it with salad dressing.

HOY COMMUTES SENTENCE OF DEAF AND DUMB NEGRO (Continued From One) in the county were prejudiced against him. We at that time thought him to be guilty but since we have learned of facts that would have changed our verdict would we know them at that time.

While Early, or "Dummy Moore" had attended the state school for deaf and dumb negroes and was regarded as being sane, and while an interpreter was used at the trial, it is very doubtful that Early understood what the trial was about or much of what went on in it, in the opinion of both Governor Hoy and Paroles Commissioner Edwin Gill. The record of the trial shows that, even with the interpreter, who talked with "Dummy" in sign language and tried to explain the procedure to him, that it was very difficult to make him understand many of the questions, that these questions had to be reduced to the simplest form for him to understand them.

Since "Dummy Moore" has been on Death Row out at the Central Prison here, Commissioner Gill has talked with him several times through an interpreter and found that his intelligence and understanding were very limited. Gill said today. One of these interpreters said of Early:

"I found communicating with him very difficult. Here the question might arise: How can a person lacking the means of communication used by the court at the trial, defend himself if he cannot express himself through that method."

The woman who identified "Dummy Moore" as her attacker said she did not see him when he grappled with him in her bed room, but knew he was a negro because she felt his hair, but maintained that she recognized him later as he ran out of the house and jumped off the porch after she had turned the lights on. Her husband was unable to identify him or to say whether the man he grappled with in his wife's bedroom was a negro or a white man. The trial record also discloses that it was several hours before the woman made any charges to the effect that her attacker was "Dummy Moore." One of the doctors who examined the woman at a hospital after the alleged attack testified that he found no injuries and could not be certain that the attack had been completed.

So in view of Early's being deaf and dumb and not being able to understand all that went on at the trial, together with certain discrepancies in the testimony of witnesses, Governor Hoy decided that life imprisonment would be adequate punishment for Early.

Dagwood's Last Stand

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: The mysterious noting to death of Jude Blinshop, my old flame, opens our stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. A series of strange attacks is apparently explained when we find the body of Michael's mad father below the bluff. Then Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder by an unseen hand, and the Skipper, Mike's tall, tweedy younger aunt, disappears. Sleeping powder nearly finish Aunt Martha, and Cook gets "doped to the gills." Mike, his fiancée, Gay Palmer, and I start searching the bedrooms for a clue to the killer or the Skipper's whereabouts.

Chapter 37 William's Secret

At last only one thing remained to be investigated—the bed and its silent occupant. Great beads of perspiration stood on Michael's face. But we had failed to look at that bed once before, and our failure had been disastrous.

I took a deep breath and stepped toward it. Moving so lightly in my clenched hand as almost to throw me off my balance, the sheet came back. Jude Blinshop lay where I had placed her. I replaced the cover quickly.

The stillness of that room seemed to follow us down the hall to my quarters. No one spoke during the entire performance of dumping all my things on the floor. I couldn't get Jude's disfigured, staring face out of my mind. It seemed to be reproaching me for something. I'm afraid I wasn't of much help at that stage of the game. Michael's voice was hushed as he asked me if I was all right.

I said that I was. I stumbled after them into his room and helped pass through his belongings. There was a devil of a mess there, but nothing more. And that brought us to a halt. Aside from the servants' quarters, there remained only the rooms of the two aunts, Annie and M. Farrington were in one of them, and the bathroom door into the other probably still stood open. Cook and Higgins were in their rooms—or should have been. That left William's room and Annie's. Annie, it seemed to us, would be more apt to remain where she was than William. We decided on his room first.

Breathlessly we tiptoed across the main hall to the servants' quarters. Not a sound. One dim light was burning just above the stairs in the narrow hallway. We listened at Higgins' door. A light was burning inside, but there was not a sound. We crept down the corridor to Cook's door where the sound of heavy breathing was clearly audible. Pushing open William's door, I groped for a light.

Two Letters Fall Out

The tumbled bed still bore testimony of my struggles there. The bunk straps that had held me lay on the floor as Michael had flung them. Inch by inch we went over the room—through the dresser, the wardrobe, his uniform pockets, under the rug, all over the bed and its mattress.

I finally shrugged helplessly and turned to the door. "Wait a minute," it was Michael at the window against which reposed a small leather cushion of the sort used in the driver's seat of a car. Mike picked it up. We all crowded around him and as we did so a section of the cushion unsnapped. Two letters fell to the floor. I stooped and picked them up.

They were both in plain white envelopes, one typed and one addressed in a vertical, firm handwriting. In the corner of the typewritten one, I read Office of the Warden, Wethersfield Prison, Wethersfield, Connecticut. It was addressed to Mr. William Miller, 137 Nassau St., New York City. My hand shook so that I could hardly get the letter out of the envelope. The date was in July of the previous year. I read:

I am sorry to learn from our mutual friend that you have encountered difficulty in securing employment. It is my suggestion that you get in touch with Mr. Blinshop who, in spite of the fact that he was obliged to take the stand against you, bears you no malice, and is most eager to help you now.

He is a generous and sympathetic man. In spite of the trouble you have caused him, you need not hesitate to accept his assistance. I heartily endorse the plan of a fresh name and a fresh start. Do not lose your nerve. Please keep in touch with me.

It was signed by the warden of the prison.

"DEAR BILL," read the other letter. "I was glad to hear from you. You've been on my mind for a long time. I'd hate you to think that I had any grudge against you because of your tough luck. I felt then and I still feel that you were a good chap in a tight spot.

"Fortunately, I think we can manage to get you a job where you will be just as well off as you were here. Then you can forget the whole business. With your permission, I'll drop in on you Wednesday at 11 a. m. and we can go around and see about it.

"It bucks me up to have you write to me after all. Let me know if Wednesday isn't all right.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN BLINSHOP."

So William had known Jude Blinshop! Worse than that, he had apparently gotten into trouble while working for her father and been prosecuted for it. For the first time, we had discovered a clear and plausible motive.

Another Scrap Looms

MICHAEL spoke first. "The rat!" he said. "After a guy went to all that trouble to give him a lift!" There were several things about the situation that puzzled me. Why should William have kept those two letters? He was not a sentimental soul, nor yet an imaginative one. Assuming that he had been responsible for Jude's death, he was a treacherous, cold-blooded devil. I couldn't seem to imagine such a man keeping incriminating evidence to glaze over when the nights were long and lonely.

The evidence was right under my nose, but I wasn't satisfied with it. Could this be what Jude had told Breathlessly we tiptoed across the main hall.

Michael? Perhaps she had not been aware that the aunts knew William's identity and wanted to warn them. Perhaps.

I asked Michael—for the sixth or seventh time—what Jude had told him in the game room.

"I don't know what I expected him to do, but he certainly didn't do it. His eyes jerked from the letters in his hand to my face. They held a startled, panicky look that turned rapidly to one of rage.

"I told you that she warned me about the chimneys." His voice was thin and tight. "Perhaps you could understand it better if I repeated that it was none of your business."

Gay's face turned a dull red and her eyes began to glitter.

"You listen to me—" She had Mike by the arm, and another scrap was close enough for me to see the whites of his eyes.

"Cut it out!" I snapped. "Gay, shut up. I thought that it might have been about William, Mike. That's all. Was it?"

"No."

"I believed him. Well, at least I knew of one thing that Jude had not talked about."

Man About Manhattan

New York — A new version of the gag about the punch-drunk fighter who didn't know where he was bobbed up, and Benny Leonard is the donor.

The ex-lightweight champ was reminiscing in a nostalgic mood and it was natural, that his remarks should concern busted beaks, cauliflower ears and round - house rights. Finally he arrived at the current crop of heavyweights and that brought up Joe Louis.

"Ask Eddie Simms if you don't think he hits hard," said Leonard. "You know what happened when he fought Simms, don't you? He knocked him out in a couple of seconds, but isn't what makes me laugh like you laugh when the other fellow slips on the banana peel. It was the aftermath."

"They dragged poor Simms, unconscious, to his dressing room and finally succeeded in bringing him around, but he was in a bad way. Then they got his clothes on him, and his manager led him out into the night."

"As they ambled down the street, the rain beating against them and the gloom enveloping them ominously, Simms looked up. This rain is apt to hurt the gate tonight," he observed.

"That brought his manager up short. After eyeing his man carefully, he murmured softly:

"That's all right, kid. They've called the fight off!"

Here is the tale of an acrobat, which proves conclusively that things aren't always as they seem. Ben Dova, after a year or so in Europe, was on the Hindenburg when she came zooming into Lakehurst that day so many lives were lost. Being an acrobat, he jumped, and knowing how to jump probably saved his life. Anyway he got off with minor injuries and some curious burns. It was the blistered hand, held up for inspection, which caused gasps from several of his intimates.

"But how strange," one observed, "only your hands are burned!" "Oh," said Ben, "I didn't burn them on the zep. I broke my ankle when I jumped, and I blistered my hands trying to walk with crutches."

SNAKE IN GRASS BREAKS UP STRANGE FAMILY

Fairfax, Okla. (AP) — A snake in the grass recently broke up a strange family relationship here.

World Champion Huskie Crew Rows 4,344 Miles—Races 25

SEATTLE (AP)—Doing a bit of mathematics on the tablecloth between courses at a banquet, Captain Jim McMillin of the University of Washington's world champion 8-oared crew figured he will have rowed 4,344 miles at the end of his college career in June. That is equivalent to one-sixth of the way around the world.

And all this he says—without regret—for 25 miles of competitive racing in four years. The rest of the mileage has been covered in painstaking preparation.

McMillin calculated he and the other seniors in the varsity shell which won the 1936 Olympic championship will have taken some 469,152 strokes when they pull their last in the intercollegiate regatta as defending champions on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, June 22.

Washington oarsmen average two hours a day through the fall and spring for the right and honor of competing about 35 minutes in intercollegiate rowing each year.

And what do they get? A $14 "W" sweater.

IT'S ODD... But It's Science

New York — Maybe light that man sees is not nearly so bright as he thinks. Evidence that it is only about one-quarter as bright is reported by Professor Ragnar Grant, Finnish physicist.

The eye amplifies light, he thinks, much as a photo-electric tube amplifies when it "sees" shades completely invisible to eyes. The tube does it by converting the light into electricity and stepping up the "juice."

Man's eye has similar amplifier, says Prof. Grant in the official science journal "Nature." They are the cornea and the retina. Light charges them with positive electricity he finds. After charging light looks four times as bright as before.

The Greenies came through with their fifth victory in six starts yesterday afternoon, defeating Kinston 9 to 3. The locals now are in a three-way tie with Ayden and Snow Hill for fifth place.

The Greenies meet Kinston, which has dropped to the cellar position, again today, playing in the Lenoir capital.

The locals got off to a good start in their half of the first frame scoring two runs. The Eagles were held scoreless until the sixth, when they scored three runs to take the lead.

The visitors stayed ahead only a short while, however, as Greenville came back in the seventh to score seven runs and sew up the game.

The Eagles had a 3-2 lead when the fans started their stretching act in the lucky stanza. Manager Bo Farley rapped a single to left as a signal to the customers that the stretching was bringing success. Thoele walked and Stowe singled to fill the bases. More superstitious fans got up for an extra bit of stretching.

Latham was hit by a pitched ball, and this forced in a run to tie the score. Andy Johnson's single tallied Thoele, and Hinton drew, a walk to force in a run. Conway went out but Muto tripled to left to drive in three runs. Calguira then singled, scoring Muto.

The seventh inning drama was principally at the expense of Muhlenbein, the Eagles' starting pitcher, and Schneider. Moser then took over and finished the game.

Kinston's three runs, in the 7th, came when Scott doubled after S-hultz's single and two walks had filled the bases.

Dorward Stowe, with three for three, paced the hitters:

Tarboro — Tarboro's Serpents eased into third place in the Coastal Plain standings by defeating the Goldsboro Bugs, 12-0 Thursday behind six-hit pitching of Douglas Hautz.

Hautz's mates chalked up four runs in the first, another in the second and four in the third. They got their remaining tallies in the next two verses. The Tarboro attack was to the tune of 17 safeties, including four doubles and a triple.

In only one inning did the Bugs give Hautz any trouble. Balla and Combs singled in the sixth, but a pop fly and a double play ended the threat. Each club turned in a pair of double plays to speed up the contest.

The fielding feature was offered by Frankie Ware, Tarboro second-sacker, when he rushed into right field in the fifth to make a great catch of an apparent hit by Overton.

Johnny On The Spot

SPORT SLANTS

P. J. (Patsy) Donovan once handled the Cleveland Indians, Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Red Sox. It was natural that his son, John M., should possess a share of his father's athletic prowess.

Young Donovan went to Dartmouth, where Jeff Tesreau, former big league pitcher, handles baseball. Everyone figured John was set for a baseball career. But John had other ideas.

He is a natural ball player. He was certain to win a variety berth had he been so minded. He proved that last spring when he was drafted to fill in at first base for Mutt Ray, the Big Green's regular first-sacker. With no preliminary practice Donovan stepped in, banged out three hits against Harvard, and helped Dartmouth tie the Crimson for the Eastern intercollegiate league championship. But baseball was not for him.

Donovan's baseball-minded dad gets a kick out of his son's triumphs in his chosen field — track. The boy is a hurdler, one of the best.

As a sophomore last spring Donovan won the I.C.A.A. outdoor titles in both hurdles events. He was the first to win both since Earl Thompson, his predecessor, at Dartmouth, turned the trick in 1921.

John scored several important victories on the boards last winter after a dropped off a successful indoor season by taking the intercollegiate hurdle championship.

He is a great competitor. He is at his best when the pressure is on. His speed on the flat has won many a close race. His ability as a sprinter has enabled him to snatch many victories with flying dashes to the tape.

Will Sanders, for 27 years foreman of Glenmore's fermenting room, says:

"Those bubbles are mighty important in makin' this fine Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey"

"For 27 years, I've been looking after these tubs. Always we run 'em the same. It's a slow process and the bubbles show how things are developing. We watch these tubs every minute. You can't take chances when you're making a whiskey as fine as Mint Springs."

Mint Springs Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey is made of the same fine grains, distilled by the same processes as Glenmore's most expensive whiskeys.

CONTEST ENDS WITH DISPUTE

Coburn's and Flanagan's Participants; Caro. Sales Wins

GAMES TODAY
Lawyers vs. Blount-Harvey (Third Street School)
Person Garrett vs. Car. Dairy (College Diamond)

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS
Carolina Sales 3, Tadlock Ins. 1

Standings	W.	L.	Pct.
Carolina Sales	3	1	.633
Coburn's	2	1	.667
Tadlock Ins.	3	2	.600
Person-Garrett	3	2	.600
Flanagan's	2	3	.400
Carolina Dairy	2	3	.400
Blount-Harvey	1	3	.333
Lawyers	1	4	.250

The first major dispute since the City softball league was organized here early this month arose yesterday in the final inning of a game between Flanagan Buggy Co. and Coburn's Shoe store.

The game does not appear in the results above and is not counted in the standings, pending an official ruling by the directors.

As Flanagan's home team went into their half of the final inning the two teams were tied at three-all. With two out and a runner on third a member of the Flanagan team hit safely and the runner on third came home. The case umpire ruled the run out, saying the runner was not tagging third base when the ball was hit, a rule in softball play. Wyatt Brown, head umpire, who gave the above account, said he did not see the play. An argument ensued, with Flanagan's claiming victory and Coburn's contending the man on third was out and the game ended in a 3-3 deadlock. All is expected to be ironed out at a meeting of the board of directors.

In the other game yesterday Carolina Sales maintained its place at the top of the league by defeating Tadlock Mutual Insurance agency 3-1 in a pitchers' duel, which also saw bang-up fielding. Neither team was able to score until the sixth, when Carolina Sales made its three. Tadlock payers came back in the seventh to score their only tally of the day. Each team made four hits.

Ed and Howard Waldrop showed up good for the winners, while Charles Woodard and Doug West starred for the losers.
