KIDNAP FEARS EXPRESSED FOR N.Y. SOCIALITE

Murder Theory Also Being Investigated By Authorities

LETTER DEMANDS $25,000 RANSOM

Note Found by Wm. H. Parsons, Husband of Missing Woman, at Home Last Night

(By Associated Press) Stony Brook, New York, June 10.—(AP)—Two theories, kidnapping or murder, confronted government investigators seeking to unravel the mystery today of the disappearance of Mrs. Alice Parsons, 38, New York social registerite, from her fashionable North Shore home on Long Island.

Boistering the abduction theory was a note pencilled on cheap paper enclosed in a cheap, white envelope addressed to William H. Parsons, husband of the missing woman. Parsons is a Yale graduate and retired business man.

The note was unsigned. It demanded $25,000 and contained the sinister suggestion police activity might mean death for Mrs. Parsons.

In support of the murder theory was a blood-stained axed found on the grounds of the farm. The ax was wrapped in a plastic bag, though it was not clear whether it might have been used to kill.

The ransom note was found last night shortly after Parsons returned from a trip to New York city and his wife missing notified the State Police at Bay Shore on the south side of the island.

It was addressed to "Bill Parsons." The authorities would not disclose its contents.

Medical Care For the Needy Sought

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10.—(AP)—A personal message from President Roosevelt asking cooperation in plans to give medical care to those unable to pay for it was delivered to the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association here today by U. S. Senator Hamilton Lewis of Illinois.

The message was delivered in secret executive session and its gist was given out at the session's close by Dr. Morris Fishbein, official spokesman for the association.

He said Senator Lewis telephoned the President and asked: "What shall I say to the American Medical Association?"

The answer was first to seek cooperation of doctors for the care of the poor.

Second, Senator Lewis said, that legislation is under consideration upon which recommendations are desired concerning distribution of medical care and arrangements for patients to select their own physician.

When President Roosevelt and other high dignitaries come to this state to join in the celebration of the 350th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare on Roanoke Island, Mrs. M. D. Yelverton of Fountain will be among those on hand to welcome them.

Governor Hoey has just announced his welcoming committee. In addition to Mrs. Yelverton others on the committee are: Former Governor Ehringhaus of Elizabeth City and Raleigh, Mrs. W. H. Belk of Charlotte; Hiden Ramsay of Asheville; R. B. Page of Wilmington; W. P. Meekins of Lenoir and Wade Lucas of Raleigh.

The main address of the celebration will be made by President Roosevelt on August 18. Governor Hoey is ex-officio chairman of the committee arrangements for the affair.

CONFEDERATE VET STILL A NIMBLE DANCER

Some have suggested the 47th Confederate reunion in Jackson, Miss., might be the last general gathering for the men who fought the South's battles in the War between the States. But there was no hint of sadness when the veterans marched into that city and pitched camp. For example, Gen. O. R. Gillette of Shreveport, La., felt so good that he danced a jig while the band played "Dixie" and admiring matrons and maids applauded.

DATE SET FOR ENCAMPMENT

Local Unit of National Guard to Leave Here July 18

J. H. Waldrop, commanding officer of the local unit of the National Guard, Battery A, 113 Field Artillery, announced today the unit would leave on July 18 for two weeks of encampment at Fort Bragg.

Sixty-four men and four officers will go to the camp by truck. The unit's heavy guns also will be taken by truck mounted on pneumatic tires. The modern trucks were secured last year and will enable the National Guard to move its heavy guns much faster and easier.

During the two weeks of encampment the unit will go to Camp Jackson at Columbia, S. C., for a two-day road march problem. It will be the first time the local men ever have carried out such a program.

Captain Waldrop said this morning "our boys are in excellent condition for going to camp, the personnel, and morale of the unit is in fine shape."

At its regular drill last night two distinguished officers were on hand to view the local men. They were Major A. S. Quintard of Raleigh and Major L. E. Brock of New Bern, instructor in artillery.

Both expressed praise for the local unit and also for the army which is practically ready to be trained over for occupancy by the National Guard.

Major Quintard revealed that all four local officers were listed in the highest rank. Officers are graded in three classes, A, B, and C. All four officers of the unit here are in Class A. The officers are Captain Waldrop, Lieutenant L. E. Brock, Lieutenant J. H. Moye and Lieutenant W. S. Tyson.

State Merchants Realize Sales Tax Here To Stay

Raleigh, June 10.—A majority of the merchants in this state are getting more and more accustomed to the sales tax and realize that it is here to stay for a long, long time, according to most of those who went from here to New Bern this week to gauge the reaction of the merchants to the speech made by Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell in which he told the merchants that the state was going to make it more difficult than ever for any one to evade the sales tax and was going to "crack down" on those who tried to evade it.

The merchants generally were pleased with Commissioner Maxwell's declaration that the law was going to be more stringently enforced than ever, since this was one of the things they asked of Maxwell and of Governor Hoey back before Governor Hoey took office. For some time they have maintained that as long as the sales tax was on the law books, every merchant should be compelled to pay it, regardless of whether he liked the tax or not. So what Commissioner Maxwell had to say about "crack-

Labor Relations Board Agent Hearing Complaints

Lumberton, June 10.—(AP)—Sheriff Mark Page asked state help in preventing disorder at the Mansfield cotton mill here today as a representative of the National Labor Relations Board began a hearing into union charges that employees had been subjected to discrimination because of their union membership.

The Robeson county officer said he had requested Governor Hoey to send a detachment of state highway patrolmen here to augment a force of deputies which has been on duty at the Mansfield mill since Monday.

"I have heard reports of threats being made and there seems to be some danger of disorders," said the sheriff.

Patrol headquarters in Greensboro said Lieut. Arthur Moore in charge of Troop B had sent 15 men to the area and they were to assist county and municipal authorities.

The mill through its attorneys denied it had discriminated against any employees because of their labor union activities and challenged the authority of the board to intervene in the situation.

At the offset of the hearing, held in the Robeson county courthouse before a capacity crowd, Dickson McLean, attorney for the mill, filed a motion for the complaint of discrimination be dismissed on the ground that the board was without jurisdiction.

The attorney argued the alleged transaction in the proceedings were of a purely inter-state character and that as a result the Federal Board had no authority to interfere.

Examiner Henry Hines of Washington withheld action upon the motion, but announced it would be submitted in his report to the full board.

TOBACCONISTS SUPPORT MOVE

Reorganized Chamber Commerce Is Sought For City

The Greenville Warehousemen's association, in regular monthly meeting last night, went on record as endorsing the movement now under way to reorganize the local Chamber of Commerce and the warehousemen unanimously pledged their support, both moral and financial, to the proposal.

A move has been underway to establish a modern, wide-awake adequately financially backed Chamber of Commerce here for several months. At a meeting some time ago of a number of prominent business men, a committee was named to proceed with a survey of the situation and report back to a public meeting of local business men.

The drive for a reorganized Chamber of Commerce already has been endorsed by a number of organizations. The Tobacco Board of Trade has revealed it would support such a move and members of the City Board of Aldermen have discussed the matter and have expressed their willingness to support the proposal.

It is understood that efforts will be made to have the various civic organizations in the city get behind the movement and lend their support to the proposal.

The Merchants division of the present Chamber of Commerce is the only department very active at present. The present set-up has been handicapped in undertaking activities because of the lack of financial backing, it is understood.

NEW DISORDER BREAKS OUT IN STEEL STRIKE

Early Morning Clash Disrupts Period Of Relative Calm

YOUNGSTOWN, O., CONFLICT SCENE

Tension Increased In Monroe, Michigan, Where Inland Officials Plan Reopen

An early morning clash between pickets and officers shattered an interlude of relative calm in the seven-state steel strike which entered its third week today.

Repercussions of a previous bloody clash and threatened new disorders continued to unrest industrial conflicts which have rendered more than 127,000 idle.

Fifty policemen and sheriff's deputies used tear gas and night sticks in hand-to-hand fighting in Youngstown, Ohio, today. Several hundred strikers participated in the melee precipitated by pickets' attempts to block a food-laden truck destined for the Republic corporation mill. At least 17, including two policemen, were hurt.

Tension increased at Monroe, Mich., where a Republic subsidiary, Newton Steel company, planned to reopen its strike-closed plant. Company officials said the plant would resume operations regardless of the outcome Governor Frank Murphy's conference with the employees.

Two hundred special police were sworn in to aid a force of 20 policemen and 50 deputies. Leaders of the Steel Workers Organization Committee said picket lines would be strengthened by 3,000 to 10,000 unionists from steel mills in the Detroit area.

A formal complaint charging the Inland Steel corporation with violation of the Wagner act was submitted to the National Labor Relations board by S. W. O. C. officials at Chicago.

Weather Forces Lull In Spanish Civil Conflict

Diplomatic Negotiations, However, Develop Conflict

(By Associated Press)

Bad weather forced a temporary lull in the Spanish war today, but international diplomatic wrangling over non-intervention in Spain developed new complications.

Russia, on the side of the Spanish Government, asked and was refused permission to enter into discussions designed to bring Germany and Italy back into neutrality patrol in the waters off Spain.

Captain Euan Wallis, British vice chairman of the European Non-Intervention committee, said there had been no objection to secret Anglo-French-Italian-German discussions of the problem when a sub-committee met May 31.

Therefore he denied Russia's request that the problem be brought before Russia and all other members of the committee. Apparently the British felt there would be new friction if they let Russia in on the talks.

In Madrid the Government took advantage of the war lull to get to the task of evacuating more non-combatants.

Alcibiades Pecanha, Brazil ambassador, announced he and other diplomats were interested in this evacuation "which we consider necessary and humanitarian because of the illness and great poverty it inflicts on most of these persons."

Seawell Doubts Counties Liable For ABC Debts Raleigh, June 10.—(AP)—Attorney General A. F. Seawell expressed doubt in a ruling today that a bank loan to county alcoholic beverage stores would be an obligation of a county.

"Perhaps the question as to whether or not such a loan is an obligation of the county can not be authoritatively answered until it is decided by the Supreme Court," Seawell's ruling said. "However, I think the better opinion is that it is not an obligation of the county."

Seawell gave the ruling to Seawell held if the stores did have authority to borrow, that in his opinion such loans had to have local government commission approval and that the proceeds of any loans under any such conditions had to be deposited and protected as are other county funds.

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, June 10.—Although none of the quarter of a million dollars appropriated by the 1937 General Assembly for advertising North Carolina over the next two-year period has yet been spent or obligated, the state is already getting a considerable amount of valuable publicity throughout the nation, it was pointed out today by Assistant Director Paul Kelly of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Holland's magazine, with a circulation of hundreds of thousands, carried in its current issue an article under the title of "North Carolina Rumpkin" on the industrial development of the state, with considerable emphasis on further opportunities for the development of the mineral resources.

Recently there has been prepared in the Department of Conservation and Development, which will direct the state advertising program, an article for one of the larger automobile trade publications on the celebration to begin next month on Roanoke Island. This story will be illustrated with photographs of reconstructed Old Fort Raleigh.

To cooperate with the Rhododendron Festival to be held next week in Asheville, the Department has recently put on a radio broadcast over several North Carolina radio stations on this subject. A considerable number of prospective visitors to the festival, it is believed, have been reached in this manner.

Following the original meeting on May 13 for hearing various advertising agencies on the handling of the state account, North Carolina was featured in a special radio address over one of the largest eastern radio stations.

Finishing touches are being made by the conservation department on a new tourist booklet designed for the purpose of making known to prospective visitors the many outstanding scenic, recreational, and historical attractions of the state.

SEN. ROBINSON SAYS REVENUE LARGEST TASK

Congress Must Raise Money to Finance Social Legislation

SENATORS ASKED BROADEN PROBE

Sen. Guffey Would Grant Committee Power to Investigate Arms Stored in Mills

Washington, June 10.—(AP)—Senate Majority Leader Robinson of Arkansas, said today a chief difficulty of Congress just now is finding "sufficient additional revenue" to finance social legislation already planned.

He said in the future he looked for a steady increase in government spending "for what we call social welfare," but asserted no further undertaking would be scheduled for this Congress.

Already he said "there had been laid out as many reforms as we can carry through this session," and the problem has resolved itself into one of financing.

As Robinson made his remarks to representatives of the people's lobby who had visited him in behalf of certain tax changes the senate approved a resolution authorizing an inquiry into tax dodging.

Meanwhile Senator Guffey (D. Penn.) asked the senate to broaden its proposed investigation of the Mid-Western Steel strike situation to include importation of "gunmen" and the illegal holding of machine guns and "other war paraphernalia" by the steel firms involved.

He urged the senate instruct its post office committee to inquire into the "moral conduct of both parties" to the strike and to decide whether refusal of the steel companies to sign a union contract, was a violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

He offered his proposal as an amendment to a resolution by Senator Bridges (R. N. H.) calling for investigation of reports that the postoffice department had refused to deliver mail to workers living in strike bound plants.

The senate itself authorized creation of a special committee to investigate unemployment and relief policies and to formulate permanent programs for handling them.

Elsewhere James Emert, general counsel for the association for the National Manufacturers Association, testified against wage and hour provision of the wage and hour bill and declared "we can not believe that the labor organizations of the United States are unwilling to accept the same responsibility to the republic within the field of commerce that is properly imposed upon business organizations."

Amelia Earhart Hops Off Despite Reports Of Tornadoes Dakar, French Senegal, June 10.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart flew eastward across Africa's wild expanse today despite warnings that tornadoes raged the path of her "just for fun" round the world flight.

After a smooth take-off at 6:35 a. m., Greenwich me an time (1:55 a. m. est) from Ouakam airport the American woman headed for Gao, altering somewhat her previously set course on account of unfavorable weather.

She had planned to fly her monoplane to Niamey, French Niger colony, 250 miles southeast of Gao and due east of here.

Arising before dawn, Miss Earhart hurried to the airfield where she received reports of barometric depressions and tornadoes in the Sudanese region in the heart of Africa over which she had charted her course.

So she decided to swing slightly to the north of Gao, but maintained the general direction of her itinerary through the center of the continent, toward Chad, French equatorial Africa.

May-Garris
Yesterday afternoon at five-thirty the marriage of Miss Doris Lynn Garris to Reynolds May, junior, was solemnized in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in a ceremony of charm and beauty.

The church was a scene of rare beauty. Cornucopia standards of regal lilies, feverfew and gypsophelia were placed before a background of palms, fern and southern amilax. In the center and at either side were arches of cathedral candles. The same candle arrangement was effectively used throughout the church.

As relatives and friends assembled Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, wearing a gown of orchid chiffon and corsage of sunset roses, played a program of nuptial music, including "Liebstraum" by Liszt; "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," by Herbert and "Verecilian Love Song," by Nevin.

Just before the entrance of the wedding party, Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick and Edwin Parkerson sang the "Serenade" by Schubert. Mrs. Kirkpatrick's gown was of pink chiffon. Her flowers were a corsage of Columbia roses and delphinium.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, wearing white net and lace with pink accessories and a corsage of premiere roses, sang "Because" by De Hardelet and "Sweetheart" by Glider.

Fastened to each tier down the front of the skirt, were tiny bows of the same material. They wore turbans of maline trimmed in tiny velvet flowers, and a short face veil matching their gowns. They carried arm bouquets of painted daisies, delphinium, gerberas and gladioli tied with contrasting ribbons.

Next to enter was the flower girl, little Miss Jean Moye, cousin of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Moye of Henry. She wore a lovely frock of yellow marquisette fashioned on the same lines as the bridesmaids and carried a double wedding ring bouquet of small pink and blue painted daisies. She wore a coronet of sweetheart roses.

Miss Helen Fleming, as maid of honor, preceded the bride. Her gown was of May Ann blue marquisette, designed by Mainbocher on identical lines as those worn by the bridesmaids. Her turban of maline matched her gown. She carried an arm bouquet centered with delphinium and briarcliff roses against a tulle background edged with sweetheart roses.

The bride entered with and was given in marriage by her father, Louis Bryan Garris. They were met at the chancel by the bridegroom and his father, S. Reynolds May of Dothan, Alabama, as best man.

The bride wore a Vionet wedding gown of white Alecon lace over bridal satin fashioned along princess lines. Her long veil of illusion was attached to a corsage of seed pearls and net caught in the back with orange blossoms. Her semi-colonial bride's bouquet was made of a cluster of valley lilies and Killarney roses centered with orchids and showered with lilies of the valley.

The vows were spoken before the Reverend T. McM. Grant, pastor of the church.

During the ceremony, Mrs. Hadley softly played "I Love You Truly" by Bond. The Wedding March from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer's Night Dream" was played as the party left the church.

For the wedding, Mrs. Louis Bryan Garris, mother of the bride, wore blue marquisette and lace with matching accessories and corsage of premiere roses and valley lilies. Mrs. S. Reynolds May, mother of the bridegroom, wore black lace with black and white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

The lower floor of the home was beautifully decorated. Tall standards of gladioli, feverfew, gypsophelia and fern were used in the hall and living room.

As guests arrived they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taft and presented to the receiving line in the living room by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Edwards.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Garris were Reynolds May, Miss Doris Garris, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. May of Dothan, Alabama, Plato Evans, Miss Helen Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. May, Decatur, Alabama; W. T. Lipscomb, Miss Florence Denning, Benson; William Epsy, Dothan, Alabama; Miss Ethel Perry, Rocky Mount; Larry M. James, Miss Louise Taylor, Miss Louise Winslow, Mrs. Minnie Arthur, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Waldrop invited guests into the solarium where punch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Tyson Bilbro and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bilbro. Quantities of varicolor flowers were used in the solarium, with painted daisies on the punch table.

At the entrance of the gift room, where double larkspur in the pastel shades and gypsophelia were used, were Mrs. H. C. Sugg and Mrs. Larry M. James. Here they were received by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Baker and Mrs. G. C. Evans.

From the gift room they passed to the rear hall where Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Moye invited them to the register. They were registered by Mrs. Helene Kirkpatrick and Edwin Parkerson.

At the dining room door were Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Cobb.

The dining room was very attractive in a bridal note of green and white. Wedding bells, baby's breath and valley lilies tied with silver ribbons, were showered from the center light over the center piece, a Marie Antoinette design of bride's roses, valley lilies, baby's breath and pomosa fern. A three-tiered wedding cake, surmounted with a miniature bride and groom standing under an arch of valley lilies and fern formed the central decorations on the buffet.

Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley and Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb served ices molded in wedding bells. Cakes, mints and salted nuts were passed by Misses Frances Harvey, Margaret Bostic, Christine Willkerson, Laura Fleming and Virginia Bradshaw, and Mrs. F. T. Harper of Sanatorium.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. T. McM. Grant.

Dinner For Mr. May
A very enjoyable affair of the week was on Monday evening when Reynolds May, Jr., whose marriage to the former Miss Doris Garris was solemnized yesterday, was honored at dinner at the Country Club.

Groomsmen for the wedding were hosts. Covers were laid for ten at an attractively appointed table. The center piece was a crystal bowl of white gladioli, feverfew and fern. A delectable dinner was served.

PLAN TO START NEW BUILDING

Work on Office Structure to Proceed at An Early Date

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, June 10.—Construction work on the new $550,000, state office building for which the general design and architects have just been selected, will proceed as rapidly as possible and as soon as the building commission decides on the types of materials to be used. It was announced today by State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson, secretary of the commission.

The architects for the new building will be Northrup and O'Brien of Winston-Salem, who submitted the winning design and plans to the commission and the advisory committee.

The Northrup and O'Brien design and plans were selected as the best and most appropriate from 16 sets of plans and specifications submitted by architects from every section of the state, and before any member of the advisory committee or of the commission knew who had submitted any of the plans.

The general design of the building is similar to that of the Department of Revenue and Supreme Court Building, with the result that it will harmonize with the present group of state buildings around the capitol square. It is expected that the exterior will be of light gray granite, similar to that used in most of the other state buildings, although this has not been definitely decided. A subcommittee of the building commission, composed of Chairman Walter D. Siler of Salisbury of the building commission, A. S. Brower, Willis Smith and Charles M. Johnson, was appointed by the commission to confer and cooperate with the architects, especially with regard to the types of materials to be used. Bids cannot be called for on the contract until all these details have been worked out. But both the commission and the architects want to get the work started on the building as soon as possible.

The commission expects to sell the buildings now on the site of the new buildings at public auction and to have them either razed or moved off. Some three or four frame residences now are on the site and it is expected that most of these will be purchased and moved to new locations. The site of the new building is the corner of Benton and Salisbury streets, across from the First Baptist church and the State Department buildings.

ETIQUETTE

There's something peculiar about the parent of the species. Given ordinary circumstances and everyday affairs, papa usually keeps a pretty level head. Mama, all things being equal, reacts fairly normally in most minor cases. For some reason, however, graduations seem to strike a responsive chord.

If you're anxious to maintain that above - par respect your son or daughter has for you, here are a few commencement don'ts and do's:

Put your best foot forward. If you can't invest in a new outfit, splurge in a thorough cleaning and pressing job. Get your old hat re-blocked. Have last year's somewhat faded light blue silk dress and jacket ensemble dyed dark blue and get a smart new hat and gloves to match. (It will pay big dividends in your son or daughter's pride.)

Leave pet names and family photographs behind. Find out what August is called by his college mates and refer to him in a similar vein—unless, of course, that nickname is worse than your own. If they call him August follow suit. No more of this "Augie" business.

Don't apologize for or explain Augie's social blunders. He'll be self-conscious enough as it is. No prodding when he doesn't do a jumping jack every time his sister Frances comes into the room. Remember that Frances is apt to do what's being done in her group on her campus. No comments when she lights a cigarette. There will be plenty of opportunity to get them in after the commencement smoke has cleared away.

The chances are you'll be only one proud parent among many. So don't do too much talking about the object of your interests. If he's worth raving about his colleagues will take care of that.

Forget that story about Augie's first date—when he introduces his best girl.

And—last but not far from least—be on time for each event you're expected to attend. There's nothing more upsetting for the already excited graduate than to spend his hours keeping appointments for someone else.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS. A mysterious shot kills Jude Blinshop, my old flame, at the start of our stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Strange attacks follow; then we find the body of Michael's mad father below the bluff. Stout, Victorian Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder and nearly finished with sleeping powders. The Skipper, Mike's tall, tawny younger aunt, disappears; we find her six hours later bound in the left, all but dead. A shot drags us to the room of Higgins, the butler, whom we had strongly suspected shortly before. He is dead, supposedly a suicide.

Chapter 48 Murder No. 3

I BLINKED dazedly. That was the question. What earthly reason could there be for Higgins' amazing actions? A contented, gentle old man with the rest of his life mapped out for him as pleasantly as anyone could wish, suddenly goes haywire and kills a girl he has known since her babyhood, a man whom he has spent a good part of his life caring for, and finally attempts to kill the two people who represent all the family and security that he has. It didn't make sense. There could be no question of money as a motive. I happened to know that the entire Farrington fortune had been left in trust for Michael by his grandfather with a request that Higgins be provided for as long as he lived. The only solution seemed to be insanity.

"It's a hopeless mess, William. Can you think what could have ailed him?"

William shook his head. "Must have been plumb nutty, I guess. Didn't seem like that, but he must have been. Funny. You know, when I was working for the Blinshops I always thought Higgins was crazy about Miss Judith."

I looked around that bare little room and shivered. Then I walked out—very softly.

My watch said 20 minutes past six. There was little point in trying to hustle people off to bed. We were bound to be routed out again within a very few hours, and I knew from experience that a little sleep is worse than none at all. It was highly doubtful that anyone would be able to sleep anyway.

Snapping on the low lamp on the dresser, I turned out the glaring overhead lights. Gently I closed the door on Higgins' room and made off in the direction of the main house. Cold showers, breakfast and a plan of action were in order.

Michael's room was empty, but in mine the Skipper was still sleeping soundly. Gay was standing at the window.

"Where are the others?" I whispered.

"I'm not sure. They went down the hall somewhere—Miss Farrington's room, I guess. Jim—are—are you sure it's over?"

"Absolutely sure, Gay. Was the Skipper disturbed at all?"

"No." Her hands were restless. "Whatever possessed him? Does anyone know?"

I drew her into the next room. "I doubt it," I said, "and I doubt if anyone ever will. Now listen, kid. Go take a cold shower and freshen up. William will stir up some breakfast. See that Aunt Martha does the same thing and send Mike along to me. All the majesty of the law is going to be loose around here in a little while and it isn't going to be much fun."

"O.K." There was something about the jaunty tilt of the kid's chin that I liked. I stopped her.

"Gay, I said, 'there'll be a pretty big fuss over this in the papers. If Mike suddenly gets noble ideas about not soiling the hem of your gown, don't let him get away with it.'"

She flashed me a grin that sent my spirits soaring.

"Sonny," she said, "if he thinks he can get away from me now, he'll need the militia to help him."

Michael Gets A Shower
HER feet clattered cheerfully down the hall. Hauling out clean clothes, I felt a little better. It was over at last. I was jumping around in the shower when I heard Michael come in. Grabbing a towel, I strode dripping after him.

But if my spirits were up, his were hitting a new, all-time low. He flopped down on the bed.

"Don't be such a damned Pollyanna!" he growled.

My spirits began to slide. "How's M. Farrington?"

"How do you think? Jim, what the devil do you suppose ailed him? Why did he do it? It's—it's—"

"Cut it out, Mike," I said. "We don't know and probably we never will. What difference does it make now? Get into that shower. You're all right."

Michael kicked at the rug. "It makes a lot of difference. Higgins never had a thing wrong with him in his life. And he never did a thing in his life but look . . . my damned family."

Michael has an Irish streak which calls for the noble and highly dramatic. Right then I had no answer for him. I felt rather like a person lost in the woods who knows there is an animal of some sort behind him, but doesn't dare turn around to look. Higgins must have had a motive. But just then I didn't care to turn around and look at it.

"The police," I said, "will have no reason for thinking anything but that the poor old chap lost his mind. You haven't either. Stop trying to dig yourself up a family skeleton. Go take—"

"The hell with your shower!" Michael exploded. "Who gives a damn what the police think? I've got to know why he did it. I've got—"

"—to take a shower," I finished grimly. Picking him up clothes and all, I carted him, struggling, into the bathroom. It was something of a job to hold him, but he was thoroughly doused before he managed to send me crashing on my ear and stalk out. I threw him a towel.

"Take a rubdown," I said.

"You go to hell!" But he caught the towel with his bad hand. I grinned and set to work on my own dressing, leaving him to his fuming. The atmosphere was so natural that I could have whooped for joy. I was busy with my tie before he got to the point where he could directly address me.

"Do you suppose there is any way that they could leave the aunts out of all this? If the story about my father hits the headlines, Aunt Martha will never get over it. Foster ought to be able to keep them away from the Skipper for a while anyway."

I said, "I think the best thing to do, Mike, is for me to go into the village on the first boat that gets here. I'll go straight to Foster and leave it all up to him. Then, if he'll let me, I'll push on to the Blinshops' Oight to be back by seven tomorrow night, easily."

Michael was silent for a moment. "That's decent of you, Jim."

I climbed into my coat. "Forget it," I said. "Keep your ear cocked for the Skipper. I'll see how the breakfast is coming."

Spotch On The Wall

IN broad daylight, the effect of the electricity in the hall was rather ghostly. The sooner we got all the lights out and the house nearly normal, the better for everyone concerned. Switching them off as I went, I headed down the hall and into the servants' quarters. At the head of the back stairs I remembered the lights in Higgins' room and in Jude's. I turned back. With my eyes averted from the bed, I made for Higgins' dresser. And then something leapt into my throat.

Directly in front of me at the level of my eyes, was a splotch in the wall plaster, and within that splotch the bullet which had ended Higgins' life. Passing a bewildered hand over my eyes, I looked again. There was no mistake. The bullet was there. Was my memory of the situation blurred? I rushed to the bed and flung back the blanket.

Higgins lay on his back with his arms flung out at his sides, the revolver tightly clenched in the right hand. In his right temple was the bullet hole, and in the left, the nasty gash made by the bullet tearing through. But the mark in the plaster was in the wall on his right!

Ideas began bouncing through my head. A man falling in a faint or for any reason other than a blow, falls on his face. Unless Higgins had been sitting on the bed, he could never have landed in that position. Could he have been sitting? I crouched until my head was approximately at the level of a person sitting on the bed. For a bullet to have passed through both sides of the man's head and landed where it had, it must have passed right through the top of his skull. And Higgins' wounds were in his temples.

Much as the idea of the old man's guilt hurt, I wanted the whole thing to be over with. Perhaps, I reasoned frantically, the impact of the bullet spun him around. Perhaps—My next realization sent me staggering against the wall. The revolver was in his right hand, and Higgins had been left-handed! Murder number three!

Right then and there my state of mind clarified. All along I had been nearly as much afraid that we would catch the murderer as I was that we wouldn't. But I thought of that tortured old face as I had last seen it alive. I took one more look at it as it was then. And I wanted that murderer. If it was Michael himself, I was going to see him die before my own eyes.

My mind began to work as coldly as if it were dealing with a problem in bridge. Not the Skipper. I had been sitting beside her when the shot was fired. Furthermore, the murderer had put her behind that chest. Higgins must have seen them, to his undoing.

(Copyright 1937, Esther Tyler)

I devised a trap for the murderer, tomorrow.

PLANT NEEDED TO STORE EGGS

Place to House Poultry and Eggs Urged For State

Raleigh, June 10.—A muddled situation in which North Carolina packers and large grocery companies go outside the state to purchase their poultry and eggs while North Carolina growers ship their poultry to eastern markets, could be cleared up by the establishment of a few strategically located dressing and storage plants in the state, believes T. T. Brown, State College extension poultryman.

At the present time, large buyers of poultry products find it impossible to purchase chickens and eggs in quantities sufficient to meet their needs. On the other hand, North Carolina poultrymen send their surplus to already overcrowded eastern markets where the price has been driven down.

With a ready market for surplus poultry in this state, it seems unwise for poultry growers to ship their products outside. Brown believes, yet, buyer and seller cannot get together unless there is some medium set up here where the farmer can take his chickens and eggs and where the buyer can go to make his purchases.

A few grading and storage plants scattered over the state where there is a surplus of poultry would work to the advantage of both buyer and seller. During the season of high egg production, poultrymen could sell their surplus to the storage plants where they would be available to large buyers when eggs became scarce.

In selling poultry and eggs to such establishments, growers should not expect better prices than paid on local markets. Brown stated. The idea is to protect and strengthen local markets rather than to beat them. Local markets would break without protection from flooding, especially with low quality products.

BLACK WALNUT STUMPS PROVE BURIED TREASURE

El Paso, Tex. (AP)—Excavating "buried treasure" in the form of huge black walnut stumps, hundreds of years old, has proved a profitable sideline for Roberto Revilla, mining man of Chihuahua City, Mex.

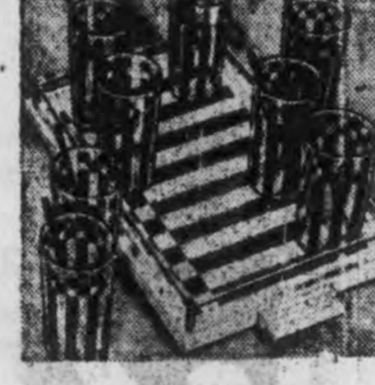

The stumps, weighing an average of 3,500 pounds each, are found buried deep in the dry sandy soil of Chihuahua and Durango. At first they resemble huge, rough boulders. Cut and polished, they reveal a beautifully intricate grain which brings good money in rare wood markets.

Revilla exports most of his wood to cabinet makers of France, Italy and Austria.

LIVE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NEEDED

The movement for a real live Chamber of Commerce here, as endorsed by the Tobacco Warehousemen's Association last night and also understood to be endorsed by other local organizations, is certainly a step toward something that Greenville greatly needs. We make this statement without any reflections on the present Chamber of Commerce, for that organization has done wonderfully well with the financial support the town has given it, but primarily its activities have been in the capacity of a merchants' association and Greenville needs more than that if it is to continue to forge ahead and hold its place as a leader among Eastern North Carolina cities.

What Greenville needs is not a Chamber of Commerce in name only, but an organization with sufficient financial support to achieve something for Greenville and unless our citizens are willing to give such an organization the financial support needed, then there is no need to even try a reorganization for it takes money to carry on this work and unless we are willing to put money and effort into it we cannot expect results.

Let's "Wake Up and Live" by reorganizing our Chamber of Commerce and giving it our full moral and financial support in order that it might render a real job in the way of placing Greenville's story before the world and attract new business, new residents and industries to this city.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington — Some of President Roosevelt's keenest advisors assert that the new wage-hour would be acceptable to the Supreme Court with its present membership, even including Justice Van Devanter. They concede it would be a 5-4 decision with that lineup.

That is sharply in contrast with the press conference inference of President Roosevelt. At the same time some of these same counselors agree that the wage-hour board in the bill has some very decisive powers. They expect that even if cautiously applied, some of the regulations the board could set up would destroy certain "marginal" producers unable to meet the higher cost requirements.

The board, for instance, could impose different wage scales for South Carolina spinning mills than for those for New England and thus hold over them the power of life or death. The plan of the designers of the bill is to impose no wage-hour terms on South Carolina that would threaten its steadily expanding spinning industry. At the same time it is intended to push up the wage-hour levels so that $2 a day southern rates will not compel wage cuts in New England to meet the lower cost competition.

In addition, they would expect the government to get administrators, with skill and judgment, and then supply them with the information they need in adapting the wage-hour relations. But, actually wouldn't this power to fix wages give the board power to plan industry — to decide what

New York — One of the diversions of New York at the moment is picking names out of the headlines and recalling amusing legends about them. This is neat and drink to a reporter who must write every day about this island town, and so after attending a party where the game was played I took down a few notes and hurried right back to the typewriter.

Naturally, with Amelia Earhart off on an exciting world-flight her name bobbed up immediately, and it recalled the time she started out on what she hoped would be a quick, non-stop flight from Boston to New York — by fast roadster!

It was late at night and with traffic at a minimum, she was popping off when out of nowhere a motorcyclist came out of the bushes and motioned her over to the curb.

"This is too bad," said Miss Earhart. I was particularly anxious to reach New York before 2 a. m. I suppose I get a ticket."

"You'll have to come with me," explained the cop sympathetically. "Good gracious, are you going to take me to jail?" Miss Earhart cried.

"Just turn your car around and follow me," directed the trooper. Chagrined, Miss Earhart complied, and presently the convoy drew up at a house on a side road about 100 yards off the main highway.

Then the cop pounded on the door and cried, "Sally, come down here."

Two minutes later an excited woman with a shawl over her negligee came out on the porch and her eyes were popping with pleasure.

The cop turned to his prisoner and saluted smartly. "Miss Earhart," he said, "I want to introduce you to my wife. She has a celebrity industries should develop in one place, and not in another?"

The reply we received was that the bill's designers intended to put into it safeguards against such an outcome. One informant, however, put it this way: Suppose a certain industry should start up in some part of the country, and suppose the board decided it should not continue. The board could level intended to choke it off. To stop the board in such action, the industry then could appeal to the courts for an injunction that adds issues to the court question.

"Not you, Miss Earhart," cried the cop gallantly. "It's a pleasure to be of service to a lady." The last she saw of him he was heading back towards the Boston Post Road.

Here's Speedy Relief For Tender, Aching, Swollen Feet

Your feet may be so swollen and so flamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture; you'd give anything to get relief.

Two or three applications of Moore's Emerald-Gel and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns and Callouses a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off. No matter how discouraged you have been, if you have not tried Emerald-Gel then you have something to learn, and best of all any offensive odor is gone for good.

After getting a 10-run lead in the first pair of innings at the Third Street stadium here yesterday afternoon, the Greenville Greenies held the Kinston Braves to six tallies to run their winning streak to four straight.

Amos Dawson, former product of the New Bern Bears made his debut for the Greenies yesterday, allowing 10 scattered hits as compared with eleven at the expense of two Kinston tossers.

Uralah Norwood did the prettiest piece of fielding seen here in many a day, and prevented what might have been a couple of damaging blows to the Greenies in the seventh and ninth innings. In the seventh and ninth innings, Frank Dirman of the Eagles swatted a couple in the right field territory—right up against the fence—but Norwood happened to be there when they came down.

In the first stanza, Webster Koonitz was awarded a free pass to base. Bob Farley singled left field, Norwood sacrificed, Koonitz and Farley advancing a base. Wilson Thole singled to center, scoring Farley and Koonitz. Andy Johnson then dropped a lone double just inside the right field wall, scoring Thole. Rudisill was hit by Joines and took a base, then Schultz made a wild throw to third and Johnson scored.

Continuing their scoring spree in the second, Koonitz got an infield hit and Farley homered over the centerfielder's head. Norwood rifled a single to center. This landed the nerves of Melchor Bess, so he decided to send Joines to the showers and manage the hitting affairs of the Greenville rest of the route.

Thole, the first batter facing the Earl manager-pitcher, took a walk and Durwood Stowe doubled to center, scoring Norwood and Thole. Bess then balked Stowe advancing to third. "Moe" Melchor tried to center scoring Stowe. It looked like the fire department would be needed to get the Greenies out—but they were retired without further scoring.

Not forgetting the runs made by the Greenies Leonard Schulte singled to center and Frank Dirman singled to right. Tony Malsano reached first on Johnson's error—Andy's first of the year—and Joe Schultz singled to right, scoring Schulte and Dirman.

The Farles came back again in the sixth to do their final tally of the game. Malsano reached first on an error by Farley. Schultz was given a free ticket, and Gillenwater singled to left, scoring Malsano. Vick then fled out to right and Scott singled to center, scoring Schultz. Manager Bess singled to right to send Gillenwater in for another tally.

To climax the scoring Bess and Scott worked the old double steal. Bess started for second, stopping middle way. Melchor threw to Koonitz at second to head Bess off while this was being done Scott beat Koonitz's throw in home, and Bess was safe at second.

Durwood Stowe with a triple and a double and Farley with a round-tripper and a single featured at bat for the Greenies, while Schulte, Vick and Scott with two each led the visitors with the winnow.

Tarboro Serpents In 1-0 Loss to Goldsboro

Tarboro.—Tarboro and Goldsboro battled for the Coastal Plain title at a new venue—and Goldsboro won. Tar Bugs gained the verdict in a 1-0 battle featured as fine hurling of Goldsboro's Elott and Tarboro's Hantz and marred by frequent debates resulting from the decisions—and the decisions of Umpires Co. Pitt and Cotrell.

Hantz held the Bugs to a pair of hits, but one of these served to drive an late game's lone run. It happened in the second—Adamek walked to start the inning, advanced to second on a wild pitch, and scored on Co. Pitt's hit into center.

The other Bug hit came in the sixth—Balla fast up, singled. The other Bug hit popped up.

The umpires were in the limelight—and on the spot often in the second. Umpire Cotrell called Jarvis safe on a play at first following a slide. Manager Fred Henry of Tarboro voiced objections; Lare was debate called. The umpire finished his mind, ruled Jarvis out. Henry had been banished from the game in the meantime. Manager Clarence Roper of Goldsboro said notice that he was playing the game under protest.

In the eighth inning, Tarboro did lots of kicking on a somewhat similar play which went against the home club. With one out in the eighth, Carman and Ware singled. Rimmer hit to second—base. In Powell—on the play at first, Rimmer was called out. The locals contended that First—base man Ignazak had juggled the ball, but Umpire Cotrell stuck to his decision. Pizolato then fled out to end the inning.

BEST 'CLUTCH HITTER' IN 27th SEASON

Denver (AP)—Ask the average Denver fan his pick as the most dangerous "clutch hitter" in local semi-professional circles and he probably will name "Judy" Cline, now starting his 27th season of ball.

Cline is still a better than 300 water and an outfielder who can catch and get 'em. He played his first sandlot baseball as a boy of 11.

Despite his ability and his love of the game Cline never tried to land a berth with a professional league team, except for emergency duty with the Denver Bears in the Western league.

Monk Joyner's Aces Defeat Bears, 11 to 8

New Bern.—Homers, hooks and hysterics featured Wednesday afternoon's Ayden—New Bern game, a contest in which Monk Joyner's visiting Aces took an 11-8 decision.

Corrado Mullinax, and Miller furnished the homers; Corrado, Black, and Floria furnished the hooks; several hundred disgruntled fans offered the hysterics.

The hooks came in the eighth. Girard Corrado, who had hit two-run homers in the first and sixth, came up with two out in the eighth. One of Floria's pitches caught Corrado in the side. Corrado stomped towards the mound and was met by Floria, who threw his left to Corrado's noddle. Players, fans, and policemen soon were milling on the diamond. Left-Fielder Black of the Bruins came racing in and managed to get a poke at the Corrado countenance before Messrs. Floria, Corrado, and Black were ordered from the game.

In the junior league the Sinclair team has led throughout the season, and as yet have their first game to lose. White and Hodges and Gulf are tied for second place.

PIG TURNS WHITE FROM FRIGHT

Austin, Tex. (AP)—Calvin Hughes, a dairyman, has a pig which he says turned white overnight.

The best explanation is that lightning struck an object near the animal—which like its brothers and sisters was coal black—and he turned white with fright.

HE CAN TAKE IT. Although 2,300 volts of electricity passed through the body of R. C. Banks of Atlanta, he miraculously escaped death. The state uses the same charge for electrocutions.

Williamston Martins Drop Game To Billies

Snow Hill.—Snow Hill Billies rolled up a 13-1 win Wednesday, over their cousins from Williamston.

The contest was the sixth meeting of the teams this season—and the victory was the Billies' fourth in a row over Art Hauger's boys. The Martins won the first two games between the clubs.

Emil Zak pitched four-hit ball for Snow Hill, and the Martins' lone tally was unearned—the result of an error and Lakotas' triple.

Singles by Bistoff and Soufas were mixed with an error for the first of three Snow Hill runs: in the third, Zak doubled to send in the others. That inning produced more runs than Zak needed for a win.

Lakotas accounted for half of the visitors' hits. Harry Soufas, back in action after an enforced lay-off because of an ankle injury, hit three for three to lead the Billies.

Joe Bistoff, Snow Hill catcher, homered with one on in the eighth—It was his tenth homer of the season.

TRAILER DROPT ARRIVES
UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Nashua, Ia. (AP)—Six-foot D. P. Stuart bumped his head in the process, but he delivered the first trailer baby born in Iowa.

Dr. Stuart, crouched in the narrow, low-ceilinged trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton White, found that the gas stove would not work and had to procure an oil stove to heat water. Every time he raised his head, it bumped against the ceiling.

But Dr. Stuart conquered these obstacles and brought Dr. A. Francis White into the world in the 7-15-16-foot traveling home.

"I asked them afterwards why they didn't drive the trailer up to my office and use it as a maternity hospital," Dr. Stuart said, "it would have been a lot easier."

TO PUT BRAKES ON PERSONS BELIEVED 'LEGGING' WHISKEY

State Liquor Board Announces Aim to "Spot" Illegal Dealers Through Large Purchases

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, June 10.—Excessive sales of liquor to individuals suspected of buying the liquor for re-sale, especially if purchased entirely in pints, is going to be prohibited by the state liquor control board under additional rules and regulations now being prepared, Chairman Cutler Moore said today.

For while the law does not specify the amount, which any one person may buy at any one time from a liquor store, clerks and store managers can soon "spot" purchasers they believe to be buying liquor for bootlegging purposes from those who are buying it for their own use, Moore said.

"If a person comes into a store and buys four or even eight quarts of liquor, in quart bottles, it is a 100 to 1 bet that he is buying this liquor for his own use, since bootleggers hardly ever buy anything larger than a pint, since they can make a bigger profit selling pints than quarts," Chairman Moore said.

"But if a person comes into a liquor store every few days and buys from 10 to 15 pints at a time, it is a safe bet that he is buying this liquor to bootleg either in nearby 'dry' counties or after the legal liquor stores are closed. These are the fellows we are going after."

There has been some disagreement as to whether the stores should refuse to sell to these persons believed to be buying it for bootlegging purposes, or whether to sell to them, and then report the sales to the law enforcement officers and have them watched and arrested if they attempt to bootleg it. But Chairman Moore is convinced that the liquor stores should refuse to sell liquor to persons believed to be buying it for re-sale purposes. P. Webb Williams, board member from Elizabeth City, maintains that if the bootleggers are not allowed to buy it from the liquor stores they will buy it from Virginia, South Carolina or from the bootlegging trucks of wholesalers which supply the bootleg trade in the state. He maintains the thing to do is to sell to these people; but watch them carefully and arrest them if they try to bootleg any of it.

Patrolmen Arrest Many On Charges Of Driving Drunk

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, June 10.—A total of 303 drunken drivers were arrested by highway patrolmen during the month of May, according to figures released today by Captain Charles D. Farmer, commander of the patrol. This number is slightly higher than in April when 280 were arrested for drunken driving. In March 294 were arrested for driving while tipsy.

Arrests for all violations in May numbered 3,331, the consolidated reports for all highway patrol districts shows, while a total of 25,077 motor vehicles were stopped and inspected by patrolmen. Tickets for defective lights were issued to 1,933 drivers and warnings issued to 6,793 drivers who were stopped for minor violations. Patrolmen also stopped and examined the drivers licenses of 10,548 drivers.

Highway patrolmen also stopped and weighed 2,235 trucks and found 116 overloaded, recovered 22 stolen automobiles, investigated 814 complaints and investigated 184 accidents in which 29 persons were killed and 156 injured, the report shows.

"Equipment tickets", showing faulty equipment on cars, were issued to 2,199 drivers and lights were corrected on 13,365 cars. Court-tesies were extended to 2,083 motorists in need of aid or assistance along the highways. Patrolmen also examined 9,801 applicants for drivers' license and approved their applications.

Out of 2,887 persons arrested by patrolmen and tried during the month of May, 2,831 were convicted and only 56 found not guilty, the report shows.

The total in fines, costs and property recovered by patrolmen during May amounted to $69,901, divided as follows: value of property recovered, $19,395; total in fines imposed, $31,000; total costs imposed, $19,506.

A still better showing is expected to be made by the patrolmen when

College which call for extensive changes and improvements along many lines were revealed today in an announcement by Dr. D. E. Earnhardt, President of the Institution.

These plans are to be carried out during the summer months and when completed by the opening of school in September will provide better facilities and an improved and enlarged service along many lines.

These plans include a poultry farm, a dairy farm and a swine farm, and they call for the addition of dormitory space, the construction of an auditorium and a gymnasium for girls, the extension of courses in Industrial Arts for boys, the addition of courses in the same subject for girls, the inauguration of an intra-mural sports program and the enlargement of quarters for the Home Economics department.

Local citizens have contributed several plots of land for use in developing the stock farms. One local individual has donated the use of twelve acres of land for the development of the hog farm and it is planned to raise about 400 hogs each year which will be sufficient to take care of the needs of the college.

RED HAIR'S NO SIGN OF TEMPER, SAYS PROFESSOR

Austin, Tex. (AP)—The popular belief that persons with red hair have a temper is discounted by Dr. D. B. Klein, professor of psychology at the University of Texas.

"No relation has been worked out yet between a certain characteristic and a give noddy trait," he says.

"The average person may remember only the outstanding examples when he forms an opinion. The belief that a person with red hair has a bad temper is a popular one. No doubt every person can think of an example among people he has known. We tend to forget the ones with mild tempers and remember only the hot-headed ones."
