Surrenders to Charge of Possessing Ex- plosive Devices

CHARGES FILED RESULT OF RIOT

Inland Steel Plant at East Chicago, Ind., Peacefully Resumes Activities

Warren, O., July 1.—(AP)—Gus Hill, Warren-Niles district CIO organizer, surrendered to police today on a charge of unlawful possession of explosive devices in connection with disorders in the steel strike.

Hill, who was accompanied by Lee Pressman, C. I. O. general counsel, waived preliminary examination before municipal Judge Ralph Speck and was bound to the grand jury under $50,000 bond. Pressman said he could not say whether bond would be given Sidney Watkins, 29, arrested yesterday, was arraigned on the same charge today. Hill's arrest brought to five the number now in jail as result of police investigation of steel strike dynamite.

East Chicago, Ind., July 1.—(AP)—Inland Steel's plant here peacefully reopened today under truce announced by Governor Clifford Townsend of Indiana.

Thousands of workers walked through the gates in the first troupe-tree opening of a steel mill since the Great Lakes strike was launched May 26.

The mills of the Mahoning Valley in Ohio hummed at what company officials said was at near capacity, but Ohio National guardsmen remained to see that there was no disorder.

The Bessemer converters turned the night sky red over the Youngstown steel mill district nearby today for the first time since the strike was launched against four independent producers, Republic Steel corporation, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and Bethlehem steel were affected.

Elsewhere the long strike front was quiet.

Board of Health Conducts Program At Cape Hatteras

Rehabilitation Work Being Carried On At Village Overlooking 'Grave- yard of the Atlantic'

Raleigh, July 1.—Inhabitants of the village of Hatteras, overlooking the "graveyard of the Atlantic," look on as last September was a year that "it may never happen again," but the storm that filled their wells with salt water, washed away many of their homes and brought on unsanitary conditions, may have been a blessing in disguise.

At any rate, it has resulted in a rehabilitation program which will insure the fisherfolk against any outbreaks of preventable diseases and, at the same time, demonstrates the part the State Board of Health is playing in extending its aid to communities by affording them protection in crises such as these.

Cooperation of the United States, Public Health Service, the American Red Cross and the WPA were secured by Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, State Health Officer, who has just announced that complete rehabilitation of the damaged section is an accomplished fact, citing especially the erection of 150 modern privies, at a labor cost of $2,456.35. The material, he pointed out, was furnished by the Red Cross, the labor by the WPA, and supervision by the health authorities, with B. L. Jessup, whose headquarters are in the State Board of Health Building, at Raleigh, in charge of the project from a sanitary standpoint.

"It was very difficult to get some of the material to its final destination," Mr. Jessup said, "due to the fact that it had to be taken from the large boats on which it was originally loaded and transferred to others of lighter draft. Then it was necessary, after it was placed on land, to transport it by hand. Then it was necessary, after it was placed on land, to transport it by hand. This was a tedious process, but the project was recognized as an important one, and it had to be done."

In all, there were 150 privies built at the following points in the Cape Hatteras vicinity: Avon, 25; Buxton, 25; Erisco, 15; Hatteras, 45; Rodanthe, 10; South Rodanthe, 8; Solom, 12.

Practical work on the part of the health authorities and cooperating agencies undoubtedly prevented serious trouble in the way of possible epidemics growing out of unsanitary conditions, Dr. Reynolds declared.

U. S. To Continue Monetary Treaty With Two Powers

Tri-Power Agreement with France and Great Britain To Be Continued Despite Finan- cial Crisis in Paris

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced today the tri-power monetary agreement would be continued despite the financial crisis in France.

Calling reporters to an early morning press conference, the treasury secretary made public a communication to Georges Bonnet, French finance minister, saying this country looks forward to "a continuation of close cooperation between our treasuries under the Tri-Partite declaration."

The monetary understanding affected last September by Great Britain, France and the United States pledges participating nations to use stabilization funds to prevent sharp fluctuations in international exchange.

The stabilization funds buy and sell currency to raise or lower its value and maintains steady money relationship.

Morgenthau said he had been in constant touch with British and French financial authorities during the French crisis.

Morgenthau told reporters there had been "no changes in any technical arrangements under the agreement."

This statement indicated participating nations would continue to permit the free movement of gold between their central banks and stabilization funds.

Armed Clash Occurs On Russo-Japanese Border

Five More Soviet Gun Boats Reported On Amur River

Tokyo, July 1.—(AP)—Japanese reports said tonight five more Soviet gunboats had appeared today at Semulau Island, in the Amur river, where an alleged "Soviet invasion" has led to an armed clash between the Russian river craft and Japanese-Manchoukuo border artillery.

Earlier in the day Emperor Hirohito called upon high defense heads for the facts in the Russo-Japanese crisis after a Japanese cabinet decision that only the immediate withdrawal of Soviet fighters and gunboats from the disputed Amur borderlands could effect a peaceful settlement.

In an uneasy atmosphere of official silence, indicating a ban on dispatches from the trouble zone that lies between Soviet Siberia and Japanese-sponsored Manchoukuo, the armies of Japan and the so-called "puppet state" were announced to be prepared for any eventuality.

From both sides of the frontier came reports of massed troop movements following a naval-artillery burst of violence—some Japanese newspaper divisions said the Soviets had mobilized 300,000 men in 13 divisions of their vast Far Eastern Red army, supported by planes, armored cars and trucks.

SENATE VOTES ADOPT REPORT ON ARMY BILL

Deadlock Over Ap- propriation Measure Finally Broken

INTERIOR DEPT. FUND ALLOTTED

Pass Measure to Pro- vide Funds Operate Until Roosevelt Has Signed Two Bills

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Congress virtually completed action today on two major appropriation bills left pending when the fiscal year ended last midnight.

A House-Senate deadlock was broken when the Senate agreed to a conference report on the $449,000,000 army appropriation and sent it to the White House without the appropriation for the War Department's non-military activities.

It had approved a few minutes earlier a conference report on the Interior Department Appropriation bill, carrying about $135,000,000. The House was expected to approve that report during the day.

The Senate also completed Congressional action on a $449,000,000 appropriation bill for the CCC, the Railroad Retirement Board and other agencies which were not included in the regular supply bill. This measure was forwarded quickly to the White House.

Approval also was given by the Senate to a measure continuing until July 15 former appropriations for the Interior and War Departments which will permit them to operate until President Roosevelt signs the two appropriations bills.

Later the Senate passed and sent back to the House the non-military appropriations bill for the War Department carrying a total of about $247,000,000.

This bill carried virtually the same appropriations for flood control as contained in the original army bill passed by the Senate—outright cash authorizations of $105,000,000 and contract authorization totalling $45,000,000.

Additional Funds Provided For N. C. Labor Department

Allotment of Extra $15,000 to Be Used in Employing Personnel to Enforce New Statutes

Raleigh, July 1.—An allotment of $15,000 for the State Department of Labor with which to supplement the budget provided by the 1937 general assembly, has been approved by Governor Clyde R. Hoey and the Council of State and will be used to employ a larger personnel for the enforcement of laws enacted by the general assembly but for the enforcement of which no appropriation was provided. It is understood that this allotment will be used to increase the number of factory inspectors and inspectors for mercantile establishments in the enforcement of the new laws regulating working hours, which go into effect today.

Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher more than a week ago submitted a request to Governor Hoey and the Council of State for an additional allotment of $20,500 for the enforcement of these new laws. This was generally regarded as "trading figures," however, with the result that the $15,000 allotted is expected to be sufficient to do most of the things Commissioner Fletcher had outlined.

The additional inspectors and personnel which will be added with this additional allotment will be used in enforcing the new laws regulating working hours and the ages of workers, as follows:

The law limiting the work week of women employed in industry or in mercantile establishments to 48 hours and not more than eight hours a day.

The law limiting the work week of men employed in industry to 56 hours a week and not more than ten hours a day.

FENCE POST FARMS THRIVE IN WEST

Walla Walla, Wash. (AP) — "Remember the fence posts" has become an important axiom in the lumber-producing Pacific northwest.

Experts have determined 88,000,000 board feet of lumber are used each year in replacing fence posts in Washington and Oregon alone. In states where farms are smaller, the annual fence post consumption is much larger.

Lumber companies have established several "post farms" near here to test various methods of treating posts to withstand weather and insects.

Governor Hoey, long an exponent of national advertising of North Carolina's multitudinous natural and man-made advantages, will speak extemporaneously, although he has had the material for his address under minute consideration for a long time. The Governor, who has not indicated the exact trend his remarks will take, promises his listeners several surprises in connection with the enterprise.

Stations broadcasting the Governor's address will be WSOC, Charlotte, the originating station; WDNC, Durham; WPTF, Raleigh; WWNC, Asheville; WSJS, Winston-Salem; WPTC, Kinston; and WBIG Greensboro. All line tolls will be absorbed by Station WPTF and all participating stations are contributing their time and facilities free of charge.

Announcement that Governor Hoey will speak Friday evening has aroused wide interest throughout the state as his address will be the opening gun in the campaign designed to advertise North Carolina to the world as an ideal place in which to spend a vacation or to live permanently.

Four members of the Board—J. L. Horne, Jr., Rocky Mount, chairman; J. P. Rawley, High Point; Sanford Martin, Winston-Salem; and Coleman W. Roberts, Charlotte—form the advertising committee.

Marriage Licenses In Month June Total 38

Although June is regarded as the month of brides, licenses issued in the offices of the Pitt county Register of Deeds during that period would indicate that Cupid fell down on the job.

Only 38 licenses were issued during the month, below the average for the first six months of the year, during which time a total of 273 couples secured licenses to marry. The 38 licenses were divided equally between white and colored couples, 19 having been issued to members of each race.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NEVAUD

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon's last ranch house and barn burn, Josh Hastings—who wants to buy the ranch and marry Kay—invites her to the Flying Six. She refuses, distracting him, but going sister Babs and Aunt Kate go. Kay plans to rebuild, but the insurance money goes to the mortgage. Ted Connor, a puncher Kay hired impulsively, stirs the outfit to cut its own timber and rebuild without pay. She is on her way to buy the only available timber land when a Hastings puncher lass who, leaving her roped on the mesa. Meanwhile Ted decides to get an option on the timber for Kay.

Chapter 14

At Old Man Warren's

RIDING in to Red River over the same route that Kay and he had taken that morning, Ted's thoughts of Kay were so absorbing that the time passed almost as quickly as it had in her actual company.

It seemed impossible that he had known Kay only about 24 hours! Because of that meeting, which might have had such a different ending if anyone but Kay had found him, that act of desperation, his whole outlook on life was changed.

Just the relief of knowing that his mother and sister had a home to come to was enough to make a new man of him. But added to that the thought that he was to be near Kay, helping her and planning for her, opened up untold vistas of magic hopes.

Easily finding Old Man Warren's shack, Ted knocked on the door. After a moment it was pulled open, and he found himself facing the grizzled old prospector, who eyed him with suspicious surprise.

"What do you want?" he demanded.

"I wanted to see you about buying some of that timber land you hold on the south ridge of the Bitter Root," Ted answered. It was all he could do to keep from laughing aloud at the comical change that altered Old Man Warren's fierce expression.

"What's that?" he asked, his face screwed up and his eyes squinted as though he doubted the evidence of his senses. "What'd you say?"

Ted repeated his words.

"Gosh Halifax Almighty!" The prospector opened the door wide, and pulled Ted in, hastily closing it behind him. "I sure never thought I'd live to hear that! Yuh got any real money?" He blinked suspiciously.

"I've $25 to say I'm in earnest," Ted answered. "I'm offering you $100 for 10 acres and an option on another 10 at the same price. And I'm ready to pay that 25 right now on deposit."

"Say, young fella, what's yuh game?" Old Man Warren demanded. "Yuh been prospectin' up there?"

Ted laughed. "No. That's out of my line. I don't want it for myself. I'm buying it for Kay Crandon."

Old Man Warren's suspicious little eyes screwed up still more. "What's she after? Started already to have a fling with her insurance money?"

"Maybe," Ted gladly let his host put his own interpretation on Kay's purpose. The less he guessed Kay's vital need for the property the better.

"Well, if she wants it that bad, strikes me she'll pay more, now that she's got all that money to sling around," the old prospector announced with cunning. "You tell her I ain't selling for a mite less than $20 an acre."

Ted turned carelessly toward the door. "No point telling her that," he observed. "There's plenty of timberland to be bought at $10 an acre and even less. I'll just pick it up somewhere else without bothering you any more. Kay thought you'd like to sell and told me to give you the first chance." He pulled open the door. "So long."

"Hi, there! Wait a minute! Yuh don't need to be in such a doggone rush! I didn't say I wouldn't sell, did I?" Old Man Warren pulled him back. "Have it yuhr own way," he capitulated, adding greedily. "Where's the 25 bucks?"

"We'll get this down in black and white first." Ted sat down at the rough pine-board table and drew up a memorandum of the transaction, which Old Man Warren signed.

An Optical Illusion?

"HERE you are," Ted handed him the money and put the precious memorandum in his pocket, smiling as he watched the old prospector count it over with loving care. "You're well rid of it," he observed as he turned to the door again. "Buyers aren't any too plentiful these days."

Old Man Warren nodded impatiently, but made no response as he started to count his unexpected wealth again.

With a "So long" that was accepted this time, Ted went out and mounted his horse, well satisfied with his afternoon's work.

Going back at a more leisurely pace, he was about five miles west of Red River, when the misted far off in the distance a dark object that looked like someone on foot. He reined in and scanned the horizon to confirm his impression, but he could see nothing. Telling himself it was an optical illusion, he dismissed the incident from his mind and pushed on to the Lazy Nine.

The bunk house, he found deserted. Standing a moment on the steps, he turned over in his mind the question of waiting until someone came in off the range to deliver the document to him for Kay, or just leaving it with a note for Seth.

It was a great temptation to wait until Kay came back and give it to her himself. He could just see her eyes sparkle and her nose crinkle up with amusement, when she heard of Old Man Warren's attempt at bargaining.

On the other hand, he ought to be starting for home as soon as possible. As it was, he'd have to ride all night before reaching Blackfoot creek.

Suddenly he heard pounding hoof beats, and the next minute Flicker came in sight, riderless. His reins were dragging and his ears back as he headed on a dead run for the corral.

With a fearful certainty that something had happened to Kay, Ted leaped down the bunk house steps and threw himself into the saddle of his waiting mount, everything forgotten but Kay's safety.

A flash of memory recalled that impression he had had of seeing some one on foot far to the north of him as he rode out from Red River. Was it possible that Kay had had the same hunch he had had about getting the option at once and that she had ridden in to Red River? And that some accident had happened on the way?

Ted cursed himself for not having investigated then and there, and headed off at a hard gallop in the general direction of the place where he had thought he had glimpsed that figure.

Galvanized To Action

LEFT to herself, Kay sank back and gave way for a moment to the weak, dizzy feeling that closed over her.

In her half-conscious state she could hear the retreating hoofbeats of Scrap Johnson's horse grow dimmer and dimmer. Finally they died away. The unbroken stillness of the mesa deepened around her and seemed to drag her into its own oblivion.

Fighting down the temptation to let go and drift into it, Kay struggled into a sitting position.

Her jaws ached cruelly under the tightly-tied bandanna, and her legs and arms were unbearably cramped from their forced confinement. But, bad as the physical pain and discomfort was, it was far less than her mental anguish.

She hadn't a doubt but that all her plans for rebuilding had come to nothing. Worse than that, it was practically a foregone conclusion that Josh Hastings would eventually get the ranch.

For the first time, Kay admitted to herself that he was too powerful and unscrupulous for her to fight successfully. Even though her mind recognized this fact, she found hope still persisting.

She realized that that hope centered around Ted Gaylor. Somehow or other, he might get around this last blow, that she had so stupidly brought on herself.

Despite her effort to thrust the thought of Scrap Johnson into the background of her mind and to cling to the conviction that he wouldn't dare do her any actual harm, a shudder ran over Kay at the thought of his return.

He had all the instincts of a bully, and he had shown himself capable of sickening revenge for the wounds she had inflicted to his vanity.

Her lips burned at the memory of his kiss, and panic seized her as she realized how powerless she was in his hands. Even if he didn't do her any actual harm, she would never get over the sense of degradation that he could drag her down to.

Galvanized to action by this desperate thought, Kay forgot the ranch and everything else in the surge of self preservation that swept over her. She rolled over and struggled up to her knees.

The incline of the coulee behind her shut her off from a view of the range, and ruined any chance of her discovery by any passer-by. Not that there was likely to be any one, but it was a hundred to one chance.

Some way or other, she must get up there. Her courage revived with the prospect of an immediate objective to be obtained. Kay gazed piercingly about for some sharp stone on which she might saw through her bonds. She could see nothing but small stones and pebbles scattered through the bunch grass of the mesa. Her heart sank.

BEAN BEETLES CAUSE DAMAGE

Form Serious Threat To Gardens and Truck Farms

Raleigh, July 1.—Mexican bean beetles, serious menace to the beans of North Carolina gardens and truck farms, can be eradicated with be sure the spray reaches the underside of the leaves, Rowell station entomologist at State College. This material, he said, is deadly to the beetles but harmless to human beings.

When beetles are found on the beans, or when egg clusters are found on the underside of the leaves, he recommends spraying or dusting with finely ground derris or cube root which contain rotenone. For a spray, the dust should contain 4 percent rotenone. Mix 1 1/2 pounds of dust with 50 gallons of water, or for smaller amounts 1 1/2 ounces of dust to 3 gallons of water. Spray the plants thoroughly, using 90 to 100 gallons per acre, and Repeat the dusting or spraying every few days until the beetles have been eradicated. Rowell warned against using calcium arsenate or arsenic of lead, as these materials may injure the plants.

Growers who have dusting equipment can get good results by dusting on a finely ground derris or cube root containing 3-4 of one per cent rotenone.

Apply the dust at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds per acre of snap of bush beans, making sure that the dust settles on the underside of the leaves as well as the rest of the plant.

Rotenone dust mixtures should not be used in a spray unless the label on the package indicates that a diluent has been used that will mix readily with water.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington - Tom Girdler of Republic Steel did not add to the hope for industrial peace when he told a senate committee that he would not sign a treaty of peace with C. I. O. until he is compelled by law, and would fight the law all the way up to the Supreme Court.

His statement took its place in the committee record beside a statement of Phillip Murray, head of the Steel Workers organizing committee, that Girdler and Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel were "outlaws."

That, briefly, is the record in the case. Girdler says he distrusts John L. Lewis. That prominent labor leader, Girdler says, is violent and irresponsible. He added, for good measure, that Murray was a liar.

Now isn't it a grand day when each side in a labor dispute thinks the other is violent and irresponsible or possessed of all the criminal traits of Jesse James?

It is a curious condition, bad for workers and bad for the industry and there is no law that can be enacted that will overcome the existence of such distrust. Perhaps Al Smith had the right idea when he suggested that, one of the best treatments is time, and that after their rights are summed up.

The country was almost incredulous when Big Steel capitulated to the Lewis forces without more than a preliminary scuffle. C. I. O. then began its drive for an agreement with Little Steel, of which Girdler's Republic Steel is one element.

It is hazardous a guess without too much support that meeting the wage levels set for Big Steel is proving somewhat of a competitive burden on Little Steel. Big Steel, traditionally strong and better able to bear high labor costs, wouldn't necessarily mourn for Little Steel, in such a case.

Concededly, that is looking with a fishy eye on the action of Big Steel in leading the way in that industry toward higher pay and shorter hours in agreement with organized labor, but stranger things have happened on this steamy planet.

When Girdler appeared before the senate post office committee, he declined, with a quite affable smile, to talk to newspapermen. Nevertheless, we asked him, point blank, if the competition of Big Steel had anything to do with his refusing to bind himself to a contract with C. I. O.

Girdler replied politely: "I'm sorry, but I just don't want to talk."

GAINS IN JOBS AND SALES SHOWN IN FIRST HALF '37

Industrial statistics made cheerful reading during the period. Steel operations ran up to the spring peak of 92.3 per cent of capacity in the week of April 17.

Motor output hit a high of around 142,000 units in the week of May 15, then slackened with the approach of summer.

Electric power production held well above the 2,000,000,000 kilowatt-hour weekly mark throughout the period, but the margin of gain over 1936 was reduced during the spring.

Freight carloadings pushed up to around 860,000 cars a week and gave promise of a fall high of approximately 900,000, traffic experts said.

The piling up of orders along the manufacturing and industrial front, together with the accumulation of improved profits, spurred construction. Of prime importance, experts said, was the faster movement of private dollars into engineering construction projects.

The pulse of home building quickened, absorbing workers and raw materials. High hopes had been pinned on this field, a lagged in the recovery march. Signs of revival brought predictions of a major contribution to general business.

But residential building in the spring fell short of estimates, perhaps because of higher building material costs and wages.

Governors Carry The Hod

(By the AP Feature Service)

State governors still carry the burden of industrial strife although the revolutionary new labor legislation is a federal product. Here's why:

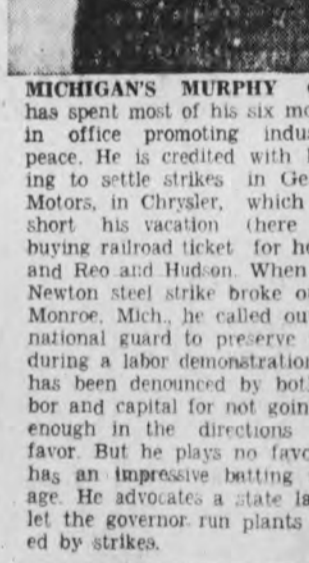

- 1.—When opinion differs as to what government agency should take charge, the one nearest at hand must get busy to run the risk of criticism. 2.—The U. S. Labor department has fewer than 30 trained conciliators. 3.—It is a federal policy to call in local mediators wherever possible on the theory they are more effective.

Meet a trio of governors thrown into prominence by labor troubles:

OHIO'S DAVEY (right) studiously sidestepped intervention in labor disputes until the eruption of the state's worst steel strike since 1919. One of his campaign points was that he never had sent militiamen into strike centers. Recently he did order the troops to service at Youngstown. Previously he had called the warring groups into conference—Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube on one side, the Steel Workers Organizing Committee on the other—and presented two settlement formulas. These falling, he appealed to President Roosevelt for Federal intervention. A federal mediation board was subsequently appointed.

MICHIGAN'S MURPHY (left) has spent most of his six months in office promoting industrial peace. He is credited with helping to settle strikes in General Motors, in Chrysler, which cut short his vacation (here he is buying railroad ticket for home), and in the Newton steel strike broke out in Monroe, Mich. He called out the national guard to preserve order during a labor demonstration. He has been denounced by both labor and capital for not going far enough in the directions they favor. But he plays no favorites, has an impressive betting average. He advocates a state law to let the governor run plants closed by strikes.

PENNSYLVANIA'S EARLE (right) kept in close touch with labor troubles in his state but until recently steered clear of intervention. He made a study of the anthracite fields, disturbed for several years by the activities of "coal bootleggers," and he promised to investigate the riot at the Hershey chocolate plant. With the steel strikes, he made a dramatic entrance into the labor-capital warfare, invoking a modified form of martial law for Johnstown. He argued that unless Bethlehem Steel ceased operations at its big plant there, bloodshed might result. When the company disagreed, state police forced a shutdown.

BUSINESS BETTER IN STATE THIS YEAR THAN IN 1929

(Continued from page one) until this year has been the high water mark of income tax collections. For after making adjustments allowing for the higher rate of income tax now as compared with 1929, this year's volume is still greater than the 1929 volume and it spread more evenly among all the industries in the state, showing that on the whole all of the industries were more prosperous last year than in 1929. This is especially noteworthy and unusual since it is not the case over the nation as a whole when judged by the Federal income tax returns.

Commissioner Maxwell made the observation that this year's tax returns certainly do not indicate that President Roosevelt and the "New Deal" are retarding business and "ruining the country," as the Republicans and some anti-New Deal Democrats have been maintaining.

Retail business has also been good this past year. Commissioner Maxwell pointed out, since the sales tax collections amounted to $11,325,661 as compared with $10,484,301 the previous year. The 1937 sales tax collections indicate that the 3 per cent retail sales tax was actually collected and paid into the state treasury on retail sales amounting to $388,847,696. It is conservatively estimated that gross retail sales, including those on which no sales tax is due or was collected, amounted to well over $400,000,000 while some think that if this figure included the buildings trades and the sale of building materials which last year were not taxable under the sales tax but which will be taxable beginning today, the figure would exceed $500,000,000.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey and Assistant Director of the Budget Robert G. Deyton were much pleased at the collections totals, but were not yet ready to make any estimate as to the probable size of the state's credit balance, or surplus of revenue over expenditures. But this surplus is expected to amount to at least $5,000,000, if not more, despite heavy expenditures authorized by the last general assembly from the old funds.

For the second time in two days play in the Coastal Plain loop has been washed out except for two games, and both of these were won by forfeit. Williamston's Martins failed to show up at game time in Snow Hill yesterday and as a result the game was declared forfeited to the Billies by the umpire.

Greenville's Greens meet Art Hauger's Martins today at Third Street Stadium. If the Greens are not rained out today, it will be the first time they have been able to play since Sunday.

Goldsboro, July 1.—Yesterday's Tarboro-Goldsboro game of the Coastal Plain loop was forfeited to Tarboro on a ruling by Umpire Corbett with two out in the home half of the fifth. Tarboro was leading by 3-1, and the forfeit came just after a heavy rain had started falling.

Two men were on bases and the count was 3-and-2 when Corbett forfeited the game. W. L. Rawlings, president of the local club, last night wired J. B. Eare of Ayden, president of the league, asking a hearing on an appeal from the umpire's action in forfeiting the game. Corbett based his forfeiture on a contention that the Goldsboro players were stalling.

With two away in the home half of the fifth, Overton singled to left. Kunis drew a walk. It began to rain as Adamek came to bat. After the count had been worked to 3-and-2, Adamek fouled a pitch—and Catcher Pizzolato dropped the ball. Before Adamek reached the batter's box, Umpire Corbett declared the game forfeited to Tarboro because of Goldsboro's "stalling for time."

Clarence Koper, manager of the Bugs, said after the game that Manager Snake Henry of Tarboro came to the plate "to argue about the foul tip that had been dropped" and told Koper he was going to protest the game. Koper said that Umpire Corbett then remarked: "Snake, you don't have to protest this game, as I'm giving it to Tarboro on a forfeit." Koper also said that the umpire told him: "You are not stalling but your players are. Roper's post-game explanation was that he walked over to Adamek to tell him "to stay in there and try and hit that ball" but Adamek replied he couldn't see the ball because it was too dark.

Tarboro's rallies were made in the second when Rimmer singled, and tallied on a double by Henry. Lehman bunted, and Henry beat the throw to third. Savage's single scored Henry. Myer's single to center sent in the third run of the inning.

SPORT SLANTS

The long line of American milers who have done so much to popularize the 8-furlong race in this country in the past decade appears certain to continue. The Jole Rays, Hahns, Congers, Venkes and Cunningham are likely to go on thrilling the track world.

Gene Venke, one of the most popular figures in track history, appears ready to retire from competition. Pretty well satisfied that the parade is moving along a bit too fast, Gene has had his glory and perhaps more than his share of cool-racing. He had no intention of becoming a "running bum," as he helpfully put it, and is ready to settle down to earning a living.

Running has been good to Venke in many ways. It lifted him from a dull factory job, aided him in getting a college education and gave him an opportunity to see a fair share of the world. He was one athlete who could take defeat in good grace, and that trait endeared him to every track follower.

CONGRESSMEN 'OVERWORKED'

Yet It Would be Hard One Who Wants To Quit Job

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington, July 1—It's a hard life these congressmen lead — to work at 10, or sometimes 9 in the morning, committee sessions or personal correspondence until 12, duty on the floor three to five days a week until four or five. Two hours for lunch.

No wonder they would rather be back home at the church picnic, saying: "Remember you? Of course I remember good old Dave Johannsen from Temple Creek. Not Johannsen? Jones, you say? Why how could I make that mistake? Certainly it's Bill Jones. What did you get for your wheat last fall? Oh, that's right, you're the Grocer Jones. Well, we'll have to be getting better acquainted."

There are tough days in this congressional business, when the hounds from back home are after the member for slipping up on the WPA park project and the White House is bearing down for a loyal vote on the relief bill.

There are days when committee sessions are just plain brain work, correspondence is piled high and every important bill on the calendar seems to come up at once. But such days are rare except toward the very end of the session.

Day in and day out the work never appears especially arduous, $10,000 a year is pretty good salary for office space and well-paid secretaries are supplied by the government.

The average senator need not be envious of Vice President Garner, who decided to get his pressure down by returning to Uvalde for the fishing. Senators can go away for extended stays if they wish — and frequently do.

A few hotly-trotted used to scold at Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan who had a penchant for making a Chautauqua speaking tour occasionally, on company time. But senators do the same, and for pay, too. They usually expect mileage and occasionally a stipend when they are called to New York or French Lick Springs to address the chamber of commerce or the associated pickle workers.

Of course they can be called to back to work on short notice if their fellow senators want to put them on record in a roll call. Some of the elder statesmen remember how the sergeant at arms rounded up senators in droves back in 1913 when President Wilson put the heat on them by keeping congress in session 13 months without a let-up.

But that, again, is a rare impairment of the congressional dignity and likely to arise only if President Roosevelt decides his whole heavy-duty program must be handled this session.

All in all it is nice work and you could count on your fingers the number who would throw it over to get the same income from running a string of filling stations.

VETS TELL TALLEST TALES IN WAR STORY CONTEST

San Angelo, Tex. (AP) — World war veterans are scratching their heads. Those with the best memories will be rewarded.

For the "tallest" true war stories the San Angelo Standard-Times is offering cash prizes of $150, $75 and $25. Possible stories include narrow escapes, comic events or unusual things done in action. Stories must be in the office of the Standard-Times by August 1. Any veteran in any county in Texas will be announced at the Texas American Legion convention here, August 21-24.

PAPER PLANTS TAXING WOODS

Invasion of Mills Leaving Picture of Devastation

Raleigh, July 1—The invasion of pulp and paper mills into Eastern North Carolina may leave farm woods an ugly picture of devastation, R. W. Graeber, extension forster at State College, said today.

Mills now being built will require approximately 3,500 to 4,000 cords daily. North Carolina's share will amount to about 2,000 cords.

Unless the grower adopts a systematic policy of thinning and selective cutting, devastation faces farm woods, Graeber pointed out. Careful harvest will enable the farmer to sell a reasonable amount of timber each year and maintain a growing stand of trees. This will give him a regular crop of timber products year after year.

In an attempt to check wasteful cutting, Graeber has mailed out about 3,000 posters for distribution in 51 eastern counties. The posters, which were prepared by the Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, picture the advantages of cutting timber wisely.

The posters will be distributed by county farm agents of the State College Extension Service, who will place them in store windows filling stations, tobacco warehouses, and other places where the public can see them.

"The pulp and paper mills have made such great demands of forests in some of our north central states that large areas once heavily timbered now lie bare," Graeber declared. "We don't want that to happen in North Carolina."

See $200,000 In Gold

Auburn, Calif. (AP) —People who wonder what a fortune in pure gold would look like got to see at the recent Gold Rush Revival celebration here. Big mines contributed their "cleanups" to an exhibition at a local bank in which the value of the yellow bullion was some $200,000.

The Soviet air force is generally conceded to be numerically superior to that of any European power although some of Russia's 5,000 planes are obsolescent.

The concrete used in the new department of interior building in Washington would make a 5-foot sidewalk from national capital to New York city.

Preliminary estimates indicate that American motorists will pay close to $1,000,000,000 in gasoline taxes during 1937.

The national park service will have 26 vacation camps this summer for children of the lower-income group.

Kentucky's poultry industry is valued at $20,000,000.

IF WAR COMES

These Five Master Minds Will Boss Europe's Armies

IN BRITAIN, the imperial general staff is headed by 62-year-old Sir Cyril Deverell, who was in command of the British 3d division from the battle of the Somme in 1916 until the war ended. Deverell, now a field marshal, was mentioned nine times in dispatches. He also has served in India and as an aide-de-camp general to the king.

IN ITALY, the 65-year-old chief of staff, gray-haired Marshal Pietro Badoglio, is a veteran of five wars. He fought in the first Ethiopian war which ended disastrously for Italy, and went back 39 years later to win the country for Mussolini. In between he made a name for himself in the World and It-Turkish wars.

IN FRANCE, the chief of armies is quiet, athletic-looking General Marie Gustave Gamelin, whose tactical orders in the World war are still cited to student officers as models of clarity and common sense. General Gamelin, who is 64, helped Joffre win the battle of the Marne and later was decorated for success in the S. rian war.

IN RUSSIA, the commissar of war and navy, Klementi E. Voroshilov, had no military training whatsoever until 1918 when he organized a detachment and fought successfully against German forces of occupation. Higher commands came in quick succession. Trim and well built at 56, the commissar often was exiled under the czar.

IN GERMANY, the 56-year-old chief of the reitshwehr, Col. Gen. Werner von Fritsch, used to be a die-hard monarchist. But after the fall of the republic, Von Fritsch, who fought in the World war, frequently expressed loyalty to Hitler and demonstrated his sincerity by leading a "parade of approval" after the blood purge.

SIMPLE OUTFITS NEED SPICE IN ACCESSORIES

NATURAL ORNAMENT
Poppies, daisies, cornflowers and wheat make this evening headpiece designed by Erik of Paris. It is held by a straw band under the curls and finished with a black veil of cornflower blue. Field flowers also trail up the back of the blue taffeta mits.

By ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK (AP)—This story has been culled from notebooks of a dozen smart New Yorkers and the displays of as many Fifth Avenue shops.

It deals with fashion spice — gloves, sashes and clips — which can transform the simplest costume into something on which eyes focus. Most of the ideas cost less than five dollars.

Fruit and vegetables are new accents. A bunch of bright red radishes on a hat, or a cluster of lacquered lemons on a hat, or a bunch of green olives hanging down are excitingly chic.

Costume Jewelry Improves
Costume jewelry is better than it has been in many seasons. A jeweled starfish or a garnet star inset from grandmother make glittering flashes on the top of a calot (skull cap). Lacquered black-armor heads bring a plain neckline to life when one is clipped on either side.

Animal accents are smart. Twin turtles of simulated gold give zip to the lapels of a plain suit. They come in pairs set with gems of contrasting color.

Flowers are here in quantities. A mass of multicolored hybrid blooms gives color to the décolletage of an evening gown; a red carnation can be worn on one lapel of a suit, a white one on the other.

Something On The Head

Something on the head is almost required in the evening. Two pink roses poised just above the forehead, two gardenias thrust in the side of the hair or a topknot of crisp black ribbon anchored on a filmy circular veil are effective.

Gloves must be chosen with care. Washable cotton-suede or string are good for hot days in town. For evening, there is a silk mitt with a splash of flowers up the back.

Sashes have come back. Big ribbon ones tied in the back are smart on frothy evening dresses, colored crepe ones knotted on one side are good on daytime frocks. By contrast, sports belts of colored patent leather are extremely narrow—barely half an inch wide.

"Laundress blue"—the vivid shade of bluing—is a new accent launched in Paris. It is perfect for sashes, handkerchiefs and boutonnières to wear with white, black or gray.

Electrification Program To Depend Upon Interest

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, July 1.—The progress which rural electrification has made in North Carolina during the past two years has been due largely to the interest the people of the state have taken in extending electricity to farms and homes in rural sections and the progress which will be made during the next two years will depend upon the extent to which this interest continues to grow.

Chairman Dudley Bagley of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority said today on the second birthday of this agency.

"While we like to think that we have played some part in the building or authorization of some 6,841 miles of rural electric lines during the two years the authority has been functioning, I can say without hesitation that these miles of rural electric lines, which will serve some 38,887 rural customers, could never have been started, much less completed, but for the interest and cooperation of the people generally over the state," Bagley said. "For the people served by these lines had to convince us, the power companies or the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington that they wanted electricity and were willing to pay a fair price for it, before any of these lines could be built.

"The number of additional miles of lines which will be built during the coming two years is hence dependent entirely on how many rural people who do not now have electricity want it and how much they are willing to do to get it. For rural electrification is not a fixed and definite program, but develops from day to day and from week to week as farm people become more interested and as new and less costly methods of construction are worked out. As more and more rural residents realize that electricity in the country is a necessity and not a luxury, more and more power lines will be built to take care of their needs — and we know that more and more farm, people are coming to this realization every day."

In reviewing the accomplishments of the state rural electrification authority during the first two years of its existence, Chairman Bagley pointed out that of the 6,841 miles of rural lines built or authorized to serve 38,887 rural customers, 4,570 miles had already been constructed. At the present time 442 miles of rural lines are under construction while 1,223 miles have been authorized for construction. A total of 26,321 persons are now getting service from the lines already built, 2,633 will get service from the 442 miles now under construction while 9,633 will be supplied with electric service when the 1,223 miles authorized for construction have been built.

Chairman Bagley pointed out that all of this new construction of rural lines in North Carolina had been accomplished without the expenditure of a single dollar by the state in construction work since the state rural electrification authority is purely a coordinating and promotional body.

"Our principal job has been to find localities where the country people wanted electricity, and then to bring this community in touch with the agency from which they might be able to get electric service in the shortest time and at the lowest cost," Chairman Bagley said. "We have also tried to educate the rural residents and make them see that electricity is a necessity and not a luxury, that all of them could get low rates if all of them would agree to use it."

"Since we believed it was our duty under the law to help a community that wanted electricity to get it in the shortest time possible, consistent with good service and reasonable rates, we have usually contacted the power companies in the immediate territory first to see if they were interested in building the lines," Bagley said. "And in most instances, the power companies have been glad to build the lines when they have been assured of enough users to make it worth while for them to build the lines. In other cases, municipal plants and systems have extended their lines into rural districts, as in Wilton, Nash and Edgecombe counties."

"As a result, power companies have built 3,909 miles of rural lines, have 383 miles under construction and have authorized the building of 946 miles more, at a total cost of $5,396,782 during the past two years. Municipal companies have built 460 miles and have authorized enough more to make a total of 525 miles at a cost of $426,543. The REA in Washington has built only 174 miles, has 22 miles building and has authorized 864 miles more, at a total cost of $1,256,250."

In nine states, boys of 14 and girls of 12 years of age are considered able to give valid consent to marriage. The states are Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Tennessee and Washington.

Price Average Falls To January Level

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Impelled in part by heavy European speculation, commodity prices surged upward in the first quarter of 1937 and fell back in the second, finishing the half-year at approximately opening levels.

The general situation at the start of the year was one of light consumer inventories, unusually production of many staples, running head on into rising industrial and consumer demand.

Higher quotations stemming from this bullish signal were prodded into runaway advances in several products by Britain's announcement of her rearmament program.

This attracted speculators, notably in London and especially in metals. Copper soared to 17 cents a pound from the 11 5-8 quoted on December 31, 1936. Lead boomed to 7 3-4 cents, a 32 per cent jump from the year's opening price; tin swept from 51 3-4 to 67 1-4 cents a pound. The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale commodities climbed from 89.22 per cent of 1926 levels at the first of the year to 98.14 on April 5. This was an advance of 10 per cent and carried the index to the highest point reached since late 1929.

The non-ferrous metal group chalked up the widest gain, 35 per cent at the peak. Other industrial staples, with steel scrap and billets setting the pace, pushed 15 per cent ahead.

Advances in agricultural prices during the first three months averaged 10 per cent. Textiles managed by a slim margin to string along with the majority, while food prices declined 8 per cent.

The speculative frenzy spread from metals to many other industrial raw and finished goods as companies and individual bought heavily against future needs.

The climax was reached during the first week of April. President Roosevelt's warnings that metal prices had risen too high were credited as being the straw that broke the back of the speculative camel.

Some time before this point was reached, however, commodity experts saw signs of the impending downturn.

Prices plummeted. The Associated Press index tumbled almost steadily during the remaining weeks of the first half of the year.

Metals led the decline, the non-ferrous group index dropping 15 per cent. Textiles suffered the second widest break. Cotton cloth fell from a top of 8 1-8 cents a yard to 6 3-4 at the end of June. Weakness in this staple was credited to a top-heavy inventory position, especially in fine goods lines.

Measured by The Associated Press commodity indices, changes in the six-month period found food and textiles down 14 and 11 per cent respectively; metals and livestock 14 per cent higher; industrial staples up 2 per cent.

'Harmless' Firecracker Is One That Usually Kills

Makings of Fourth of July Tragedy Small Boy Plus Match Plus 'Harmless' Firecrackers

(By the AP Feature Service)

CHICAGO—"Harmless" firecrackers in the hands of little children are still the biggest hazard of the Fourth of July.

It was the harmless brand that caused 2,075 of 3,000 accidents studied in 1935 by the Society for the Prevention of blindness.

Nine of those killed were less than five years old; 146 injured were less than five. Altogether, at least 7,738 persons were injured and 30 killed from fireworks.

They're All Dangerous The National Safety Council, discussing the survey, explains that most folks blame high-powered explosives for the accidents they read about. As a matter of fact, the council concludes, the common firecracker is the real villain.

Even sparklers, given to children because of their supposed safety, caused many injuries and at least two deaths.

The society cites these as typical accidents: A policeman shattered his hand so badly that amputation was necessary. He was showing a child how to light a firecracker. A fragment of pin pierced a boy's heart. He had lit a firecracker under a tin can.

One boy was killed and two passersby injured. The lad had dropped a lighted firecracker into an unused gasoline tank—which still contained some gas and vapor.

A war veteran who had been cured of shell shock lashed out and shattered his skull against a lamp post. He had been started by a firecracker thrown at him.

Lighted forecrackers tossed into autos and crowds were found responsible for 1,359 of the 3,000 accidents studied.

How To Attack Problem

PLANTS NEED DARKNESS; IT HELPS 'EM GROW

Washington (AP)—Gangway for auxins!

They're neither typographical errors nor cousins of penguins. They're nothing more or less than the hormones that regulate the growth of all plants, including the grass in your front yard. Science has just discovered that the activity of auxins in stimulating the growth of plants comes principally in the darkness. Therefore darkness is as essential to plant growth as is light.

The discoverers of this strange phenomenon of the plant world are Dr. Earl S. Johnston of the Smithsonian institution and Dr. Paul R. Burkholder of Connecticut college.
