SEN. ROBINSON OPENS DEBATE ON COURT BILL

Says Judges Paid 75 Usually in a State of Decline

DECLARES AIM IS TO FORCE VOTE

Majority Leader Outlines Substitute Proposal and Launches Into Argument

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Democratic Leader Robinson, opening the fight for the administration's judicial reorganization bill, told the senate today judges more than 75 years of age "usually are in a state of physical and mental decline."

As he spoke, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), leader of the opposition to judicial reorganization, emerged from a long White House conference and said he was still opposed to any compromise which would add any justices to the Supreme Court.

Wheeler and Senator Bone (D-Wash.) talked with the President an hour and a half soon after the latter returned from a five-day stay at Hyde Park.

The Montanan declined to go into details, but did say the court bill was discussed. He added, however, the parliamentary situation in the senate would not be affected by the talk.

Sen. Robinson began the senate debate after that chamber had agreed to take the judiciary legislation up for consideration.

The Democratic leader next moved to substitute the original bill submitted by President Roosevelt, the compromise informally offered last week. The substitute would provide for the appointment of new justices at the rate of one each year to supplement those past 75 years of age.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ky.) introduced in the House a companion measure to Robinson's bill.

Before making the motion, the Arkansas had served notice he would use every means available to (Continued on Page Three)

Hints Compromise On Spanish Crisis

London, July 6.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden indicated to the House of Commons today a possible compromise in Europe's Spanish neutrality deadlock, saying the British would consider "any other proposals which are just as fair."

The deadlock found Britain and France on one side and Germany and Italy on the other, unable to agree on methods to continue future attempts to maintain a neutral patrol of the Spanish coast.

Belligerent Senator Probes Fatal Riot

Testimony of a Chicago police official that policemen were probably firing in the air to intimidate the mob brought this gesture from Chairman LaFollette of the Civil Liberties Committee at a session of the Washington investigation of the Chicago Memorial Day strike riot. The Senator had produced a picture showing policemen with guns drawn.

WEED GROWERS BEGIN CURING

This Week to See Process in Full Swing Over County

Tobacco curing is in full swing in Pitt and surrounding counties this week and indications continue to point to a good crop, both as to quality and quantity.

Hundreds of farmers are curing the weed this week. A few cured some last week and reported "excellent" results.

Eastern Carolina markets will open on Thursday, August 28. Farmers are encouraged over the outlook for this year. Indications are that prices will be good due to increased consumption both abroad and at home.

The crops in this section are regarded as the best to be found anywhere. Tobaccoists have declared they are advising their customers to this effect and the prices on the Greenville market are expected to be among the best to be paid any place this season.

Farmers also are expecting a good crop as to quantity, despite the fact there was much talk of a shortage of plants in the spring. Some crops have been damaged or ruined by hail and wind, but this loss has not been as heavy as last year when several sections in and near the county suffered heavy damage.

With farmers in the midst of curing this week, there is expected to be plenty of tobacco ready for auction when the markets open, less than two months from now.

New School Commission Meets General Approval

Reflector Bureau. By J. C. BASKERVILLE. Raleigh, July 6.—While the State School Commission appointments made by Governor Clyde R. Hoey last week are generally regarded as being much more of a victory for the school commission rather than for State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin and his "die hard" faction which for years opposed the school commission, the general reaction to the appointments has been favorable, according to most comment heard here. For while nine members of the old school commission were reappointed, the conservative school forces are pleased at the appointment of Jule B. Warren, executive secretary of the North Carolina Education Association, as one of the two new members and have no objection to Archie C. Gay, former state senator from Northampton county, who is the new member of the commission from the Second Congressional District.

With nine of the former members of the commission reappointed, there is no doubt that the same policies and principles which have prevailed in the commission from the outset with regard to the financial control of the public schools will continue. For with three members of the old commission regarded as extremely friendly to the conservative school bloc, and with Warren and Superintendent Erwin added to them, this group can muster only five votes as compared with the seven to nine votes which the other group can muster, since indications are that Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton and State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson, ex officio members of the Commission, are more likely to vote with the liberal bloc than with the conservative group. So Superintendent Erwin and the Department of Public Instruction are still a long way from getting the control of the commission they admittedly have been working, hoping and praying for.

It is being hoped in official circles here that now since the conservative school bloc has been defeated (Continued on page three)

FAMOUS TRIAL OPENS MONDAY

Hearing Set for First Defendant in Scottsboro Case

Decatur, Ala., July 6.—(AP)—Trial of the first of eight defendants in Alabama's internationally known Scottsboro case was set today for next Monday by Judge W. W. Callahan.

A plea of innocence was entered by Clarence Norris, the first of the eight to go on trial.

The judge announced he would try two of the defendants each week "until we finish them."

The court room here was almost empty as the arraignment began. Deputies searched spectators as they entered the room.

Before Norris' arraignment the judge returned confiscated cameras to two news photographers with instructions to the sheriff to arrest anyone found with a camera about "this court house and bring him before me."

The trial jurist had seized the cameras before the hearing began.

Chowan Residents Voting On Liquor

Elenton, July 6.—(AP)—The wet and the dry matched ballots today to determine whether Chowan County is to have liquor stores.

Spokesmen for each side claimed victory.

Wets contended themselves with urging a big vote. The dry campaign was more vigorous. Preachers spoke from pulpits Sunday against liquor and John Langston, prominent Goldsboro dry, spoke here Sunday.

Chowan voted wet in the statewide election of 1933.

MANY DEATHS OVER HOLIDAY

National Total 563; Two Near Wilmington; One in Pitt

(By the Associated Press) A total of 563 men, women and children met violent deaths in the two-day celebration of the nation's 161st birthday.

The toll was believed the highest in the history of America's observance of Independence Day.

Only four deaths were attributed directly to fireworks. Traffic accidents constituted the biggest single cause. Three hundred and ten persons were fatally injured on streets and highways. There were 148 drownings Sunday and Monday. During the same period 197 persons died violently in other ways.

The four fireworks deaths compared with 11 last year. This year's victims were three children and a man. Geraldine Mulvey, eight, Woonsocket, R. I., and Julia Friess, nine, Baltimore, Md., suffered fatal burns when their dresses were ignited by sparklers. Eloise Burton, four, bought a penny box of matches to ignite fire works at Price, Utah. Neighbors found her fatally burned in her yard. Howard C. Marsh, 48, Roxboro, Mass., was fatally injured while tamping powder into a home made cannon.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN AREA AROUND WILMINGTON

Wilmington, July 6.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and four injured on highways in this section during the night.

James Dale, 26, of Tin City was burned to death when an oil truck he was driving was involved in a collision with another gasoline transport at Wannish early this morning. His vehicle crashed into the rear of a truck driven by G. A. Hendricks of Wilmington, officials said Hendricks reported. Hendricks was unhurt, but fire destroyed Dale's truck.

J. Lynn Lynch of Goldsboro was killed and William P. Martin of Richmond, Va., and Edward Hemby of Wilmington were injured two and a half miles south of Wallace when a car Lynch was driving turned over.

J. C. Roster of Acme and J. N. Stewart of Leland were injured in an auto-mobile crash at Bolton when a car driven by George P. Dickson, negro, entered a highway from a side road and crashed into them. Dickson was arrested.

NEGRO WOMAN KILLED IN WRECK IN PITT COUNTY

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst declared today he would not press charges against Dal Jackson of near Grifton, driver of an automobile which fatally injured Sallie Edwards, Negro woman in Grifton Sunday afternoon.

According to Sheriff Whitehurst Jackson, son of Heber Jackson, was driving along the highway and the Negro woman walked directly in the path of his automobile. The sheriff said the woman was walking on the right side of the highway and her daughter on the opposite side. He said his investigation showed that Jackson sounded his horn. He said the woman looked back, but did not get off the highway. Jackson then cut his car to the left of the road in an effort to avoid striking her, the sheriff declared, but the woman then walked directly in the path of the automobile.

This was the only serious accident in this immediate section. Patrolman H. B. Smith, however, said Richard Buck would be charged with reckless driving as a result of a wreck near Pictolus yesterday afternoon.

Ships From Three Nations Join Frantic Search For Missing American Aviatrix

Meteors Had Been Mistaken for Flares From Missing Ship

Honolulu, July 6.—(AP)—Vessels from three nations pursued the widening mid-Pacific search today for Amelia Earhart after a meteor was mistaken for flares from her missing plane.

Honolulu, July 6.—(AP)—Hopes for the rescue of Amelia Earhart skyrocketed today, then suddenly faded when the Coast Guard Cutter Itasca reported it apparently had mistaken a meteor for flares from the round-the-world flier's plane.

Despite the severe disappointment, the search continued with the prospect its center probably would shift from a point 280 miles north of Howland Island to the Phoenix Islands and an equal distance southward.

Hope of immediate rescue of Miss Earhart and Frederick Noonan, navigator of her "flying laboratory" soared when the Itasca was overheard at 3:45 a. m. (EST) radioing the plane:

"We can see your flares; are coming toward you."

Forty-five minutes later came a second message:

"We see your flares. Go ahead."

"Then came the anti-climax when officers of the Cutter reported the lookout might have mistaken heat flashes for a flare and later their decision it was "probably a meteor."

JAPANESE WIN OVER SOVIETS

Army Reports Victory in Day-Long Frontier Battle

Hsinking, Manchoukuo, July 6.—(AP)—The Japanese army declared today it had defeated a sizeable detachment of Russian troops in a day-long battle on the disputed eastern frontier of Manchoukuo and Siberia.

The Japanese-inspired government of Manchoukuo immediately made strong representations to Moscow over the renewed outbreak of hostilities.

Soviet troops, the army charged, launched two attacks against combined Japanese-Manchoukuo border guards Monday morning near the little frontier town of Ghenshan. An army communique declared the Russians opened fire and wounded one Japanese soldier before the assaults were repulsed.

Throughout the day, the army asserted, the Soviet troops brought up heavy artillery and in the evening started a bombardment of the Manchoukuo shore with heavy cannon.

At the same time the army spokesman said an attack in force was made by a detachment of 150 Soviet soldiers.

THREE PLANTS IN CLEVELAND REOPEN GATES

Back-to-Work Movement Protected By National Guard

REPUBLIC MILLS RESUME ACTIVITY

Company Estimates of 3,000 Workers Returning Denied by CIO Strike Leaders

Cleveland, O., July 6.—(AP)—National guard bayonets and machine guns protected the back-to-work movement of an estimated 3,000 steel workers at three plants of the Republic Steel corporation here today.

Company officials gave the following figures for returning day-shift employees after the 7 a. m. "zero hour" for the reopening passed without a single reported case of violence.

Corrigan-McKenney workers—1,506 men returned out of normal two shift total of 3,700.

Upon nut and bolt division—850 men returned out of normal two shift total of 1,700.

Truscon steel—800 men returned out of normal two shift total of 750. CIO strike leaders disputed the company's figures and asserted many of their men were office workers and clerks, not steel workers.

They also charged the company was importing "strike breakers," alleging some of them came from as far as Alabama.

On this matter no authority is better than Louis Hippe to be consulted. Hippe is the Warner's athletic conditioner.
"Hips," he said, "always come with prosperity. Good food and automobiles are largely responsible. Too much sitting and lolling about on comfortable cushions, plus rich diet, does the trick. Automobiles are broadening in more than one sense."

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: Just as Ted Gaylor is desperately about to set a forest fire to get a job, Kay Cranston stops him, likes his looks, gives him a place at the Lazy Nine. Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy the Lazy Nine and marry Kay after her ranch house and barn burn. She hates him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Ted sets the outfit to cut its own timber and rebuild without pay. Hastings tries to tie up the only available timber land, but Ted wins the race for an option, then whips a Hastings puncher for molesting Kay. Tom Runyon, fire patrol, calls at the ranch.

You couldn't expect any man to see it as she did, though, Kay realized, as she neared the bunk house and saw Tom Runyon standing talking with Seth while they waited for the call to supper. Especially not a man of Tom Runyon's type, who was obsessed with the idea of his own importance, and would be ready to jump to any conclusion that would reflect glory on him. And the demand of the community for some action in running down the firebug, whoever he was, would make Runyon all the more eager to pin the blame for all the fires on Ted, if he suspected that one mad act of his.

Chapter 17 Seth Makes A Slip

KAY felt all her first suspicions about the ranch fire revive, but she remembered Dan Steele's warning and held her peace. While this Tom Runyon seemed all right, and a kindly and genial enough person, she didn't really know anything about him, so it would pay to go slow.

If he wanted to go ahead investigating on his own initiative, he might unearth something that would give some foundation for her suspicion of Josh Hastings. But while she must be very careful not to voice the direction in which her suspicions lay, there was one point on which she must set him straight right away.

"I am absolutely certain that Seth and our outfit are above suspicion," she stated positively, "so if you're looking for foul play, you can count them out from the start."

"Maybe," he nodded his approval of her loyalty. "But when you're starting out to look for clues you can't be handicapped by any foregone conclusions. You just leave the investigating to me. All I want you to do is to answer a few questions."

"Gladly—but let's wait until after supper," Kay leaned against the side of the cabin for a second, overcome by a sudden weary faintness.

Tom Runyon sprang to put a steady hand on her arm. "What's the matter?" he inquired anxiously. "You look all in!"

"Nothing," Kay straightened up and smiled at him. "I'm just a little tired, I guess. I'll be all right as soon as I get something to eat! You go on up to the bunk house and I'll join you in a minute. I'm eating with the boys, until I can get my own housekeeping arrangements rigged up. You'll stay for supper, of course?" she added, as he hesitated a moment.

"That's mighty good of you. I'd be glad to. Only, look here! Who was that you were riding in with?"

Kay paused at the cabin door, her eyebrows raised in surprise. A slight flush came into her cheeks as she answered his question. After all, there was no point in making a mystery about being with Ted.

"That was Ted Gaylor, the man I was with up on the ridge." To her annoyance, she flushed still more, as she caught Tom Runyon's keen, speculative look at her heightened color.

"Oh, yes. Well, he's just the one I wanted to ask you about. But we'll wait until after supper."

Before Kay could answer, he turned and made for the bunk house.

As she washed her face and hands, she tried to reason herself out of the queer, panicky feeling that suddenly took possession of her. The dark premonition that she had had when she said good-bye to Ted swept over her again.

"Don't be a fool!" she scolded her image in the mirror as she ruthlessly tugged a comb through her tangled curls. "You're just letting your nerves run away with you! What could possibly happen to him? Especially, if you keep your head, and don't let Tom Runyon's first suspicions start up again!"

Supper Conversation
BRACED by the thought that it was up to her to protect Ted, Kay walked slowly up to the bunk house, planning what she would say.

Any thoughts were welcome, as long as they pushed into the background her horrible experience of the afternoon. Instead of allowing herself to dwell on that, she concentrated on the memory of the magnificent way Ted had come to her rescue.

If her first intuitive judgment of him, in spite of the damning condition of their meeting, had needed any bolstering, she certainly had had it there.

She understood exactly how desperation for those he loved had driven him to feel justified in destroying some timber for the sake of saving human lives. He had been perfectly right in saying that in burning off the ridge he had chosen to do no harm to any one. It would have destroyed a second scrub growth of timber, but could easily have been kept under control.

feared again in their effort to get control of the school commission and the spending of the school appropriation of almost $25,000,000 a year, that it will forget the bitter warfare of past months and years and decide to try to cooperate with the school commission and work along with it in harmony instead of trying to torpedo it from the rear. It is generally agreed that there is no personal animosity or ill-feeling on the part of the old members of the commission towards Supt. Erwin, Mr. Warren and the other leaders of the conservative bloc, despite their efforts to either abolish, cripple or absorb the commission. If Messrs. Erwin, Warren and other conservative school leaders will try to cooperate with the new school commission half as hard as they tried to subvert the old one, they will find that it is not such a bad outfit, after all, and that they can be sure of getting a square deal from it, those in a position to know the facts maintain.

"Superintendent Erwin and Mr. Warren have the greatest opportunity to render a real service to the public schools of the state if they ever had, which is to bring about an end to the silly petty jealousy and rivalry that has existed between the conservative school forces and the state school commission," an observer remarked here today.

"They ought to realize by this time that the taxpayers of the state are going to continue to insist upon having a school commission composed of business men to allot the school funds, whether they like it or not. There never has been any reason for all the fussing and fuming about the school commission on the part of the school forces, anyway, and all of this can be brought to quick and definite end if Supt. Erwin and Mr. Warren and the members of their group will forget their feud of the past few years and try to cooperate with the school commission instead of working against it. The schools and the welfare of the school children are too important to permit the continuance of petty differences such as have existed in the past between the school commission and the anti-school commission group."

There is no longer any doubt here but that Lloyd Griffin will be re-elected executive secretary of the commission again, although Governor Hoey made no definite recommendation as to this position. It is also believed that Griffin will do everything possible to bring about better feeling and better cooperation among the different school factions in the state.

Chapter 18
Strange News For Kay
MARSHALLING her wits to meet the coming interview, Kay walked the short distance from the bunk house to the cabin in silence.

She felt that she would give anything to be rid of Tom Runyon, and have a chance to rest. But some instinct warned her that it would be foolish to let him go away with the suspicion that she could see he still harbored against Ted. Tired as she was, she would have to change his line of thought, or he might make trouble.

"Shall we sit out here?" Kay sank down on the top step, and leaned back against the post that held the rail of the tiny porch in place.

"Sure," Kay couldn't quite read the look in Tom Runyon's dark eyes as he gazed at her. Her thoughts suddenly flew to those luminous black eyes of Ted's, so different from the ones bent on her now. Ted's eyes had a light that seemed to come from within, while Tom's were just black and round and staring, but no whit less intense.

"You make some picture there, do you know it?" Kay smiled a faint response to his admiration. "I don't feel much like a picture," she admitted. "I'm terribly tired."

"I'll bet you are." He put one foot on the lower step and leaned toward her, his elbow resting on his knee. "I'm not going to keep you, but I just want to get one or two things straightened out in my mind. Just how long have you known this Ted Gaylor?"

"Goodness! I never can remember dates! It seems as though I'd known him for ages! But then, I feel as though I'd known you quite a long time, and we only met yesterday." Kay glanced up at him from under her dark lashes with deliberate coquetry.

"I certainly feel that way about you!" Tom Runyon gave a flattered laugh, adding, "Say, what is it about you that keeps a fellow looking at you, and forgetting what he wants to say?"

Kay laughed. "Why say anything?" she asked demurely. "It's too lovely here in the twilight to be asking questions. I know what I would like to have you tell me, though!" she added as an afterthought.

"What?" He was all eager attention.

"Tell me about your work as fire patrol. You did it before you came here?"

"Sure I did." He cleared his throat with a pleased air of superiority. "That's why the Protective Association sent for me to come up here and see if I couldn't get to the bottom of these mystery fires. I've been handling a situation whole lot like this in Wyoming and believe me, I ran that firebug to earth!"

"Tell me about it!" Kay fixed him with her eyes full of flattering inquiry.

"Well, it was this way"—Tom Runyon settled back, and Kay sat getting a side-tracked, when he leaned forward once more, and broke in abruptly on his narrative.

"So He Didn't Tell You!"
"BEFORE I get going on that, I want to ask about this Gaylor guy." He looked keenly at Kay. "Did he tell you about the fight he had today?"

Kay looked at him with startled eyes. How could Tom Runyon possibly have found out about the fight on the mesa?

"Fight?" she echoed faintly. "So he didn't tell you?" Tom exclaimed. "I had a hunch he wouldn't!"

Kay gazed at him with bewildered amazement. What was he driving at? If Tom Runyon knew about the fight at all, he must know that she had been there and had seen the whole thing! But there was no possible way for him to know. He had come to the ranch from the opposite direction, so he couldn't have run across Scrap Johnson and have heard it from him!

"I don't understand what you're talking about," Kay said finally. "Are you sure he was in a fight?"

"Sure as shooting," Tom Runyon assured her. "The guy that came out to relieve me saw the whole thing."

SUMMER DEMANDS BATHTUB AND LOTION

SINGING AWAY HEAT
This treatment is one of the best routes to comfort when the sun is riding high, wide and handsome.

By BETTY CLARKE
(Associated Press Service Writer)

It's an effort to maintain that fresh-as-a-lettuce-leaf look when the thermometer is racing up relentlessly.

Most of us just sit back and resign ourselves to staying wilted. But even on the hottest days one can be immaculate.

Here's the first step: Shake off inertia and resolve to do differently this summer.

Second, put out all the bath preparations you own and prepare to bathe frequently. Baths usually should be taken in water of body temperature, since cold water increases circulation.

If you haven't time for a tub bath or shower, take a quick sponge bath. It's very refreshing.

Bath salts are appreciated particularly in summer. So is toilet water, which should be patted all over the skin, immediately after drying. Bath powder helps keep you cool for hours because it helps absorb perspiration.

Deodorants are also a summer necessity. There are any number of samples of gasoline and oil which the inspectors bring in.

This will make it possible for the inspectors to make a thorough inspection of all filling stations and bulk plants in a given area and to get reports on the analyses of the samples taken in much less time than when the samples are sent to the central laboratory here. It will also prevent the deterioration of samples through transportation and evaporation. In the long run we know it will be more economical than to enlarge our laboratory here and add the new equipment and additional chemists needed if all samples had to be sent here.

Each inspector will carry the equipment needed to test all gasoline, kerosene and oil pumps; to see that they deliver him correct measure in gallons or quarts. Shankle said, in addition to taking samples of all gasoline and oil for analysis to quality.

The new inspection plans are expected to save motorists thousands of dollars a year and to protect them against dilution of gasoline by filling station operators.

After feeding time, Tabby impartially washed her adopted baby along with her own offspring.

SAN FRANCISCO SEEKS SEX PUNCH FOR 1939

San Francisco, July 6.—(AP)—Officials of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition are worried about how best to display the female form divine.

Recognizing the publicity value of Sally Rand's fan dance at the Chicago World's fair, they want something similar. The 1939 Chicago exposition had its Little Egypt, the 1915 San Francisco fair its "Stein"—only a nude picture—and San Diego had nudist Queen Zorine.

The principal novelty proposed so far is a tank of mermaids, wearing spangly tails and nothing else.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington. — Ben Cohen may be the "man behind the throne" the "maker of dictatorships," of the "borer from within," but if he is, his demeanor and appearance are highly deceptive.

He is a Jew, and looks the part. He is not the tall Bernard Baruch type, but is middle height and rounded, with no bony corners showing. He is 42. You find his kind owning good stores, selling good clothes at good prices, on a good street.

But this Cohen is a lawyer, and by virtue of that qualification, has come to hold a place in the New Deal.

He has worked hand in hand with an Irishman, Tom Corcoran, who also looks his part.

What He's Done With Corcoran, Cohen designed most of the Securities Exchange act. It is an intricate thing, of watchspring delicacy.

Cohen, again with Corcoran, next drafted the public utility holding company act which sets out to break up the power of the big public utilities.

His latest masterpiece is the wage-hour bill which, if all its implied powers were used, could undoubtedly put the federal government in virtual control of many industries.

That is the kind of work he is doing.

How He Acts Yet you don't find Cohen luxuriating in a grand office. He has two of the saddest looking rooms in government service, on the 7th floor of the old interior department building.

He talks in a low, soft voice, strangely like the tired, low-toned bleat of a mother sheep. He usually smiles mildly as he talks and has a habit of bringing his round chin forward and upward in a slow circular motion so that he looks at you from beneath half-drooped eyelids.

And he is as casual and seeming-frank in his talk as your next-door neighbor. We say "seemingly" because he has been held up as a main antagonist by the hand in the making of a dictator. He doesn't know and can't guess. We say that is all.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York — It is not re-echoing the whimsy of a song writer to say "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" when one considers the turn in the career of black-thatched Billy Rose. It would not surprise this observer if he never came back to Broadway except, perhaps, to attend one of Fannie Brice's openings or to confer with his staff of theatrical agents.

And to understand if you have but to spend a day or so in and around Fort Worth, where Rose and a sizeable contingent from Broadway are summing for the second year in succession.

As he himself put it in an address the other night, "the only way to get along with a Texan is to be on the square with him."

That's what he has done and that is why he can't walk down any Texas street today without being hailed by a friendly and appreciative populace.

Take the "Frontiere Fiesta" for instance. When Texas wanted to celebrate its Centennial last year by summarizing its vast achievements, its wealth, prosperity, hospitality and genius for creating a state of well-being, it shrewdly put a large part of the responsibility in the hands of this enigma whose energy and imagination are as flawless as twin Diesel engines.

"Gentlemen," said Rose, "I will make Texas the biggest state in the union." Well, Texas always has been that, in more ways than one, but he wasn't far wrong when, after assembling his staffs, he went to work and finally said, "Gentlemen, here it is."

"It" was a measure of theatrical entertainment such as New York has yet to see. "It" was a revue so dazzling in scope and vast in conception that a combination of the Ziegfeld Follies, George White's

ABOUT ALL IN!

Scandals and Earl Carroll's Vanities, in comparison, would seem like an obscure sideshow at a state fair.

Hearing of this, and with a frankly skeptical air, a coterie of New York critics hastened down to Texas for a glimpse of what Rose had done. There wasn't a single dissenting voice when they came back and wrote their reviews.

That was last year, and now Rose has done the same thing again. It is doubly hard to succeed twice on so vast a scale where "Colossus" is no longer a novelty.

When the Fiesta opened, with its Casa Manana, seating 6,000 dinner guests at one time, its "Thrill of Death," its frontier dance halls and its Silver Dollar saloons, a number of hurried down for a day to the Fort Worth sector where Rose is always arm-weary from shaking hands and exchanging salutations.

What we saw convinced us that, so far as Broadway is concerned, Billy Rose is Good-By-Mr.-Chips.

Billy's name is still in the Manhattan telephone book, but his number ought to be changed from Wisconsin 7-8933 to Fort Worth 3-1745. All that's lacking is now a drawl.

How's Your Health?

By Dr. Ingo Goldstein

THE PRECOCIOUS CHILD The recent public notice given to a child of precocious intellectual development, prompted an enterprising journalist to inquire into the ultimate experiences of former child prodigies. His study revealed that few achieved individual happiness or that degree of attainment which was expected.

Dr. L. G. Guthrie said: "the precocious child is not necessarily a genius, but by careful management he may at least be prevented from becoming a failure."

The markedly precocious child is at the opposite extreme of the normal and, like the mentally defective child, is likely to prove a problem to itself, its parents and its teachers. Oddly enough, and probably because the mentally retarded children are more numerous, greater study has been given to their problems than to those of precocious children.

Furthermore a disproportionate worth is set upon purely intellectual attainments. It is not fully appreciated that a rounded development is necessary and essential for effective existence.

Diarist Samuel Pepys tells of a boy named Clench who at the age of 11 could correctly answer all the questions asked by both Pepys and Evelyn in "chronology, history, geography, astronomy, courses of the stars, longitude, latitude, doctrine of the spheres," etc. He was also perfect in arithmetic, Latin authors and French, and had taken up Greek. Yet history does not reveal that the boy Clench, growing to manhood, "made his mark" in the world.

In strange contrast to Clench, there is Blind Black Tom of Boston, a blind imbecile negro who was an idiot-savant. He could not understand the simplest conversation, and yet he had a large repertoire of classical and operatic music, which he played entirely by ear. He could repeat any piece of music after once hearing it played. He could repeat a 15-minute conversation without losing a syllable, yet not understanding a word of it.

Many of the world's great men and women, however, were infant prodigies. Goethe understood five languages at the age of nine. Macaulay, Byron, Pope, Coleridge, Heine, John Stuart Mill and Milton gave evidence of their genius in their earliest youth.

But of course these are the men "who arrived." We have only scant knowledge of the other precocious persons who fell by the wayside. Tomorrow... Hurt in an Auto Crash

The Greenville Greenies split the holiday twin-bill with Ayden Aces yesterday.

After losing the morning encounter 5-4, the locals turned the tables on the Aces by taking a 3-2 decision in the afternoon tilt. One of the largest turn-outs of the season witnessed the afternoon game.

The Greenies scored their victory in the ninth frame. Here's how it happened: Norwood sacrificed Farley who had drawn a walk. Pinch-hitter Stowe popped to shortstop. Most of the customers were heading for the exits when Pignataro's single put Farley on third. Pignataro then stole second. Steve Kenosh broke up the game with a Texas Leaguer over third. Farley and Pignataro talking.

In the morning game, Monk Joyner homered in the third to lift Ayden into a 4-4 tie with the Greenies. In the sixth, Catcher McCormick homered to turn in what proved to be the deciding tally.

The morning tilt was a pitching duel between Greenville's Caliguri and Ayden's Butcher. The Ayden flinger hurled shut-out ball after the second. Caliguri, although free with passes, yielded only six hits—but those home-run balls he threw to Joyner and McCormick proved to be his downfall. Greenville gathered ten hits off Butcher's pitching.

The afternoon tilt proved to be a pitchers' duel also. Ayden's Gurth and Greenville's Delaney put on a fine show for the big crowd. The thrilling finish added a master touch to the holiday nightcap.

Gurth limited the Greenies to six safeties, while the Aces gathered 9 off Delaney. Delaney fanned seven, walked two; Gurth fanned one and walked three.

Greenville plays Snow Hill's Billies here this afternoon at Third Street Stadium. They return the visit Wednesday by meeting Pea-head's boys in Greene county.

BROOKLYN FANS CONSIDER TERRY'S FAILURE TO NAME MANUSH FOR HIS ALL-STAR TEAM A PERSONAL AFFRONT

HEINIE HAS BEEN HITTING ABOUT .360 - AND HITTING WHEN HIS MEANT RUNS

SPORT SLANTS

Bill Terry's refusal to include Henie Manush in his selections for the all-star game only added fuel to the fire of hate that has blazed in the hearts of Brooklyn fans ever since the day Bill asked, "Is Brooklyn still in the National League?"

Why Manush was overlooked is something Brooklyn fans can't understand. To their way of thinking, his .360 batting average should have been enough to earn him the nod over others selected. Mel Ott, for example, Ott's batting record for this spring hardly entitles him to a place on the National League honor roll despite the fact that he has shown signs of coming out of the slump that gripped him for weeks.

Manush is the big gun in Dodger attack, hitting hard and timely. His play has been at top speed and West Henie pounded the ball for could powder the ball. In 1926 he led the American league in batting. He was sent to the St. Louis Browns in 1927, staying there until he went to Washington midway in the 1930 season. Washington sent him to the Red Sox but the latter could not use him.

The comeback Manush is staging with the Dodgers is little short of amazing. The 36-year-old veteran was picked up by Brooklyn after he had apparently outlived his usefulness in the American league. It was the old story of a veteran ball player's legs.

But Henie had other ideas. So he signed with Brooklyn. His legs were in grand shape when the season opened thanks to intelligent spring training. The old batting eye was keen and Manush gave Brooklyn a hard-hitting veteran outfielder. He has stood up under the strain of playing every day without weakening.

Henie began his big league career in 1923 when he played beside Ty Cobb in the Detroit outfield. He was a big, powerful Southern lad who

with George Palmer Putnam

Tall, well-built, genial, Amelia Earhart's husband helps manage his wife's business affairs—doesn't fly with her because he figures that 180 pounds of gasoline are worth more in a plane than 180 pounds of husband.

1. The husband of one of the world's best-known woman fliers explains that he, too, flies a great deal. "But to me," says trim, 50-year-old George Palmer Putnam, "flying is just a quick way of getting from here to there." "Here" is often New York; "there," Hollywood—he edits scripts for the movies.

2. "I'm following Amelia's world-circling route on this map," he says, indicating a large-scale airplane chart. "But to discover exactly where she is, I call The Associated Press and ask, 'Can you tell me where my wife is this morning?'" One of his jobs is staving off endorsement-seekers.

3. "No, I don't worry about Amelia when she's flying," he assures you. "She does her worrying three months in advance of the flight. And I just hope to God everything will come out all right." He's usually there when she takes off and when she lands—"unless," he explains, "she beats me to it."

4. "We're building a home in Toluca Lake in California," Mr. Putnam confides. "Maybe you think we won't stay in it much, but we both want a home in some quiet place. I think we're two out of the four people in the world who don't play bridge. So that saves us a lot of invitations."

NEW LAWS FOR MOTOR TRUCKS

Stringent Regulations Now in Effect in State

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, July 6.—New and stringent safety regulations are now in effect with regard to the operation of all motor trucks and busses in North Carolina engaged in interstate commerce, it was pointed out here today by H. C. Mims, in charge of the North Carolina office of the Bureau of Motor Carriers of the Interstate Commerce Commission. These new safety regulations went into effect July 1 and truck and bus operators or drivers who fail to observe these regulations are likely to lose their licenses and be permanently banned from operating trucks or busses, Mims pointed out.
"The Federal government, through the Bureau of Motor Carriers of the ICC and with the cooperation of the various state governments, is striving to see to it that the new safety regulations governing the operation of trucks and busses are strictly enforced," Mims said. "A number of Federal inspectors and enforcement officers will be sent into every state to cooperate with the state highway patrolmen and others in the inspection of trucks and busses to see that they observe the new regulations, just as soon as operators have been given enough time to comply with them. We expect to start checking in the very near future."
